How to use this book

Every chapter opens with Exam lens, the story in one go and plain-language key terms, then the full notes in handout order with the teacher's board points, handout alerts, PYQ tags, mnemonics and a timeline. Each chapter ends with a recall sheet. The practice quizzes, flashcards and question banks live on the Study Shelf.

Priority tags: H = two or more PYQs map to the chapter; M = one PYQ or a partial fit; L = none quoted in the material.

The wide blank column on the right of every page, and the binding margin on the left, are kept free for your own current affairs, data and value additions.

Reign-year codes (for example Babur 26-30) are kept exactly as the teacher writes them.

The Advent of the Mughals

PRELIMS HOOKS

- No Prelims question is quoted in the handout or slides for this chapter; read it once for the terms

MAINS HOOKS

- No Mains question is quoted; the vocabulary (power, State, sovereignty, centralisation) is what later chapters use

Chapter 1 is marked not important: learn the vocabulary and the Mughal machinery once, then move on.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: A State is an organisation, and power centralises in a strong personality: Babur's guns founded a Mughal State, Akbar built its machinery (Mansabdari and land revenue), and the machine ran on personal loyalty, so when the King could not deliver, it began to hollow out.

1. A State is an organisation. Power centralises in a strong personality, and when that personality weakens power leaves either vertically downwards (decentralisation) or sideways to another personality (horizontal displacement, as Kodak gave way to smartphones). A State is the organisation that rules a territory (the country) and its people (the nation), by making laws, implementing them and settling disputes (L, E, J). Sovereignty adds a symbolic head of State.

2. The Mughal ledger. There are fifteen Mughal monarchs, from Babur 26-30 to Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57, and the reign codes pass the baton from one to the next. Humayun 30-40 is the only one with two reign periods. The teacher writes the Mughal State as 1526-1858 with an intermission 1540-55.

   → It all starts with a prince who has lost his home.

3. A prince without a home. Babur 26-30 was born in 1483 in Fergana, a Timurid descendant (the Mughals are 'Mongol' in Persian, but they took pride in Timur, who captured Delhi in 1398). He lost Fergana by 1512, and Kabul (1504) was economically poor. India was rich but politically fragile under the Lodis, and with Ottoman gunners he began attacking from 1519.

   → So he comes down through the Khyber Pass.

4 Panipat, 1526. Babur 26-30 had about 12,000 men but small bronze cannons, and Ibrahim Lodi was killed. The Delhi Sultanate (1206-1526) ended and the Mughal Kingdom was born, a kingdom and not yet an empire. Panipat saw battles in 1526, 1556 and 1761 because it lay near the Khyber Pass, in the corridor between the Thar Desert and the Himalayan foothills, with the Yamuna as a choke-point.

→ But a kingdom is easier to win than to keep.

5 The son loses it. Humayun 30-40 was defeated by Sher Shah 40-45 Suri 40-45 at Chausa (1539) and Kanauj (1540), and the Suri dynasty (1540-55) pushed the Mughals out. Sher Shah's three reforms outlasted him: the Patta and Qabuliyat revenue system, the silver Rupiya, and the Grand Trunk Road from Peshawar to Sonargaon.

→ Humayun now needs an ally.

6 Persia's price. The Safavids of Iran helped, at a price: Shia forms, Kandahar ceded, Persian culture promoted. With 14,000 Iranian troops Humayun 30-40 won at Sirhind (1555), but in January 1556 he fell from the stairs of his library and died. Hemu seized Delhi and declared himself Samrat, and Bairam Khan, guardian of the 13-year-old Akbar 56-05, defeated him at the Second Panipat (1556).

→ Now a boy emperor must build the machine.

7 Akbar's machine: the Mansabdar. Every Mansabdar held a mansab (a post), with a military and civil role, and two ranks: Zat (personal) plus Sawar (horsemen to maintain). Lineage mattered more than merit, with Birbal the exception. Pay came in cash (Naqdi) or by Jagir, and Mughal land was Jagir, Khalisa, Inam or Mashrut; four-fifths of LR came from Jagirs. A Tankha Jagir was transferable, capped and confiscated on death, while a Watan Jagir was hereditary with 10% Peshkash.

→ Someone has to fill the treasury that pays them.

8 Land revenue: who gets what. Four stakeholders hold rights in land: owner, tenant, collector and State. The State assessed through the Patwari, Qanungo, Amil and Amalguzar, settled with a Patta and a Qabuliyat, and collected through the Zamindar (about 10% as Nankar / Malikana) and the village Muqaddam. LR was a share of gross produce, and the Khudkasht had occupancy rights while the Pahikasht had none.

→ But a machine run on personal loyalty has a flaw.

9 The flaw. Mansabdari was a patron-client bond: the King gave rank and Jagir, the Mansabdar gave loyalty and an army. The loyalty was personal, not institutional. After 1707, if the King could not deliver the desired Mansab and Jagir, loyalty dissolved, and the end state was an army of 2 lakh on paper and 1 lakh in reality.

→ A short-of-cash State then reaches for the auction.

10 The auction door. Ijaradari (revenue farming) arises from need (war, bad harvest, a short treasury) or greed. The Ijaradar paid in advance, worked for profit on a contract of 3 to 5 years, and gave the peasant no Patta. It began as the Muqatai of the Delhi Sultanate, was practically abolished by Akbar 56-05 and then revived by weaker rulers (Jahangir, Shahjahan, Aurangzeb, Jahandar Shah, Farukhsiyar) until Warren Hastings 73-85 formalised it as the Farming System in 1772. When the Zamindar (leader) and the ryots (followers) are both unhappy, a strong revolt follows, as with Churaman 95-21 Jat about 1695.

11 Akbar's faith ladder. Akbar 56-05 built the Ibadat Khana at Fatehpur Sikri (1575), issued the Mahzar (1579) making the Emperor the final word on faith, and set up the Din-i-Ilahi (1582), a religio-political experiment rather than a movement. Behind them all stood Sulh-i-Kul, universal peace through equal respect for every faith. Jizya, by contrast, was first imposed in Sindh by Muhammad bin Qasim and institutionalised by Qutb-ud-din Aibak 06-10 and his successors.

In simple words

- A State is an organisation that rules a territory (country) and its people (nation)
- power tends to centralise in a strong personality and leaves when it weakens
- Babur 26-30 won Panipat (1526) with small bronze cannons
- Humayun 30-40 lost to Sher Shah 40-45 and returned with Safavid help, and Bairam Khan won Panipat (1556) for Akbar
- Akbar 56-05 built the Mansabdari System (Zat + Sawar, paid by Jagir or cash) and ran land revenue by Zabti (assessment by the State, collection by the Zamindar for about 10%).

- The system's fatal weakness was personal loyalty: if the King could not deliver the desired Mansab and Jagir, loyalty dissolved and armies hollowed out.
- Weak rulers then revived Ijaradari (revenue farming by auction), abolished by Akbar and formalised by Warren Hastings 73-85 as the Farming System in 1772.

Key term	In plain words
Mansab / Mansabdar	A post or rank / the holder of the post

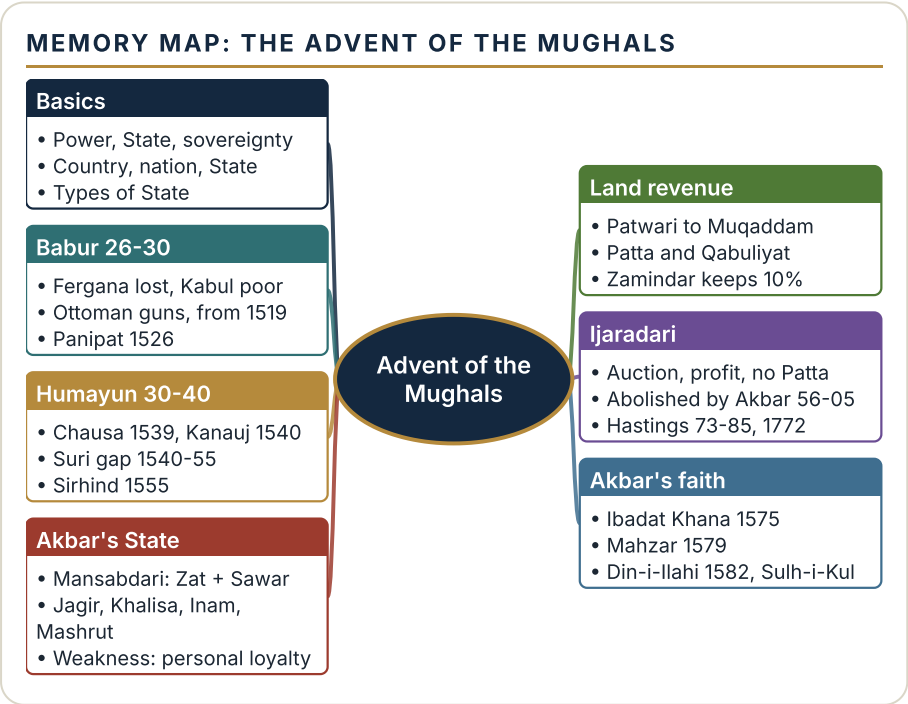
Zamindar	Non-state collector of LR who keeps about 10% (Nankar / Malikana)
Khudkasht / Pahikasht	Ryot with occupancy rights / landless, rightless ryot
Ijaradar	Revenue farmer who buys the right to collect LR at an auction
Muqatai	The Delhi Sultanate's first formal revenue farming
Sovereignty	Symbolic sovereignty plus the power to make, implement and judge laws (L, E, J) over external and domestic functions
Sulh-i-Kul	Universal peace through equal respect for all faiths

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS Babur 26-30 founded the Mughal Kingdom; Akbar 56-05 built the Mansabdari and land-revenue machine; personal loyalty was its fatal weakness.

1 · Basics first: power, state, sovereignty

STORY LINK

Story so far: nothing yet. Before any dynasty, we need the words: power, State, sovereignty. Ask: what is a State, and who is it ruling?

- The teacher opens with vocabulary. Every later chapter uses these words (power, state, sovereignty, centralisation), so this section is worth reading slowly once.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Source for this course = only the Sarrthi IAS handout (the "book").
- After the batch is over, add the new NCERTs (go to the Sarrthi IAS Foundation YouTube channel for those).

Feudal, non-modern and modern

- Feudal = old in time and regressive.
- Modern = usually new in time and progressive / better / more efficient.
- Old is not always feudal or backward.
- Old can be gold (the handout's example: Lata Mangeshkar).
- Raja Ram Mohun Roy, the Father of Modern India, wanted a return to the pure past of Vedantic traditions.
- Teacher's ladder: Feudal → Non-modern (the transition period) → Modern.

Feudal is old in time and regressive; non-modern is the transition period; modern is usually new and progressive. Lecture 2 slide 7

Power and its six forms

- Power = Economic + Political (decision-making) + Military + Social (influence over people, or awe in their hearts) + Intellectual/Technological + Spiritual.
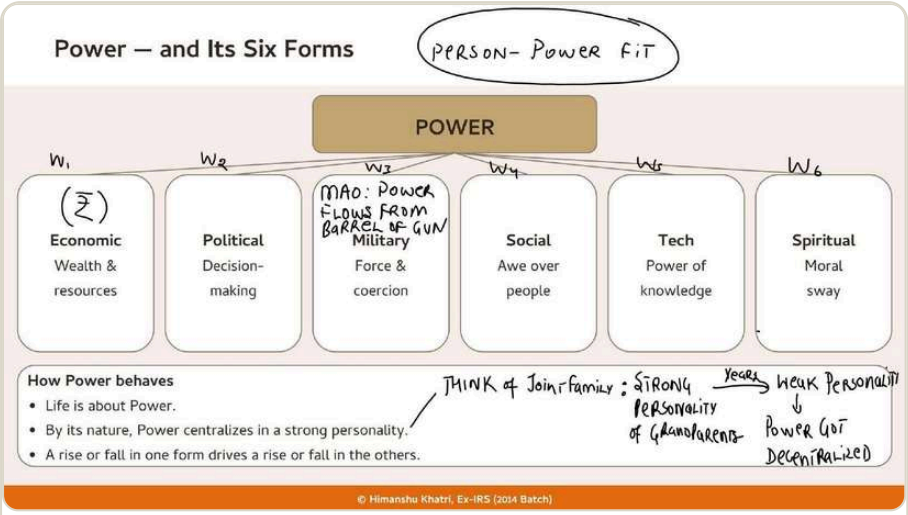
- A rise or fall in one form of power drives a rise or fall in the others.
- Example from the handout: a social-media influencer's popularity raises his or her economic power, while a scandal can hurt a politician's political power.



Power and its six forms (W1 to W6): Mao, person-power fit, joint family
Lecture 1 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

Person-power fit. Joint family: strong personality of the grandparents holds all the power; after years a weak personality follows and power gets decentralised.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Mao: power flows from the barrel of a gun (beside Military).

TEACHER'S BOARD

Baba Ramdev example: social power turns into money power (Patanjali, plus coaching). One power rising lifts another.

It is in the nature of power to centralise in a strong personality

- Power centralises itself in a strong personality.
- That personality can be a human or an institution.
- When the personality weakens, power leaves in one of two ways: vertically downwards (decentralisation) or by horizontal displacement (another personality replaces it).
- Teacher's example of horizontal displacement by an institution: Kodak → smartphones.

Rise and fall of super-powers: Mughals, regional powers, Marathas, EIC
Lecture 1 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Till 1707: strong Mughal emperors (all-India power).
- After 1707: Mughal decline, decentralisation of power to regional powers.
- Then the Maratha empire by the 1750s, broken at the Third Battle of Panipat, 1761, then the EIC rises.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Board shows a grandparent with four children as the Mughal picture, with the initials "SS, RS, AA" beside it.
- The initials are illegible: check your own notebook.

Country, nation, state

- Country = territory (Desh).
- State = the organisation that rules or governs a country and its people (Rajya).
- To rule = to make laws, implement them and settle disputes (L, E, J) over domestic affairs. That is also called governance.
- Nation = the summation of people who are one (fraternity), equal (equality) and supreme (liberty).
- This is the definition given by the French Revolution (1789).
- The teacher links it to "We the People" in the Preamble = Nation (Rashtra).

State, country and nation: definitions Lecture 1 slide 16

KEY TAKEAWAY

- State rules a territory and its people. Country = the territory. Nation = the people.
- The State talks, trades or fights with the outside world, but it rules only its own country and people.

State structure

- Teacher's tree: Symbolic sovereign (= President, Head of State) sits over the Legislature, Executive and Judiciary.
- This structure repeats at the Centre and at the Province.
- The Executive = the Council of Ministers, which works through military servants and civil servants.
- The handout says the primary purpose of any constitution is to create the State structure.

State structure: Head of State over Legislature, Executive, Judiciary Lecture 1 slide 17

- A modern State structure has separation of power, a well-defined internal structure with clear goals and functions, and mechanisms that keep the whole structure stable from top to bottom.
- A non-modern State structure has no institutional separation of power and is prone to instability.

SOURCE

- Student confusion resolved (handout). NCERT says a Modern State has "centralised power exercised over a clearly defined territory".
- In class we say a Modern State has separation of power. Both are right.
- A State can be vertically centralised (a strong Union Government with authority over the provinces) and at the same time have horizontal separation of powers at the Union level: Parliament makes laws, the Prime Minister implements them, the Supreme Court resolves disputes.
- Like parents who centralise power over the home, yet divide it between mother and father.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Province" is better than "state" for the units of a federation, to avoid confusion with State = the ruling organisation.

"Republic of India" and the point of Modern Indian History

- "Republic of India" = the name of the State (organisation) ruling the Territory and People of India since 26 January 1950.
- Key goal of the Constitution = to define and create this State (organisation).
- MIH = the history of the States that ruled the territory of India and its people, for example the Mughal State, the Maratha State, the Awadh State, and the Company State by the EIC.
- INM (Indian National Movement) = a people's movement.

Republic of India as a State since 26 January 1950 Lecture 1 slide 18

- Its goal: end the British colonial State and establish the Nation State (the Republic of India).

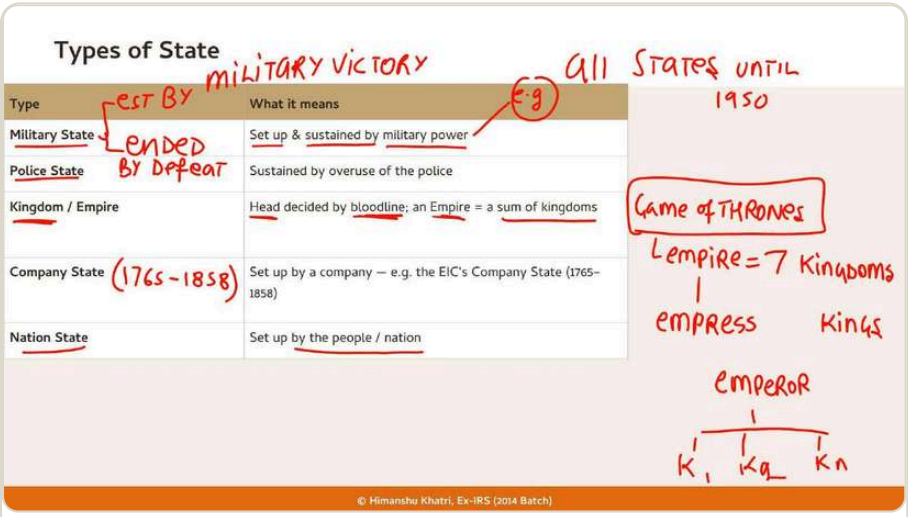
> A State is an organisation. Every dynasty in this course is one such organisation, studied by the same questions: who rules, over what territory, with what structure, and why did it weaken?

Types of State

Type	What it means
Military State	Set up and sustained by military power
Police State	Sustained by overuse of the police
Kingdom / Empire	Head of State decided by bloodline. An Empire = a sum of kingdoms
Company State	Set up by a company, for example the EIC's Company State (1765–1858) in India
Nation State	Set up by the people / nation



Types of State: the Military State Lecture 1 slide 21

> Military State = established by military victory, ended by defeat. Example: all States until 1950.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - Game of Thrones picture: empire = seven kingdoms.
> - Each kingdom has a king (or queen)
> - The emperor or empress sits above K1, K2 ... Kn

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Dynasty = bloodline-based succession for the Head of State, named on family, name or ethnicity (example: Bourbon dynasty). Dynastic rule = monarchy.
- A Head of State who is a representative of the public = Republic.

Dynasty versus Republic Lecture 2 slide 10

Organisations and their motives

Organisation	Motive
Family	Welfare of its members
Private company	Profit for shareholders
NGO	A social motive
Political party	Power over the State (the 1886 INC rule: take up only political issues, not social issues, so the INC is a political party, not an NGO)
State	Territory, and ideally the people's welfare (example: a Nation State)

- The common man does not want to be an MP, MLA or minister.
- She wants security: physical, economic, socio-cultural and spiritual.

TEACHER'S BOARD

The State's motive is territory. A State will make no compromise with its own territory (defensive), but it may also seek territorial expansion (offensive).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Social power and the common man: he wants security (economic, physical, socio-cultural: religion, language, art and so on).
- Social power falls = chance of revolt rises.
- Social power rises = chance of revolt falls.
- Example: 1971, Indira Gandhi, and the hit song of the time.

Sovereignty

- Sovereignty = symbolic sovereignty + the power to make laws, implement them and adjudicate disputes (legislative, executive, judicial power), over external and domestic sovereign functions.

Aspect	Meaning
Symbolic sovereignty	Who is the head of the State
The three powers	Make laws, implement them and adjudicate disputes (L, E, J)
External sovereign functions	Defence, Communications and Foreign Affairs: war and diplomacy (including trade)
Domestic sovereign functions	Everything else: Home, Finance, Agriculture, Industry, Infrastructure, Health, Education, Transport and so on
"Rule" / "Govern"	Always means exercising those powers over domestic affairs

- Sovereign functions are also called subjects or affairs.
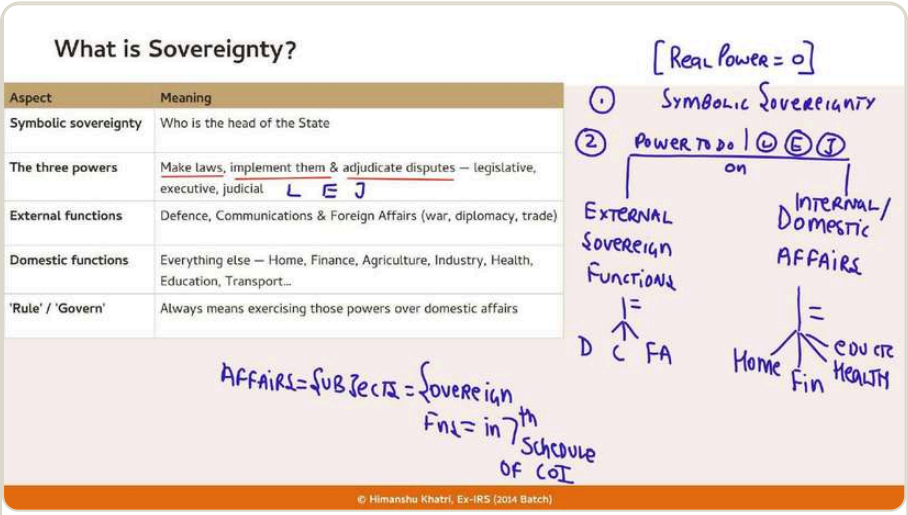
- The 7th Schedule of the Constitution (COI 1950) divides the domestic affairs between the Centre and the provinces.



Sovereignty: symbolic sovereignty and L, E, J powers Lecture 1 slide 14

TEACHER'S BOARD

Symbolic sovereignty: real power = 0. (The head of State is only a symbol.)

Second part: the power to do L, E, J on (a) external sovereign functions = D, C, FA and (b) internal / domestic affairs = Home, Finance, Education, Health.

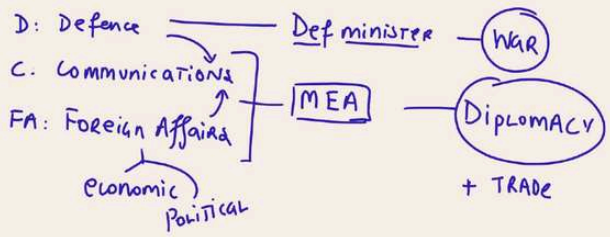
TEACHER'S BOARD

Affairs = subjects = sovereign functions = the items in the 7th Schedule of the COI.



External functions and their ministries Lecture 1 slide 15

TEACHER'S BOARD

- D (Defence) → Defence Minister → war.
- C (Communications) and FA (Foreign Affairs) → MEA → diplomacy + trade.
- Foreign Affairs has an economic and a political side.

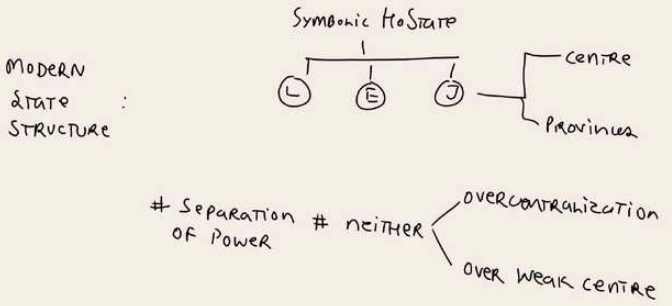
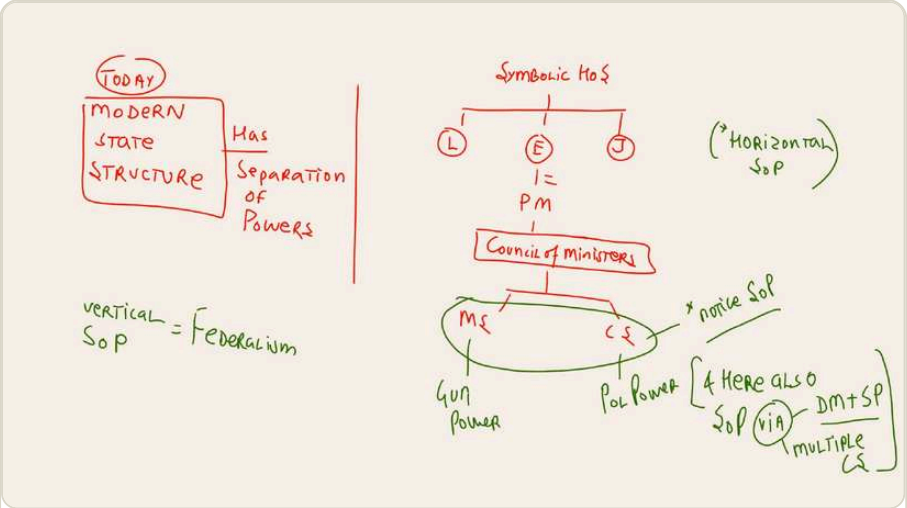
Separation of powers in a modern State



Modern State structure: symbolic Head of State over L, E, J Lecture 2 slide 9



Modern State: horizontal and vertical separation of powers Lecture 2 slide 16

- Modern State structure = symbolic Head of State over L, E and J, at the Centre and provinces.
- The aim is separation of power, with neither over-centralisation nor an over-weak centre.
- Horizontal SoP = L / E / J. Vertical SoP = federalism.
- Inside the executive too: Head of State, PM, Council of Ministers, then the military servants ("gun power") and the civil servants ("political power").
- Teacher: notice the separation of powers here also, for example a DM and an SP (more than one civil servant) share district power.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Non-modern State (example: Mughal). An absolute monarch, extremely powerful, with ministers, aristocrats and mansabdars below him. The mark is excessive centralisation.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Feudal State. The king is powerless, and feudal lords, ministers or aristocrats are powerful.
- There is no centralisation of power in the king: a very weak central authority.

The non-modern (Mughal) and feudal states compared with the modern structure. Lecture 2 slide 8

Modern INM: the phases

Phase	Years	Tag
Moderates	1857–1905	"the Pen"
Extremists	1905–20	"the People"
Revolutionaries	1907–47	"the Gun"
Gandhian Era	1920–47	—
Many Voices of the Nation	—	Working class, women's empowerment, Dalit issues

MNEMONIC · THE PHASES OF MODERN INM, IN ORDER

Many Eager Reformers Gathered Millions

- M Moderates 1857-1905: the Pen
- E Extremists 1905-20: the People
- R Revolutionaries 1907-47: the Gun
- G Gandhian Era 1920-47
- M Many Voices of the Nation: working class, women, Dalits

Order kept: five phases, the last one a chorus of voices.

How the teacher says to remember battles and wars

- War = Σ (the sum) of battles.

- For any named battle or war, hold four things: Geography / place, Duration (example: the Seven Years' War), Participants, and Reason (example: the Austrian War of Succession, 1740–48).

Passages: how regions connect

- Khyber Pass = India's entry pathway from the North-West.
- A passage can be natural:
  - On land a pass (Khyber)
  - On water a strait (Gibraltar; the Dardanelles linking the Black and Mediterranean Seas)
- Or man-made:
  - On land bridges and tunnels
  - On water canals (the Suez; the Panama Canal)
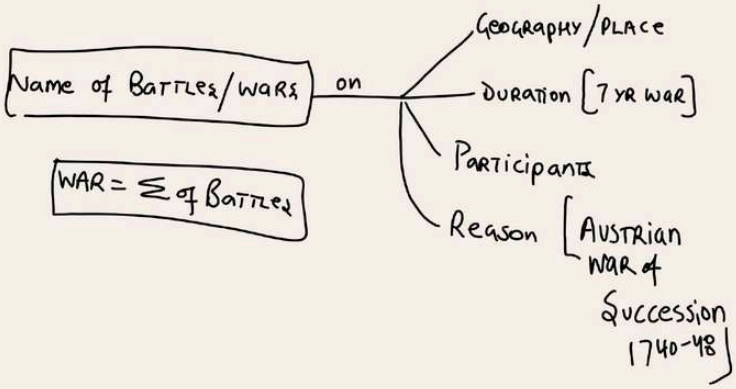
- Two places that are strategically important are joined by a passage, and the passage makes them so (teacher's sketch of A and B with a link, natural or man-made).



Method: remember every battle or war by Geography/Place, Duration, Participants, Reason; a war is the sum of battles Lecture 1 slide 29

TEACHER'S BOARD

Gibraltar joins Europe and Africa. 1914 = the most important development in the rise of the USA (beside the Panama Canal).

2 · The Mughal monarchs: a quick reference

STORY LINK

Because a State is an organisation with a head, we list the heads of this one. Ask: where do the reign codes pass the baton, and where do they drop it?

- The dates in each name follow a coding convention to help you remember reign years: Babur26-30 means reigned 1526 to 1530.

#	Monarch	Reign
1	Babur26-30	1526–1530
2	Humayun30-40	1530–1540 & 1555–1556
3	Akbar 56-05	1556–1605
4	Jahangir05-27	1605–1627
5	Shahjahan27-58	1627–1658
6	Aurangzeb58-07 (Alamgir)	1658–1707
7	Bahadur Shah07-12 (Shah Alam I)	1707–1712
8	Jahandar Shah12-13	1712–1713
9	Farukhsiyar13-19	1713–1719
10	Muhammad Shah19-48 (Rangila)	1719–1748
11	Ahmad Shah Bahadur48-54	1748–1754

14	Akbar II 06-37	1806–1837
15	Bahadur Shah Zafar37-57	1837–1857

- Humayun 30-40 is the only Mughal ruler with two reign periods: overthrown by Sher Shah 40-45 Suri 40-45 in 1540, in exile for years, back on the throne in 1555, dead the following year.
- The list ends in 1857, the year of the great uprising.
- The last powerful emperor, Aurangzeb 58-07 (Alamgir), died in 1707.
- His successors, from Bahadur Shah to Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57 (Bahadur Shah II), are the Later Mughals, ruling with ever-shrinking authority until 1857, when Zafar was deposed and exiled by the British.
- The Mughal State began with a cannon blast at Panipat in 1526 and ended with cannon blasts in Delhi.

3 · Mughal take-over from the Lodis (Babur 26-30)

STORY LINK

Because the Lodis were fragile and Kabul was poor, a prince from Fergana turned to India. Ask: what beat numbers at Panipat?

Who were the Mughals?

- Babur 26-30 was born in 1483 to Umar Shaikh Mirza, ruler of Fergana, a semi-autonomous State in present-day Uzbekistan, roughly half the size of modern Haryana.
- Fergana belonged to the Timurid Empire, and Babur 26-30 was a descendant of Timur (Tamerlane).
- "Mughal" is a Persian corruption of "Mongol".
- The Mughals were a Turko-Mongol dynasty.

Side	Ancestor	Empire
Maternal	Genghis Khan (1206–27)	Mongol Empire (1206–1368)
Paternal	Timur (Tamerlane) (1370–1405)	Timurid Empire (1370–1507)

Side	Ancestor	Empire
Self-identity	Timurids	Pride in Timur, who had captured Delhi in 1398

- They took greater pride in the paternal ancestor, so they called themselves Timurids, not Mughals.

Why Babur 26-30 turned to India

- Babur 26-30 came to power young but could not hold Fergana
- By 1512 his Central Asian ambitions had collapsed
- He held Kabul (captured 1504), but Kabul was economically poor.
- India was wealthy but politically fragile under the Lodi dynasty.

- Key items:
  - The Khyber Pass
  - 1526 (Panipat), 1528 (Agra), 1529 (Gwalior and the march east)

First Battle of Panipat (1526)

- Babur 26-30 entered India through the Khyber Pass and met Ibrahim Lodi, the last ruler of the Lodi dynasty (1451–1526), on the plains of Panipat.
- Babur 26-30's army was smaller (about 12,000 men), but his small bronze cannons were decisive, a technology the Lodis could not match.
- Lodi was killed, the Delhi Sultanate (1206–1526) ended and the Mughal Kingdom was born.
- This was still a kingdom, not yet an empire.
- It became an empire under Akbar 56-05 and reached its greatest extent under Aurangzeb 58-07.

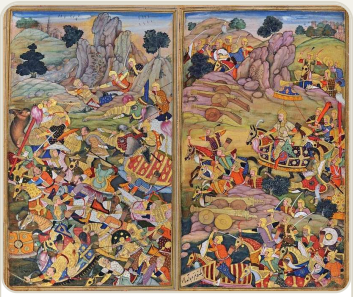
TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tech power. Babur 26-30's edge over a fragile Lodi Sultanate was technology, not numbers.
- Keywords: "small bronze cannons", "about 12,000", "Delhi Sultanate (1206–1526)".



First Battle of Panipat, 1526: Mughal miniature of Babur against Ibrahim Lodi. handout figure

Why three great battles happened at Panipat

- Three of the most consequential battles in Indian history, 1526, 1556 and 1761, were all fought at Panipat.
- Geography chose Panipat
- The commanders merely followed:
- 1. Panipat lay close to the Khyber Pass, the primary invasion route from Central Asia.
- 2. It sat in the narrow corridor between the Thar Desert (south) and the Himalayan foothills (north), a natural bottleneck.
- 3. The Yamuna to the east acted as a defensive choke-point, ruling out flanking manoeuvres.

HANDOUT ALERT

The Kala Amb memorial in Haryana commemorates the 1761 Third Battle, not the 1526 one.

Babur 26-30 and the Mughal Kingdom (1526)

- Babur 26-30 in Fergana
- Timurid descendant, loses Fergana by 1512
- Kabul held from 1504
- Economically poor
- India: rich but politically fragile under the Lodis
- Ottoman gunners and small bronze cannons
- Attacks from 1519
- First Battle of Panipat 1526
- Babur 26-30 (about 12,000) defeats and kills Ibrahim Lodi
- Delhi Sultanate ends
- The Mughal Kingdom is born (a kingdom, not yet an empire)

4 · Humayun 30-40 and Sher Shah 40-45 Suri 40-45

STORY LINK

Because a kingdom is easier to win than to keep, the son lost it to Sher Shah. Ask: which reforms of the winner did Akbar later build on?

- Babur 26-30 died in 1530
- His son Humayun 30-40 succeeded
- Sher Shah 40-45 Suri 40-45 was an Afghan-Pathan, born Farid Khan in Bihar, c. 1486.
- He was no foreign invader: his ancestors migrated to India under the Lodis and settled as Jagirdars in Bihar.
- He won the title Sher Khan by killing a tiger single-handed while serving Bahar Khan Lohani (Governor of Bihar under the Lodis till 1526, then independent Sultan Md Lohani, who refused Mughal sovereignty).
- Sher Shah 40-45 defeated Humayun 30-40 at Chausa (1539) and Kanauj (1540), founded the Suri dynasty (1540–55) and pushed the Mughals out of India entirely.

Humayun's loss and return, 1530 to 1556 Lecture 2 slide 12

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two defeats: Chausa (1539) and Kanauj (1540).
- The Suri interregnum 1540–55 is a gap / intermission in the Mughal movie.
- Sirhind (1555) is the key recovery.

Sher Shah 40-45's three reforms

- The Suri dynasty lasted only fifteen years, but Sher Shah 40-45's administrative innovations outlasted it:
- 1. Revenue. A standardised system of land measurement and revenue assessment, the precursor to Akbar 56-05's Zabti system.
- Each peasant got a Patta specifying his revenue obligation, and the State took a Qabuliyat, a written agreement, from the peasant.
- The two-document system gave both State and cultivator an enforceable record.
- 2. Currency. The silver Rupiya, a coin of standardised weight and purity, the ancestor of the modern Indian rupee.
- 3. Infrastructure. He upgraded the Grand Trunk Road from Peshawar to Sonargaon in Bengal, transforming communication and trade across the subcontinent.

SOURCE

- Patta and Qabuliyat. The Patta is a document given by the State to the ryot: land details, ryot's name, the LR to be paid.
- The Qabuliyat is proof that the ryot agreed to pay the LR
- It is given by the ryot to the State
- Sher Shah 40-45 was the first to introduce this bilateral / mutual agreement system.
- In ancient times a Patta existed but it was not two-sided: the State gave the Patta (Tamra Patra, a copper inscription).

- Sher Shah 40-45 died in 1545. The Suri dynasty held Delhi until 1555, when Humayun 30-40 recaptured the throne.
- Much of what Akbar 56-05 later systematised had its roots in Sher Shah 40-45's innovations.

Humayun 30-40 returns, with Safavid help

- To retake his throne, Humayun 30-40 turned to the Safavid dynasty of Iran.
- The Safavids agreed at a political price: Humayun 30-40 had to
- adopt Shia practices and outward observances,
- cede Kandahar to Iran, and
- promote Persian culture in India.
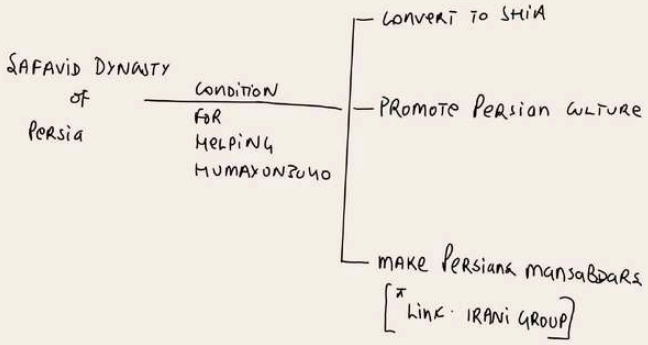
- Whether this was genuine conversion is debated
- Humayun 30-40 publicly assumed Shia forms as the price of the alliance
- Lasting consequences: Persian language and art became embedded in Mughal court culture, and a distinct Irani group of Mansabdars later emerged in the Mughal administration.



Safavid conditions for helping Humayun Lecture 2 slide 13

- With 14,000 Iranian troops, Humayun 30-40 defeated the Suris at the Battle of Sirhind (Punjab, 1555).
- In January 1556 Humayun 30-40 fell from the stairs of his library, struck his head and died.
- Hemchandra Vikramaditya (Hemu), from Rewari in present-day Haryana, who had served as chief commander and minister of the Suris, seized Delhi and declared himself Samrat.

5 · How the Mughal Kingdom was re-established (Panipat 1556)

STORY LINK

Because Hemu seized Delhi after Humayun's death, a boy's guardian had to win it back. Ask: why is Akbar's code 56?

- On one side stood Hemu, controlling Delhi.

- Hemu was defeated. The Second Battle of Panipat (1556) secured the Mughal State in India for the next 150 years.

    - Akbar 56-05's reign secured

6 · How Akbar 56-05 built the Mughal State: the Mansabdari System

STORY LINK

Because the kingdom was re-won, Akbar built a machine to run it. Ask: who is a Mansabdar, how is he paid, and what is the fatal weakness?

- Babur 26-30 founded the Mughal Kingdom. Humayun 30-40 nearly lost it.
- Akbar 56-05, ruling for fifty years (1556–1605), built the machinery of the Mughal State: the Mansabdari System, a military-bureaucracy that decided how the State was administered, how its army was maintained and how the King kept control over a vast and diverse territory.

What is a Mansabdar?

- Mansab = a post or rank. Mansabdar = the holder of the post.

- Every Mansabdar had a dual function: military and civil-administrative.
- The same man who commanded troops also governed territory.
- That is why it is called a military-bureaucracy.

Mansabdar: mansab and mansabdar defined Lecture 2 slide 15

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "O" = a post = mansab. DM or minister = mansabdar
- DM-ship or minister-ship = mansab.
- Mansabdars = ministers and senior officers of the Mughal State.
- Five questions for the topic: What is a mansab? What is a mansabdar? Salary? Ranks? How to become a mansabdar?

Rank: Zat + Sawar

- Each Mansabdar carried two ranks:
- Zat = personal rank, governing seniority and status.
- Sawar = the number of horsemen he must maintain and provide to the King.
- Net rank = Zat + Sawar. Example: Zat 2,000 + Sawar 3,000 = net rank 5,000.

Mansabdari: Zat plus Sawar, eligibility, outliers Lecture 2 slide 17

TEACHER'S BOARD

- No separation of power between civil and military.
- Zat is like today's rank (A)
- Sawar = the army, i.e. horsemen (B)
- Net rank = A + B

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Eligibility. "Lineage, not merit" in most cases.
- The primary rule was hereditary, with the exception of Birbal, who was not from an aristocratic family.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Zat-Sawar graph. Most nobles lie on the rising line (more Zat, more Sawar).
- Outliers: the favourite of the emperor = "Anshu" (high on Sawar) and the distrusted = "Piyush" (high on Zat).

- Who could become a Mansabdar? Lineage, not merit.
- If your ancestors had been Mansabdars, you had the opportunity.
- Talent alone was not enough, not unlike pre-revolutionary France, where only sons of nobles could enter the nobility.
- This rigidity later became a serious weakness.

How Mansabdars were paid: Jagir, Khalisa, Inam

- A Mansabdar could be paid in cash (a Naqdi Mansabdar) or by a Jagir: a specific piece of land whose land revenue he pocketed directly.
- This revenue paid his salary and covered the cost of maintaining his army.
- A Jagir given in lieu of salary = a Tankha Jagir
- Its holder = a Jagirdar

HANDOUT ALERT

Iqtadar of the Delhi Sultanate is like the Jagirdar Mansabdar of the Mughals. (Iqta = Jagir in Persian.)

- Mughal land was divided into these categories:
- 1. Jagir land: revenue to Mansabdars.
- 2. Khalisa land: royal land. Revenue goes directly to the King and pays Naqdi Mansabdars plus other State expenses.
- 3. Inam land: gifted land. Revenue goes to a chosen beneficiary (for example a man of exceptional talent) to sustain himself.
- 4. Mashrut Jagir: a temporary "top-up" or extra allowance given to an official to cover the extra costs of a specific, difficult assignment.

- It is revoked automatically when the assignment ends.
- (Like "base salary" versus "the bonus".)
- By the early 18th century there were over 8,000 Mansabdars, and four-fifths of all LR came from Jagirs, only one-fifth from Khalisa land.

Land of the Mughal empire: Khalisa and Jagir shares Lecture 2 slide 20

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The key source of power was control over land and its resources (today it is money).
- Mansabdars numbered about 4,000 to 5,000 at the peak of Mughal power (17th century)
- About 80 of every 100 of LR went to them and about 20 to the King
- Therefore the richest single person was the King.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Example for LR: ₹100 of wheat is cultivated by the ryot / peasant / Khudkasht.
- Tax = LR = 1/3 to 2/3 of gross produce.
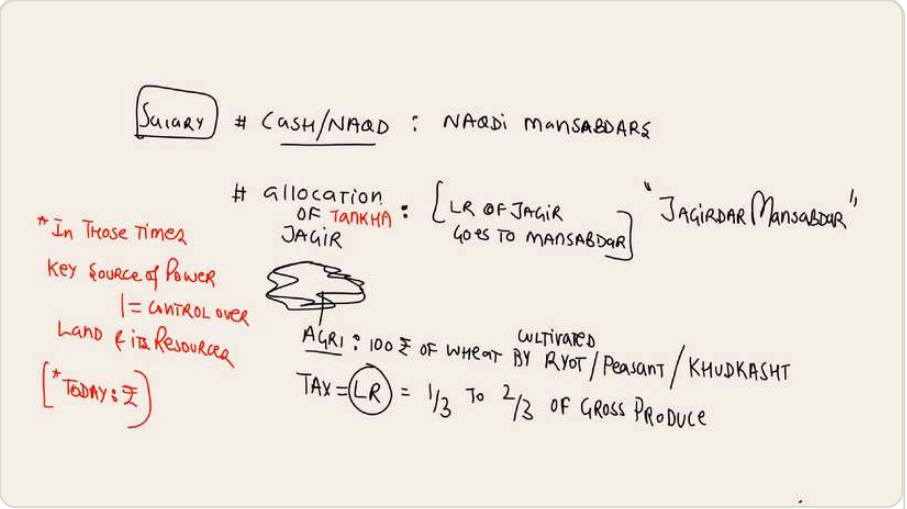
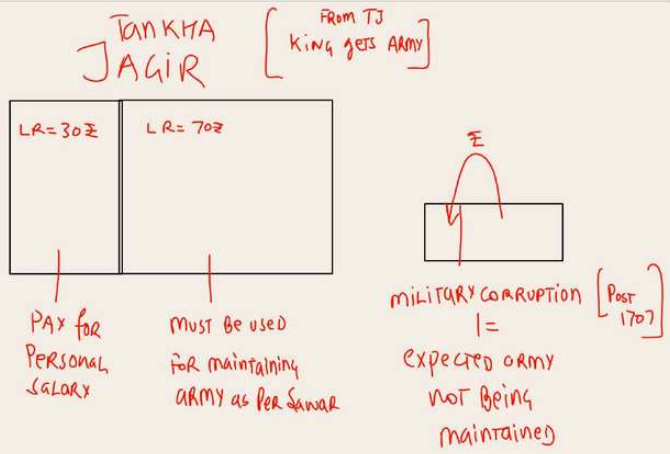
- (Changing LR share by era: section 7.)



Mansabdar salary: Naqdi or Tankha Jagir Lecture 2 slide 18

Three rules for Tankha Jagirs

- 1. Transferable. The King could rotate Jagirs among Mansabdars, or convert a Jagirdar into a Naqdi Mansabdar at will.
- 2. Capped extraction. A Jagirdar could collect only the pre-determined LR, not a rupee more.
- Royal supervision existed to prevent oppression of peasants and zamindars.
- 3. Confiscation on death. On the death of a Tankha Jagirdar, both the Jagir and all accumulated wealth were confiscated.
- The predictable result: Mansabdars spent lavishly in their lifetimes, since saving made little sense.



Tankha Jagir: LR 30 salary, 70 army Lecture 2 slide 23

TEACHER'S BOARD

- From a Tankha Jagir the King gets his army.
- Example split:
  - LR = ₹30 pays personal salary
  - LR = ₹70 must maintain the army as per Sawar.
- Military corruption (post-1707) = the expected army is not being maintained.

Watan Jagir

- Watan = hereditary and permanent. Unlike Tankha Jagirs, a Watan Jagir could be passed down and was not subject to rotation or confiscation.
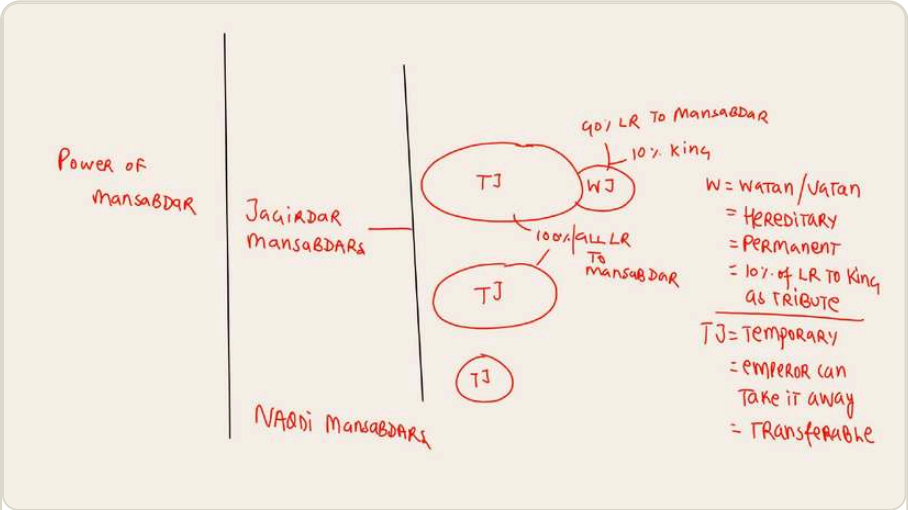
- Given mainly to Rajput chieftains and autonomous rulers who had submitted to the Emperor, so they could collect revenue in their ancestral domains in exchange for military service and loyalty.
- The holder paid 10% of LR to the King as Peshkash (tribute), acknowledging the King's ultimate authority and compensating him for giving up his right to reclaim the Jagir.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Do not confuse an ordinary Zamindar's Milkiyat (hereditary personal property within his zamindari tract) with a Watan Jagir (a political grant to a chieftain, carrying sovereign-like privileges).
- Inam vs Watan: Inam is a pure gift and is confiscated after death like Tankha Jagir.
- Watan is hereditary, given to a Mansabdar doing duty for the King, and passes to heirs.

Axis	Tankha Jagir	Watan Jagir
Nature	Salary grant	Hereditary, permanent grant
Heritability	Confiscated on the holder's death	Passes to heirs
Transfer	King could rotate it at will	Not rotated
Typical holder	Any Mansabdar	Rajput chiefs / rulers who submitted
Tribute	—	Pays 10% of LR as Peshkash to the King



Power of a Mansabdar: Tankha and Watan Jagir Lecture 2 slide 19

TEACHER'S BOARD

- W = Watan / Vatan = hereditary = permanent = 10% of LR to the King as tribute.
- TJ = temporary = the emperor can take it away = transferable.
- Jagirdar with both:
  - 90% of LR of the Watan portion (king takes 10%)
  - On Tankha land the Jagirdar takes 100% of LR

What held the system together, and its fatal weakness

- The system ran on a patron-client relationship: the King gave rank and Jagir, and the Mansabdar pledged personal loyalty and maintained the army.

- This co-opted powerful individuals who might have challenged royal authority.
- But the loyalty was personal, not institutional.
- A Mansabdar's loyalty was to the King as a person, not to the State as an institution or to any law.
- It was transactional and conditional: give and take.
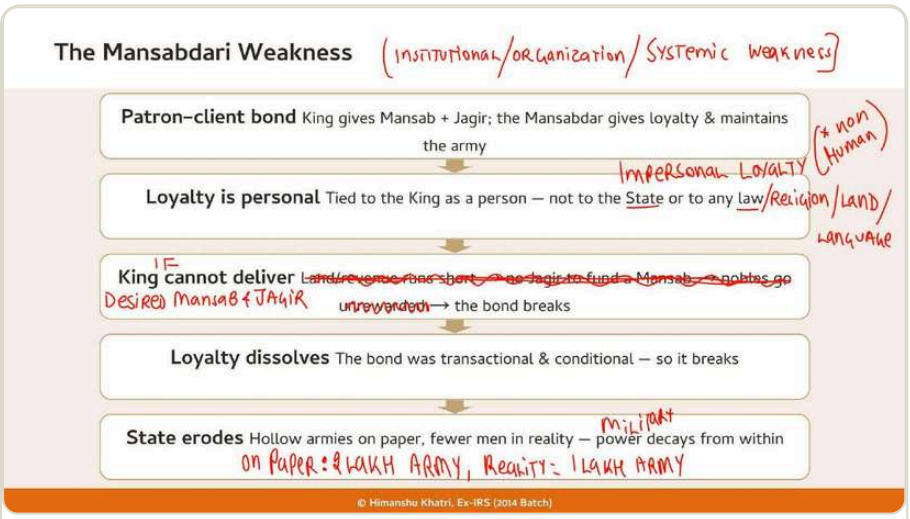
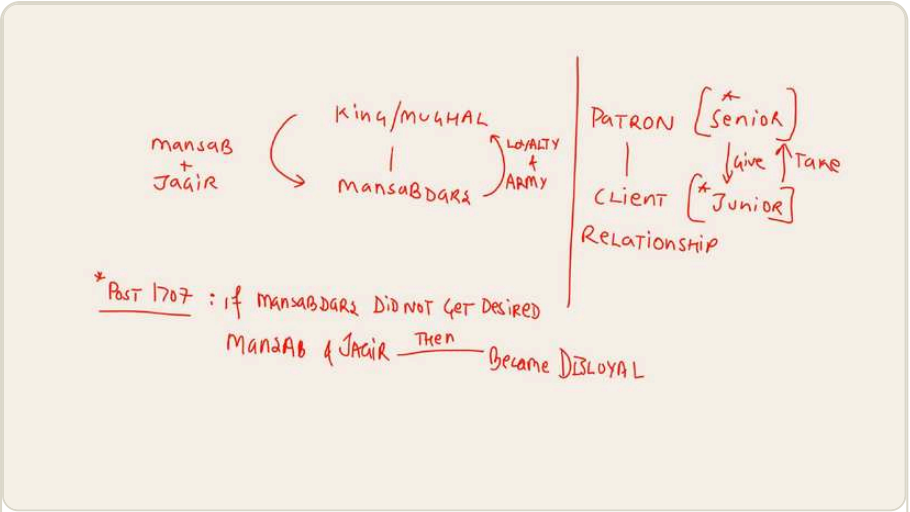
- If the King could not deliver Mansab and Jagir (land shortage, financial pressure, weak authority), the loyalty dissolved, and dissolved loyalty meant political instability.
- This differs from a modern State, where bureaucrats and military officers owe their position to merit and service rules: impersonal loyalty to institution and law.
- Because the whole military strength depended on Mansabdars actually maintaining the Sawar armies, weakened royal supervision meant hollowed-out armies on paper, far fewer men in reality, a silent erosion of State power from within.

The weakness of the Mansabdari System

- Patron-client bond
- King gives Mansab + Jagir, Mansabdar gives loyalty and maintains the army
- Loyalty is personal
- To the King, not to the State or any law
- King cannot deliver the desired Mansab and Jagir
- Loyalty dissolves
- The bond was transactional and conditional
- State erodes
- Hollow armies on paper, fewer men in reality



Mansabdari weakness: institutional, impersonal loyalty, army on paper
Lecture 2 slide 25



Patron-client relationship and loyalty after 1707 Lecture 2 slide 24

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Institutional / organisational / systemic weakness. Impersonal loyalty (non-human) = loyalty to the State, law, religion, land or language, not to a person.
- Flow: "King cannot deliver" = cannot deliver the desired Mansab and Jagir (replaces the handout's "land/revenue runs short" line).
- End state: on paper a 2 lakh army, in reality a 1 lakh army.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Post-1707: Mansabdars who did not get their desired Mansab and Jagir became disloyal.
- Patron-client:
  - The patron is senior and gives
  - The client is junior and takes

7 · Mughal land revenue (LR) system

STORY LINK

Because the Mansabdars had to be paid, the State needed a revenue machine. Ask: who assesses, who settles, who collects, and who gets what?

- Usually people think all rights in a property are with the owner. That is not correct.
- Rights in land belong to four stakeholders:

Stakeholder	Rights
The owner (in the Mughal system, ultimately the King)	Right to sell, lease out, rent out, and to get money from these; right to fair tax
The tenant / ryot	Right to occupy and cultivate; right to fair rent

Stakeholder	Rights
The collector of tax	Right to collect tax; right to be paid for the service
The State	Right to assess / fix tax, enforce the demand and receive tax

MNEMONIC · FOUR STAKEHOLDERS IN LAND

C O S T

Every field has four stakeholders, and the land revenue is the COST of holding it.

C Collector of tax: right to collect tax and be paid for it

O Owner (ultimately the King): right to sell, lease and rent out, and to fair tax

S State: right to assess, enforce and receive tax

T Tenant / ryot: right to occupy and cultivate, and to fair rent

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- LR was the financial backbone of the State: it paid the Mansabdars, maintained the army and kept the treasury alive.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The King owns all land
- The State takes a fixed share as LR
- Assessors with record-keepers fix the demand per field using past data of production and of LR, and so assess the LR demand. Two systems: Zabti and Ijaradari.

Who collected revenue, and how was it supervised

- The State did not collect directly. It relied on Zamindars (non-state actors) in zamindari tracts, who also held police duties.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Rule of thumb: State actors get salaries.
- Non-State actors get a commission or profit for service performed for the State.

- The revenue hierarchy ran through record-keeping, assessment, settlement, collection and oversight:

Step	Level	Officer	Role
A1 Record keeping	Village	Patwari	Maintains ledgers (Bahi / Bahi khata or Khasra) of individual peasant holdings and crops. A non-state accountant paid by the village community. Like the Kulkarni of Maharashtra, but the Patwari had no watan / vatan (hereditary) right; it was a customary right, not a customary vatan right
A2 Record keeping	Pargana	Qanungo	Consolidated Patwari data; a state official and hereditary custodian of historical tax rates (had vatan right)
B1 Assessment	Pargana	Amil	The State's executive revenue officer at the pargana level; assessed the official demand and audited accounts
B2 Assessment	Sarkar (district)	Amalguzar	Supervisor of the Amil at the sarkar level; assessed the demand and audited accounts
C Settlement	Ryot	Patta and Qabuliyat	See below
D Collection	Village	Muqaddam	Village headman who collected from cultivators
E Oversight	Pargana / sarkar	Amil and Amalguzar	Under Akbar 56-05's Zabti system

- M Muqaddam: village headman who collects

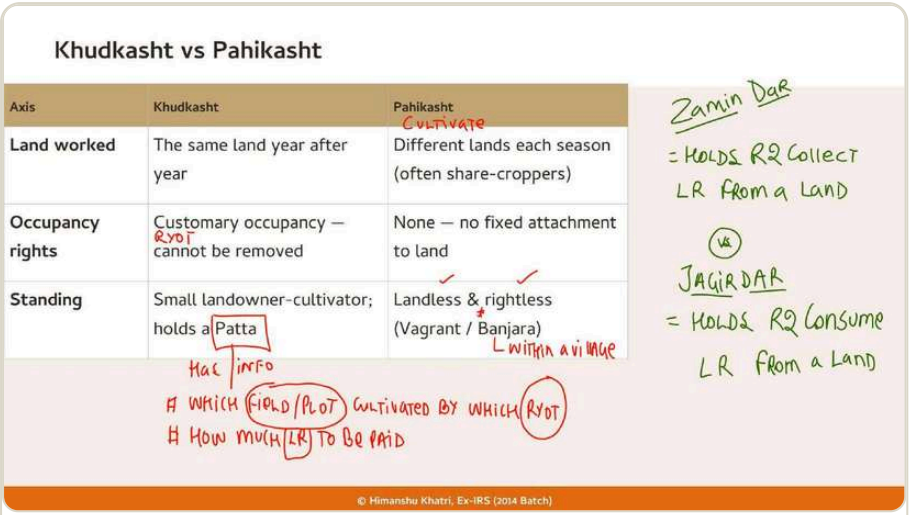
Order kept: record, record, assess, assess, collect.

- Patta (the title deed) = the official paper given to the individual peasant by the government.
- The government used the Patwari's ledger / Khasra to create it.
- It told the peasant exactly how much land he officially held and how much LR he must pay, and so served as a check against over-extraction.

- Qabuliyat (the acceptance deed) = the document signed by the peasant and given back to the government, promising to pay the LR written on the Patta.



Khudkasht versus Pahikasht; Zamindar versus Jagirdar Lecture 2 slide 27

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A Patta has two pieces of information: which field / plot is cultivated by which ryot and how much LR is to be paid.
- It is a "safety tool for the Khudkasht / ryot".

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Zamindar = holds the right to collect LR from a land.
- Jagirdar = holds the right to consume LR from a land.

Physical collection and the Zabti system

- Muqaddams collected from cultivators. In zamindari tracts they deposited to Zamindars (who extracted through their own Amlas).
- Where there were no intermediaries, Muqaddams paid directly to the State.
- In later periods contractual revenue farmers, the Ijaradars, also collected (covered below).
- Under Akbar 56-05's Zabti system, the State did not trust Zamindars with autonomous authority.
- State officials (Amil at pargana level, under the Amalguzar at sarkar level) scientifically measured the land and fixed the exact demand.
- The land records were archived by the Qanungo at pargana level.
- LR was calculated as a percentage of gross produce (more LR from more fertile areas).
- Mughal LR demand was a percentage of Gross Produce, not Net Produce.
- Subtracting the cost of cultivation before taxing was a British reform, much later, and only after the gross-produce method had caused widespread agrarian ruin.

Mansabdari versus Zamindari / Zabti Lecture 3 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mansabdari = a system of the Mughal *State structure (king and mansabdars; roles and responsibilities, salaries, hierarchy and ranks).
- Zamindari / Zabti = a system of collection of LR: assessment (how much LR) by the State, collection by the Zamindar. Don't mix the two.

The zamindar's position

- The Zamindar was an obedient collection agent under strict supervision, making sure the surplus went to the central treasury, not his pocket.
- His legally fixed commission, about 10%, was called Nankar or Malikana.
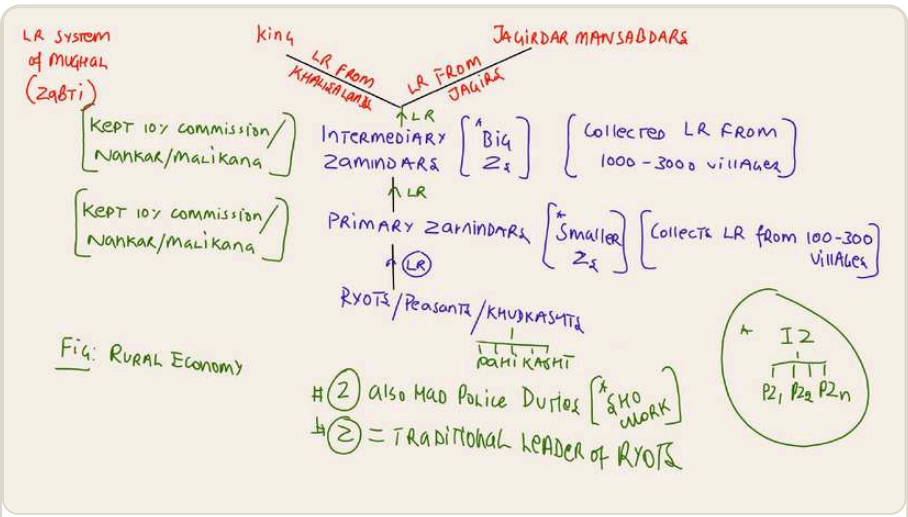
- His own personal lands were Milkiyat, on which he paid LR like any other landholder.
- Abwabs = customary tributes, extra demands passed from State to Zamindar to peasant.



The LR chain (Zabti): King, Jagirdar, Zamindars, ryots Lecture 2 slide 28

- Intermediary Zamindars = big Zamindars who received LR from Primary Zamindars and collected LR themselves where no Primary Zamindar existed in their assigned land.
- They passed LR from Khalisa lands to the Imperial Treasury and from Jagir lands to Jagirdars.

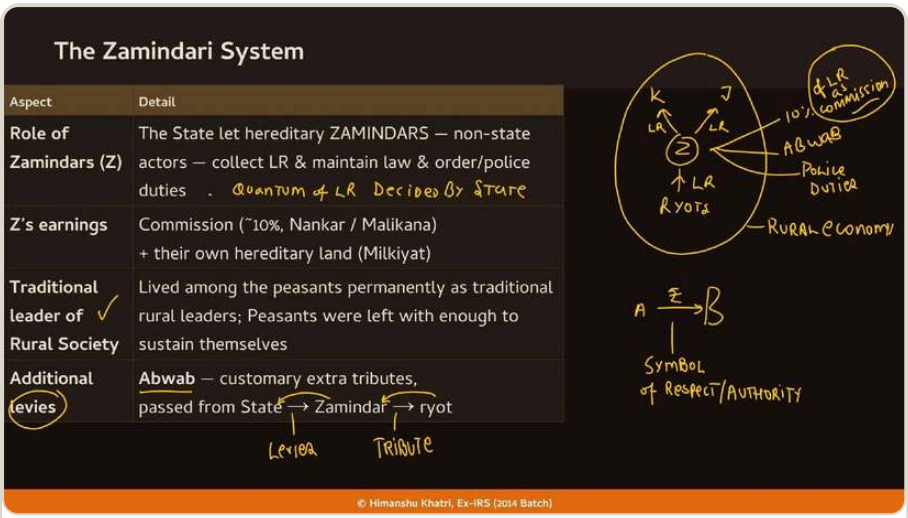
- Sometimes Primary Zamindars sent LR straight to the treasury or the Jagirdar.



The Zamindari system: LR, commission, Abwab, police duties Lecture 3 slide 1

TEACHER'S BOARD

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Zamindar roles. He also had police duties (compare an SHO's work) and was the traditional leader of ryots.
- Abwab from State to Zamindar = levies
- Abwab from ryot to Zamindar = tribute

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A Zamindar is a non-state actor: a private person, not a govt employee.
- Salary is used only for employees.
- His payment for services to the State (LR collection and police duties) is the 10% of LR.

Land worked	The same land year after year	Different lands each season (often share-croppers)

Axis	Khudkasht	Pahikasht
Occupancy rights	Customary occupancy: cannot be removed	None; no fixed attachment to land
Standing	Small landowner-cultivator; holds a Patta	Landless and rightless (Vagrant / Banjara)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Khudkasht = occupancy rights of cultivation, NOT ownership. The King owned all land.
- A Khudkasht could not be arbitrarily removed, but could not sell or mortgage the land either.

Khudkasht versus Pahikasht Lecture 2 slide 27

TEACHER'S BOARD

Pahikasht = cultivates different lands (within a village); landless and rightless.

Revenue farming: Muqatai, Ijaradari, Farming System

- The logic: instead of collecting through the Zamindar network under State supervision, the right to collect all revenues from an area (land, traders, shopkeepers) was auctioned to the highest bidder, called an Ijaradar or Revenue Farmer.
- A farmer, in the economic sense, works with a profit motive
- A peasant works for food security
- The Ijaradar was not a cultivator but a merchant or moneylender who bid purely for profit. He farmed revenue, not land.
- The Ijaradar paid the bid amount, fully or partially in advance, to the Jagirdar (on Jagir land) or to the State (on Khalisa land), then collected his investment plus profit from the peasants and traders.
- Contracts were typically 3 to 5 years.
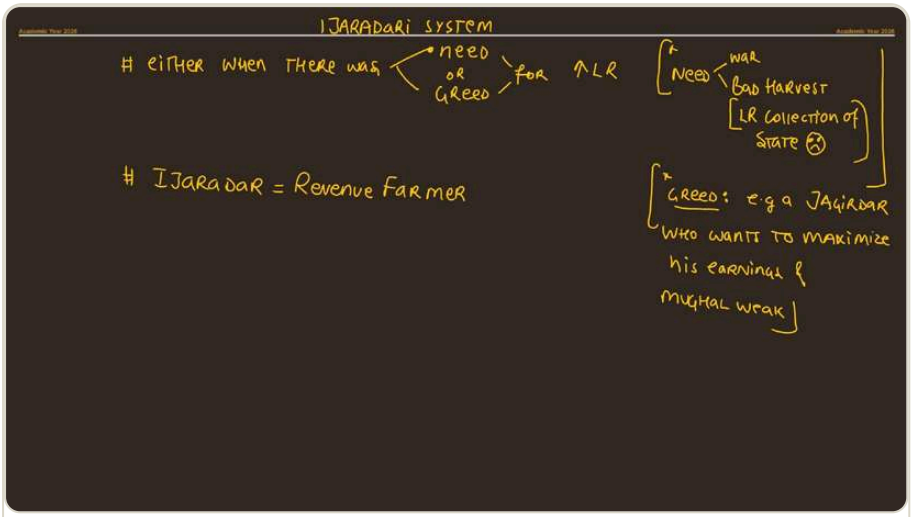
- His incentive was to extract as much as possible within that window, with zero interest in irrigation, peasant welfare or long-term growth.

- If he failed to deliver, the contract was re-auctioned.
- Ijaradars were urban bankers and merchants with no roots in the countryside: no long-term stake in the land, no relationship with the peasants.



Ijaradari: need or greed for higher LR Lecture 3 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why Ijaradari arises: need or greed, for ↑LR.
- Need = war, bad harvest, LR collection of the State falling short.
- Greed = for example a Jagirdar who wants to maximise his earnings, and a weak Mughal State.

Ijaradari: the auction (painting) analogy Lecture 3 slide 6

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Painting analogy. Bidders in the auction are all rich.
- "HK" (the seller) gets the best price through competitive bidding and the money in advance.
- "Bhaskar" (the buyer) gets the painting
- His motive is profit: he plans to sell it at ₹2 crore, so ₹1 crore is the investment and the expected return is ₹1 crore.
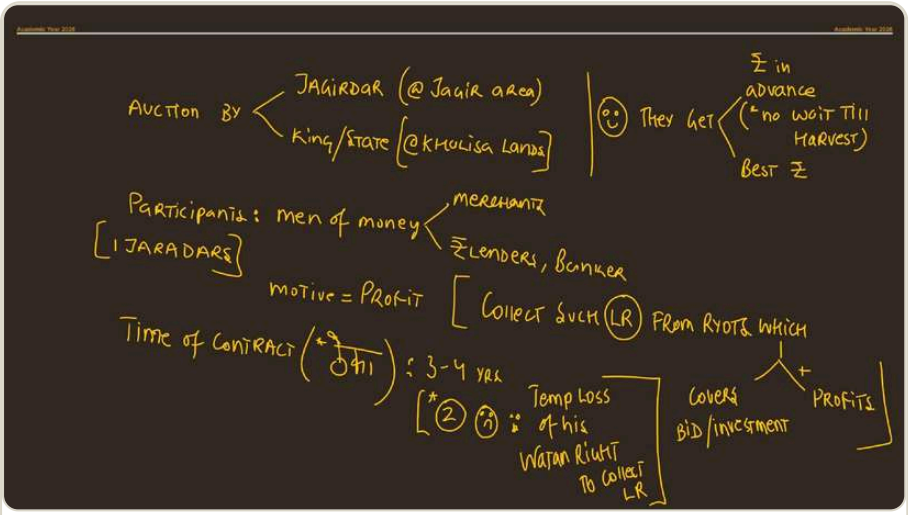
- In Ijaradari the right to collect revenue is the painting.



Ijaradari auction: who auctions, who bids, motive, contract Lecture 3 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Who auctions: the Jagirdar (Jagir area) or the King/State (Khalisa lands).
- They get money in advance (no wait till harvest) and the best price.
- Participants: men of money (merchants, moneylenders, bankers) = Ijaradars.
- Motive = profit: collect such LR from ryots as covers the bid/investment plus profits.
- Contract time 3-4 years (the handout says 3 to 5).
- The Zamindar suffers a temporary loss of his Watan right to collect LR.

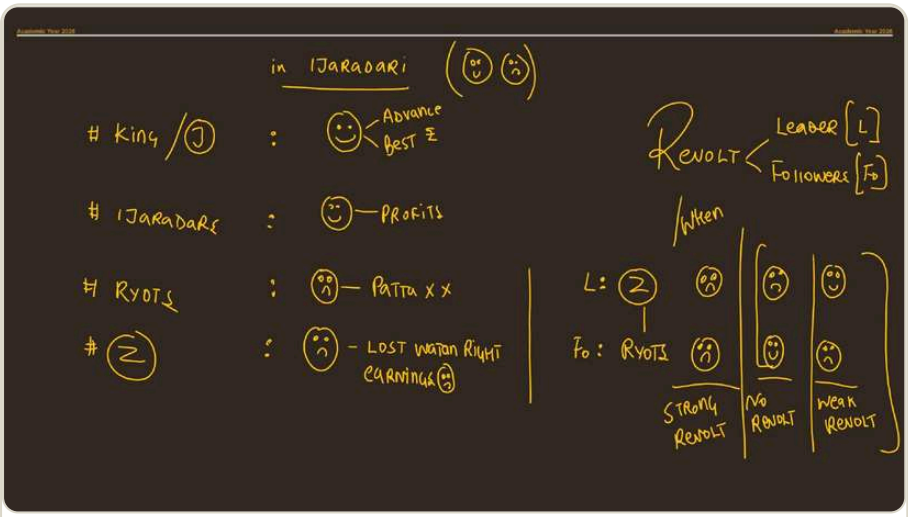
Ijaradari mechanics: bid, advance payment, collection Lecture 3 slide 8



Ijaradari: who is happy and who is not Lecture 3 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Who wins and loses in Ijaradari: King/Jagirdar: happy (advance, best ₹). Ijaradar: happy (profits). Ryots: unhappy (no Patta).
- Zamindar: unhappy (lost Watan right and earnings).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A revolt needs a leader (L) and followers (Fo).
- If both (Zamindar as leader, ryots as followers) are unhappy: strong revolt.
- If the leader is unhappy but followers are happy: no revolt.
- If the leader is happy but followers unhappy: weak revolt.

Churaman Jat revolt c.1695 and the Jat Kingdom Lecture 3 slide 10

TEACHER'S BOARD

Example: Churaman 95-21 Jat = Zamindar-led peasant revolt (~1695); grievance = high LR; it led to the Jat Kingdom. (Taken up in Chapter 5.)

- Zamindar vs Ijaradar: why it mattered to the peasant.

TWO WAYS TO FIX AND COLLECT LR

- A Zamindar's right was tied to his bloodline
- He and his descendants had to live with the peasants forever, so he rarely squeezed them to starvation
- His commission was a state-mandated ~10% (Nankar / Malikana).
- An Ijaradar promised the State a fixed lump sum (say 1 lakh)
- If he extracted 3 lakh through torture and extortion, he kept the entire 2 lakh profit.
- The Zamindar's extraction was capped by law
- The Ijaradar's was capped only by the peasant's capacity to endure

Axis	Zamindar	Ijaradar
Basis of right	Hereditary and traditional leader of rural society	Won an auction; an urban moneylender / merchant
Time horizon	Permanent	Short 3–5 year contract

Axis	Zamindar	Ijaradar
Extraction cap	Capped (about 10% commission / Nankar / Malikana)	No cap
Peasant impact	Subsistence living possible	Ruined

Parameter	Zabti system	Ijaradari system
How LR is fixed	Detailed survey	Auction
Settlement with (i.e. LR to be paid agreed with whom)	Ryot (has Patta)	Revenue farmer (Ijaradar), who also has the responsibility to deposit LR to the State
Collection by	Zamindar	Ijaradar
Motive of collector	State-mandated commission	Profit motive
Peasant protection	Patta gives legal right	No protection

MNEMONIC · IJARADARI IN FOUR WORDS

S N A P

Revenue farmers SNAP up the right at an auction, and the peasant is the one who snaps.

- S Short contract: 3 to 5 years
- N No protection for the peasant: no Patta
- A Auction fixes the LR
- P Profit is the collector's motive

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

The Ijaradari story across history: rise and decline

- Auctioning the right to collect tax is ancient, but it was formally institutionalised in the subcontinent during the Delhi Sultanate as the Muqatai system.
- It lasted until Akbar 56-05 practically abolished it.
- Ijaradari maps almost perfectly onto the rise and decline of Mughal authority: abolished when the State was strong, revived when it was weak.
- (Babur 26-30 had no time for revenue reforms in his four-year reign; the decisive break came under Akbar 56-05.)

Ijaradari across the centuries

- Delhi Sultanate (1206–1526)
- Muqatai, the first formal institutionalisation of revenue farming

- Akbar 56-05
- Practically abolished it, replaced with the Zabti system
- Jahangir 05-27
- Re-emerges marginally as control over Jagirdar-Mansabdars loosens
- Shahjahan 27-58
- Reintroduced properly, but only for ruined or devastated lands
- Aurangzeb 58-07
- Expanded it significantly
- The Deccan campaigns made quick cash irresistible
- Jahandar Shah 12-13
- Institutionalised in Punjab and Bengal, the richest provinces
- Farukhsiyar (1713–19)
- Extended into royal Khalisa lands
- Successor states
- Awadh under Sadat Khan 22-39 and Hyderabad under Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 continue it
- Warren Hastings 73-85 (1772)
- Formalised as the EIC's Farming System in Bengal

Ijaradari rise and decline: pattern across rulers Lecture 3 slide 12

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Notice the pattern down the chain. Akbar 56-05: Zamindari system (beside "Zabti").
- Shah Jahan: ruined lands = "banjar". Aurangzeb 58-07: wars. Jahandar Shah 12-13: fertile regions.
- Farukhsiyar: Khalisa lands, the first time (1st), which hurts the Emperor's social power.
- Warren Hastings 73-85's Farming System = Ijaradari.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Wars need money, so the LR demand rises.

Emperor	LR as % of produce (tells the story of decline)
Akbar 56-05	1/3rd
Shah Jahan (1627–58), Aurangzeb 58-07	High extraction: 1/3rd to 1/2
Later Mughals (1707+)	Extreme extraction: 1/3rd to 2/3rd

SOURCE

- Warren Hastings 73-85 was Governor of Bengal Presidency from 1772 and Governor General of Bengal Presidency from 1773–75 (the Regulating Act of 1773 made him GG, but he formally assumed office as GG in 1774).
- He formalised revenue farming as the Farming System in 1772.
- What began as the Muqatai system under the Delhi Sultanate, was abolished by Akbar 56-05 and revived under weaker successors, had become standard practice across large parts of the subcontinent by his time.
- The ryot at the bottom paid the price at every stage.

8 · Akbar 56-05's religious vision: Sulh-i-Kul, Ibadat Khana, Mahzar, Din-i-Ilahi

STORY LINK

Because the Emperor ruled a diverse realm, Akbar also built a religious vision. Ask: what is the order of the four steps?

- Akbar 56-05's approach to religion shaped the political character of Mughal rule for generations.
- He moved in a clear sequence:

- 1. Ibadat Khana (1575). A House of Worship at Fatehpur Sikri where scholars from different faiths debated.
- It exposed him to the diversity of religious thought and to the bitter rivalries among the Ulama.
- 2. Mahzar, the Infallibility Decree (1579). It gave Akbar 56-05 the authority to adjudicate religious disputes: the Emperor, not the clergy, was the final word on matters of faith.
- 3. Din-i-Ilahi (1582). A syncretic spiritual order borrowing from Islam, Hinduism, Zoroastrianism and Christianity.
- It is best understood as a religio-political experiment, not a movement: not many joined, but its real significance lay in the principle it expressed.
- 4. Sulh-i-Kul: universal peace. The State must treat all religions with equal respect, and no single faith should dominate policy.

MNEMONIC · AKBAR 56-05'S RELIGION LADDER, IN ORDER

Interfaith Meetings Develop Serenity

I	Ibadat Khana 1575: debate at Fatehpur Sikri
M	Mahzar 1579: the Emperor is the final word on faith
D	Din-i-Ilahi 1582: syncretic religio-political order
S	Sulh-i-Kul: universal peace, equal respect for all faiths

Order kept: debate first, the principle of peace last.

- It became the ideological foundation of Mughal governance under Akbar 56-05 and influenced Mughal politics long after his death.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Goal of each step. Ibadat Khana: a mid-path, to reduce conflict.
- Mahzar: the Emperor is the final word on faith.
- Din-i-Ilahi:
  - A syncretic religio-political order (a new hybrid religion borrowing from multiple faiths)
  - Goal = social peace.
- Sulh-i-Kul:
  - Universal peace via equal respect for all faiths
  - Goal = social peace / order.

9 · Who actually introduced Jizya in India?

STORY LINK

Because religion shaped policy, here is a side question on Jizya. Ask: who first imposed it, and who institutionalised it?

- Jizya is a tax on non-Muslims. It is often associated with the Delhi Sultanate, but it predates the Sultanate by several centuries.
- Muhammad bin Qasim first imposed Jizya in Sindh during the 8th-century Arab conquest.
- Qutb-ud-din Aibak 06-10 and his successors institutionalised it as a formal instrument of revenue and policy across the Delhi Sultanate from the early 13th century.
- The distinction matters: Jizya arrived in India with the Arabs, but became a pan-subcontinental administrative practice only under the Sultanate.

Who introduced Jizya? First imposed by Muhammad bin Qasim in Sindh (8th century); institutionalised by Qutb-ud-din Aibak and successors more

10 · Two maps to fix in memory

STORY LINK

Because a State is about territory, fix the map before the end. Ask: why had Babur no coast, and what did Akbar add?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- State = organisation that rules a territory and people
- Territory = the motive of the State. Babur 26-30: no coastal territory.
- Akbar 56-05: rich coastal trade added to the economy.
- Babur 26-30 = founder
- Akbar 56-05 and Aurangzeb 58-07 = expanders of the territory of the State.

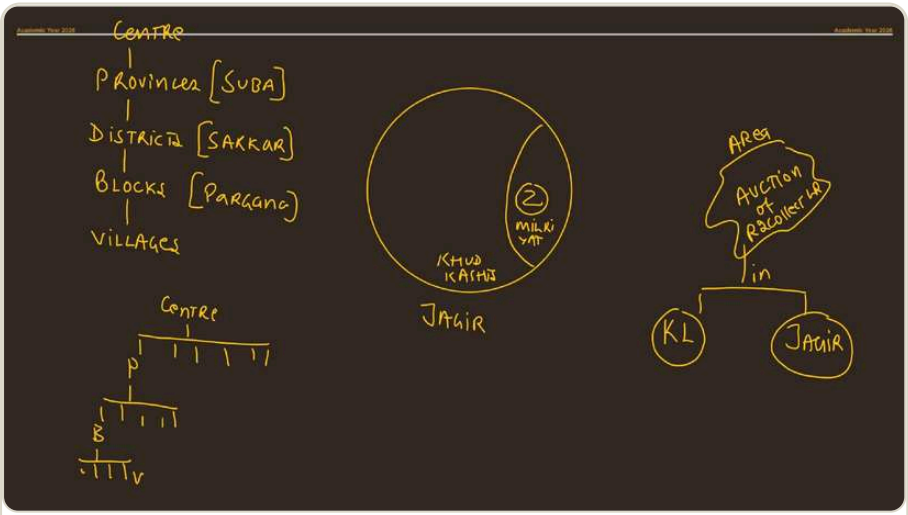
11 · The teacher's revision boards on the land revenue (LR) system

STORY LINK

Last scene: the teacher redraws the land revenue machine on four boards. Ask: can you redraw the ladder, the survey, the four steps and the Amlas?

- At the start of Lecture 4 the teacher redrew the whole LR machinery.
- These four boards are the best one-page revision of Section 7.



Administrative ladder and auction of the right to collect LR Lecture 4 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The ladder: Centre → Provinces (Suba) → Districts (Sarkar) → Blocks (Pargana) → Villages.
- Inside a Jagir the Zamindar has his Milkiyat (own holding) and the Khudkashts (cultivating peasants) sit on the rest.
- Board title: auction of the right to collect LR, in Khalisa (KL) or Jagir.

Field survey: data, maintainers, use in assessment Lecture 4 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Field survey gathers:
  - (1) past trends of production and LR, area-wise
  - (2) average rainfall, droughts, floods and their frequency
  - (3) land records: which ryot cultivates which field, the size of each field, the LR paid in the past. Maintained by: Patwari (village, non-state actor) and Qanungo (block level).
- Use: assessment of LR ("how much LR from which field / ryot") by the Amil (pargana) and the Amalguzar (district).
- Settlement: a Patta and LR exchanged with the ryot.

LR system: Assessment, Settlement, Collection, Deposit Lecture 4 slide 4

- Assessment (how much, using the field-survey data)
- Settlement: two documents, the Patta (with the ryot) and the Qabuliyat (with the State), like a rent contract with both parties
- Collection: mostly by Zamindars (non-state actors), plus supervision / audit by government officers (Amil, Amalguzar)
- Deposit: to the King (Khalisa) or to the Jagirdar Mansabdar

Amlas and the Muqaddam under the Zamindar Lecture 4 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

Amlas = employees of the Zamindar. The Muqaddam (Mukhiya) collects LR from the villages for him.

Chapter 2: Decline of the Mughal State

The "foundation of decline" laid by Aurangzeb 58-07, the weak Later Mughals and the Jagirdari crisis all grow out of Mansabdari, Tankha Jagir and Ijaradari.

Chapter 3: Successor States

Awadh (Sadat Khan 22-39, 1722–39) and Hyderabad (Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48, 1724–48) continued the Ijaradari System.

Chapter 5: Jats and Afghans

Churaman 95-21 Jat's Zamindar-led revolt (about 1695) is the teacher's example of a revolt created by high LR.

Chapter 16: Land Revenue Systems

Warren Hastings 73-85's Farming System (1772) is Ijaradari; the Mughal gross-produce demand is what the British later reformed.

Chapter 8: The Advent of Europeans

Akbar 56-05 added rich coastal trade to the Mughal economy, which is why Europeans arriving by sea mattered to the State.

MODERN INDIAN HISTORY · CHAPTER 2

The Decline of the Mughal State (1707 onwards)

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 17-25 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 2003

Mains PYQs: Mains 2017: India as a spectre of fragmented polity by the mid-18th century

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 2003 Assertion-Reason: Shah Alam II 60-06 stayed away from Delhi in his early years because he feared his own Wazir, Imad-ul-Mulk, not a foreign invasion from the North-West
- The Assertion-Reason method: read A and mark T/F, read R and mark T/F, and only if both are true, think whether R explains A (the keys are split between (c) and (b); UPSC gave no key)
- Bijapur 1686 and Golconda 1687; Jizya dates (712, 1564, 1679, 1712); Kashi Vishwanath 1669; GTB 1675 and Sambhaji 80-89 1689
- Five court factions with one example each; 5% of Mansabdars held 61% of Jagir revenue; Treaty of Bhopal 1738; Nadir Shah 1739 (50 lakh, 60 days, 2 lakh, 100 crore)

MAINS HOOKS

- Mains 2017: 'By mid-18th century, India was a spectre of fragmented polity'. Weight it 30% Mughal decline (cause) and 70% rise of regional powers (evidence)
- The flipped version (FYQ): if the Mughal Empire is the protagonist, give 70% to Mughal decline and 30% to regional powers
- Why Aurangzeb 58-07's wars, religious policy and the Jagirdari crisis laid the foundation of decline, and why weak emperors could not revive the State
- Concept first, then facts: factionalism, weak personality, military weakness plus shrinking territory (Nadir Shah outside, Marathas inside)

Aurangzeb laid the foundation, weak emperors and factionalism spread the rot, and the Marathas and Nadir Shah exposed it: a State at its peak in 1707 sat under Maratha protection by 1752.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Peak, then rot, then collapse: Aurangzeb 58-07 reaches the peak in 1707 but his wars, religious policy and the Jagirdari crisis empty the treasury and the people's goodwill; weak emperors cannot keep the Mansabdari bargain, so factions and corruption rot the court and army; the Marathas and Nadir Shah then expose the rot and the emperor ends up under Maratha protection.

1. The peak that hid the rot (1707). By 1707 the Mughal State has its greatest extent under Aurangzeb 58-07, yet the teacher says its economic power and social power have not peaked. State power is Political + Economic + Military + Social + Technological, and the decline will weaken all five at once. Aurangzeb laid the foundation of decline; the weak emperors after him could not revive the State or added to the decline.

   → So what exactly did Aurangzeb do?

2. The emperor who never stopped fighting. Aurangzeb 58-07 comes to power in 1658 after killing his elder brother Dara Shikoh, and wants all India, above all the Deccan. He annexes Bijapur in 1686 (Adil Shahi, 1489-1686) and Golconda in 1687 (Qutb Shahi, 1518-1687), but the Marathas never accept Mughal authority. About 40 years of war drain the treasury and cripple the Mansabdars, who must maintain armies; by 1705 the Marathas are winning.

   → But war was not his only mistake: he also lost the people.

3. The people turn away. Aurangzeb 58-07 follows an orthodox Islam in his governance. He re-introduces Jizya in 1679 (Akbar 56-05 had abolished it in 1564) and demolishes the Kashi Vishwanath temple in 1669 (his court record, the Maasir-i-Alamgiri, documents it). He executes Guru Tegh Bahadur in 1675 and Sambhaji 80-89 in 1689; both refuse to convert and become martyrs, hardening Sikh and Maratha feeling.

   → Meanwhile the nobles who run his army are being squeezed too.

4. The bargain breaks. The Mansabdari system runs on personal loyalty to the emperor and a give-and-take: Mansabs and Jagirs for military service. A strong emperor keeps even an unhappy Mansabdar quiet through faith in fairness or through fear. A weak emperor cannot, so the Mansabdar acts on his disloyalty: lobbying, backbiting, a takhtapalat to bring his favourite to the throne.

   → Nobles busy in court politics are not busy with the army.

5. A paper army. Europeans win with smaller numbers using file firing, grapeshot and the bayonet on the Brown Bess musket; Haider Ali 61-82 reforms on a European model, but the Mughals, paralysed by factionalism, reform nothing. Commanders are chosen by court politics, not merit, and Mansabdars keep far fewer cavalry than their Sawar rank requires.

   → And the money problem explains why they cheat.

6. Too many Mansabdars, too little land. The Jagirdari crisis is like a water crisis: the number of Mansabdars goes up and the land goes down. After 1686 and 1687 Aurangzeb 58-07 makes most Bijapur and Golconda land Khalisa yet absorbs the Deccani nobles; later Mughals over-recruit to buy loyalty; land shrinks as the Marathas win. Then 5% of Mansabdars control 61% of Jagir revenue, and luxury inflation hurts the rest. The teacher calls its impact the most important in the decline.

   → Insecure tenure turns the Jagirdars into looters.

7. Kal ho na ho Jagir. Jagirs are shuffled to satisfy disgruntled Naqdi Mansabdars, so no Jagirdar knows how long he holds his land. He extracts the maximum in the minimum time, Ijaradari spreads, and Zamindar-led revolts follow: the Jat Kingdom grows from the 1695 revolt of Churaman 95-21 Jat. Military corruption brings victories to rebel states (Sikh, Marathas, Afghans) and to an outsider like Nadir Shah.

   → At court, the factions now fight for the throne itself.

8 Five factions, three rounds. The court splits into Irani, Turani, Hindustani, Hindu and Deccani groups. Bahadur Shah 07-12 fights his brothers; Jahandar Shah 12-13 rules with Zulfiqar Khan and is executed by Farukhsiyar 13-19, who rises with the Sayyid Brothers. He refuses to be their puppet, so the Sayyids ally with the Marathas (15,000 cavalry in Delhi, 1719), kill him and install Muhammad Shah 19-48. Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 beats the Sayyids with the Irani group, then takes Hyderabad in 1724.

→ The Marathas watch Delhi's weakness.

9 The Marathas test Delhi. From 1705 the Marathas defeat Mughal forces; by the mid-18th century they recover Aurangzeb 58-07's gains and take Akbar 56-05's Gujarat, and only Hyderabad holds out. In 1737 Peshwa Bajirao 20-40 plunders Delhi and briefly holds Md Shah prisoner. In 1738 they beat the army led by Nizam, and the Treaty of Bhopal gives them the Chambal-Narmada lands and Malwa.

→ Then a bigger predator arrives from Iran.

10 Nadir Shah, the lowest point (1739). Nadir Shah wants plunder, not annexation. At Karnal the Mughal army is routed and Sadat Khan 22-39 is captured; Nizam, now Mir Bakshi, buys peace for Rs 50 lakh. But Sadat Khan, passed over for that post, goads Nadir Shah to attack Delhi: he rules for 60 days, about 2 lakh civilians die, about 100 crore is looted, including the Peacock Throne with the Kohinoor. The Marathas, home in the South after Bhopal, simply wait.

→ After this blow, the emperor needs a protector.

11 Protector and puppet (1752-54). Nadir Shah's victory encourages Abdali's first invasion of 1748. In 1752 the emperor comes under Maratha protection for fear of Afghan invasions, and in 1754 the Marathas install Alamgir II 54-59 as their puppet. By the mid-18th century there are many States, not one: successors (Bengal, Awadh, Hyderabad), rebels (Jats, Marathas, Rohilkhand, Farukhabad) and the already autonomous (Mysore, Rajputs, Travancore), with the Marathas as No. 1 power. The emperor keeps symbolic sovereignty until 1858.

→ Now: how will the exam ask this?

12 How the exam asks it. Prelims 2003: Shah Alam II 60-06 stayed away from Delhi in his early years for fear of his Wazir Imad-ul-Mulk, not a frontier invasion; read A and R separately, then think. Mains 2017 asked about a fragmented polity: find the protagonist and weight 30% Mughal decline and 70% regional powers, and flip the weights if the Mughal Empire itself is the subject.

In simple words

- MIH starts here. The Mughal State had its greatest extent under Aurangzeb 58-07 in 1707, yet by the 1750s the emperor ruled little beyond Delhi-Agra under Maratha protection.
- Decline is a five-way weakening: Political, Economic, Military, Social and Technological power fell together. Use vertical (power moves down to Mansabdars) and horizontal (one entity replaces another) lenses.
- Aurangzeb's long wars, religious policy and executions drained the treasury and the people's goodwill
- The Jagirdari crisis (too many Mansabdars, too little land) broke the nobles
- Weak emperors could not keep the Mansabdari bargain, so nobles turned to factionalism, the army rotted (corruption, no reform) and Marathas and Nadir Shah (1739) exposed it.
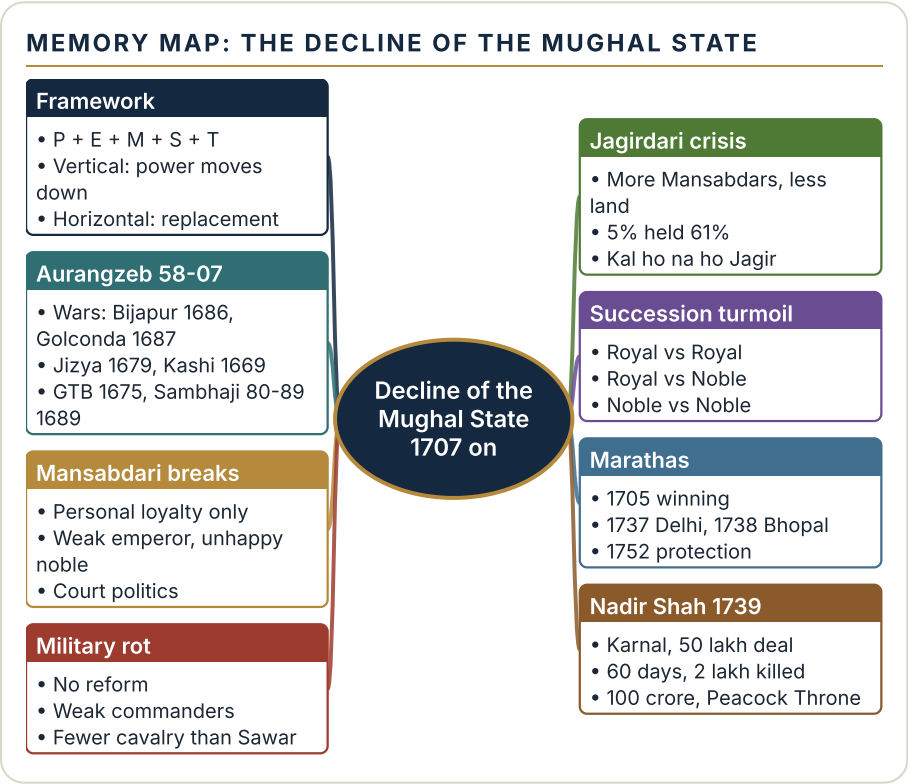
- For exams: hold the Wazir fact (Prelims 2003), the Assertion-Reason method, and the 30/70 split for the Mains 2017 fragmented-polity question.

Key term	In plain words
Mansabdar	A noble holding a Mansab from the emperor; he gets a Jagir and gives military service and loyalty
Jagir	Land given to a Mansabdar; from it he maintains the army as per his Sawar rank
Sawar	The cavalry a Mansabdar had to maintain; corrupt ones kept far fewer
Khalisa	Land whose land revenue (LR) goes to the king; Aurangzeb 58-07 made most of Bijapur and Golconda Khalisa

Key term	In plain words
Naqdi Mansabdar	A Mansabdar kept waiting for a Jagir; Jagirs were shuffled to satisfy such disgruntled men
Ijaradari	Revenue-farming: collection taken from Zamindars, the rural stabilisers
Takhtapalat	Plot or coup to bring the favourite of a faction to the throne
Mir Bakshi	Chief military paymaster / commander: defence minister plus defence finance (military intelligence and war paymaster)
Zimmi	A 'protected person' who paid Jizya: free to practise his religion and exempt from military service
Vertical / Horizontal shift	Vertical = power moves down (decentralisation); horizontal = one entity replaces another at the same level
Factionalism	Group politics: Royal vs Royal, Royal vs Noble, Noble vs Noble
Treaty of Bhopal 1738	Marathas won the lands between the Chambal and Narmada and the Subah of Malwa

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS Aurangzeb 58-07 laid the foundation, weak emperors and factionalism spread the rot, and the Marathas and Nadir Shah exposed a State that sat under Maratha protection by 1752.

1 · Framework: how to analyse the decline

STORY LINK

Story so far: a State at its peak in 1707. Because the decline hit five kinds of power at once, learn the five-part equation and the two lenses first. Ask: which lens fits each event, vertical or horizontal?

- This is where Modern Indian History (MIH) starts.
- The Mughal State reached its greatest extent under Aurangzeb 58-07 and began collapsing right after.
- Within about four decades it was a small area around Delhi–Agra under Maratha protection.

Chapter 2 timeline: Babur 26-30 to Zafar 37-57; foundation of decline at Aurangzeb 58-07 Lecture 3 slide 19

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MIH starts here. Later Mughals are weak: Bahadur Shah (1707-12) in the 1700s to Zafar (1837-57) in the 1800s.
- Power moves from the Mughal down to the Mansabdars.
- Foundation of decline was laid at Aurangzeb 58-07
- after him, weak emperors either could not revive the State or contributed to its decline

The five-part equation

- State power = Political + Economic + Military + Social + Technological.
- The Mughal decline is a simultaneous weakening across all five.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- By 1707 the Mughal empire reached its peak (territory), but not its economic power peak, and not its social power peak.
- Travancore was never part of the Mughal State. Assam also not.

Two analytical tools (apply to every decline question)

Tool	Meaning	Mughal example
Vertical power shift = decentralisation	The emperor weakens and power moves downward	After 1707 the emperors were weak personalities, so the Mansabdars under them became the real centre of power
Horizontal power shift = replacement	One entity replaces another at the same level	Delhi Sultanate replaced by the Mughals at Panipat 1526; British super-power replaced by US-USSR at the end of WW2 (1945)

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout says to apply both lenses to every exam question on decline.

The teacher's components board (what each form of power means)

- Political power = the emperor's word is rule ("vachan hi hai shasan": decision + rule).
- Teacher: political power is proportional to the territory of the State.
- Economic power = the treasury, or public exchequer = the name of the bank account of the State.
- Military power has four parts:
  - Number of soldiers / size of the army
  - Technology
  - No military corruption
  - Strong military leadership.

Framework: political, economic and military power Lecture 3 slide 21

- The teacher's World War examples:
  - 1945, USSR had the largest army
  - 1945, atomic bomb (USA).

Social power: awe and love, security, revolt Lecture 3 slide 22

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Social power = awe / love in people's hearts.
- The common man wants security (economic, physical, socio-cultural), not to be an MP, MLA or minister.
- Social power falls = chance of revolt rises
- Social power rises = chance of revolt falls.
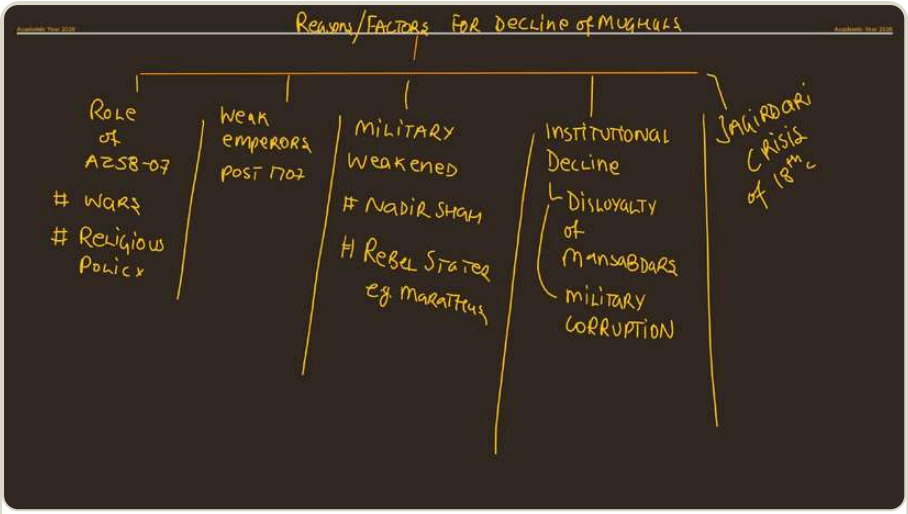
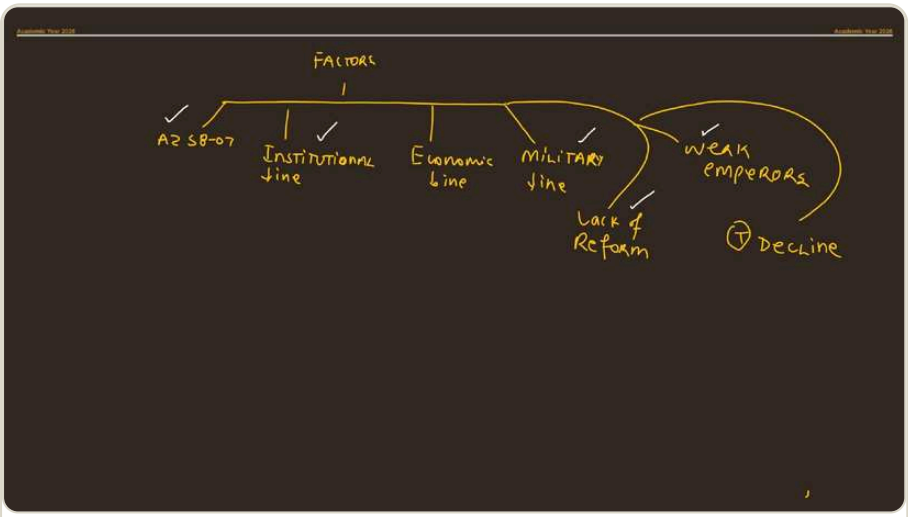
- Example: 1971, Indira Gandhi, and the film song of the time.

The teacher's list of factors



Reasons for decline of the Mughals Lecture 3 slide 23



Factors tree: Aurangzeb, institutional, economic, military, weak emperors Lecture 4 slide 6

- 1. Role of Aurangzeb 58-07: wars, religious policy.
- 2. Weak emperors post-1707.
- 3. Military weakened: external (Nadir Shah) and internal (rebel states, e.g. the Marathas).
- 4. Institutional decline: disloyalty of Mansabdars, military corruption.
- 5. Jagirdari crisis of the 18th century.
- 6. Lack of reform (tech and organisation), all ending in territorial decline.

MNEMONIC · SIX FACTORS OF DECLINE, IN THE TEACHER'S ORDER

A Weak Mughal Is Just Lost

A Aurangzeb 58-07: wars, religious policy

W Weak emperors post-1707

M Military weakened: Nadir Shah, rebel states such as the Marathas

I Institutional decline: disloyal Mansabdars, military corruption

J Jagirdari crisis of the 18th century

L Lack of reform (tech and organisation)

Order kept: the teacher's numbered list 1 to 6. The sentence also tells the result: the Mughal was lost.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"We have covered the concepts of decline of the Mughals. Now let's look at factual data and events to support the concepts." Concepts first, then facts: org = concept + fact.

Concepts of decline: factionalism, weak personality, military weakness
Lecture 5 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

Concept summary: Factionalism (Royal vs Royal, Royal vs Noble, Noble vs Noble); Weak personality (Rangila, 1719-48 = Muhammad Shah 19-48); Military weakness plus shrinking of territory (external: Nadir Shah 1738-40; internal: Marathas).

2 · Why did Aurangzeb 58-07's wars sow the seeds of decline?

STORY LINK

Because the peak hid weak economic and social power, the story begins with Aurangzeb's wars. Ask: was the return on investment positive, and did peace follow?

- Aurangzeb 58-07 came to power in 1658 after a brutal succession war (he killed his elder brother Dara Shikoh).
- He governed as an empire-builder on a mission: to conquer all of India, particularly the Deccan.
- War helps a State only if ROI (return on investment) is positive and a period of peace follows the conquest.
- If wars never stop and territory won is eventually lost, it becomes an economic disaster.

War as rapid investment; victory as slow ROI Lecture 3 slide 24

TEACHER'S BOARD

- War = rapid investment of money: recruit more men and horses, produce more weapons, logistics (costs of moving men, food, weapons), attrition of soldiers, horses and elephants.
- Domestic economy suffers if the war is fought in the homeland.
- Victory = long, slow ROI: gain of territory (more LR, ports, trade) and geopolitical gains such as a natural frontier.
- Example: Hitler wanted territory up to the Urals.

What he won, and what it cost

- Bijapur (annexed 1686; Adil Shahi dynasty 1489–1686) and Golconda (annexed 1687; Qutb Shahi dynasty 1518–1687).
- Both were successor kingdoms of the Bahmani Sultanate (1347–1527).
- In Bijapur it was a three-way fight: Mughals, Bijapur, and the Marathas, who never accepted Mughal authority.
- By 1705 the Marathas were winning

- By the 1750s they had reversed most of Aurangzeb 58-07's gains and some of Akbar 56-05's as well.
- 40 years of warfare drained the treasury (the government's bank account), broke the Mansabdars financially (they had to maintain armies), and translated directly into later military corruption (Mansabdars not maintaining the army as per Sawar).

Role of Aurangzeb 58-07 versus Akbar 56-05 Lecture 4 slide 8

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Role of Aurangzeb 58-07 (1658-1707, about 50 years) versus Akbar 56-05 (about 50 years).
- Aurangzeb, four lines: (1) Religious orthodoxy: Jizya (1679), temple policy → social power sad.
- (2) Execution of leaders: GTB (1675), Sambhaji 80-89 (1689) → social power sad.
- (3) Contribution to the Jagirdari crisis.
- (4) Continuous wars of about 45 years → economy sad (high LR demand; military corruption → weak military; wars proved useless ultimately; future emperors inherit a weak treasury).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Akbar 56-05 = foundation of rise. Universal peace, syncretic policies, religious harmony → social power happy.
- LR system fair, no Ijaradari, economic security.
- Strong state machinery (Mansabdari system) → military happy.

Deccan wars table and the fight triangle Lecture 4 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Deccan triangle: Bijapur (1686), Golconda (1687), Goa, and the old Vijayanagara (1336–1646) region below them.
- Fight triangle = Aurangzeb 58-07 (external power) + Marathas (domestic rebels) + Bijapur (existing State).

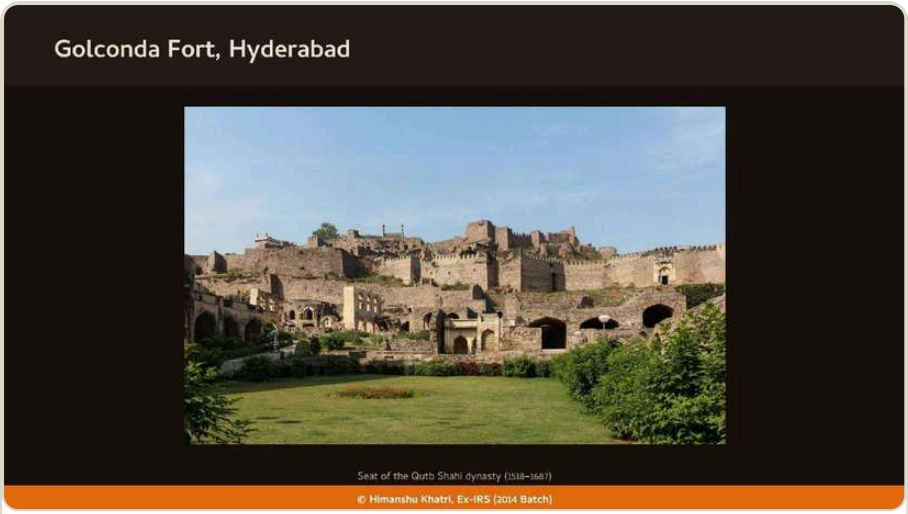
Gol Gumbaz, Bijapur: Adil Shahi dynasty (1489-1686) Lecture 4 slide 10

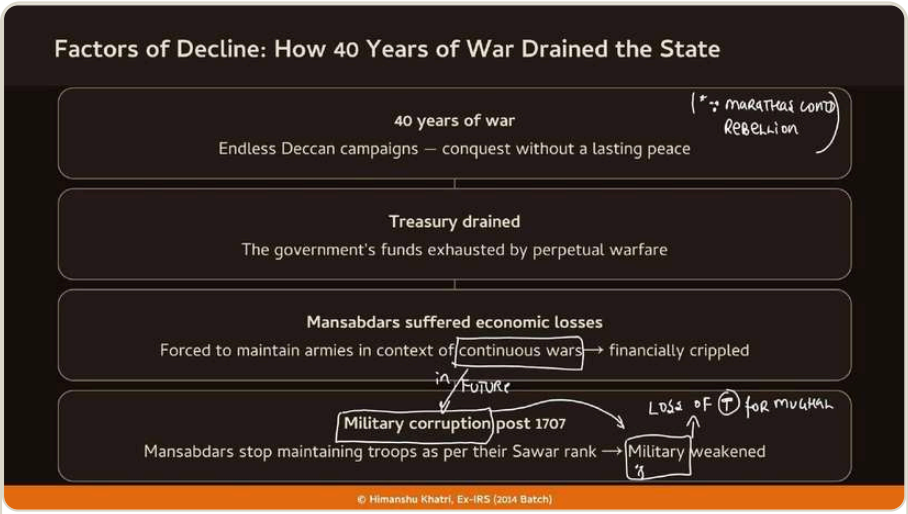


Golconda Fort, Hyderabad: Qutb Shahi dynasty (1518-1687) Lecture 4 slide 11

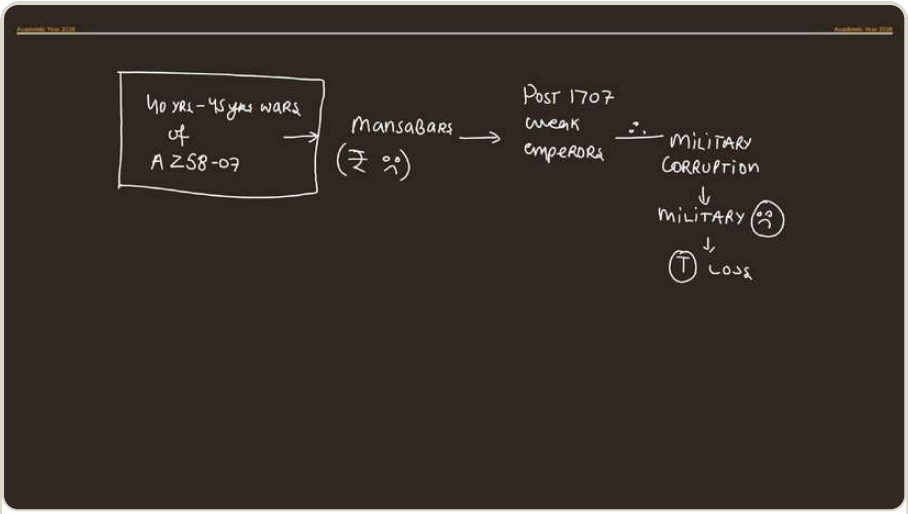
HANDOUT NOTE

Gol Gumbaz is the mausoleum (burial building, like the Taj Mahal) of Muhammad Adil Shah (1627–56) of the Adil Shahi dynasty.

How 40 years of war drained the State



Forty years of war: treasury, Mansabdars, military corruption Lecture 4 slide 12



Aurangzeb's long wars lead to Mansabdar losses and military weakness
Lecture 4 slide 13

40 years of war, step by step

- Endless Deccan campaigns
- Conquest without lasting peace
- Marathas continue rebellion
- Treasury drained by perpetual warfare
- Mansabdars forced to maintain armies in continuous wars
- Financially crippled
- Military corruption post-1707: troops not maintained as per Sawar rank
- Military weakened
- Loss of territory for the Mughals

3 · Religious policies and the social foundation

> STORY LINK
> Because the wars cost money, the emperor also lost the people. Ask: which of the four dates hit social power, and who became a martyr?

- State power needs social support. Aurangzeb 58-07 followed an orthodox interpretation of Islam in his personal life and his governance, systematically alienating non-Muslim subjects.

3.1 Jizya (1679) and its long history

- The most damaging measure was the re-introduction of Jizya in 1679 (abolished in 1564): an additional tax on non-Muslim adult males.
- Beyond the money, the manner of collection made people feel religiously discriminated against, and resentment ran deep.

- Qutb-ud-din Aibak 06-10 first introduced Jizya in an institutionalised manner.
- He was the first Sultan of the Delhi Sultanate (1206–1526) and founder of the Mamluk dynasty (1206–1290; Mamluk = military slave).
- Babur 26-30 and Humayun 30-40 continued it.
- Akbar 56-05 abolished it in 1564 as part of his Sulh-i-Kul (Universal Peace) policy.
- Aurangzeb 58-07 reintroduced it in 1679.
- Zulfiqar Khan (Wazir of Jahandar Shah 12-13 abolished it again in 1712.
- The handout says Farukhsiyar (1713–19) re-introduced it in 1717.
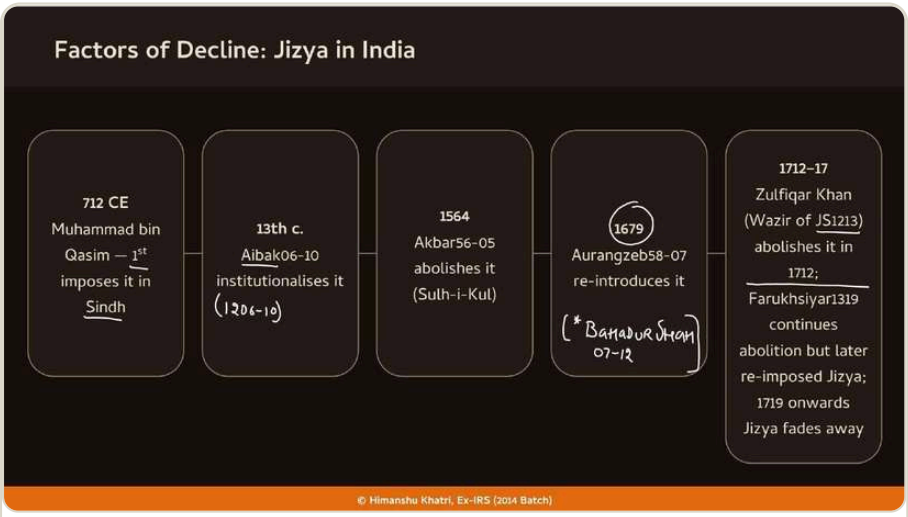
- As the empire weakened, Jizya faded with it.

NUMBER CARD · JIZYA: THE ON-OFF DATES

7 1 2 · 1 5 6 4 · 1 6 7 9 · 1 7 1 2 · 1 7 1 9

Imposed, abolished, re-imposed, abolished, then it fades.

712 Muhammad bin Qasim imposes it first, in Sindh
1564 Akbar 56-05 abolishes it (Sulh-i-Kul)
1679 Aurangzeb 58-07 re-introduces it
1712 Zulfiqar Khan abolishes it (Wazir of Jahandar Shah 12-13)
1719 onwards, Jizya fades away



Jizya in India: timeline from 712 CE to 1719 Lecture 4 slide 14

HANDOUT ALERT

- Who first introduced Jizya? Muhammad bin Qasim introduced it in 712 CE after conquering Sindh.
- By paying it, the non-Muslim population was granted the status of Zimmis (Dhimmis), "protected people", allowed to practise their religion and exempted from military service.
- (Handout aside: is this a gain or a loss of employment opportunity for the masses?) Who first institutionalised Jizya? Qutb-ud-din Aibak 06-10.

Handout diagram: Jizya in India, Aibak to Mughal decline handout figure

HANDOUT NOTE

- Discrepancy. Handout: Farukhsiyar re-introduced Jizya in 1717.
- Class slide: Farukhsiyar continued the abolition but later re-imposed it, and Jizya fades from 1719.
- Both agree: abolished 1712, re-imposed by Farukhsiyar, gone by 1719.

3.2 Temple policy: Kashi Vishwanath (1669)

- Aurangzeb 58-07 refused temple repairs and reduced their land grants.
- More significantly he demolished important temples.
- Best-known case: the Kashi Vishwanath temple at Varanasi, demolished 1669, replaced on the same site by the Gyanvapi Mosque.
- His own court record, the Maasir-i-Alamgiri, documents his order.
- The temple's troubled history: razed earlier by Qutb-ud-din Aibak 06-10 (1194, then slave-general of Md Ghori, before he became first Sultan in 1206) and Sikandar Lodi (1490).
- Ahilyabai Holkar of Indore rebuilt it in 1780 near the original site.

Kashi Vishwanath Temple and Gyanvapi Mosque, Varanasi Lecture 4 slide 16

3.3 Executions that backfired

- 1675: Guru Tegh Bahadur (GTB), the 9th Sikh Guru. 1689: Chhatrapati Sambhaji 80-89, elder son of Shivaji 74-80, after weeks of torture.
- Both were offered convert-or-die
- Both refused
- The executions did not suppress resistance: they created martyrs, hardening anti-Mughal sentiment among Sikhs and Marathas.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> GTB (1675) and Sambhaji 80-89 (1689) = the "execution of leaders" line, under social power sad.

4 · Why did the Mansabdari system turn against the empire?

> STORY LINK
> Because the treasury and the people were weaker, the nobles who served the emperor came under strain. Ask: what is different for an unhappy Mansabdar under a strong and a weak emperor?

- The Mansabdari system ran on personal loyalty to the emperor as an individual, not impersonal loyalty to the empire as an institution.
- It was a give-and-take:
  - The emperor granted Mansabs and Jagirs
  - Nobles gave military service and loyalty
- Strong emperors made this work
- Weak emperors could not.
- After 1707 the Later Mughals could not control powerful Mansabdars.
- When the emperor could not grant the desired Mansabs and Jagirs, the Mansabdars became disloyal and acted upon that disloyalty (earlier, either fear or belief in the fairness of a strong emperor kept them in line): they engaged in court politics for the best Mansabs and Jagirs, or tried replacing the emperor with their favourite from the royal family.
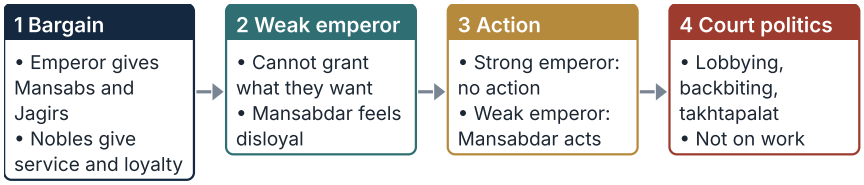
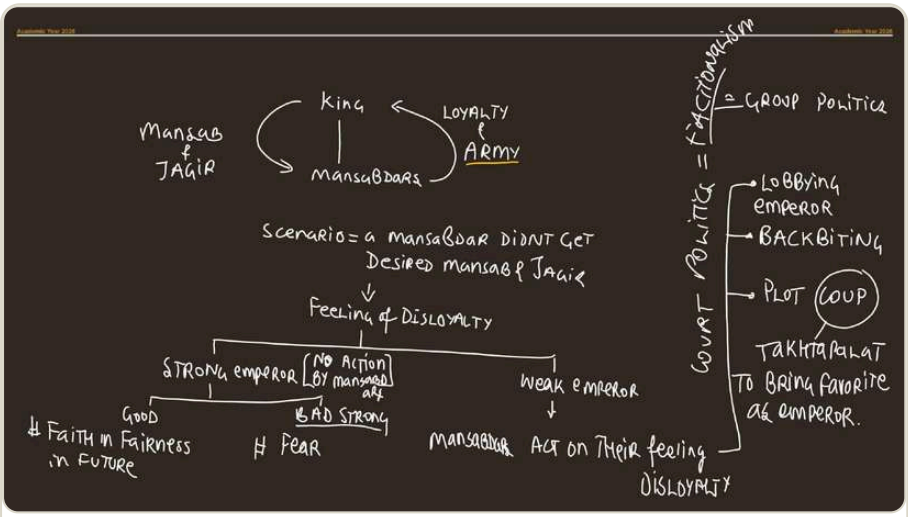
- Court politics crippled governance. Those who should have led reforms (economic, administrative and military) were consumed by factional rivalry.

WHY THE MANSABDARI BARGAIN FAILED



TEACHER'S BOARD

"Busy in court politics and not on work" = the reason reform slowed down.



Disloyalty under strong versus weak emperors; factionalism Lecture 4 slide 19

Why the Mansabdari bargain failed

- Mansabdar does not get the desired Mansab and Jagir
- Feeling of disloyalty
- Strong emperor:
  - Good strong = faith in future fairness
  - Bad strong = fear
  - So no action by the Mansabdar
- Weak emperor: the Mansabdar acts on his feeling of disloyalty
- Factionalism = group politics = court politics: lobbying the emperor, backbiting, plot/coup (takhtapalat), bringing the favourite as emperor

5 · Why did the Mughal military weaken?

STORY LINK

Because nobles were busy in court politics, the army was left unreformed. Ask: which of the three problems is a matter of people, and which of method?

- Three interconnected problems:

5.1 No technological or organisational reform

- European powers succeeded with smaller numbers because of better command, tighter discipline, and tactical innovations: File firing: rotating lines for continuous fire. Grapeshot artillery: multiple bullets in one shot
- Lethal at close range. Bayonet (a knife) on the Brown Bess musket (so a rifle became a sword at close range)
- Haider Ali 61-82, Mysore) reorganised his military on the European model and stayed formidable.
- The Mughals, paralysed by factionalism, reformed nothing.

Why the Mughal military collapsed Lecture 4 slide 21

TEACHER'S BOARD

- No reform while Indian rivals upgraded the military with European help.
- Example: Haider Ali 61-82 reorganised on the French model (class slide: "on the French model"; handout: "European model").

5.2 Weak war commanders

- Under the Later Mughals (1707–1858), court politics, not merit, decided military appointments.

5.3 Military corruption

- Under weak supervision Mansabdars maintained far fewer cavalry than their Sawar rank required, pocketing the difference.
- Aurangzeb 58-07's war drain and the Jagirdari crisis compounded this.
- By the early 18th century the army was corrupt, under-equipped, poorly led and technologically frozen.

MNEMONIC · THREE MILITARY PROBLEMS

C O W

The Mughal army became a sacred COW: fed on paper, never reformed.

C Corruption: Mansabdars kept far fewer cavalry than Sawar

O nO reform: no technological or organisational reform

W Weak commanders: court politics, not merit

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

TEACHER'S BOARD

The Jagirdari crisis increased the chances of military corruption.

6 · Factionalism: how it operated in the Mughal court

STORY LINK

Because loyalty was personal, nobles formed groups to control the emperor. Ask: which group does each named noble belong to?

- Factionalism = Royal vs Royal + Royal vs Noble + Noble vs Noble. It is group politics.

Faction	Identity	Example
Irani	Shia Persian	Zulfiqar Khan (Wazir of Jahandar Shah 12-13; ended Jizya)
Turani	Sunni Turkish-Uzbek (like the Mughals)	Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 (1724–48), Governor / Subadar / Nawab of Hyderabad Suba
Hindustani	Converted Indian Muslims	Sayyid Brothers (brought Farukhsiyar 13-19 to power)
Hindu	Rajputs and Jats	Sawai Jai Singh 99-43
Deccani	Nobles absorbed from Bijapur (1686) and Golconda (1687)	none given

- After 1707 weak emperors could not control these groups.

MNEMONIC · FIVE COURT FACTIONS

R U I N S

Factionalism left the Mughal court in RUINS.

R Rajputs and Jats: the Hindu group (Sawai Jai Singh 99-43)

U Uzbek, Turkish: the Turani group (Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48)

I Irani: Shia Persian (Zulfiqar Khan)

N Nobles of Bijapur and Golconda: the Deccani group

S Sayyid Brothers: the Hindustani group, converted Indian Muslims

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- Mansabdars competed to dominate the sitting emperor or install their preferred candidate: whoever controlled the emperor controlled Mansabs and Jagirs.
- No clear succession rule: every emperor's death was potentially a new power struggle.
- Some Mansabdars who could have stabilised the centre chose not to, and instead used the chaos to carve out their own principalities (the successor states).

Factionalism: Royal vs Royal, Royal vs Noble, Noble vs Noble Lecture 4 slide 27

7 · The Jagirdari crisis: why did it hit so hard?

STORY LINK

Because there were more claimants than land, tenure became unsafe and everything below it cracked. Ask: why does the teacher call this the most important cause?

- The Jagirdari crisis was a structural mismatch: supply of Jagirs and demand for them fell dangerously out of balance.

Jagirdari crisis: Mansabdars up, land down Lecture 4 slide 22

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Water-crisis analogy: number of people up, water down.
- Jagirdari crisis = number of Mansabdars up + land down. What? (1) Over-recruitment of Mansabdars.
- (2) Land is the same in the kingdom
- it shrunk because of loss of territory in wars (post-1705, the Marathas winning). Why over-recruitment?
- (a) Role of Aurangzeb 58-07: he declared most lands of Bijapur 1686 and Golconda 1687 as Khalisa (LR to the King), but the Deccani group came in as Mansabdars.
- (b) Post-1707 factionalism: either to be in power or to come to power, emperors over-recruited.

Mansabdars maintain the army from their Jagirs Lecture 4 slide 24

Aspect	Detail
The crisis	High number of Mansabdars but less land for distribution as Jagirs: demand-supply mismatch

Aspect	Detail
The origin	After taking Bijapur (1686) and Golconda (1687), Aurangzeb 58-07 declared most of their lands Khalisa to be self-sufficient in funding the war vs the Marathas. Mansabdars rose, the Jagir lands did not
Over-recruitment	Later Mughals kept appointing Mansabdars to buy the loyalty of Mansdar groups while land under Mughal control kept shrinking
Gross inequality	5% of Mansabdars controlled 61% of Jagir revenue
Luxury inflation	Inflation in luxury goods (partly from EIC exports of Indian goods) meant many could not sustain an elite life

MNEMONIC · FOUR CAUSES OF THE JAGIRDARI CRISIS

S O I L

The crisis was about SOIL: land ran out while claimants grew.

S Khalisa grab: most Bijapur and Golconda land made Khalisa

O Over-recruitment of Mansabdars to buy loyalty

I Inequality: 5% of Mansabdars held 61% of Jagir revenue

L Luxury inflation (partly from EIC exports)

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

The consequences

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Impact of the Jagirdari crisis = most important in the decline of the Mughals.
- Chain: factionalism (noble vs noble for Jagirs) → political instability (emperor of choice to power) → pressure on the emperor → change in Jagir tenure (many Naqdi Mansabdars waiting) → insecurity of tenure (kal ho na ho Jagir) → military corruption, and greater, more frequent Ijaradari → over-extraction of LR → Zamindar-led peasant revolts.
- Military corruption → victories for rebel states (Sikh, Marathas, Afghans) plus an external power (e.g. Nadir Shah) → loss of territory (State = organisation = rules + territory).

The Jagirdari spiral

- Frequent transfers: Jagirs shuffled to satisfy disgruntled Naqdi Mansabdars

- Tenure insecurity: no Jagirdar knew how long he would hold the land (kal ho na ho Jagir)
- Ruthless extraction:
    - Maximum in minimum time
    - No incentive to invest in the land
- Ijaradari spreads: revenue-farming strips collection from Zamindars, the rural stabilisers

Impact of the Jagirdari crisis: most important in decline Lecture 4 slide 23

- Peasant revolts: over-extraction leads to Zamindar-led revolts (Jat Kingdom from the 1695 revolt under Churaman 95-21 Jat)
- Effect on the peasantry: over-extraction, stagnation, revolts led by alienated Zamindars.
- Direct example: the Jat Kingdom emerged from a 1695 peasant revolt under Churaman 95-21 Jat, a Zamindar.
- Meanwhile Mansabdars did not maintain the army as per Sawar, to maximise their earnings, as no one knew when the emperor would transfer the Jagir (kal ho na ho Jagir).
- The teacher ties the military consequences together: military corruption → victories for rebel states (Sikh, Marathas, Afghans) + an external power (Nadir Shah) → loss of territory.

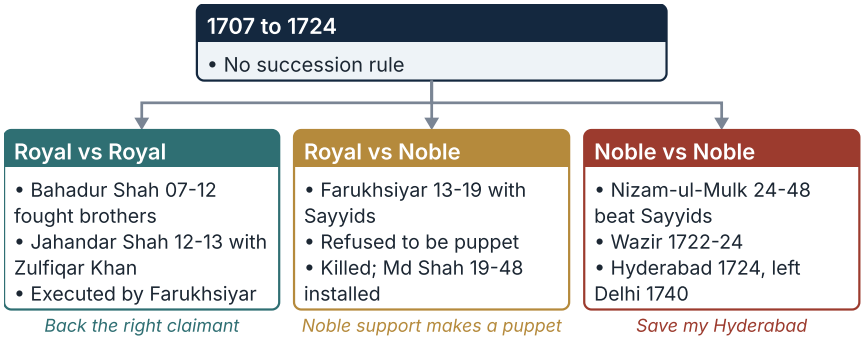
8 · Proof of decline: factionalism in practice

STORY LINK

Because factionalism was a concept, the teacher now gives facts. Ask: which round of the boxing match is each emperor in?

Type	Story	Emperor	Lesson
Royal vs Royal	Bahadur Shah (1707–12) fought his brothers to be in power. Jahandar Shah 12-13 came to power backed by Zulfiqar Khan (Irani), but only after executing the father of Farukhsiyar. Reward: Zulfiqar became Wazir. Farukhsiyar (with the Sayyids) removed and executed Jahandar Shah 12-13.	Jahandar Shah 12-13	Back the right claimant, extract the reward
Royal vs Noble	Farukhsiyar rose with the Sayyid Brothers (Abdullah Khan became Wazir; Hussain Ali Khan became Mir Bakshi). He refused to be their puppet and built rival alliances. The Sayyids reached outside the court, allied with the Marathas under Peshwa Balaji Vishwanath 13-20; 15,000 Maratha cavalry temporarily took over Delhi in 1719), killed him, and installed Muhammad Shah 19-48 as a puppet	Farukhsiyar (1713–19)	The price of noble support is being a puppet
Noble vs Noble	Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 (Turani) allied with the Irani group and defeated the Sayyids. He served as Wazir 1722–24, then, seeing the centre was beyond saving, took the Mansab of Governor of Hyderabad Suba in 1724. In 1740 he left Delhi permanently	Md Shah (1719–48)	"Delhi to gayo, at least save my Hyderabad"

THREE ROUNDS OF SUCCESSION TURMOIL



TEACHER'S BOARD

- Bahadur Shah 07-12: fought brothers to be in power.
- Jahandar Shah 12-13: Royal vs Royal. Farukhsiyar 13-19: Royal vs Noble.
- Md Shah 19-48:
  - "totally uninterested in ruling." Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48: Noble vs Noble
  - Wazir 1722-24, quits Delhi for Hyderabad.

Handout diagram: factionalism and succession turmoil 1707-1724 handout figure

HANDOUT NOTE

Mir Bakshi = Chief Military Paymaster / Commander (defence minister + defence finance authority, the handout adds).

TEACHER'S BOARD

On the decline arc, succession turmoil is corrected from "1719-24" to "1707-19": it runs from Aurangzeb 58-07's death to Muhammad Shah 19-48's installation.

9 · How the Marathas exposed the military collapse

STORY LINK

Because Delhi was weak inside, the Marathas could measure it from outside. Ask: what did each step, 1737 and 1738, take from Mughal prestige?

- The military decline is best measured by what the Marathas achieved.

Marathas expose the military collapse Lecture 4 slide 29

- From 1705 they systematically defeated Mughal forces.
- By the mid-18th century they had not only recovered Aurangzeb 58-07's Deccan gains but taken lands annexed under Akbar 56-05, including Gujarat.
- Only Hyderabad (formerly Golconda) stayed outside Maratha control, held by Nizam as a successor State.
- 1737: Peshwa Bajirao 20-40 marched to Delhi, plundered the capital, and briefly held Md Shah prisoner.
- 1738: the Marathas defeated a large Mughal army commanded by Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48.

- Formalised in the Treaty of Bhopal (1738): the Marathas received legal recognition of control over all lands between the Chambal and Narmada and the Subah of Malwa.
- Imagine the Mughal emperor became a hostage in his own capital.

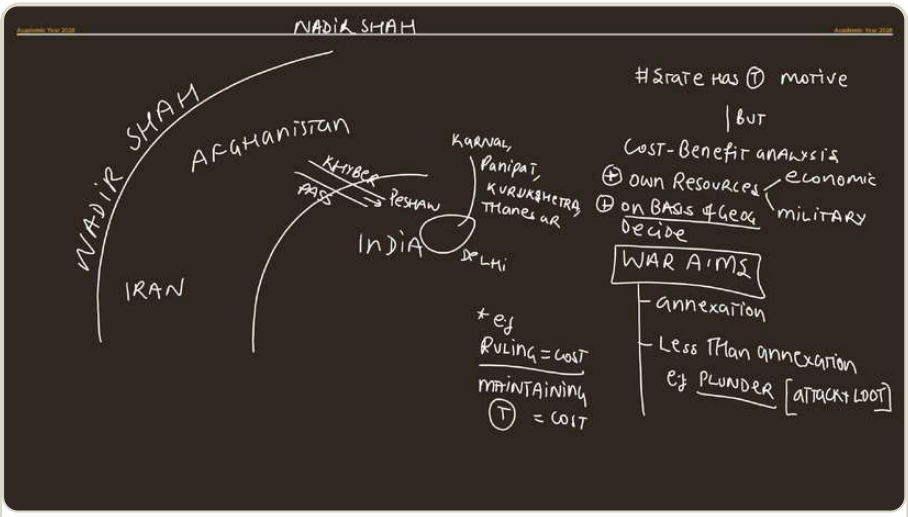
10 · Nadir Shah's invasion (1738–40): the five-pillar blow

STORY LINK

Because the Marathas had gone south, a Persian raider met Delhi alone. Ask: how did one snub undo a 50 lakh deal, and which pillars did he hit?



Nadir Shah: route and cost-benefit of war Lecture 5 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A State has a territory motive, but does a cost-benefit analysis: (+) own resources (economic, military) and (+) geography.
- Ruling territory = a cost
- Maintaining territory = a cost.
- War aims: annexation, or less than annexation, e.g. plunder (attack and loot). Nadir Shah's aim was plunder.
- Route: Iran → Afghanistan (Kabul) → Khyber Pass → Peshawar → Lahore → Karnal → Panipat → Kurukshetra → Thanesar → Delhi.

- Nadir Shah ruled a Persian empire stretching into Afghanistan (Mughal-claimed territory) and desired India's wealth.
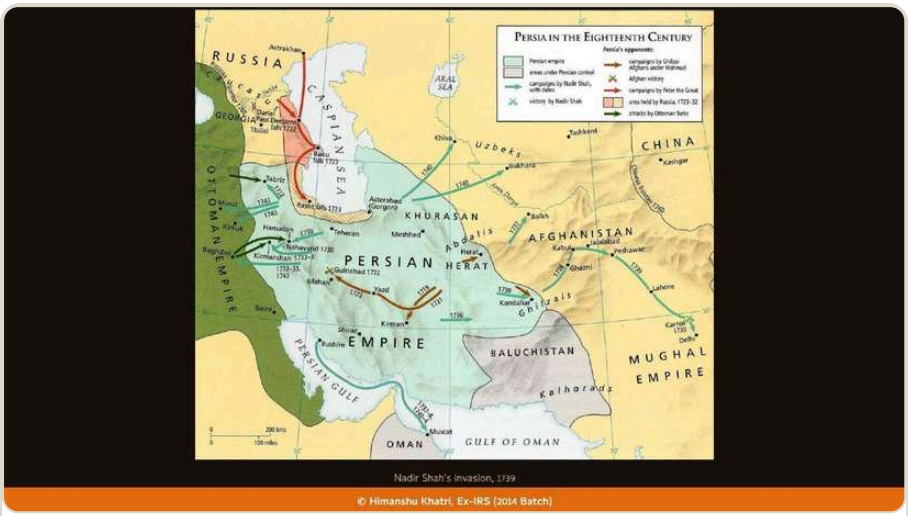
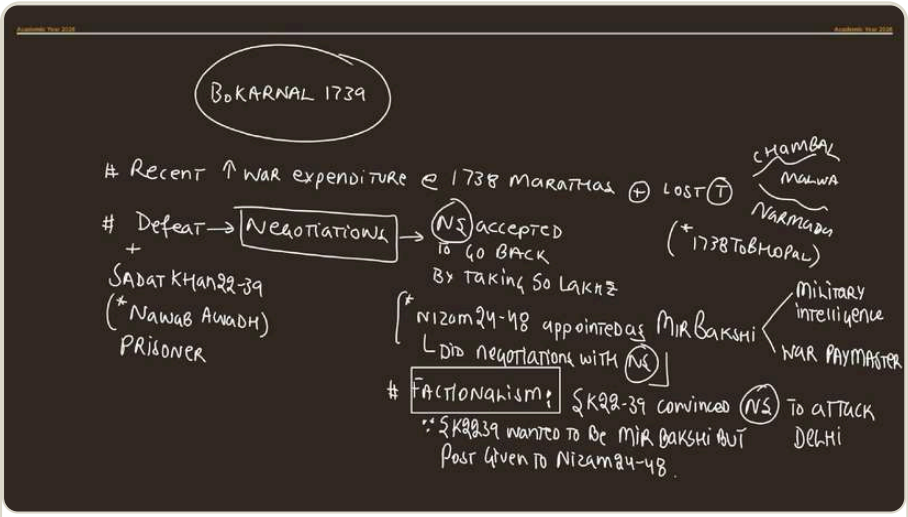
- His victory was easier because of the weakened Mughal empire plus factionalism.



Map: Nadir Shah's route to Karnal and Delhi Lecture 4 slide 31

What happened, step by step



Battle of Karnal 1739 and Nizam's negotiation Lecture 5 slide 4

Karnal to the fall of Delhi (1739)

- Battle of Karnal:
  - Mughal army routed
  - Sadat Khan 22-39 taken prisoner
  - The Mir Bakshi died fighting
- Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48, now Mir Bakshi, negotiates: Rs 50 lakh and Nadir Shah does not enter Delhi
- Factionalism: snubbed over the Mir Bakshi post, Sadat Khan 22-39 goads Nadir Shah to attack Delhi for bigger plunder
- Delhi falls
- Md Shah imprisoned

- Nadir Shah rules as emperor of Delhi for 60 days
- Sadat Khan 22-39, insulted by Nadir Shah after the victory instead of being rewarded, takes his own life

KARNAL TO THE FALL OF DELHI (1739)

1 Karnal	2 Deal	3 Snub	4 Delhi falls
• Mughal army routed • Sadat Khan 22-39 prisoner	• Nizam, now Mir Bakshi • Rs 50 lakh, stay out	• Sadat Khan 22-39 passed over • Goads Nadir on	• Md Shah imprisoned • 60 days of rule

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Nizam appointed Mir Bakshi = military intelligence + war paymaster.
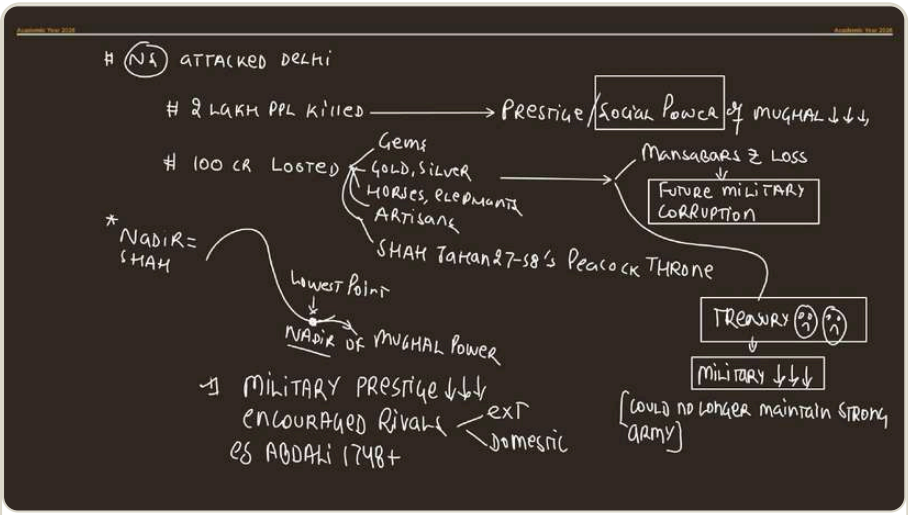
- Recent war expenditure had risen (Marathas 1738).
- Factionalism: Sadat Khan 22-39 wanted to be Mir Bakshi, but the post was given to Nizam.



Nadir Shah's loot and Mughal prestige Lecture 5 slide 5

The five pillars

Pillar	The blow
Political	Md Shah (1719–48) was publicly humiliated and did not stand up for his own dignity. For Mansabdars watching, an emperor who could not stand for his dignity wasn't worth defending.
Social	Nadir Shah's forces massacred roughly two lakh civilians of Delhi. Whatever social legitimacy remained evaporated in the streets of the capital.
Military	A State that can't defend its capital invites more attacks. The defeat directly encouraged the First Afghan Invasion of 1748 by Ahmed Shah Abdali. (Board: 1748, "attacks".)
Economic	Wealth estimated at about 100 crore rupees of the time (x250-300 for present value) extracted, plus irreplaceable assets, most famously the Peacock Throne with the Kohinoor diamond. Mansabdars were forced to contribute from personal wealth. The empire, already in the Jagirdari crisis, now lacked means to rebuild a strong army.

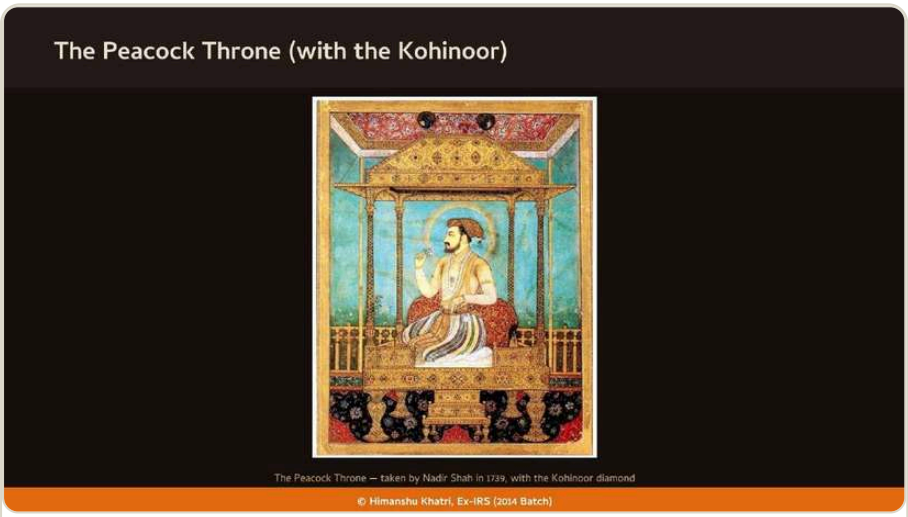
Pillar	The blow
Technological	Funds that might have bought reform were gone, locking in the existing technology gap, so a weak military.

NUMBER CARD · NADIR SHAH'S NUMBERS

50 · 60 · 2 · 100

He was offered 50 lakh to stay out and took 100 crore.

50 lakh the price of staying out, agreed at Karnal
60 days Nadir Shah ruled Delhi
2 lakh Delhi civilians killed
100 crore rupees looted (x250-300 for present value)



Peacock Throne and Kohinoor, taken 1739 Lecture 4 slide 33

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Nadir Shah = the lowest point ("Nadir") of Mughal power (pun on the name).
- Loot: gems, gold and silver, horses and elephants, artisans, Shah Jahan 27-58's Peacock Throne.
- Mansabdars' loss → future military corruption
- treasury down → a military that could no longer maintain a strong army.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Student doubt (handout). If the Marathas plundered Delhi in 1737 and defeated Nizam in 1738, why were they not fighting Nadir Shah in 1739? Because the Marathas had returned South to their HQ after the Treaty of Bhopal (1738).
- They had already extracted maximum concessions through the treaty. Allow the rival State to get weak
- Why interfere unless there is a deal, like in 1752? That strategic patience is exactly what gave them the Maratha Protectorate of the Mughal Emperor in 1752.

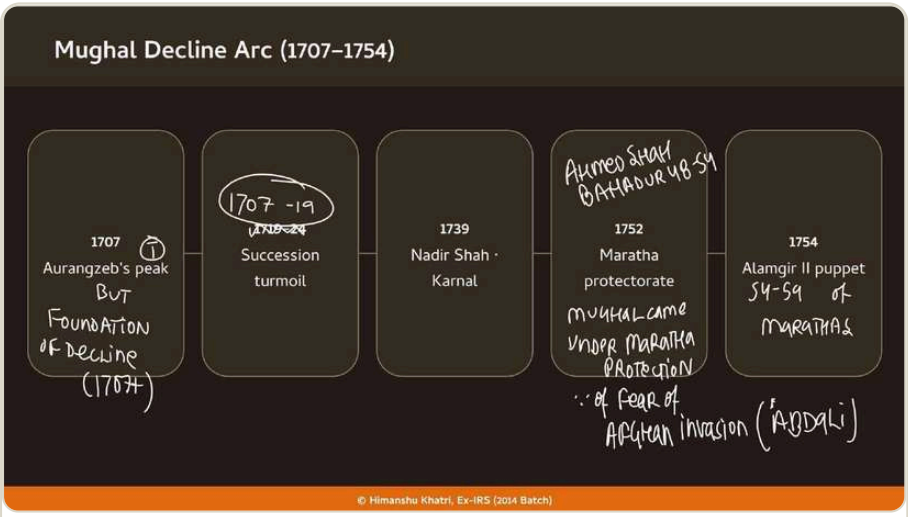
11 · India by the mid-18th century

STORY LINK

Because the centre collapsed, power moved to many hands. Ask: which regional powers are successors, rebels or already autonomous, and who is No. 1?



Decline arc: 1707, 1719-24, 1752, 1754 Lecture 5 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

Arc board: 1707 "but foundation of decline (1707+)"; 1752 "Ahmed Shah Bahadur 48-54, Mughal came under Maratha protection because of fear of Afghan invasion (Abdali)"; 1754 "Alamgir II 54-59 of Marathas".

- 1752: the Mughal emperor came under Maratha protection, accepting Maratha military guardianship against further Afghan invasions. The protector had become the protected.

Handout diagram: Mughal decline arc 1707-1754

handout figure

- 1754: the Marathas installed Alamgir II 54-59 as their puppet emperor, a Mughal ruler chosen by the very people the Mughals had spent decades trying to suppress.
- By the mid-18th c the Mughal Empire as a functional State had ceased to exist.
- What remained was a collection of regional powers, each with its own territory, army and foreign policy.
- The Maratha State stood at the top.

MNEMONIC · THE MARATHAS' LADDER, IN ORDER

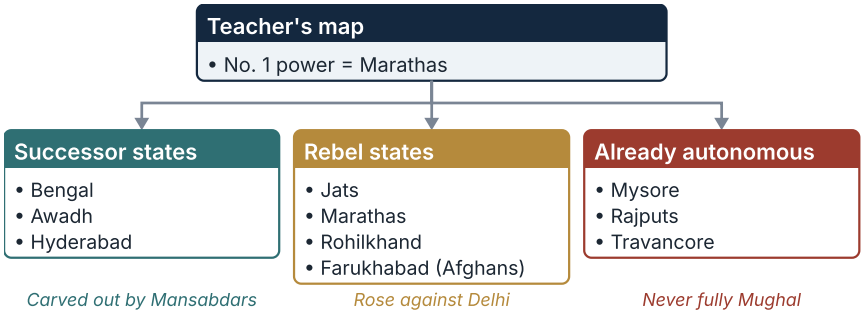
Winners Plunder, Bargain, Protect, Appoint

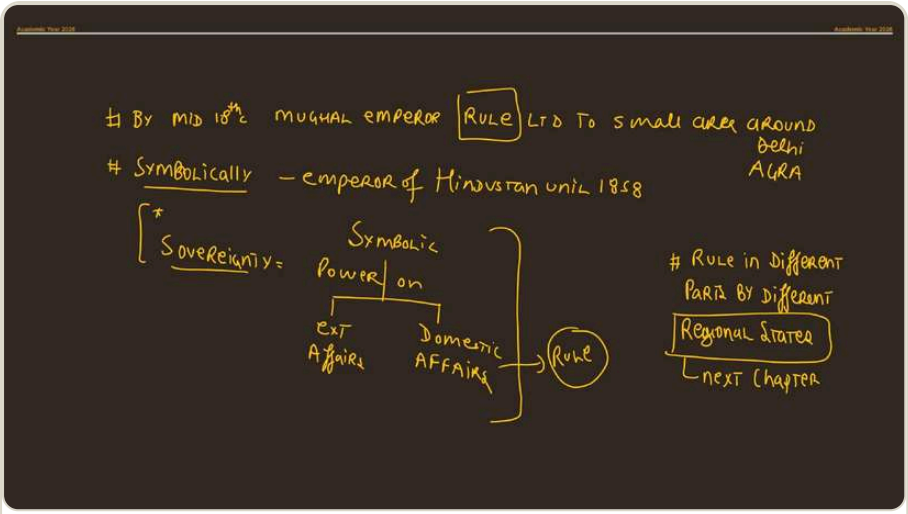
- W Winning: from 1705 the Marathas defeat Mughal forces
- P Plunder: 1737 Bajirao 20-40 plunders Delhi
- B Bargain: 1738 Treaty of Bhopal (Chambal-Narmada, Malwa)
- P Protect: 1752 the Mughal comes under Maratha protection
- A Appoint: 1754 Alamgir II 54-59 installed as puppet

Order kept: a chronology. The Marathas go from beating Mughal armies to choosing the emperor.

- The emperor continued to sit in Delhi, technically retaining symbolic sovereignty until 1858, but his actual authority extended little beyond Delhi and Agra.
- A ceremonial figurehead kept alive because his symbolic legitimacy was useful to others.

MID-18TH CENTURY: THREE KINDS OF REGIONAL POWER

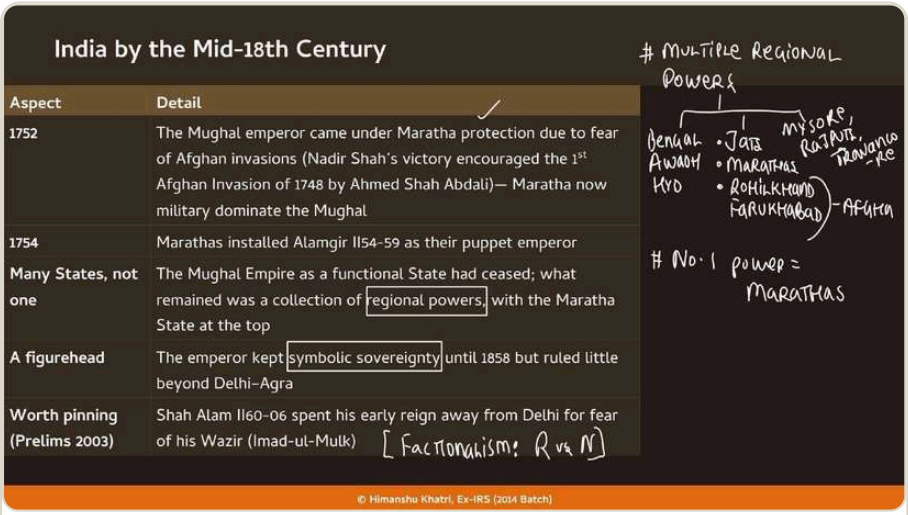




Mughal rule limited to Delhi and Agra by the mid-18th century Lecture 4 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

- By the mid-18th century the Mughal emperor's rule is limited to a small area around Delhi and Agra
- Symbolically he is emperor of Hindustan until 1858
- Sovereignty = symbolic power + power on external and domestic affairs (= rule).
- Rule in different parts is by different regional States (next chapter).



India by the mid-18th century: regional powers Lecture 5 slide 10

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Multiple regional powers = Bengal, Awadh, Hyderabad (successor states)
- Jats, Marathas, Rohilkhand and Farukhabad (rebel states; the Afghans)
- Mysore, Rajputs, Travancore (already autonomous). No. 1 power = Marathas.
- Stressed: the emperor's symbolic sovereignty and the regional powers.
- Beside the Shah Alam II line: "Factionalism: R vs N".

The Prelims 2003 pin: Shah Alam II 60-06

KEY TAKEAWAY

Worth pinning (Prelims 2003). Shah Alam II 60-06 spent the initial years of his reign away from Delhi because of fear of his own Wazir, Imad-ul-Mulk, not fear of foreign invasion from the North-West frontier.

- The question: Assertion (A): Shah Alam II 60-06 spent the initial years as an Emperor far away from his capital.
- Reason (R): There was always a lurking danger of foreign invasion from the North-West frontier.

Option	Verdict in the handout
(a) Both true and R explains A	Wrong: R is false; the threat was internal (Wazir), not external (frontier)
(b) Both true but R does not explain A	Wrong: R is false (same reason)
(c) A is true, R is false	Answer (c)
(d) A false, R true	Wrong: A is true

Teacher's lesson on Assertion-Reason questions

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Method: read as independent statements. (i) Read A and mark T/F.
- (ii) Read R and mark T/F.
- (iii) If both are True, THEN THINK: is R the reason for A?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- On this PYQ both A and R are True (the word "always" in R is stressed) and the board marks (b) ("both true but R is not the correct explanation").
- Note: UPSC was not bringing any answer key.
- Coaching institutes have brought out keys: both (c) and (b) appear.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Conflict. Handout and class slides give (c) (R false: the cause was fear of the Wazir).
- The board's own marking points to (b), and coaching keys are split between (c) and (b).
- Learn both the facts and the dispute.
- Fact to hold: Shah Alam II 60-06's cause was fear of his Wazir Imad-ul-Mulk.

12 · Exam strategy: how to turn a PYQ into a FYQ

> STORY LINK
> Because the same facts serve different questions, learn to read the protagonist. Ask: who is the question about, and who therefore gets the 70%?

- The key skill is identifying the protagonist of a question, what it is actually centred on.
- Once you know the protagonist, you know where to put your emphasis.

	Question	Protagonist	Weighting
PYQ (Mains 2017)	"By mid-18th century, India was a spectre of fragmented polity. Elaborate."	Fragmented polity	30% Mughal decline (cause), 70% rise of regional powers (evidence)
FYQ (illustrative)	"In the first half of the 18th century, the Mughal Empire was reduced to a figment of imagination. Elaborate."	The Mughal Empire's own collapse	70% Mughal decline (Maratha victories, Nadir Shah's invasion, Karnal, Bhopal, emperor-as-puppet), 30% regional powers (supporting evidence of Mughal irrelevance)

Chapter 3: Successor States

The teacher ends this chapter with "rule in different parts by different regional States: next chapter." Bengal, Awadh, Hyderabad are the Mansabdars who carved out their own principalities.

Chapter 4: The Marathas

Bajirao 20-40 1737, Treaty of Bhopal 1738, Peshwa Balaji Vishwanath 13-20 in 1719 and the 1752 protectorate show the Marathas as the top power.

Chapter 5: Jat and Afghan Kingdoms

Churaman 95-21 Jat 1695 is the teacher's example of a Zamindar-led revolt; Abdali's 1748 invasion is the Afghan blow after Nadir Shah.

Chapter 6: Punjab and the Sikh State

Guru Tegh Bahadur's execution (1675) hardens Sikh anti-Mughal sentiment.

Chapter 1: The Advent of the Mughals

Mansabdari, Jagir (Tankha vs Watan), Ijaradari and the Zabti system are the machinery whose failure this chapter explains.

MODERN INDIAN HISTORY · CHAPTER 3

Regional States: the Successor States of Bengal, Awadh and Hyderabad

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 26-37 | Medium priority

Prelims PYQs: 2021

Mains PYQs: none mapped (Chapters 2 to 7 marked very little for Mains)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- The relation between the Carnatic and Hyderabad (Prelims 2021): the Carnatic was the southern part of the Hyderabad Subah, not a separate independent State
- Three classes of regional State: Successor (Bengal, Awadh, Hyderabad), Rebel (Marathas, Sikhs, Jats, Afghans), Already Autonomous (Rajputs, Mysore, Travancore)
- Founders and years: MQK 17-27 (1717), Sadat Khan 22-39 (1722), Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 (1724); de facto sovereign, none declared independence
- Provincial offices: Subahdar (Nizamat, the Sword), Diwan (Diwani, the Purse), Bakshi (audit and intelligence); who reported to whom
- The five-step recipe of a successor State; Tankha versus Vatan Jagirs; Bengal's 15 Zamindars and 50% of LR; the 1751 Chauth settlement; Safdar Jung 39-54 and Farukhabad

MAINS HOOKS

- No Mains PYQ is mapped here; the teacher marks Chapters 2 to 7 as very little for Mains and less for Prelims
- What to prepare: the five-step recipe by which a province became autonomous without declaring independence
- Why the founders stayed 'autonomous but never independent' (legitimacy, Delhi ambitions, military help, trade)
- The India the EIC stepped into: competing, partially autonomous States, with legitimacy and real power come apart

Governors turned Mughal provinces into States by taking over the Sword, the Purse and the Eyes, while keeping the emperor's name as a shield.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The emperor's own governors took his Sword, Purse and Eyes into one hand through a five-step recipe, yet kept his name on top, so Bengal, Awadh and Hyderabad became real States on paper still Mughal. That gap between paper and power is what the EIC stepped into.

1 Control is not rule. The teacher opens with a warning: control can exist without rule (absentee colonialism, like Angola and Mozambique, where raw materials leave and few people live on the ground). Rule means doing L, E, J, making and implementing laws, plus governance of health, education and infrastructure. For the EIC in Bengal, Plassey 1757 was control and Buxar 1764 was rule.

→ But what kind of India was the EIC stepping into?

2 A patchwork. By the mid-18th century the Mughal State no longer worked as one unified polity. Power decentralised from 1707 to 1800 into three classes of State: Successor, Rebel and Already Autonomous. The teacher lists the later emperors as proof of decline, circling FS 13-19 and Md Shah 19-48 as the reigns in which the Successor States arose.

→ Now to the first class: the governors who stabbed the emperor in the back.

3 Three founders, three years. Bengal was set up by Murshid Quli Khan (MQK 17-27) in 1717, Awadh by Sadat Khan 22-39 in 1722, Hyderabad by Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 in 1724. Each ruled de facto as sovereign, yet none declared independence. Four reasons: symbolic legitimacy, ambitions at Delhi (Nizam was Wazir 1722-24 and Mir Bakshi 1739-40), military assistance and trade barriers.

→ So how did a mere governor get so much power?

4 Sword, Purse, Eyes. Akbar 56-05's system split a province in three. The Subahdar (Nizamat) held the Sword and reported to the Emperor; the Diwan (Diwani) held the Purse and reported to the Imperial Diwan; the Bakshi held military audit and intelligence and reported to the Mir Bakshi. The Diwan and the Bakshi both bypassed the Nazim: checks and balances.

→ But every founder had to break exactly this design.

5 The recipe. Extract the Subahdari, end the checks and balances with personal loyalists, build revenue strength (field survey, efficient LR system), co-opt the men of money (merchants, bankers and Ijaradars given Mansabs) and convert Tankha Jagirs into Vatan Jagirs. The result is a diffused autonomous polity: a Nawab on top of a network of powerful actors, with the Mughal link kept as a symbol.

→ Bengal shows the recipe at its clearest.

6 Bengal: two hats and fifteen friends. In 1717 MQK 17-27 became Nazim while already Diwan, ending Akbar 56-05's checks. His field surveys and intermediary Zamindars paid off: by 1727 just fifteen collected 50% of Bengal Suba's LR. The Jagat Seths, a hereditary title of a banking family, funded it all. Proof of diffusion: in 1740 Alivardi Khan 40-56 toppled Sarfaraz Khan with a Jagat Seth's backing and bought the emperor's approval with a promised crore.

→ Then an outside shock deepened the break.

7 Bengal breaks away. From 1745 to 1751 Raghuji Bhonsle of Nagpur raided Bengal and Alivardi could not beat him. The 1751 settlement gave Bhonsle the Chauth (one-fourth of revenues) of Bengal and Bihar plus direct control of Orissa. Alivardi stopped sending revenue to Delhi and stopped seeking approval for appointments. After him came Siraj 56-57, Mir Jafar 57-60, Mir Qasim 60-63, Mir Jafar again, and in 1765 the Diwani passed to the EIC.

→ Awadh followed its own road to the same place.

8 Awadh: Sadat, Safdar, Shuja. Sadat Khan 22-39 became Subahdar in 1722 as a reward for crushing revolts and kept ambitions at the centre. Passed over for Mir

Bakshi, he convinced Nadir Shah to invade Delhi in 1739, and died by suicide. Safdar Jung 39-54, Wazir in 1748, annexed Farukhabad and was forced to resign in 1753: Awadh's virtual break. Shuja 54-75 fought at Panipat (1761) and lost at Buxar (1764); Awadh was annexed in 1856.

→ In the south, the Nizam had gone home for good.

9 Hyderabad: the Nizam goes home. Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 (Chin Qulich Khan, Asaf Jah I) led the Turani group, helped remove the Sayyid Brothers in 1720, and took Hyderabad in 1724 after beating Mubariz Khan. The Marathas beat him in 1728 and 1738. After serving as Mir Bakshi (1739-40) he gave up on the centre. Hyderabad kept the emperor's name on coins and the Khutba, tolerated its Hindu majority, and converted Tankha to Vatan Jagirs most aggressively.

10 The Carnatic: a tenant downstairs. The Hyderabad Subah had two parts: Hyderabad north of the Krishna, and the Carnatic (Hyderabad-Karnatic), twelve districts south with capital Gingee and its own Nawab who reported to the Nizam. Saadatullah Khan (1710-32) moved the capital to Arcot and made the post hereditary; Dost Ali Khan (1732-40) was killed by the Marathas; Anwar-ud-din Khan (from 1744) was the Nizam's pick but became autonomous too. This is the Prelims 2021 trap.

→ Put the three States side by side and the pattern shows.

11 The gap the EIC stepped into. Across all three, a powerful Mansabdar concentrated power, none declared independence, the Carnatic was a successor State inside a successor State, and the emperor became a constitutional monarch with no executive power. Legitimacy and real power had come apart, which made the subcontinent vulnerable to outside penetration.

In simple words

- By the mid-18th century the Mughal State was a patchwork of regional powers: Successor, Rebel and Already Autonomous States.
- Bengal (1717), Awadh (1722) and Hyderabad (1724) were built by powerful Mansabdars who ruled de facto as sovereign but never declared independence.
- Akbar 56-05 kept a province safe with checks and balances (Subahdar, Diwan and Bakshi each reported to a different officer at Delhi). The founders ended the checks and used a five-step recipe.
- The result was a diffused autonomous polity:
    - A Nawab on top of a network of Zamindars, merchants and bankers, not an absolute ruler. Bengal and Awadh made a virtual break (1751 and 1753)
    - Hyderabad's Nizam moved south for good after 1740
- Inside Hyderabad lay the Carnatic, a state within a state. The emperor became a constitutional monarch with no executive power: legitimacy and real power had come apart, which let the EIC step in.

Key term	In plain words
Successor State	A State carved out by a powerful Mansabdar who extracted governing authority over a Subah from the emperor
De facto / de jure	On ground reality / on paper
Subahdar (Nazim, Nawab)	The provincial governor; Nizamat is defence, peace and criminal justice (the Sword)
Diwan	Provincial head of Diwani: land revenue and civil justice (the Purse); reported to the Imperial Diwan, bypassing the Nazim
Bakshi of the Subah	Military audit and intelligence; reported to the Mir Bakshi, bypassing the Nazim
Wazir / Mir Bakshi	PM or Imperial Diwan / War Paymaster, the two prized Mansabs at the Centre
Naib	Deputy (Naib Nazim = Deputy Subahdar)
Tankha Jagir / Vatan Jagir	Temporary, transferable Jagir / hereditary Jagir
Ijaradar	A revenue-farmer, one of the men of money given Mansabs
Jagat Seth	A hereditary title of a Bengal banking family, not a personal name
Chauth	One-fourth of revenues, won by Raghuji Bhonsle from Bengal and Bihar in 1751
Hyderabad-Karnatic	The twelve districts south of the Krishna, with their own Nawab reporting to the Nizam

REMEMBER IT AS Governors became rulers by taking the Sword, the Purse and the Eyes in one hand, while the emperor's name stayed on top as a shield.

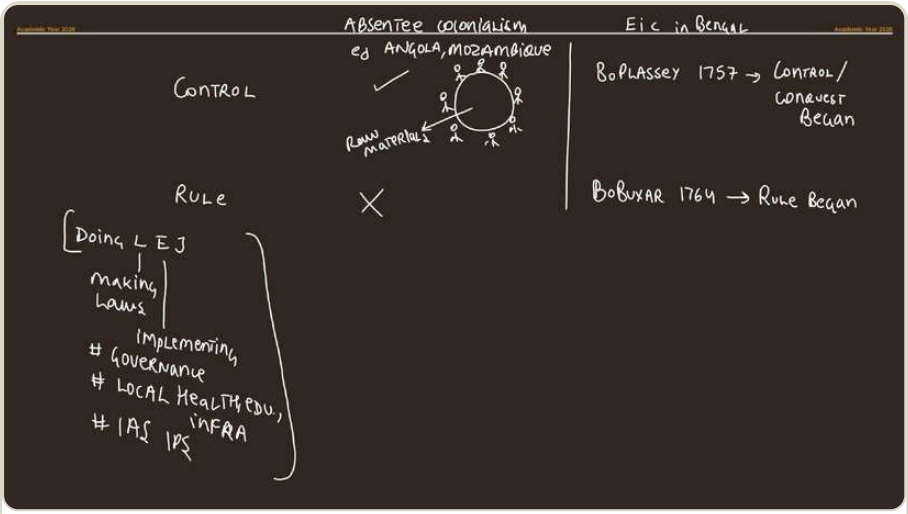
0 · Control versus rule (the teacher's opening)

STORY LINK

Story so far: before any State is built, the teacher fixes one idea, control is not rule.

Hold it: Plassey is control, Buxar is rule.



Control versus Rule: absentee colonialism; Plassey and Buxar Lecture 5 slide 15

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Control ≠ Rule. Control is possible without ruling (absentee colonialism, e.g. Angola, Mozambique: raw materials extracted, few people on the ground).
- Rule = doing L, E, J (making and implementing laws) plus governance of local health, education, infrastructure through IAS, IPS.
- EIC in Bengal:
  - Plassey 1757 = control / conquest began
  - Buxar 1764 = rule began.

1 · Framework: the three classes of regional State

STORY LINK

Because the Mughal State stopped working as one polity, power spread out. Ask: which of the three classes fought the emperor, and which only took his authority?

- By the mid-18th century the Mughal State had ceased to function as a single unified polity.
- What remained was a patchwork of regional powers.

Power decentralises (1707-1800) to three kinds of State Lecture 5 slide 17

Class	Examples	How they arose
Successor States	Bengal, Awadh, Hyderabad	Powerful Mansabdars who extracted governing authority over a Subah from the emperor (this chapter)
Rebel States	Marathas, Sikhs, Jats, Afghans (Farukhabad, Rohilkhand)	Formed by those who openly rebelled against the empire
Already Autonomous	Rajputs, Mysore, Travancore	Never under effective Mughal control to begin with

THREE CLASSES OF REGIONAL STATE

1707 to 1800
- Mughal power decentralises

@ Successor
- Bengal, Awadh, Hyderabad
- Governors of the emperor
- Never declared independence

HEIR: took the house quietly

@ Rebel
- Marathas, Sikhs, Jats
- Afghans of Farukhabad, Rohilkhand
- Fought the Mughal State

REBEL: fought for a room

@ Already autonomous
- Rajputs, Mysore, Travancore
- Mughal never ruled here

HOMEOWNER: never rented

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Successor states: "the Mughal emperor is stabbed in the back by his provincial governors / Subadars", who set up their own rule in B, A, H but never declared independence formally.
- Rebel states: they FOUGHT the Mughal State, took some territory and built their own State on it.
- Already autonomous: "even when the Mughal was powerful, he did not rule here."

2 · Why autonomous but never formally independent?

STORY LINK

Because the governors held real power, why did they not simply declare independence? Four reasons, and one founder holds two Delhi posts.

- Bengal was set up as a successor state by Murshid Quli Khan (MQK, 1717–27) in 1717
- Awadh by Sadat Khan 22-39 in 1722

- Hyderabad by Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 in 1724.
- Each ruled de facto as sovereign
- None declared independence.

Why B, A, H did not declare independence Lecture 5 slide 22

Reason	Detail	Teacher's ink
Symbolic legitimacy (Social power)	A Mughal Subahdar's title commanded the obedience of local nobles	If you declare independence, opponents may unite against you in the name of the emperor
Ambitions at Delhi (Political power)	Prized Mansabs at the Centre: Wazir (PM / Imperial Diwan) and Mir Bakshi (War Paymaster). Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 was Wazir 1722–24 while also Subahdar of Hyderabad, and became Mir Bakshi in 1739–40 while still Subahdar of Hyderabad	Independent Hyderabad has no influence; Hyderabad with a minister at the Centre has some influence on the rest of the Mughal empire
Military assistance (Military power)	Provinces could rely on each other's help in times of war	If independent, an attack on Hyderabad is no longer an attack on the Mughal empire, so the help is gone
Trade barriers (Economic power)	Political independence could hurt trade, because tariffs may then apply. (Think EU members giving up partial sovereignty for open borders and trade.)	Domestic trade is easier, cheaper, lower taxes

MNEMONIC · WHY THE FOUNDERS NEVER DECLARED INDEPENDENCE

M A S T

The Mughal name was the MAST they sailed under: lower it and the enemy sees you coming.

M Military assistance: an attack on Hyderabad would no longer be an attack on the Mughal empire

A Ambitions at Delhi: Wazir and Mir Bakshi posts

S Symbolic legitimacy: the Subahdar's title commanded local obedience

T Trade barriers: tariffs may apply once independent

3 · Mughal provincial titles and the Bengal Subah's structure

STORY LINK

Because a governor could only rule a province by taking its offices, learn the offices first: Sword, Purse and Eyes, each with a different boss at Delhi. Ask: who reported to whom?

Office	Role	Reports to
Subahdar (Nazim / Nawab)	Nizamat: defence, peace, criminal justice (the Sword)	the Emperor
Diwan	Diwani: land revenue and civil justice (the Purse)	the Imperial Diwan (Wazir), bypassing the Nazim
Bakshi of the Subah	Military audit and intelligence	the Mir Bakshi at the Centre, bypassing the Nazim
The design (Akbar 56-05	Checks and balances. Every successor State's founder dismantled it	none

Akbar's Mansabdari system: checks and balances Lecture 5 slide 25

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Akbar 56-05's Mansabdari system = checks and balances in any province.
- Nazim / Subadar = gun power (military head).
- Diwan = political + finance power (CM + FM). Bakshi = intelligence power.
- Each reports to a different officer at Delhi, all under the King.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- To end the emperor's authority in a province:
  - End the checks and balances
  - Concentrate all power in yourself or your supporters.
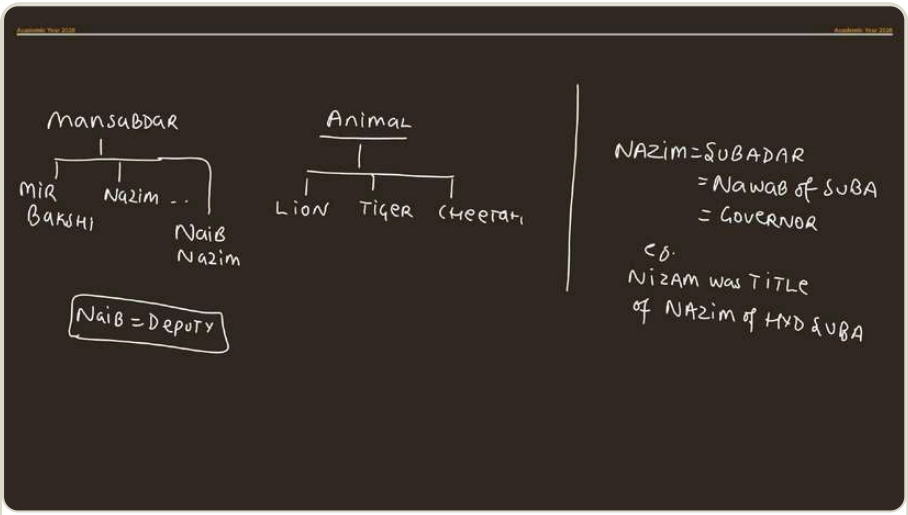
- This is the recipe in Section 4.



Vocabulary: Mansabdar, Nazim, Subadar, Nawab, Naib Lecture 5 slide 26

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mansabdar is the general term (like "animal")
- Mir Bakshi, Nazim, Naib Nazim are particular posts (like lion, tiger, cheetah). Naib = Deputy.
- Nazim = Subadar = Nawab of Suba = Governor.
- "Nizam" was the title of the Nazim of the Hyderabad Suba.

HANDOUT ALERT

Nawab ≠ Subahdar always. A Nawab could run a sub-region within a Suba: Alivardi Khan 40-56 was Nawab of Patna (inside the Bengal Subah) / Naib Nazim of Bihar before becoming Subahdar of all Bengal in 1740. Naib Nazim = Deputy Subahdar.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The Diwan did not report to the Subahdar but directly to the Imperial Diwan at Delhi.
- Akbar 56-05 made the two co-equal.
- This separation of the Sword (Nizamat) from the Purse (Diwani) kept the Mughal Empire stable for over a century.
- Every successor State founder had to dismantle it.

3.1 Geographical administration of the Bengal Subah (handout tables)

- Territory: Bengal Subah (West Bengal, Bihar, Orissa, East Bengal). Capital: Murshidabad (in West Bengal).
- Nizamat (Home Minister: law and order, criminal justice, defence / war commander) = Nazim (Subahdar), directly answerable to the Emperor.
- Diwani (revenue, civil administration, civil justice) = Diwan, directly answerable to the Emperor (under the supervision of the Imperial Diwan, i.e. the Wazir).
- Parallel audit and intelligence officer = Bakshi of the Subah, reports directly to the Mir Bakshi at Delhi, bypassing the Nazim.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The Nazim, the Diwan and the Bakshi were mutually independent. None could overrule the others.
- All three reported only to their imperial counterparts at Delhi.

Chain of command (handout table 3.2)

Branch	Function	Regional level (Patna, Cuttack, Dacca)	Provincial level (Murshidabad)	Imperial level (Delhi)
Nizamat	Home Minister (law and order, criminal justice) plus defence (war commander)	Naib Nazim	Nazim (Subahdar)	Emperor (direct reporting; no intermediate minister)
Diwani	Revenue, civil administration, civil justice	Naib Diwan	Diwan	Wazir-i-Mumalik / Imperial Diwan (Diwan-i-Ala), then the Emperor
Bakshi (parallel audit and intelligence line)	Mansabdari records, military payroll, anti-corruption inspection (dagh and chehra), intelligence (waqia-navis)	Subordinate Bakshis (attached to Faujdars and contingents)	Bakshi of Bengal Subah	Mir Bakshi (Bakhshi-ul-Mumalik), then the Emperor

Regional breakdown within the Subah of Bengal (handout table 3.3)

Region within Suba	Headquarters	Nizamat head	Diwani head	Status
West Bengal	Murshidabad	Nazim	Diwan	Direct rule
Bihar	Patna	Naib Nazim	Naib Diwan (reports to Murshidabad)	Delegated rule
Orissa	Cuttack	Naib Nazim	Naib Diwan (reports to Murshidabad)	Delegated rule
East Bengal	Dacca	Naib Nazim	Naib Diwan (reports to Murshidabad)	Delegated rule

HANDOUT NOTE

The Bakshi line operated as a parallel vertical, reporting only to Delhi.

The Bakshi's four functions

MNEMONIC · THE BAKSHI'S FOUR FUNCTIONS

P A I R

The Bakshi kept a PAIR of eyes on every noble.

P Payroll: military payroll, Jagirs transferred every 2-3 years

A Anti-corruption inspection: Dagh and Chehra

I Intelligence: waqia-navis, daily reports to Delhi

R Records: Mansabdari records of rank

Order is free here, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

#	Function	What it meant
1	Mansabdari records	Who holds what rank, who got promoted, demoted, joined or died; registers updated constantly
2	Military payroll	Calculating each Mansabdar's entitlement, assigning him a Jagir of the right value, transferring Jagirs every 2-3 years to prevent local roots, and in wartime controlling war expenditure
3	Anti-corruption inspection	Two mechanisms by Akbar 56-05: Dagh ("branding": every horse branded with an imperial mark on its flank; at inspection only branded horses counted) and Chehra ("face": each soldier's face, height, complexion and marks recorded in a register)

#	Function	What it meant
4	Intelligence (waqia-navis)	Information collectors in every province, district and significant town, sending daily reports to Delhi: court intrigues, market prices, harvest conditions, military movements, suspicious behaviour by the Nazim or Diwan, rebellions brewing, foreign travellers arriving. Reports flowed up through the Bakshi system, the Mir Bakshi being the chief recipient

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The Bakshi knew who every noble was (records), what they were paid (payroll), whether they were honest (dagh-chehra) and what they were doing (intelligence).
- That is why he was the second-highest official in the Empire.

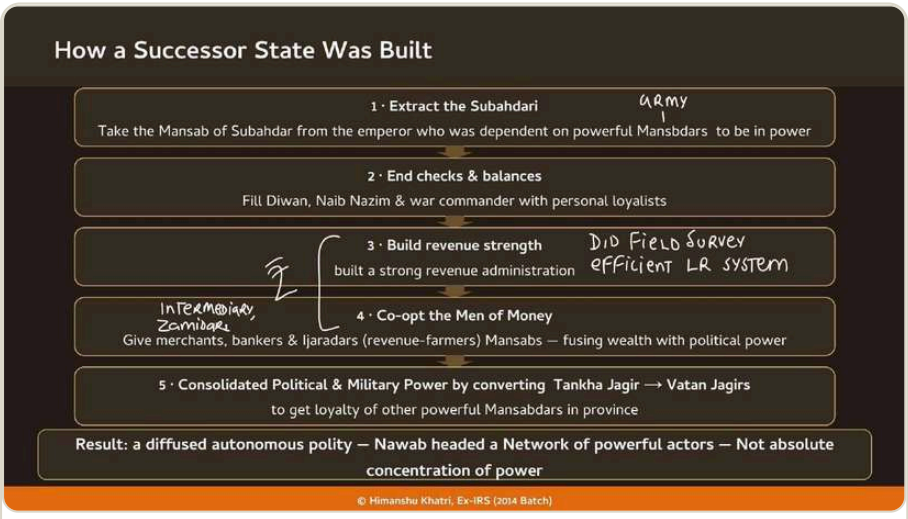
4 · How all three successor States were built: the recipe

STORY LINK

Because every founder had to break the design of the last section, a five-step recipe appears. Ask: which step ends the checks, and which buys the men of money?



How a successor State was built: the recipe Lecture 5 slide 27

The recipe for a successor State

- 1 Extract the Subahdari: take the Mansab of Subahdar from the emperor, who depended on powerful Mansabdars (their army) to stay in power
- 2 End checks and balances: fill the Diwan, Naib Nazim and war commander posts with personal loyalists
- 3 Build revenue strength:
    - Strong revenue administration

    - Field survey, efficient LR system
    - Finance is crucial for everything else
- 4 Co-opt the men of money: merchants, bankers and Ijaradars get Mansabs, fusing wealth with political power (teacher: intermediary Zamindars)
- 5 Convert Tankha Jagirs into Vatan Jagirs: hereditary, for the loyalty of other powerful Mansabdars in the province
- Result: a diffused autonomous polity: a Nawab on top of a network of powerful actors, with the Mughal link kept as a symbol

MNEMONIC · THE FIVE-STEP RECIPE, IN ORDER

Every Empire Bows, Cracks, Crumbles

- E Extract the Subahdari
- E End checks and balances (personal loyalists)
- B Build revenue strength (field survey, efficient LR system)
- C Co-opt the men of money (merchants, bankers, Ijaradars get Mansabs)
- C Convert Tankha Jagirs into Vatan Jagirs

Order kept: the steps run in this sequence. The empire bows to its governors, cracks, and crumbles.

- Step 4 in the handout: convert Tankha Jagirs (temporary, transferable) into Vatan Jagirs (hereditary). Vatan = hereditary. The emperor's historic tool of control (shifting Jagirs at will) was traded away for local loyalty of provincial Mansabdars to the regional ruler.

Handout diagram: six-step successor State formation handout figure

- Step 5 in the handout (co-opting): intermediary Zamindars, revenue farmers, merchants, moneylenders and bankers were promised security of property and reasonable taxes and, most unprecedentedly, given Mansabs.
- The Mansabdari system was traditionally lineage-based (military / noble bloodlines only).
- Appointing merchants and bankers to Mansabs was a structural transformation: administrative rank and commercial wealth, historically kept apart, now merged.
- All the steps were taken while accepting the symbolic sovereignty of the Mughal Emperor.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Count check. Handout heading says "four-step process", its text lists Steps 1 to 5, its diagram shows six steps (adds "keep the Mughal symbolic link").
- The slide has five steps plus the result.
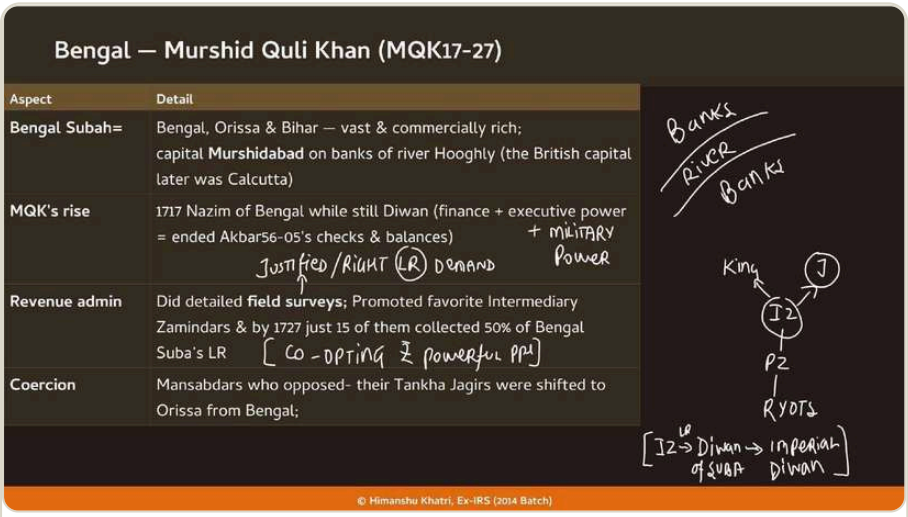
- Learn the recipe, not the number.

5 · Bengal: Murshid Quli Khan (MQK, 1717–27)

STORY LINK

Because the recipe worked first in Bengal, watch MQK wear two hats. Ask: whose money makes the Zamindars loyal?



Bengal under Murshid Quli Khan (MQK 17-27) Lecture 5 slide 28

- Bengal Subah = Bengal, Orissa and Bihar: vast and commercially rich.
- Capital: Murshidabad, on the banks of the Hooghly, then the major port (the British later developed Calcutta as an alternative).
- MQK was the last Bengal Governor appointed as per the wish of the Emperor.
- His path (handout):
  - Diwan from 1700
  - Under Farukhsiyar (1713–19) he also became Deputy Governor of Bengal Suba and Governor of Orissa.
- In 1717, when elevated to the Mansab of Nazim of Bengal Subah, he already was Diwan (combining finance and executive in one man = ending Akbar 56-05's checks and balances).
- He still sent tribute to Delhi, but the emperor's approval for appointments in Bengal Suba was now a paper formality.

- Revenue: brilliant administrator. Collected LR through intermediary Zamindars and got detailed field surveys done for fair assessment.
- The intermediaries grew powerful: by 1727 just fifteen were collecting 50% of Bengal Suba's LR.
- Coercion:
    - Mansabdars who resisted had their Tankha Jagirs in Bengal taken and were given Jagirs in Orissa
    - resisting Zamindars were punished by reducing the land from which they collected LR.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MQK's rise = finance + executive + military power in one man.
- Field surveys gave a "justified / right LR demand." LR chain: ryots → intermediary Zamindars (I2) → Diwan of Suba → Imperial Diwan, money going to the King or to a Jagirdar (J).
- "Co-opting" powerful people = the 15 Zamindars.

6 · The Jagat Seths: why Bengal's power was diffused, not centralised

STORY LINK

Because the Nawab's power rested on a network, the bankers matter. Ask: what does the 1740 coup prove about who really chose the Nawab?

- "Jagat Seth" was a hereditary title, not a personal name, held by successive heads of a banking family: Manikchand under MQK
- Mehtab Rai and Swarup Chand under Alivardi Khan 40-56.
- Already powerful before 1717, under the successor State they rose to what Dutch records called the richest banking house in the world.
- They loaned to Zamindars (so revenue reached the State on time), loaned to merchants, and ran Hundi services (pre-modern wire transfer).
- Under Shuja-ud-din Md Khan (1727–39) a Jagat Seth was appointed Treasurer of Bengal and Daroga of the Royal Mint: central bank plus the Nawab's personal banker in one family.

KEY TAKEAWAY

Power was diffused, not centralised: a network of Nawab + intermediary Zamindars + merchants + bankers, with the Nawab on top but dependent on their cooperation.

The House of Jagat Seth, Murshidabad. handout figure

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Proof: the coup of 1740. Alivardi Khan 40-56 (Nawab of Patna) overthrew and killed the sitting Nawab Sarfaraz Khan (1739–40) with the Jagat Seth's backing.
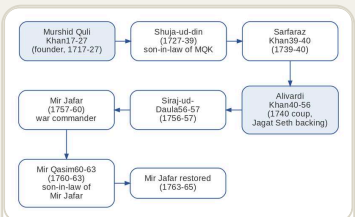
- He secured formal approval by promising Emperor Md Shah one crore rupees plus Sarfaraz's personal wealth, and approval was duly given. The emperor had been reduced to a transactional figure.

7 · Bengal's virtual break: the Maratha raids and Alivardi Khan 40-56

STORY LINK

Because an outside raider took a share of the revenue, Bengal stopped paying Delhi. Ask: which three provinces does Nagpur pull from?



Handout diagram: Bengal succession chain handout figure

- Under MQK, Bengal was autonomous but tribute still was sent to Delhi.
- Under Alivardi the break deepened, triggered by an external shock.

Bengal's virtual break: Raghuji Bhonsle and Alivardi Khan 40-56 Lecture 5 slide 30

The virtual break of Bengal

- 1745-51:
  - Raghuji Bhonsle of Nagpur raids Bengal repeatedly
  - Alivardi cannot defeat him
- 1751 settlement: Bhonsle gets annual Chauth (one-fourth of revenues) of Bengal and Bihar plus direct control of Orissa
- Part of the revenue now flows to Nagpur
- Alivardi stops sending revenue to Delhi and stops seeking the emperor's approval for provincial Mansabdar appointments
- Virtual break complete, but independence never declared

8 · Awadh: from Sadat Khan 22-39 to the virtual break of 1753

STORY LINK

Because Awadh's founders kept their eyes on Delhi, its break came through a Wazir's misstep. Ask: who is Sadat, who is Safdar, who is Shuja?

- Founder: Sadat Ali Khan (1722–39), appointed Subahdar in 1722 as a reward for suppressing local revolts.
- He installed his nephew and son-in-law Safdar Jung 39-54 as Deputy Governor (Naib Nazim) and his own loyalist as Diwan
- tribute to Delhi was reduced.
- Revenue grew from efficient land assessment and taxes on trade.
- He created a new loyal class of local elites (Indian Muslims, Afghans, Hindus) by giving them Mansabs and Jagirs.
- Unlike MQK, Sadat Khan 22-39 kept ambitions at the centre: he wanted a senior Mansab at Delhi (the Central Government).
- He convinced Nadir Shah to invade Delhi in 1739 because the Mir Bakshi post had gone to Chin Qulich Khan (another name of Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48) instead of him.
- Nadir Shah ill-treated him after the victory
- He committed suicide.
- Safdar Jung 39-54 was appointed Wazir by Ahmad Shah Bahadur (1748–54) in 1748.
- He misused the office to annex Farukhabad into Awadh.
- Other Mansabdars opposed, and in 1753 he was forced to resign.
- The resignation was Awadh's virtual break: no more revenue to Delhi, no imperial authority inside Awadh, though legally still part of the empire.
- Shuja-ud-Daula 54-75 was appointed Wazir by Shah Alam II 60-06.
- He fought alongside Ahmad Shah Abdali 47-72 at the Third Battle of Panipat (1761) and was later defeated by the EIC at the Battle of Buxar (1764).
- Awadh survived nominally until EIC annexation in 1856 from Nawab Wajid Ali Shah.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Discrepancy to check. The slide calls Safdar Jung 39-54 the nephew of Sadat Khan 22-39
- The handout calls him nephew and son-in-law.
- The handout in Chapter 2 also calls Sadat Khan 22-39 "of Irani group" in the Karnal passage.

9 · Hyderabad: Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48's path from Delhi to the Deccan

STORY LINK

Because the Nizam failed at the centre, he turned south. Ask: which two posts did he hold at Delhi, and when did he give up?

- Hyderabad was set up within the empire in 1724 by Chin Qulich Khan, aka Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48, aka Asaf Jah I (Nizam, 1724–48), after defeating Mubariz Khan, the sitting Nazim of the Deccan.
- He was the leader of the Turani group.
- In Aurangzeb 58-07's Deccan wars he and his father built strong roots in the region.
- 1720: the Turani and Irani groups removed the Sayyid Brothers, kingmakers who controlled Md Shah, and formally restored imperial authority.
- But the structural problem remained: Md Shah was uninterested in governance. (Remember: 5% of Mansabdars controlled 61% of all Jagir land revenue.)
- As Wazir (1722–24) Nizam tried to redistribute Jagirs from big Mansabdars to smaller ones to ease the Jagirdari crisis, but the bigger Mansabdars did not agree.
- The Marathas defeated him in 1728 and 1738, forcing him to pay Chauth and Sardeshmukhi (10% hereditary Maratha claim in the Deccan).
- He served as Mir Bakshi (1739–40) during Nadir Shah's invasion.
- By 1740 he gave up on reforming the centre and moved to Hyderabad permanently.

1728, 1738	Marathas defeat him; Chauth and Sardeshmukhi
1739-40	Mir Bakshi; by 1740 he moves to Hyderabad for good

- Succession after Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48: Nazir Jung (1748–50) → Muzaffar Jung 50-51 (1750–51, 3 months) → Salabat Jung 51-62, French dominated under Bussy) → Nizam-Ali-Khan (1762–1803).

10 · How Nizam established Hyderabad as a successor State

STORY LINK

Because Hyderabad moved furthest from the Mughal system, it shows the recipe at its most aggressive. Ask: what are the three marks of this State?

Aspect	Detail
Symbolic sovereignty (by 1748)	The emperor's name on coins and in the Friday Khutba, but zero influence over war, peace, treaties or appointments
Tolerance	The Hindu majority was economically powerful, so Nizam followed religious tolerance and punished opponents regardless of community
Most aggressive change	Of the three States, Hyderabad converted Tankha to Vatan Jagirs most aggressively and made merchants, moneylenders and Ijaradars Mansabdars ("upstarts") on the largest scale

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Merchants and moneylenders got property security and became Mansabdars (called upstarts), and in return gave financial support.
- The most pronounced transformation of the Mansabdari system was in Hyderabad.
- Result: the same diffused polity: Nawab at top, influential sections under him.

11 · The Carnatic: a State within a State

STORY LINK

Because Hyderabad had a smaller State inside it, the Prelims 2021 trap lives here. Ask: is the Carnatic independent, or the southern part of the Hyderabad Subah?

- Hyderabad had a smaller State inside its borders, the Carnatic. By law it was part of the Hyderabad province.
- But it had its own ruler, the Nawab, and ran its own government.

Parallels for a State within a State Lecture 5 slide 36

TEACHER'S BOARD

Parallels for the Carnatic: India → J&K (Art. 370); Assam → Meghalaya as an autonomous State within Assam (Art. 244A); Hyderabad → Carnatic, practically autonomous.

11.1 Backstory: the Vijayanagar Empire (1336–1646)

- For three hundred years the Vijayanagar Empire was the strongest power in South India, and the Carnatic was part of it.
- Provinces were ruled by Nayaks (teacher: Nayak = CM), Telugu Hindu governors from warrior families.

- Nayaks divided their provinces into Palayams, each run by a local chief called a Poligar (Palayakkarar) with his own private army and fort.

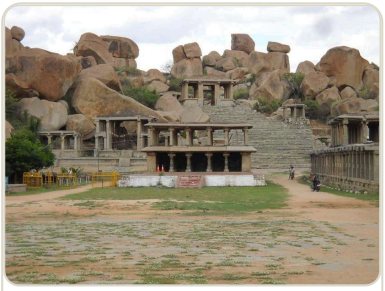
11.2 The long decline (1565–1698)



Hampi / Vijayanagar ruins: the capital whose 1565 sack ended the empire as a major power. handout figure

- 1. A. Defeat of Vijayanagar at Talikota (1565).
- A four-state alliance of the Deccan Sultanates (Bijapur, Ahmadnagar, Golconda, Bidar) destroyed the Vijayanagar army.
- The empire officially continued until 1646, but this defeat was the real end of its power.
- 2. B. Nayaks independent, then defeated. After 1565 the southern Nayaks of Madurai, Tanjore and Gingee ruled autonomously
- Distance protected them for a while
- By 1646 Bijapur and Golconda conquered and divided the Carnatic between themselves.
- 3. C. Sultanates defeated by the Mughals.
- Aurangzeb 58-07 conquered Bijapur (1686) and Golconda (1687).
- The whole Carnatic now came under Mughal rule.
- 4. D. Gingee under the Marathas, then lost to the Mughals.
- Shivaji 74-80 captured Gingee Fort from Bijapur in 1677.
- After the Mughals executed Sambhaji 80-89 in 1689, the next Chhatrapati, Rajaram 89-00, made Gingee his base against the Mughals.
- In 1690 Zulfiqar Khan (Nawab of Carnatic) surrounded the fort.
- The siege lasted eight years (the longest by the Mughals)
- the Mughals finally captured Gingee in 1698. (Zulfiqar Khan later became Wazir under Jahandar Shah 12-13, 1712, until his execution in February 1713.)

11.3 Dividing the region

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2021 trap: the Carnatic and Hyderabad relation.
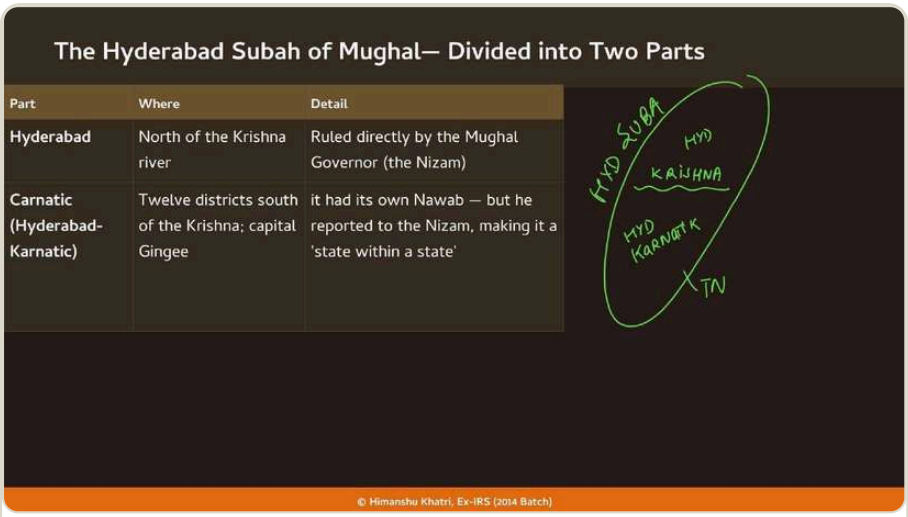
- Do not treat the Carnatic as a separate independent State
- It was the southern part of the Hyderabad Subah



Hyderabad Subah divided: Hyderabad and the Carnatic Lecture 5 slide 37

Hyderabad	North of the Krishna river	Ruled directly by the Mughal Governor (the Nizam)
Carnatic (Hyderabad-Karnatic)	Twelve districts south of the Krishna; capital Gingee (covered the old Nayak kingdoms of Gingee, Tanjore and Madurai; on 18th-century maps, simply the "Carnatic")	Had its own Nawab, but he reported to the Nizam: a "state within a state"

12 · Synthesis: the common pattern and what it made possible

STORY LINK

Because all three States share one pattern, the EIC faced a gap between paper and power. Ask: what did the emperor become?

Point	Detail
Concentration of power	Across Bengal, Awadh and Hyderabad (and the Carnatic): a powerful Mansabdar extracts the Subahdari, dismantles checks and balances, builds revenue strength, converts Tankha to Vatan, and co-opts merchants and bankers into the Mansabdari system
No independence	None declared it: the Mughal umbrella served their interests; practically independent, including decisions of war and peace. Each developed its own diplomacy, army and fisc
Unique Carnatic	Part of the Hyderabad Suba but autonomous: a successor State inside a successor State. Fragmentation was not only horizontal (Subahs breaking from the empire) but also vertical (sub-regions within a successor State developing their own semi-autonomous identity)
Mughal authority	The emperor became a constitutional monarch with no executive power: a ceremonial head of State whose legitimacy was still useful to others

2 Bengal

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The India into which the EIC was stepping: competing, partially autonomous States, each with its own elite coalition and its own fiscal and military interests, and, critically, a world where legitimacy and real power had come apart.
- That gap between formal authority and actual power is exactly what made the subcontinent vulnerable to outside penetration.

The Marathas: Rise, Administration and the Road to Panipat 1761

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 39-55 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 1995, 2010

Mains PYQs: Mains 2014 (why so many battles at Panipat); boxed by the teacher for Mains: why no all-India Maratha rule

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 1995: pair each Sardar with his capital: Gaikwad = Baroda, Holkar = Indore, Scindia (Shinde) = Gwalior, Bhonsle = Nagpur
- Prelims 2010: the immediate reason for Abdali's invasion and the Third Battle of Panipat: to avenge the Marathas' expulsion of his son Timur Shah from Lahore (March 1758), not Maratha expansion in general
- Boxed by the teacher for Prelims: Chauth (25%, external only) against Sardeshmukhi (an extra 10%, internal and external), and the three Maratha gains of 1719 from the Sayyid alliance
- Figures to hold: the Chauth split Mokasa 66, Babti 25, Sahotra 6, Nadgaunda 3; the Ashtapradhan's eight posts; the eight treaties from Purandhar 1665 to Salbai 1782

MAINS HOOKS

- Mains 2014: why have so many empire-shaking battles been fought near Panipat? (the gateway to Delhi from the Khyber Pass, not the town; geography; the six battles from Thanesar 1014 to Panipat 1761)
- Boxed by the teacher for Mains: why could the Marathas not establish all-India rule? (tribute, not annexation; weak centre, strong Sardars; Sangola 1750; Svarajya not centralised; no machinery on the ground in Samrajya)
- Why Abdali won at Panipat in 1761: alliance, logistics, terrain, firepower, leadership and factionalism (apply the teacher's checklist for victory in any war)
- The Maratha Confederacy as the chapter's example of a weak centre with strong provinces, and Sangola 1750 as the moment real power shifted down

Whenever real power shifts down to a lower authority, factionalism rises and everything depends on the personality of that authority: Sangola 1750 handed the Peshwa the power, and Panipat 1761 showed the cost.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: One strong man builds Svarajya with guerrilla war, a navy and forts; after him a weak centre lets the Sardars build Samrajya and live on Chauth. The Peshwa takes the real power (Sangola 1750), factions grow, and Abdali beats a divided Maratha camp at Panipat (1761); the vacuum is filled by the EIC.

1 A boy from the Maval. Shivaji 74-80 Bhonsle is born on 19 February 1630 to Shahji (Jagirdar of Poona, a General and Mansabdar in Bijapur) and Jijabai. Guided by Dadaji Kondadev, he takes his first fort at 16, in 1646, working from the hilly, forested Maval region with local warriors and peasants.

→ But a boy with a few forts must beat much bigger armies, so he needs a method.

2 Guerrilla war and the Purandhar squeeze. From 1657 he attacks oppressive Bijapur, and in 1659 he kills Afzal Khan with the concealed Bagh Nakh and a Bichhwa. In 1663 he defeats Shaista Khan 64-88 and sacks Surat, so Aurangzeb 58-07 sends Jai Singh 99-43, who cuts off supplies and in 1665 besieges Purandhar. To spare his soldiers and people Shivaji 74-80 signs the Treaty of Purandhar: 23 of 35 forts go, Sambhaji 80-89 becomes a Mansabdar of 5,000, and he backs the Mughals against Bijapur.

→ Now a man who has survived the squeeze must turn a raiding band into a State.

3 Crown, army and navy. In 1666 he and Sambhaji 80-89 are insulted and imprisoned at Agra, and escape disguised as Sadhus. In 1674 he is crowned at Raigarh as Chhatrapati, declaring himself independent of the Mughals, and Svarajya covers the Marathi-speaking region. His army of 30,000 to 40,000 light cavalry holds 240 forts; his navy grows from 20 ships in 1657 to 200 by 1664 (peak 700), guarded by Jaladurg sea-forts, and he pays officials in cash, never in Jagirs.

→ But a State also needs ministers, officers and courts.

4 How the Chhatrapati ruled. He governs with the Ashtapradhan, eight ministers headed by the Peshwa as Prime Minister, like a British monarch with a Privy Council. Under the Peshwa sit the Darakhdars, and in 1774 twelve of them form the Barbhai Mandal under Nana Fadnavis. Provinces (Sarkars) have Governors whose office is auctioned, cross-checked by the Deshmukhi, while villages run under a Patil and justice climbs from the Panch to the Peshwa.

→ Yet the whole machine hung on one strong man, and he died in 1680.

5 A troubled succession. Sambhaji 80-89 is captured by Aurangzeb 58-07 and killed in 1689 after weeks of torture, and Rajaram 89-00 dies of tuberculosis in 1700, aged 30. His widow Tarabai rules as regent for the infant Shivaji II until 1707, when the Mughals release Shahu 19-49, the elder son of Sambhaji 80-89. The release triggers a civil war that lasts until 1719, while Sardars and Deshmukhs keep switching sides, which the Mughals encourage.

→ So the question is who wins, and which side has the better minister.

6 Shahu wins, the Sardars rise. The sixth Peshwa, Balaji Vishwanath 13-20, wins Brahmin banking families and the new Sardars for Shahu 19-49 and persuades Admiral Kanhoji Angre to switch in 1714. The Treaty of Warna (1731) splits the house into Satara and Kolhapur. Four Sardars become kingmakers, Gaikwad at Baroda, Holkar at Indore, Scindia at Gwalior and Bhonsle at Nagpur, so Svarajya (inside Maharashtra) is ruled by the Peshwa and Samrajya (outside, from 1719) by the Sardars.

→ Now the Sardars rule far from home, so how do they pay for it?

7 Chauth and Sardeshmukhi. Chauth is 25% of the revenue of a protected state, paid for military protection; the annual drain weakens that state until it cannot pay and is annexed after a short war, which beats a long, costly war of direct annexation. Sardeshmukhi is an extra 10%, collected both inside and outside. When Sardars collect Chauth abroad they keep 66% (Mokasa), send 25% (Babti) to the Chhatrapati, give 6% (Sahotra) to the Pant Sachiv and 3% (Nadgaunda) to the Chhatrapati's discretion.

8 The bargain of 1719 and the decade of growth. In 1719 Balaji Vishwanath 13-20 allies with the Sayyid Brothers, who remove Farrukhsiyar 13-19 and install Muhammad Shah 19-48 as a puppet. The Marathas win autonomy in Maharashtra, the Chauth of Malwa and Gujarat, and Chauth plus Sardeshmukhi of six Deccan provinces, but the Nizam beats the Sayyids in 1720 and stops paying in 1724. A decade of expansion follows (1727-39): Gujarat at 60%, Malwa in 1729, Delhi plundered in 1737 by Baji Rao 20-40, the Treaty of Bhopal in 1738 and Bassein in 1739, then Odisha, Khandesh, Ahmedabad and Alamgir II 54-59 as a puppet in 1754.

→ But as the Marathas grow, power slides from the Chhatrapati down to the Peshwa.

9 Sangola 1750. Balaji Vishwanath 13-20, then Baji Rao 20-40, then Nana Saheb (1740-61) hold the Peshwa's chair, so after three generations it is hereditary in effect, and Shahu 19-49 keeps delegating to him. When Tarabai says Shahu's adopted son Ramraja is not her grandson, Nana Saheb backs Ramraja but makes him sign the Treaty of Sangola in February 1750, and all real power passes to the Peshwa. The teacher's family table shows the eldest brother taking the father's seat.

→ Now a house with a weaker centre meets a united enemy from the north-west.

10 Panipat, 1761. From 1756 Abdali invaded, took Lahore and Kashmir and made his son Timur Shah Governor, but in March 1758 Raghunath Rao 73-74 expelled Timur from Lahore, the peak of Maratha power and Abdali's immediate reason to return. Abdali (60,000) joins the Rohillas under Najib-ud-Daula 57-70, the Bangash Pathans under Ahmad Khan (1750-82) and Awadh under Shuja-ud-Daula 54-75, while the Marathas (50,000) under Sadasiv Rao Bhau face them with the Sikhs, Rajputs and Jats neutral and their supply route from Delhi cut at Panipat. Swivel guns pierce their armour, Raghuji Bhonsle refuses to fight, and about 50,000 Marathas die.

11 Decline, and why no all-India rule. Young and weak Peshwas follow (Madhav Rao 61-72, Narayan Rao 72-73, the infant Madhav Rao II 74-95), though the Marathas win the First Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82) and Mahadji Scindia 68-94 retakes Delhi in 1771 and builds the Campoo army in 1784. The EIC takes Delhi in 1803 and annexes Svarajya in 1817-19. The Marathas never ruled all India because they took tribute instead of ruling, and their centre was weak: they had control but not rule.

In simple words

- Shivaji 74-80 (crowned at Raigarh in 1674) built Svarajya with guerrilla warfare, a light-cavalry army, a coastal navy and sea-forts, and paid his officials in cash instead of giving Jagirs.
- After his death came a succession crisis (Sambhaji 80-89, Rajaram 89-00, Tarabai) and a civil war with Shahu 19-49 that ran until 1719
- Shahu won because the Peshwa Balaji Vishwanath 13-20 brought him Brahmin bankers and the new Sardars
- The Marathas became a confederacy: Svarajya under the Peshwa, Samrajya under four Sardars (Gaikwad, Holkar, Scindia, Bhonsle). They lived on Chauth (25%) and Sardeshmukhi (10%), a tribute that weakened a state until it could be annexed.
- The 1719 Sayyid deal, then 1727-39 and 1745-54, made them the top power in India
- The Treaty of Sangola (1750) then moved all real power from the Chhatrapati to the Peshwa
- At Panipat (1761) Abdali, backed by Awadh, the Rohillas and Farrukhabad, won through alliance, supply, terrain, swivel guns and Maratha factionalism
- The vacuum was filled by the EIC
- They never ruled all India because they collected tribute instead of building rule on the ground, and the centre was weak.

Key term	In plain words
Svarajya	'Own rule': the original Maratha kingdom inside Maharashtra, ruled directly by the Chhatrapati or Peshwa
Samrajya	Lands outside Maharashtra added from 1719, ruled by the Sardars in their own right
Chauth	One-fourth (25%) of revenue paid by a protected state for military protection; collected externally only
Sardeshmukhi	An extra 10% of land revenue; collected internally and externally; a symbol of recognising the Chhatrapati's authority
Ashtapradhan	The Chhatrapati's council of eight ministers, of whom the Peshwa was the Prime Minister
Peshwa	Prime Minister of the Chhatrapati; the office became hereditary in effect and held all real power after Sangola 1750
Sardar	A local chief, a mini-king with his own army and fort; four became the kingmakers of the Confederacy
Saranjam	A Tankha Jagir given to a military commander; Shahu 19-49 gave these but never Vatan Jagirs
Vatan	A hereditary right; Patils and Deshmukhs held heritable Vatan rights
Barbhai Mandal	The Council of Twelve Ministers formed in 1774 by twelve Darakhdars under Nana Fadnavis ('12 Bros')
Jaladurg	Shivaji 74-80's doctrine of sea forts on rocky islands or peninsulas along the coast
Campoo	A self-sufficient force with its own infantry, cavalry and artillery, raised from 1784 as the Fauj-i-Hind

REMEMBER IT AS Shivaji 74-80 builds Svarajya, the Sardars build Samrajya, Chauth feeds the empire, Sangola 1750 hands power to the Peshwa, and a weak centre meets Abdali at Panipat 1761.

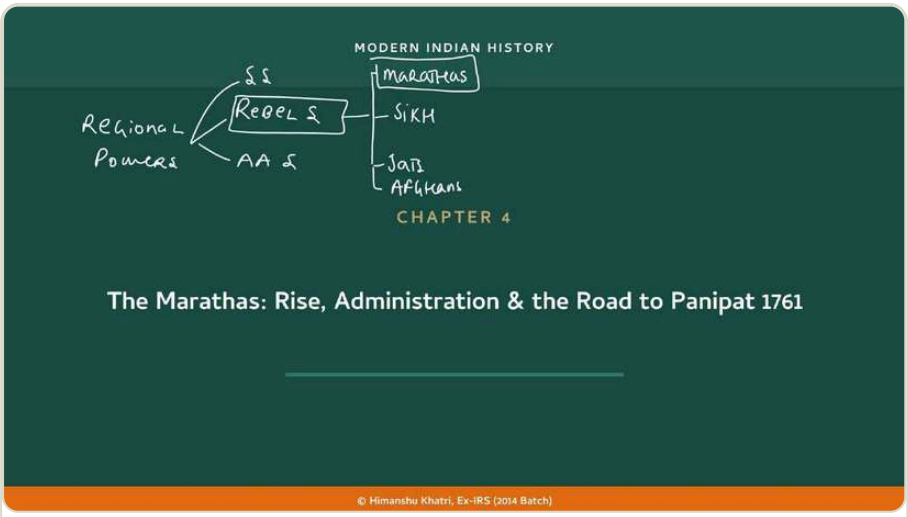
0 · Where the Marathas fit, and the teacher's opening boards

STORY LINK

Story so far: the Marathas are the first of the Rebel States on the teacher's board, followed by the Sikhs, Jats and Afghans. Ask: which three kinds of regional power did the teacher draw?



Chapter 4 title: regional powers and the Marathas as Rebel States Lecture 6 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Regional powers = SS (Successor States) + Rebel S (Rebel States) + AA S (Already Autonomous States).
- The Marathas head the Rebel States, followed by the Sikhs, Jats, Afghans.

Zat and Sawar: net importance of a Mansabdar Lecture 6 slide 3

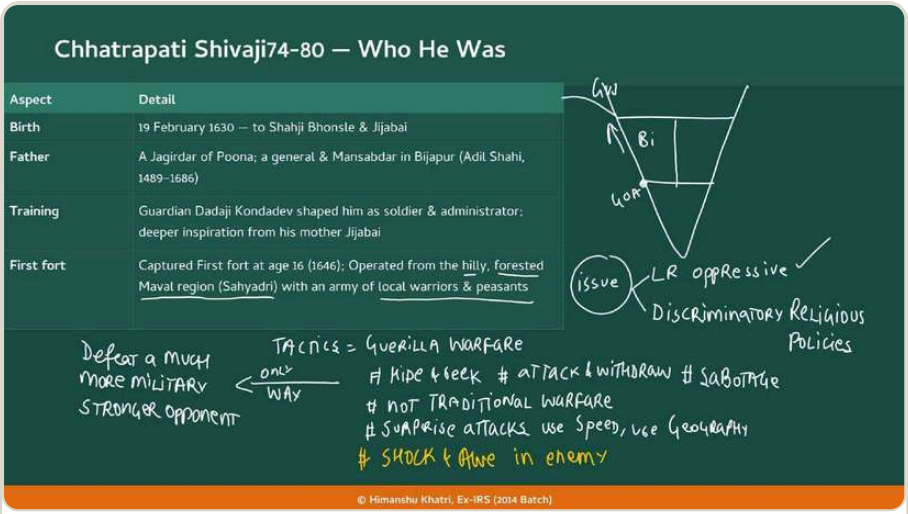
HANDOUT NOTE

Mansabdari refresher: Zat = personal seniority, Sawar = horsemen to be maintained; together they give a Mansabdar's net importance (e.g. Zat 4000 + Sawar 2000 = 6000; Zat 3000 + Sawar 3000 = 6000). See Chapter 1.

1 · Chhatrapati Shivaji 74-80: who he was and why he rose

STORY LINK

Chapter 1 of the story: a boy of 16 with a fort. Because Bijapur was oppressive and the Mughals were closing in, he rose. Ask: what were the two issues against Bijapur?



Shivaji 74-80: who he was and the Deccan setting Lecture 6 slide 4

1.1 Who he was

- Shivaji 74-80 Bhonsle was born on 19 February 1630 to Shahji Bhonsle and Jijabai.
- His father was a Jagirdar of Poona and served as a General and Mansabdar in Bijapur (1489-1686), ruled by the Adil Shahi dynasty.
- This dynasty, together with the Qutub Shahi (1518-1687), had replaced the Bahmani Sultanate (1347-1527) in the Deccan.
- Early training came from his guardian Dadaji Kondadev, who shaped him as a soldier and administrator.
- The deeper inspiration came from his mother Jijabai and his own fierce ambition.
- He captured his first fort at the age of 16, in 1646.
- Working from the Maval region, a hilly, forested terrain in today's Pune district running through the Sahyadri range, he gathered an army of local warriors and peasants.

1.2 Guerrilla warfare: the teacher's boards

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tactics = guerrilla warfare:
  - Hide and seek, attack and withdraw, sabotage
  - Not traditional warfare.
- It uses surprise attacks, speed and geography and creates shock and awe.
- The only way to defeat a much stronger opponent.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Guerrilla warfare is a tool for positive, neutral or negative goals.
- Examples:
    - Naxals in India
    - Spain (1808-12) against Napoleon
    - 1857 Revolt (Kunwar Singh, Tatya Tope)
    - Ganimi Kava of the Marathas
    - Alluri Sitarama Raju (1922-24).

1.3 Why he rose against Bijapur and the Mughals

- From 1657 onwards, Shivaji 74-80 launched systematic attacks on the Kingdom of Bijapur (1489-1686), which followed economically oppressive and religiously discriminatory policies.
- This was also the period when Aurangzeb 58-07 became Mughal emperor.
- In 1659, Ali Adil Shah II, Sultan of Bijapur, sent his General Afzal Khan to kill Shivaji 74-80 under the pretext of negotiations.
- Instead, Shivaji 74-80 killed the seven-feet-tall Afzal Khan using his concealed Bagh Nakh (Tiger Claws) and a Bichhwa (dagger).

Shivaji versus Bijapur and the Mughals Lecture 6 slide 6

- When Aurangzeb 58-07 launched his campaign for the conquest of the Deccan, Shivaji 74-80 defeated the Mughal General Shaista Khan 64-88 in 1663 and sacked the wealthy port of Surat, which enraged Aurangzeb 58-07.
- Aurangzeb 58-07 sent General Jai Singh 99-43, who used an encirclement strategy to cut off supplies to Maratha territories.
- In 1665 Jai Singh 99-43 laid siege to Fort Purandhar (40-50 km southeast of Pune).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Triangle:
    - Aurangzeb 58-07, the Marathas, Bijapur. The Marathas' goal = Swarajya. 1674 = coronation of Chhatrapati Shivaji 74-80
    - 1686 = Aurangzeb 58-07 annexes Bijapur
- BG Tilak (1890s) used this cultural history (a Maratha against a Mughal general) to arouse nationalism against the British.

Fort Purandhar: Jai Singh's siege and the Treaty of Purandhar 1665 Lecture 6 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Gherao = starve the enemy. Jai Singh 99-43 = a powerful Hindu Mansabdar of the Mughal State.
- Standard books say Shivaji 74-80 never accepted Mughal sovereignty
- Correction: the Treaty of Purandhar 1665 was a temporary tactic.

Fort Purandhar handout figure

1.4 Treaty of Purandhar 1665: a tactical pause, not a permanent defeat

- To prevent the massacre of his soldiers and people, Shivaji 74-80 negotiated the Treaty of Purandhar (1665). Under its terms:
- 1. He surrendered 23 of his 35 forts to the Mughals.
- 2. He accepted Aurangzeb 58-07 as Emperor but declined a personal mansab for himself.
- 3. His son Sambhaji 80-89 was made a Mughal Mansabdar with a rank of 5,000.
- 4. He agreed to support the Mughals in their war against Bijapur.

Treaty of Purandhar 1665, Agra 1666 and the 1674 coronation Lecture 6 slide 8

- In 1666, Shivaji 74-80 and Sambhaji 80-89 visited the Mughal court at Agra. They were insulted and imprisoned.
- Their escape became legendary: disguised as Sadhus with bodies smeared in ash, they went to Mathura.
- Shivaji 74-80 left Sambhaji 80-89 there with a Brahmin family and took a long route back to his capital.
- Aurangzeb 58-07 marched to the Deccan in 1681, when his own son Prince Akbar 56-05 defected to Chhatrapati Sambhaji 80-89.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Treaties are named after the place where they were signed.
- Coronation = legal reversal of the Treaty of Purandhar: a fully independent kingdom.
- Jat kingdom, Svarajya and the Sikh state share one feature: the result of people / mass participation (the Jat kingdom = peasant revolts). After the escape: rebellion resumes.

1.5 The 1674 coronation at Raigarh: Svarajya

- In 1674, Shivaji 74-80 was coronated at Raigarh as Chhatrapati, legally declaring himself independent from the Mughals.
- His kingdom, called Svarajya ("own rule"), covered the Marathi-speaking region.
- (The handout's heading places the headquarters at Satara; see the capital note in section 8.)
- The Maratha kingdom had thus been founded in the second half of the 17th century, built through wars against both Bijapur and Aurangzeb 58-07.

Raigarh Fort and Vatan rights Lecture 6 slide 9

- Shivaji 74-80 died of natural causes in 1680.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Vatan = hereditary. A Mughal Vatan right could be: LR of a Jagir (a Vatan Jagir); collecting LR for a commission (Zamindar); a job such as Qanungo (maintaining land records); or Khudkasht cultivation of a plot.

2 · Military tactics: army, Jagirs, navy and forts

STORY LINK

Because the Marathas could not match Mughal strength, Shivaji 74-80 built a light, fast army, a coastal navy and sea-forts. Ask: why was copying European deep-sea ships a strategic disaster in the Konkan?

2.1 The army: light cavalry and guerrilla warfare

- Shivaji 74-80 built a well-organised army of around 30,000 to 40,000 cavalry.
- He used the mountainous terrain and dense forests to master guerrilla warfare and captured 240 forts, many of them in the Konkan.
- Their strategy was built on surprise (shock and awe) combined with guerrilla tactics.
- The major fighting force was a horse-mounted army with light cavalry for faster movement, in sharp contrast to the Mughals, who relied on heavy cavalry (elephants carrying a support system like food).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Heavy cavalry = elephants plus horses carrying supplies, slow.
- Light cavalry = horses only, food and shelter on the way (by love or force).
- Speed = the focus of guerrilla warfare.

2.2 The Saranjami system: military land grants

- Unlike the Mughals, Maratha civil officials did not hold military roles.
- Shivaji 74-80 never gave Jagirs and paid officials in cash, leading to a centralised polity.
- Later Chhatrapati Shahu 19-49 gave Tankha Jagirs to military commanders called Saranjams, but never Vatan Jagirs.
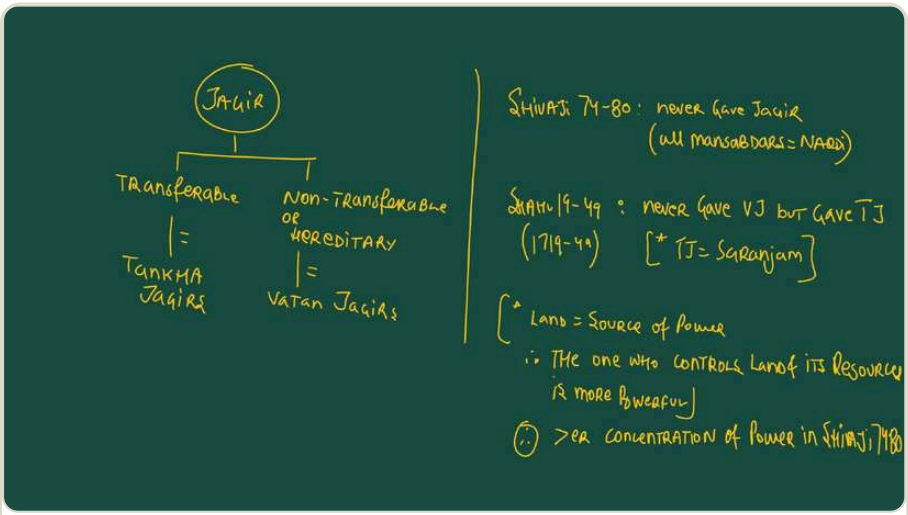
- This prevented military loyalty from getting tied to hereditary land grants and gave the ruler more control.



Jagirs: Tankha versus Vatan, and Shivaji 74-80's cash system Lecture 6 slide 11

- Under this system revenue assignments on Jagirs were given to the Maratha Sardars, the Peshwa (Prime Minister of the Chhatrapati) and various military commanders, each drawing income from designated territories to maintain troops and administration.
- This led to a fragmented polity as revenue and military power were dispersed rather than centralised.

Land grant	Held by	Nature
Saranjam (a Tankha Jagir)	Military commanders	Temporary, tied to service, NOT heritable
Vatan / Watan	Civil officials such as Patils (village head) and Deshmukhs (revenue collectors like Zamindars)	A hereditary right, passed within the family

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Land = the source of power
- whoever controls land and its resources is more powerful, hence greater concentration of power under Shivaji 74-80.
- A Saranjam is taken away if not in service.

2.3 The navy: Father of the Modern Indian Navy

- Shivaji 74-80 established a naval force of 20 ships in 1657, a full navy of 200 ships by 1664, and the peak Maratha navy reached 700 ships.
- His doctrine was not about matching the British or Portuguese in deep-ocean warfare.
- It was a specialised, asymmetric coastal defence strategy designed to:
- 1. Protect Maratha merchant ships.

Shivaji 74-80's navy: Father of the Modern Indian Navy Lecture 6 slide 12

- 2. Secure the Konkan coastline from the Siddis of Janjira.
- 3. Prevent European powers from dominating Konkan trade routes.
- He built forts in coastal areas, established naval bases in the Arabian Sea, and focused on intelligence gathering at sea.

- In 1668 Shivaji 74-80 allowed the French to establish a trading factory at Rajapur.
- In return he secured high-quality military supplies: European cannons, lead and saltpetre for gunpowder.
- He is called the Father of the Modern Indian Navy because he relied entirely on indigenous human resources, engineering and strategy, never on European naval architects or shipbuilders.
- He recruited from local coastal communities, the Kolis and Bhandaris, master seafarers who knew the tides, hidden rocks and shallow creeks of the Konkan.
- He appointed commanders like Mayanak Bhandari and Daulat Khan.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Saltpetre = potassium nitrate, used in gunpowder.
- Desi = indigenous tech, human resources, tactics.
- "Enemy's enemy = friend": the British were the common enemy.
- The Maratha navy was comparable in tech and strength to European navies ("modern").

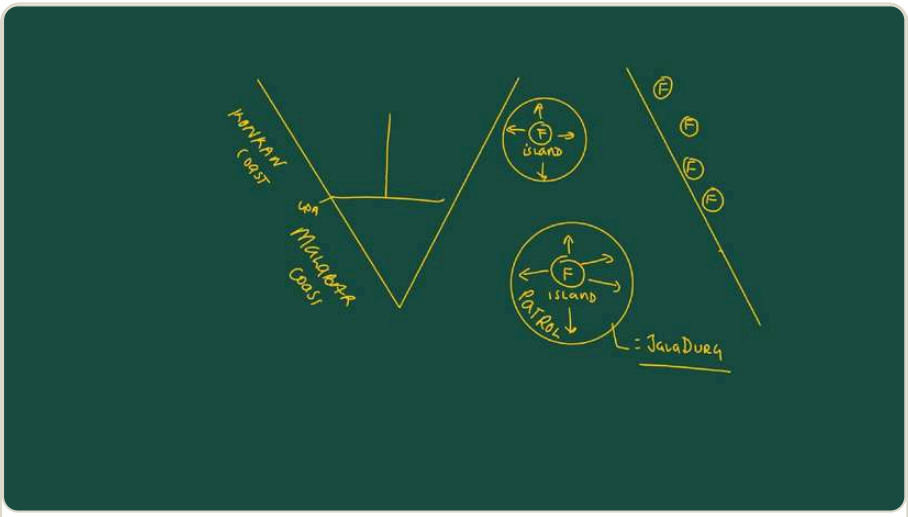
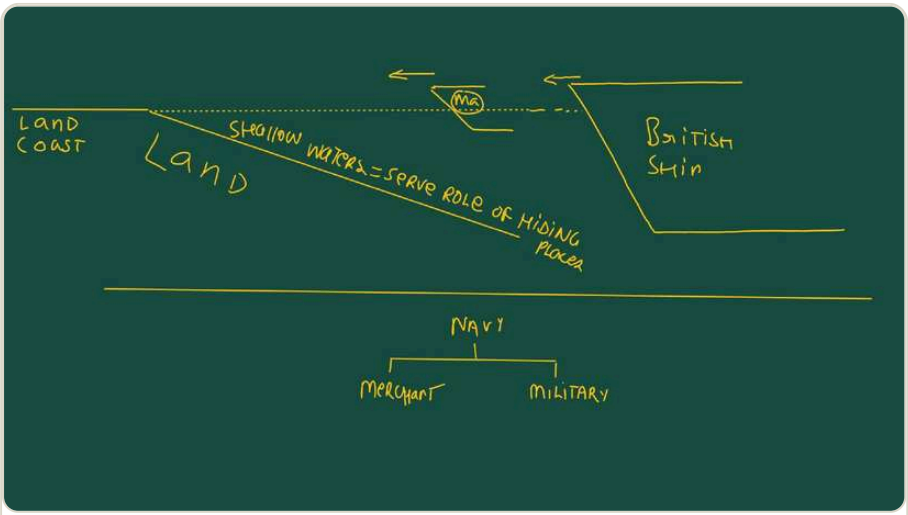
2.4 The fleet: tactical ship design



Konkan coast: Jaladurg patrol and coastal forts Lecture 6 slide 13



Coast and shallow waters as navy hiding places Lecture 6 slide 14

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Navy serves Merchant and Military. Patrol = Jaladurg: forts in coastal areas and on islands.
- The land coast and shallow waters are hiding places for small Maratha boats against British ships.

- A key insight was tactical ship design.
- Copying the massive deep-water (blue water) ships of the Europeans would have been a strategic disaster in the shallow estuaries of the Konkan coast.
- Instead he built a lighter, faster fleet for coastal defence and hit-and-run:

Vessel	Role
Ghurabs	Gunboats carrying heavy artillery
Galbats	Fast, highly manoeuvrable rowboats with light sails that could tow the Ghurabs into position during dead winds or chase fleeing enemy ships
Shibars and Pals	Larger vessels for transport and heavier engagements

- To ensure self-reliance, Shivaji 74-80 set up shipbuilding yards, sourcing timber from the teak forests of the Sahyadri.

2.5 The forts: the Jaladurg doctrine

- His greatest strategic innovation was the Jaladurg doctrine: sea forts on rocky islands or peninsulas along the coast.
- They provided security to docked vessels, and cannons in these forts and along the coast kept enemy ships at a distance.
- Key examples: Sindhudurg, Vijaydurg and Suvarnadurg.
- In Gujarat the EIC so feared the Marathas that they made Bombay their main base for trade, leading to the Bombay Presidency in 1687.

Fleet, Jaladurg sea-forts and the shift from Surat to Bombay Lecture 6 slide 15

- The Marathas actively captured ports from the Portuguese: in 1736 they removed the Portuguese and Ethiopian Muslims from the Konkan coast, and by 1739 effectively controlled Salsette and Bassein.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1668:
  - EIC already in Bombay. 1687: Bombay becomes the Presidency (HQ)
  - Bombay = a group of seven islands.
- Why shift from Surat:
  - British navy strong, goods better protected at Bombay
  - Surat feared (Maratha) cavalry.
- Britain became the No. 1 naval power.
- China:
  - Chaos, kingdom wars and plunder, so goods go through Hong Kong (British, ringed by navy)
  - India: goods go through Bombay (British)

2.6 After Shivaji 74-80: Admiral Kanhoji Angre

- After Shivaji 74-80 the dominant naval figure was Admiral Kanhoji Angre, called the "Shivaji 74-80 of the Seas", who dominated the Arabian Sea for 30 years in the early 1700s until his death in 1729.
- Kanhoji fought the British, Portuguese, Dutch, the Sawants (a small kingdom since 1627) and the Siddis or Habshis (people of African ancestry, now found in Gujarat, Karnataka, Andhra and parts of Sindh and Baluchistan in Pakistan).

Handout map: 12 UNESCO Heritage Forts handout figure

- From 1714 to 1724 he frequently attacked the EIC in Bombay with guerrilla warfare at sea.
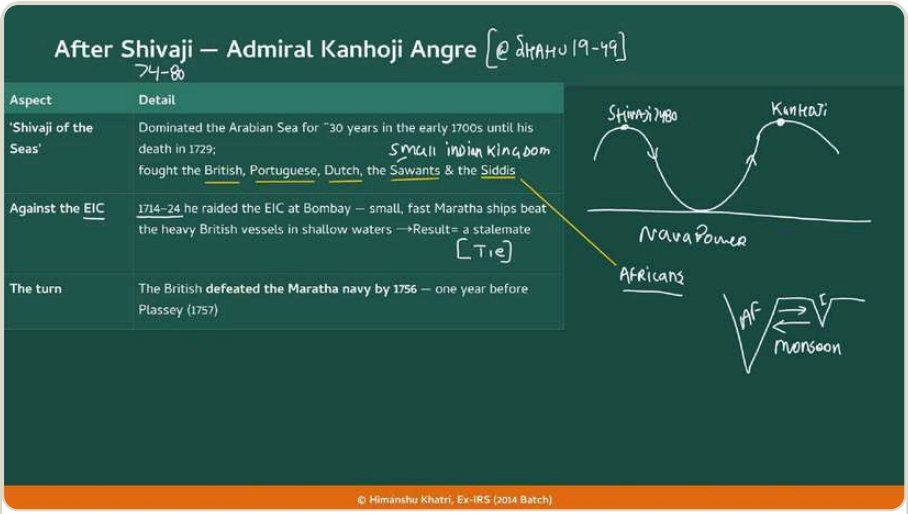
- The bigger, heavier British ships could not pursue the small, fast Maratha vessels in shallow waters.



Admiral Kanhoji Angre: Shivaji of the Seas Lecture 6 slide 24

- The result was a stalemate, and Kanhoji eventually offered peace to the British.
- The British defeated the Maratha Navy in 1756, one year before the EIC defeated the Bengal Suba at Plassey (1757).

3 · Sambhaji 80-89 and Rajaram 89-00: the troubled succession

> STORY LINK
> Because everything rested on one man, his death in 1680 opened a succession crisis. Ask: who ruled as regent in the name of the infant Shivaji II?

- Chhatrapati means Emperor. Shivaji 74-80 was the first Chhatrapati, ruling from 1674 until his death from natural causes in 1680.
- After him, his elder son Sambhaji 80-89 took charge.
- He was captured by Aurangzeb 58-07 and, after weeks of torture, was assassinated in 1689.
- The younger son Rajaram 89-00 then took over but died of tuberculosis in 1700 at just 30 years of age.
- With no adult male heir ready, Rajaram 89-00's widow Tarabai stepped in.
- She ruled as regent in the name of their infant son Shivaji II.
- This held until 1707, when the Mughals released Shahu 19-49, the elder son of Sambhaji 80-89, who had been in Mughal imprisonment.
- Shahu 19-49's release triggered a civil war between Shahu 19-49 and Tarabai that lasted until 1719 (section 6).

Family tree: Shivaji 74-80 to Shahu 19-49 and Tarabai Lecture 6 slide 26

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Regent = rules in the name of the king, because the king cannot rule (age, health).
- A war is internal (civil war) or external.

4 · The Ashtapradhan and Maratha administration

STORY LINK

Because a Chhatrapati was not an absolute ruler, he governed with eight ministers. Ask: which of the eight was the Prime Minister?

4.1 The Chhatrapati was not an absolute ruler

- The Chhatrapati governed with a council of eight ministers, the Ashtapradhan.
- This was similar in concept to the British Monarch and his Privy Council, or the Mughal Emperor and his Darbar.
- Separation of powers (a separate legislature, executive, judiciary) is a modern concept.
- The Ashtapradhan was simply a council of ministers serving the Chhatrapati.

4.2 The eight ministers

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The Chhatrapati was like a British monarch with a Privy Council (ministers)
- The Mughal emperor had a Darbar of Mansabdars (Irani, Turani, Hindu, Deccani and others)
- Today = Prime Minister plus Council of Ministers.

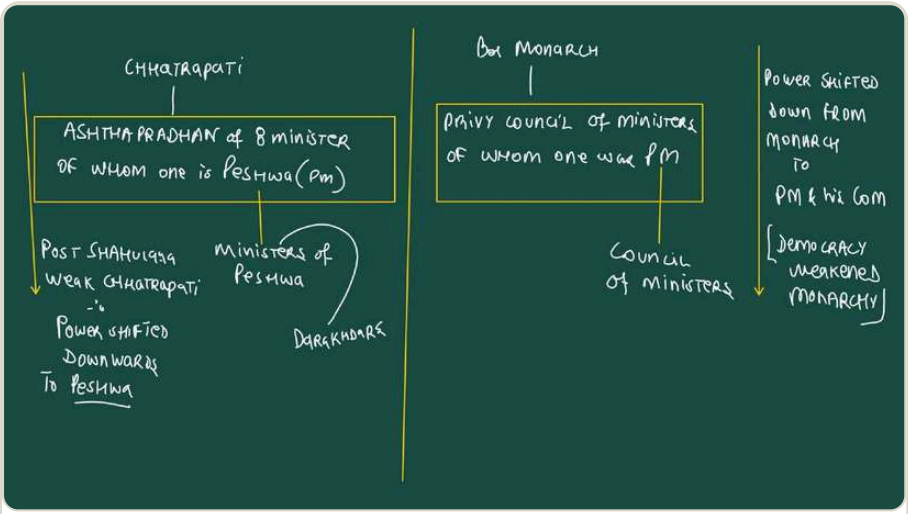
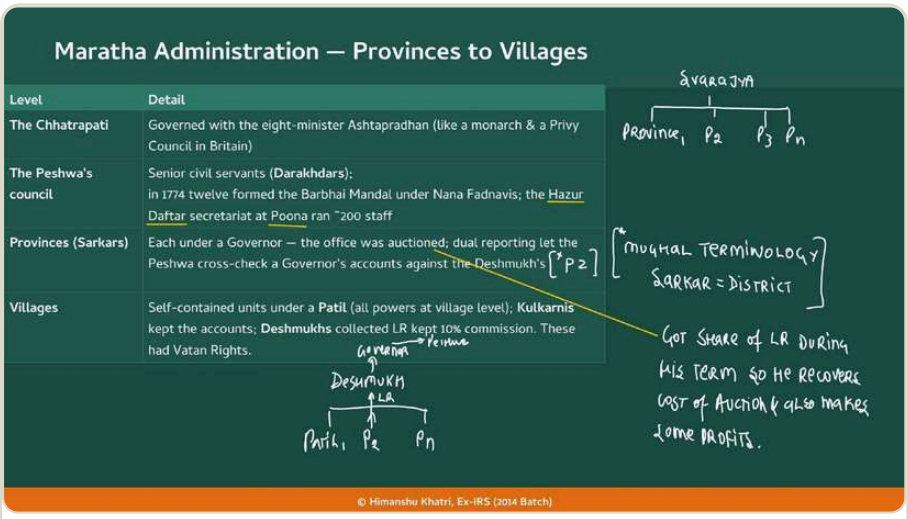
4.3 The Peshwa's own council: Darakhdars and the Barbhai Mandal



Chhatrapati, Ashtapradhan and Peshwa's Darakhdars Lecture 6 slide 28



Maratha administration: centre, provinces and villages Lecture 6 slide 29

- Just as the British PM had his own Council of Ministers beneath the monarch, the Peshwa had his own council of senior civil servants, the Darakhdars.
- In 1774, twelve of these powerful men came together under Nana Fadnavis to form the Council of Twelve Ministers, the Barbhai Mandal.
- The Peshwa's secretariat at Poona was the Hazur Daftar.
- Around 200 people worked there
- All records important for governance, including financial records, were kept there

TEACHER'S BOARD

Barbhai = "12 Bros". Power drifted downwards: as the Chhatrapati weakened after Shahu 19-49, it moved to the Peshwa, like the British monarch's power moving to the PM and Council of Ministers as democracy grew.

4.4 Provincial and village administration

- Within Svarajya the territory was divided into Sarkars (provinces), each under a Governor.
- Notably, the office of Governor was auctioned.
- There were checks: many hereditary officers had dual reporting lines, to the Governor and directly to the Peshwa.
- The Governor's accounts submitted to the Peshwa were tallied against those submitted independently by the Deshmukhi directly to the Peshwa.
- This cross-checking prevented Governors from manipulating revenue figures.
- At the lowest level villages functioned as self-contained units.
- Each was under a Patil, who held all powers (financial, executive, judicial) including revenue collection, and reported directly to the Peshwa.
- Village accounts were kept by Kulkarnis.
- Both Patils and Deshmukhi (revenue collectors) held heritable Vatan rights.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mughal terminology: Sarkar = District. The Governor got a share of LR during his term, recovering his auction price plus some profit.
- Deshmukhs collected LR and kept a 10% commission.

4.5 The judicial system

- In Svarajya the final judicial decision rested with the Peshwa
- In Samrajya, with the respective Maratha Sardar.
- There was a hierarchy of courts from the Panch at the village level up to the Peshwa.
- The Peshwa, as far as possible, respected the decisions of the Panchs.
- The law used was from the Dharma Shastras.

Justice and revenue in Maratha administration Lecture 6 slide 30

- The policing was as efficient as the London Police of that era, with a very good information network.
- Crucially there was a rule of law: even the highest authorities could be and were imprisoned for violations.

4.6 Sources of revenue

- Land revenue was the primary source, fixed on the basis of the quality of soil, irrigation facilities and the crop sown.
- Beyond this:
  - (1) customs duty and octroi on trade
  - (2) judicial proceeds: Nazrana paid by the winning party and Jurmana paid by the losing party
  - (3) fees from permits and licences for cutting wood, manufacturing drugs and private minting of coins
- To support peasants, dams and canals were built and loans given at low interest.
- The Deshmukhi and Patils were kept under check so they would not oppress the peasantry.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Octroi = taxes on local / domestic trade
- Customs = international trade.
- Maratha LR assessment used proper field surveys, like MQK's in Bengal (1717-27) (Chapter 3).
- Canals serve transport (e.g. the Suez Canal) and irrigation.

5 · Shahu 19-49's release (1707): was the Mughal "pacifist policy" really pacifist?

STORY LINK

Because the Mughals released Shahu 19-49, people call it a pacifist policy. Ask: why does the chapter call it real-politik with divide and rule?

- After the death of Aurangzeb 58-07 it is often said the Mughals adopted a pacifist policy towards adversaries, including the Sikhs and Marathas, the policy under which Shahu 19-49 was released in 1707.
- This is a flawed interpretation. What emerged was pragmatic real-politik: reconciliation plus opportunism plus divide-and-rule.
- The Mughals were weakened and relied more on diplomacy, but the diplomacy included conspiracies and manipulation.
- It was nominal pacifism with plausible deniability for hostile acts by Mughal Governors.
- The Sikh case (1707-08): in 1707 Bahadur Shah (1707-12) granted Guru Gobind Singh 76-08 a high Mansab and promised him Anandpur.
- Very soon after, the Faujdar of Sirhind, Wazir Khan, had the Guru assassinated in 1708 at Nanded, Maharashtra, where the Guru had accompanied Bahadur Shah.
- No action was taken against Wazir Khan and Anandpur was never handed over.
- Note from the handout: Sirhind was a Sarkar (a district) within the Lahore Suba, and a Faujdar held military, judicial and land-revenue functions over a district.
- He was not a Governor, as some books incorrectly describe him, though Wazir Khan had much greater influence than a typical Faujdar.
- The Maratha case (1707 onwards): Shahu 19-49's release was a gesture of reconciliation, yet the Mughals did not stop attacking the Marathas, and his release triggered a civil war with Tarabai.
- The Mughals encouraged divided loyalties among Maratha Sardars and Deshmukhs, who kept switching sides between Shahu 19-49, Tarabai and the Mughals.
- This was shrewd diplomacy, not pacifism.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Why release Shahu 19-49? For better relations with a rival, and because a Maratha civil war (1707-19) would weaken the enemy from within.

6 · Tarabai and the Maratha civil war (1707-1719)

STORY LINK

Because Shahu 19-49 returned, he and Tarabai fought a civil war until 1719. Ask: what settled the family dispute in 1731?

6.1 Why the civil war broke out

- After Rajaram 89-00's death from TB in 1700, Tarabai stepped in as regent for infant Shivaji II.
- This arrangement held the Maratha state together for seven years.
- In 1707 the Mughals released Shahu 19-49, the elder son of Sambhaji 80-89.
- This triggered a civil war between Shahu 19-49 and Tarabai that lasted till 1719.
- Sardars and Deshmukhs kept switching sides between Shahu 19-49, Tarabai and the Mughals, which the Mughals deliberately encouraged.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> By 1705 the Marathas had begun winning against the Mughals; credit to Tarabai (1700+).

6.2 Treaty of Warna 1731: the family settlement

- The dispute was finally settled by the Treaty of Warna (1731).
- Shahu 19-49 gave Kolhapur to Sambhaji II, the son of Rajaram 89-00 from his second wife Rajasbai, who had taken control from Shivaji II around 1714.
- From this point there were two Chhatrapati dynasties: Shahu 19-49's line at Satara and Sambhaji II's line at Kolhapur.

6.3 After Shahu 19-49: the Chhatrapati becomes ceremonial

- After Shahu 19-49 his adopted son Ramraja (Rajaram II) ruled 1749-77.
- From here the Chhatrapatis became largely ceremonial, like a powerless President.
- Real power had moved to the Peshwa (section 8).
- The last Chhatrapati of the Satara line was Shahaji (1839-48), when the EIC annexed Satara.
- Kolhapur survived much longer, as a Princely State from 1858 until its merger into India in 1947.

7 · Why Shahu 19-49 won, and who the Maratha Sardars were

> STORY LINK
> Because Balaji Vishwanath 13-20 won the bankers and the new Sardars, Shahu 19-49 won. Ask: which four Sardars, and which four capitals (Prelims 1995)?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Reasons for victory in any war: technology, leadership, tactics, geography, money, number of soldiers / army size (alliances), military infrastructure (forts).
- Use as a checklist on any war question.

7.1 Why Shahu 19-49 prevailed

- A critical reason was the sixth Peshwa, Balaji Vishwanath 13-20, a highly able leader who won for Shahu 19-49:
- 1. The support of powerful Brahmin banking families.
- 2. The support of the new independent Maratha Sardars (who emerged precisely in this period).
- Telling example: during the civil war Balaji Vishwanath 13-20 convinced Admiral Kanhoji Angre to switch from Tarabai to Shahu 19-49 in 1714.
- Without Kanhoji's coastal and naval power, Shahu 19-49's victory would have been far harder.

7.2 Who were the Maratha Sardars?

- The Maratha Sardars were local chiefs, essentially mini-kings, who held their own armies and forts and dominated smaller territories.
- Post-1719 some expanded dramatically to a king-like status.
- These four became the kingmakers of the Confederacy:

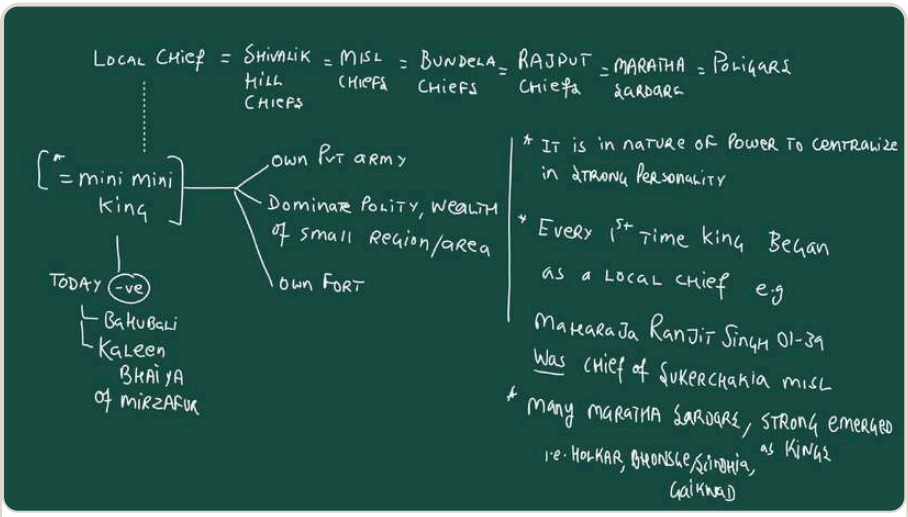
Sardar	Capital
Gaikwad	Baroda
Holkar	Indore
Scindia (Shinde)	Gwalior
Bhonsle	Nagpur



Local chief = Misl chief = Sardar = Poligar Lecture 6 slide 22

HANDOUT ALERT

Prelims 1995 (map detail): Sardar-capital pairings: Gaikwad = Baroda, Holkar = Indore, Scindia (Shinde) = Gwalior, Bhonsle = Nagpur.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Local chief = Shivalik hill chiefs = Misl chiefs = Bundela chiefs = Rajput chiefs = Maratha Sardars = Poligars: a "mini mini king" with a private army and his own fort, dominating the politics and wealth of a small area (today's negative version: Bahubali; Kaleen Bhaiya of Mirzapur).
- Power tends to centralise in a strong personality.
- Every first king began as a local chief, e.g. Maharaja Ranjit Singh 01-39, chief of the Sukerchakia misl.
- Strong Maratha Sardars became kings: Holkar, Bhonsle, Scindia, Gaikwad.

- The Maratha Empire can be visualised as five provinces (Peshwa plus four Sardars as rulers) with the Chhatrapati as head of state.

MNEMONIC · FOUR SARDARS AND THEIR CAPITALS (PRELIMS 1995)

Brothers In Governance, Nominally

B	Baroda: Gaikwad	I	Indore: Holkar
G	Gwalior: Scindia (Shinde)	N	Nagpur: Bhonsle

Order kept: Gaikwad, Holkar, Scindia, Bhonsle; the sentence is built on the capitals' initials. On the Sangola board the teacher draws the Peshwa and the four Sardars as brothers under the Chhatrapati.

- By 1750 it was effectively a Confederation: weak centre, strong provinces.

Structure	Centre / provinces	Example (teacher)
Unitary	Centre about 75% or more / provinces 25% or less	China
Federalism	About 50 / 50	USA
Confederation	Centre 25% or less / provinces 75% or more	European Union
Quasi (semi) federalism	60 / 40	India (and 40 / 60 for Belgium)

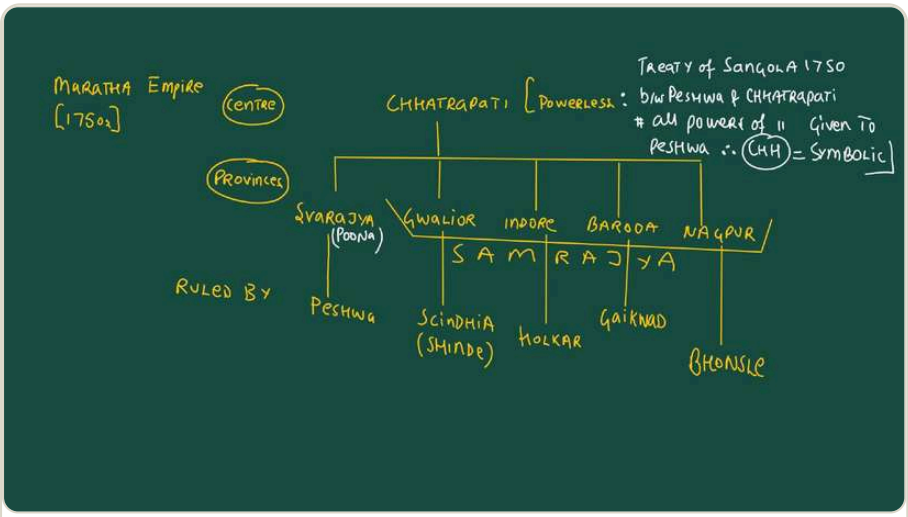
Maratha empire 1750s: Svarajya and Samrajya Lecture 6 slide 20



Maratha empire 1750s: centre and provinces Lecture 6 slide 21

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Maratha empire, 1750s. Svarajya (1650s): set up by Shivaji 74-80 against Aurangzeb 58-07, in the Konkan.
- Samrajya (1719+): Gujarat, Rajputana, Malwa, Awadh, Bihar, Bengal, Orissa, brought under the Maratha State in Shahu 19-49's time, against Md Shah 19-48. Centre: Chhatrapati (powerless).
- Provinces:
  - Svarajya (Poona) under the Peshwa
  - Samrajya under Scindia (Gwalior), Holkar (Indore), Gaikwad (Baroda), Bhonsle (Nagpur)
- Treaty of Sangola 1750: all the Chhatrapati's powers to the Peshwa, so the Chhatrapati is symbolic.

8 · Svarajya and Samrajya, Chauth and Sardeshmukhi, the Peshwa as the real authority

> Because the Sardars ruled outside Maharashtra, the empire lived on tribute. Ask: why is Chauth a tool of empire-building, and which of the two tributes is collected only externally?

8.1 Svarajya versus Samrajya

Axis	Svarajya	Samrajya
Territory	The original kingdom inside Maharashtra	Lands outside Maharashtra (from 1719)
Ruled by	The Chhatrapati / Peshwa, directly	The Maratha Sardars, in their own right
Capital / HQ	Raigarh, then Jinji, then Satara; Peshwa at Poona	Varies by Sardar
Character	Culturally homogeneous and governed	Real administration only in parts (Gujarat, Khandesh, Malwa); elsewhere mainly Chauth / Sardeshmukhi collection

Svarajya versus Samrajya: capitals and Sardars Lecture 7 slide 1

- Svarajya:
  - The original Maratha kingdom established by Shivaji 74-80, capital Raigarh (1647-1689)
  - Then conquered by Aurangzeb 58-07, so capital = Jinji (1689-1698)
  - Capital = Satara under Rajaram 89-00 (as the handout prints it), with the Peshwa's headquarters at Poona.
- It was the territory within Maharashtra, under direct rule, and culturally homogeneous.

- Samrajya:
  - The territory outside Maharashtra, ruled by the Confederate chiefs (the Maratha Sardars)
  - Administration varied from one Sardar to another
- Effective administration existed only in parts of Samrajya, notably Gujarat, Khandesh and Malwa.
- Elsewhere the primary concern was not governance but collection of Chauth and Sardeshmukhi.
- From 1719 onwards the territories added beyond the original Svarajya were called Samrajya, governed not by the Chhatrapati but by the Sardars who held power in their own right.

HANDOUT NOTE

Capital conflict: handout section 1.4 says Svarajya's headquarters was Satara (and "Capital = Satara by Rajaram 89-00"); section 8.1 and the teacher's boards give Raigarh, then Jinji (1689-98), then Satara, tying Jinji to Rajaram 89-00 and Satara to Shahu 19-49. Use Raigarh, Jinji, Satara.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Jinji / Ginjee (Carnatic) = an important fort
- after Sambhaji 80-89 the Marathas under Rajaram 89-00 set up their capital there
- Sardars conquered Samrajya largely with their own resources and efforts: autonomous from the beginning, but within the Maratha empire.
- Chauth is collected until the state is annexed, not thereafter.

8.2 Chauth: one-fourth, externally collected

- Both Chauth and Sardeshmukhi were tribute systems that existed even before the Marathas.
- Chauth = one-fourth (25%) of the revenue paid by a protected state to the Marathas in exchange for military protection.
- It was also a deliberate tool of foreign policy: the annual payment weakened the protected state economically and militarily over time.
- When it could no longer pay, the Marathas annexed it.
- Chauth thus functioned as a tool of empire-building.

Chauth versus Sardeshmukhi: the ideal case Lecture 7 slide 2

8.3 Sardeshmukhi: an additional 10%, internal and external

- Sardeshmukhi was an additional levy of 10% of land revenue, collected over and above the regular land revenue.
- Deshmukhs collected Sardeshmukhi from the ryots and deposited it to the Chhatrapati.
- Shivaji 74-80 declared himself Sardeshmukh, the head of all Deshmukhs, so payment by the Deshmukhs was a symbol of their recognition of the Chhatrapati's authority.
- When extracted from states outside the Maratha Empire, Sardeshmukhi served as a symbol of Maratha authority being recognised by that state.
- Important distinction: Chauth was collected only externally, while Sardeshmukhi could be collected both internally and externally.

8.4 The teacher's boards: how Chauth and Sardeshmukhi work

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prelims. Tributes are of two kinds: Chauth and Sardeshmukhi (1/10).
- Other tribute names seen earlier: Nazrana, Abwab, Peshkash.
- Chauth: on states outside the Maratha Empire, 1/4 of the external state's annual revenue.
- "If paid, Marathas will not attack" (protection).
- Steps:
    - (1) the Marathas defeat the external state
    - (2) the peace treaty makes it agree to pay Chauth

EXAMPLE

- Sardeshmukhi internally:
  - A Deshmukh collects Rs 100 LR from ryots
  - Commission = Rs 10
  - Rs 90 to the state.
- Sardeshmukhi = 10% of the Deshmukh's Rs 10 = Rs 1 to the Chhatrapati.
- State or Chhatrapati gets Rs 90 + Rs 1 = Rs 91.
- Sardeshmukhi externally: after defeat, the peace treaty makes the state pay Chauth + Sardeshmukhi = 25% + 10% = 35% of its annual revenue.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Two descriptions of Sardeshmukhi. Handout and slide table: an extra 10% of land revenue.
- Teacher's worked example: 10% of the Deshmukh's Rs 10 commission when collected internally (the Deshmukh pays respect to the Chhatrapati).
- Learn the table wording and the Rs 100 / Rs 10 / Rs 1 / Rs 91 example for the internal case.

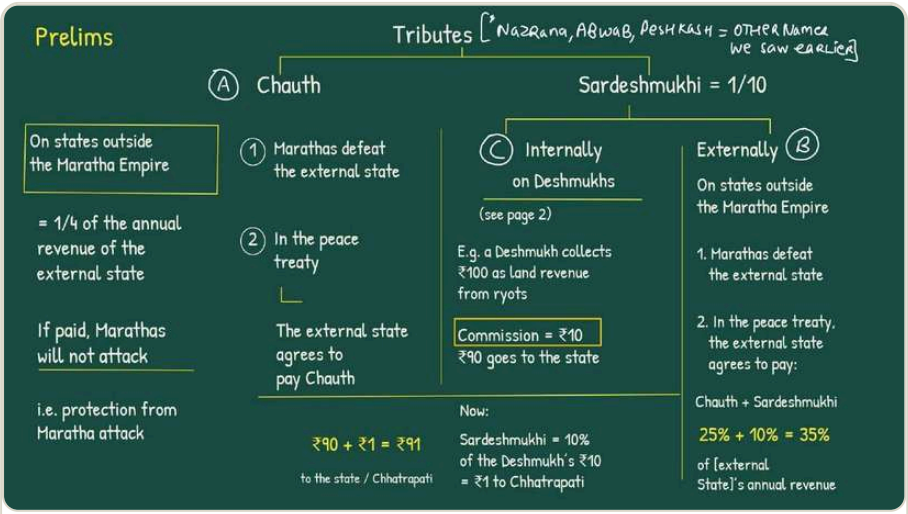
Sardeshmukhi applied internally Lecture 7 slide 4



Chauth and Sardeshmukhi: the worked example Lecture 7 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why pay Sardeshmukhi internally? When Person A pays money to Person B, it establishes that B is respected.
- The Chhatrapati = the Sardar (head) of the Deshmukhs
- Shivaji 74-80 declared himself so (Sardeshmukh), hence Sardeshmukhi internally.
- Ideal: the Deshmukh bears the burden.

8.5 How Chauth was divided

- Revenue from Chauth and Sardeshmukhi collected outside the Maratha Empire helped reduce the tax burden on the people within the empire.
- When Chauth was extracted by the Chhatrapati / Peshwa, all of it was retained by Svarajya.
- When Maratha Sardars extracted it from a state outside the empire, they retained two-thirds and sent one-third to Svarajya:

Division	%	Purpose / beneficiary
Mokasa	66% (about 2/3)	Kept by the Maratha Sardars to maintain troops and cavalry contingents
Babti	25% (1/4)	Sent directly to the Chhatrapati for personal use and the royal treasury
Sahotra	6%	Allocated to the Pant Sachiv, head of the royal secretariat and a member of the Ashtapradhan
Nadgaunda	3%	At the Chhatrapati's discretion: charitable grants, royal gifts or minor officials

NUMBER CARD · HOW CHAUTH WAS DIVIDED

6 6 · 2 5 · 6 · 3

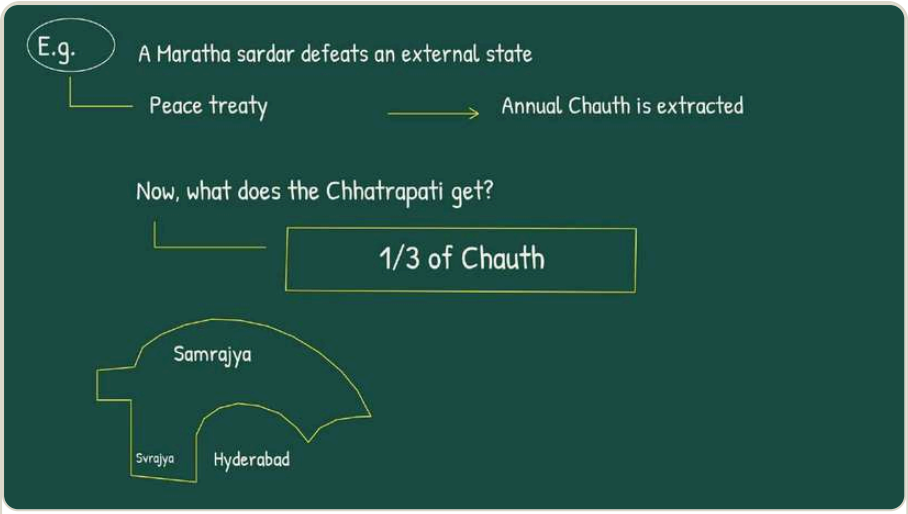
The Sardar keeps two-thirds, the throne a quarter, then 6 and 3.

66 Mokasa (about 2/3): kept by the Maratha Sardars for troops and cavalry

25 Babti (1/4): sent to the Chhatrapati for the royal treasury

6 Sahotra: the Pant Sachiv, head of the royal secretariat

3 Nadgaunda: at the Chhatrapati's discretion



Division of Chauth Lecture 7 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A Maratha Sardar defeats an external state, a peace treaty follows, annual Chauth is extracted.
- The Chhatrapati gets 1/3 of the Chauth.

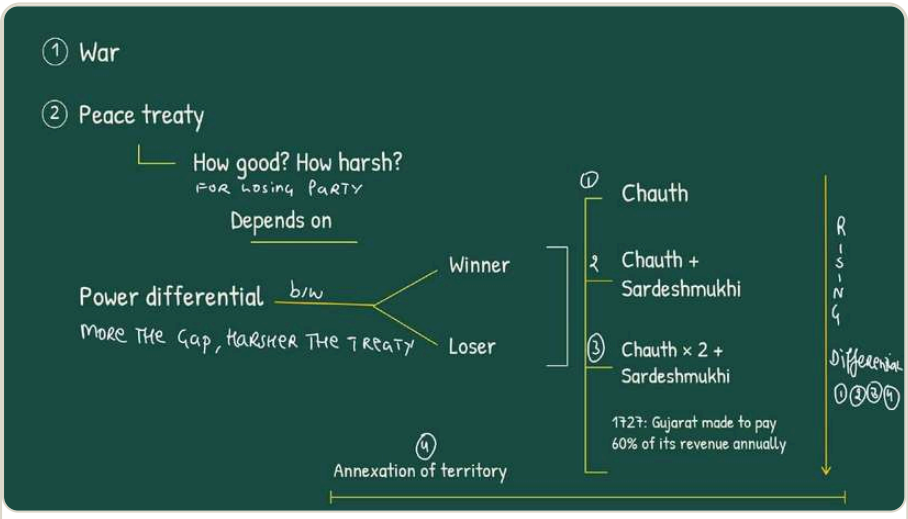
8.6 Chauth as a tool of empire-building: the teacher's boards



Peace treaty harshness scale Lecture 7 slide 6

Harshness (rising power differential)	Treaty term
1	Chauth
2	Chauth + Sardeshmukhi
3	Chauth x 2 + Sardeshmukhi (note: 1727, Gujarat made to pay 60% of its revenue annually)
4	Annexation of territory

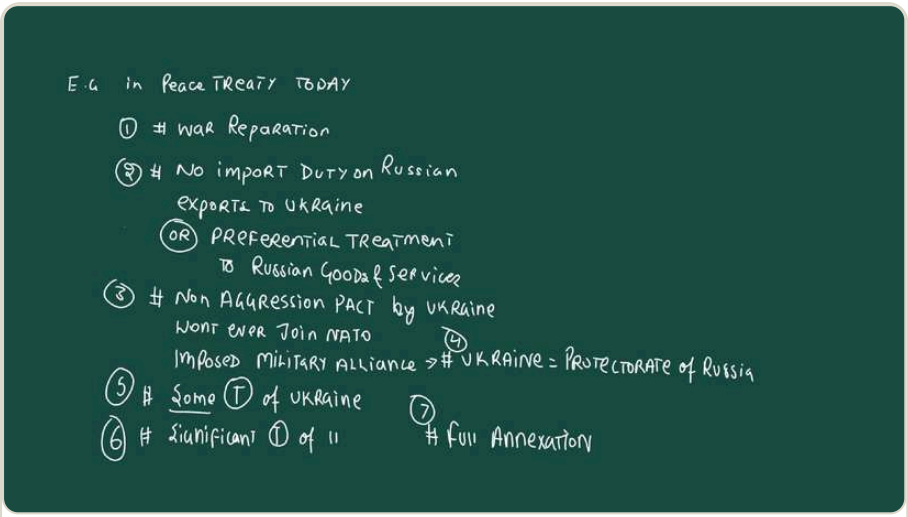
TEACHER'S BOARD

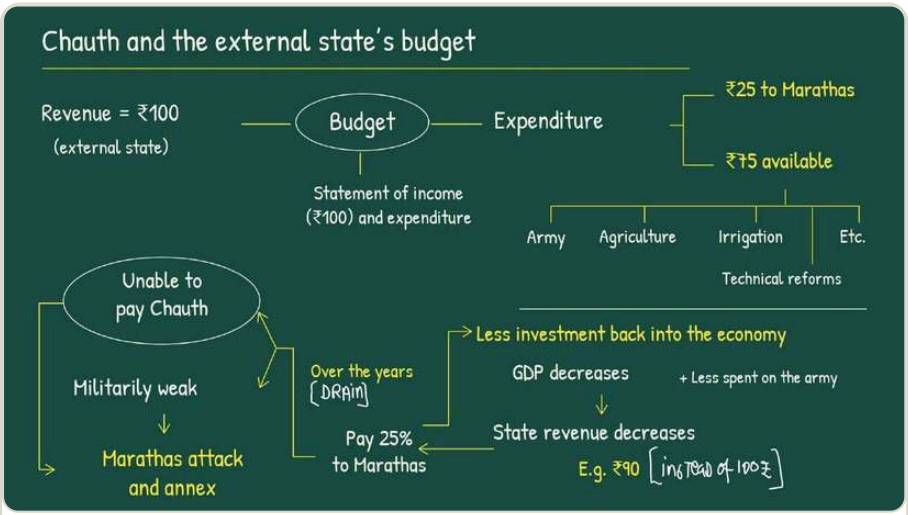
After a war comes a peace treaty; how harsh it is for the loser depends on the power differential between winner and loser: the bigger the gap, the harsher the treaty.



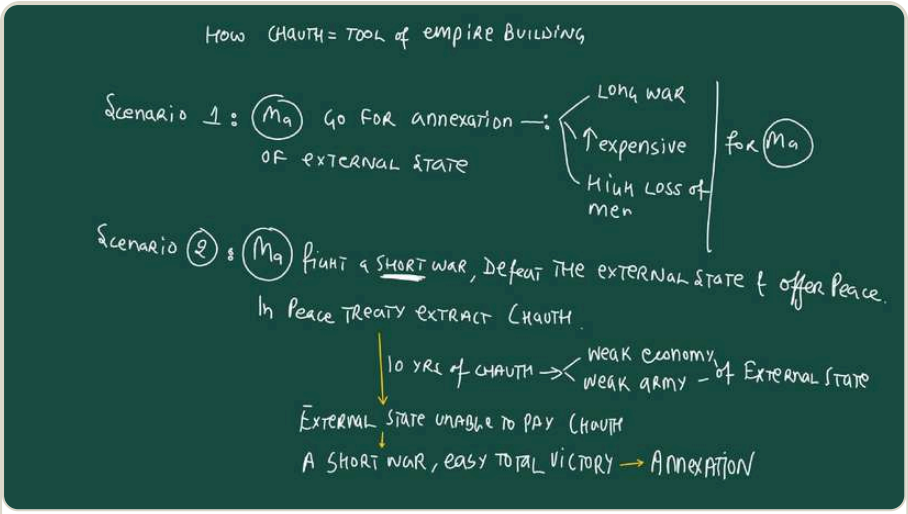
Peace treaty today: Russia-Ukraine example Lecture 7 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

Peace treaty today (Russia-Ukraine example), mild to severe: 1 war reparation; 2 no import duty on Russian exports to Ukraine, or preferential treatment to Russian goods and services; 3 non-aggression pact, Ukraine never joins NATO; 4 imposed military alliance, Ukraine a protectorate of Russia; 5 some territory; 6 significant territory; 7 full annexation.



Chauth and the external state's budget Lecture 7 slide 8



Chauth as a tool of empire-building Lecture 7 slide 9

How Chauth became a tool of empire-building (teacher's boards)

- Short war: the Marathas defeat the external state quickly and offer peace
- Peace treaty: the external state agrees to pay Chauth (25% of annual revenue)
- The drain: Rs 25 of every Rs 100 leaves, so less investment, less spent on the army, GDP and revenue fall (Rs 90 instead of Rs 100), yet 25% is still due
- Over the years: a weak economy and weak army, the state is unable to pay Chauth
- Short war, easy total victory: the Marathas annex, avoiding the long, costly, high-casualty war of direct annexation

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Scenario 1: straight annexation = long war, expensive, high loss of men.
- Scenario 2:
  - A short war, peace, Chauth extracted
  - After ten years of Chauth the state has a weak economy and weak army, cannot pay, and a short war means easy total victory and annexation.
- The 25% drain means less invested in the economy and less on the army: of Rs 100 revenue, Rs 25 goes to the Marathas and Rs 75 is left for army, agriculture, irrigation, technical reforms
- Falling revenue (e.g. Rs 90) still owes 25%: DRAIN.

8.7 How the Peshwa office became hereditary; the power shift and Sangola 1750

- The Peshwa's office was originally not hereditary.
- Balaji Vishwanath 13-20, the sixth Peshwa, changed this in practice.
- His son Baji Rao 20-40 became the next Peshwa, then his son Balaji Bajirao 20-40 / Nana Saheb (1740-61) followed.
- Once this custom held across three generations, the office became hereditary in effect.

- Shahu 19-49 was an effective ruler but progressively delegated more and more power to the Peshwa.
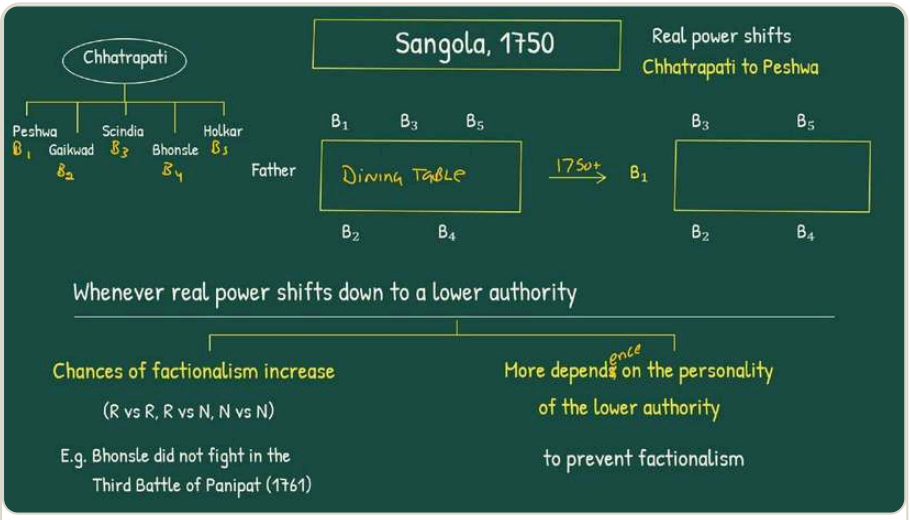
- After his death a crisis emerged when Tarabai claimed that Shahu 19-49's adopted son Ramraja was not her grandson, as had been stated at the time of adoption.
- To prevent the state being left without a Chhatrapati, Peshwa Nana Saheb (1740-61) backed Ramraja, but made him sign the Treaty of Sangola in February 1750, which transferred all real power from the Chhatrapati to the Peshwa.

Power shift from Chhatrapati to Peshwa Lecture 7 slide 10



Sangola 1750: the family-table analogy Lecture 7 slide 22

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Shahu 19-49 = powerful personality and effective Chhatrapati, BUT he over-delegated to the Peshwa because of trust (the Peshwa also never backstabbed Shahu 19-49).
- Ramraja (1749-77) was adopted with controversy over his identity, and a weak personality, so his legitimacy as Chhatrapati fell, leading to Sangola 1750: the Chhatrapati purely symbolic, all power with the Peshwa.
- Whenever real power shifts downward to a lower authority: (1) factionalism increases (Peshwa versus Sardars, Sardars versus Sardars; e.g. Bhonsle did not fight at the Third Battle of Panipat, 1761), and (2) there is more dependence on the lower authority's personality to prevent factionalism.
- Family analogy:
    - The Chhatrapati is the father and the Peshwa (B1), Gaikwad (B2), Scindia (B3), Bhonsle (B4), Holkar (B5) are brothers
    - After 1750 the eldest brother (Peshwa) takes the father's seat at the head of the table.

8.8 The series of Peshwas

- Baji Rao 20-40 had a brother, Chimaji Appa, whose son Sadasiv Rao Bhau commanded the Maratha army at the Third Battle of Panipat (1761) and died fighting.
- Nana Saheb (1740-61) did not fight but died within weeks of the defeat.
- His elder son Vishwas Rao also died fighting at Panipat.

8.9 The three broad phases of Maratha polity after Shivaji 74-80

Phase	Years	Character

Because the Sayyid deal of 1719 gave the Marathas rights in six Deccan provinces, the Nizam's refusal in 1724 sparked a decade of expansion. Ask: which three gains of 1719 did the teacher box for Prelims?

9.1 The 1719 turning point: alliance with the Sayyid Brothers

- 1719 was a turning point. Peshwa Balaji Vishwanath 13-20 allied with the Sayyid Brothers, the kingmakers of the Mughal court.
- Together they removed Farrukhsiyar 13-19 and placed Muhammad Shah 19-48 on the throne as a puppet.
- In return the Marathas secured three concessions:
- 1. The Mughals formally recognised Maratha autonomous status in Maharashtra.
- 2. The Marathas received the Chauth of Malwa and Gujarat.
- 3. They gained the right to collect Chauth and Sardeshmukhi from six Mughal provinces of the Deccan: Khandesh, Hyderabad, Aurangabad, Berar, Bidar and Bijapur.
- Since Bijapur was later merged into Golconda, some sources name Golconda as the sixth instead.
- The Nizam's Hyderabad State was later constituted from precisely these six erstwhile Mughal provinces.
- This did not last. In 1720 the Nizam (1724-48), Governor of Hyderabad Suba, defeated the Sayyid Brothers.

- Muhammad Shah 19-48 became a joint puppet of the Irani and Turani factions of Mansabdars.
- When the Nizam established Hyderabad Suba as an independent successor state in 1724, he refused to pay Chauth and Sardeshmukhi to the Marathas.

9.2 The Maratha decade of expansion (1727-39)

- The Marathas responded to the Nizam's refusal with a decade of relentless military expansion:
- 1. 1727-28: defeated the Mughals in Gujarat and extracted 60% of revenue as annual tribute.
- 2. 1728: defeated Hyderabad and regained the Chauth and Sardeshmukhi of the Deccan.
- 3. 1729: captured Malwa and pushed their reach into Rajasthan.

Decade of Expansion: Malwa and Treaty of Bhopal Lecture 7 slide 14

- 4. 1731: defeated a joint attack by the Nizam and local Gujarat chiefs.
- 5. 1736: defeated the Portuguese and Ethiopian Muslims on the Konkan coast.
- 6. 1737: Peshwa Baji Rao 20-40 plundered Delhi itself and held Muhammad Shah 19-48 prisoner temporarily.
- 7. 1738: defeated a large Mughal army commanded by the Nizam and signed the Treaty of Bhopal (1738), under which the Marathas received the Suba of Malwa

(formalising what they had controlled de facto since 1729) and sovereignty over all lands between the rivers Chambal and Narmada.

- 8. 1739: Treaty of Bassein with the Portuguese led to the annexation of Bassein (Vasai).

9.3 Expansion continues on many fronts (1745-54)

- 1. 1745-51: Raghuji Bhonsle of Nagpur regularly attacked Bengal Suba and forced Alivardi Khan 40-56 to give up Odisha and pay the Chauth of Bengal and Bihar, paid until Plassey (1757).
- 2. 1751: Peshwa Nana Saheb attacked Hyderabad and forced Salabat Jung 51-62 to cede Khandesh via the Treaty of Bhalke.
- 3. 1752: the Marathas took Ahmedabad, completing the annexation of Gujarat.
- The Peshwa appointed Damaji Gaikwad as Chief and Governor of Gujarat, HQ Baroda.

Expansion 1745-54: Bhalke and Gujarat Lecture 7 slide 16

- 4. From 1751 the Marathas regularly attacked the Rajputs, extracting annual tributes and interfering in succession disputes, but never fully conquered Rajputana.
- They also failed to dominate the Sikhs.
- 5. 1752: the weakened Mughal Empire came under Maratha protection, driven by fear of Afghan invasions.
- 6. Ahmad Shah Abdali 47-72 launched at least seven invasions between 1748 and 1767.
- The first, 1748, was checked at the Battle of Manupur, where the Mughal army fought the pitched battle while the Sikh misls harassed his supply lines.
- 7. 1754: the Marathas interfered in the Mughal succession and installed Alamgir II 54-59 as their puppet.
- By the mid-18th century the Maratha State had emerged as the top power in India.

Two ways to capture power Lecture 7 slide 17

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two ways to capture power:
  - (a) replace the rival (annexation) = costly but fast
  - (b) capture the enemy from within = less costly but slow.
- By 1752 the Marathas stood where Zulfiqar Khan, the Sayyid Brothers and the Nizam (Wazir 1722-24) once stood.
- Homework on the last map: plot Annexation, Control (and the total). 1751 Bhalke: Hyderabad lost its access to the Arabian Sea. 1752: annexation, with the Maratha army in Delhi for fear of Afghan invasion. Not imp (the 1745-54 table).

10 · The Third Battle of Panipat (1761)

STORY LINK

Because by 1752 the Marathas stood where the Sayyids once did, the Afghan threat had to be met. Ask: what was Abdali's immediate reason (Prelims 2010)?

10.1 Sides and background

TEACHER'S BOARD

- If Awadh was part of the Mughal empire yet joined Abdali's alliance, what does that prove?
- (1) Factionalism (Mughal against Mughal)
- (2) a weak centre / emperor
- (3) Awadh being a successor state.

- Ahmad Shah Abdali 47-72, also known as Durrani, founded the modern borders of the Afghan State in 1747, declaring himself independent King after the death of Nadir Shah, Emperor of Iran and Afghanistan.
- Before 1747 he had been a trusted commander of Nadir Shah and Governor of Afghanistan, and took part in Nadir Shah's invasion of India in 1738-40.
- His invasion of 1756 culminated in the Third Battle of Panipat in 1761.

Panipat III sides: Abdali's rise and Awadh's role Lecture 7 slide 19

- The two sides:
  - The Marathas (about 50,000) and an alliance of Abdali (about 60,000) comprising Abdali himself
  - The Rohillas under Najib-ud-Daula 57-70 of Rohilkhand
  - The Bangash Pathans under Ahmad Khan (1750-82) of Farrukhabad
  - And Awadh under Shuja-ud-Daula 54-75.
- By 1752 the weakened Mughal Emperor was under Maratha military protection and the Marathas effectively controlled Delhi.
- From 1756 Abdali's forces frequently raided north India.
- Abdali had installed his eleven-year-old son Timur Shah as Governor of Punjab and Kashmir.
- In 1758 Nana Saheb sent his brother Raghunath Rao 73-74, who removed Timur from Lahore.
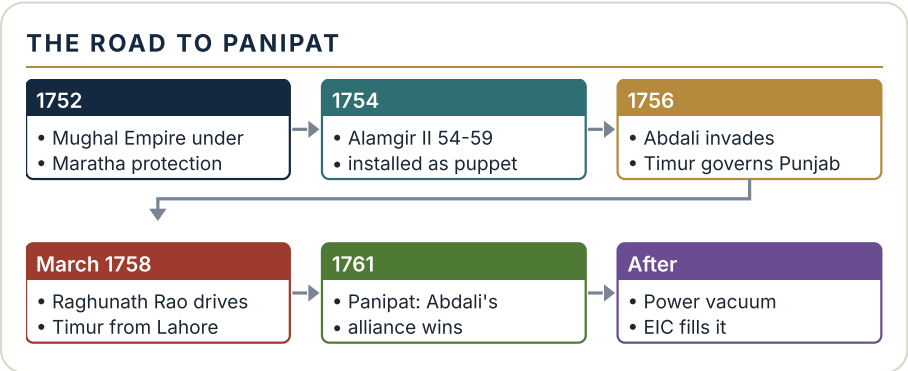
- This was the peak of Maratha power, the maximum territory ever under Maratha domination.
- Nana Saheb even contemplated making his son Vishwas Rao the Emperor of Hindustan.
- Then the Third Battle of Panipat changed everything.



HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2010: immediate reason for Ahmad Shah Abdali 47-72 to invade India and fight the Third Battle of Panipat?
- Answer (a): to avenge the Marathas' expulsion of his viceroy Timur Shah from Lahore (March 1758).
- Wrong:
  - (b) fast Maratha expansion is only general background
  - (c) there was no Mughal tribute dispute
  - (d) there was no "Sultan of Punjab" refusing safe passage

TEACHER'S BOARD

- After Timur Shah's expulsion the Marathas made Adina Beg Khan Governor of Punjab for Rs 75 lakh a year
- On his death Sabaji Scindia took charge and held the Maratha garrisons at Attock and Peshawar on the Afghan border
- This conquest of Punjab was the direct challenge Abdali could not ignore.

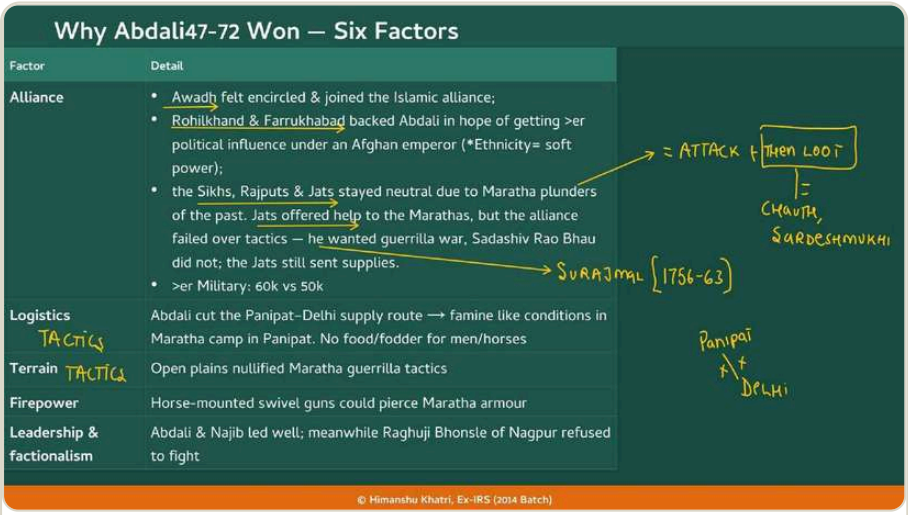
10.2 Why Abdali won: six factors



Why Abdali won: alliance, logistics, terrain Lecture 7 slide 21

#	Factor	Detail
1	Strength of his alliance	Awadh felt strategically encircled by the Marathas (Chauth from Bihar and Bengal since 1751 in the east, control of Delhi in the west since 1752, Samrajya to the south) and, when the Marathas sought an alliance with Shuja, he chose the Islamic alliance. The Indian Afghan kingdoms of Rohilkhand and Farrukhabad backed Abdali hoping for greater influence under an Afghan emperor. Sikhs, Rajputs and Jats stayed neutral, a direct consequence of years of

#	Factor	Detail
		Maratha plundering and tribute extraction. 60,000 versus 50,000.
2	Logistics	Abdali cut the supply routes between the Maratha camp at Panipat and Delhi. Famine-like conditions: no food for men, no fodder for horses.
3	Terrain	Panipat's vast open plains gave no advantage to Maratha guerrilla tactics, which depended on hills, forests and narrow passes.
4	Firepower	Abdali's horse-mounted swivel guns could pierce Maratha armour.
5	Military leadership	Abdali and Najib-ud-Daula 57-70 provided strong, coordinated command.
6	Maratha factionalism	Raghuji Bhonsle of Nagpur refused to fight, being opposed to Nana Saheb as Peshwa. In 1765 the Peshwa even plundered Nagpur in retaliation. Bhonsle also did not take part in the First Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82).

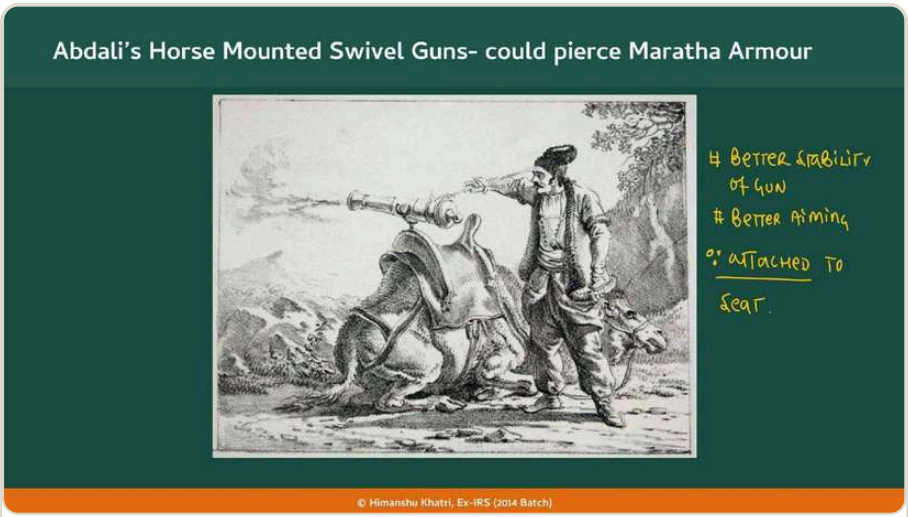
Horse-mounted swivel gun Lecture 6 slide 47



Swivel gun: stability and aim Lecture 7 slide 20

TEACHER'S BOARD

Why the mounted swivel gun was better: better stability and better aiming, because it is attached to the seat.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Alliance:
  - Jats offered help to the Marathas, but the alliance failed over tactics: Surajmal 56-63 wanted guerrilla war
  - Sadashiv Rao Bhau did not
  - The Jats still sent supplies.
- Rohilkhand and Farrukhabad hoped for greater political influence under an Afghan emperor (ethnicity = soft power).
- Maratha plunder = attack, then loot = Chauth and Sardeshmukhi.
- Logistics and terrain both fall under TACTICS.

10.3 Impact of the defeat

- Military losses: Sadasiv Rao Bhau and Vishwas Rao died fighting.
- Nana Saheb had not fought (someone was needed to guard other frontiers in the south)
- He arrived with reinforcements when the battle was already lost and died within weeks.
- The Marathas lost 50,000 men in total, combatants and non-combatants.
- Factionalism deepened: young, inexperienced Peshwas followed one another: the young but brilliant Madhav Rao 61-72, then the incompetent Narayan Rao 72-73, then the infant Madhav Rao II 74-95.
- Abdali too paid a heavy price: serious losses and an anti-Abdali revolt among his own generals back in Afghanistan.
- He went home with his loot but could not consolidate any lasting presence in India.
- The deeper consequence: a power vacuum at the centre.
- Panipat did not decide who would rule India
- It decided that neither the Marathas nor Abdali would.
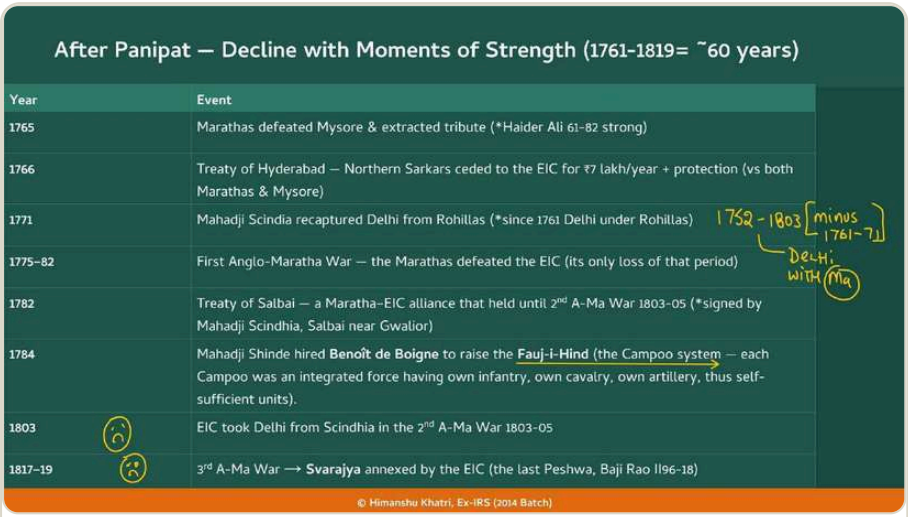
- The vacuum was eventually filled by the British EIC, which defeated the regional Indian states one by one.

11 · After Panipat: decline with moments of strength (1761-1819, about 60 years)

STORY LINK

Because Panipat left a power vacuum, decline followed, with moments of strength. Ask: which Anglo-Maratha war did the Marathas win, and which one ended Svarajya?



After Panipat: Delhi, Salbai and the Campoo Lecture 7 slide 25

- 1. 1765: the Marathas defeated Mysore and extracted tribute.
- 2. 1766 Treaty of Hyderabad: Hyderabad gave the Northern Sarkars to the EIC for an annual payment of seven lakh rupees and protection against both the Marathas and Mysore.
- The Northern Sarkars (Northern Circars) were initially four districts: Chicacole (Srikakulam), Rajmandri (Rajahmundry), Ellore (Eluru) and MustafaNagar (Kondapalli), with MurtuzaNagar (Guntur) added later as a fifth.
- Guntur was not transferred to the EIC in 1766.
- 3. 1771: Mahadji Scindia 68-94 recaptured Delhi from the Rohilla Afghans, who had taken it in 1761.
- 4. 1775-82 First Anglo-Maratha War: the Marathas defeated the EIC, the only war in this period the EIC lost.
- 5. 1782 Treaty of Salbai: a Maratha-EIC military alliance.
- 6. 1784: Mahadji Shinde (Scindia) hired the French military adventurer Benoit de Boigne, who raised and trained the Fauj-i-Hind, also called the Campoo system (each Campoo was an integrated force with its own infantry, own cavalry, own artillery, thus self-sufficient units).
- It transformed the army from a traditional light-cavalry force into a modern, disciplined European-style infantry-cavalry-artillery machine (similar to Haider Ali 61-82's army (1761-82), also modernised with French help).
- Other Sardars followed: Holkar hired the Frenchman Dudrenec.
- 7. 1795 Battle of Kharda: a Maratha victory over Hyderabad.
- The EIC stayed neutral as the Marathas were still its ally under Salbai 1782.
- The last battle between Hyderabad and the Marathas.

- 8. 1798: Hyderabad became the first Indian state to sign a Subsidiary Alliance (also called a subordinate alliance) with the EIC, securing guaranteed protection and ending its vulnerability to Maratha pressure.
- 9. 1803: the EIC captured Delhi in the Second Anglo-Maratha War.
- 10. 1817-19 Third Anglo-Maratha War: Svarajya was annexed by the EIC, ending the last Peshwa Baji Rao II 96-18's rule.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1761-1819 = about 60 years. 1765: Haider Ali 61-82 strong.
- Delhi was with the Marathas 1752-1803 (minus 1761-71), the Rohillas holding it in between. 1782 Salbai (near Gwalior) was signed by Mahadji Scindia. 1803 and 1817-19 are marked as Maratha losses.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Salbai alliance length:
  - Handout says it held until 1795 (tied to the Battle of Kharda, EIC neutral)
  - The teacher's Lecture 7 note says it held until the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05).
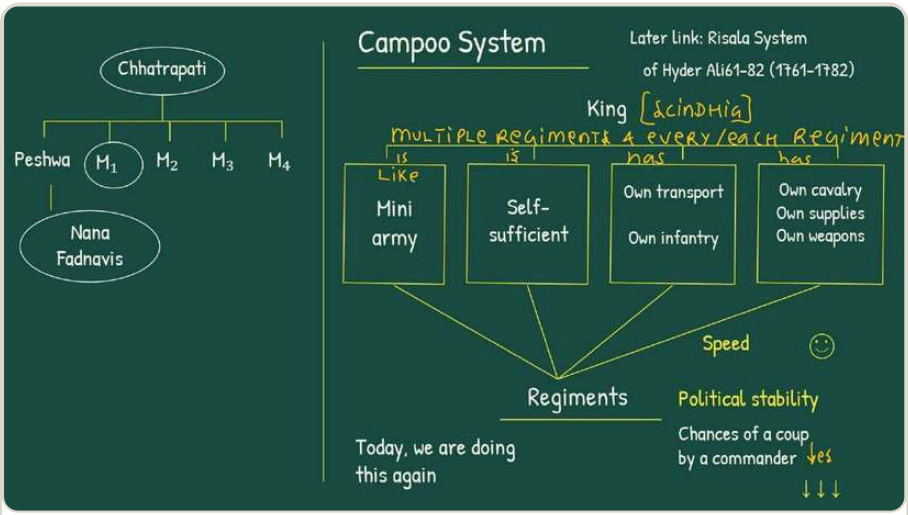
- Both are in the class material
- The teacher's version places the breakdown at the next Anglo-Maratha war



The Campoo system Lecture 7 slide 26

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Campoo = "multiple regiments, and every regiment is like a mini army": self-sufficient, with its own transport, infantry, cavalry, supplies and weapons.
- Benefits:
  - Speed
  - political stability, as chances of a coup by a commander go down.
- Later link: the Risala system of Haider Ali 61-82.
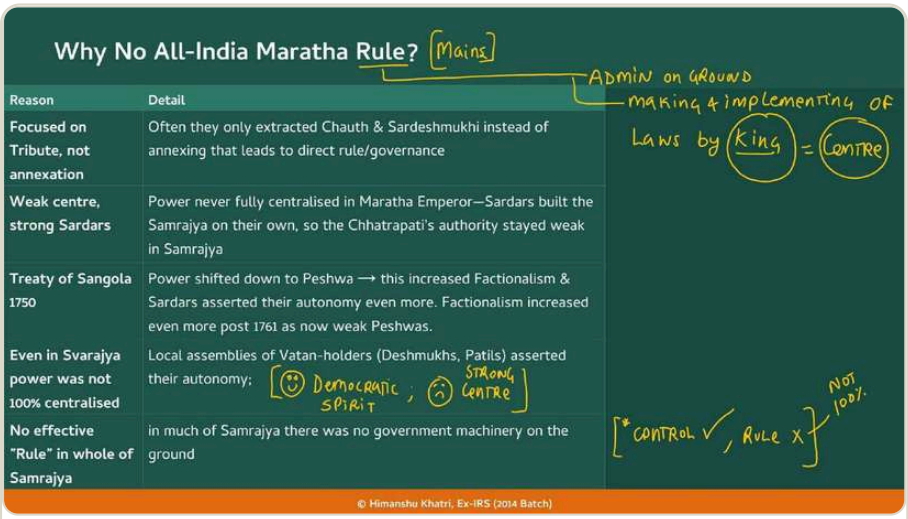
- "Today, we are doing this again" (modern integrated, self-sufficient military units).

12 · Why couldn't the Marathas establish all-India rule?

STORY LINK

Because the Marathas controlled but did not rule, all-India rule slipped away. Ask: why is extracting tribute not ruling?



Why no all-India Maratha rule (Mains) Lecture 7 slide 27

- The Marathas came closer than any other power in the 18th century to an all-India empire, but the reasons they never crossed that threshold are structural:
- 1. Tribute, not annexation. Often after a victory they limited themselves to Chauth and Sardeshmukhi rather than annexing and establishing direct rule. Extracting tribute is not ruling.
- Ruling means making and implementing policies through your own administration on the ground
- For one central authority to rule effectively, power must be centralised: one country, one ruler, one law, rule of law.

- 2. Weak centre, strong Sardars. The centre was never strong enough and factionalism weakened it further
- The Sardars had always been autonomous.
- Shivaji 74-80 never gave Jagirs to his officers and Shahu 19-49 never gave Vatan Jagirs to military commanders, so ambitious Sardars seeking their own principalities ventured out on their own to build Samrajya.
- In territories brought under Maratha control through the Sardars' own efforts, the Chhatrapati's authority would naturally be weak.
- 3. The Treaty of Sangola 1750. As power shifted down to the Peshwa, the Sardars felt even less constrained and factionalism grew
- After 1761 a succession of weak Peshwas accelerated this
- 4. Power was not properly centralised even in Svarajya: local assemblies of Vatan right-holders (Deshmukhs and Patils) asserted themselves and pressured the Peshwa.
- 5. In Samrajya, effective centralised rule did not exist at all in many areas: certain areas were under a Maratha Sardar militarily, but no effective government machinery was present on the ground.

MNEMONIC · WHY NO ALL-INDIA MARATHA RULE

S T A G E

The Marathas held centre STAGE in the 18th century, yet never ruled all India.

S Strong Sardars, weak centre
T Treaty of Sangola 1750
A Annexation skipped: tribute, not rule
G Ground: no government machinery in much of Samrajya
E Even Svarajya not 100% centralised

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Rule" = administration on the ground: making and implementing laws by the King (= the Centre).
- Control yes
- Rule no: not 100%.
- Even in Svarajya, local assemblies of Vatan-holders show a "democratic spirit" but not a "strong centre."

Mains 2014: why so many battles at Panipat?

MNEMONIC · MAINS 2014: SIX BATTLES AT DELHI'S GATEWAY

Two Tales Pass, Panipat Keeps Pounding

- T Thanesar 1014: Mahmud of Ghazni
- T Thanesar 1191: Muhammad Ghori
- P Panipat I 1526: shook the Delhi Sultanate
- P Panipat II 1556: ended the rule of Hemu
- K Karnal 1739: shook the Mughals
- P Panipat III 1761: shook the Marathas

Order kept: this is a chronology. Thanesar twice, Panipat three times, Karnal once.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Mains 2014: why have so many empire-shaking battles been fought near Panipat?
- Not for the city itself: the region is the gateway to Delhi.
- Any power from Central Asia or Afghanistan came through the Khyber Pass, and the natural staging ground before the final push runs through Panipat, Karnal, Kurukshetra and Thanesar
- A Delhi ruler's sound move was to stop the enemy at these gates
- Supporting factors:
  - (1) vast open fields for set-piece battles
  - (2) weather supporting prolonged campaigns
  - (3) many warrior communities easing recruitment
  - (4) agricultural productivity plus proximity to Delhi easing supply

Battle	Year	What it shook
Thanesar	1014	Mahmud of Ghazni fought here and had built an empire from Iran to today's Pakistan by 1030
Thanesar	1191	Muhammad Ghori
First Battle of Panipat	1526	Shook the Delhi Sultanate
Second Battle of Panipat	1556	Ended the rule of Hemu
Battle of Karnal	1739	Shook the Mughals

Battle	Year	What it shook
Third Battle of Panipat	1761	Shook the Marathas

From Shivaji 74-80 to Panipat: the big picture

- 1674-80 Shivaji 74-80: coronation at Raigarh, Svarajya, army, navy, forts, guerrilla warfare
- 1680-1719 Turmoil: Sambhaji 80-89 killed (1689), Rajaram 89-00 dies (1700), Tarabai regent, Shahu 19-49 released 1707, civil war to 1719
- 1719 Shahu 19-49 wins, Peshwa Balaji Vishwanath 13-20 rises: Sayyid alliance, recognition of autonomy, Chauth and Sardeshmukhi
- 1719-61 Growth:
    - Gujarat, Malwa, Delhi raid 1737, Bhopal 1738, Odisha, Khandesh, Alamgir II 54-59 1754
    - Sangola 1750 moves power to the Peshwa
- 1761 Third Panipat:
    - Abdali's alliance wins
    - Factionalism, weak Peshwas, power vacuum
- After 1761: Mysore, Delhi 1771, First Anglo-Maratha War won 1775-82, Campoo 1784, then annexation 1803 and 1817-19

Why Abdali won at Panipat

- Alliance:
    - Awadh, Rohilkhand and Farrukhabad join
    - Sikhs, Rajputs, Jats neutral
    - 60k versus 50k
- Logistics: supply line Panipat-Delhi cut, famine
- Terrain: open plains, no hills for guerrilla tactics
- Firepower: horse-mounted swivel guns pierce armour
- Leadership: Abdali and Najib coordinate
- Factionalism: Raghuji Bhonsle refuses to fight
- Result:
    - A power vacuum
    - Neither the Marathas nor Abdali rule India
    - EIC fills it

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 2010: the immediate reason for Abdali's invasion and the Third Battle of Panipat (1761) was to avenge the Marathas' expulsion of his son Timur Shah from Lahore (March 1758, Raghunath Rao 73-74)
- The line-up in Punjab: Adina Beg Khan (Governor of Punjab for Rs 75 lakh a year) and Sabaji Scindia (garrisons at Attock and Peshawar)
- Sher Shah 40-45: Kanauj 1540, Suba-Sarkar-Pargana, Grand Trunk Road, Dak Chowki, Rupiya, Patta and Qubuliat; Suri Interregnum 1540-55; Sirhind 1555
- Founders and dates: Churaman 95-21 Jat (Bharatpur, 1695), Md Khan Bangash (Farrukhabad, 1714), Ali Md Khan (Katehr 1721; Subadar title 1740); Safdar Jung 39-54 and Qaim Khan 1749

MAINS HOOKS

- The teacher marks this chapter Mains 0, yet in a larger Mains question some content from here can be used
- The middle path: why the Mughals co-opted rebels (Mansabdar status, Watan Jagir, dynastic governorship) instead of crushing them
- Was the Jat Kingdom a better deal for the peasant? No peasant utopia: land revenue stayed high and power stayed with Zamindars
- One pattern for three Rebel States: each needed external support to peak (Abdali for the Afghans, Maratha tactical backing for Surajmal 56-63) and collapsed once it was removed

The weak Mughal centre offered rebels a middle path; Jats, Bangash Pathans and Rohillas turned local force into rule, but each stood on an outside prop and fell when it went.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Delhi's weakness offers rebels a deal (the middle path), so Jats, Bangash Pathans and Rohillas turn local force into rule; but each stands on an outside prop (Abdali, Maratha backing) and falls when the prop is removed, and Abdali's own reason for coming was a family quarrel over Lahore.

1 Two bad options and a middle path. When rebels establish their rule in an area, the emperor can fight on and end the rebellion, or lose the territory and let the rebel set up an independent kingdom. The middle path: the rebel accepts Mansabdar status, the Mughal as emperor, tribute to Delhi and a duty to maintain an army and help the emperor militarily. The emperor accepts dynastic governorship, the territory as the rebel's Watan Jagir, and non-interference. Both core interests are met; only the Sikhs, who never accepted Mughal symbolic sovereignty (except once, in 1707), stand outside.

→ So who actually took this path?

2 Three more Rebel States. Apart from the Marathas, the 18th century saw three more: the Jat Kingdom of Bharatpur in East Rajasthan, Farrukhabad (est. 1714, Bangash Pathans) and Rohilkhand (process began 1721, completed 1737-40, Rohilla Afghans). All three turned local military power into territorial rule as the Mughal Empire weakened, yet none built a large, sustainable empire.

→ First, the farmers who fought back.

3 The Jats rise from the soil. The Jats were an agrarian community, hostile to the Mughals since Jahangir 05-27, when harsh land revenue and the drive to subordinate local autonomy pushed their Zamindars into organised resistance, mainly by guerrilla warfare. The chain runs Gokla (first revolt, 1669), Rajaram 89-00, Churaman 95-21, who formally founds the Jat Kingdom of Bharatpur in 1695, and Badan Singh (1722-55), who consolidates it.

→ Then one ruler takes it to the peak.

4 Surajmal's peak, and the fall. Surajmal 56-63 builds a strong, centralised State and forces the Mughal emperor to recognise him as autonomous. He recruits European soldiers, introduces a Mughal-style revenue system and removes relatives from court posts; the State stretches from Delhi to Agra and from the Chambal to the Ganga, with the Iron Fort Lohagarh as his pride. At Panipat 1761 he wanted guerrilla warfare, Sadasiv Rao Bhau did not, yet the Jats still sent supplies. After he dies in 1763 the State collapses: it was no peasant utopia, since land revenue stayed high and power stayed with Zamindars.

→ But the Afghans have a story that began much earlier.

5 The Afghan who ruled Delhi. Afghans had been migrating into North India since the 15th century, driven by poor economy and instability at home, and worked as wandering warlords in its military labour markets. Farid Khan, born around 1486 at Sasaram in Bihar to the Sur clan, rises through ability, serves the Mughals after 1526 and studies their administration. By 1540, as Sher Shah 40-45, he defeats Humayun 30-40 at Kanauj and seizes Delhi.

→ And what does he do with five years?

6 Five years that mattered (1540-45). Sher Shah 40-45 builds the Suba-Sarkar-Pargana hierarchy (Akbar 56-05 later adopts it), upgrades the Uttarapath into the Grand Trunk Road, sets up the Dak Chowki relay post, issues the standard silver Rupiya and fixes a fair land revenue directly with the peasant, recorded in a Patta and a Qubuliat. After he dies in 1545 the Afghans fragment; the Suri Interregnum (1540-55) ends when Humayun 30-40 retakes Delhi after Sirhind in 1555.

→ In the 18th century a new Afghan surge arrives.

7 Farrukhabad: a warlord and a flattering name. Md Khan Bangash, a Pathan warlord, backs Farrukhsiyar 13-19 with 12,000 troops and is rewarded with the rank of Nawab and revenue near the Ganga; he founds Farrukhabad in 1714, after first naming a town Mohammadabad after himself, which annoyed the emperor. His son Qaim Khan is killed in 1749 through the scheme of Safdar Jung 39-54, and Farrukhabad is annexed to Awadh and plundered.

→ Then Ahmad Khan comes back.

8 Ahmad Khan's see-saw. Ahmad Khan Bangash 50-71 retakes Farrukhabad in 1750, is driven out in 1751-52 by Marathas (Holkar and Scindia) and Jats at Awadh's request, and returns by a treaty that hands half of Farrukhabad to Holkar and Scindia. In 1761 he fights beside Abdali 47-72 at Third Panipat and recovers his full dominions. The EIC annexes Farrukhabad in 1802.

→ Rohilkhand rises another way, from the ground.

9 Rohilkhand: hired guns become rulers. Zamindars of Katehr (around Bareilly and Moradabad) hire Afghan mercenaries, the Rohillas, who grow dominant under Daud Khan. When he dies in 1721 his adopted son Ali Md Khan takes over and spends two decades absorbing lands. In 1739 Nadir Shah paralyses Delhi, so Ali stops paying taxes; in 1740 Md Shah 19-48 co-opts him with the Subadar title and Katehr is renamed Rohilkhand.

→ Like Farrukhabad, it ends with the Abdali prop gone.

10 The end of Rohilkhand. Najib-ud-Daula 57-70 backs Abdali at Panipat in 1761 and Delhi is under Rohilla influence until 1771, when Mahadji Scindia 68-94 retakes it. Najib dies in 1770; in 1774 Awadh, with EIC help (allies since the Treaty of Allahabad 1765), annexes most of Rohilkhand. A small remainder becomes the State of Rampur, under the EIC from 1801.

→ Why did Abdali come in the first place?

11 Why Abdali came (Prelims 2010). In March 1758 Raghunath Rao 73-74 crossed into Punjab and drove away Timur Shah, Abdali's son and Governor of Punjab and Kashmir. The Marathas made Adina Beg Khan Governor of Punjab for Rs 75 lakh a year, and later Sabaji Scindia held Attock and Peshawar on the Afghan border. The immediate reason for Third Panipat was to avenge Timur Shah.

→ Now step back: one pattern fits all three.

12 One pattern, one prop. The Jats rose from an agrarian base upward, Farrukhabad from court politics downward, Rohilkhand from the ground up over two decades. The common rule: each needed external support to peak (Abdali for the Afghan kingdoms, Maratha tactical backing for Surajmal 56-63) and each collapsed once that support was removed: Abdali left in 1761 and Surajmal died in 1763.

In simple words

- When rebels set up rule, the emperor chose the middle path:
  - The rebel becomes a Mansabdar and sends tribute and an army
  - The emperor grants dynastic governorship and a Watan Jagir. The Sikhs are the exception (except once, 1707)
- Three more Rebel States besides the Marathas: the Jats (Bharatpur, from Churaman 95-21 Jat to Surajmal 56-63), Farrukhabad (1714) and Rohilkhand (1721 to 1737-40). The Jat State was no peasant utopia.
- The Afghans came as wandering warlords
- Sher Shah 40-45 ruled Delhi for five years (1540-45) and left a model of administrative reform: Suba-Sarkar-Pargana, Grand Trunk Road, Dak Chowki, Rupiya, Patta and Qubuliat
- Farrukhabad grew from court politics (12,000 troops for Farrukhsiyar 13-19)
- Rohilkhand grew from the ground up and was co-opted with a Subadar title in 1740. Both backed Abdali at Panipat and were annexed later
- For Prelims 2010: Abdali came to avenge Timur Shah, expelled from Lahore in March 1758. The common rule: each Rebel State needed an external prop and fell when it was removed.

0 · How much does this chapter matter? (the teacher's opening)

STORY LINK

Story so far: the Mughal centre is weak and rebels are rising. Before the story, note the teacher's verdict on how much this chapter is worth. Ask: where can its content still help in a bigger Mains answer?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Chapter 5 = less important. Mains: 0. Prelims: some.
- In a larger Mains question, some content from here can be used.

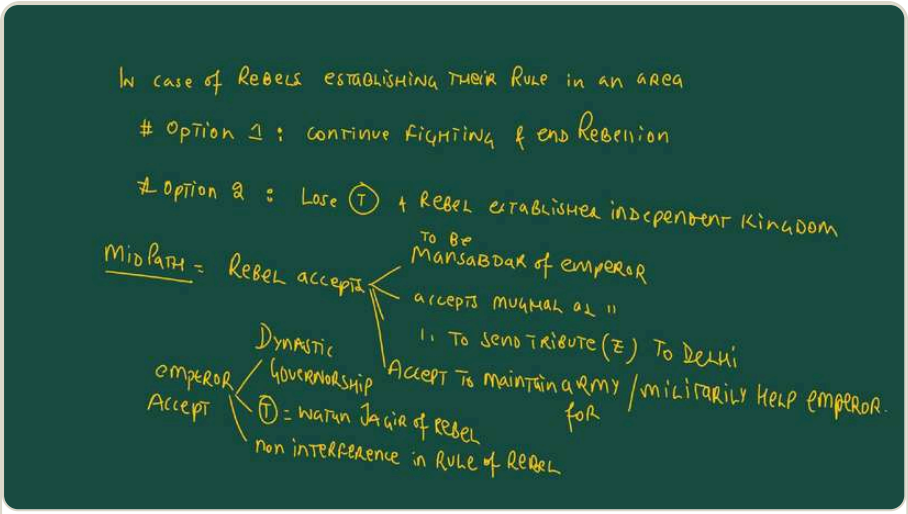
HANDOUT NOTE

Lecture 7 (slides 29 to 49) repeats Lecture 8 (slides 1 to 23); figures here come from the Lecture 8 slides.

1 · The middle path between king and rebel

STORY LINK

Because the Mughals were too weak to crush every rebel, they offered a deal. Ask: what does each side give, and whose core interest is met?



The middle path when rebels establish their rule Lecture 8 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Rebels establish their rule in an area:
  - The emperor has two options: (1) continue fighting and end the rebellion
  - (2) lose the territory (T) and let the rebel establish an independent kingdom.
- The middle path: the rebel accepts to be a Mansabdar, accepts the Mughal as emperor, sends tribute to Delhi, and agrees to maintain an army / help the emperor militarily.
- The emperor accepts dynastic governorship, the territory as the rebel's Watan Jagir, and non-interference in the rebel's rule.

Middle path: the core interest of each side Lecture 8 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Core interests. Emperor:
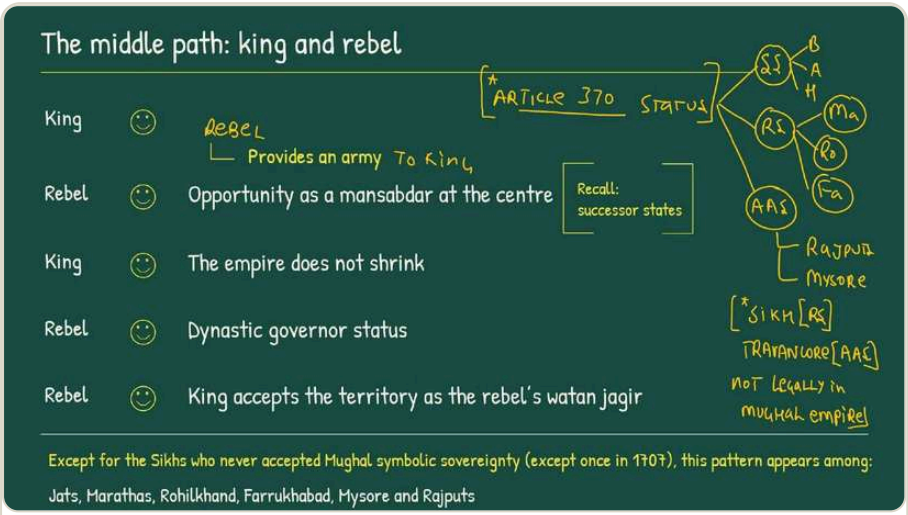
  - The empire's territory shall not shrink
  - Revenue and military come from that territory
- Rebel: king of that territory, with dynastic rule in it.



Middle path: king and rebel; regional powers sorted Lecture 8 slide 4

Side	What it gets on the middle path
King (Mughal)	The rebel provides an army; the empire does not shrink
Rebel	Opportunity as a Mansabdar at the centre (recall successor states); dynastic governor status; the king accepts the territory as the rebel's Watan Jagir

MNEMONIC · WHAT THE REBEL PAYS ON THE MIDDLE PATH

A T M

The rebel became the emperor's ATM: he paid out in army, tribute and Mansabdar status.

A Army: maintains it and helps the emperor militarily

T Tribute sent to Delhi

M Mansabdar status, accepting the Mughal as emperor

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Except for the Sikhs, who never accepted Mughal symbolic sovereignty (except once, in 1707), this pattern appears among the Jats, Marathas, Rohilkhand, Farrukhabad, Mysore and Rajputs.
- Board link: Article 370 status (a state within a state on special terms).
- Sorting:
    - SS (Bengal, Awadh, Hyderabad)
    - RS (Marathas, Rohilkhand, Farrukhabad; plus the Sikhs)
    - AAS (Rajputs, Mysore; plus Travancore).
- The Sikhs [RS] and Travancore [AAS] were not legally in the Mughal empire.

2 · Framework: three more Rebel States

STORY LINK

Because the deal was on offer, three more rebel States used it. Ask: which three, and what did none of them manage to build?

- Apart from the Marathas, there were three more Rebel States in the 18th century: the Jat Kingdom of Bharatpur in East Rajasthan, and the two Afghan kingdoms, Farrukhabad (est. 1714) and Rohilkhand (crystallised 1737-40).
- All three used the opportunity created by the weakening Mughal Empire to convert local military power into territorial rule, but none could establish a large, sustainable empire.

3 · The Jat Kingdom (1695-1763)

STORY LINK

Because harsh land revenue and lost autonomy angered the Zamindars, the first rebel State grew from the soil. Ask: which two names did the teacher mark imp, and why?

3.1 Who were the Jats and why did they resist?

- The Jats were primarily an agrarian community of North India, with cultivation as their traditional occupation.
- Their hostility to the Mughal State stretched back to the reign of Jahangir 05-27, when harsh land revenue policies and the Mughal drive to subordinate local autonomy pushed the Zamindars, the traditional leaders of rural society, toward organised resistance.

3.2 How the resistance developed

- The first organised Jat revolt came in 1669 (teacher's slide: 1669-70), led by the Zamindar Gokla.
- The torch passed through Rajaram 89-00 to Churaman 95-21, then Badan Singh (1722-55, consolidation), then Surajmal 56-63, each pushing resistance further.

MNEMONIC · THE JAT CHAIN, IN ORDER

Great Rebels Created Bharatpur's Stronghold

- G Gokla: first organised revolt, 1669 (slide 1669-70)
- R Rajaram 89-00: guerrilla warfare continues
- C Churaman 95-21: founds the Jat Kingdom of Bharatpur
- B Badan Singh: consolidates, 1722-55
- S Surajmal 56-63: peak, builder of Lohagarh

Order kept: five rulers in time order. The two names the teacher marked imp are Churaman (created) and Surajmal (stronghold).

- Their preferred method was guerrilla warfare: fast, decentralised and hard for a large Mughal army to counter.
- The Jat Kingdom of Bharatpur, in East Rajasthan, south of Delhi, bordering the Mathura and Agra districts, was formally established by Churaman 95-21 Jat (1695-1721).
- Like many rebel-state founders (Marathas, Sikhs), Churaman 95-21 turned peasant discontent over high land revenue into political and military power.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two names marked imp:
  - Churaman 95-21 = establishment of the Jat kingdom
  - Surajmal 56-63 = the most powerful.
- Hostility is about LR (high land revenue) and ending local autonomy.

Lohagarh Fort, Bharatpur: the Iron Fort, never conquered Lecture 8 slide 7

3.3 Surajmal 56-63: the peak

- Under Maharaja Surajmal 56-63 the Jat State reached its peak.
- He built a strong, centralised State and forced the Mughal emperor to formally recognise him as an autonomous ruler (within the Mughal Empire). His reforms:
- 1. He recruited European soldiers to modernise his military.
- 2. He introduced a Mughal-style revenue system for administrative efficiency.
- 3. He removed relatives from court positions to reduce factionalism.

MNEMONIC · SURAJMAL 56-63'S THREE REFORMS

R E F

REF is the first three letters of REForm.

R Revenue: a Mughal-style revenue system

E European soldiers recruited to modernise the military

F Factionalism cut: relatives removed from court posts

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- At its peak the Jat State stretched from Delhi to Agra and from the Chambal River to the Ganga, across present-day Delhi, Haryana, Uttar Pradesh and Rajasthan.
- After Surajmal 56-63's death in 1763 the Jat State collapsed.
- Panipat 1761: Surajmal 56-63 offered help to the Marathas before the Third Battle of Panipat, but the alliance could not be established because of differences on war strategy and tactics.
- Surajmal 56-63 wanted guerrilla warfare, but the Maratha commander Sadasiv Rao Bhau disagreed.
- The Jats still sent essential supplies to the Marathas during the war.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Status: "the same thing was accepted during Churaman 95-21 Jat" (recognition as an autonomous ruler within the Mughal Empire).
- Panipat link: Alamgir II 54-59 was a puppet of the Marathas.
- Reform 1: Mahadji Scindia 68-94's Campoo = Fauj-i-Hind is the same kind of modernisation (Chapter 4).
- Reform 3: contrast with the Mughal family's infighting (R vs R).

Map: the Jat State at its peak, Delhi to Agra, Chambal to Ganga Lecture 8 slide 9

3.4 Was the Jat Kingdom a better deal for the peasant?

- Though the kingdom was the result of peasant revolts, it was no peasant utopia.
- Land revenue remained high, and real power rested with Zamindars, not with the ryots.
- The Jat State replicated the same extractive structure it had risen against.

Handout diagram 1: the Jat Kingdom, Gokla to Surajmal and collapse handout figure

TEACHER'S BOARD

No peasant utopia = "Dreamland."
Keywords: land revenue, peasant revolt, same extractive structure.

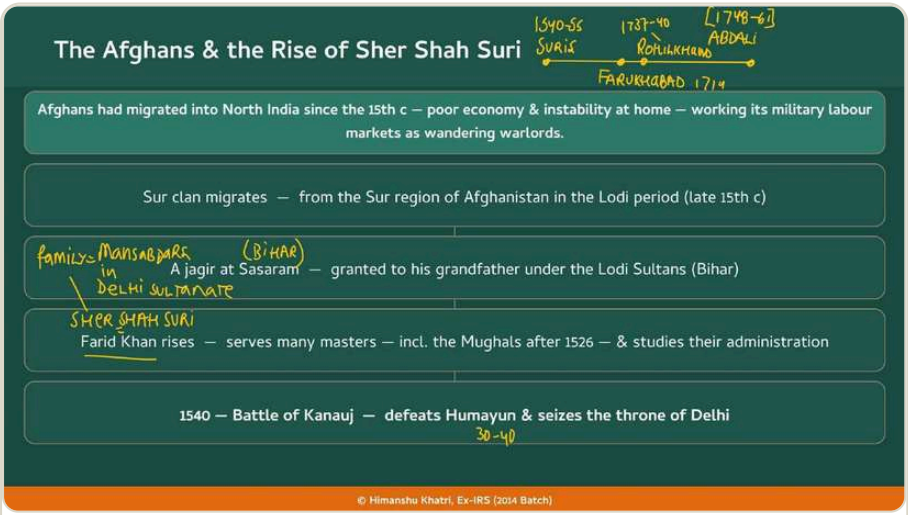
4 · The Afghans: migration and the rise of Sher Shah 40-45 Suri 40-45

STORY LINK

Because the Afghans were soldiers for hire, one of them once ruled Delhi himself. Ask: what did Sher Shah 40-45 learn from the Mughals, and what did he build in five years?



The Afghans: migration and the rise of Sher Shah Suri Lecture 8 slide 11

4.1 Who were the Afghans and what brought them to North India?

- Afghans had been migrating into North India since the 15th century, driven by poor economic conditions and political instability back home.
- In the military labour markets of North India they functioned largely as wandering warlords, skilled fighters available to whoever could pay.

4.2 Was there ever a moment when Afghans actually ruled Delhi?

- The story of Sher Shah 40-45 Suri 40-45 is the story of all these Afghan migrants compressed into one life.
- His family, the Suris, a clan of the Pashtun tribe, had migrated from the Sur region of Afghanistan to India during the Lodi Sultanate in the late 15th century.
- His grandfather had received a small jagir in Sasaram (present-day Bihar) in service of the Lodi Sultans.
- Sher Shah 40-45, born Farid Khan around 1486 in Sasaram, grew up not in Afghanistan but in Bihar, as a second-generation Indian Afghan, a product of the North Indian military labour market.
- He served under various masters, rising through ability rather than birth.
- He served as an administrator under the Afghan governor of Bihar, then briefly under the Mughals after Babur 26-30 defeated the Lodis in 1526.
- During this Mughal service he closely studied Mughal administrative methods, knowledge he later turned against them.
- He built his power base in Bihar and Bengal and by 1540 had defeated Humayun 30-40, first reign) at the Battle of Kanauj, driving him into exile in Persia and seizing the throne of Delhi.
- Handout comparison: compare Suri with the Bangash Pathans of Farrukhabad (same Afghan migrant background, same military-labour-market entry), but a very different ceiling on what they could achieve, partly because the political window available to them was much narrower.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The Suri family were Mansabdars in the Delhi Sultanate (Bihar).
- Afghan markers timeline:
  - Suris 1540-55
  - Farrukhabad 1714
  - Rohilkhand 1737-40
  - Abdali 1748-61.

4.3 What Sher Shah 40-45 Suri 40-45 achieved in five years

Reform	What he did	Board point
Administrative hierarchy	Centre, Province (Suba), District (Sarkar), Sub-district (Pargana)	Akbar 56-05 later adopted it almost wholesale
Grand Trunk Road	Upgraded the Uttarapath connecting Bengal to the North-West Frontier	Boosts economy and trade
Dak Chowki	A reliable postal-relay system	"Like a relay race"
The Rupiya	A standardised (by weight and value) silver coin, the basis of Indian currency for centuries	Important: the degree of trust between buyer and seller;

Reform	What he did	Board point
		standardisation needs a central authority
Revenue	Land surveys and a fair land revenue demand fixed directly with the peasant, cutting out the middleman Zamindar	Recorded in a Patta (with the ryot) and a Qubuliat (with the government): "head and tail," one document in two copies

MNEMONIC · SHER SHAH 40-45'S FIVE REFORMS

R Rupiya: a standardised silver coin

F Fair land revenue fixed directly with the peasant (Patta and Qubuliat)

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- Handout: Suri was in a sense the first ruler to seriously attempt "administrative reform": streamlining the State machinery to make it efficient and fair.
- Unfortunately he had only five years.
- His successors could not hold together what he built.
- After his death in 1545 the Afghans fragmented again into competing warlord groups.
- The period 1540 to 1555, the Suri Interregnum, was a brief Afghan interruption of Mughal rule, ending when Humayun 30-40 recaptured Delhi in 1555 after the Battle of Sirhind and briefly restored Mughal authority before his death in 1556.

5 · The 18th century: a new surge of Afghan migration

STORY LINK

Because the Mughal State weakened again, a second Afghan wave came. Ask: which two Afghan kingdoms emerged, and which clan founded each?

- The 18th century brought a new surge of Afghan migration as political instability in their homeland intensified.
- The progressive weakening of the Mughal State created exactly the opportunity these groups had been waiting for.
- Two Afghan kingdoms emerged: Farrukhabad (today a district in Uttar Pradesh; Bangash Pathans) and Rohilkhand (also called Rampur, with capital Bareilly; Rohilla Afghans).

- Mughal interests:
  - Territory does not shrink
  - Military and money
- Rebels' interest: dynastic rule over some territory.
- Factionalism (R vs R):
  - Jahandar Shah 12-13 came to power by killing his brother
  - Farrukhsiyar 13-19 killed Jahandar Shah 12-13
- Both kingdoms supported Abdali at Panipat (1761)
- Awadh annexed both.

6 · Farrukhabad (est. 1714)

STORY LINK

Because court politics left vacuums, a warlord with troops could buy a title. Ask: what did Md Khan Bangash get, and who swallowed his son's kingdom?

6.1 How did a Bangash Pathan warlord found a kingdom near Agra?

- The founding of Farrukhabad shows how factional Mughal court politics created vacuums that outsiders could exploit.
- It was structurally weak from the start, sitting between powerful neighbours, principally Awadh, which preyed on it whenever it could.
- Its history is best understood as a sequence across three rulers.

Ruler	What happened
Md Khan Bangash (1714-43)	A Pathan warlord who backed Farrukhsiyar 13-19 with 12,000 troops; rewarded with the rank of Nawab and revenue assignments near the Ganga; founded Farrukhabad (1714), naming it after the emperor. Died 1743, succeeded by his son Qaim Khan.
Qaim Khan (1743-49)	In 1749 Safdar Jung 39-54 (Nawab of Awadh and Wazir of the emperor) engineered his death in battle; Farrukhabad was annexed to Awadh and plundered.
Ahmad Khan Bangash 50-71	Retook it in 1750; driven out in 1751-52 by Marathas and Jats; fought beside Abdali at Panipat (1761) to recover it; the EIC annexed it in 1802. The Bangash Pathans joined the 1857 Revolt but were defeated.

MNEMONIC · FARRUKHABAD'S THREE RULERS, IN ORDER

Maker Quarry Avenger

- M Md Khan Bangash 1714-43: makes Farrukhabad
- Q Qaim Khan 1743-49: hunted down, killed in 1749
- A Ahmad Khan Bangash 50-71: avenges and retakes it, 1750

Order kept: three rulers in time order.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Jahandar Shah 12-13 and Farrukhsiyar 13-19:
  - The handout (section 4.2) says Jahandar Shah 12-13 seized power in 1712-13 by killing the father of Farrukhsiyar 13-19, who avenged this by removing him
  - The board says Jahandar Shah 12-13 came to power by killing his brother
- Both are in the class material
- For answers, write Mughal succession violence (R vs R).

- Md Khan Bangash's gesture (handout): he first founded a town called Mohammadabad after himself, which annoyed Farrukhsiyar 13-19.
- Farrukhabad ("the city of Farrukh") was the diplomatic correction: the classic pattern of a rebel State acknowledging Mughal sovereignty in name while building real autonomy on the ground.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Nawab = a mansabdar rank; revenue near the Ganga = a Jagir; the Mughal followed the "mid path." Safdar Jung 39-54 (Wazir of Ahmed Shah Bahadur 48-54) misused his position; other Mansabdars accused him and he was forced to resign: the virtual break of Awadh from the Mughal empire (Chapter 3).

- Qaim Khan (handout):
  - The textbook example of the Wazir's loyalty being to his own State, not the Emperor he nominally served
  - the highest Mughal Mansab had become a tool for personal and regional ambition.

6.2 Ahmad Khan Bangash 50-71, 1750 onwards

- Ahmad Khan fought back and retook Farrukhabad in 1750.
- In 1751-52 the Marathas, specifically Malhar Rao Holkar and Jayappaji Rao Scindia sent by Peshwa Balaji Baji Rao 40-61, along with Jats under Surajmal 56-63, drove him out.

- (Note: Awadh had requested the Marathas and Jats in 1751.) As Abdali's invasion progressed, the Marathas signed a treaty in 1752 that allowed him to return and resume rule, at the price of handing half of Farrukhabad to Holkar and Scindia.
- In 1761 he fought alongside Ahmad Shah Abdali 47-72 at the Third Battle of Panipat.
- With the Marathas defeated, he recovered his full dominions, including the half ceded in 1752.
- Once Abdali left India in 1761, Farrukhabad weakened.
- In 1802 the EIC annexed Farrukhabad. (The "Ceded Provinces" refers to territories Awadh was forced to hand over under the Subsidiary Alliance of 1801; Farrukhabad was merged into the Ceded Provinces after annexation.) The Bangash Pathans joined the 1857 Revolt but were defeated.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Ahmad Khan's dates: the handout heading reads "Ahmad Khan Bangash 50-71, 1750-1802", the Panipat line-up (Chapter 4) writes 50-82, and the slide table reads 1750-1802.
- The short form is inconsistent, so remember the anchors:
  - Retook Farrukhabad 1750
  - EIC annexed it 1802.

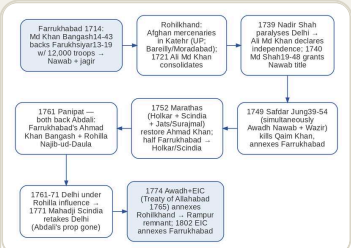
7 · Rohilkhand (est. 1737-40)

STORY LINK

Because Nadir Shah paralysed Delhi in 1739, a slow ground-level builder could finally declare independence. Ask: how did the Mughals respond to what they could not defeat?



Handout diagram 3: Farrukhabad and Rohilkhand combined handout figure

7.1 How Afghan mercenaries became rulers

- The region that became Rohilkhand was originally called Katehr: western Uttar Pradesh, around Bareilly and Moradabad.
- In the 17th and early 18th century, as Mughal authority weakened, local Zamindars and regional governors in Katehr hired Afghan mercenaries to settle disputes and enforce authority.
- These Afghan fighters, called Rohillas, became a dominant armed presence.

- Note: Rohilkhand was formed by settled Afghan mercenaries consolidating power from within the region, already entrenched in Katehr long before Abdali entered India.
- The word "Rohilla" comes from "Roh," the Afghan homeland, so Rohilkhand means the land of the Rohillas.

7.2 1721: the starting point

- When Daud Khan, the Afghan commander who had consolidated the mercenary groups, died in 1721, his adopted son and protege Ali Md Khan (1721-48) took over leadership.
- This is the starting point, not yet an independent State, but the moment one man gained control of a significant armed force.
- After 1721 he moved methodically: for two decades he consolidated, slowly absorbing lands from the very Zamindars his men had been hired to protect and uniting the scattered Afghan groups under his sole command.

7.3 What finally pushed Ali Md Khan to declare independence?

- Nadir Shah's devastating invasion of Delhi in 1739.
- With the Mughal State paralysed, Ali Md Khan stopped paying taxes to Delhi and began ruling Katehr as an independent power, capturing key districts including Bareilly and Moradabad.
- Handout comparison with Farrukhabad: both Afghan kingdoms used the same window (Mughal paralysis) to convert military presence into territorial control.
- Md Khan Bangash did it earlier and more formally through Mughal court politics
- Ali Md Khan did it through slow ground-level consolidation followed by outright defiance during the 1739 crisis.

7.4 How the Mughals responded

- Too weak to crush him, the Mughal State fell back on its standard strategy: co-opt what you cannot defeat.
- In 1740 Emperor Md Shah (1719-48) formally granted Ali Md Khan the title of Subadar.
- From 1740 Katehr was officially renamed Rohilkhand and functioned as an autonomous State under nominal Mughal sovereignty.
- (Ali Md Khan took control in 1721 but was officially recognised as Nawab of Rohilkhand by the Mughals in 1740.) The title gave the rebel legitimacy
- It gave the Mughals the illusion of control. Both sides understood the fiction.

NUMBER CARD · ALI MD KHAN: ABSORB, ABSENT, APPOINTED

21 · 39 · 40

Twenty-one, thirty-nine, forty: the land, the tax, the title.

1721 Absorb: takes over after Daud Khan, then spends two decades absorbing Zamindars' lands

1739 Absent: Nadir Shah paralyses Delhi, so he stops paying taxes

1740 Appointed: Md Shah 19-48 grants the Subadar title; Katehr renamed Rohilkhand

7.5 How Rohilkhand ended

- The arc is the same as Farrukhabad:
  - Rise on Afghan military power, peak during the Abdali alliance, collapse once that external prop was removed. 1761: under Najib-ud-Daula 57-70, Rohilkhand actively supported Abdali at the Third Battle of Panipat. 1761-71: Delhi was effectively under Rohilla influence (the Mughal emperor was in Awadh). 1770: Najib dies
  - With no Abdali to support since 1761, Rohilkhand weakens. 1771: Mahadji Scindia 68-94 recaptured Delhi and allowed Mughal Emperor Shah Alam II 60-06 to return home (the Red Fort). 1774: Most of Rohilkhand was annexed by Awadh with EIC help, because of the Treaty of Allahabad (1765), which led to a military alliance. The rest, a small part, became the autonomous State of Rampur with capital Bareilly, legally under Awadh, and from 1801 under the EIC when Awadh gave half of Awadh in the Subsidiary Alliance.

8 · Why Abdali came: the immediate trigger

STORY LINK

Because both Afghan kingdoms backed Abdali at Panipat, we ask why he came at all. Ask: why is 'the expulsion of Timur Shah' the answer and Maratha expansion not?

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2010. Abdali's immediate reason for the Third Battle of Panipat (1761) was to avenge the Marathas' expulsion of his son Timur Shah from Lahore.
- March 1758: Raghunath Rao 73-74 crossed into Punjab and drove away Timur Shah (Governor of Punjab and Kashmir).
- The Marathas made Adina Beg Khan Governor of Punjab for Rs 75 lakh a year
- On his death Sabaji Scindia took charge, holding the garrisons at Attock and Peshawar on the Afghan border against Abdali
- The Maratha conquest of Punjab was a challenge Abdali could not ignore: the immediate trigger.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Link to the previous lecture: auctioning of office (e.g. a governorship).
- The Marathas gave Punjab to Adina Beg Khan for Rs 75 lakh a year.
- Phrase for Maratha reach: "Attock se Cuttack" (Orissa).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prelims 2010 options:
  - (a) to avenge the expulsion by the Marathas of his viceroy Timur Shah from Lahore (correct)
  - (b) fast expansion of the Maratha Empire
  - (c) Mughal Emperor's refusal to pay annual tribute
  - (d) Sultan of Punjab's refusal to grant safe passage
- Why (a): in March 1758 the Marathas drove Timur Shah out of Lahore, the immediate, personal reason.
- Why not the rest:
  - (b) general background, not the trigger
  - (c) no Mughal tribute dispute caused this invasion
  - (d) there was no Sultan of Punjab refusing safe passage

9 · Synthesis: three Rebel States, one pattern

STORY LINK

Because each story had the same shape, the teacher joins them. Ask: what was the prop in each case, and what happened when it was removed?

State	How it was built
The Jats	From an agrarian base upward: Zamindar-led revolt, then territory, then a reforming ruler (Surajmal 56-63)
Farrukhabad	From Mughal court politics downward: 12,000 troops for Farrukhsiyar 13-19, then a Nawab title, then a city, then a dynasty
Rohilkhand	From the ground up over two decades: hired mercenaries, then consolidation, then independence in the 1739 Delhi paralysis
The common rule	Each needed external support to peak (Abdali for the Afghan kingdoms, Maratha tactical backing for Surajmal 56-63), and each collapsed once that support was removed

How a Rebel State was built (the pattern)

- Opportunity: the Mughal Empire weakens, factional court politics or paralysis (1739) creates a vacuum
- Local military power: peasant Zamindars (Jats), Afghan mercenaries (Rohillas), a warlord with troops (Bangash)
- The middle path:
  - Accept Mansabdar status, Mughal sovereignty in name, tribute and troops
  - Get dynastic governorship and a Watan Jagir
- Dependence: each needed external support to peak (Abdali; Maratha tactical backing)
- Collapse: support removed (1761 Abdali leaves; 1763 Surajmal 56-63 dies), neighbours annex (Awadh, then the EIC)

Mains PYQs: Mains 2014 (Panipat battles), Mains 2017 (fragmented polity); no Prelims

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- No Prelims question is mapped to this chapter (1995-2025); keep the structure facts: the Khalsa 1699, the Misls, Ranjit Singh 01-39, Amritsar 1809, the Tripartite Treaty 1838
- Sequence of the Gurus' flashpoints: 1606 Arjan Dev (Jahangir 05-27), 1675 Teg Bahadur (Aurangzeb 58-07), 1699 Khalsa
- Dates to hold: Chappar Chiri 1710; Banda Bahadur 08-15 defeated 1715, executed 1716; 12 major Misls by 1770; coronation 1801; Multan 1818; Kashmir 1819; Peshawar 1834

MAINS HOOKS

- Mains 2014: why were so many empire-shaking battles fought at Panipat? (Sikh-State facts are a supporting strand)
- Mains 2017: the spectre of a fragmented polity in the mid-18th century (the Misl confederacy is your Punjab example; State PCS FYQ: by 1715 Punjab)
- Banda Bahadur 08-15's State against Ranjit Singh 01-39's State: why one fell and the other held (a ready comparison table is in the notes)

A confederacy of Misls is a weak centre; a strong personality such as Ranjit Singh 01-39 centralises power, and the weak centre returns when the personality weakens.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Territory turns a faith into a power: the Mughals kill two Gurus, so the Sikhs arm themselves (Khalsa) and demand a State at Anandpur. Banda Bahadur 08-15 builds one State and loses it; the Misl confederacy keeps the idea alive as a weak centre; Ranjit Singh 01-39 centralises it, then balances it, and signs treaties with the EIC.

1 A peaceful faith. Guru Nanak Dev (1469-1539), a contemporary of Babur 26-30, teaches four things: one formless God, direct access without rituals or priests, no caste, honest living and selfless service. He makes four Udasis over 30 years (about 30,000 km), then settles at Kartarpur and starts the Langar, a free kitchen for equality.

2 Territory, and the first blow (1606). The teacher says a State is an organisation with a territory motive, and until the Sikhs wanted territory there was no dispute. They begin demanding a Sikh State in and around Anandpur (west of Shimla, south of Chamba), land held by Shivalik hill chiefs who are Mughal allies. In 1606 Jahangir 05-27 executes the 5th Guru, Arjan Dev, and a peaceful movement starts turning martial.

→ A second Guru is killed, and the answer is an army.

3 The Khalsa (1675-1699). In 1675 Aurangzeb 58-07 has the 9th Guru, Teg Bahadur, executed in Delhi. In 1699 the 10th Guru, Gobind Singh 76-08, founds the Khalsa at Anandpur: a Sikh military organisation, something like an NSG or STF, to defend the Panth and struggle for a Sikh State. Its identity is the five Ks.

→ But Anandpur never comes, and the Guru's family pays.

4 The Sahibzadas and a broken promise (1704-1707). In December 1704 the two elder sons, Ajit Singh (18) and Jujhar Singh (14), die at Chamkaur. The same month the two younger, Zorawar Singh (9) and Fateh Singh (6), are buried alive in a wall on the orders of Wazir Khan, Faujdar of Sirhind. In 1707 Bahadur Shah 07-12, on a pacifist policy, gives the Guru a high Mansab and promises Anandpur, but never keeps it.

→ And the promise is followed by a plot.

5 Nanded and the Book (1708). On 7 October 1708 Wazir Khan's assassins strike the Guru at Abchal Nagar Sahib in Nanded; he kills them but dies of his injuries at 42, and Wazir Khan is not punished. A few days before, he had declared the Guru Granth Sahib the final Guru, to stop Jat versus Khatri tension: Jats dominated the Khalsa and all ten Gurus were Khatri traders. The Book was installed at the Akal Takht.

→ Now someone must carry the struggle and take revenge.

6 Banda Bahadur 08-15's State. From 1708 Banda Bahadur 08-15 carries on. On 10 May 1710 at Chappar Chiri he kills Wazir Khan and takes Sirhind. His State between the Ravi and the Jamuna has its own coins, officials and seal, which the teacher reads as full independence. Farrukhsiyar 13-19 sends Abdus Samad Khan as Governor of Lahore to crush it.

→ But a State needs its own people behind it.

7 Why it fell (1715-1716). The Khatri traders, hurt by constant war, turned away. Jahandar Shah 12-13 brought Ijaradari to Punjab to co-opt them, and he and Farrukhsiyar 13-19 offered them Mansabs. Hindu Jat zamindars switched too: Churaman 95-21 went over when the Mughals recognised his Jat Kingdom. Banda Bahadur 08-15 was also not a Guru. He was defeated in 1715 and executed in 1716.

→ Yet the Sikh State does not die.

8 The Misl confederacy. The Mughals are too weak to take Punjab back, so power spreads to Misl chiefs: kinship clans that unite in wars, especially against Afghan invasions, and otherwise act alone. Conquered land is shared by contribution. By 1770 there are 12 major Misls with the Dal Khalsa at the centre; at Manupur 1748 it prepares a joint defence and Abdali is defeated. This is a weak centre, a fragmented polity, like the Maratha Confederacy.

→ But power tends to gather in a strong personality.

9 Ranjit Singh 01-39 centralises. Zaman Shah's invasions are a crisis that becomes an opportunity for Ranjit Singh 01-39 of the Sukerchakia Misl, who takes Lahore from the Bhangi Misl and is crowned Maharaja in 1801. The other Misl chiefs become tribute-paying vassals holding Jagirs, not Watan. The handout dates Lahore to 1801, the slides to 1799.

→ Now he must settle accounts with the EIC across the Sutlej.

10 Treaties and conquests (1809-1838). In 1809 Charles Metcalfe, the EIC's Resident at Delhi, signs the Treaty of Amritsar: Ranjit Singh 01-39 is recognised as sovereign, there is a military alliance, the Sutlej is the border, and he is free to expand on his side. He then takes Multan (1818), Kashmir (1819) and Peshawar (1834, Hari Singh Nalwa). The 1838 Tripartite Treaty with Shah Shuja makes Afghanistan and Punjab a buffer against feared Russian invasion.

→ So what kind of State held all this together?

11 A balanced, secular State. Ranjit Singh 01-39 built power by coercion, diplomacy and balance between Misl chiefs, the Khalsa army, Khatri traders and non-Sikh nobles such as the Dogras. Only 40% of land was Jagirdari; the rest paid the King directly, collected by Kardars (collector, magistrate, police chief, customs officer). Village autonomy was respected, Fakir Azizuddin was Foreign Minister, Dewan Dina Nath Finance Minister, and Sahajdhari Sikhs were included.

In simple words

- Guru Nanak (1469-1539) gave Sikhism four ideas: one formless God, no rituals or priests, no caste, honest living and service.
- Sikhs wanted a State at Anandpur. The Mughals killed two Gurus (1606, 1675), so a peaceful movement turned martial: the Khalsa of 1699.
- The Guru Granth Sahib became the final Guru to end the Jat versus Khatri rift. Banda Bahadur 08-15 built a first Sikh State (Ravi to Jamuna) but lost the Khatris and the Jats.
- After him the Misl confederacy (12 major Misls by 1770, with the Dal Khalsa) was a weak centre: a fragmented polity.
- Ranjit Singh 01-39 (Sukerchakia Misl) unified it, was crowned in 1801, signed the Treaty of Amritsar (1809), took Multan, Kashmir and Peshawar, and joined the 1838 Tripartite Treaty.
- His State was balanced and secular: 40% Jagirdari, Kardars, village autonomy, a Muslim Foreign Minister and a Hindu Finance Minister.

Key term	In plain words
Khalsa	A Sikh military organisation founded in 1699 at Anandpur, like an NSG or STF
Misl	A kinship-based clan; united in wars, otherwise independent
Dal Khalsa	The assembly of Misl chiefs, the weak centre of the confederacy
Langar	A free communal kitchen to promote equality, set up at Kartarpur
Udasis	Guru Nanak's four major spiritual journeys over 30 years
Faujdar	A district military commander, like a Superintendent of Police today
Akal Takht	Seat in the Golden Temple complex where the Guru Granth Sahib was installed; Hukumnamas were issued from here
Hukumnama	A formal order issued by the Gurus
Ijaradari	Revenue farming; used by the Mughals to co-opt Khatris, and by Ranjit Singh 01-39 through Kardars
Kardar	Chief administrative officer of a Taluqa: collector, magistrate, police chief, customs officer
Sahajdhari Sikhs	Non-Khalsa Sikhs who do not keep the five Ks
Confederacy	A nominal weak centre holding largely autonomous units (Misls; the Marathas under the Peshwas)

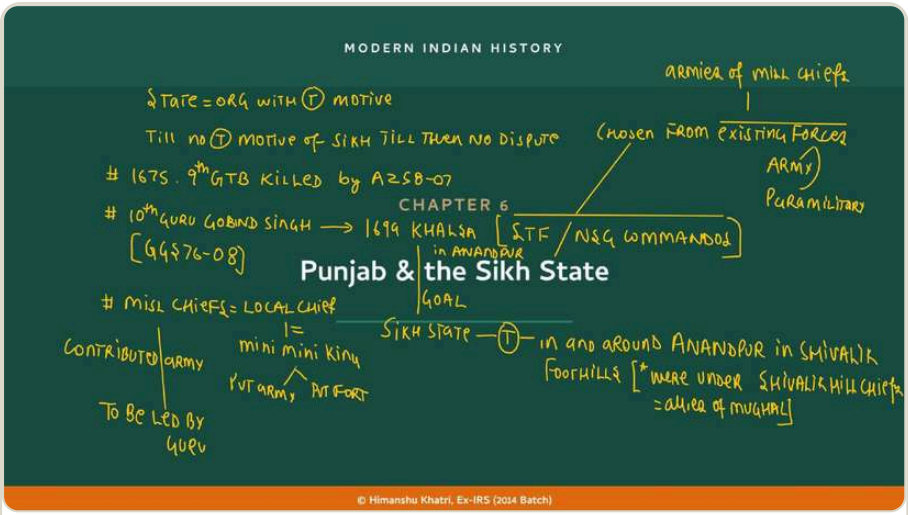
STORY LINK

Story so far: a State is a territory motive. Keep the teacher's board in mind: Sikh State, territory at Anandpur, Misl chiefs, Khalsa like STF or NSG.



Chapter 6 title slide: Sikh State, Khalsa and the Guru Lecture 8 slide 24

TEACHER'S BOARD

- State = an organisation with a territory (T) motive
- until the Sikhs had a territory motive, there was no dispute. 1675: the 9th Guru, Teg Bahadur, was killed by Aurangzeb 58-07. 10th Guru Gobind Singh 76-08: 1699 Khalsa at Anandpur, with the goal of a State
- Misl chiefs = local chiefs = "mini mini kings" (private army, private fort) who contributed armies to be led by the Guru.
- Khalsa = like STF / NSG commandos, chosen from existing forces (army, paramilitary).
- The Sikh State's territory: in and around Anandpur in the Shivalik foothills, under Shivalik hill chiefs, allies of the Mughals.
- (Board text on the hill chiefs' armies is unclear.)

The five Ks (Khalsa identity, 1699)	Meaning
Kesh	Hair
Kangha	Comb
Kada	(no gloss on the board)
Kirpan	Dagger
Kachera	Lower wear

1 · How did Sikhism begin, and what were its core beliefs?

STORY LINK

Chapter 1 of the story: a peaceful faith with four ideas. Ask: what did Nanak teach that a State could not tolerate?

- Guru Nanak Dev (1469-1539) was a contemporary of Babur 26-30.
- Sikhism rose from 1500 onwards, built on four core principles:
- 1. One supreme and formless God.
- 2. Direct access to God without rituals or priests.
- 3. Rejection of the caste system.
- 4. Emphasis on honest living and selfless service.

MNEMONIC · GURU NANAK'S FOUR PRINCIPLES

S O A R

Nanak's four ideas let the Sikh community SOAR above caste and ritual.

S Selfless service and honest living
O One supreme and formless God
A Access to God direct, without rituals or priests
R Rejection of the caste system

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- Guru Nanak undertook four major spiritual journeys (Udasis) over 30 years, covering about 30,000 km across India, South Asia, Tibet and Arabia.
- He finally settled in Kartarpur (present-day Pakistan), where he established the Langar, the free communal kitchen designed to promote equality.

2 · When did conflict begin between the Sikhs and the Mughal State?

STORY LINK

Because the Sikhs began to demand a State at Anandpur, the Mughals struck twice. Ask: why does 1606 turn a movement martial?

- Initially there was no conflict. But as the Sikh population grew and Sikhs began demanding a Sikh State in and around Anandpur (west of Shimla and south of Chamba), an area under the Shivalik Hill Chiefs who were Mughal allies, religious and political tensions built up.

- First flashpoint, 1606: the 5th Guru, Arjan Dev, was executed by Jahangir 05-27.
- A turning point: a peaceful spiritual movement began its transformation into a martial community.
- Second flashpoint, 1675: the 9th Guru, Teg Bahadur, was executed in Delhi by Aurangzeb 58-07.

3 · The Khalsa (1699)

STORY LINK

Because two Gurus were killed, the tenth Guru built an army. Ask: why is it compared to NSG or STF?

- In 1699, at Anandpur, the 10th Guru, Gobind Singh 76-08, established the Khalsa, a Sikh military organisation created to defend the Sikh Panth and struggle for a Sikh State.
- The handout compares it to an NSG/STF: its creation marked the formal militarisation of the Sikh community's political ambitions.

4 · December 1704 to October 1708: the Sahibzadas and the Guru's death

STORY LINK

Because the Khalsa threatened the Mughal order, the Guru's family paid. Ask: who promised, and who broke the promise?

- December 1704, Battle of Chamkaur: the Guru's two elder sons, Sahibzada Ajit Singh (aged 18) and Sahibzada Jujhar Singh (aged 14), died in battle.
- The same month his two younger sons, Sahibzada Zorawar Singh (aged 9) and Sahibzada Fateh Singh (aged 6), were buried alive in a wall on the orders of Wazir Khan, the Mughal Faujdar of Sirhind.
- (A Faujdar = a district military commander, comparable in local authority to a Superintendent of Police today.
- Since 2022, 26 December is observed as Veer Bal Divas in memory of the younger Sahibzadas.)

NUMBER CARD · THE FOUR SAHIBZADAS: AGES

18 Ajit Singh: died at Chamkaur
14 Jujhar Singh: died at Chamkaur
9 Zorawar Singh: buried alive on Wazir Khan's orders
6 Fateh Singh: buried alive on Wazir Khan's orders

- 1707: the new emperor Bahadur Shah (1707-12), following the pacifist policy (diplomacy more than war), granted the Guru a high Mansab and promised a Sikh State in and around Anandpur. The promise was never fulfilled.
- 7 October 1708: Wazir Khan arranged assassins to attack the Guru at Abchal Nagar Sahib Gurdwara in Nanded, Maharashtra, where he had accompanied Bahadur Shah.
- The Guru killed the assassins himself but later succumbed to his injuries, dying at the age of 42.
- No action was taken against Wazir Khan
- Anandpur was never given to the Sikhs.

1707 pacifist policy, Anandpur promised, 1708 Nanded Lecture 8 slide 26

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1707:
  - Aurangzeb 58-07 dies
  - The Mughal pacifist policy follows: "better relations with rivals." For the Guru: a very high Mansab [Zat] and Anandpur promised (Article 370-like status, like Rohilkhand, Jats, Farrukhabad, the Marathas under Shahu 19-49, Mysore, Rajputs). 1708: at Nanded the Guru is killed by men sent by Wazir Khan [Faujdar of Sirhind], also responsible for the death of the Guru's four sons
- Wazir Khan was not punished by the Mughals
- Anandpur was not given.
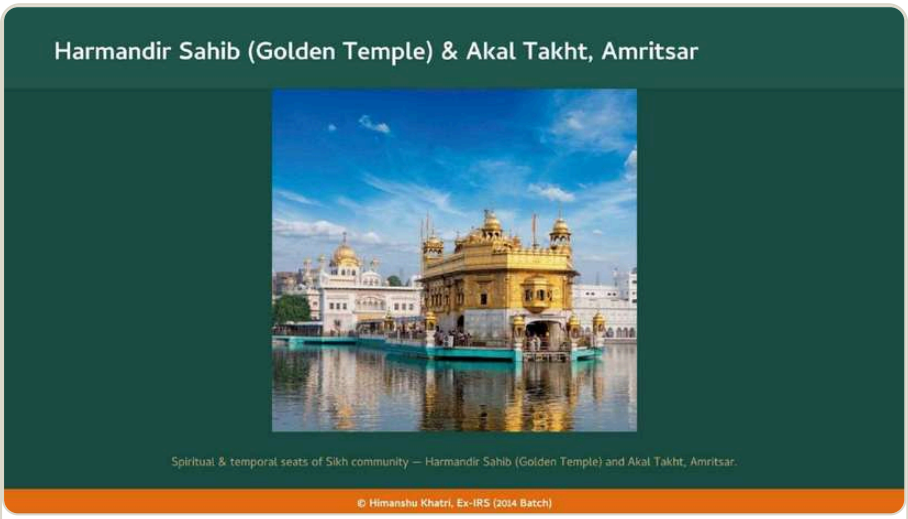
- Same pacifist-policy argument: Chapter 4, section 5.

5 · Why the Guru declared the Guru Granth Sahib the final Guru

STORY LINK

Because a living successor could inflame Jats against Khatris, the Guru chose a Book. Ask: why is a Book neutral?



Harmandir Sahib (Golden Temple) and the Akal Takht, Amritsar Lecture 8 slide 38

- A few days before his death, at Abchal Nagar Sahib, Guru Gobind Singh 76-08 declared that he would be the last living Guru and that all spiritual authority would henceforth be vested in the Guru Granth Sahib Ji, the holy book he had compiled.
- The decision was deliberate: to prevent community tensions between the Jat community, which dominated the Khalsa, and the Khatri community of traders, to which all ten Gurus had belonged.
- By vesting authority in the holy book rather than a human successor, the question of community dominance was permanently closed.

WHY THE GURU BECAME A BOOK

- The Guru Granth Sahib Ji was installed at the Akal Takht in the Golden Temple complex, Amritsar.

- From the Akal Takht the Gurus issued Hukumnamas (formal orders) and Sikh warriors took blessings before going into battle against the Mughals.
- The 19th-century sects of Nirankaris and Namdharis believe in a living Guru, which has historically led to serious conflicts within the community.

Guru Granth Sahib as final Guru; Jat-Khatri rivalry; Banda Bahadur Lecture 8 slide 27

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Guru Granth Sahib has two aspects: the Holy Book and the Guru itself.
- Disrespect = Beadbi (very sensitive today also).
- Jats dominated the Khalsa
- Khatris = men of money (merchants, moneylenders, ijaradars) [Jahandar Shah 12-13 introduced Ijaradari in Punjab and Bengal]
- All the Gurus were Khatris.
- Banda Bahadur 08-15:
  - A small state "in and around Patiala"
  - Took revenge by executing Wazir Khan.

Handout diagram 1: Sikh Guruship lineage, Nanak to Ranjit Singh handout figure

6 · Banda Bahadur 08-15: the first Sikh State, and why it collapsed

STORY LINK

Because the Guru was dead, Banda took revenge and built a State. Ask: what makes a State real (coins, officials, seal)?

- From 1708 the rebellion was carried forward by Banda Bahadur 08-15.
- He defeated and killed Wazir Khan at the Battle of Chappar Chiri on 10 May 1710, which also led to the conquest of Sirhind.
- He established a Sikh State over territories between the River Ravi and the River Jamuna, with its own coins, its own officials and its own seal for administrative orders (= full independence).
- Farrukhsiyar 13-19 appointed Abdus Samad Khan as Governor of Lahore specifically to suppress this Sikh State.
- By 1715 Banda Bahadur 08-15 was defeated
- Captured and executed in Delhi in 1716 by Farrukhsiyar 13-19

HANDOUT NOTE

Territory flag: the handout places Banda's State between the Ravi and the Jamuna; the board says "a small state in and around Patiala." Both are in the class material; the handout's wording is the answer-writing one.

Why his State fell (three reasons):

- 1. Khatri traders turned against him. Constant warfare hurt trade, and the commercial class needs decisive victors and political stability to function.
- 2. Divide and rule. Jahandar Shah 12-13 introduced Ijaradari (the revenue-farming system) in Punjab specifically to co-opt Khatri traders with business opportunities.
- Both Jahandar Shah 12-13 and Farrukhsiyar 13-19 offered Mansabs to Khatri traders, who switched sides.
- (Note: this further increased the number of Mansabdars, adding to the Jagirdari Crisis; see Chapter 2.)
- 3. Hindu Jat zamindars switched sides. Churaman 95-21 Jat (1695-1721), for instance, went over to the Mughals after they recognised his Jat Kingdom, granting him conditional dynastic autonomy in exchange for loyalty.

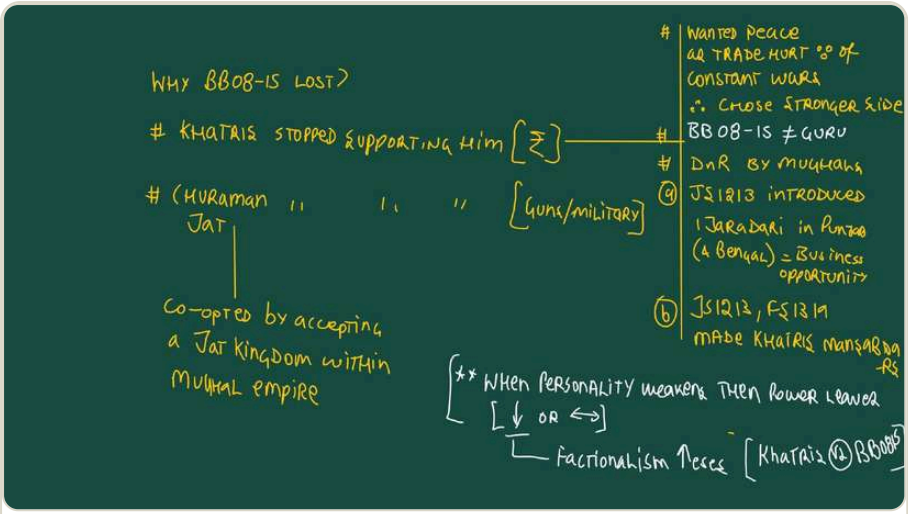
Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.



Why Banda Bahadur 08-15 lost: Khatris, Jats, divide and rule Lecture 8 slide 28

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Khatris stopped supporting him (money)
- Churaman 95-21 Jat likewise (guns / military), co-opted by accepting a Jat kingdom within the Mughal empire
- The Khatris wanted peace as trade was hurt by constant wars, so they chose the stronger side.
- Banda Bahadur 08-15 was not a Guru, so he lacked the Gurus' authority.

Handout diagram 2: Banda Bahadur's first Sikh State, 1708-15 handout figure

- Jahandar Shah 12-13 introduced Ijaradari in Punjab and Bengal (business opportunity)
- He and Farrukhsiyar 13-19 made Khatris Mansabdars.
- Rule (double-starred): when a personality weakens, power leaves (downward or sideways), and factionalism rises (Khatris against Banda Bahadur 08-15).

7 · What kept the Sikh State alive: the Misl confederacy

STORY LINK

Because Banda fell but the Mughals were weak, power spread to Misl chiefs. Ask: is a confederacy strength or weakness?

- The defeat of Banda Bahadur 08-15 did not end the Sikh State.
- The Mughals were too weak to fully reassert control over Punjab, and power became decentralised among Misl Chiefs.

- Misls are kinship-based clans. They united during wars, particularly against Afghan invasions, but otherwise operated independently.
- Whenever a Misl conquered territory, the lands were distributed among its members in proportion to their military and monetary contribution.
- Even the lowest-ranking soldier received a share of land.
- By 1770 there were 12 major Misls in Punjab, with the Dal Khalsa at the centre under a leader chosen by the Misl chiefs: a confederacy structure with a weak centre and strong constituent units.
- Takeaway (handout): compare it to the Maratha Confederacy under the Peshwas, where a nominal centre held together largely autonomous regional chiefs.
- Decentralisation was both a source of resilience and, ultimately, a vulnerability.

Misl confederacy: weak centre, Dal Khalsa, Manupur 1748 Lecture 8 slide 29

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Death of Banda Bahadur 08-15 = no strong centre, so power decentralised to the misl chiefs.
- Polity structure:
  - A Confederacy (of misls)
  - Fragmented.
- Board figure: one big circle (Punjab) with about a dozen circles (misls) inside, "roughly 40-60 misls" (handout's formal count: 12 major Misls by 1770).
- Dal Khalsa = assembly of misl chiefs: on Abdali's 1748 invasion it meets and prepares a joint defence, e.g. Manupur 1748, where Abdali was defeated (Chapter 4).

TEACHER'S BOARD

PYQ (UPSC Mains): "By the mid-18th century India was a spectre of fragmented polity." State PCS FYQ: "By 1715 Punjab was a spectre of fragmented polity." In today's language this is a weak centre, as with coalition governments at the Centre: factionalism, instability, shorter tenures, a weak PM.

Nature of power: it centralises in a strong personality Lecture 8 slide 31

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "It is in the nature of power to centralise in a strong personality." Power cycles between centralised and fragmented
- "today" sits at a trough
- PSIR links: multi-polar world, balance of power, fragmented world order, confederalism.

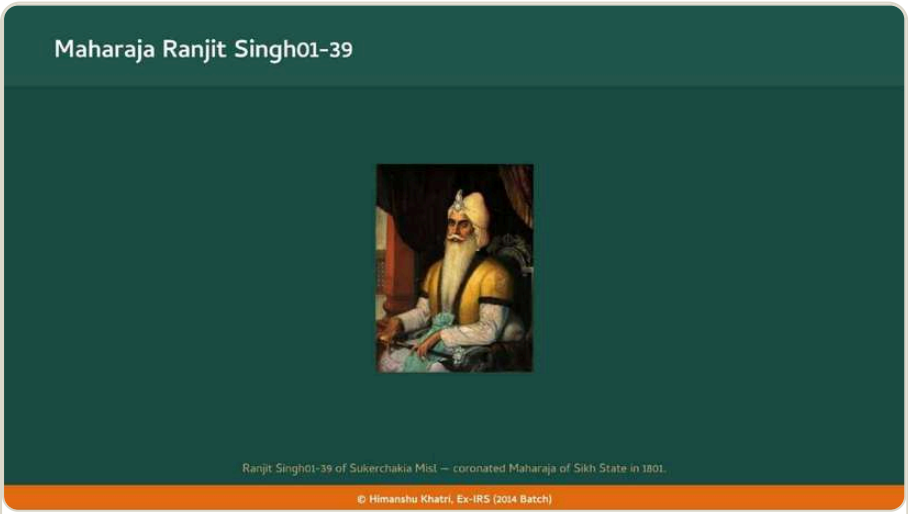
8 · Ranjit Singh 01-39 unifies the Misls

STORY LINK

Because power gathers in a strong personality, Ranjit Singh 01-39 unifies the Misls. Ask: which crisis became his opportunity?



Portrait of Maharaja Ranjit Singh, Sukerchakia Misl, coronated 1801 Lecture 8 slide 42

- Ranjit Singh 01-39 of the Sukerchakia Misl played a crucial role in defeating Zaman Shah's third Afghan invasion of 1799 (the slide reads: he rose during Zaman Shah's Afghan invasions of 1796-1799).
- This gave him the platform to establish dominance over the other Misls, and he was coronated King (Maharaja) of the Sikh State in 1801.
- The other Misl chiefs were reduced to tribute-paying vassals, retaining conditional control of their lands in return for loyalty and tribute to the King (lands held as Jagirs, not Watan).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Zaman Shah (Abdali's successor) invaded: "crisis = opportunity." The Sukerchakia misl of Ranjit Singh 01-39 emerged the most powerful. 1801: coronation. 1809: Treaty of Amritsar made the Sutlej the border with the Company State (British India) and brought a military alliance with the EIC.
- The Misl chiefs' lands: Jagirs, not Watan.

8.1 Territorial expansion: rapid and systematic

- 1. 1801:
  - Conquered Lahore (handout list)
  - The slides place the capture of Lahore in 1799 from the Bhangi Misl.
- 2. 1808: conquered Jammu from the Dogras (the handout adds: in 1819 he returned Jammu to the Dogras but within the Sikh Empire: the Dogras became vassals; the slide adds: Jammu later granted as a jagir to Kishore Singh in 1820, and his son Gulab Singh formally made Raja of Jammu in 1822).
- 3. 1809:
  - The handout lists "conquered the whole of Punjab" as the third step
  - The slide reads: "signed the Treaty of Amritsar ... secured his eastern frontier."

Handout diagram 3: Ranjit Singh's expansion and administration handout figure

HANDOUT NOTE

- Flags on the Ranjit Singh 01-39 dates:
  - The handout gives Lahore 1801 and Jammu returned to the Dogras in 1819
  - The slides give Lahore 1799 (captured from the Bhangi Misl) and Jammu given as a jagir to Kishore Singh in 1820 and Gulab Singh made Raja in 1822.
- Also, the handout says Zaman Shah's third invasion of 1799, the slide says the invasions of 1796-1799.

  - Tripartite Treaty 1838.

9 · The Treaty of Amritsar (1809)

STORY LINK

Because he now borders the EIC, he settles the frontier. Ask: what did he gain, and which way did he then expand?

- In 1809 Ranjit Singh 01-39 signed the Treaty of Amritsar with the EIC, represented by Charles Metcalfe, the EIC's Resident in the Delhi court.
- (Recall that the Scindias had been removed from Delhi in 1803 and the EIC had set up indirect rule there through a British Resident.) Four outcomes:
- 1. The EIC recognised Ranjit Singh 01-39 as the sovereign ruler of Punjab.
- 2. It led to a military alliance (later link to the EIC's Policy of Ring Fence).
- 3. The Sutlej River was fixed as the border between the Sikh State and the Company State.
- 4. Ranjit Singh 01-39 was free to expand on his side of the Sutlej without British interference.

> STORY LINK
> Because the east was secured, he turned west and north. Ask: which conquest completed what the Marathas left unfinished?

- With his eastern border secured, Ranjit Singh 01-39 turned west and north:
- 1. 1818: removed the Afghans from Multan.
- 2. 1819: conquered Kashmir. (Recall that Ahmad Shah Abdali 47-72 captured Punjab and Kashmir; Punjab was taken back by the Marathas in 1758 but not Kashmir; Ranjit Singh 01-39 completed what the Marathas left unfinished.)
- 3. 1834: conquered Peshawar (present-day Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, bordering Afghanistan along the Durand Line).

10.1 The 1838 Tripartite Treaty

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 2001: Tipu 82-99 Sultan established embassies on modern lines (France, Turkey, Egypt), with new coinage and the Mauludi Lunisolar Calendar; the distractors were Haider Ali 61-82, Mir Qasim 60-63 and Shah Alam II 60-06
- Prepare Jaipur (1727, grid, first planned city, Vidyadhar Bhattacharya), the Jantar Mantars and the Tipu 82-99 facts
- Sawai Jai Singh 99-43's roles 'astronomer and town planner' (the teacher drew arrows to Prelims)

MAINS HOOKS

- Teacher: very little for Mains; no Mains question is quoted

Block of Chapters 2 to 7: less important. Hold Jaipur, the Jantar Mantars and Tipu 82-99's embassies; Colachel 1741 is tested next door in Chapter 8.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: None of these three was ruled by the Mughals in the middle path, and each built State capacity in its own way: the Rajputs by bargaining, Travancore by trade, Mysore by a war machine; each ended up under EIC pressure.

1 Outside the middle path. These are the third class of regional States from Chapter 3: Already Autonomous States, where even when the Mughal was powerful he did not rule. The Rajputs were brought into the Mughal system but kept their homes, Travancore was never part of the Mughal Empire, and Mysore grew out of the Vijayanagar world.

→ Start in the north, with Akbar's deal.

2 Akbar's Rajput bargain. Rajputana had no single centre, only roughly 20 major clans (a multi-polar world). Defeating them all would be expensive and uncertain, so Akbar 56-05 co-opted the powerful chiefs as Mansabdars with Vatan Jagirs, and in return they accepted the Emperor, paid tribute and sent troops. They formed a Hindu bloc of about 15% of the Mansabdars, and Akbar helped them subdue smaller chiefs: a partial consolidation.

→ That held for most of the 17th century, until Aurangzeb.

3 1680. Mewar under Raj Singh began expanding aggressively, and Aurangzeb 58-07 grew uneasy at one Rajput power dominating Rajputana. In 1680 a child came to the throne of Marwar, which lay astride the trade route from Delhi and Agra to Ahmedabad, and Aurangzeb interfered. Marwar and Mewar revolted, but the other chiefs refused to join for fear of Mewar, and the revolt collapsed.

→ After 1707 the Rajputs went their own way.

4 Own terms, then new masters. After Aurangzeb's death in 1707 the Rajputs increasingly acted on their own terms, most prominently Sawai Jai Singh 99-43 of Amber. From 1751 the Marathas began regular raids for tribute but never fully conquered the region. After the Second Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05) the EIC replaced them and signed Subordinate Alliances: the ruler keeps his throne but surrenders foreign policy and defence.

→ One Rajput of that age deserves a close look.

5 Four hats. Sawai means 1.25 times more able than any contemporary ruler, a title from Aurangzeb 58-07. Jai Singh was a Mughal Mansabdar, state-builder, astronomer and town planner, Subedar of Malwa (1729-37) and Agra. His Hurda conference of 1734 collapsed, and the Treaty of Bhopal (1738) gave Malwa to the Marathas. He founded Jaipur in 1727 (Vidyadhar Bhattacharya, Vastu Shastra, grid, the first planned city of modern India), and was the last Indian ruler to perform the Ashvamedha and Vajapeya Yajnas.

→ His other passion was the sky.

6 Stone and sky. Five Jantar Mantars stand at Delhi (1724), Jaipur (1734), Ujjain, Mathura and Varanasi; Jaipur's is the largest, a UNESCO site (2010), and its Samrat Yantra measures time to 2 seconds. The old tables (Zij-i-Ulugh Begi, Siddhantic) had accumulated errors, so fresh observations gave the Zij-i-Muhammad Shahi (1733), dedicated to Muhammad Shah 19-48, and a delegation went to Portugal (1730). The Samrat, Jai Prakash and Ram Yantras were stone, not brass, for accuracy.

→ Now go south, where the Mughals never reached.

7 Travancore builds on trade. Marthanda Varma 29-58 subjugated local chiefs, built a centralised State and a European-style military, and held a State monopoly over the trade of the Malabar coast. The revenues went into the military, irrigation works and transport. In 1741 his army crushed the Dutch East India Company at Colachel, leaving them as mere merchants in Cochin; Bedara (1759) and the 1795 expulsion finished the Dutch.

→ But his successor chose art over arms.

8 Malabar slips, the Company arrives. Under Rama Varma 58-98 Travancore became a centre of art and scholarship but its military declined. In 1766 Haider Ali 61-82 annexed Malabar and Calicut, the heart of the spice trade. After 1798 British influence grew; in 1805 the Nair troops mutinied over unpaid salaries and Travancore signed a Subsidiary Alliance. In 1809 Velu Thampi Dalawa issued the Kundara Proclamation, and when it was suppressed he took his own life.

→ The man who took Malabar came from Mysore.

9 From Vijayanagar to Haider Ali. Mysore was part of the Vijayanagar Empire (1336-1646), which Deccan Sultanates shattered at Talikota in 1565. The Wodeyars then made Mysore autonomous, and Chikka Devaraja 72-04 Wodeyar made it militarily powerful. By 1761 a corrupt Prime Minister, NanjRaj, had made the Wodeyars figureheads, and Haider Ali 61-82, a junior officer, overthrew him and kept the Wodeyar as nominal head.

→ He needed an army and the money to pay it.

10 The machine and the money. With French help Haider Ali 61-82 built Risalas on a European model and spent roughly twenty years subjugating the Poligars and Deshmukhs. To pay for it Mysore practised Military Fiscalism: Khalisa land expanded, Jagirdari minimised, Deshmukhs removed so State officials collected directly, field surveys, canals, cash crops and sericulture.

→ His son took the machine abroad.

11 Tipu looks abroad. Tipu 82-99 ran a government-owned trading company with 30 centres including Muscat, and used indigenous iron-cased rockets (range 2 km) that inspired Congreve's. In 1785 he declared independence and asked the Khalifa for a sanad; he set up embassies in France, Turkey and Egypt (Prelims 2001). He also planted a Tree of Liberty and joined the Jacobin Club, but the French alliance gave no military support.

→ Ambition then met a bill it could not pay.

12 Why Mysore lost. Mysore wanted to dominate all of South India and its trade (Vijayanagar 2.0), but constant war drained the State faster than Military Fiscalism could refill it. The 1766 annexation of Malabar and Calicut triggered the First Anglo-Mysore War (1767-69), and four wars (1767-69, 1780-84, 1790-92, 1799) ended with Tipu 82-99's death at Seringapatam.

0 · Where these states fit

STORY LINK

Story so far: nothing yet. These three States stood outside the middle path of Mughal rule. Ask: which is Rajput, which southern, which grew from Vijayanagar?

TEACHER'S BOARD

[Part of the Vijayanagar empire, 1336-1646]. Mysore's roots are in the Vijayanagar Empire (section 6).

- These are the third class of regional States from Chapter 3: Already Autonomous States, where even when the Mughal was powerful he did not rule.
- The Rajputs were brought into the Mughal system by Akbar 56-05 but kept their home territories
- Travancore was never part of the Mughal Empire
- Mysore grew out of the Vijayanagar world

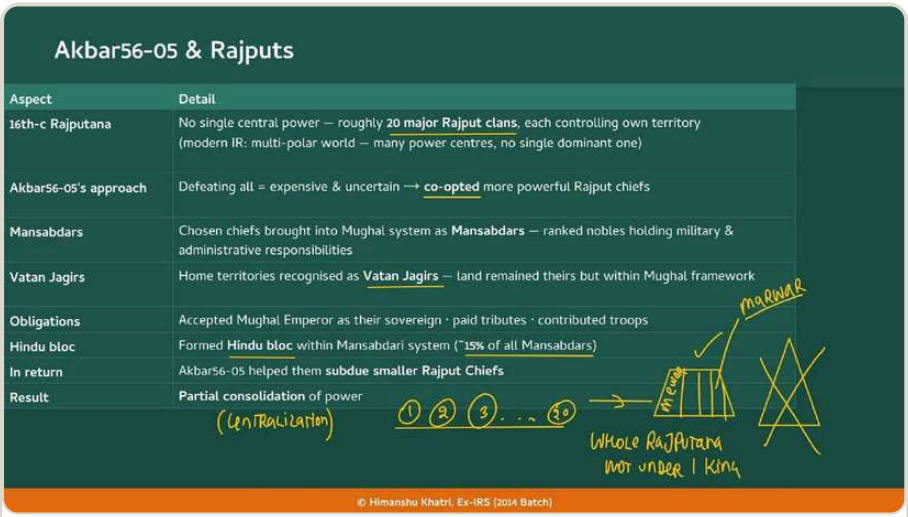
1 · Akbar 56-05 and the Rajputs

STORY LINK

Because Rajputana had no single centre and fighting all clans was costly, Akbar made a deal. Ask: what did each side get?



Akbar 56-05 and the Rajputs: Mansabdars and Vatan Jagirs Lecture 8 slide 54

Aspect	What happened
16th-century Rajputana	No single central power; roughly 20 major Rajput clans, each controlling its own territory (in modern IR terms a multi-polar world: many power centres, no single dominant one)
Akbar 56-05's approach	Defeating all would be expensive and uncertain, so he co-opted the more powerful Rajput chiefs
Mansabdars	The chosen chiefs became ranked nobles with military and administrative responsibilities
Vatan Jagirs	Their home territories were recognised as Vatan Jagirs: the land remained theirs but within the Mughal framework

Aspect	What happened
Obligations	Accepted the Mughal Emperor as sovereign, paid tributes, contributed troops
Hindu bloc	As a group they formed the Hindu bloc within the Mansabdari system (about 15% of all Mansabdars)
In return	Akbar 56-05 helped them subdue the smaller Rajput chiefs
Result	A partial consolidation of power

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 20 clans, with a few strong ones (Mewar, Marwar) swallowing the smaller: only a partial (Centralization).
- The whole of Rajputana was never under one king (no single pyramid of power).

2 · Rajputs against Aurangzeb 58-07, and the Marathas

STORY LINK

Because the bargain rested on balance, Mewar's growth upset it. Ask: why did the 1680 revolt collapse?

The 1680 Rajput revolt

- Mewar expands: under Raj Singh, aggressively against neighbouring Rajput states
- Aurangzeb 58-07 is uneasy: he did not want one Rajput power to dominate all Rajputana and rival the Mughals
- 1680, the trigger:
  - A child comes to the throne in Marwar (astride the Delhi/Agra to Ahmedabad trade route)
  - Aurangzeb 58-07 interferes in the succession
- Marwar and Mewar revolt
- The rebellion collapses: the other Rajput chiefs refuse to join, fearing Mewar would dominate them

Rajputana after Aurangzeb 58-07: Marathas, then Subordinate Alliances
Lecture 8 slide 56

- This arrangement held through most of the 17th century. Trouble came under Aurangzeb 58-07.
- Mewar, under Raj Singh, had been expanding aggressively against neighbouring Rajput states
- Aurangzeb 58-07 grew uneasy, not wanting one Rajput power to dominate Rajputana and rival the Mughal State
- 1680: a child came to the throne in Marwar, a kingdom astride the important trade route connecting Delhi and Agra to Ahmedabad.
- Aurangzeb 58-07 interfered in the succession: the trigger.
- Marwar and Mewar both revolted, but the revolt failed.
- The other Rajput chiefs refused to join, fearing that if the revolt succeeded Mewar would dominate them.
- After Aurangzeb 58-07's death in 1707 the Rajputs increasingly acted on their own terms.
- The most prominent figure was Sawai Jai Singh 99-43 of Amber, who ruled Jaipur and remained a powerful Mansabdar in Delhi, but on his own conditions.

Handout diagram 1: Rajputs from Akbar to the EIC
handout figure

- From 1751 the Marathas began regular raids into Rajputana, extracting tribute and interfering in succession disputes, but could never fully conquer the region.
- After the Second Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05) the EIC replaced the Marathas as the regional power and signed Subordinate Alliances (also called Subsidiary Alliances) with the Rajput states.

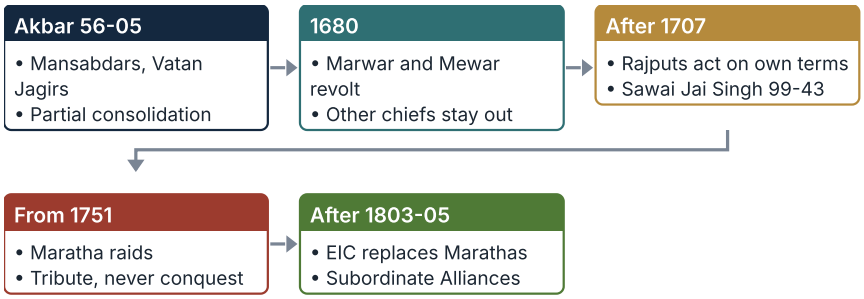
THE RAJPUTS UNDER THREE MASTERS



TEACHER'S BOARD

- Subordinate Alliance is like World History's Protectorate: the Indian ruler kept his throne but surrendered foreign policy and defence to the EIC, which stationed its own troops, paid for by the Indian ruler.
- Under suzerainty = loss of external sovereign functions plus loss of symbolic sovereignty.
- "Will do in future" (Subsidiary Alliance is taken up in Chapter 11).

3 · Sawai Jai Singh 99-43 of Amber (1699-1743)

STORY LINK

Because after 1707 the Rajputs acted on their own terms, one of them is worth knowing in detail. Ask: what are his four roles?

Aspect	Detail
"Sawai"	A title (1.25 times more able than any contemporary ruler) conferred by Aurangzeb 58-07
Four roles at once	Mughal Mansabdar, regional state-builder, astronomer and town planner

Treaty of Bhopal	1738: Malwa annexed by the Marathas (the teacher: Sawai Jai Singh 99-43 = the Mughal Governor of Malwa)

Aspect	Detail
Jaipur founded, 1727	Designed by Vidyadhar Bhattacharya on Vastu Shastra principles, grid-pattern layout; the first planned city of modern India; Sawai Ram Singh painted it pink in 1876 to welcome the Prince of Wales
Social reform	Tried to curb dowry and excessive marriage expenditure among Rajputs; limited success
Last Yajnas	The last Indian ruler to perform the Ashvamedha and Vajapeya Yajnas: a conscious assertion of Hindu Chakravartin status as Mughal authority collapsed

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Flagged: "astronomer and town planner" (for Prelims).

- Astronomical tables tell where a celestial body (sun, moon, planet, star) will be at any given date and time.
- The existing tables, the Zij-i-Ulugh Begi (Islamic) and the Siddhantic (Hindu), had accumulated errors over centuries.
- The Jantar Mantars generated fresh observational data to correct them in the form of the Zij-i-Muhammad Shahi (1733), dedicated to Muhammad Shah 19-48.
- He also sent a scientific delegation to Portugal (1730) and commissioned Sanskrit astronomical works.
- He chose stone instruments over brass for greater accuracy:

Instrument	Use

Jai Prakash Yantra	Celestial mapper
Ram Yantra	Altitude meter for the Sun's position

4 · Travancore: Marthanda Varma 29-58

STORY LINK

Because the Mughals never reached the far south, a small State could build itself on trade. Ask: where did the trade money go?

- Travancore was never part of the Mughal Empire.

- The Mughal State simply never expanded far enough south to include it.
- By the 1740s, Marthanda Varma 29-58 had built a strong, centralised State by subjugating local chiefs across the region, and a European-style military: modern weapons, trained soldiers.
- Takeaway: Travancore established a State monopoly over the trade of the Malabar coast.
- The revenues were reinvested into the military, irrigation works and transport infrastructure: a classic example of a small State using trade income to build State capacity.

4.1 Colachel 1741 and the fall of the Dutch

MNEMONIC · THE DUTCH FALL, IN ORDER

Crushed, Beaten, Expelled

- C Colachel 1741: crushed by Marthanda Varma 29-58, mere merchants in Cochin
- B Bedara 1759 (Chinsura): the EIC defeats the Dutch in Bengal
- E 1795: final expulsion from South Asia (Ceylon)

Order kept: Kerala, then Bengal, then all of South Asia.

Year	Event
Since 1663	The Dutch East India Company's Malabar headquarters at Cochin (central Kerala), captured from the Portuguese
1741	Battle of Colachel: a landmark in the history of Kerala; Marthanda Varma 29-58's army crushed the Dutch East India Company
Effect	Terminal: it permanently ended Dutch political and military ambitions in Kerala, reducing them to mere merchants in Cochin
1759	Battle of Bedara (also called Battle of Chinsura): the British EIC defeated the Dutch in Bengal, crushing their remaining ambitions in India
1795	Final expulsion from South Asia by the British (Ceylon / Sri Lanka)

5 · Travancore against Mysore and the EIC

STORY LINK

Because the military declined after Marthanda Varma, the neighbours and then the Company moved in. Ask: which year did Malabar go?

- Under Rama Varma 58-98 Travancore became a centre of art and scholarship, but military strength declined.
- The consequences were quick: in 1766 Haider Ali 61-82 of Mysore annexed Malabar and Calicut.
- (Malabar was the heart of the spice trade: pepper, cardamom, ginger.
- Whoever controlled Malabar's ports controlled a significant share of Indian Ocean commerce, which is why both Mysore and the British were so interested.)
- After 1798 Travancore came steadily under British influence.

Travancore's loss of independence

- 1805 Nair mutiny: troops unpaid
- Travancore seeks British help
- In return it signs the Subsidiary Alliance (1805): independence effectively ends
- Anger:
  - Heavy financial burden and interference in internal affairs
  - Velu Thampi Dalawa leads resistance
- 1809 revolt: against the British Resident, Kundara Proclamation calls the people to rise
- Suppressed: Velu Thampi, seeing no escape, takes his own life

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A light note: Shashi Tharoor is from the Nair community.
- Dalawa = Prime Minister and Chief of the Armed Forces
- books may use Dewan for the PM of a State subordinated by the British = Head of all administration (revenue, civil, police, criminal justice), the military being with the British

Handout diagram 2: Travancore handout figure

- Handout:
  - One of the earliest organised resistance movements by an Indian ruler against the Subsidiary Alliance system
  - Directly tested in UPSC.

6 · Mysore: from Vijayanagar to Haider Ali 61-82

STORY LINK

Because Vijayanagar broke at Talikota, Mysore became autonomous, and a strongman took it over. Ask: how did Haider Ali rise?

- Mysore was part of the Vijayanagar Empire (1336-1646).
- The Empire's effective power was shattered at the Battle of Talikota (also called Rakkasa-Tangadi) in 1565, when a coalition of Deccan Sultanates decisively defeated Vijayanagar.
- The dynasty lingered until 1646, but 1565 marks the operational end of Vijayanagar as a major power.
- After Vijayanagar's decline Mysore gradually became autonomous under the Wodeyar dynasty.
- Under Chikka Devaraja 72-04 Wodeyar (1672-1704) it was militarily powerful and centrally governed.
- By 1761 the Wodeyars had been reduced to figureheads by a powerful and corrupt Prime Minister, NanjRaj.
- Haider Ali 61-82 ended that. He began as a junior military officer, his early career made possible partly because the Wodeyars had helped pay off his family's debts.
- Capable, ambitious and strategic, in 1761 he overthrew NanjRaj and seized effective power, keeping the Wodeyar as a nominal head of State.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Pattern at the 18th century: the king becomes a puppet as personality weakens.
- Recall the Peshwa and Chhatrapati (Chapter 4).

6.1 Haider Ali 61-82's military machine

- Haider Ali 61-82 took French assistance for military training, technology transfer and organisational reform.
- The army was now on a European model, organised into Risalas (regiments): Each Risala's commander was directly appointed by the King, ensuring personal loyalty upward. Each unit had a clear chain of command. Each was self-sufficient: its own weapons, transport and supplies (recall the Campoo system of Scindia, Chapter 4). Result: a fast, efficient military with regiments capable of independent action.
- He then spent roughly twenty years subjugating the Poligars (local chiefs and landlords who controlled land, the wealth of temples and had their own armed men, the real rulers of the countryside since the Vijayanagar era) and the Deshmukhs (revenue collectors who functioned like primary zamindars). Non-State power was systematically dismantled.

6.2 How Mysore funded this machine: Military Fiscalism

Policy	Effect
Khalisa land expanded	More revenue went directly to the State treasury
Jagirdari minimised	Maximised State income, reducing the nobles' independent economic power
Direct collection	Deshmukhs removed as intermediaries; State officials collected taxes and got salaries (far smaller than commissions)

Policy	Effect
Detailed field surveys	Assessed LR by soil fertility, crop type, irrigation access and past production trends; prevented over-assessment
Investing in agriculture	Canals repaired and built; cash crops promoted; sericulture introduced
Boosted tax collection	More peasant income meant a larger tax base; even enemies admitted Mysore's population was among the most prosperous

- These policies are called Military Fiscalism: the systematic generation of State wealth as a foundation for military power.
- (The handout's analogy: replacing a commission-based agent with a salaried employee; the State kept far more of the revenue.)
- Khalisa land = land whose revenue went directly to the State treasury.
- Jagirdari land = land whose revenue was assigned to nobles or commanders.

7 · Tipu 82-99 Sultan (1782-99): innovations and why he still lost

> STORY LINK
> Because his father built the machine, Tipu took it abroad and also overreached. Ask: which innovation answers Prelims 2001?

- Modern navy and trading company: a government-owned trading company modelled on the EIC, trading in sandalwood, sulphur, rice, pepper, silk and cardamom, with 30 trading centres inside and outside India, including Muscat, Oman.
- (Before the age of machines a "factory" meant a warehouse or trading depot, not a production facility; a trading settlement meant warehouses, homes, offices and sometimes a fort. Details in Chapter 8.)
- Iron-cased rocket artillery:
    - Developed by Haider Ali 61-82 and Tipu 82-99, 100% indigenous, range 2 km
    - the iron cylinder casings did not burst and could take high pressure compared with cardboard-cased rockets (fireworks), which existed for centuries in India and China
- The British studied them closely: William Congreve's rockets, deployed in the early 19th century, drew directly from Tipu 82-99's designs.
- 1785: Tipu 82-99 formally declared independence from both the Wodeyars and the Mughal Emperor, and requested a sanad from the Khalifa recognising him as independent of Mughal authority.
- Modern embassies in France, Turkey and Egypt, alongside new coinage and the Mauludi Lunisolar Calendar.

MNEMONIC · TIPU 82-99'S FOUR INNOVATIONS

T I E R

Tipu raised Mysore to a new TIER with four innovations.

T Trading company: government-owned, 30 centres including Muscat

I Independence 1785, with a sanad requested from the Khalifa

E Embassies in France, Turkey and Egypt

R Rockets: iron-cased, range 2 km

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

7.1 Tipu 82-99 and Revolutionary France

- In the 1790s Tipu 82-99 sent an ambassador to France seeking military technology and a formal alliance against the British.
- Since 1789 the French Revolution had set France on a collision course with the monarchies of Europe, including Britain (the 23-year wars, 1792-1815).
- In 1798 Napoleon attacked Egypt and the Middle East, partly to disrupt British trade in the Arabian Sea.
- Tipu 82-99 exchanged communications with Napoleon and planted a Tree of Liberty in Mysore (a symbol of the French Revolution), and joined the Jacobin Club.
- The alliance did not materialise into military support.
- The British were alarmed, and it became a reason for the Fourth Anglo-Mysore War of 1799.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2001: who established embassies in foreign countries on modern lines? (d) Tipu 82-99 Sultan.
- Embassies in France, Turkey and Egypt, plus new coinage and the Mauludi Lunisolar Calendar.
- Jacobin membership and the Tree of Liberty made him an ideological adversary to the British, not merely a military one.

7.2 Why Mysore lost

- Mysore's long-term ambition was to dominate all of South India and control its international trade (Vijayanagar 2.0).
- But constant warfare against neighbouring Indian powers and the EIC drained the State's resources faster than Military Fiscalism could replenish them.
- The ambition was real

- The capacity, ultimately, was not enough
- 1766: Haider Ali 61-82 annexed Malabar and Calicut, triggering the First Anglo-Mysore War (1767-69), as the EIC feared losing coastal trade access through Malabar.
- Four Anglo-Mysore Wars: 1767-69, 1780-84, 1790-92, 1799.

NUMBER CARD · THE FOUR ANGLO-MYSORE WARS

6 7 · 8 0 · 9 0 · 9 9

The last war is the shortest: a single year.

1767-69 First war, after Haider Ali 61-82's 1766 annexation of Malabar and Calicut

1780-84 Second war

1790-92 Third war

1799 Fourth war: Tipu 82-99 dies at Seringapatam

- The Fourth (1799) ended with Tipu 82-99's death at Seringapatam
- Mysore's power was broken

HANDOUT NOTE

Conflict on Travancore: the handout (section 7) says Haider Ali 61-82 in 1766 "invaded Travancore and annexed Malabar and Calicut"; section 4 and the slide say he annexed Malabar and Calicut and "could not successfully invade Travancore." Use the slide: Malabar and Calicut annexed; Travancore not successfully invaded.

Mysore's rise and fall

- 1761 Haider Ali 61-82 overthrows NanjRaj
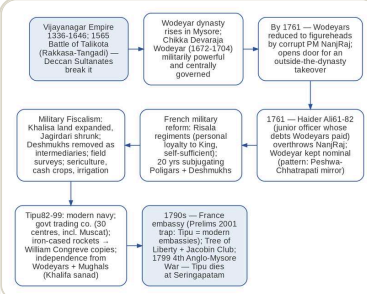
- The Wodeyar stays nominal
- French-assisted Risalas: self-sufficient regiments under commanders loyal to the King
- Military Fiscalism: Khalisa expanded, Deshmukhs removed, surveys, canals, sericulture: wealth for war
- Tipu 82-99: navy, government trading company, iron-cased rockets, 1785 independence, modern embassies, French link



Handout diagram 3: Mysore's rise and collapse handout figure

- Overreach:
  - Ambition to dominate all South India (Vijayanagar 2.0)
  - Constant war drains the State faster than fiscalism refills it
- 1799:
  - Fourth Anglo-Mysore War, Tipu 82-99 dies at Seringapatam

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Who set up which factory or fort, roughly when, and in what order: Portuguese 1498-1500, Dutch 1605, English 1611, Danish 1620, French 1664/1668 (the teacher's three asks on slide 22)
- Two named traps: St Francis Xavier died at Shangchuan Island, not Goa (Prelims 2021); the Dutch got no land from the Gajapati dynasty (Prelims 2022)
- 1612 versus 1613: Swally is the battle, the Royal Farman for a permanent Surat factory is the next year; Roe's Farman is 1618
- The Portuguese milestones: Cochin 1500, Fort Manuel 1503, Blue Water and Cartaz under Almeida 05-09, Goa 1510 under Albuquerque 09-15, HQ to Goa 1530
- The EIC's Charters (1600, 1609, 1657, 1661, 1793), the three Presidencies and the Pondicherry occupiers sequence; the 16 PYQs from 1995 to 2025 are worked in section 21

MAINS HOOKS

- No Mains PYQ is mapped here: this is a Prelims chapter (the exam lens lists only Prelims 2021 and 2022 under traps)
- What to prepare for understanding: why Europeans came for Indian finished goods, and why trade, not empire, was the first aim
- Why a State enterprise (Portugal) lost to joint-stock companies (Dutch, English), and why Indian merchants could not dominate the new routes
- How the 1661 Charter gave a company State-like powers: the root of the EIC becoming a ruler

Europeans came for Asia's goods, the Portuguese won the sea with a navy and a State, the Dutch and English companies took over with capital and Charters, and the EIC's 1661 powers turned a trader into a ruler.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Europe wanted Asia's goods, the Ottomans closed the land road, and the Portuguese opened the sea road as a State enterprise. The Dutch and English companies, backed by capital and Charters, took the sea from them, and the EIC's 1661 powers started the shift from trader to ruler.

1. Why Asia? Asia was the economic power of the world: Indonesia gave spices, India textiles, China silk and tea. Arabs and the merchants of Genoa and Venice carried them to a Europe that was not wealthy, and each handoff made huge profit. Da Gama's 1498 cargo sold at 800% profit, and in the 1600s a kilogram of clove cost the equivalent of a kilogram of gold.

   → But in 1453 the road was cut.

2. The road closes. In 1453 the Ottoman Empire captured Constantinople and (the teacher corrects it to 'effectively') blockaded the land routes between Europe and Asia. Necessity drove the Age of Discovery, led first by Portugal and Spain. The era gave the astrolabe, the magnetic compass, latitudes and longitudes, geography as a discipline and the caravel, a ship that could sail at an angle against the wind.

   → Two rivals now claimed one ocean, and someone had to draw a line.

3. The line. Pope Alexander VI mediated the Treaty of Tordesillas in 1494. An imaginary line in the Atlantic, about 1,185 miles west of the Cape Verde Islands, gave lands to the east to Portugal and lands to the west to Spain. Brazil's eastern tip fell on the Portuguese side, so Brazil became the only Portuguese colony in the Americas.

   → Armed with the line, Portugal sent Da Gama round Africa.

4. Calicut and Cochin. Da Gama reached Calicut in 1498 and got permission to trade from the Zamorin, but faced Arab opposition and left without a factory. In 1500 Cabral set up the first factory at Calicut, which Arab merchants destroyed, and then the first permanent factory at Cochin under the Raja of Cochin's protection. In 1502 Da Gama bombarded Calicut, and in 1503 Albuquerque built Fort Manuel at Cochin, the first European fort in India.

   → Now Portugal needed a way to hold the sea.

5. Blue water, then Goa. Almeida 05-09, the first Governor, chose naval supremacy over territory (the Blue Water Policy) and forced every non-Portuguese ship to buy a Cartaz. In 1509 he beat a coalition of Gujarat, Mamluk Egypt and the Zamorin at Diu. Albuquerque 09-15 took Goa from the Sultan of Bijapur in 1510, a rare land conquest, and Nuno da Cunha 29-38 moved the HQ to Goa in 1530 and acquired Bassein (1534) and Diu (1535).

   → But a State trading empire built on force carried the seeds of its own fall.

6. The fall of the Portuguese. The Goa Inquisition (1560-1812) and forced conversions bred resistance. St Francis Xavier, who spearheaded conversions, died on Shangchuan Island in 1552, not Goa. The causes of decline were political (the Marathas), religious backlash, corruption and personal trade, the English and Dutch, and overextension with Brazil as the priority.

   → Those English and Dutch were already at the gates.

7. The companies arrive. After the English beat the Spanish Armada in 1588, British and Dutch ships could sail to Asia. The VOC was founded in 1602 by merging six companies and was the first joint-stock company with tradable shares. It reached Masulipatnam in 1605 and took Cochin in 1663. It was beaten at Colachel in 1741 by Marthanda Varma 29-58 and at Bedara in 1759, lost its posts through the Kew Letters of 1795 and was dissolved in 1799.

   → The English company had its own Charter ladder to climb.

8 A licence that became power. The English EIC began on 31 December 1600 under a Royal Charter of Elizabeth I 58-03, a 15-year monopoly pooled from 215 London merchants. James I 03-25 made it perpetual in 1609 and Cromwell 51-60 made it a permanent joint-stock company in 1657. The 1661 Charter of Charles II 60-85 gave it forts, troops, war and peace and civil and criminal jurisdiction, so it became a quasi-State.

→ With those powers it needed a base on the west coast.

9 Surat, Swally and Roe. In 1608 Hawkins went to Jahangir 05-27's court for a Surat factory but was expelled under Portuguese pressure. The lesson was to defeat Portugal first, and in 1612 Thomas Best won the Battle of Swally. Jahangir then issued a Royal Farman in 1613 for a permanent factory at Surat, and Thomas Roe (1615-19) won the Farman of 1618 for liberal trading rights across the Mughal Empire.

→ One more royal wedding moved the base to Bombay.

10 Presidencies. In 1661 Catherine of Braganza's dowry gave England Bombay and Tangier and 500,000 pounds, and in 1668 the Crown gave Bombay to the EIC for 10 pounds a year. The EIC's first Presidency was Surat (1618), then Madras (1652/1653), Bombay (1687) and Calcutta (1699/1700), each named after its fort. Each began as a trade HQ and grew into a province of British India.

→ Two smaller rivals were left in the field.

11 Danes, French and the order. The Danes (company 1616, Tranquebar 1620, Serampore 1755) sold their mainland posts to Britain by 1845. The French company (1664) opened at Surat in 1668 and acquired Pondicherry in 1674, which Francois Martin 01-06 made the capital in 1701. Pondicherry's occupiers ran Portuguese, Danes, French, Dutch, English, then India in 1954, so the order of arrival is a favourite Prelims test.

In simple words

- Asia had what Europe wanted: spices from Indonesia, textiles from India, silk and tea from China. Arabs and the traders of Genoa and Venice carried them, and the Ottoman capture of Constantinople (1453) made Europe look for a new sea route.
- Portugal and Spain split the new world at Tordesillas (1494). Vasco Da Gama reached Calicut in 1498, and the Portuguese then ran trade as a State enterprise (the Estado da India) through forts, a navy, the Cartaz pass and Goa (1510).
- After the English beat the Spanish Armada (1588), the Dutch VOC (1602) and the English EIC (Charter of 1600) broke the Portuguese-Spanish monopoly. These were joint-stock companies, not State enterprises.
- The EIC beat the Portuguese at Swally (1612), won a Farman for Surat (1613), and got liberal trading rights through Roe (1618). The 1661 Charter then gave it forts, troops, war and peace, making it a quasi-State.
- The EIC built three Presidencies (Madras, Bombay, Calcutta; Surat first). The Dutch fell at Colachel (1741) and Bedara (1759), the Danes and French stayed small, and Pondicherry (1674) became the French centre.

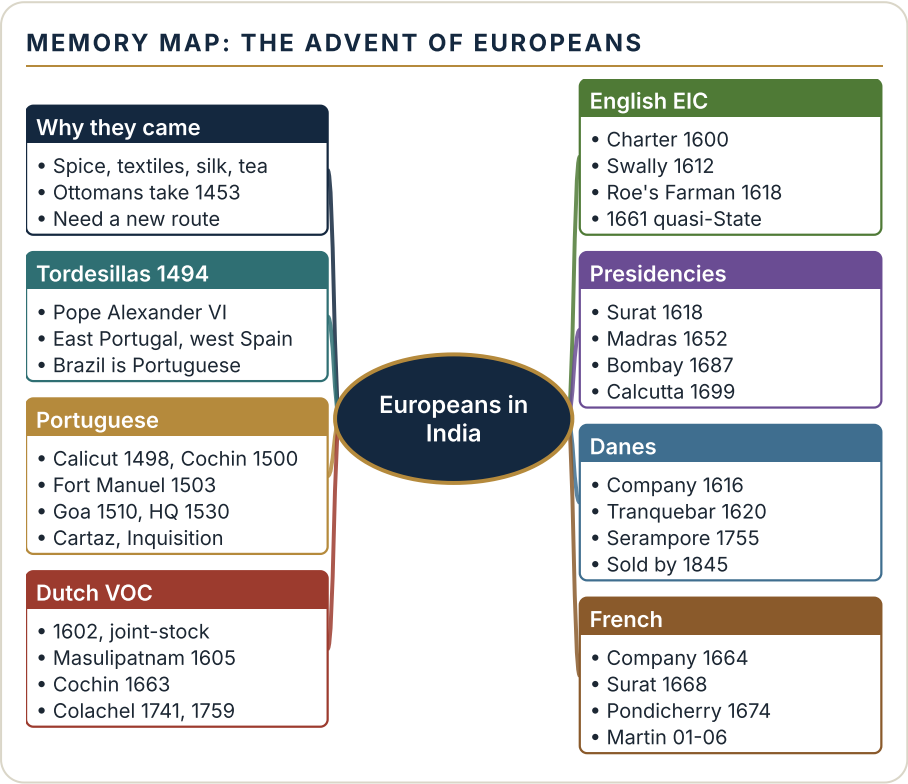
Key term	In plain words
Estado da India	The Portuguese State enterprise in Asia, directly controlled by the Crown: the government itself was the trader
Factory	In this period a trading post: warehouses, offices and homes for factors, and often a fort; not a manufacturing unit
Depot / Factory / Settlement	Warehouse only / commercial hub with agents / small territorial colony with civil and town administration
Cartaz	A naval pass that all non-Portuguese ships had to buy to sail safely in the Indian Ocean: a toll booth on the sea
Blue Water Policy	Portuguese focus on naval supremacy in the oceans rather than territorial conquest (Goa 1510 was the exception)
Treaty of Tordesillas	1494 line about 1,185 miles west of the Cape Verde Islands: east to Portugal, west to Spain
Farman / Parwana / Nishan	Imperial decree by the Emperor / Provincial decree by a Governor / Princely decree by a prince
Royal Charter	A licence from the Monarch; if not renewed the company would legally cease to exist
Joint-stock company	A company that pools capital from many shareholders who own shares but do not manage; the VOC (1602) was the first

Key term	In plain words
Presidency	A regional headquarters of EIC trade, named after its major fort; later grew into a province of British India
Crown Colony	A territory ruled directly by the British government through an appointed Governor; Ceylon, not run by the EIC
Kew Letters	1795 orders from Prince William V 51-95 telling Dutch governors to hand their territories to the British for safekeeping

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS Europeans came for Asia's goods; the Portuguese won the sea as a State, the Dutch and English companies won it with capital and Charters, and the 1661 Charter let the EIC fight and rule like a State.

Routes	China: land route (the Silk Route). India and Indonesia: a mix of land and sea, through the Middle East and the Arabian Sea
Who controlled trade	Arab traders dominated the Arabian Sea leg. Then Italian merchants of Genoa and Venice carried goods across the Mediterranean into Europe. Both earned enormous profits at each handoff

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Over Indonesia:
  - "islands." Trade = two funnels (Mediterranean Sea and Arabian Sea) meeting at a point
  - The "new route" from Europe (Portugal) goes round the Cape of Good Hope (CoGH).

Who gained: the teacher's board on "no political control"

TEACHER'S BOARD

- No political control (no colonialism or imperialism) = trade was good for India.
- [1757:
  - Colonialism began
  - Goa an exception.] Imp: Europeans came to purchase Indian FINISHED GOODS
  - there was competition among Europeans and between Arabs and Europeans.
- Good for:
  - Exports of India
  - Forex for India
  - Strength of Indian kingdoms
  - India getting a BETTER PRICE
  - Indian merchants
  - Indian artisans

Flow of goods on the teacher's board

- Ryots and artisans (villages) produce
- Indian merchant (city, town) collects and sells inside Indian territory: domestic trade
- Coastal area: goods meet Arabs / Europeans: international trade
- Europeans pay export duty (tax) to the Indian ruler
- OUT OF INDIA

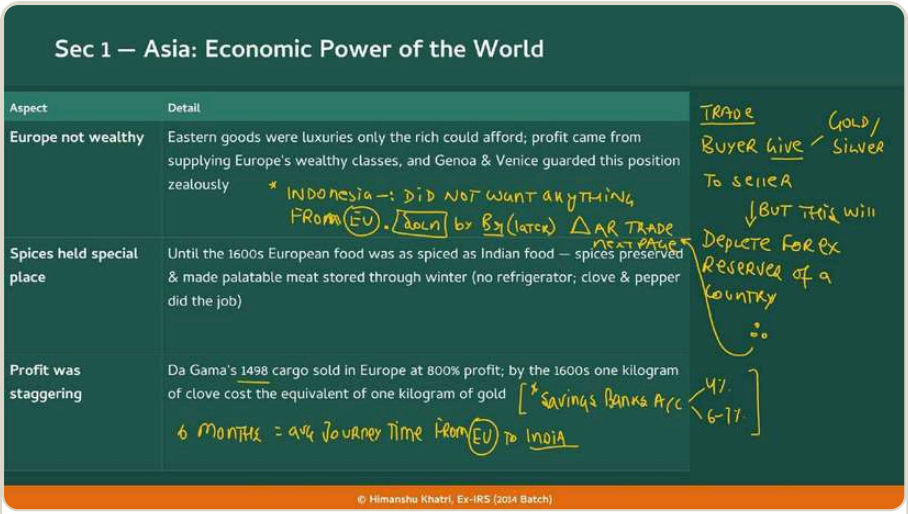
Europe was not wealthy; spices and the 800% profit



Europe not wealthy; spices; 800% profit Lecture 10 slide 5

Aspect	Detail
Europe was not wealthy	Eastern goods were luxuries only the rich could afford. A common European could not afford Indian cotton or Chinese silk. The profit came from supplying Europe's wealthy classes, and Genoa and Venice guarded this position zealously
Spices held a special place	Until the 1600s European food was as spiced as Indian food. Spices preserved and made palatable the meat stored through winter (no industrial refrigerator: clove and pepper did the job)
Profit was staggering	Da Gama's 1498 cargo sold in Europe at 800% profit; by the 1600s, 1 kg of clove cost the equivalent of 1 kg of gold

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 6 months = average journey time from EU to India.
- Indonesia did not want anything from the EU (see the triangle trade).
- Trade: a buyer gives Gold or Silver to the seller, which depletes the forex reserves of a country.
- Side note:
  - [Savings Bank A/c: 4%
  - 6-7%] (a comparison of rates of return; the handout does not explain it)

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout's aside: had the present been the 1650s, most of us would have been "spitting gold" as children, with the cloves our mothers tucked into rice that we picked out and pushed to the side of the plate. (memory hook for clove = gold)

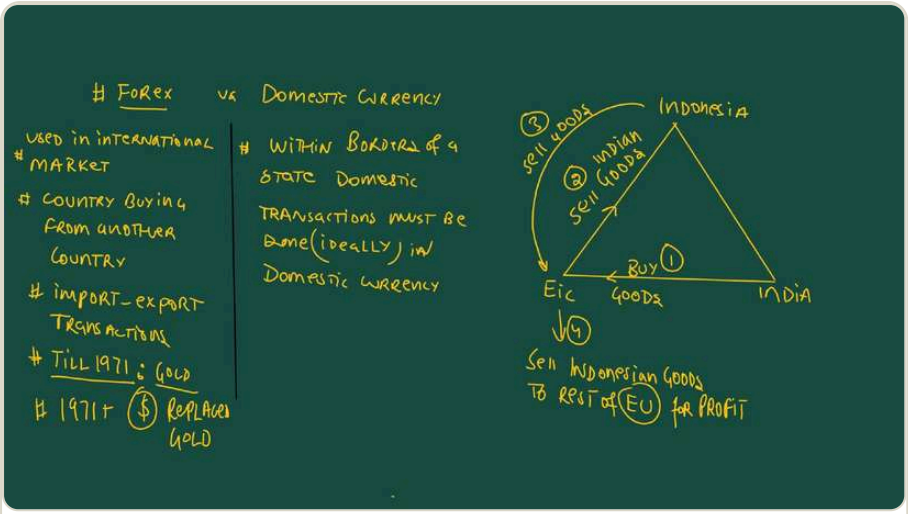
Forex versus domestic currency, and the triangle



Forex versus domestic currency; triangle trade Lecture 10 slide 6

Forex	Domestic currency
Used in the international market; a country buying from another country; import-export transactions	Within the borders of a state, domestic transactions must be done (ideally) in domestic currency
Till 1971: Gold. 1971 onwards: the Dollar replaced Gold

The EIC triangle trade (teacher's triangle)

- (1) Buy goods: the EIC buys goods (cloth) from India
- (2) Sell Indian goods: the EIC sells Indian goods to Indonesia
- (3) Sell goods: Indonesian goods (spices) come back to the EIC
- (4) The EIC sells Indonesian goods to the rest of Europe for profit
- Shift over time: as European incomes rose in the 17th and 18th centuries and spices became more widely available, Indian cotton textiles became the most sought-after commodity from the East.
- But in the beginning it was spice that started everything.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Demand rose "as people came out of poverty / as the size of the middle class expanded" (incomes rose).

2 · The Ottoman blockade (1453) and the Age of Discovery

STORY LINK

Because the land road closed in 1453, Europe had to find a sea road. Ask: which two powers led, and which inventions made the voyage possible?

Aspect	Detail
1453: interruption	The Ottoman Empire captured Constantinople (today's Istanbul) and blockaded the traditional land trade routes connecting Europe to Asia. European traders needed a new way east
Age of Discovery (16th century)	This necessity became the engine of one of history's great turning points. European powers, led initially by Portugal and Spain, sent ships into the Atlantic searching for a direct sea route to the East
What the era gave (1)	Better use of the astrolabe (location) and the magnetic compass (direction)
What the era gave (2)	The system of latitudes and longitudes and the modern world map
What the era gave (3)	Geography as a formal discipline
What the era gave (4)	The invention of the Caravel: a ship able to sail at an angle against the wind

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Blockaded "effectively," not literally: the Ottomans demanded a share of the profits on trade, making trade unviable for Europeans.
- Caravel: sails at an angle to the wind.

The Caravel and routes after the Age of Discovery Lecture 10 slide 12

3 · Treaty of Tordesillas, 1494

STORY LINK

Because two powers claimed the same ocean, a Pope drew a line. Ask: which side of the line is Brazil, and why?

Term	Provision
Rivalry and mediator	Portugal and Spain competed over who owned the new sea routes and lands. Pope Alexander VI mediated the Treaty of Tordesillas in 1494
The line	An imaginary line in the Atlantic Ocean, about 1,185 miles west of the Cape Verde Islands
East	Lands EAST of the line went to Portugal
West	Lands WEST of the line went to Spain
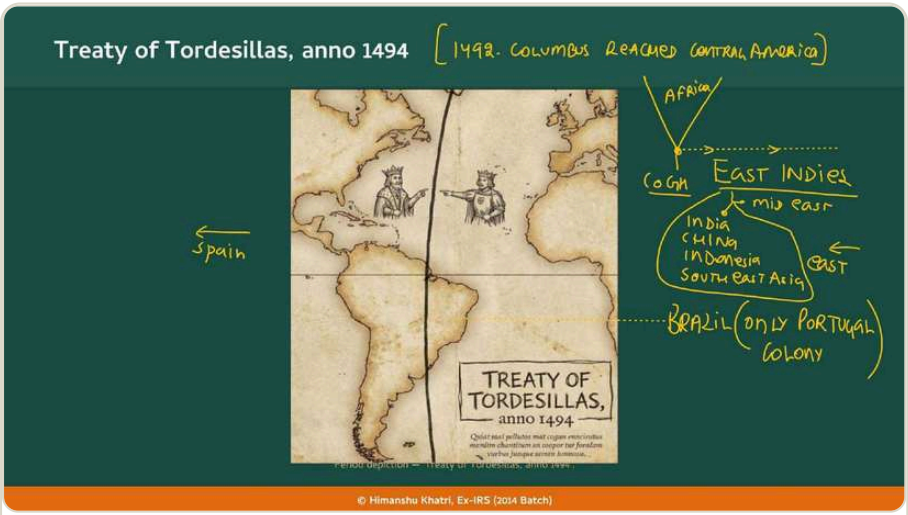
Why Brazil is Portuguese	Brazil's eastern tip fell on the Portuguese side, so it became the only Portuguese colony in the Americas; the rest of the continent became Spanish

Cape Verde islands, the Tordesillas reference point Lecture 10 slide 14



Tordesillas map: Spain west, Portugal east Lecture 10 slide 15

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1492: Columbus reached Central America (Spain went west).
- Portugal went east round the Cape of Good Hope to the "East Indies" = mid-east, India, China, Indonesia and South East Asia.
- Brazil = the only Portugal colony (in the Americas).

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout defines the East Indies as all lands east of the Cape of Good Hope.

- Pope Alexander VI mediates

- East of the line: Portugal
- West of the line: Spain
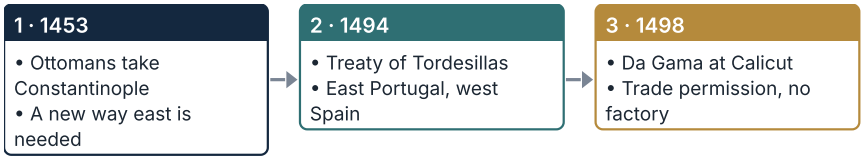
- Brazil's eastern tip falls on the Portuguese side: the only Portuguese colony in the Americas

FROM BLOCKADE TO CALICUT

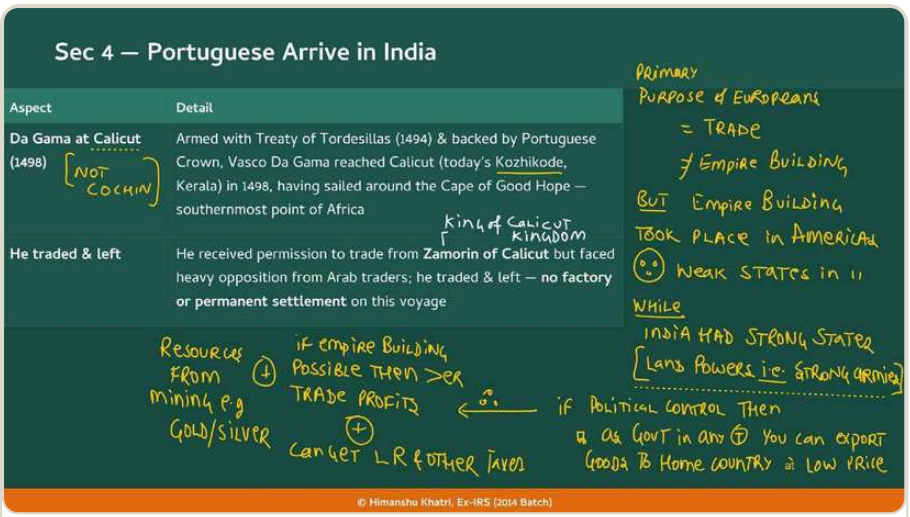


4 · The Portuguese in India

STORY LINK

Because Tordesillas gave them the east, the Portuguese reached India first. Ask: how did a State, not a company, run the trade?

4.0 · Da Gama at Calicut (1498)



Portuguese arrive: Da Gama at Calicut, 1498 Lecture 10 slide 16

Aspect	Detail
Da Gama at Calicut (1498)	Armed with the Treaty of Tordesillas (1494) and backed by the Portuguese Crown, Vasco Da Gama reached Calicut (Kozhikode, Kerala) in 1498, sailing round the Cape of Good Hope, the southernmost point of Africa
He traded and left	Received permission to trade from the Zamorin of Calicut but faced heavy opposition from Arab traders. No factory or permanent settlement on this voyage

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout adds: the Cape was named "Cape of Good Hope" by Portugal's King John II, as it represented hope of finally finding a sea route to India.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Board:
  - "NOT COCHIN." Da Gama landed at Calicut (1498)
  - the first permanent factory was at Cochin (1500)
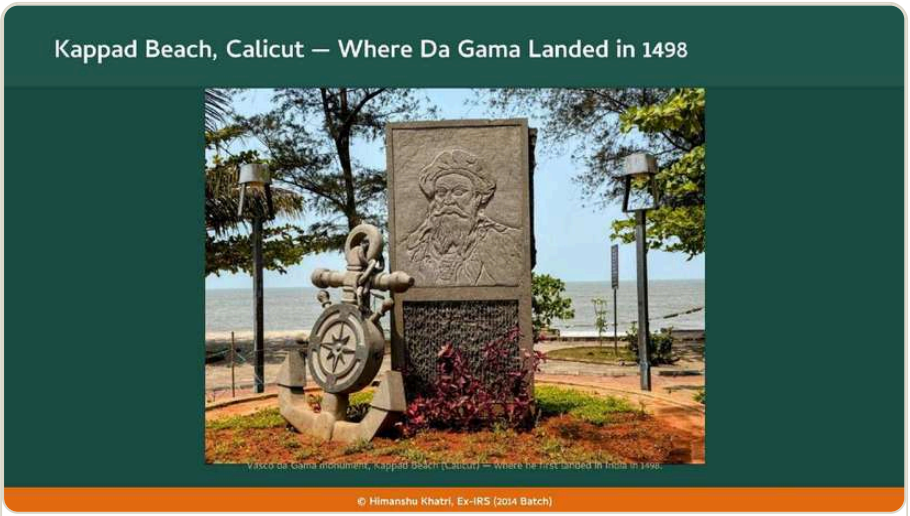
- Zamorin = "King of Calicut kingdom."



Vasco da Gama monument, Kappad Beach Lecture 10 slide 17

Why trade, not empire? (the teacher's board)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Primary purpose of Europeans = Trade, not empire building.
- Empire building happened in the Americas (weak states)
- India had strong states (land powers, i.e. strong armies).
- Gains of empire building:
  - Resources from mining (gold, silver)
  - Greater trade profits (+)
  - Land revenue (LR) and other taxes
- With political control, as government in any territory, you can export goods to the home country at a low price.

Kappad Beach, Calicut: Da Gama's landing handout figure

- Why South India was vulnerable (handout): when the Portuguese arrived, the Mughal Empire (1526-1858) did not yet exist in India.
- South India was divided between the Vijayanagara Empire (1336-1646) and the Deccan Sultanates, without a unified central naval power.
- This fragmentation let the Portuguese dominate trade and some territory in the 16th century.
- Character of the Portuguese approach: part commerce, part conquest, part coercion.

West coast map with European settlement dates Lecture 10 slide 10

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Learn the west coast north to south: Diu, Surat, Daman, Bombay, Goa, Mahe, Calicut, Cochin, Travancore. Also on the map: Broach/Bharuch.
- Calicut = small kingdom
- Cochin = small kingdom on the northern border of Travancore.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Map dates: Diu 1535 (P), Surat 1612 (British), Daman 1558 (P), Bassein 1533 (P), Bombay 1638 (B), Goa 1610 (P), Cannanore 1501 (P), Mahe 1725 (French), Calicut 1498 (P), Cochin 1500 (P; Dutch 1669), Colombo 1505 (P; Dutch 1656).
- These differ from the handout text (Goa 1610 on the map against 1510 in the text; Bombay 1638 against 1668).
- Use the handout text and tables (T1) for exam dates
- use the map for locating places

4.1 · Structure of trade: a State enterprise

- Unlike the private joint-stock companies the British and Dutch later set up, Portuguese trade was a State enterprise called the Estado da India, directly controlled by the Portuguese Crown through its official administration.
- The Portuguese government was the trader.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Estado da India = "like a PSU / Govt." English EIC and Dutch VOC = private companies.
- French EIC = initially private
- Later taken over by the French Govt.

Depot, Factory, Settlement

- In this period a "factory" did not mean a manufacturing unit.
- It was a trading post: warehouses for storing goods, offices for trade, homes for company employees, and often a fort for protection.
- The word comes from "factor," a merchant agent
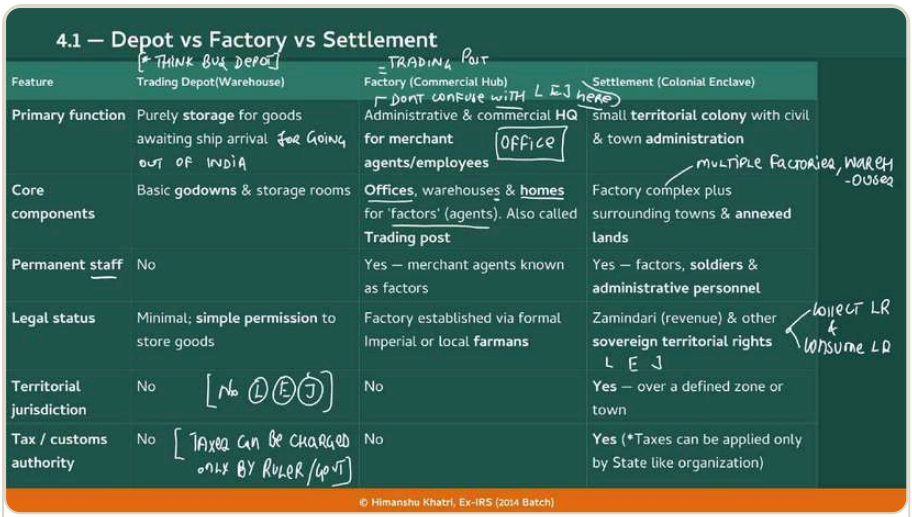
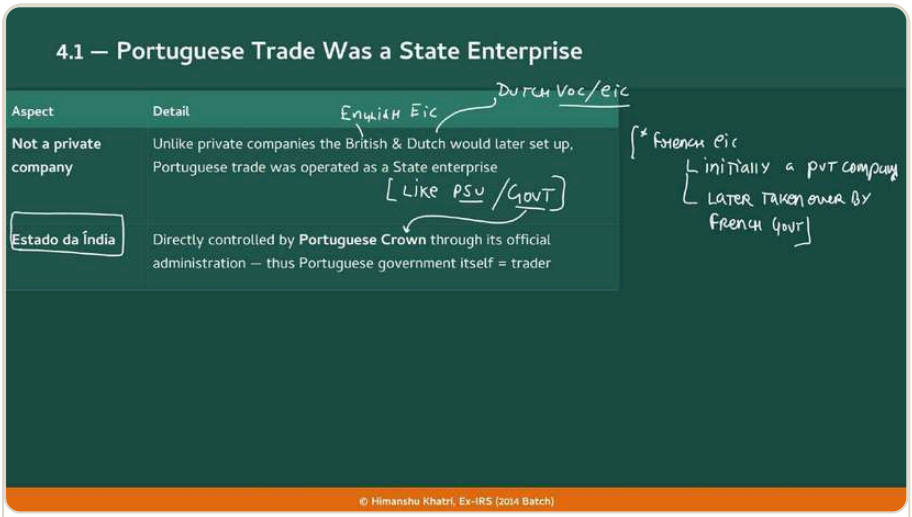
- the factory was where factors worked



Depot vs Factory vs Settlement Lecture 10 slide 18



Portuguese trade: a State enterprise (Estado da India) Lecture 10 slide 21

Featur e	Trading Depot (Warehouse)	Factory (Commercial Hub)	Settlement (Colonial Enclave)

DEPOT, FACTORY, SETTLEMENT

Three kinds of trading base

- Rising order of control

@ Depot

- Warehouse only
- No permanent staff
- Unfortified, low guards

STORE: goods wait for the ship

@ Factory

- Offices, godowns, homes
- Factors (merchant agents)
- Often fortified

OFFICE: where factors work

@ Settlement

- Small territorial colony
- Soldiers and administrators
- Heavily fortified

STATE: Goa, Pondicherry, Calcutta

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Depot = "think bus depot": "for going out of India" (goods waiting for the ship).
- Factory = trading post
- Function "Office." Settlement = multiple factories and warehouses
- "collects LR (land revenue) and consumes LR." Don't confuse with "LEJ" here: a depot has no (L)egislative, (E)xecutive, (J)udicial jurisdiction
- A settlement has sovereign territorial rights, L E J.
- Taxes can be charged only by the Ruler / Govt.

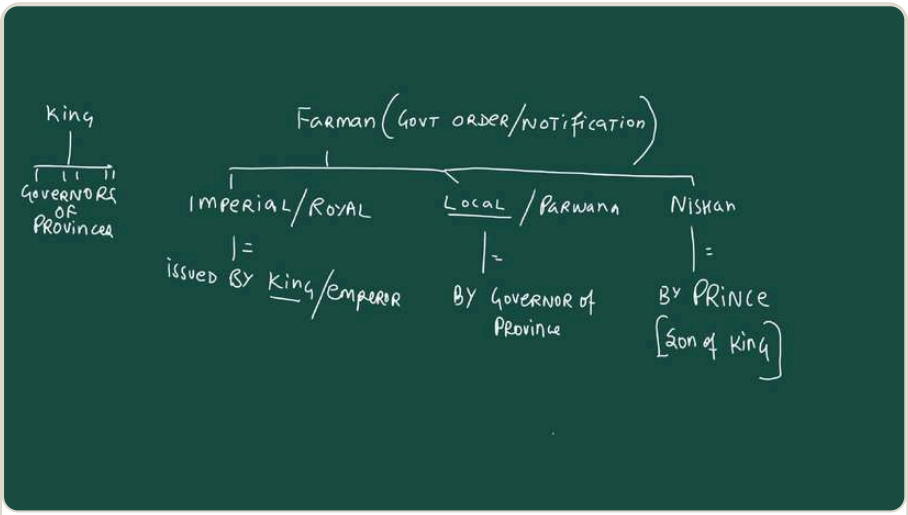
Farman, Parwana, Nishan



Farman, Parwana, Nishan Lecture 10 slide 19

Order	Issued by

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout defines these when discussing the Danes: Farman (Imperial Decree by the Mughal Emperor), Nishan (Princely Decree by a Prince of the Royal Blood), Parwana (Provincial Decree or Order by a Provincial Governor).

Early factories, Fort Manuel and aggression, 1498-1503 Lecture 10 slide 23

Early Portuguese moves, 1498 to 1503

- 1498:
  - Da Gama at Calicut
  - Trade permission from the Zamorin
  - No factory
- 1500, Cabral:
  - First Portuguese factory, Calicut (permission of the Samoothiri/Zamorin)
  - Destroyed by Arab merchants (about 50 Portuguese killed)
- Cabral bombards Calicut (the Zamorin would not evict the Arabs) and sails south

- 1500: first PERMANENT factory, Cochin (protection of the Raja of Cochin)
- 1502, Da Gama's 2nd voyage:
  - Bombards Calicut, massacres innocent fishermen
  - Aims: avenge Cabral, subdue the Zamorin, expel Arab rivals
- 1503: Fort Manuel, Cochin (Albuquerque 09-15, then a naval commander): first European fort in India
- Cochin = first capital of Portuguese India until the HQ shifted to Goa in 1530

NUMBER CARD · FOUR STEPS IN FIVE YEARS

1498 Da Gama at Calicut: trade permission, no factory

1500 Cabral: Calicut factory (destroyed); first permanent factory at Cochin

1502 Da Gama's 2nd voyage: bombards Calicut

1503 Fort Manuel, Cochin: first European fort in India

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Order along the coast: Zamorin, Calicut, Cochin, Travancore.
- (1st - 1498) is marked beside Da Gama's 2nd voyage.
- "Notice the nature of the Portuguese" (the violence). Albuquerque 09-15: 1504-15.
- [Goa annexed in 1510], then 1530 (HQ shift).
- The 2nd voyage disrupted the Arab-Venetian domination of the trade
- Europe could now trade directly with India (Portugal a player in the Indian Ocean trade)

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout: the second voyage forcibly integrated Indian Ocean trade into the European mercantilist framework.
- Albuquerque 09-15 and Almeida 05-09 carry year codes in the handout to tell them apart
- In 1503 Albuquerque was not yet Governor.

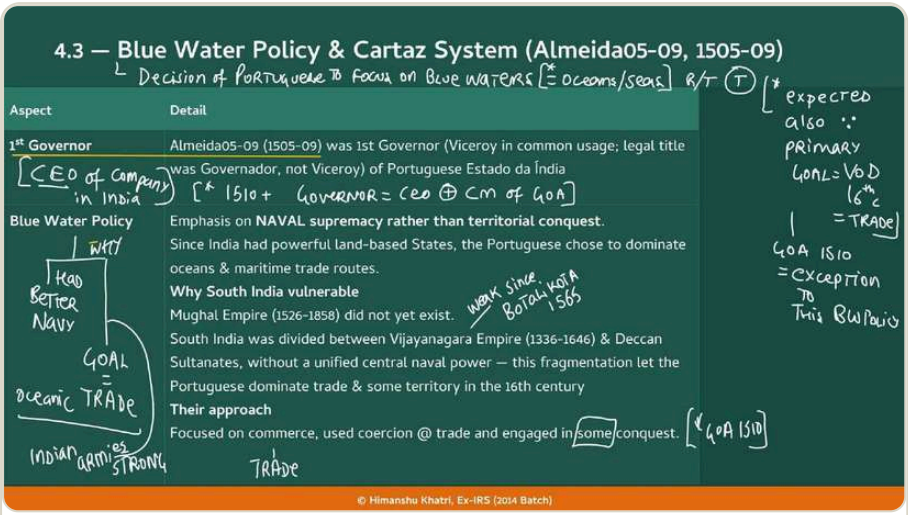
4.3 · Blue Water Policy and the Cartaz System (Almeida 05-09, 1505-09)

STORY LINK

Because India's kingdoms had armies and Portugal had ships, the Blue Water Policy followed. Ask: what was a Cartaz, and what did Diu 1509 settle?



Blue Water Policy and Cartaz System (Almeida) Lecture 10 slide 24

Aspect	Detail
1st Governor	Francisco de Almeida 05-09 was the 1st Governor of the Portuguese Estado da India (Viceroy in common usage, but the legal title was Governador)
Blue Water Policy	Emphasis on NAVAL supremacy rather than territorial conquest. Since India had powerful land-based States, the Portuguese chose to dominate oceans and maritime trade routes. The objective: a monopolistic trading regime without extensive territorial expansion
Why South India was vulnerable	No Mughal Empire yet (1526-1858); South India divided between Vijayanagara (1336-1646) and the Deccan Sultanates, with no unified central naval power
Their approach	Commerce, coercion in trade, and some (boxed) conquest: Goa 1510

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Blue Water = oceans and seas. Focus on blue waters was expected: the primary goal of the Age of Discovery (16th c) was trade.
- Goa 1510 = the exception to the Blue Water policy.
- Almeida 05-09 = "CEO of the company in India"
- from 1510+ the Governor = CEO + CM of Goa.
- WHY:
  - A better navy
  - goal = oceanic trade
  - Indian armies were strong
  - the south was weak since Talikota 1565 (note partly unclear on the slide)

Military: navy versus territorial army Lecture 10 slide 25

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Territorial army was strong for Indian kingdoms (some also had a navy).
- Europe's navy was usually greater than the Indian powers' navy (where the Indian navy was good, e.g. Marathas and Travancore, books talk about it).
- Land-only states focus on the territorial army
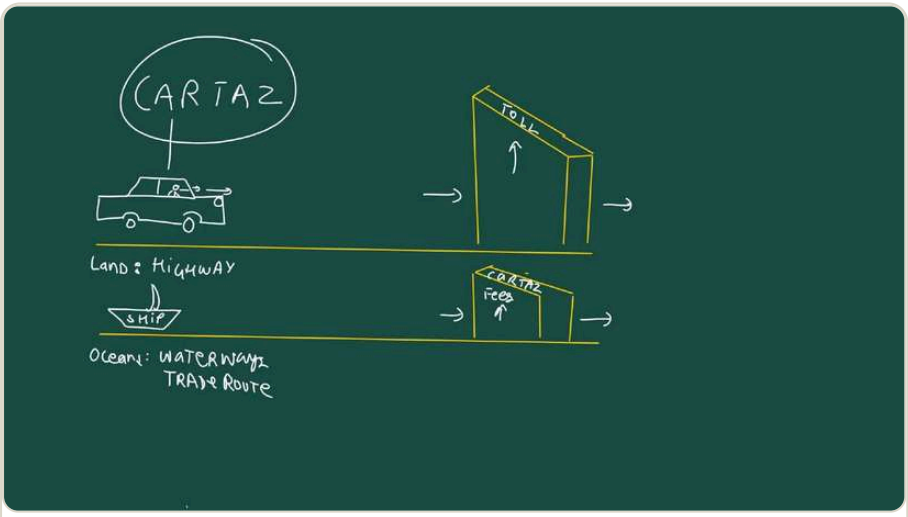
- Coastal states on the territorial army plus a Navy, in budget and technology (Portugal, Dutch, French, British, Spain)



Cartaz: a toll booth on the sea Lecture 10 slide 26

TEACHER'S BOARD

Cartaz = a toll booth on the sea: on land a car on a highway pays at a TOLL booth; in the oceans a ship on a trade route pays Cartaz fees.

Cartaz System and the Battle of Diu, 1509 Lecture 10 slide 27

Item	Detail

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Diu 1509 = not a battle for Diu as a territory, but for the domination of the Arabian Sea.
- The coalition = "all stakeholders of the old routes":
  - Arabs (Egypt), Indian (Gujarat, Zamorin), military ships from the Ottoman. 1502: Arabs and the Zamorin defeated in India
  - 1509: top player of the Arabian Sea.
- Only under Akbar 56-05 was the coastal area added to the Mughal state.

HANDOUT NOTE

Handout: the coalition's scale shows how seriously the Old World trading powers viewed the Portuguese threat; Venice's trade was being destroyed.

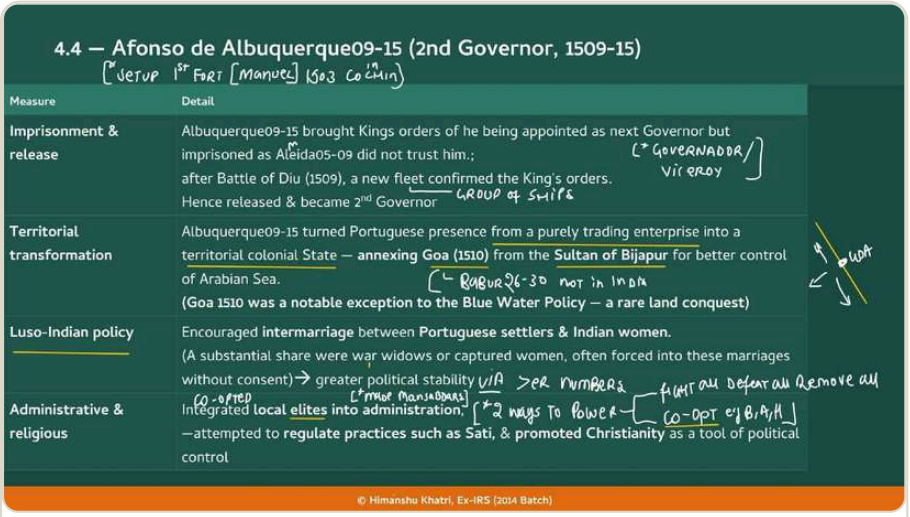
4.4 · Afonso de Albuquerque 09-15 (2nd Governor, 1509-15)



Albuquerque: 2nd Governor, Goa, Luso-Indian policy Lecture 10 slide 28

Measure	Detail
Imprisonment and release	Albuquerque 09-15 arrived (back in India in 1508) with the King's orders to take over leadership, but Almeida 05-09 did not trust him and arrested him. After the Battle of Diu (1509) a new fleet confirmed the King's orders; he was released and became the 2nd Governor
Territorial transformation	Turned the Portuguese presence from a purely trading enterprise into a territorial colonial State: annexed Goa (1510) from the Sultan of Bijapur, for better control of the Arabian Sea. Goa 1510 = a notable exception to the Blue Water Policy (a rare land conquest)
Luso-Indian policy	Encouraged intermarriage between Portuguese settlers and Indian women (mixed ancestry). A substantial share of the women were war widows or captured women, often forced without consent. Greater political stability
Administrative and religious	Integrated local elites into the administration, attempted to regulate practices such as Sati, and promoted Christianity as a tool of political control

TEACHER'S BOARD

- [Babur 26-30 not in India] in 1510.
- Luso-Indian policy: greater political stability via increased numbers (the Portuguese population grows), like the Mughal "more mansabdars" (co-opted).
- Elites:
  - "co-opted." Two ways to power: (1) fight all, defeat all, remove all
  - (2) co-opt (e.g. Babur 26-30, Akbar 56-05, H...)

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout: textbooks often call him "Viceroy," but his legal title was Governador, the formal office ruling Portuguese territory in India.
- The same applies to Almeida 05-09.

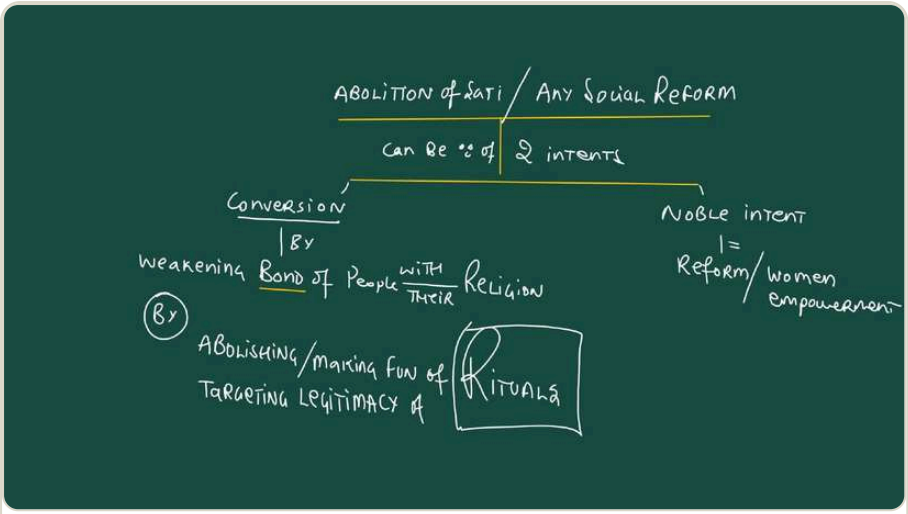
Religion as soft power Lecture 10 slide 29



Abolition of Sati: two possible intents Lecture 10 slide 30

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Religion = Soft Power. Conversion reduces opposition to the political power of the (Christian) Portuguese and gives a narrative of brotherhood: success in social power (conversion) increases political power.
- Abolition of Sati (or any social reform) can have two intents:
  - (1) Conversion, by weakening the people's bond with their religion (abolishing, making fun of, or targeting the legitimacy of rituals)
  - (2) Noble intent: reform or women's empowerment.

4.5 · Peak under Nuno da Cunha 29-38 (Governor 1529-38)

Aspect	Detail
Capital shifted to Goa (1530)	Nuno da Cunha 29-38 officially shifted the HQ (capital) from Cochin to Goa in 1530 (Goa annexed 1510). The Portuguese dominated the Indian Ocean trade for nearly a century
Western-coast consolidation	Acquired Bassein (1534) and Diu (1535) from Bahadur Shah of Gujarat, securing strategic ports and trade routes

TEACHER'S BOARD

1613: the EIC's Surat factory, after defeating the Portuguese, ends the "nearly a century" of Portuguese dominance.

4.6 · Religious intolerance: Inquisition and Francis Xavier

STORY LINK

Because conversion was a political tool, intolerance bred a backlash. Ask: where did Xavier die, and where was he buried?

Aspect	Detail
Most aggressive power	Among the most religiously aggressive of all European powers in India; Jesuit missionary activity generated widespread resistance
Slavery and forced conversions	The administration was marked by the slave trade (including the Hughli settlement in Bengal) and forced conversions
Goa Inquisition (1560-1812)	A brutal colonial church court to investigate and punish heresy (beliefs contradicting church doctrine) and violently enforce Portuguese cultural and religious orthodoxy; deep socio-religious backlash
St Francis Xavier	In India from 1542, died 1552; spearheaded mass Catholic conversions in coastal India and laid the ideological groundwork for the Goa Inquisition

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims trap (2021): St Francis Xavier did NOT die in Goa.
- He died on Shangchuan Island (off China) in 1552 while trying to enter mainland China.
- His body was later brought to Goa and is preserved in the Basilica of Bom Jesus, Old Goa.
- The question tested the place of death, not of burial.

Slave trade from Africa to the Americas, 1650-1860 Lecture 10 slide 34

HANDOUT NOTE

- Teacher's add-on beside the Portuguese slave trade: about 10 to 15 million enslaved people were taken from western Africa to the Americas (1650-1860), mostly to the West Indies, Central America and South America.
- Map figures:
  - Brazil 5 million
  - West Indies 4.5 million
  - U.S. 0.5 million
  - Lima and west South America 0.5 million
  - Europe 0.3 million
  - Central America 0.2 million

4.7 · Portuguese contribution: New World crops

- The Portuguese introduced these New World crops that permanently transformed Indian agriculture and cuisine: tobacco, red chillies, papaya, pineapple, guava.
- Cocoa and rubber are also New World plants, but reached India only in the British period, not through the Portuguese.

The Columbian Exchange (Britannica map) Lecture 10 slide 36

HANDOUT NOTE

- Columbian Exchange map. Americas to the Old World: potatoes, maize, sweet potatoes, pumpkins and squash, cassava, tomatoes, pineapples, avocados, beans, peanuts, cashews, cacao, vanilla, chili peppers, sunflowers, tobacco, quinine, turkeys.
- Old World to the Americas: pigs, horses, cattle, chickens, sheep, rats, honeybees, grains (wheat, rice, barley, oats, rye), bananas, sugarcane, olives, citrus fruits, coffee, peaches and pears, apples, carrots, grapes, lettuce, cabbage, onions, soybeans, weeds, diseases (bubonic plague, smallpox, typhus, malaria, yellow fever, diphtheria, measles, influenza, whooping cough).

- The Columbian Exchange: European exploration of the Americas in the 15th and 16th centuries brought the Old and New Worlds into contact.
- Plants, animals and microbes from Europe, Asia and Africa went to the Americas, and many others went from the Americas to Europe, Asia and Africa.

4.8 · Why did the Portuguese decline?

Cause	Detail
i) Political	Strong regional powers rose in Persia, Egypt and North India; especially the rise of the Marathas directly threatened the Portuguese (1739: Marathas defeated the Portuguese); teacher: Konkan coast: Marathas
ii) Religious backlash	Jesuit activity and the brutality of the Goa Inquisition (1560-1812) produced deep local resistance
iii) Economic and administrative decay	Corruption, inefficiency, decline in discipline, and employees' piracy and illicit trade (teacher: "personal trade") eroded the institutions
iv) External competition	The English and Dutch, with superior naval technology, joint-stock finance and more disciplined commercial organisation, displaced them
v) Imperial overextension	Focus diverted to Brazil (far more lucrative) plus lack of support from Lisbon (the Govt) starved the Estado da India

MNEMONIC · WHY THE PORTUGUESE DECLINED

P R I D E

Portuguese PRIDE came before the fall.

P Political: strong regional powers rose, especially the Marathas

R Religious backlash: Jesuit activity and the Goa Inquisition

I Inefficiency and corruption: economic and administrative decay

D Dutch and English: external competition

E Extended too far: Brazil came first, Lisbon gave little support

Order is free here, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

KEY TAKEAWAY

Takeaway: the Portuguese set the stage for all later European expansion in India: colonial administration centred in Goa, armed maritime trade, and religious conversion as a tool of political control became patterns the British would study, adapt and eventually supersede.

5 · How the Dutch and English broke the Portuguese-Spanish monopoly

> Because the Portuguese-Spanish hold had to break, the 1588 Armada defeat opened the sea. Ask: why did the Dutch and English go to Indonesia first?

- By the second half of the 16th century two new naval powers had emerged: Britain and the Dutch Republic (Netherlands).
- Both wanted to break the strict monopoly held by Spain and Portugal over European international trade and to achieve freedom of navigation in the oceans.
- 1588: the British Navy defeated the Spanish Armada ("Invincible Armada") in the Atlantic, severely weakening Spanish-Portuguese naval supremacy.

- By 1580 Portugal had entered a political union with Spain, so defeating Spain also opened trade routes Portugal had controlled.
- With the Armada defeated, British and Dutch ships could travel safely to Asia via the Cape of Good Hope.
- First priority for both: Indonesia (the spice trade of the East Indies).
- India came later, for a commercial reason: the people of the spice islands had little interest in English or Dutch goods but readily accepted Indian cotton textiles.
- To buy spices in Indonesia you first needed cloth from India.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's clarification: the Netherlands, Holland and "the Dutch Republic" all refer to the same country.
- "Dutch" is the adjective
- "Holland" is technically a region within the Netherlands but is often used as a general name

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The trilateral (triangle) trade: England → India → Indonesia → England.
- This is the commercial logic that shifted the EIC's focus from Indonesia to the Indian subcontinent.
- (Compare the triangle in section 1.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why the monopoly had to be broken:
  - "End the rival's monopoly (e.g. 1502, Da Gama in coastal Malabar) -&gt
  - A multi-player domain -&gt
  - Establish your own monopoly (requires additional resources), i.e. the Battle of Diu 1509 -&gt
  - Arabian Sea." Two challenges for the British and the Dutch in trading with the East Indies: (1) How to reach India, China, Indonesia: Spain and Portugal dominate the routes and oceans.
- (2) How to purchase goods from India: the Portuguese dominate the Indian coastline and the Indian international market.
- Table: "1588: end of monopoly over routes" (second row left empty).

TEACHER'S BOARD

Who dominated world oceanic trade, by period. 1500s: Portugal vs Spain. 1600s: Dutch vs British. 1700s-1815: British vs French, "-> Britain = top naval power." 1870-1945: British + French vs Germany. 1945-91: US vs USSR. 2000s+: US vs China.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Freedom of navigation "in oceans and of TRADE." Stressed: Armada ("Naval Fleet"), Atlantic, British and Dutch.
- Trilateral trade:
  - "England" is replaced by "EIC," so the triangle is EIC -&gt
  - India -&gt
  - Indonesia -&gt
  - EIC.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The EIC's triangle: the EIC buys goods from India, sells Indian goods to Indonesia, and buys Indonesian goods.
- CHARTER = founding document, issued by the State (Monarchy or Parliament), granting special powers and rights to a company.
- State = an organisation with a territorial (T) motive (defend, annex), so it has a military and may wage war.
- A State rules a territory, so coins, currency and taxation and the L, E, J powers (legislative, executive, judicial; my reading) are with the State.
- Company = an organisation with a profit motive for its shareholders, and it requires property.

6 · The Dutch VOC

STORY LINK

Because the VOC had capital and a Charter, it beat the Portuguese in the south. Ask: why is the VOC the first joint-stock company?

- 1602: the Dutch East India Company (VOC, Vereenigde Oost-Indische Compagnie) was established by a Charter issued by the Dutch Parliament, by merging six smaller Dutch companies that had been competing for eastern trade.
- Takeaway (handout): the VOC was the world's first multinational company, and the first to issue publicly tradable stocks and shares on a formal exchange: the world's first joint-stock company.
- An ordinary person could become a part-owner by buying shares, without a say in management: the ancestor of the BSE, NSE, NYSE and the modern shareholder economy.

- Charter powers: the right to wage war, sign treaties, acquire territory, build forts and mint its own currency: powers that ordinarily belong to a State, showing how European powers saw companies as an extension of State power.
- The first Dutch expedition (1595) went to the East Indies (Indonesia), not India.
- Dutch settlements in India: Masulipatnam (Northern Sarkars) 1605 (first factory), Pulicat (Carnatic) 1610, Surat (Gujarat) 1616, Bimilipatam (Golconda) 1641, Karikal (near Pondicherry) 1645, Chinsura (Bengal) 1653, later Kasimbazar, Baranagore, Patna, Balasore, Nagapatnam, Agra, Cochin (where they captured the Portuguese fort in 1663).

- At its peak in 1669 the VOC was the richest private company in the world: 150 merchant vessels, 40 warships, an army of 10,000 soldiers, 50,000 employees
- over its life 5,000 voyages from the Netherlands to the East Indies
- 1799:
  - Bankrupt and dissolved
  - possessions taken over by the Dutch government as the Dutch East Indies (Indonesia), a Dutch colony until independence in 1945 after World War II

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2022 trap: the Gajapati dynasty and the Dutch.
- The claim that the Dutch received land grants from the Gajapati dynasty of Odisha is INCORRECT.
- The Gajapatis were a 15th-century dynasty centred in Odisha whose power had declined well before the Dutch arrived.
- Do not confuse later local rulers of the Odisha coast with the Gajapati dynasty itself.

7 · The English EIC and the Royal Charter of 1600

STORY LINK

Because the EIC lived on a licence, its Charter shaped its fate. Ask: who gave the Charter, and what did it give?

- The English East India Company was formed on 31 December 1600: its founding document was a Royal Charter issued by Queen Elizabeth I 58-03.
- A Royal Charter is essentially a licence granted by the Monarch.
- If it was not renewed, the company would legally cease to exist.
- This shaped the EIC's relationship with the British State for the next two and a half centuries: its survival depended on the goodwill of whoever held power in Britain.
- The EIC was the 4th joint-stock company in England, formed by pooling money from 215 London merchants ("merchant adventurers") who wanted to challenge Dutch dominance in European trade with the East.
- The stated goal was trade with the East, not empire-building or colonialism.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Britain or England? In 1600 it was England (not Britain) that granted the Charter.
- England and Scotland united in 1707 to create the Kingdom of Great Britain
- in 1801 Ireland was added, creating the United Kingdom.
- Before 1707 "British" technically means English.

What the Royal Charter of 1600 gave the EIC

- 1. A monopoly over England's trade with the East Indies for 15 years.
- 2. The right to carry gold (foreign exchange) out of England to purchase eastern goods.
- 3. Management by a body of private people: a Governor, a Deputy Governor and 24 members, which later evolved into the Board or Court of Directors.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's forex aside:
  - For a State, forex is the currency that matters in international trade
  - domestic currency works only within a country's borders (like a household's internal reward system for children, valid only inside the home)
- Until 1971, Gold was forex, until the Dollar took over.
- (Same idea as the section 1 board.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- EIC = joint-stock company
- special rights and powers via a Charter (31 Dec 1600)
- Dutch competition.
- Stressed: founding document, Royal Charter, Elizabeth I 58-03.
- Why is the VOC (1602) called the first joint-stock company when the English EIC (1600) also was one?
- "Answer:
    - In 1600 the EIC was not a proper joint-stock company. It operated on a per-VOYAGE system: before each journey to the East Indies the EIC gathered Rs from the public
    - Brought and sold goods in Europe at a profit and shared all the profits
    - For the next journey, repeated. It is later that the EIC became a proper joint-stock company, i.e. one with permanent capital." A proper joint-stock company "does not usually give back all profits
    - It gives dividends": profit pie = Retain, Re-invest, assets, Dividends.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- What the Charter gave: correction. Stressed: England's trade, 15 years, right to carry gold, out of England, private people, Court (of Directors).
- "WRONG = monopoly over trade with India with the EIC. CORRECT = monopoly over England's (or British) trade with the East Indies, with the EIC." Grant 2 links to "forex is controlled by the State." Grant 3: "BoD/CoD = EIC's top decision-making body = not any government organisation."

Proper joint-stock company: dividends Lecture 11 slide 15

8 · Charters until 1793: the EIC's changing legal character

STORY LINK

Because the Charter was renewed again and again, the ladder tells the story of its power. Ask: which Charter made it a quasi-State?

- The EIC's legal existence depended on Charter renewal, and the Charters also tell the shift of power in Britain from the Monarch to Parliament.

Year	Event	What it did

- 1601-03, the first voyage (James Lancaster): the fleet sailed not to India but to Indonesia, consistent with the EIC's original priority of the spice trade.
- They reached Java and Sumatra, where they set up the very first EIC factory.
- On the way Lancaster's fleet looted a Portuguese ship, the Sao Tome, in the Strait of Malacca (a cargo of textiles and spices).
- William Dalrymple and others note that the EIC's first major profit came not from trade but from outright piracy.
- Shareholders got substantial dividends
- The fleet returned in 1603.
- 1609, James I 03-25: the original 15-year monopoly became a perpetual monopoly.
- 1657, Cromwell 51-60's Charter: Context: Charles I 25-49 tried to levy taxes without Parliament's consent, which triggered the English Civil War (1642-51).
- The Parliamentarians (largely Protestant) defeated the Royalists
- Charles I 25-49 was beheaded in 1649
- England became a Republic under Oliver Cromwell 51-60 (the handout writes his years as 51-60).

- After Cromwell 51-60's death in 1658 his son briefly took over, but the experiment proved autocratic and unpopular.
- In 1660 the Monarchy was restored under Charles II 60-85.
- Cromwell 51-60 issued a new Charter in 1657, declaring the previous Royal Charter invalid, and reorganised the EIC into a permanent joint-stock company.
- Earlier, money was raised voyage by voyage (pool, voyage, profits, fund dissolved)
- From 1657 one continuous unified capital fund, giving a stable financial foundation.
- 1661, Charles II 60-85's Charter (after the Restoration) was arguably the most consequential legally: it turned the EIC from a commercial trading body into a quasi-State power.
- It gave the right to build forts, command troops, make war and peace, and exercise civil and criminal jurisdiction over settlements in India.
- (The right to mint its own money came in 1676.)
- From 1793 Parliament takes over: the British Parliament begins passing Acts for the renewal of the EIC's Charter, mirroring the democratisation of Britain (power moving from Crown to elected representatives).
- Indian constitutional history and British political history are inseparable threads.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway (1661):
  - The 1600 EIC was a merchant association with a trade monopoly
  - The 1661 EIC had the legal powers of a State within its territories.
- A trading company had, through successive Charters, accumulated the powers of a sovereign.

8.7 · Why couldn't Indian merchants dominate the new trade routes?

STORY LINK

Because the Europeans had navies and Indian merchants did not, the new routes went to the Europeans. Ask: what three things did Indian merchants lack?

Reason	Detail
(i) Naval power	Indian merchants lacked armed ocean-going fleets to break European domination of the trade routes
(ii) Capital	VOC (1602) and EIC (1600, by 1657) had moved to permanent joint-stock structures and could pool the huge sums needed for bulk trade
(iii) State backing	The Mughal State after Akbar 56-05 did not focus on a navy and focused on territorial expansion, investing in the territorial army

TEACHER'S BOARD

MILITARY NAVY = armed ocean-going fleets. After (ii): "[Gathering Rupee from masses.]" Stressed: did not focus on a navy; territorial army. Navy = Merchant + Military. "Modern capitalism absent in INDIA. [Why? The State = an organisation with a territorial (T) motive.]"

9 · The Danish East India Company

> STORY LINK
> Because the Danes came late and weak, they stayed on the margins. Ask: which post did they use as HQ, and which one became famous?

- Established 1616, out of envy of Dutch and English profits.
- Its Charter was issued by King Christian IV 88-48 of Denmark-Norway, granting a 12-year monopoly on trade between Denmark-Norway and the East Indies.
- The Danes were never in the same league: weaker finance, limited military capacity.
- The first Danish company ended around 1650
- a second Danish EIC was set up in 1670 but wound down gradually, selling all its Indian mainland settlements to the British EIC by 1845.

Danish settlements in India

- 1. 1620:
  - Tranquebar (Tharangambadi), Tamil Nadu: first factory
  - First fort: Fort Dansborg
  - official administrative HQ of Danish India from 1620 until 1845.
- 2. 1624:
  - Pondicherry (brief): under Roland Crappe
  - a short-lived factory, abandoned for lack of resources, long before the French arrived.
- 3. 1625:
  - Masulipatnam (Andhra Pradesh)
  - Pipli and Balasore (Odisha).
- 4. 1755: Serampore (Srirampur / Frederiksnagore), Hooghly district, Bengal: a parwana from Nawab Alivardi Khan 40-56.
- Tranquebar remained the HQ, but Serampore became the most commercially successful and culturally significant Danish post.
- Colonial powers in Tranquebar, Serampore and the Nicobar Islands (the Nicobars were sold separately to the British in 1868; today part of India's Andaman and Nicobar Islands UT).
- 1799-1800: Serampore Mission Press, associated with Baptist missionaries including William Carey: translated the Bible into Indian vernacular languages, ran schools, and made an immense contribution to early printing and education in Bengal.

10 · How the EIC broke Portuguese dominance: Hawkins, Swally and Surat

STORY LINK

Because the EIC wanted Surat, it first had to beat Portugal. Ask: what is the difference between 1612 and 1613?

- 1608: the EIC decided to set up a factory at Surat, then the most important port on India's west coast and firmly within Portuguese-dominated territory.
- It sent Captain William Hawkins to the court of Jahangir 05-27.

- Jahangir 05-27 first gave Hawkins a Mansab (rank of 400) and a Jagir, but Hawkins was ultimately expelled from the Mughal court due to persistent Portuguese pressure.
- The lesson: Portugal had to be defeated militarily before the EIC could establish itself on the west coast.
- 1612, Battle of Swally (Suvali): Captain Thomas Best led a small EIC armed trading fleet to a decisive victory over the Portuguese.
- The Mughal State had its own reason to welcome this: Mughal ships traded in the Arabian Sea but were perpetually vulnerable to Portuguese piracy, a source of humiliation for a great land power.
- Impressed by English sea capability, Jahangir 05-27 issued a Royal Farman in 1613, giving the EIC the legal right to set up a permanent factory at Surat.

KEY TAKEAWAY

1612 versus 1613: 1612 = the Battle of Swally (military victory) and the local Mughal governor's temporary permission/parwana; 1613 = the legally permanent establishment, when Jahangir 05-27 ratified the local agreement with an imperial farman.

Breaking Portuguese dominance on the west coast

- 1608:
  - EIC wants a Surat factory
  - Sends Captain William Hawkins to Jahangir 05-27
- Hawkins gets a Mansab (400) and Jagir but is expelled under Portuguese pressure
- Lesson: defeat Portugal militarily first
- 1612: Battle of Swally: Captain Thomas Best defeats the Portuguese
- Mughals welcome it: their ships were vulnerable to Portuguese piracy
- 1613: Jahangir 05-27's Royal Farman: permanent factory at Surat

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Jahangir 05-27
- "imp" over the 1612 Battle of Swally.
- Stressed: 1612, Captain Thomas Best, Suvali, rank 400, 1613 Royal Farman.

- "ESTADO DA INDIA vs EIC," "FOR TRADE [not the territory (T) of Surat]": the EIC wanted trade rights, not Surat as territory.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why the EIC's army stayed small until Bengal.
- "A company = an organisation with a PROFIT motive (of the shareholder), e.g. the EIC had an army of about 500-800 men. Spending Rupees on an army would go against that goal. If the army came from its own Rupee, it would be small, to meet the core interests of trade." "1757: free Rupee of Bengal" -&gt

11 · The Royal Farman of 1618 and Thomas Roe (1615-19)

STORY LINK

Because one factory was not enough, England sent an ambassador. Ask: what did Roe's Farman of 1618 give?

- England wanted liberal trading rights across the entire Mughal Empire, so King James I 03-25 sent Thomas Roe as formal ambassador to Jahangir 05-27's court.
- Roe arrived at Surat in 1615 and stayed until 1619.
- Jahangir 05-27 refused a formal treaty between equals (a trading company was no sovereign equal).
- Through sustained diplomacy and personal rapport Roe got a series of privileges and a Royal Farman (1618) allowing the EIC to set up factories throughout the Mughal Empire with liberal trading rights: lower customs duties and ease of doing business.

- 1616-19: new factories at Agra, Ahmedabad and Broach (Bharuch).
- With Surat they formed the Surat Presidency (1618): the EIC's first administrative Presidency in India, coordinating English trade on the west coast until the later shift to Bombay (1687).
- Portuguese enraged
- naval conflicts continued. 1631-32: Shahjahan 27-58 ordered his Bengal governor Qasim Khan to defeat the Portuguese and eject them from Hugli, because they were misusing their trade privileges with piracy and the slave trade from their Bengal base

HANDOUT NOTE

Roe's account, The Embassy of Sir Thomas Roe to the Court of the Great Mogul, is one of the most important primary sources on the Mughal Empire of this period (court administration, wealth, politics, daily life).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Roe = "Ambassador, i.e. British Resident in Jahangir 05-27's court" (starred).
- Stressed: title of Roe's memoir, Royal Farman (1618), right to establish factories across the Empire plus lower duties and ease of business ("= LIBERAL TRADING RIGHTS"), Surat Presidency (1618).
- Under Surat Presidency: "HQ (e.g. Cochin 1505-1530, HQ of Portugal; Tranquebar, HQ of the Danes 1620)": a Presidency was the EIC's regional HQ.
- Shah Jahan 27-58
- stressed: Hugli action (1631-32) and slave trade.

12 · Anglo-Portuguese Treaty of 1661: dowry diplomacy

STORY LINK

Because a royal wedding settled a debt of trade and war, Bombay changed hands. Ask: what did England get, and what did it promise?

- The treaty, signed at Whitehall, London, marked the marriage of King Charles II 60-85 of England and Princess Catherine of Braganza of Portugal.
- 1. Portugal paid a dowry of 500,000 pounds in cash.
- 2. England received Bombay and Tangier (Morocco).
- 3. Trade and military cooperation, with England agreeing to protect Portugal's remaining possessions.

- Result: a continued Portuguese presence in Goa, Daman and Diu under English protection, lasting until 1961, when independent India took over these territories militarily, after a people's movement.
- 1668: the British Crown transferred Bombay to the EIC at an annual rent of 10 pounds: the start of Bombay's journey from a Portuguese dowry to the commercial capital of British India.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Restoration of MONARCHY 1660." Stressed: Whitehall, King Charles II 60-85, Princess Catherine of Braganza, dowry and 500,000 pounds in cash, Bombay and Tangier (in Morocco), military cooperation, protect Portugal's remaining possessions.
- Term 3: "[Goa, Daman and Diu]."

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two ways to deal with a rival.
- (1) "End your rival 100% (destroy)":
  - "Power = 100." (2) (V2) "Thrash the rival and lessen his power permanently
  - Huge anxiety in the rival about survival
  - Instead of (1), convert the rival into your puppet or a junior permanent friend," "non-threatening, never big enough." Result: "Power = 100 + 90" (second number partly unclear)
- It follows the 1661 treaty
- The board does not name the countries

Two ways to deal with a rival Lecture 11 slide 33

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Who beat whom, and why the EIC won.
- Portuguese beaten by "British vs Portuguese" and "Dutch vs Portuguese"
- The two winners meet in "British vs Dutch" -&gt
- "By 1650s." MAJOR presence: British in South Asia
- Dutch in South East Asia (Indonesia)
- Minor presence:
  - Dutch in South Asia
  - British in South East Asia (Singapore, Malaya)
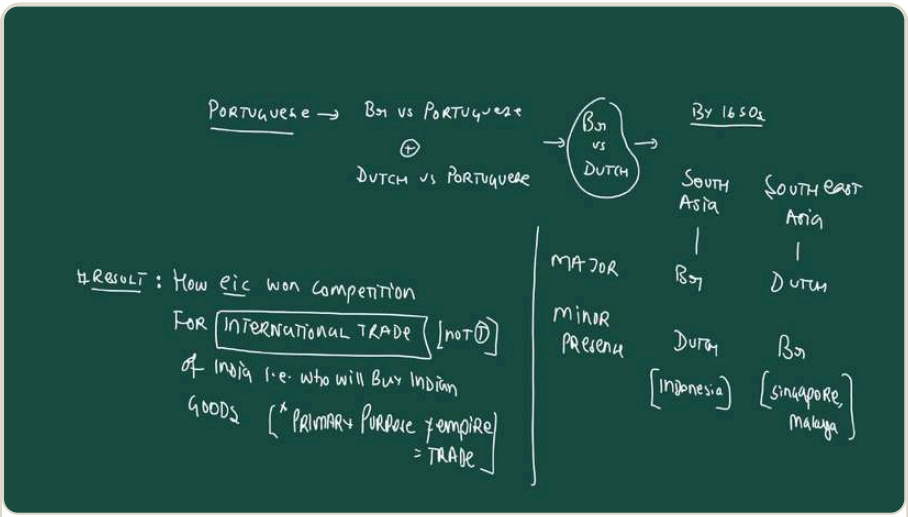
  - This matches the Treaty of Breda terms in section 13
- Result: "For INTERNATIONAL TRADE [not T] of India, i.e. who will BUY Indian GOODS." "PRIMARY purpose of empire = TRADE." The rivals fought over who would buy Indian goods, not over land (same idea as the Surat board: "for trade, not the territory of Surat").



Who beat whom: the EIC wins the competition for trade Lecture 12 slide 2

13 · The Dutch: rise, dominance and fall in Asia

STORY LINK

Because the Dutch chased the Portuguese out, they became the richest company, then lost it. Ask: what are the dates that mark the fall?

- 1623, the Amboyna Massacre:
  - The Dutch killed English traders in the spice islands, a brutal episode that ended English ambitions in Indonesia
  - the Dutch had effectively removed both the English and the Portuguese from Indonesia.
- 1658: the Dutch removed the Portuguese from Ceylon.
- Anglo-Dutch wars 1654-67, settled in the Treaty of Breda (1667): (1) the British leave Indonesia to the Dutch
- (2) the Dutch leave the English alone in India
- (3) both keep minor presences in each other's primary domains.
- Cochin: captured from the Portuguese in 1663, held as HQ of Dutch Malabar (not the overall HQ).

- Stressed: Indonesia, Anglo-Dutch rivalry, "settled" (Treaty of Breda), Pulicat 1610-1690, Nagapattinam 1690-1795, 1759 Bedara (Chinsura). Marthanda Varma 29-58.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Stressed: Masulipatnam, "First Dutch factory," Geldria, "First Dutch fort," "Main HQ" (Pulicat) and Nagapattinam, "Main HQ." The main HQ moved from Pulicat to Nagapattinam (1690).
- Fort Gustavus (Chinsura) is a lesser mark. Map notes:
  - "N. Sarkars (5 districts) (Andhra)" (number partly legible)
  - "Golconda (1687), annexation by A 58-07" (Aurangzeb 58-07 annexed Golconda in 1687)
  - "1336-1646" (Vijayanagara, whose permission gave Pulicat)
- Reading:
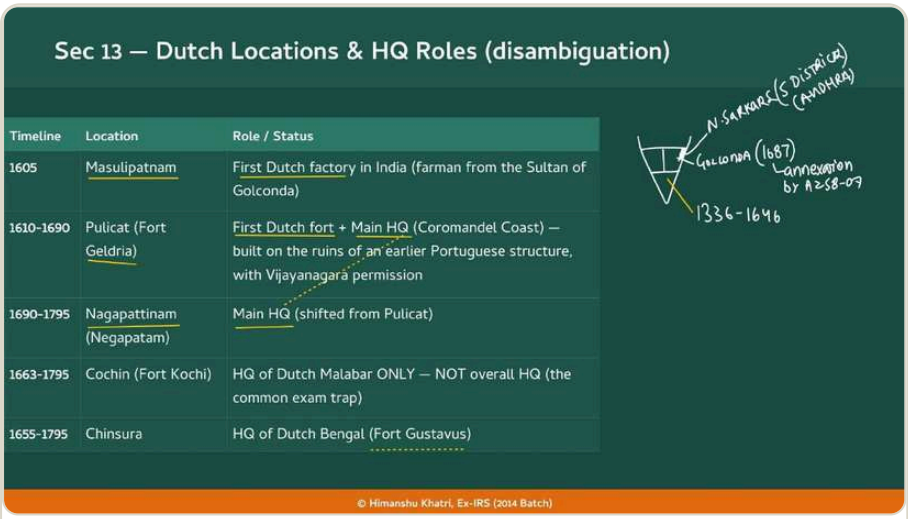
  - Masulipatnam lay in the Northern Sarkars, under Golconda
  - Pulicat lay in the Vijayanagara zone



Dutch locations and HQ roles Lecture 12 slide 5

HANDOUT ALERT

- Exam trap:
  - Cochin was NOT the overall Dutch HQ
  - it was only the Dutch Malabar regional HQ.
- Overall main HQ: Pulicat (1610-90), then Nagapattinam (1690-1795).
- (The handout dates Chinsura's Fort Gustavus as 1655-1795, while section 6 and Table T2 list the Chinsura factory as 1653.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- HQ example:
  - "e.g. Amazon India: # India HQ: Bengaluru
  - # Regional HQ: Gurgaon (North)." A company has one main HQ and smaller regional HQs.
- Pulicat, then Nagapattinam = main HQ (like Bengaluru)
- Cochin = only the Malabar regional HQ (like Gurgaon for the north).
- Hence "Cochin = overall HQ" is the trap.

Two decisive military defeats

- 1. 1741, Battle of Colachel:
  - Marthanda Varma 29-58 of Travancore decisively defeated the Dutch, ending their political power in Kerala (see Chapter 7)
  - The Dutch kept Fort Cochin till 1795.
- 2. 1759, Battle of Bedara (also Battle of Chinsura): the British EIC defeated the Dutch in Bengal, crushing their remaining ambitions in India.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Kerala order: Cochin at the top, Travancore along the side, Colachel at the bottom.
- Marthanda Varma 29-58 of Travancore beat the Dutch at Colachel in the south, while the Dutch still held Cochin in the north of Kerala.

14 · Napoleon's link: the Kew Letters (1795)

STORY LINK

Because France overthrew the Dutch government at home, the Dutch colonies fell to Britain. Ask: what were the Kew Letters?

- 1795, during the French Revolutionary Wars (1792-1804) leading into the Napoleonic Wars (1804-15): the French army invaded the Netherlands, overthrew the Dutch government and set up a puppet State, the Batavian Republic, controlled by France.
- Britain declared all Dutch overseas colonies enemy territory.
- The exiled Dutch leader Prince William V 51-95 had fled to London and issued the "Kew Letters": orders telling Dutch colonial governors to hand over their territories to the British "for safekeeping," so France could not seize them.
- The British used this as their legal basis to take over the remaining Dutch posts.

- By 1795 the British occupied the remaining Dutch settlements in South Asia: Cochin (Kerala), Chinsura (Bengal), Pulicat and Tuticorin (Coromandel), and the coastal regions of Ceylon (Trincomalee and Colombo).

NUMBER CARD · THE DUTCH DECLINE

1759 Bedara / Chinsura: the British EIC defeats the Dutch in Bengal

1795 Kew Letters: British take over the remaining Dutch posts

1799 VOC bankrupt and dissolved

HANDOUT ALERT

- Kew Letters: "[SYLLABUS X]" = not in the syllabus.
- Read this section for the story of the Dutch fall, not as an exam topic.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "NOT imp FROM exam - FOR UNDERSTANDING" (same call as "SYLLABUS X"): read the Kew Letters for the story, do not memorise them.
- Inserted "over" so the line reads "hand over their territories." "Kew = place near London."

15 · Why Ceylon did not become part of British India: the Crown Colony

STORY LINK

Because Ceylon was too important for a company to run, Britain took it directly. Ask: who ruled India, and who ruled Ceylon?

- 1795-96: the British captured the Dutch areas of Ceylon and gave administration to the EIC, through the Madras Presidency.
- Treaty of Amiens, 1802: a peace treaty in Europe between Britain and France along with its Dutch ally, the Batavian Republic. The Dutch formally and permanently ceded the coastal regions of Ceylon to Britain.

- The British government decided Ceylon was too strategically important to be run by a trading company: it removed the EIC's administration entirely and declared Ceylon a British Crown Colony, ruled directly by an appointed British Governor, separate from the EIC's Indian empire.

KEY TAKEAWAY

Takeaway: India was a colony ruled by the EIC (a commercial entity with State-like powers); Ceylon was a Crown Colony where the British State itself governed directly.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Crown Colony": "(not imp) BUT concept," "imp: Meaning." The Ceylon story is not important for the exam, but the meaning of "Crown Colony" is.
- British Colonies, RULED BY -&gt
- "EIC" = Company's Colony
- "Br State" = Crown Colony.
- "Rule = Doing L, E, J on a T": to rule is to do the Legislative, Executive and Judicial work on a Territory (LEJ as in section 4.1).
- Stressed: "ruled directly," "by the British State."

16 · What were Presidencies?

STORY LINK

Because an EIC trade base had to be run, it became a Presidency. Ask: what does a Presidency become after annexations?

- A Presidency was a regional headquarters of EIC trade.
- A settlement got Presidency status when it had grown large enough with significant warehouses, offices, residential buildings and a fort.
- Initially small coastal towns
- as the EIC annexed surrounding territories the towns grew into cities and the Presidencies expanded into provinces of British India (governed directly by the British)
- The Presidencies were named after the major forts built within them.

17 · How each of the three Presidencies came to be

MNEMONIC · THE PRESIDENCIES, IN ORDER

Some Merchants Built Castles

- S Surat 1618: the EIC's first Presidency
- M Madras 1652 (London order; 1653 implemented)
- B Bombay 1687: replaces Surat as the western HQ
- C Calcutta 1699/1700: Presidency of Fort William

Order kept: the Presidencies run in this order. Each was named after its fort.

STORY LINK

Because each Presidency grew from a different coastal base, each has its own story. Ask: which came first, and which was named after which fort?

17.1 · Madras Presidency (from 1652/1653)

- The EIC's first factory in India was a temporary one at Masulipatnam (Machilipatnam) in the Northern Sarkars (Andhra Pradesh) in 1611.
- (Northern Sarkars = the northern coastal districts of Andhra Pradesh, outside Mughal direct control.)
- 1639: the EIC, led by Francis Day, purchased land at the village of Madraspatanam from Hindu Nayakas (provincial governors of the Vijayanagara Empire, 1336-1646)

and built Fort St George (1639-44): the first fort built by the EIC in India and the anchor of the first permanent settlement.

- 1690: the EIC purchased a fort at Cuddalore (south of Madras) from the Maratha Chhatrapati Rajaram 89-00 and named it Fort Saint David.
- Its history:
  - Partly built by the Dutch from 1608
  - Construction halted due to Portuguese pressure on the Vijayanagara Empire
  - A Hindu merchant eventually completed it.
- In 1677 Shivaji 74-80 conquered the nearby Jinji fort and region including Cuddalore before it passed to the EIC.
- The Madras Presidency was formally established as the Presidency of Fort St George in 1652, on the orders of the Court of Directors in London
- because of the ship travel time, it was implemented in India in 1653.
- (Both dates appear in sources: the London order versus the on-ground implementation.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "FACTORY = warehouses + home and office + MAY be a [FORT]" (home and office hard to read): a factory may or may not have a fort.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Fort St David (1690): "After death of Sambhaji 80-89, Rajaram 89-00 left Svarajya, shifted to e.g. Jinji in Carnatic" (the Chhatrapati who sold the fort had moved to Jinji in the Carnatic).
- "Layered build" (Dutch, Portuguese, Hindu merchant history of the fort): "not imp." "2 FORTS in Madras Presidency: Madras and Cuddalore."

17.2 · Bombay Presidency (1687)

- From 1613 to 1687 Surat was the EIC's main trade centre on the west coast.
- The shift happened because of the growing power of the Marathas in Gujarat, making Surat increasingly risky.
- Bombay, a cluster of seven islands, offered a more defensible location.
- Charles II 60-85 received Bombay in 1661 as part of the Portuguese dowry and transferred it to the EIC in 1668 at 10 pounds per annum.
- The Bombay Presidency was established in 1687, replacing Surat as the western HQ.
- Bombay Castle (Casa da Orta) was originally built by the Portuguese and expanded by the EIC through the 18th century.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Bombay:
  - "1st permanent FACTORY = Surat 1613"
  - "PRESIDENCY 1618" beside "replacing Surat" (last digit slightly unclear; it matches the Surat Presidency of 1618 in Table T5)
- "1534-1661: Portugal" (Portugal held Bombay from the 1534 Bassein deal to the 1661 dowry).
- "FORT" = "Bombay Castle (Casa Da Orta)": originally Portuguese.
- Stressed: Charles II 60-85, Bombay in 1661, dowry, 1668 at 10 pounds per annum rent, Bombay Presidency, in 1687.

17.3 · Calcutta Presidency (from 1699/1700)

- The EIC's Bengal presence began with a factory at Hugli in 1651, permitted by a nishan from Shah Shuja, the Mughal governor of Bengal and son of Shahjahan 27-58.
- 1690: the EIC founded a settlement at the village of Sutanuti: the Calcutta establishment.
- The Calcutta Presidency was formally established in 1699/1700 as the Presidency of Fort William, with its own Governor.

- Through the 18th century the EIC developed Calcutta Port
- Calcutta came to account for 60% of all EIC trade from India. 1800: Fort William College was established by Wellesley 98-05 for training EIC civil servants. 1870: the Calcutta Port Act created the Calcutta Port Commissioners and Port Trust, the first formal legal authority governing the port
- Covered later (in the chapter on the Battle of Plassey): Child's War, the 1690 pardon and 1691 Farman, and the 1717 Farman.

Because UPSC likes chronology, the factory dates sit in one table. Ask: what is the first factory in east India, and the first in Bengal?

Year	Event or settlement	Permission or source

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Table T5 stressed:
  - "1613" above "farman" in the Surat row
  - "First factory in east India" (Balasore and Hariharpur, 1633)
  - "first factory in Bengal" (Hugli, 1651)

- The Child's War and the 1717 farman are taught later (the handout agrees, see 17.3).

HANDOUT NOTE

- On the first English factory in India:
  - The handout's text says Masulipatnam (1611) was the first, temporary, factory
  - the first permanent one was Surat (1613).
- (Factory map and Table T5 agree.)

19 · The French in India and the story of Pondicherry

STORY LINK

Because the French came last, they had Pondicherry rather than a long run. Ask: who was the real founder of French power in India?

- The French East India Company (Compagnie des Indes Orientales) was founded in 1664 by Jean-Baptiste Colbert under King Louis XIV 43-15
- great-grandfather of Louis XVI, overthrown in the French Revolution of 1789).
- It started as a private company but was later nationalised, making it in today's terms a Public Sector Undertaking (PSU).

- Developed as a city by Francois Martin 01-06 (Governor-General 1701-06, earlier Governor), the real founder of French power in India: centralised French administration with Pondicherry as capital (1701) and built Fort Louis.
- 5. 1723, Yanam: permission from Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48, also called Asaf Jah I.
- 6. 1724, Mahe (Malabar coast):
  - Acquired from the Nair ruler Vazhunnavar in 1721
  - trade settlement built 1724-25 after overcoming a rebellion

- Named after Mahe de La Bourdonnais 35-46, who came with a fleet from Mauritius

- 7. 1739, Karaikal: granted by Pratap Singh 39-63, Maratha ruler of Tanjore, as a reward for French help in a succession dispute.
- (The Thanjavur Maratha dynasty was founded not by Shivaji 74-80 directly but by his half-brother Venkoji (Ekoji) in 1674, defeating the Nayaka rulers of Madurai.)
- 8. 1721, Mauritius a French colony, but proper control only by 1735 under Mahe de La Bourdonnais 35-46 (Governor 1735-46).
- He came again with a fleet in 1746 and helped Dupleix 42-54 capture Madras in the 1st Carnatic War (1746-48).
- 9. 1949:
  - A referendum in Chandernagore merged it into India
  - The rest stayed under French control until 1954.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- French acquisitions stressed: Surat, "farman given by Aurangzeb 58-07 in 1667," Chandarnagar, Pondicherry (1674 = the key row), Sultan of Bijapur, "capital 1701," "Fort Louis built," Yanam, "Mahe on the Malabar coast," Karaikal.
- Mauritius (1721/1735): low priority (no reason is written).

District	Coastline	Surrounded by (State)

TEACHER'S BOARD

"East" for Puducherry, Karaikal and Yanam; Mahe is the odd one out (West coast, Arabian Sea).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Pondicherry's occupation history (mnemonic PDa-FDu-BFBF to India).
- Pondicherry is synonymous with the French, but they were not the first there: Portuguese (16th century) → Danes (briefly in 1624) → French (1674) → Dutch (captured briefly in 1693) → British.
- The English captured Pondicherry in 1761 and restored it to the French via the Treaty of Paris (1763)

Map: European settlements in India, 1498-1739 handout figure

- the British captured it again (for example in 1793) before finally returning it to the French in 1814.
- It remained French until transferred to India in 1954.

20 · Who came when: a master comparison

STORY LINK

Because two orders of arrival exist, read the question's wording. Ask: founding order or first-factory order?

Company	Founded	First factory in India	Nature	Fate

HANDOUT ALERT

- Two orders for "who came first." Company founding:
  - Portugal 1500 -&gt
  - EIC 1600 -&gt
  - Dutch 1602 -&gt
  - Danes 1616 -&gt
  - French (the EIC's 1600 Charter precedes the VOC's 1602)
- First factory in India (Tables T1 to T5): Portuguese 1498-1500, Dutch 1605, English 1611, Danish 1620, French 1664/1668.
- Use the first-factory order unless the question says "company founded"
- the French are last either way

21 · Chapter 8 PYQs discussed in class

STORY LINK

Because this is a Prelims chapter, the 16 PYQs are the test. Ask: which words did the teacher underline as traps?

PYQ 1 · Prelims 1995: Hughly piracy

- Answer: (a) the Portuguese. They misused their trade privileges from their Bengal base: piracy and the slave trade.
- This is why Shah Jahan ordered his Bengal governor Qasim Khan to eject them from Hugli in 1631-32 (see section 11).
- Wrong options:
  - (b) the French at Chandernagore were trading, not pirate dens
  - (c) the Danish bases (Tranquebar, Serampore) were lawful
  - (d) the British entered Bengal at Hugli in 1651, after the piracy was suppressed

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Answer slide: "Carnatic" over Tranquebar and "Bengal" over Serampore: the two Danish bases are in different regions.

PYQ 2 · Prelims 2003: European entry, the NOT-correct statement

- Answer: (a) is the wrong statement: Albuquerque 09-15 captured Goa from the Sultan of Bijapur in 1510, not 1499.
- Da Gama reached Calicut in 1498 and merely traded.
- (b), (c), (d) are correct:
  - Masulipatnam (1611)
  - Balasore and Hariharpur, Orissa (1633)
  - Dupleix 42-54 took Madras in 1746 (1st Carnatic War)

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - Question:
>   - A true statement (T) after option (d)
>   - The question asks for the false one
> - Answer slide: "09-K" after "1498 and merely traded" (hard to read; probably Albuquerque 09-15's reign).

PYQ 3 · Prelims 2005: modern Kochi

- Answer: (b). The Dutch captured Cochin from the Portuguese in 1663 and held it as their key South-India base.
- Why the others are wrong:
  - (a) Cochin was under British rule 1795-1947, not Dutch till independence
  - (c) the order is reversed (Portuguese 1500 first, Dutch 1663 second)
  - (d) Cochin did become part of British India after 1795

TEACHER'S BOARD

- (a) "1795 x presence" (no Dutch presence after 1795): F. (b) "built forts," "1663": T. (c) F. (d) F.
- The Kew Letters (1795, section 14) are why the British, not the Dutch, held Cochin after 1795.

PYQ 4 · Prelims 2006: the 1613 factory

- Answer: (d) Surat. Jahangir 05-27 issued a Royal Farman in 1613 giving the right to a permanent factory at Surat, after the Battle of Swally (1612).
- Wrong options:
  - (a) Bangalore came only after the Anglo-Mysore Wars
  - (b) Madras was acquired in 1639
  - (c) Masulipatnam had a temporary factory (1611), but the 1613 farman was for Surat.
- This is the 1612 versus 1613 point in section 10.

PYQ 5 · Prelims 2007: the first British fort

- Answer: (b) Fort St George. Madras, built 1639-44: the first fort built by the EIC in India.
- Wrong options:
  - (a) Fort William (Calcutta) was built 1696-1700
  - (c) Fort St David (Cuddalore) was purchased in 1690, not built
  - (d) Fort St Angelo (Kannur) was built by the Portuguese in 1505.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Trap word "constructed" (St David was bought, not built).
- Side labels:
  - (a) CAL, (b) MAD, (c) MAD, (d) **"?"
  - Answer (b).
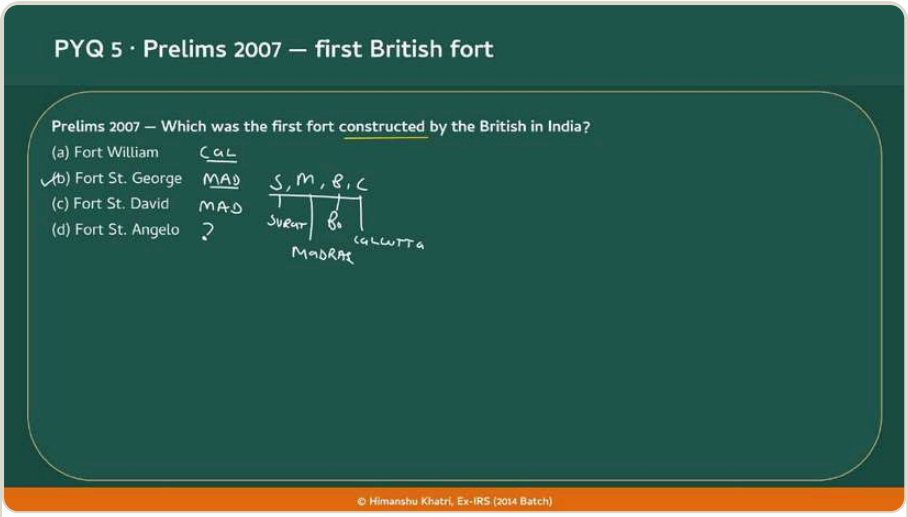
- Order of the EIC's main centres: "S, M, B, C" = SURAT, MADRAS, Bo (Bombay), CALCUTTA (matches the Presidency board in section 16).



PYQ 5, Prelims 2007: first British fort, board solution Lecture 12 slide 30

PYQ 6 · Prelims 2007: the last Europeans to come

- Answer: (c) the French. The French EIC was founded in 1664 and set up its first Indian factory at Surat in 1668, the latest of the four.
- Chronology on the answer slide:
  - Portuguese 1498 -&gt
  - Dutch 1605 -&gt
  - English 1611 -&gt
  - Danish 1620 -&gt
  - French 1664/1668.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Answer:
  - French. Board chain: "PORTUGAL (1500) -&gt
  - EIC (1600) -&gt
  - DUTCH 1602 -&gt
  - Danes 1616 -&gt
  - Fr" (left unfinished)
- See the alert at the end of section 20 on the two orders (company founding versus first factory).

PYQ 6, Prelims 2007: last Europeans to come Lecture 12 slide 32

PYQ 7 · Prelims 2010: Pondicherry

- Question:
  - (1) the first European power to occupy it was the Portuguese
  - (2) the second was the French
  - (3) the English never occupied it
- Options:
  - (a) Only 1
  - (b) 2 and 3
  - (c) Only 3
  - (d) 1, 2 and 3
- Answer slide:
  - (a) Only 1. Sequence: Portuguese -&gt
  - Danes (1624) -&gt
  - French (1674) -&gt
  - Dutch (1693) -&gt
  - English (1761/1793/1814) -&gt
  - India (1954).
- Statement 2 is wrong (the second were the Danes; the French were fourth).
- Statement 3 is wrong (the English captured it several times and restored it by treaty).

> Board: T for (1), F for (2), T for (3); board picks (d); note: "WORD "occupied" = VERY TEMPORARY OCCUPATION ALSO." A small "L" under (a) is unclear.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Board versus answer slide. The board ticks (d) and marks statement 3 true
- The answer slide gives (a) Only 1, and the handout's occupation sequence (section 19: Portuguese, Danes, French, Dutch, British) makes statements 2 and 3 false.
- "Occupied" counts even a very temporary occupation, so the English did occupy it (1761, 1793).
- Use (a) Only 1
- the board tick on (d) is unresolved, check the class recording

PYQ 8 · Prelims 2012: what the English introduced

- Answer:
  - (d) None of these. (1) Soil-and-crop revenue assessment existed in medieval India (Sher Shah 40-45, Todar Mal)
  - (2) mobile cannons came with Babur 26-30 at Panipat (1526)
  - (3) tobacco and red chillies were introduced by the Portuguese.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Trap words: "introduced" ("1st Time" above) and "English": what the English brought for the first time.
- F marked on the first two statements.
- Cannons -&gt
- "Babur 26-30"
- Tobacco and red chillies -&gt
- "PORTUGAL." Answer (d).

PYQ 9 and PYQ 13 · Prelims 2015 and its repeat in Prelims 2021

- Question (both years): in the first quarter of the 17th century, EIC factories were at (1) Broach, (2) Chicacole, (3) Trichinopoly.
- Answer: (a) Only 1. Only Broach (Bharuch) had an EIC factory then: the Roe-era (1616-19) factories were Agra, Ahmedabad and Broach, all in the Mughal Empire.
- Chicacole (Srikakulam) and Trichinopoly had none
- early South-India trade centred on Masulipatnam.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "1600-1625"
- "ENGLISH" -&gt
- "factories"
- Broach is the one
- Map notes:
  - Gujarat "SURAT 1613," east coast "Masulipatnam 1611" and "MADRAS 1639"
  - Also BROACH and SURAT.
- By 1625 the EIC was only on the Gujarat side and at Masulipatnam
- Madras came in 1639, after the quarter ended
- PYQ 13 (Prelims 2021) = same question, same answer: UPSC repeated it.

PYQ 9, Prelims 2015: first-quarter 17th-century factories Lecture 12 slide 38

PYQ 15 · Prelims 2023: who surrendered Diu

- Answer: (c) Bahadur Shah. Under Nuno da Cunha 29-38 the Portuguese acquired Bassein (1534) and Diu (1535) from Bahadur Shah of Gujarat.
- Wrong options:
  - (a) Ahmad Shah (1411-42, as printed on the slide) did not surrender Diu
  - (b) Mahmud Begarha resisted the Portuguese
  - (d) Muhammad Shah 19-48 was a later, minor ruler

TEACHER'S BOARD

"BOMBAY 1534" beside the answer: Bombay passed to the Portuguese with the 1534 Bassein deal (the "1534-1661: Portugal" note in section 17.2).

PYQ 16 · Prelims 2025: Portuguese fruits

- Answer: (c) All the three. The Portuguese brought tobacco, red chillies, papaya, pineapple and guava from the New World (section 4.7).

PYQ 10 · Prelims 2018: Bengal exports

- Answer: (d) cotton, silk, saltpetre and opium: the textile, saltpetre and opium mix that fuelled EIC profits before and after Plassey.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "1750s" with "L Textiles." (a) F, "raw": India exported finished goods, not raw cotton.
- Beside (a): "Before IR (1750-1850)," "FG of India" (reads like "finished goods of India").
- On (d):
  - Cotton, saltpetre and opium stressed
  - Under saltpetre "L Gunpowder." Answer (d).

PYQ 11 · Prelims 2019: New-World plants

- Answer:
  - (a) tobacco, cocoa and rubber. The Portuguese brought tobacco, red chillies, papaya, pineapple and guava to India
  - The fuller list is in the Geography notes

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "American" above the question
- T on (a), F on (b), (c), (d)
- Cotton in (b) and (c):
  - "Bengal" -&gt
  - Cotton is the Old-World (Bengal) crop, so it cannot be an American plant

HANDOUT ALERT

- Do not mix two lists. This PYQ asks which plants were domesticated in the New World (tobacco, cocoa, rubber qualify).
- Section 4.7 lists what the Portuguese brought to India: cocoa and rubber are not on that list (they reached India in the British period).
- The handout and this slide agree
- The questions are different

PYQ 12 · Prelims 2021: St Francis Xavier

- Answer: (c) 1 and 3. Xavier was a founding member of the Jesuit Order (1, true) and the Feast of St Francis Xavier is celebrated in Goa each year (3, true).
- Statement 2 is the trap:

  - He did not die in Goa
  - He died on Shangchuan Island (off China) in 1552.
- His remains were brought to Goa (Basilica of Bom Jesus), but death is not burial.
- Slide 52 calls it a signature trap: UPSC tested death versus burial.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Statement (2) marked "False." F beside (a), (b), (d); (c) is the answer (same point as section 4.6).

PYQ 14 · Prelims 2022: Gajapati, Albuquerque 09-15, Madras

- Question:
  - (1) Dutch factories on lands granted by the Gajapati
  - (2) Albuquerque 09-15 captured Goa
  - (3) English factory at Madras leased from Vijayanagara.
- Answer: (b) 2 and 3 only. Statement 2: Albuquerque 09-15 took Goa from Bijapur in 1510.
- Statement 3: the EIC got Madraspatanam in 1639 from the Hindu Nayakas (Vijayanagara governors).
- Statement 1 is the trap: the Dutch did not get land from the Gajapati dynasty, a 15th-century Odisha dynasty that had declined well before the Dutch came (1605 onwards).
- Do not confuse later Odisha-coast rulers with the Gajapatis themselves.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - "Gajapati" flagged. "09-15" above Albuquerque 09-15, T, "1510"
> - "1639" (for Madras)
> - "1336-1646" under Vijayanagara.
> - (a) and (c) rejected, (b) correct.

> HANDOUT ALERT
> - The question says Madras was "leased" from Vijayanagara
> - The handout says the EIC purchased the land from the Hindu Nayakas (section 17.1)
> - Learn "purchased" (handout wins)
> - the answer still counts statement 3 as correct

Prelims PYQs: 1995, 1996

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 1995: match the battle to its two sides: Wandiwash 1760 = French vs the EIC (answer b); the traps: Buxar 1764 = EIC vs Mir Qasim 60-63 (not Mir Jafar 57-60), Chilianwala 1849 = Dalhousie 48-56 vs the Sikhs, Kharda 1795 = Nizam vs the Marathas
- Prelims 1996: the first European to take part in the quarrels of Indian princes to acquire territories = Dupleix 42-54 (Clive 57-67 and Warren Hastings 73-85 refined the model; Albuquerque 09-15 was an earlier era of direct conquest)
- Hold in order: the three treaties (Aix-La-Chapelle 1748, Pondicherry 1754, Paris 1763); the five French posts kept in 1763 (Pondicherry, Mahe, Karaikal, Yanam, Chandernagore); the 1661 Charter powers
- The teacher's warning on the title slide: not many Prelims questions from EIC-versus-Indian-kingdom wars, so do not mug up battle trivia; read the chapter for the concept

MAINS HOOKS

- The teacher's board question (marked FYQ-M, year not written): 'Model of empire building (in India) by trading companies was founded by the French and implemented by the British. Analyse.' Founded = the 2nd Carnatic War (Dupleix 42-54's four steps); implemented = future topics (Plassey, Buxar, Subsidiary Alliance)
- How did a trading company become a State? (wars for trade versus wars for territory; the two conditions: an ambitious Governor and EIC Army pressure)
- Why did France lose and the EIC win the Carnatic Wars? (leadership, navy, finances, tactical mistakes; the five factors)
- How did the Carnatic Wars lead to Plassey 1757 and to British domination of South India?

Dupleix 42-54 invented the model (back a claimant, station your army at his cost, take territory as payment, sit in his court as Resident); the British EIC, with deeper pockets and a stronger navy, implemented it.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: A profit-making company discovers that Indian quarrels can buy territory: Dupleix 42-54 proves it at Adyar 1746 and in the 2nd Carnatic War (back a claimant, station an army, take land, sit in court). The EIC reacts at Arcot, wins the 3rd war with royal armies, a navy and deeper pockets, and the Treaty of Paris 1763 leaves it the trade and the road to Plassey.

1. A shop that became a State. Companies exist for profit, and the EIC was no different, yet by 1857 it ruled 63% of India's territory and 78% of its population. The 1661 Charter had given it forts, troops, war and peace and courts, and 1676 its own mint. Its wars were for trade (defensive, like the Carnatic Wars) or for territory, when a Governor was personally ambitious or the EIC Army pushed for war.

   → But first the Company met an Indian power, and lost.

2. Child's War (1686-90). Aurangzeb 58-07's wars and quarrels over bribes and customs in Bengal pushed the EIC to seize Hugli and attack Mughal ships. Aurangzeb 58-07 crushed it in Bombay and Bengal, the Company surrendered by 1690, and in February 1690 he pardoned it for Rs 1.5 lakh. The 1691 Farman, technically a Parwana, gave duty-free trade in Bengal for Rs 3,000 a year, because the EIC brought forex and gold and fed bankers, merchants, artisans and ryots.

   → So the Company learns patience, and a rival arrives from France.

3. Enter Dupleix. Joseph Francois Dupleix 42-54 is Governor-General of the French EIC from 1742 to 1754, with personal ambitions of empire and of dominating South India's trade; by 1740 French trade is about half of the British. The three Carnatic Wars are 1746-48, 1749-54 and 1756-63: the 1st and 3rd are global wars spilling into India, and the 2nd is factionalism, R versus R.

   → The first war begins in Europe, but Dupleix fights it in India.

4. Adyar, 1746. The War of the Austrian Succession (1740-48) reaches India, and Dupleix 42-54 captures the EIC's Fort St George at Madras. Anwaruddin 44-49, Nawab of Carnatic, expected the fort and, when Dupleix 42-54 refused, sent 10,000 cavalry; at Adyar about 700 French-trained sepoys and 300 French soldiers destroyed them with light cannon, infantry squares and regular pay. It was a turning point: Indian kings now wanted European help to modernise their armies.

   → But Madras is traded away in Europe, and Dupleix 42-54 'aches'.

5. Aix-La-Chapelle, 1748. The treaty ended the Austrian war and returned possessions in America and India, so Madras went back to the EIC. The French had won in India but the British in the Americas, and Britain's main interest was India while France's was the Americas. Nothing changed in territory, European infantry stayed far greater than Indian cavalry, and Dupleix 42-54 was left empty-handed.

   → But India offers new quarrels at once.

6. Two quarrels, four claimants. In Carnatic, Md Ali 52-95 (son of Anwaruddin 44-49) faces Chanda Sahib 49-52 (son-in-law of Dost Ali Khan 32-40). In Hyderabad, after Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 dies in 1748, his son Nasir Jung 48-50 faces his grandson Muzaffar Jung 50-51. The French move first for Chanda Sahib 49-52 and Muzaffar Jung 50-51, and the anxious EIC reacts for Md Ali 52-95 and Nasir Jung 48-50, fearing lost trade.

   → The French strike first, and win.

7. Phase 1: the French kingmaker. At Ambur in 1749 Anwaruddin 44-49 dies and Chanda Sahib 49-52 is made Nawab; by December 1750 Nasir Jung 48-50 is dead and Muzaffar Jung 50-51 is Nizam. Muzaffar Jung 50-51 is killed in February 1751 at Lakkireddipalli Pass, so Bussy installs Salabat Jung 51-62. The French gain a resident and an army at Hyderabad, paid for with the Northern Sarkars, 2,00,000 pounds and jagirs, and Dupleix 42-54 styles himself Nawab from the Krishna to Cape Comorin. His four steps are a model: a succession dispute, an army at the State's cost, territory as payment, a Resident.

→ But a model that works once can be matched by a rival.

8 Phase 2: Arcot, 1751. Dupleix 42-54 fixes on Trichinopoly, where Md Ali 52-95 holds out, and leaves Arcot unguarded, so Clive 57-67 takes it from Madras with about 200 Europeans and 300 sepoys and holds it for 53 days. Paris, wanting to honour the 1748 treaty and keep America, refuses to help. By the Treaty of Pondicherry (1754) Dupleix 42-54 is recalled, Godeheu replaces him, the French keep Hyderabad influence and Md Ali 52-95 becomes Nawab of Carnatic; Chanda Sahib 49-52 is beheaded at Tanjore by Pratap Singh 39-63.

→ Now Europe's wars bring royal armies to India.

9 The 3rd war and Wandiwash. The Seven Years' Global War (1756-63) brings royal armies for the first time: Count de Lally with Bussy for France, Eyre Coote with Clive 57-67 for Britain. Bussy leaves the Northern Sarkars to help Lally, so Clive 57-67 takes them in 1759, and Lally's rude conduct and unpaid soldiers weaken the French, who also face a superior British navy. Eyre Coote wins the decisive battle of Wandiwash on 22 January 1760 and Pondicherry falls in 1761.

→ The treaty table closes the book.

10 Paris, 1763. France loses all gains since 1749, keeps five posts (Pondicherry, Mahe, Karaikal, Yanam, Chandernagore) and may not keep a strong army or fortify its bases; in 1769 the French EIC is abolished. Having countered the Portuguese by 1612 and the Dutch by the 1650s, the British EIC now has a monopoly over India's international trade. It won all three wars because France starved Dupleix 42-54, had weaker leadership and a weaker navy, and could not match a private joint-stock firm with deep capital.

→ But the real result is bigger than trade.

11 From Carnatic to Plassey. The 3rd war brought large royal military forces to India, and that strength plus Clive 57-67's shrewd diplomacy made Plassey 1757 possible. In 1766 Hyderabad ceded the Northern Sarkars to the EIC for Rs 7 lakh a year; Hyderabad signed the first Subsidiary Alliance in 1798, Mysore in 1799, Travancore in 1805, and Carnatic was annexed in 1801. The French founded the model of empire building and the British implemented it.

STORY LINK

Story so far: one question runs through the chapter: how did a company that existed for profit end up ruling India? Ask: what do the teacher's board codes CW, (T), AWoS and MJ stand for?

- This chapter asks one question: how did a company that existed for profit end up ruling India?
- Sections 1 and 2 give the frame (the Charter of 1661, wars for trade versus wars for territory, the Anglo-Mughal War).
- Sections 3 to 6 are the three Carnatic Wars.
- The teacher's short codes on the board:
    - CW = Carnatic War (1st, 2nd, 3rd)
    - (T) = territory

- AWoS = Austrian War of Succession
- Fr eic and Eng eic = the French and English East India Companies
- MJ = Muzaffar Jung 50-51
- Hyd = Hyderabad.

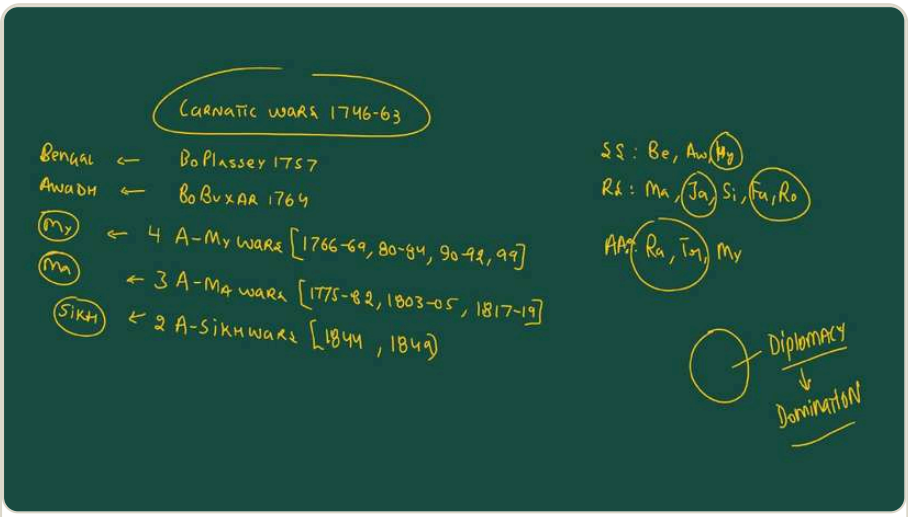
- The handout for Chapter 9 ends with an index for the next chapter (Plassey and Buxar). That belongs to Chapter 10.



Carnatic Wars in the EIC's conquest of India Lecture 12 slide 58

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The Carnatic Wars (1746-63) come first
- Then the EIC takes the Indian States one by one: Bengal by the Battle of Plassey 1757, Awadh by the Battle of Buxar 1764, Mysore by 4 Anglo-Mysore wars [1766-69, 80-84, 90-92, 99], the Marathas by 3 Anglo-Maratha wars [1775-82, 1803-05, 1817-19], the Sikhs by 2 Anglo-Sikh wars [1844, 1849].
- The three classes of regional States (Chapter 3):
  - SS (Successor States): Bengal, Awadh, Hyderabad
  - Rebel States: Marathas, Jats, Sikhs, Farukhabad, Rohilkhand
  - AAs (Already Autonomous States): Rajputs, Travancore, Mysore. Legend: Diplomacy, then Domination
- Apparently Hyderabad, Jats, Farukhabad and Rohilkhand, Rajputs and Travancore came under the EIC through diplomacy, while Bengal, Awadh, Marathas, Sikhs and Mysore are exactly the war list.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Board versus notebook. (1) The board writes the Anglo-Mysore wars as [1766-69, 80-84, 90-92, 99]
- Chapter 7 gives the first war as 1767-69.
- (2) Anglo-Sikh wars [1844, 1849] are as on the board
- Detailed dates come in a later chapter

1 · How did a trading company become a State?

STORY LINK

Chapter 1 of the story: a profit-making firm with State-like powers. Because the 1661 Charter gave forts, troops and courts, the Company could wage war. Ask: under which two conditions did wars for territory happen?

How did a trading company become a State? Lecture 12 slide 60

- Companies exist to make profit for their shareholders. The EIC was no different.
- But what the EIC became in India went far beyond a trading enterprise.
- It became a Company State that, by 1857, controlled 63% of India's territory and 78% of its population.
- This chapter deals with Empire Building by the EIC.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- By 1857 the EIC "RULED" (not merely "controlled") 63% of the territory and 78% of the population.
- India = British India (63% of territory, 78% of population) + 565 Princely States (37% of territory, 22% of population).

1.1 The 1661 Charter

Year	What the EIC got
1661 Charter (Charles II 60-85)	The right to build forts
	The right to command troops
	The right to make war and peace
	The right to exercise civil and criminal jurisdiction over its settlements in India

Year	What the EIC got
1676	The right to mint its own money

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Forts, troops, war, peace and civil and criminal jurisdiction are State-like powers in the hands of a company.
- The same charter is in the EIC charters table of Chapter 8.

1.2 Two kinds of wars: for trade and for territory

- The wars the EIC fought in India fall into two broad categories. Wars for trade: fought to protect or expand trade. Wars for territory: fought for empire building. These were different in nature and in motivation.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The EIC was not formed for territory (T).
- Its goal was trade with the East Indies (not just India).
- Its wars were of two kinds.
- (1) For trade: defensive, to protect present trade (the Carnatic Wars), or offensive, to expand trade (the Battle of Suvali 1612, Chapter 8).
- (2) For territory: only in two situations, given below.
- The Carnatic Wars were wars for trade, though they ended up laying the base for territory.

Wars for territory happened under two specific conditions.

- 1. When the Governor or Governor-General in India was personally ambitious: an empire builder by temperament. Britain was far away. Communication was slow.
- These men had enough operational freedom to pursue wars that London might not have formally approved.
- 2. At times the EIC Army put pressure for wars.
- Any army has a structural interest in war: war brings a bigger defence budget, prestige, promotions and political relevance to the military.

Why the EIC fought wars: for trade and for territory Lecture 12 slide 57

- The EIC Army was no different.

Empire builder	Post and years
Robert Clive 57-67	Governor of Bengal Presidency, in two stints: 1757-60 and 1765-67
Richard Wellesley 98-05	1798-1805
Francis Hastings 13-23	1813-23
Dalhousie 48-56	1848-56

The EIC Army's self-reinforcing war cycle (condition 2)

- Overhype threats:
  - The army routinely overhyped threats to the borders
  - War brings budget, prestige, promotions
- Pressure to expand: overhyped threats create pressure for territorial expansion
- New borders: expansion always creates new borders
- New threats: new borders bring new neighbours, and so new threats, fictional or real
- Back to the start:
  - The new threats are overhyped again
  - A self-reinforcing cycle

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The army's vested interest in wars = three kinds of power: economic power (bigger defence budget, "Def BD"), political power (larger army), social power.
- Handout parallel: the Pakistan Army today has eaten Pakistan from within by putting its vested interests above the national interest, while the Indian Army has consistently done the opposite.

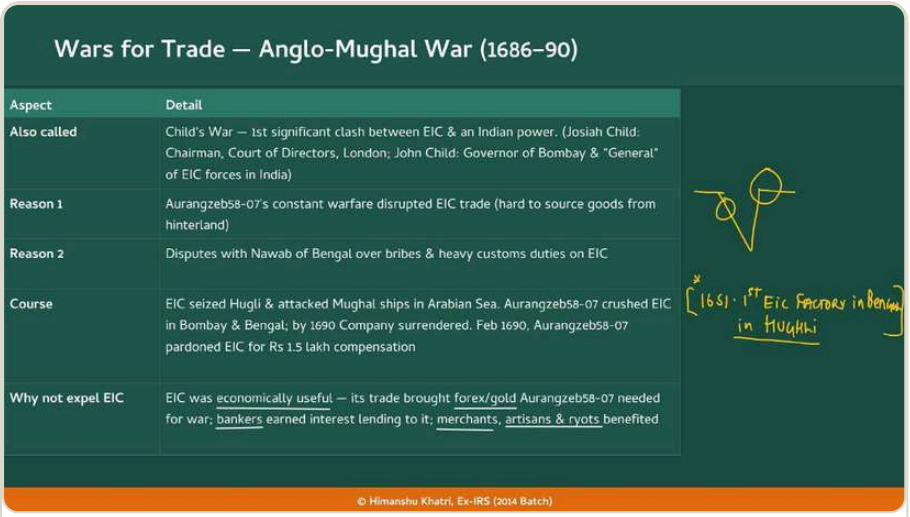
2 · Wars for trade: the Anglo-Mughal War (1686-90)

STORY LINK

Because Aurangzeb 58-07's wars and Bengal's customs disputes hurt trade, the Company picked a fight and lost. Ask: why did Aurangzeb 58-07 not expel it?



Wars for trade: Anglo-Mughal War 1686-90 Lecture 12 slide 63

- The Anglo-Mughal War of 1686-90 was fought in Bengal and the Arabian Sea.
- It was the first significant military clash between the EIC and an Indian power.
- It is also called Child's War, after two men: Josiah Child: Chairman of the Court of Directors of the EIC in London. John Child: Governor of Bombay and the "General" of all EIC forces in India.
- The reasons were two-fold: Aurangzeb 58-07's constant warfare was disrupting EIC trade (problems in sourcing goods from the hinterland). Ongoing disputes with the Nawab of Bengal over bribes and heavy customs duties levied on the EIC.

Child's War, 1686 to 1691

- The EIC seizes Hugli
- It escalates: attacks Mughal ships in the Arabian Sea
- Aurangzeb 58-07's military crushes the EIC in both Bombay and Bengal
- By 1690 the Company surrenders
- February 1690: Aurangzeb 58-07 pardons the EIC in return for Rs 1.5 lakh compensation
- 1691 Farman: old privileges restored and duty-free trade in Bengal for Rs 3,000 a year

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> "1651: the 1st EIC factory in Bengal, in Hughli." That is why the EIC seizes Hugli in this war.

2.1 Why did Aurangzeb 58-07 not abolish the Company and expel the British?

Because the EIC was economically useful.

- Its trade brought forex/gold into India, and Aurangzeb 58-07 needed them for war.
- With Aurangzeb 58-07's own constant warfare disrupting domestic trade, the EIC's export business was, ironically, even more valuable to the Indian economy.

- Indian bankers earned interest by lending money to the Company for the purchase of goods.
- Indian merchants, artisans and ryots all participated in and benefited from this trade ecosystem.

2.2 The 1691 Farman

- The 1691 Farman was technically a Parwana, because it was issued by the Subahdar of Bengal, not an imperial farman.
- (For Farman, Parwana and Nishan see Chapter 8.)
- It was issued under Aurangzeb 58-07's approval.
- It restored the EIC's old privileges and gave it the right to duty-free trade in Bengal in exchange for Rs 3,000 per annum.

Anglo-Mughal War: the 1691 Farman and duty-free trade Lecture 12 slide 64

- The Company had been defeated militarily, yet it got this privilege, because of the benefits of European trade with India.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why give duty-free trade to a defeated company?
- Ryots and artisans sell to the Indian merchant
- The Indian merchant sells to the EIC
- Indian bankers give loans to the EIC. Everyone in the chain earns
- The money the EIC saves on duty is used to buy more Indian goods = more exports.
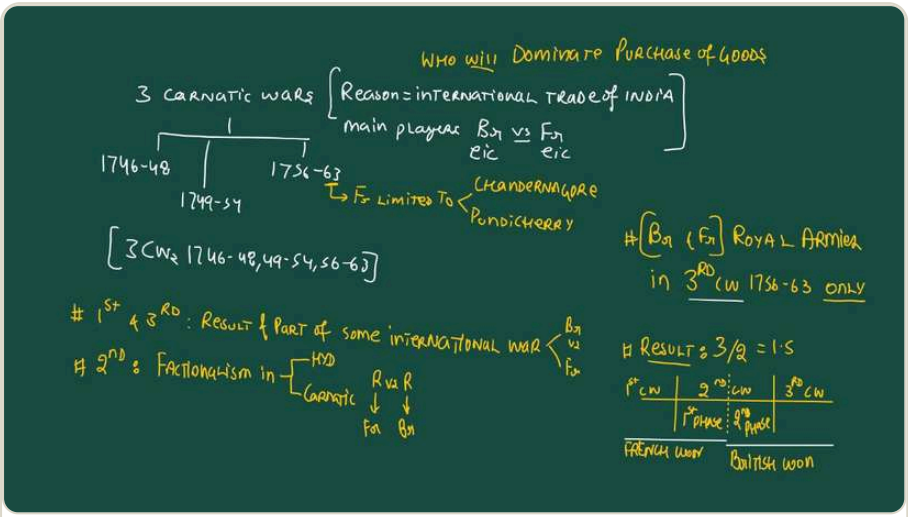
- Aside: "TODAY we don't tax exports" (a State gains more from exports than from taxing them).

3 · The Carnatic Wars (1746-48, 49-54, 56-63): why the French, and why three wars

STORY LINK

Because the rival in India was now France, three wars followed. Ask: which two wars were global spillovers, and which one was factionalism?



The three Carnatic Wars: frame and results Lecture 12 slide 59

- To understand why conquest by the EIC began in Bengal, one must first understand what was happening in South India, and why the French were there.
- Joseph Francois Dupleix 42-54 was the Governor-General of the French EIC from 1742-54.
- Dupleix 42-54 had personal ambitions of empire building and of dominating the international trade of South India.
- He would become the template for everything that followed.
- By 1740, French EIC trade was roughly half the value of British EIC trade.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Reason for all three wars: international trade of India, "who will dominate purchase of goods." Main players: British EIC versus French EIC. 1st and 3rd wars = a result or part of some international war (Britain versus France). 2nd war = factionalism in Hyderabad and Carnatic, "R vs R" (rival against rival), the French behind one rival and the British behind the other.
- Royal armies (British and French) took part in the 3rd Carnatic War 1756-63 ONLY.
- Result:
  - 3/2 = 1.5 each: the French won the 1st war and the 1st phase of the 2nd
  - The British won the 2nd phase of the 2nd and the 3rd.
- After 1756-63 the French were limited to Chandernagore and Pondicherry (the five posts are in section 6.4).

3.1 Reasons for the Carnatic Wars

- The EIC-French contest in India had two overlapping reasons.

- 1. European rivalry. Two global wars spilled into India.
- As the two nations fought, their respective companies also entered into hostilities in India.
- 2. Succession disputes in Carnatic and Hyderabad contributed to the 2nd Carnatic War (1749-54).
- The strategy was simple: put your chosen candidates in power to gain strategic influence.

War	Years	Cause	Decisive event	Treaty	Who won (teacher's board)
1st Carnatic War	1746-48	The War of the Austrian Succession (1740-48) spilled into India	Battle of Adyar/St Thome (1746)	Treaty of Aix-La-Chapelle (1748)	French
2nd Carnatic War	1749-54	Succession disputes in Carnatic and Hyderabad (factionalism)	Ambur (1749); Clive 57-67's Arcot (1751)	Treaty of Pondicherry (1754)	Phase 1: French. Phase 2: British
3rd Carnatic War	1756-63	The Seven Years' Global War (1756-63) spilled into India	Battle of Wandiwash (1760)	Treaty of Paris (1763)	British

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "42-54, 1742-54: not in 3CW 1756-63." Dupleix 42-54 was recalled in 1754, so he took no part in the 3rd Carnatic War ("Dupleix 42-54 not here", section 6.2).
- "How a company can build an empire: the first to show it was the French, Dupleix 42-54."

HANDOUT ALERT

The handout heading prints "Carnatic Wars (17456-48, 49-54, 56-63)": a typing slip for 1746-48.

4 · The 1st Carnatic War (1746-48) and the Battle of Adyar/St Thome (1746)

STORY LINK

Because the Austrian war reached India, Dupleix 42-54 took Madras and met the Nawab's cavalry. Ask: who sent the 10,000 cavalry, and what did Adyar prove?

4.1 Reason

- The 1st Carnatic War (1746-48) was the Indian chapter of the War of the Austrian Succession (1740-48).

- In that war Britain and France, along with their respective allies, fought each other across Europe, America and India, each wanting its preferred candidate on the Austrian throne.

4.2 Events during the war

From Madras to Adyar, 1746

- Dupleix 42-54 captures the EIC's Fort St George in Madras
- the EIC is defeated
- The Nawab of Carnatic, Anwaruddin 44-49, intervenes: he expected the French to hand over the fort to the Nawab as promised
- Dupleix 42-54 refuses
- Anwaruddin 44-49 sends an army of 10,000 cavalry
- Battle of Adyar/St Thome (1746): about 700 French-trained Indian sepoys and 300 French soldiers completely destroy the Nawab's 10,000-strong traditional cavalry
- The battle was fought on the north bank of the River Adyar.
- The French force was roughly 700 French-trained Indian sepoys and 300 French soldiers.

NUMBER CARD · ADYAR/ST THOME 1746: THE ODDS

700 · 300 · 10,000

One thousand men beat ten thousand: odds of 1 to 10.

700 French-trained Indian sepoys

300 French soldiers

10,000 The Nawab's traditional cavalry, completely destroyed

- It completely destroyed the Nawab's 10,000-strong traditional cavalry.
- What happened here changed the nature of power in India.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Who sent the 10,000 cavalry? The slide's wording ("Dupleix 42-54 refused and sent 10,000 cavalry") misleads.
- The handout is clear: Nawab Anwaruddin 44-49 sent the 10,000 cavalry against the French.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's Diagram 1 (section 7) adds a name the text does not give: "La Bourdonnais 35-46 takes Fort St George, Madras." The handout text and the slide credit the capture to Dupleix 42-54 (the Governor-General).
- La Bourdonnais 35-46 and Madras: Chapter 8.

4.3 Why the French won: three advantages of European warfare

- The French won due to three critical advantages that would define European military superiority in India across all the wars to come.

Advantage	Why it mattered
1. Superior artillery	Light, mobile European cannon that could be repositioned rapidly on the battlefield, against which massed cavalry had no answer (link: like the small bronze cannons of Babur 26-30, spelt Babar 26-30 in this handout)
2. Tactical discipline	European-trained infantry fought in coordinated formations, including infantry squares that could hold ground against cavalry charges from any direction
3. Regular cash salaries	Unlike Indian armies, where soldiers were often not paid regularly, European-trained sepoys received regular wages. This created a professional, reliable fighting force with no incentive to desert between campaigns

French-trained sepoys: the infantry square Lecture 12 slide 70

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Key phrases on the three-advantages slide: "light, mobile European cannon", "Babur 26-30", "formations", "infantry squares" and "small, disciplined, European-trained infantry with modern artillery." "Infantry Square": the men face outward on every side, so a cavalry charge from any direction meets a wall of muskets.
- Adyar slide, "Turning Point": "Indian kings wanted European help in modernising their military."

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway (Adyar 1746): not just a military victory.
- It was proven conclusively for the first time that a small, disciplined, European-trained infantry with modern artillery could crush a vastly larger traditional Indian army.
- The psychological impact was enormous: Europeans gained the confidence to interfere directly in Indian political disputes, which Dupleix 42-54 proceeded to do.
- Indian royal elites also wanted to use the military service of the Europeans in their internal and external disputes.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Wagner Group analogy (handout). The Wagner Group is a company which sells military service to the Russian State.
- In a way the French were now the Wagner Group of India: a company whose army could be hired by Indian rulers. Developed in section 5.1.

4.4 Consequence: the Treaty of Aix-La-Chapelle (1748)

- However, in North America, which was more strategically important to France, Britain had won.
- So in the Treaty of Aix-La-Chapelle (1748), which ended the War of the Austrian Succession, both sides agreed to return each other's possessions in America and India.
- Madras went back to the EIC.
- For Dupleix 42-54 this was deeply frustrating: his victories in India were traded away at a negotiating table in Europe.

Treaty of Aix-La-Chapelle 1748 Lecture 12 slide 71

- But he was not done. His next opportunity came almost immediately, in the form of succession disputes: one in Hyderabad, one in Carnatic.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "The French won in India BUT the British won in the Americas." Main interests: Britain = India
- France = the Americas, especially North and Central America.
- So France gave back Madras to recover what it had lost in America.
- Results:
  - (1) no change in territory
  - (2) European infantry far greater than Indian cavalry (the Adyar lesson stays though Madras is returned)
  - (3) "Dupleix 42-54 KAT gaya" (Hindi: he was cut out, left empty-handed)

5 · The 2nd Carnatic War (1749-54): how Dupleix 42-54 invented the blueprint for empire in India

STORY LINK

Because Aix-La-Chapelle returned Madras, Dupleix 42-54 found new quarrels. Ask: which four claimants, and which side moved first?

5.0 The succession disputes that triggered the war

- In Carnatic: Anwaruddin 44-49 had been appointed Nawab of Carnatic by the Nizam of Hyderabad in 1744.
- (The slide adds:

- He then became autonomous of the Nizam.) On his death a succession dispute began between: his son Md Ali 52-95 Wallajah (Md Ali 52-95), and
- Chanda Sahib 49-52, the son-in-law of the earlier Nawab Dost Ali Khan 32-40 (1732-40).

- In Hyderabad: Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 died in 1748.
- The rivals for the throne were:
  - His son Nasir Jung 48-50, and
  - His grandson Muzaffar Jung 50-51 (the slide adds: grandson from a daughter)

2nd Carnatic War 1749-54: factionalism and rival claimants Lecture 13 slide 1

- Dupleix 42-54 backed Muzaffar Jung 50-51 in Hyderabad and Chanda Sahib 49-52 in Carnatic. He wanted his chosen candidates in power for economic/trade and political influence.
- An anxious EIC backed the opposing sides: Nasir Jung 48-50 in Hyderabad and Md Ali 52-95 in Carnatic.

WHO BACKED WHOM IN THE 2ND CARNATIC WAR

2nd Carnatic War 1749-54
- Reason: factionalism, R vs R

@ French EIC
- Chanda Sahib 49-52: Carnatic
- Muzaffar Jung 50-51: Hyderabad

MOVED FIRST: Dupleix 42-54's candidates

@ English EIC
- Md Ali 52-95: Carnatic
- Nasir Jung 48-50: Hyderabad

REACTED: fear of lost trade

Place	French EIC's candidate (moved first)	English EIC's candidate (reacted)
Carnatic	Chanda Sahib 49-52 (son-in-law of Dost Ali Khan 32-40)	Md Ali 52-95 (son of Anwaruddin 44-49)
Hyderabad	Muzaffar Jung 50-51 (grandson of Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48)	Nasir Jung 48-50 (son of Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mnemonics (handout and board). French side:
  - "MuzaFFrance" = Muzaffar Jung 50-51
  - Chanda Sahib 49-52: "Paris and the moon (Chanda) are symbols of romance." British side: "Nasir Hussain: England captain, cricket" = Nasir Jung 48-50
  - "Jinnah, pro-British" = Md Ali 52-95 (the same first names as Jinnah's)
- Order (1) French EIC, (2) English EIC: the French interfered first, the EIC only reacted.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why did the EIC react at all?
- "Fear of the British = if the French EIC is able to put its favourite in power, then loss of trade for the EIC." Dupleix 42-54 wanted (a) empire building and (b) a monopoly of the international trade of South India.
- Anwaruddin 44-49 wanted his son Md Ali 52-95 to be Nawab.

Carnatic map: Arcot, Madras, Wandiwash, Pondicherry Lecture 13 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Map code "MWP": on the coast from north to south Madras (HQ of the EIC), Wandiwash (battle of the 3rd Carnatic War), Pondicherry (HQ of the French EIC).
- Arcot, inland, is the capital of Carnatic. Hyderabad lies north of the River Krishna
- the Northern Sarkars run along the coast further up. 2nd Carnatic War: "all gathered in Carnatic" (Nasir Jung 48-50 and Muzaffar Jung 50-51 arrived in Carnatic too)
- Two phases:
    - French EIC ahead in the 1st phase (till 1751)
    - English EIC ahead in the 2nd.

5.1 Phase 1: French victory (1749-51)

Phase 1 of the 2nd Carnatic War

- Battle of Ambur (1749): Nawab Anwaruddin 44-49 is killed
- Chanda Sahib 49-52 is declared Nawab of Carnatic at the capital Arcot
- By December 1750: Nasir Jung 48-50 is also killed and Muzaffar Jung 50-51 is declared Nizam
- Muzaffar Jung 50-51 marches toward Hyderabad, accompanied by Bussy's army
- February 1751, Battle of Lakkireddipalli Pass:
    - Muzaffar Jung 50-51 is killed by the Afghan Nawab of Kurnool
    - The Nawab of Kurnool is also killed
- Bussy reaches Hyderabad and installs Salabat Jung 51-62 as Nizam
- Battle of Ambur (1749): Nawab Anwaruddin 44-49 was killed.
- Chanda Sahib 49-52 was declared Nawab of Carnatic at the capital Arcot.
- (The slide notes: Ambur is 190 km west of Chennai; the teacher added "towards Bengaluru.")
- By December 1750, Nasir Jung 48-50 was also killed and Muzaffar Jung 50-51 was declared Nizam.
- Bussy was the junior of Dupleix 42-54.
- Accompanied by Bussy's army, Muzaffar Jung 50-51 began marching toward Hyderabad.
- But he was killed in February 1751 at the Battle of Lakkireddipalli Pass by the Afghan Nawab of Kurnool, who felt cheated as he was not given the territory promised to him for his support.
- The Nawab of Kurnool was also killed.
- (The slide's aside on the pass: "unlucky lol.")
- Bussy now reached Hyderabad and installed Salabat Jung 51-62 as Nizam.
- He was a son of Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 and an uncle of the recently killed Muzaffar Jung 50-51.

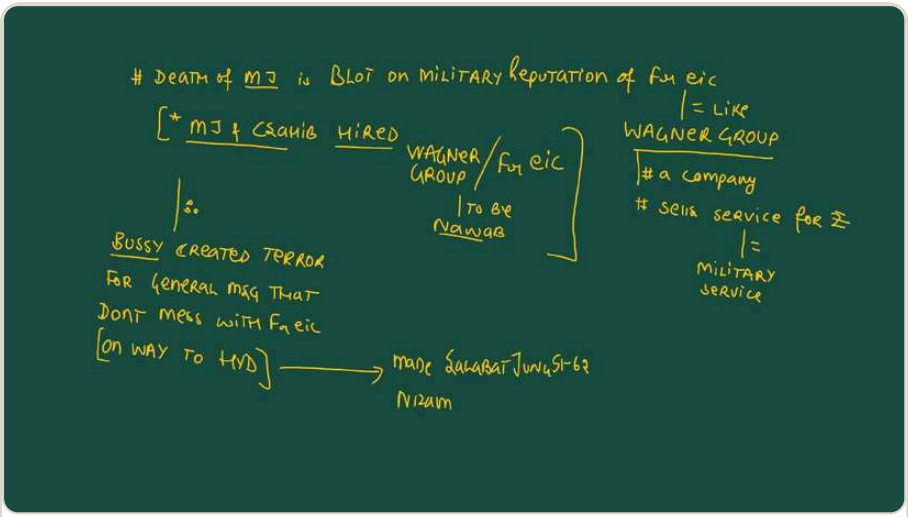
TEACHER'S BOARD

"Asaf Jahi dynasty, by Nizam-ul-Mulk 24-48 [Asaf Jah I]." All the Hyderabad claimants (Nasir Jung 48-50, Muzaffar Jung 50-51, Salabat Jung 51-62) belong to this one family (Chapter 3).



Wagner Group analogy: the French EIC as hired army Lecture 13 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Wagner Group = a company that sells a service for money
- The service is military service.
- Muzaffar Jung 50-51 ("MJ") and Chanda Sahib 49-52 hired the French EIC, like a Wagner Group, to become rulers.
- Death of MJ = a blot on the military reputation of the French EIC: a firm that sells protection cannot let its client be killed.
- So Bussy created terror on the way to Hyderabad as a general message, "don't mess with the French EIC," and made Salabat Jung 51-62 the Nizam.

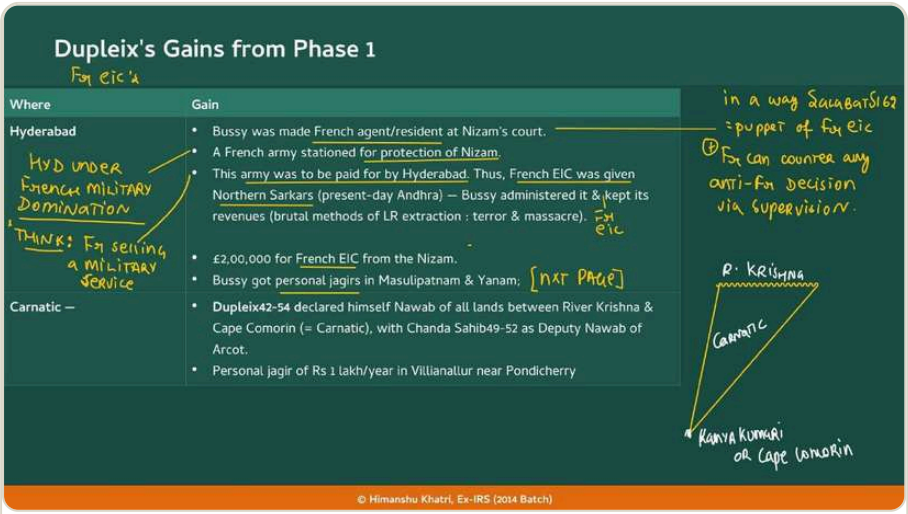
The gains from Phase 1



Dupleix 42-54's gains from Phase 1 Lecture 13 slide 6

Where	Gain
Hyderabad: the resident	Bussy was made the French resident and agent at the Nizam's court, wielding real political influence
Hyderabad: the army	A French army was stationed for the Nizam's protection, and Hyderabad was to pay for it
Hyderabad: the payment	The payment was the Northern Sarkars region (present-day Andhra Pradesh): Bussy administered it on behalf of the Nizam and kept its revenues as payment for the French army
Hyderabad: cash	2,00,000 pounds for the French EIC from the Nizam
Hyderabad: personal	Bussy extracted personal jagirs in Masulipatnam and Yanam
Carnatic: title	Dupleix 42-54 declared himself Nawab of all lands between the River Krishna and Cape Comorin (= Carnatic), with Chanda Sahib 49-52 as his Deputy Nawab of Arcot
Carnatic: personal	Dupleix 42-54 extracted a personal jagir of Rs 1 lakh per annum in Villianallur near Pondicherry

- In the Northern Sarkars Bussy's methods were brutal: terror and massacre of civilians for land revenue extraction.
- In Andhra folklore this terror is preserved in the word "boochi" (meaning ghost, or the feared), derived from Bussy's name.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Gains of the French EIC (not only Dupleix 42-54's).
- (1) "Hyderabad under French military domination" (army stationed there).
- (2) "THINK: the French are selling a military service" (Hyderabad pays for the army; the Wagner idea again).
- (3) "In a way Salabat Jung 51-62 = puppet of the French EIC." (4) "The French can counter any anti-French decision via supervision" (the purpose of a resident in the court).
- Geography: Carnatic = the land from the River Krishna (top) down to Kanya Kumari or Cape Comorin (tip).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The notebook page adds: (1) Dupleix 42-54 got 80 villages as the Jagirdari of Villianallur, worth Rs 1 lakh.
- (2) "Today, for inflation, = 3 crore rupees per annum" (how large a personal income this was).
- Yanam and Masulipatnam are Bussy's personal jagirs.

Handout figure: French gains after the 2nd Carnatic War handout figure

- Notebook page versus handout. (1) The page dates the 2nd Carnatic War "1750-54"
- the handout and every slide give 1749-54 (use this)
- (2) The page writes "x 300%", but Rs 1 lakh becomes Rs 3 crore only at 300 times
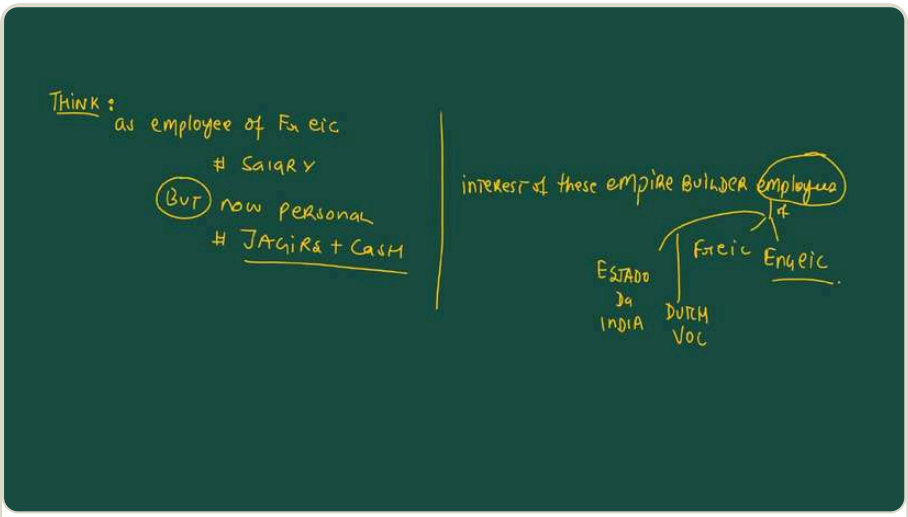
- take the point (a very large income), not the arithmetic



Why Company employees build empires Lecture 13 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

- THINK: why do Company men build empires?
- An employee of the French EIC gets only a salary.
- BUT empire building brings him personal jagirs plus cash.
- The personal interest of these empire-builder employees drives the wars, in every company: the French EIC, the English EIC, the Estado da India and the Dutch VOC.
- (Condition 1 of section 1.2: the personally ambitious Governor.)

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: Dupleix 42-54 invented the model of empire building in India: put your candidate in power, station your army at his expense, extract territory as payment, and sit in the court as the real power behind the throne.
- The British EIC refined this model and used it with devastating effect for the next century.
- (Handout aside: "Thanks, Dupleix 42-54" would be the EIC's thought.)

Dupleix 42-54's model of empire building (later copied and refined by the EIC)

- 1. Succession dispute = opportunity: interfere and bring your favourite claimant into power
- 2. Extract gains, military domination: station your army in the Indian State and make the State pay for this army
- 3. Extract gains, territory as payment: take land as payment for the army
- 4. Puppet State: station your Resident in the Indian King's court, who establishes his indirect rule

MNEMONIC · DUPLEIX 42-54'S FOUR-STEP MODEL

Strangers Arrive, Take Reins

S	Succession dispute = opportunity: back a claimant
A	Army stationed in the State, which pays for it
T	Territory taken as payment for the army
R	Resident in the king's court: puppet State, indirect rule

Order kept: each step needs the one before it, like a ladder to the throne.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Model slide. Step 1: "FACTIONALISM (R vs R)": the opening is always a quarrel between two rivals.
- Step 2: "Free of cost domination": the Indian State itself pays for the army that dominates it.
- Step 4: "Resident in the Indian King's court" and "Indirect Rule."

Mains question: model of empire building, French and British Lecture 13 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mains question: "Model of empire building (in India) by trading companies was founded by the French and implemented by the British. Analyse." "Founded by French" = the 2nd Carnatic War (the four steps above, with Hyderabad and Carnatic as examples).
- "Implemented by British" = future topics (Plassey and Buxar in Chapter 10, the Subsidiary Alliance in Chapter 11).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1996: the first European to take part in the quarrels of Indian princes with a view to acquire territories = (b) Dupleix 42-54.
- He invented the model: back a candidate, station your army at his expense, take territory as payment, sit in court as the real power.
- It was first used in the 2nd Carnatic War (backing Muzaffar Jung 50-51 and Chanda Sahib 49-52).
- Clive 57-67 came later: he used and refined the model in Bengal (Plassey 1757, Buxar 1764) but did not invent it.
- Albuquerque 09-15 was a 16th-century Portuguese conqueror (took Goa 1510): an earlier era of direct conquest, not the "back-a-claimant" model.
- Warren Hastings 73-85 was a later EIC Governor-General: a refiner, not the originator.

5.2 Phase 2: the EIC bounces back

- The EIC decided to fight back by supporting Md Ali 52-95 (Carnatic), who was holding out in Trichinopoly.
- Dupleix 42-54 got obsessed with eliminating any future challenge to his power.
- Hence he made the critical mistake of leaving the capital Arcot unguarded and focusing on Trichinopoly.
- Robert Clive 57-67, operating from Madras with a small force of roughly 200 Europeans and 300 sepoys, took over Arcot (the slide dates it: Arcot 1751).
- He then defended it against a massive counter-siege for 53 days.

NUMBER CARD · ARCOT 1751: FIVE HUNDRED MEN, FIFTY-THREE DAYS

2 0 0 · 3 0 0 · 5 3

Five hundred men held a capital for fifty-three days.

200 Europeans with Clive 57-67, from Madras
300 Sepoys
53 Days he held Arcot against the counter-siege

- The capital was now with the British!

- Clive 57-67 became a celebrated figure back in Britain.
- The French government in Paris, anxious to honour the 1748 treaty and preserve its more lucrative American possessions, refused to help Dupleix 42-54.
- By 1754 the French had lost the 2nd Carnatic War.

Phase 2: how the capital was lost

- Md Ali 52-95 holds out in Trichinopoly, backed by the EIC
- Dupleix 42-54's critical mistake: he focuses on Trichinopoly and leaves the capital Arcot unguarded
- Clive 57-67 takes Arcot (1751) from Madras with about 200 Europeans and 300 sepoys
- He defends it through a 53-day counter-siege
- Paris refuses to help Dupleix 42-54: it wants to honour the 1748 treaty and keep its American possessions
- By 1754 the French have lost the 2nd Carnatic War

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Key phrases: "1748 treaty" and "refused to help Dupleix 42-54." The real reason for the defeat: France chose America over India again, exactly as in 1748.

5.3 The Treaty of Pondicherry (1754)

- Dupleix 42-54 was recalled to France, replaced by Godeheu, on account of the high war expenditure.
- He died in poverty in France in 1763, abandoned by the State he had served.
- The Treaty of Pondicherry (1754) was a middle path:

Clause	Terms	Who smiles
1. Hyderabad	French influence remained in Hyderabad: (1) Bussy as agent, (2) the French army in Hyderabad, (3) the Northern Sarkars with the French	French
2. Factories	French factories in Pondicherry and Carnatic were retained
3. Carnatic	Md Ali 52-95 became Nawab of Carnatic: hence EIC influence in Carnatic	British

- Chanda Sahib 49-52, having escaped to Tanjore (present-day Thanjavur in Tamil Nadu), was beheaded by Pratap Singh 39-63, the Maratha Raja of Thanjavur: an old rival.
- Maratha rule in Tanjore had begun in 1674 when Venkoji (also known as Ekoji), half-brother of Chhatrapati Shivaji 74-80, conquered the region.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why was a winning Governor-General recalled? "Company = an organisation with a profit motive." High war expenditure eats profit, so the company removes the man who causes it.
- "Factory = warehouses + homes + offices + maybe a fort" (Chapter 8).
- The treaty is a split: the French gain in Hyderabad, the British in Carnatic.

How wars end: war aims and power differential Lecture 13 slide 13

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Theory of treaties ("imp factors"). War is expensive for both, the losing and the victorious party, so both want it to end.
- The victor ends the war if it has achieved its war aims, the core goal of the war.
- For the EIC the core motive was trade, so it could settle once its trade was safe (Hyderabad and Carnatic, each a gain).
- When a treaty is negotiated, the important factors are the power differential between the two sides and their ability, economic and military.
- Apply to all three treaties: 1748 (Austrian War of Succession 1740-48 and 1st Carnatic War 1746-48), 1754 and 1763.

6 · The 3rd Carnatic War (1756-63)

STORY LINK

Because royal armies now joined the Companies, the contest turned decisive. Ask: why did France lose, and why did the EIC win all three wars?

6.1 Reason

- The 3rd Carnatic War (1756-63) was once again a European conflict brought to Indian shores: the Seven Years' Global War (1756-63), fought across Europe, the Americas, Africa and India.
- French side: Count de Lally (of the French State, not the French EIC) arrived from France with the Royal military and led the French alongside Bussy of the French EIC.
- British side: Eyre Coote (of the British State, not the EIC) arrived from Britain with the Royal military and led the British alongside Robert Clive 57-67 of the EIC.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Recap before the 3rd war. Of the three Carnatic Wars (1746-63), wars 1 and 3 come from "IR" (international relations: Britain against France), war 2 from factionalism.
- New in war 3: the Royal militaries (French and British) joined the armies of the French EIC and the English EIC: [EIC + Britain] versus [French EIC + France].
- Typed slide:
  - "had impacts" above "a European conflict on Indian shores"
  - Key names Count de Lally, Eyre Coote and royal military on both sides

Three Carnatic Wars: causes and royal armies Lecture 13 slide 14

6.2 Why did France lose the 3rd Carnatic War (1756-63)?

- The most decisive battle was the Battle of Wandiwash (1760).
- (The handout's memory line: "where the French were washed away.")
- After that the French lost everywhere, including Pondicherry itself, their headquarters officially since 1701, with Fort Louis.
- The chain slides add: Wandiwash was fought on 22 January 1760, and the Siege of Pondicherry came in 1761.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Map pointers = the board's "MWP": Madras (the British base), Wandiwash (between the two) and Pondicherry (the French base).
- Wandiwash lies between the two headquarters, which is why the decisive battle was there.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1995: UPSC asked "match the battle to who fought it" by jumbling correct pairs.
- The correct pairs are:
  - Battle of Buxar (1764) = EIC vs Mir Qasim 60-63 (with Awadh and Shah Alam II 60-06)
  - Battle of Chilianwala (1849) = EIC under Dalhousie 48-56 vs the Sikhs (2nd Anglo-Sikh War)
  - Battle of Kharda (1795) = Nizam of Hyderabad vs the Marathas
  - Battle of Wandiwash (1760) = French vs the East India Company. The answer was (b).
- The trap in (a): Mir Jafar 57-60 was the EIC's man at Plassey 1757, not its enemy at Buxar.

France lost for four reasons.

MNEMONIC · WHY FRANCE LOST THE 3RD WAR

T U R N

At Wandiwash 1760 the tide began to TURN against the French.

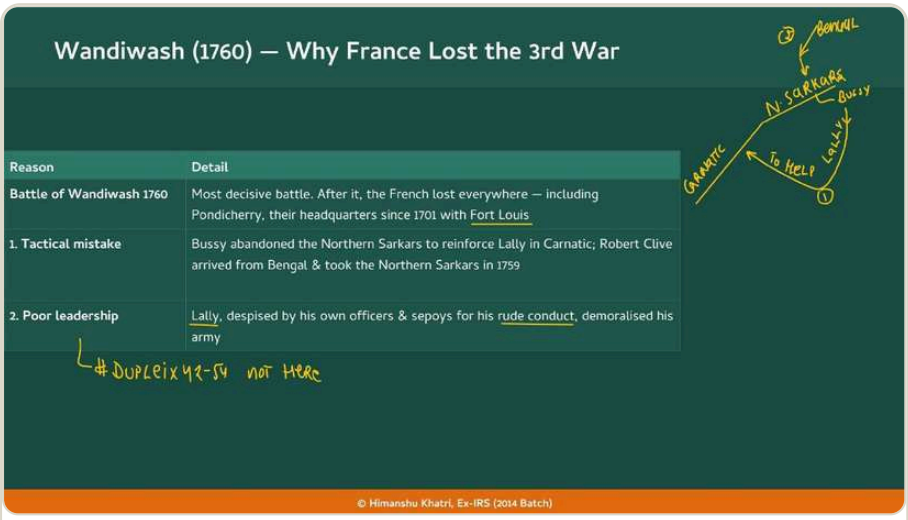
T Tactical mistake: Bussy left the Northern Sarkars; Clive 57-67 took them in 1759

U Unpaid soldiers: financial weakness, soldiers unpaid for months

R Rude Lally: poor leadership, despised by his own officers and sepoys

N Navy: Britain dominated the Coromandel coast

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.



Wandiwash 1760: why France lost, tactics and leadership Lecture 13 slide 17

Reason	Detail
1. Tactical mistake	Bussy abandoned the Northern Sarkars to reinforce Lally in Carnatic. Robert Clive 57-67 arrived from Bengal and took over the Northern Sarkars in 1759
2. Poor leadership	Lally was despised by his own officers and sepoys for his rude conduct, which demoralised the army
3. Financial weakness	French soldiers went unpaid for months. The French EIC had spent heavily in the War of the Austrian Succession (1740-48) and the first two Carnatic Wars without commensurate gains. In contrast, Britain had been profiting from eastern trade since 1600. British capitalism was mature; feudalism in France ended only after the French Revolution of 1789, while the Industrial Revolution had begun in Britain (1750-1850)
4. Superior British navy	This gave Britain decisive advantages in the coastal warfare of the Northern Sarkars and Carnatic. Britain's navy was able to dominate the Coromandel coast

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tactical mistake in two steps. (1) Bussy leaves the Northern Sarkars and goes down to Carnatic to help Lally.
- (2) From Bengal, Clive 57-67 comes down into the unguarded Northern Sarkars (1759).
- Poor leadership: "Dupleix 42-54 not here": the one able French leader had been recalled in 1754, so France fought this war with Lally.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Financial weakness. The "earlier wars" that drained the French EIC: Austrian War of Succession 1740-48 [1st Carnatic War 1746-48] and the 2nd Carnatic War 1749-54.
- On the second: "Hyderabad gains, BUT STILL higher war expenditure" (even the winning phase cost more than it earned).
- Navy: Carnatic lies along the Coromandel Coast, so whoever commands the sea commands the war there.

British capitalism versus French feudalism Lecture 13 slide 19

TEACHER'S BOARD

- What "British capitalism was mature" means. To see capitalism in a society, wake up at 4 am and sit in a balcony facing a main road: people are already at work.
- At mass level people believe they can become rich by working hard.
- Bombay never sleeps: the city provides opportunities to earn 24x7.
- The French Revolution of 1789 ended feudalism, and only then did capitalism come to France (but merchants existed in France before 1789).
- Britain had this money-making society earlier, so it could pay for its wars.

6.3 Why did the EIC win the Carnatic Wars (1746-48, 49-54, 56-63)?

Factor	Detail
1. France starved Dupleix 42-54 of reinforcements	To preserve its gains from the 1748 Treaty (Aix-La-Chapelle)
2. Leadership	French: the recall of Dupleix 42-54 after the 2nd Carnatic War hurt the chances of French victory; Lally displayed poor leadership in the 3rd Carnatic War. British: Robert Clive 57-67 and Eyre Coote displayed good leadership
3. Superior British navy	British naval dominance of the coast
4. Finances	The EIC was a private joint-stock firm with deep capital; it had accumulated wealth, along with huge monetary gains after Plassey 1757. The French EIC was a State PSU with weak finances. The French economy was weak compared to Britain, which was the world's top economy of the time. Past war expenditure without any formidable gains hurt French capabilities, e.g. Lally's troops went unpaid (the slide adds: unpaid for months, so low morale)
5. Tactical mistakes	Leaving Arcot (the capital of Carnatic) unguarded in the 2nd Carnatic War and leaving the Northern Sarkars unguarded in the 3rd Carnatic War

MNEMONIC · WHY THE EIC WON ALL THREE WARS

F L A W S

The French FLAWS explain why the EIC won all three Carnatic Wars.

F France starved Dupleix 42-54 of reinforcements, to keep its 1748 gains

L Leadership: Dupleix 42-54 recalled and Lally poor; Clive 57-67 and Eyre Coote good

A Arcot, and later the Northern Sarkars, left unguarded

W Wealth: the EIC a private joint-stock firm with deep capital; the French EIC a State PSU

S Superior British navy

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Title note "all (3)": this table answers "Why the EIC won all 3 Carnatic Wars," while section 6.2 answers only the 3rd war.
- For a Mains answer, use 6.3 for the whole contest and 6.2 for Wandiwash.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout numbers these factors 1, 2, 2, 3, 4 (2 is printed twice).
- There are five factors
- renumbered 1 to 5 here

6.4 The Treaty of Paris (1763)

- Under the Treaty of Paris (1763):
- France lost all gains made in India since 1749 and was restricted to its pre-1749 position.
- France retained only five small trading posts: Pondicherry, Mahe, Karaikal, Yanam and Chandernagore.
- France was barred from maintaining a strong army or fortifying its bases.

Letter	Post	Where
P	Pondicherry	East coast
M	Mahe	West coast (teacher: Malabar)
K	Karaikal	East coast
Y	Yanam	East coast
C	Chandernagore	East (teacher: Bengal)

NUMBER CARD · THE FIVE FRENCH POSTS OF 1763 (PM KYC)

3 · 1 · 1

Five posts: three on the east coast, one on the west, one in Bengal.

3 East coast: Pondicherry, Karaikal, Yanam
1 West coast: Mahe (Malabar)
1 Bengal: Chandernagore

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mnemonic "PM KYC (Yojana)": Pondicherry, Mahe, Karaikal, Yanam, Chandernagore.
- Only Mahe is on the west coast (Malabar)
- Chandernagore is in Bengal.
- "Trading posts" becomes "trading CENTRES." Three treaties to learn in order: 1748 Treaty of Aix-La-Chapelle, 1754 Treaty of Pondicherry, 1763 Treaty of Paris.

- In 1769 the French EIC was abolished by France. This signifies that the French government had given up on its ambitions of dominating the international trade of India. The abolition of the French EIC does not mean other French traders could not trade in India, just that the French State was not interested in running a government company for it.

- After successfully countering the Portuguese by 1612, the Dutch by the 1650s and the French by 1763, the British EIC now had a monopoly over India's international trade.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "NOT (T)": in 1763 the EIC has a monopoly over trade, not territory.
- What was decided was only "who will buy Indian goods, who will dominate exports from India." The Carnatic Wars were wars for trade (section 1.2).

6.5 Link with Plassey, and what came later

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: link with the Battle of Plassey (1757).
- The 3rd Carnatic War brought large numbers of British Royal military troops to India
- this strength and Clive 57-67's shrewd diplomacy made Plassey possible
- Without Carnatic there may not have been a Plassey, which led to Empire Building by the EIC.

From a global war to Plassey (teacher's flow)

- Seven Years' Global War (1756-63)
- 3rd Carnatic War
- British Royal military in India
- Confidence of Clive 57-67 for accepting Jafar's offer: Plassey 1757

Carnatic Wars: legacy and link with Plassey Lecture 13 slide 22

Later:

- In the Treaty of Hyderabad (1766), Hyderabad formally ceded the Northern Sarkars to the EIC in exchange for Rs 7 lakh annually and protection against the Marathas and Mysore.
- Hyderabad became the 1st Indian state to sign a Subsidiary Alliance with the EIC, in 1798.
- Mysore signed in 1799 and Travancore in 1805, while Carnatic was annexed in 1801.
- Thus the Carnatic Wars, though fought for the international trade of India, laid the foundation of British domination of South India.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "3rd CW + 3.5 decades": from the end of the 3rd Carnatic War (1763), about three and a half decades to the first Subsidiary Alliance (Hyderabad, 1798).
- The row: Hyderabad 1798, Mysore 1799, Travancore 1805, Carnatic annexed 1801.
- "Jafar's offer" = Mir Jafar 57-60's deal with Clive 57-67 (Chapter 10).

MODERN INDIAN HISTORY · CHAPTER 10

Battle of Plassey 1757 and Battle of Buxar 1764

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 105-113 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 2004, 2005

Mains PYQs: recurrent famines (year not on slide)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- The four Farmans (1613, 1618, 1691, 1717) and what each gave; the 1717 Farman as the Magna Carta of the Company (Dr William Hamilton)
- What MQK 17-27 allowed and refused; Dastak, Gomasta, interloper, free merchant
- Black Hole numbers (146 and 123 against 30 to 40); Plassey 23 June 1757, Mir Jafar 57-60 as Bakshi; Hector Munroe at Buxar 1764
- Treaty of Allahabad figures; Diwani versus Nizamat; Dual Government 1765-72; Ring Fence = Warren Hastings 73-85 in a match-the-following
- First Subsidiary Alliance = Hyderabad 1798, not Awadh; battle order Ambur, Plassey, Wandiwash, Buxar

MAINS HOOKS

- Conquest without rule (Plassey) against the legal right to rule (Buxar)
- How Plassey began the Drain of Wealth and changed the trade structure
- Why the EIC did not annex Bengal outright; how the Dual Government led to the 1770 famine (a paragraph for the recurrent-famines question)
- Clive 57-67 as father of the empire-building toolkit; why the EIC could build an empire (many States, resources not united)

Plassey gave conquest and the Drain; Buxar and the Treaty of Allahabad turned that plunder into a legal right.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Abuse, then conquest, then plunder, then legalise: each step makes the last step's abuse legal. Farman rights are abused through Dastaks (abuse); Plassey wins Bengal by conspiracy (conquest); the Bengal treasury is looted (plunder); Buxar and the Treaty of Allahabad 1765 make the loot a legal right (legalise).

1 The Doctor's gift (1717). The EIC is just a trader with a few Farmans: 1613 a factory at Surat, 1618 factories across the empire (Thomas Roe), 1691 duty-free trade in Bengal for Rs 3,000 a year. Then the EIC surgeon Dr William Hamilton cures Emperor Farrukhsiyar 13-19, and the reward is the 1717 Farman, the Magna Carta of the Company: duty-free trade, the Royal Mint, and rent of 38 villages around Calcutta.

→ But the Nawab of Bengal has to honour it.

2 The Nawab says yes, but. MQK 17-27 allows duty-free trade but no Dastak misuse; refuses the Royal Mint (it hurts sovereignty and his commission); allows renting villages but not buying them.

→ So the EIC's officers look for other ways to profit.

3 The cheating begins. Officers use the Dastak, a duty-free pass meant for EIC goods, to do private trade. By 1750 private trade is 1,00,000 pounds a year, about 50 times their salaries, and Bengal loses duty revenue. Interlopers break the Royal Charter; free merchants sell to the EIC in India; Dastak misuse breaks Indian law.

→ Bengal's rulers must decide how long to tolerate this.

4 A young Nawab says enough (1756-57). Alivardi Khan 40-56 had tolerated the EIC (he was pragmatic, and Adyar 1746 had shown the strength of European infantry). His grandson Siraj 56-57, young and disliked at court, stops the Dastak misuse. The EIC shelters Krishna Ballabh and adds fortifications, so Siraj seizes Kasimbazar and then Calcutta, which he renames Alinagar. The Black Hole story is born (146 locked in and 123 dead in Holwell's account; modern estimate 30 to 40).

→ The EIC calls Robert Clive back.

5 Clive returns. Clive 57-67 arrives from Madras with the Royal military, recaptures Calcutta, signs the Treaty of Alinagar (all EIC privileges restored), destroys Hugli and beats the French at Chandarnagar (the Seven Years' War is on).

→ Now he needs a way to beat Siraj without a real fight.

6 Plassey, 23 June 1757: the conspiracy. Mir Jafar 57-60, Siraj's Bakshi (bag = war paymaster, binoculars = head of military intelligence), makes a deal with Clive. At Plassey the bulk of the army does not fight; Siraj flees and is beheaded on the orders of Miran, Mir Jafar's son. The EIC has conquest, not rule.

→ Now comes the reward.

7 The loot. Plunder 1757-65: 2,75,000 pounds to the Royal military, 2,34,000 pounds plus a jagir of 35,000 a year to Clive 57-67, Rs 2.25 crore to the EIC, and 2.5 million pounds of political gifts. Gomastas run untaxed private trade; Bengal's treasury buys Indian and Chinese goods and sends gold to Britain: the Drain begins; a large army is built. When Mir Jafar 57-60 cannot pay more, Mir Qasim 60-63 replaces him.

→ But Mir Qasim does not want to stay a puppet.

8 The puppet rebels. Mir Qasim 60-63 shifts his base to Bihar, punishes zamindars who underreported revenue, abolishes all internal duties. He is defeated in 1763, escapes to Awadh, and forms a league with Shuja 54-75 and Shah Alam II 60-06 (who is in Awadh because he left Delhi fearing Imad-ul-Mulk).

→ Three armies now face the EIC.

9 Buxar, 1764: the real battle. Seven years after Plassey a closely fought battle is won by Hector Munroe (Clive 57-67 is in London). Shuja 54-75 had attacked the fort against Mir Qasim's advice. This is the EIC's first real military victory.

→ Now the EIC dictates terms: the Treaty of Allahabad.

10 Allahabad, 1765: Paper, Power, Pay. Paper: the Emperor gets promises (Rs 26 lakh tribute, help to retake Delhi) that are never kept, plus Allahabad and Kora. Power: the EIC gets the Diwani of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa (Nizamat stays with the Nawab): the Dual Government, with Md Reza Khan. Pay: Awadh pays Rs 50 lakh, loses Benaras, and becomes the buffer (Ring Fence, mini Subsidiary Alliance). Indirect Rule, Ring Fence and the mini SA are Clive 57-67's toolkit.

→ Power without responsibility cannot last.

11 The bill comes due (1770-73). The Great Bengal Famine 1770 kills about one-third of the population while neither the EIC nor the Nawab takes charge. Land revenue and law and order collapse and the EIC goes bankrupt (1772). The EIC takes over the Nizamat; W. Hastings 73-85 carries Direct Rule: the Company State stands.

In simple words

- The EIC began as a trader with trading privileges (the Farmans, above all the 1717 one) that its officials abused through Dastaks and private trade.
- Siraj-ud-Daula 56-57 tried to stop the abuse
- Plassey (1757) was a court conspiracy with Mir Jafar 57-60, not a real battle. It gave conquest without rule
- After Plassey the EIC plundered Bengal (cash and gifts), started the Drain of Wealth, built a large army and kept a puppet Nawab.
- Mir Qasim 60-63 tried to be independent and lost at Buxar (1764)
- The Treaty of Allahabad (1765) gave the EIC the Diwani, making the plunder a legal right

- The Dual Government (Diwani with the EIC, Nizamat with the Nawab) failed in the 1770 famine, and Direct Rule followed in 1772: the Company State.

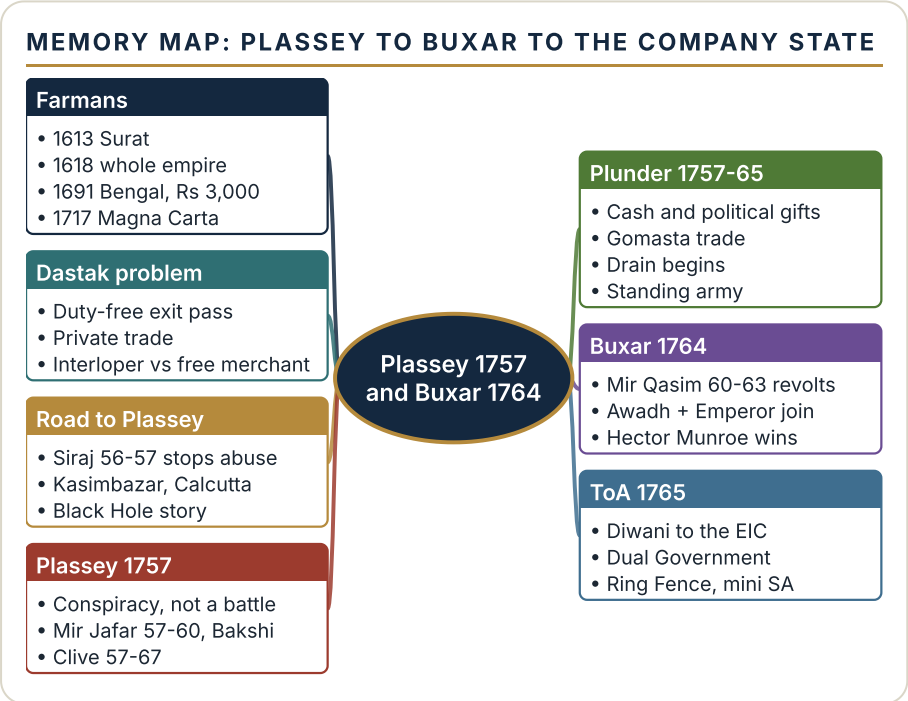
Key term	In plain words
Farman	A royal or high order granting trading rights
Dastak	A pass issued by EIC officials certifying goods as the EIC's, so exempt from export duty
Gomasta	An Indian agent of the EIC who bought directly from peasants and artisans
Interloper	A non-EIC British merchant trading with India, breaking the Royal Charter
Free merchant	A man who sold to the EIC inside India, so no Charter was broken
Drain of Wealth	Gold and revenue flowing out of India instead of in
Diwani / Nizamat	Revenue and civil justice (EIC) / law and order and criminal justice (Nawab)
Dual Government	1765-72: Diwani with the EIC, Nizamat with the Nawab
Indirect Rule	A puppet ruler plus a British Resident who controls him
Ring Fence	A buffer of allied States around the EIC's core

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS Plassey = conquest and plunder without rule; Buxar plus the Treaty of Allahabad = the legal right to rule.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Plassey 1757 = conquest by the EIC, not rule.
- "x Rule of EIC": rule = L, E, J on T (legislative, executive and judicial power over a territory, Chapter 8).
- Plassey gave:
  - (1) conquest by the EIC, a transformation from TRADER to STATE-like BEHAVIOUR
  - (2) DRAIN of wealth
  - (3) change in TRADE STRUCTURE.
- Buxar 1764 leads to ToA 1765 (Treaty of Allahabad), which gave two things: Rule in Bengal [the EIC becomes the FM, the finance minister, of Bengal] and military domination of Awadh.

Chapter 10 on one board: Plassey, Buxar and ToA 1765 Lecture 13 slide 27

TEACHER'S BOARD

Map of the Bengal-Bihar theatre: Buxar, Patna, Plassey, Chandernagore, Calcutta handout figure

- Company State = the EIC's empire in India = British India = British "Ruled" India
- "ruled" = L, E, J by the British
- By 1857 it covered 63% of the territory and 78% of the population.
- British India has two phases: Company State [1765-1858], beginning with ToA 1765, and Crown Colony [1858 to 26 January 1950 OR 15 August 1947].
- Company = organisation with a money (profit) motive.
- State = organisation with a territory motive.
- Company State = a State set up by a Company.
- It took territory from the Indian Regional States (three kinds, Chapter 3: successor, rebel, already autonomous) by Diplomacy and War.
- Course chain: Decline of the Mughal State, Rise of Regional States, Advent of Europeans, Establishment of the Company State.

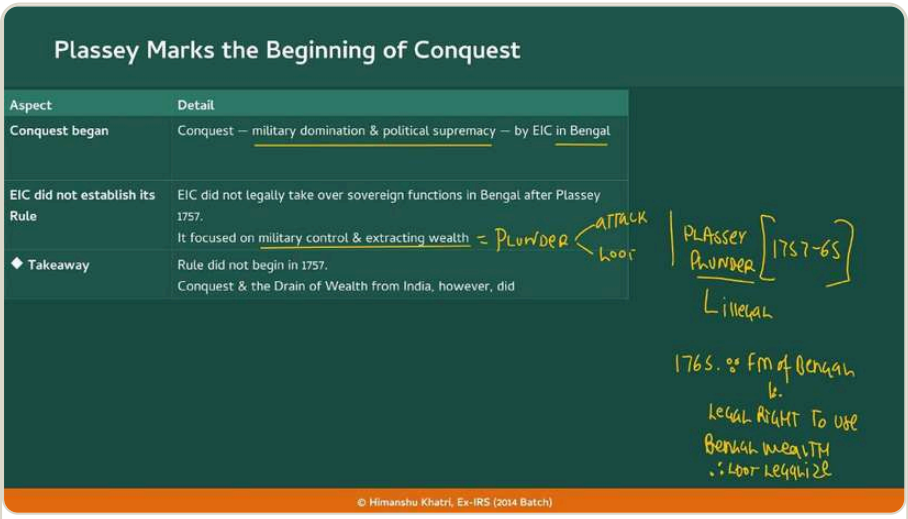
1 · Plassey marks the beginning of conquest

STORY LINK

Story so far: the EIC is a trader. Plassey is where it first acts like a conqueror. Keep the spine in mind: abuse, conquest, plunder, legalise.



Plassey marks the beginning of conquest Lecture 13 slide 28

- Plassey marks the beginning of the transformation of the EIC into a Company State.
- Conquest means military domination and political supremacy. It began here, in Bengal.

- But the EIC did not legally take over sovereign functions in Bengal after the Battle of Plassey 1757.
- It focused on military control and on extracting wealth.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: Rule did not begin in 1757.
- Conquest and the Drain of Wealth from India, however, did.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Extracting wealth = PLUNDER = ATTACK + LOOT.
- Plassey Plunder [1757-65] = illegal. 1765: the EIC became FM (finance minister, that is the Diwan) of Bengal and got the LEGAL RIGHT to use Bengal's wealth: the loot was legalised. This ties Plassey to Buxar.

2 · The Royal Farman of 1717: the seed of conflict

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR FARMANS IN ORDER

Some Emperors Bless Merchants

- S 1613 Surat: a factory (Jahangir 05-27)
- E 1618 Empire-wide factories and liberal rights (Jahangir 05-27)
- B 1691 Bengal: duty-free trade for Rs 3,000 a year
- M 1717 Magna Carta of the Company (Farrukhsiyar 13-19)

Order kept: the rights widen with each Farman, from one port to the whole empire to Bengal to a charter.

STORY LINK

Chapter 1 of the story: a doctor's cure buys the trader a golden ticket, and the Nawab hands it over with conditions.

2.1 The four Farmans that strengthened the EIC

Farman	Issued by	What it gave the EIC
1613	Jahangir 05-27	The right to establish a factory in Surat, after the EIC defeated the Portuguese in the Battle of Suvali 1612

Farman	Issued by	What it gave the EIC
1618	Jahangir 05-27	The right to establish factories in the whole of the Mughal empire and liberal trading rights, due to lobbying by Thomas Roe (British Resident 1615-19)
1691	The Subahdar of Bengal, with Aurangzeb 58-07's approval	The right to Duty-Free Trade (DFT) in Bengal in exchange for Rs 3,000 per annum. The EIC's trade was economically beneficial and brought forex into India
1717 Imperial (Royal) Farman	Farrukhsiyar 13-19	Often called the "Magna Carta of the Company". It was the result of medical diplomacy: Dr William Hamilton, an English surgeon with the EIC, successfully treated Farrukhsiyar 13-19 for a serious illness

- Liberal trading rights (1618) = lower export duties, less paperwork, use of more ports.
- Board heading: the Farmans as the economic strengthening of the EIC ("Eco ... of EIC").

2.2 What the 1717 Farman gave, and what the Nawab refused

- The 1717 Imperial (Royal) Farman gave the EIC three rights:
- The right to Duty-Free Trade (DFT) in Deccan, Gujarat and Bengal.
- For Bengal this was a Royal Farman reiterating a pre-existing privilege, granted under the sign and seal of the Subahdar in 1691 (the slide calls the 1691 grant a provincial privilege or Parwana).
- The right to use the Royal Mint.

1717 Imperial Farman: source of conflict with the Nawab of Bengal Lecture 13 slide 30

- The EIC could mint Indian coins and so save the cost of converting gold into Indian currency (sikkas) for purchasing Indian goods.
- The right to rent 38 villages around Calcutta for expanding its trading settlement.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why the mint mattered. Within Indian territory only Indian sikkas can be used.
- The EIC took gold and silver to the Royal Mint and got sikkas back
- The Royal Mint earned a commission.
- Minting its own coins would save the EIC this cost and take the commission from the government.
- Years noted under the settlement clause: [1690] and [Presidency 1699] (read as the Calcutta settlement and its becoming a Presidency, Chapter 8).

- The 1717 Farman became a source of conflict between the EIC and the Nawab of Bengal.
- Bengal by 1717 was a successor State.
- Recall: successor means uttaradhikari, one who comes from within the family.
- Here the family is the political family of the Mughal State (the Mughal Emperor and his Mansabdars).
- So certain powerful Mansabdars established their rule in certain provinces and took away the real powers of the Emperor, making him a symbolic authority.
- They were MQK 17-27, Sadat Khan 22-39 and Nizam 24-48 in Bengal, Awadh and Hyderabad respectively (Chapter 3).
- Nawab Murshid Quli Khan (MQK 17-27) dealt with the three rights like this:

Right in the 1717 Farman	What MQK 17-27 did	Why
Duty-free trade	Allowed duty-free trade by the EIC, but refused to let EIC officials misuse Dastaks for their own private trade	The privilege was for the Company's goods, not for the officials' personal goods
Use of the Royal Mint	Refused	It hurt sovereign authority and government revenue (the government earned commission on the conversion of gold into Indian sikkas)
38 villages around Calcutta	Allowed renting but NOT purchase	Stressed on the board: "NOT purchase"

HANDOUT NOTE

- The slide table for the Nawabs says MQK 17-27 "won the 1717 Farman"
- the handout's figure says he "accepted the 1717 Farman, resisted Dastak abuse".
- The Farman was issued to the EIC by Farrukhsiyar 13-19
- MQK 17-27 accepted it in part and resisted the rest.
- Read the slide's phrase in that sense.

3 · The Dastak problem

STORY LINK

Because the Nawab set conditions, officers found loopholes: the Dastak. Ask 'whose law is broken?' for each villain (intruder, friend, cheat).

3.1 Private trade and what a Dastak was

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Private trade (PVT TRADE) = EIC officers buying Indian goods for trade in their personal capacity, apart from buying for the EIC.
- Reason:
  - Greed
  - corruption
  - a "stab in the back" of the EIC by its own employees.
- It violates the Royal Charter (monopoly over British trade in the East Indies): an employee should not become a competitor to his own company.
- Dastak = document issued by EIC officers
- It "operationalised" duty-free trade.
- Sample: "It is certified that these 100 goods are of the EIC. Please allow DFT exit from port. (Signed)", shown to the Indian customs officer, who lets the container leave India without duty payment.
- Misuse = using a Dastak for private trade by MISDECLARING the goods as the EIC's
- result: loss of duty [tax revenue] for the Indian State.

Aspect	Detail
What a Dastak is	A permit issued by EIC officials certifying that goods belonged to the EIC, and hence exempt from export duty
Misuse	In practice EIC officials also used these permits for their own private trade, claiming goods bought in a personal capacity as company goods. They also sold Dastaks to other exporters
Scale (by 1750)	Private trade by EIC officials was worth 1,00,000 pounds per annum, roughly fifty times their annual salaries
Why the EIC could not control it	Even its own top officials in India engaged in private trade
Effect	Tax (duty) evasion and loss of revenue for the Bengal Suba
Who curbed it later	Cornwallis 86-93 curbed private trade: an honest Governor General of that era

Private trade and the Dastak Lecture 13 slide 31

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "therefore primary motive is not salary BUT PVT TRADE": private trade was worth 50 times the salary, so an officer came to India for private trade, not salary.
- Cornwallis 86-93 [increased salary]: that is how private trade was curbed.

3.2 Who was violating whose law?

- It is worth understanding exactly what was illegal, and for whom.
- Trade in the East Indies by any British entity other than the EIC violated the Royal Charter issued by the British Crown: that was British law.

Category	Who they were	Whose law was broken
Interlopers	Non-EIC British merchants who traded with India (the teacher: Britishers, either traders or other companies)	They violated the Royal Charter (British law), leading to court cases back in Britain
Free merchants	Non-EIC British merchants stationed in India who agreed to sell Indian goods to the EIC in India itself rather than exporting independently (the teacher: an "ex-interloper")	None: their trade became artificially legal in the eyes of British law
Dastak misuse by EIC officials	EIC officials passing private goods as Company goods	NOT British law but Indian law: specifically customs duty evasion (the slide adds: under Bengal's framework)

Interlopers against free merchants Lecture 13 slide 34

The teacher's board: how an interloper became a free merchant

- Earlier: ryots and artisans sell to the Indian merchant, who sells to the EIC, which exports
- Interloper:
  - Buys from Indian merchants and exports on his own
  - say his profit is Rs 100, which is a loss of Rs 100 to the EIC
- The EIC is unable to stop it: the Charter is broken, and there are court cases in Britain
- Free merchant:
  - The same man now sells to the EIC inside India and does not export himself
  - The Rs 100 is shared
- No Charter is broken: the EIC earns some share, and the free merchant gains because there is no court case in Britain

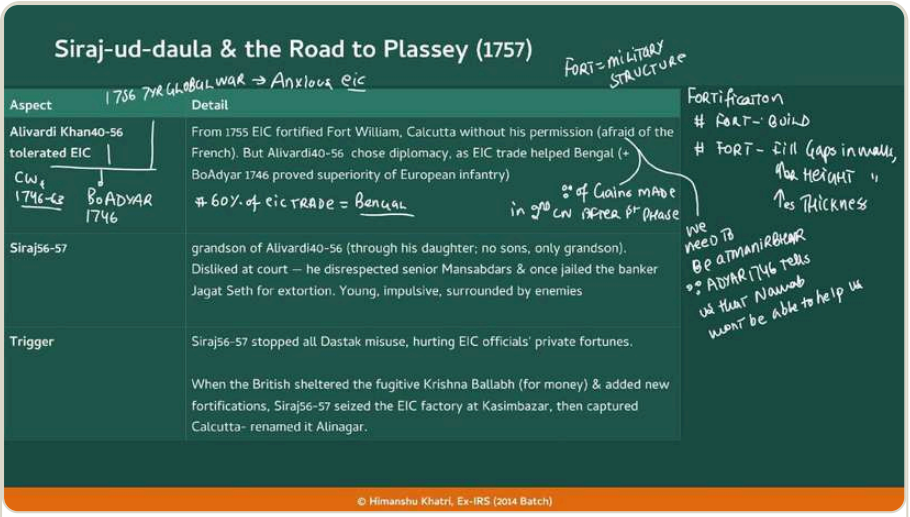
4 · Siraj-ud-Daula 56-57 and the road to Plassey (1757)

STORY LINK

Because the cheating hurt Bengal's revenue, a young Nawab finally tries to stop it. Watch who tolerated it and who did not.



Siraj-ud-Daula and the road to Plassey (1757) Lecture 13 slide 35

4.1 Why Alivardi Khan 40-56 tolerated the EIC's provocations

- Afraid of the French, the EIC began adding fortifications in Calcutta, that is strengthening Fort William (thickening walls, filling gaps, raising the height), from 1755, without the permission of Alivardi Khan 40-56.
- A fort is a military structure. Building or expanding one on another sovereign's territory without permission is a challenge to that sovereign's authority.
- However, Alivardi Khan 40-56 was pragmatic and followed the path of diplomacy rather than military confrontation, since the EIC's trade was economically beneficial to Bengal.
- He must also have noticed the Battle of Adyar 1746, which proved the military capabilities of European infantry.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why the EIC was fortifying. 1756: the Seven Years' Global War made the EIC anxious. 60% of the EIC's trade was Bengal.
- EIC's reasoning: "We need to be ATMANIRBHAR (self-reliant), because Adyar 1746 tells us that the Nawab won't be able to help us" against the French.
- Fort = military structure
- Fortification = building a fort or strengthening one: fill gaps in the walls, increase height, increase thickness
- Adyar 1746 (Carnatic Wars, dated 1746-63 on the board) explains both sides: it made Alivardi Khan 40-56 cautious and the EIC self-reliant (Chapter 9).

4.2 Why Siraj 56-57 did not tolerate them

- Siraj 56-57 was the precious grandson of Alivardi Khan 40-56 through his daughter, as Alivardi Khan 40-56 had no sons and Siraj 56-57 was the only grandson.
- Siraj 56-57 was disliked in the Bengal court.

- He had disrespected senior Mansabdars and had at one point imprisoned Jagat Seth, the powerful banker, for extortion.
- He was young, impulsive, surrounded by enemies.
- When he came to power he stopped all Dastak misuse, hurting the private trade fortunes of EIC officials.
- The British then gave asylum to Krishna Ballabh (for money), a fugitive from Siraj 56-57's court, charged with fraud, and added new fortifications to Calcutta.
- Siraj 56-57 first seized the EIC factory at Kasimbazar and then captured Calcutta. He renamed Calcutta Alinagar.

The road to Plassey

- 1717 Farman:
    - Duty-free trade
    - Dastaks misused for private trade
    - The Bengal Suba loses revenue
- From 1755:
    - The EIC fortifies Fort William without permission
    - Alivardi Khan 40-56 chooses diplomacy
- Siraj 56-57 becomes Nawab:
    - He stops all Dastak misuse
    - EIC officials' private fortunes are hurt
- The British shelter Krishna Ballabh (for money) and add new fortifications
- Siraj 56-57 seizes Kasimbazar and captures Calcutta (Alinagar): the Black Hole Tragedy
- Clive 57-67 arrives from Madras, recaptures Calcutta
- Treaty of Alinagar
- the French are neutralised
- Conspiracy with Mir Jafar 57-60: Plassey, 23 June 1757

4.3 The Black Hole Tragedy (1756): fact versus propaganda

NUMBER CARD · BLACK HOLE NUMBERS

146 · 123 · 30-40

Holwell said 146 in, 123 dead; modern historians say 30 to 40.

146 locked in (Holwell's account)
123 dead (Holwell's account)
30-40 died (modern estimate): the tale is propaganda

Aspect	Detail
What happened	During the capture of Calcutta, British prisoners were locked overnight in a small, airless guardroom in Fort William
The colonial account	Written by J.Z. Holwell, a survivor and briefly Governor of Bengal. It claimed that 146 were locked in and 123 died of suffocation
Modern historians	The actual number of dead was approximately 30 to 40
Why it mattered	It became a powerful propaganda tool to justify the EIC's military response against Siraj 56-57 and to demonise Indian rulers in the British public imagination

Year	What happened
1760	Holwell built a monument in memory of the Black Hole Tragedy
1821	It had fallen into ruin and was demolished
1901	Viceroy Curzon 99-05 (1899-1905) built a marble replica at the same spot
1940	Netaji Bose led a big agitation to remove it, calling it colonial propaganda to tarnish Siraj 56-57's image, and used the campaign to build Hindu-Muslim unity
Result	The monument was not demolished but shifted from the public square to the graveyard of St. John's Church, Calcutta, where it stands today

HANDOUT NOTE

- The slide puts the 1940 result a little more sharply than the handout: Netaji Bose's agitation for demolition "forced the British to shift it" to the graveyard of St. John's Church.
- Both agree it was shifted, not demolished.

Black Hole of Calcutta: period illustration, later used as propaganda against Siraj 56-57 handout figure

5 · Robert Clive 57-67, the conspiracy and the battle

STORY LINK

Because Siraj dared to act, the EIC sends Clive. Notice how he wins: by a deal, not by force.

Was the Battle of Plassey (23rd June 1757) really a battle?

5.1 Clive 57-67 recaptures Calcutta and neutralises the French

- Robert Clive 57-67 arrived from Madras with Royal military forces and recaptured Calcutta.
- The Treaty of Alinagar (Alinagar was the name Siraj 56-57 had given to Calcutta) restored all EIC privileges.
- Clive 57-67 destroyed Hugli port, which was being used by the French, and defeated the French at Chandarnagar (the slide adds: a French settlement since 1690).
- The reason: the Anglo-French conflict was live as part of the Seven Years' Global War (1756-63).

Clive recaptures Calcutta; the French are neutralised Lecture 13 slide 39

- The French threat in Bengal was neutralised.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Plassey field:
  - The Bengal Army with Siraj 56-57 on higher ground, rain falling on it
  - Below, advancing upward, Clive 57-67 + EIC army + British Royal military.
- The Company's army and the Royal (King's) military are different forces (matters for the plunder figures in section 6).
- Clive 57-67 was Governor of the Bengal Presidency of the EIC in two terms, 1757-60 and 1765-67.

5.2 Plassey, 23 June 1757: conspiracy, not a battle

- What happened next was not war: it was conspiracy.
- Mir Jafar 57-60 was the commander of Bengal's army.
- That is what the books say.
- Technically the Subahdar was the commander of the army.
- Mir Jafar 57-60 was the Bakshi (Bakhshi) at the province level, that is the war paymaster and head of military intelligence.
- Since Siraj 56-57 was young and inexperienced, in practice Mir Jafar 57-60 was the real commander.

- He approached Clive 57-67 and made a deal with the EIC to remove Siraj 56-57.
- At the Battle of Plassey (1757), Mir Jafar 57-60 ensured that the bulk of the Bengal army did not fight and turned back.
- Siraj 56-57 was easily defeated and fled.
- He was later captured and beheaded on the orders of Miran, Mir Jafar 57-60's son.
- Mir Jafar 57-60 became Subahdar (he was again Subahdar from 1763 to 1765).
- But he was now the EIC's puppet, as the EIC did not withdraw from the military domination established after the defeat of Siraj 56-57.
- The political supremacy of the EIC in India had begun.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: Plassey was no real battle. The EIC's victory in Bengal came from court conspiracy.
- The first real military victory for the EIC comes seven years later, at Buxar (1764).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Exam points of the Plassey slide: "made a deal with EIC", "Bengal army did not fight", "Mir Jafar 57-60", "EIC's puppet", "EIC's political supremacy in India had begun".
- This is exactly statement 3 of Prelims 2004.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2004:
  - Answer (b) Only 3. Statement 1: Ibrahim Lodi lost the First Panipat (1526) to Babur 26-30
  - in the Third Panipat (1761) Abdali defeated the Marathas.
- Statement 2:
  - Tipu 82-99 Sultan was killed in the Fourth Anglo-Mysore War (1798-99, Srirangapatna), not the Third (1789-92)
  - Board: [4th 1799].
- Statement 3 is correct: Mir Jafar 57-60, the Bakhshi and de facto commander (Siraj 56-57 was young), conspired with Clive 57-67 and kept the bulk of the Bengal army out of Plassey (1757).

6 · The Plassey Plunder (1757-65)

STORY LINK

Because the victory was a bought one, the EIC collects the payment. Follow the money: cash, then trade, then gold, then army, then a new puppet.

What did the EIC extract from Bengal after Plassey?

- Remember that companies are organisations with a profit motive, and the EIC was a company even if it had started behaving as a State.
- The immediate financial settlement after Plassey was staggering.

6.1 The cash

To whom	Amount	When
The Royal British military	2,75,000 pounds, for distribution to soldiers (not the EIC army, which was different)	Immediately after the Battle of Plassey 1757
Clive 57-67 personally	2,34,000 pounds, plus a personal jagir of 35,000 pounds per annum	Immediately after the Battle of Plassey 1757
The EIC	Rs 2.25 crore	Immediately after the Battle of Plassey 1757

2.5 million pounds of political gifts, 1757-65

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Plunder table grouping:
  - First three rows = "immediately after BoPlassey 1757"
  - last row = "1757-65".
- Stressed: "personal jagir" and "2.5 million pounds extracted as political gifts".

HANDOUT NOTE

- Scale of 2.5 million pounds (handout): multiply by 250 for inflation alone (Retail Price Index).
- Or:
  - Britain's GDP in 1760 was 70 million pounds, so 2.5 million = 3.5% of GDP
  - 2026 UK GDP is 2.27 trillion pounds
  - 3.5% of that = 80 billion pounds or 108.5 billion USD
  - multiplier approximately x32,000.

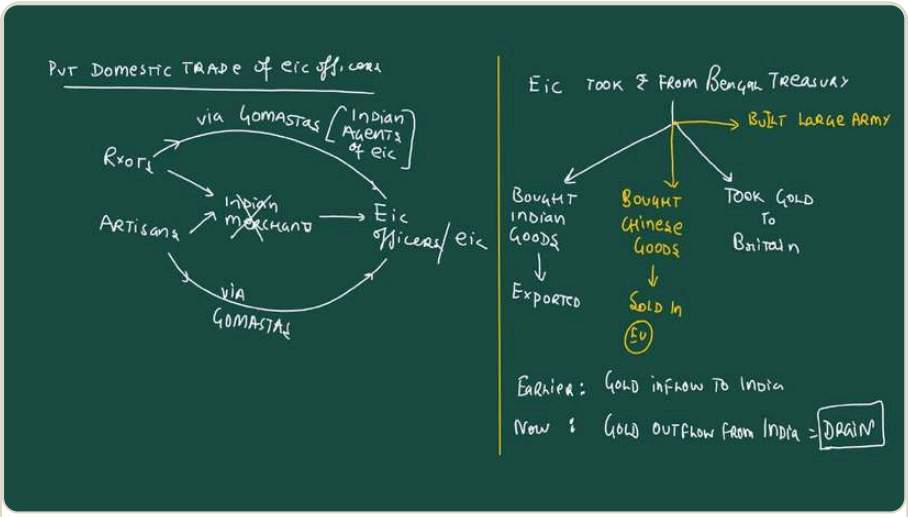
6.2 Beyond the cash: Bengal's economy and polity, the EIC's trade structure and the EIC army



Private domestic trade via Gomastas; Bengal treasury money and the Drain
Lecture 13 slide 45

1. Private trade, international and now domestic too

- After Plassey there was rampant misuse of Dastaks.
- EIC officials made large fortunes not just from private international trade but also from private domestic trade.
- This domestic trade was conducted through Indian agents called Gomastas, who procured goods directly from peasants and artisans, cutting out Indian merchants and traders.
- They also did not pay domestic taxes on this trade, which hurt further the Indian merchants competing against them.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Before: ryots and artisans sold to the Indian merchant, who sold to the EIC.
- Now the Indian merchant is cut out and goods go "via Gomastas [Indian agents of the EIC]" straight to EIC officers.
- Stressed: "Private trade", "Domestic trade", "paid no domestic tax".

2. The structure of the EIC's international trade changed: the Drain of Wealth begins

- Before Plassey, gold had to be shipped from Britain to buy Indian goods.
- After Plassey, Bengal's own Diwani revenues funded the purchase of not just Indian but also Chinese goods: tea, silk, porcelain.
- Further, gold from the Bengal treasury was also shipped to Britain.
- Thus, from gold inflow before 1757, there was now gold outflow from India.
- Hence began the Drain of Wealth.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "The EIC took money from the Bengal treasury" and used it to:
  - Buy Indian goods and export them
  - Buy Chinese goods and sell them in Europe
  - Take gold to Britain
  - Build a large army. Earlier: gold INFLOW to India.
- Now: gold OUTFLOW from India = DRAIN.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Wording. The handout and slide say that after Plassey "Bengal's own Diwani revenues" funded purchases, but the Diwani was legally received only in 1765 (section 8.2).
- The board says "money from the Bengal treasury" and calls the 1757-65 extraction illegal plunder, legalised in 1765.
- In an answer write "Bengal's revenues" or "Bengal treasury" for 1757-65 and "Diwani revenues" from 1765.

3. A large standing army

- The EIC also used the Plassey Plunder to build its own large standing army.
- For a trading company, maintaining a large army made no economic sense (it hurt dividends to shareholders).
- But now it could be funded from Bengal's extracted wealth rather than from company profits.
- Thus Robert Clive 57-67 laid the foundation of the real military strength of the EIC and of Empire Building by the EIC.

4. A change of puppet

MNEMONIC · FOUR EFFECTS OF PLASSEY

D R A G

After Plassey the EIC DRAGged Bengal's wealth out of the country.

D Drain of Wealth begins: gold flows out

R Replaced the puppet: Mir Jafar 57-60 by Mir Qasim 60-63

A A large standing Army built from the plunder

G Gomasta trade: untaxed private domestic trade

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- When Mir Jafar 57-60 could no longer meet the EIC's growing financial demands, the EIC replaced him with his son-in-law, Mir Qasim 60-63, an efficient administrator (the slide says "a brilliant administrator").
- Hence the EIC was the real political power in Bengal after 1757.

How Plassey changed the trade structure (the Drain)

- Before 1757: gold is shipped from Britain to buy Indian goods: gold inflow to India
- Plassey 1757:
  - Military domination
  - A puppet Subahdar
- Bengal's own revenue now pays for Indian goods (exported) and Chinese goods (tea, silk, porcelain, sold in Europe)
- Gold from the Bengal treasury is shipped to Britain, and the plunder pays for a large standing army
- After 1757: gold outflow from India = the Drain of Wealth

6.3 The Nawabs of Bengal: the succession

Nawab	What to remember
Murshid Quli Khan (MQK 17-27)	The Nawab of the 1717 Farman: accepted it in part, resisted Dastak abuse and the Royal Mint
Shuja-ud-din 27-39	Continuity Nawab: a low-drama interim
Sarfaraz Khan (1739-40)	Added on the board between Shuja-ud-din 27-39 and Alivardi Khan 40-56 (the 1739-40 gap)
Alivardi Khan 40-56	Pragmatic; tolerated the EIC's provocations and warned Siraj 56-57 on his deathbed
Siraj-ud-Daula 56-57	Precious grandson; stopped Dastak abuse; Black Hole; defeated at Plassey on 23 June 1757, then beheaded
Mir Jafar 57-60	The EIC's puppet after Plassey (ruled 1757-60, then 1763-65)
Mir Qasim 60-63	Son-in-law of Mir Jafar 57-60; shifted the capital to Patna (Bihar); militarised; ended Dastak abuse; then rebelled
Najm-ud-Daula (1765)	The Nizamat reduced to a puppet role: the Dual Government (1765-72) begins

HANDOUT ALERT

- Reign-year code for Mir Jafar 57-60. The handout text writes Mir Jafar 57-60 (again Subahdar 1763-65)
- The slide table and the handout flow chart write Mir Jafar 57-65
- the board writes "Jafar 57-60, 63-65".
- All mean two terms: 1757-60 and 1763-65, with Mir Qasim 60-63 in between. This notebook keeps 57-60.

7 · Battle of Buxar (1764): the EIC gets the right to rule

STORY LINK

Because the new puppet refuses to obey, a real war follows. Ask: who is on each side, and who really fought?

7.1 Why did Mir Qasim 60-63 rebel?

- Mir Qasim 60-63 was an able man and had no intention of remaining a puppet.
- To escape the EIC's constant supervision, he shifted his base from the capital Murshidabad to Bihar, where he could gather resources and build an army quietly.
- (The slide table and the handout's flow chart say he shifted the capital to Patna, which is in Bihar.)
- To gather money for the army he punished zamindars who underreported their land revenue.

Battle of Buxar (1764): why Mir Qasim rebelled Lecture 13 slide 46

- For the support of Indian merchants he abolished all internal duties on domestic trade (like GST today; the slide says "think 0 GST").
- This brought a level playing field between Indian merchants and the EIC officials who had been doing untaxed domestic trade via their Gomastas since 1757.
- This autonomous behaviour was intolerable to the EIC.
- A battle was fought in Bihar
- Mir Qasim 60-63 was defeated, and the EIC brought back Mir Jafar 57-60 as puppet Nawab of Bengal (1763-65).
- Mir Qasim 60-63 escaped westward to Awadh (the slide: with money) and forged an alliance with Shuja-ud-Daula 54-75 of Awadh and Emperor Shah Alam II 60-06.
- Shuja 54-75 agreed on the promise of 3 crore rupees, the territory of Bihar and its treasury, after victory.

L League formed with Shuja 54-75 and Shah Alam II 60-06

Order is free here, so the letters were rearranged into a word that names the story: a rebel Nawab.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board: Murshidabad to Bihar: Mir Qasim 60-63 moves west, away from the EIC's eyes.
- Awadh | "Bi Be" (Bihar, Bengal): after defeat he crosses west out of the Bengal Suba into Awadh.
- Stressed: "Punished zamindars", "support of Indian merchants", "Shah Alam II 60-06", "Shuja 54-75 joined", "3 crore rupees + Bihar and its treasury", and "EIC brought Mir Jafar 57-60 back as puppet Nawab (1763-65)".

7.2 Why Shah Alam II 60-06 was in Awadh

Aspect	Detail
Danger at Delhi	Shah Alam II 60-06 had left Delhi, frustrated with court factionalism and fearing for his life after the murders and

Aspect	Detail
	brutalities inflicted on his predecessors by Wazir Imad-ul-Mulk (also known as Gaddar-ul-Mulk)
Two Emperors destroyed by their own Wazir	Imad-ul-Mulk blinded Emperor Ahmad Shah Bahadur 48-54 in 1754 and murdered Emperor Alamgir II 54-59 in 1759
His own kingdom	So Shah Alam II 60-06 left Delhi to establish his own kingdom in Bengal, which had stopped paying tribute since 1751
1761	He attacked Bengal in 1761 but was defeated by the EIC. The EIC still respected him, since he was Emperor of Hindustan
In Awadh	Since then he was in Awadh and had chosen Shuja 54-75 as his Wazir

7.3 The battle and after

- The Battle of Buxar (1764) was fought in Bihar.
- All preparations had been made for a defensive strategy: laying siege to the fort where the EIC army was stationed.
- But Shuja 54-75 lost patience. Against the explicit advice of Mir Qasim 60-63, he switched to an offensive strategy and ordered a direct attack on the fort, handing the advantage to the EIC.
- The battle was closely fought, and at one point the Indian side appeared to be winning.

Battle of Buxar 1764: Awadh side against EIC + Bengal Lecture 14 slide 2

- Then the EIC commander Hector Munroe launched a final charge and turned the tables.
- Clive 57-67 was in London at the time.

Person	What happened after Buxar
Mir Qasim 60-63	Escaped and died somewhere later
Shuja 54-75	Was surprised to find himself not beheaded
Shah Alam II 60-06	Was treated with respect, as in him resided the symbolic sovereignty of the Mughal State. With him as an ally, the foreigner EIC's legal

Person	What happened after Buxar
	right as a political power in India would be stronger

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Who really fought at Buxar. Indian side:
  - Only Awadh was a State
  - The Mughal Emperor was there "practically as an individual" and Mir Qasim 60-63 "as an individual" (no State behind either)
- Other side: EIC + Bengal (puppet Mir Jafar 57-60, 1763-65 term).
- A very closely fought battle, so the judgement: in 1764, AT BEST, EIC military power = one of the multiple Indian kingdoms. Not yet a superpower.

7.4 The teacher's question: why was the EIC able to build an empire?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why was the EIC able to build an empire? imp Reason: Indian territory had multiple States and not one State ruling the whole of India.
- The States were not united: each had a territory motive and each kingdom wanted to be an empire = rivalry, which "is very natural".
- Therefore resources were not united: economic and military.
- So a power that was "at best one of the multiple Indian kingdoms" in 1764 could defeat or ally with them one at a time.
- Warning: "Please don't use it to bash India, bash Indians and lament Indian unity." Correct statement: Indian KINGS were not united, not "Indians were not united".
- Starred comparison: Why was China not politically conquered?
- It was weak, but it was ONE State: the Manchu dynasty, till 1911.

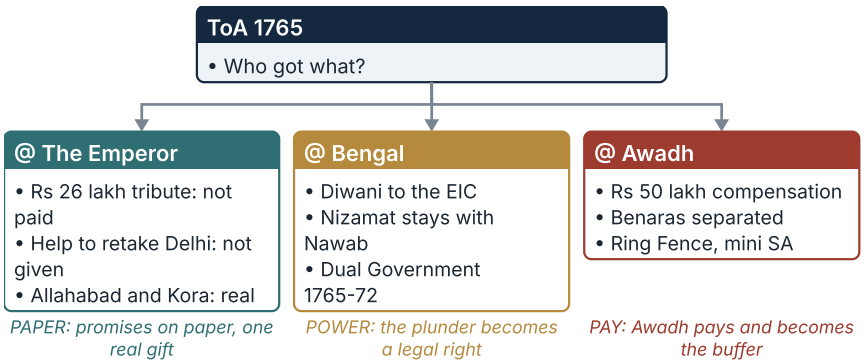
8 · Treaty of Allahabad 1765 (ToA 1765)

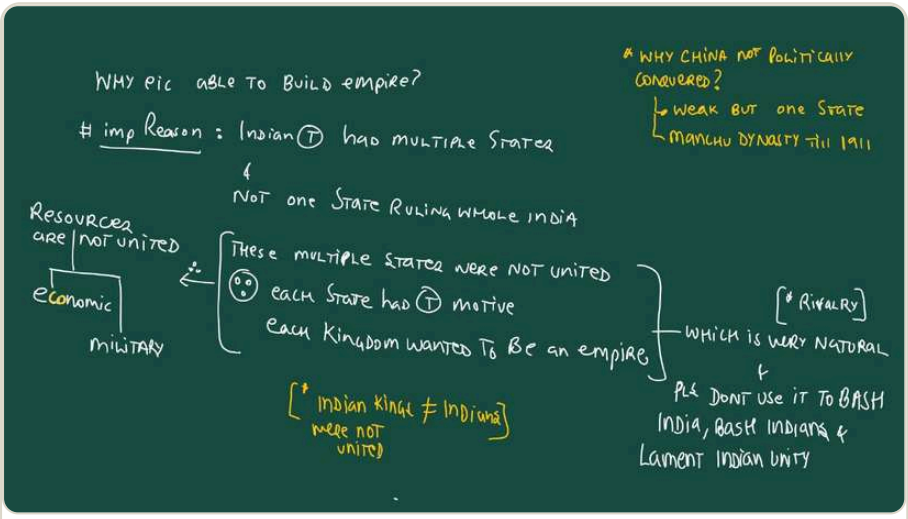
STORY LINK

Because the EIC has now won both ways, it writes the peace. Remember the three counterparties: Paper (Emperor), Power (Bengal), Pay (Awadh).

Why is the Treaty of Allahabad of 1765 so important, and what exactly did it decide?

TREATY OF ALLAHABAD 1765: PAPER, POWER, PAY





Why was the EIC able to build an empire? Lecture 14 slide 3

- Clive 57-67 was sent back to India from London after the Buxar victory to negotiate the settlement.
- The Treaty of Allahabad (ToA 1765) was signed by Clive 57-67 on behalf of the EIC, and by Shah Alam II 60-06 and Shuja 54-75 on the Indian side.
- It is one of the most consequential treaties in Indian history, because it laid the legal and structural foundation of the British Empire (the Company State) in India.

Treaty of Allahabad 1765: three signatories, three sets of clauses handout figure

- Clive 57-67 did insider trading on EIC shares.
- He asked his broker in London to buy EIC shares before the terms of ToA 1765 became public. This made Clive 57-67 one of the wealthiest men in Europe.
- ToA 1765 can be understood by breaking it into three components: @ Emperor, @ Bengal, @ Awadh.

Signatory	Side
Robert Clive 57-67	Signed for the EIC
Shah Alam II 60-06	Mughal Emperor: the Indian side
Shuja-ud-Daula 54-75	Nawab of Awadh: the Indian side

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Signatories:
  - Stress on "after Buxar". Clive 57-67 = Governor of the Bengal Presidency of the EIC, 1757-60 and 1765-67
  - the treaty belongs to his second term
- Insider trading: Clive 57-67 bought EIC shares before ToA 1765 became public and became the "richest man of Europe".

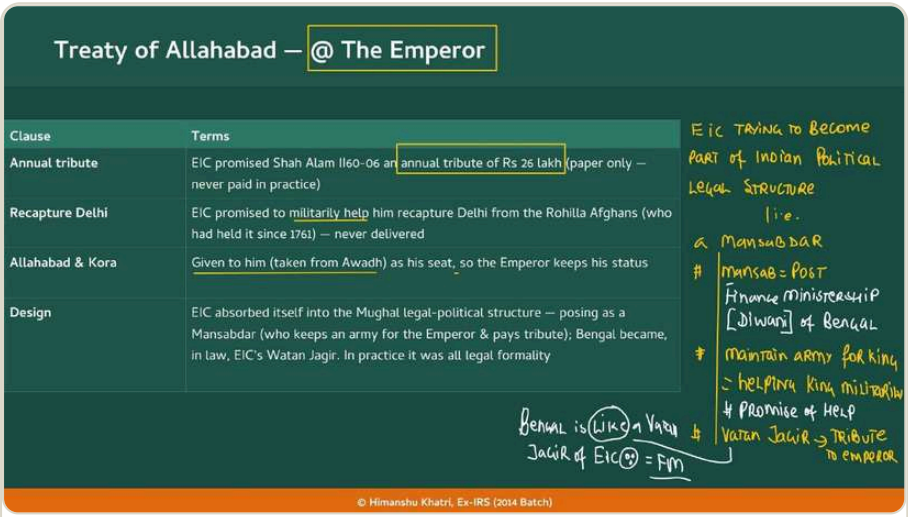
8.1 @ The Emperor



ToA 1765, @ The Emperor: tribute, Delhi, Allahabad and Kora Lecture 14 slide 5

Clause	Terms	In practice
Annual tribute	The EIC promised to pay Shah Alam II 60-06 an annual tribute of 26 lakh rupees	Not paid
Recapture Delhi	The EIC promised to militarily help him recapture Delhi from the Rohilla Afghans (who had held it since 1761)	No army was supplied
Allahabad and Kora	Given to him (taken from Awadh) so that the Emperor maintains his status	His seat

- This was deliberate and clever. The EIC was absorbing itself into the existing legal-political structure of the Mughal State, positioning itself as a Mansabdar (who maintains an army for the Emperor and pays tribute), and Bengal became, in legal terms, the EIC's Watan Jagir.
- Recall: this is exactly how Rebel States got absorbed into the Mughal Empire instead of declaring independence (Chapter 3).
- In practice the EIC paid neither the Rs 26 lakh nor did it supply an army to recapture Delhi. It was all legal formality.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The EIC is trying to become part of the Indian political-legal structure, that is, a Mansabdar.
- Mapping:
  - (1) mansab = post: the finance ministership [Diwani] of Bengal
  - (2) a Mansabdar maintains an army for the king = helping the king militarily: the promise of help to recapture Delhi
  - (3) a Vatan Jagir holder pays tribute to the Emperor: the Rs 26 lakh.
- So "Bengal is LIKE a Vatan Jagir of the EIC" and the EIC is the FM of Bengal.
- LIKE = a legal dress, not a real one.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout spells it Watan Jagir
- the board (and Chapter 7) writes Vatan Jagir. Same term
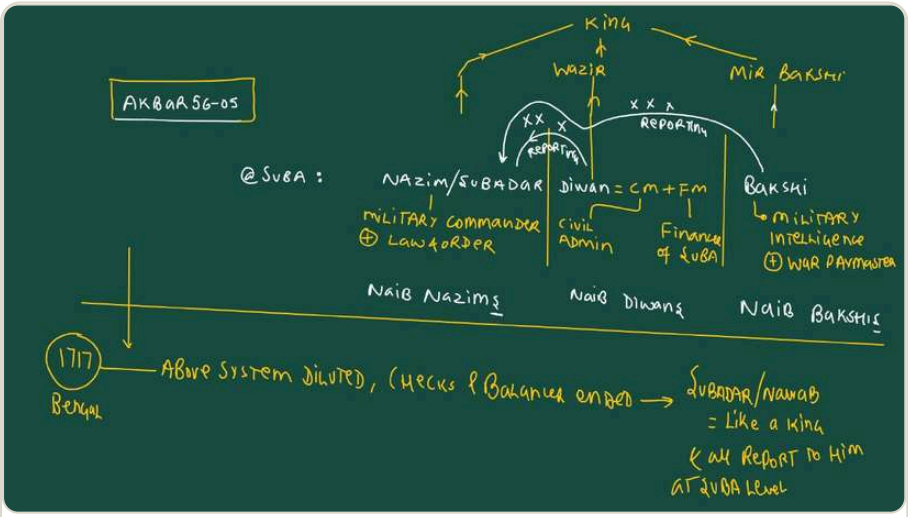
- The handout diagram adds that the country stayed "technically Mughal till 1858".

8.2 @ Bengal

8.2.1 Dual Government (1765-72)

First, the background: who did what in a Mughal Suba.



Suba system under Akbar 56-05: Nazim, Diwan, Bakshi Lecture 14 slide 6

Officer in the Suba	Functions	Reported to
Nazim / Subadar	Military commander + law and order	The centre (the King)
Diwan	"CM + FM": civil administration and the finance of the Suba	The centre (the Wazir's line), not the Nazim

Officer in the Suba	Functions	Reported to
Bakshi	Military intelligence + war paymaster	The centre (the Mir Bakshi's line), not the Nazim
Deputies	Naib Nazims, Naib Diwans, Naib Bakshis	Their own heads

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Under Akbar 56-05 the three provincial officers did not report to each other: checks and balances.
- By 1717 in Bengal the system was diluted and checks and balances ended: the Subadar / Nawab became "like a King" and all reported to him at the Suba level.
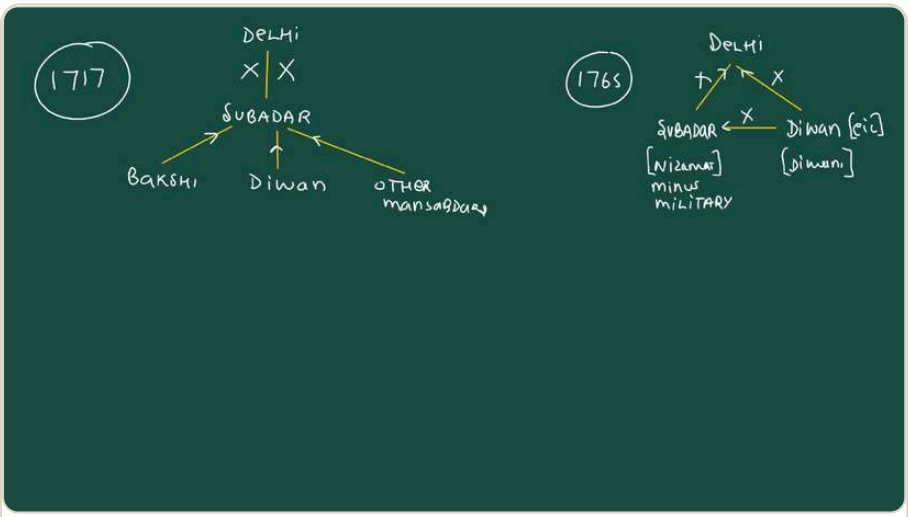
- Hence Mir Jafar 57-60, the Bakshi (war paymaster and head of military intelligence), mattered at Plassey.



Chain of reporting in 1717 and in 1765 Lecture 14 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1717:
  - The link between Delhi and the Subadar is cut
  - the Bakshi, the Diwan and other Mansabdars all report to the Subadar. 1765: two separate heads under Delhi again: the Subadar, holding the Nizamat "minus military", and the Diwan, now the EIC, holding the Diwani.
- The EIC as Diwan does not report to the Nawab.

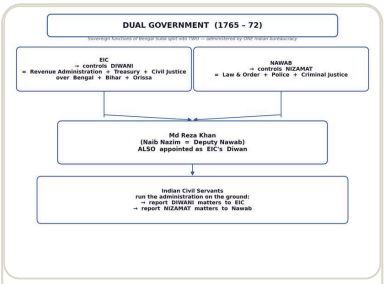
Dual Government (1765-72): the structure Lecture 14 slide 9



Dual Government 1765-72: Diwani, Nizamat and Md Reza Khan handout figure

- Diwani meant revenue administration, control of the revenue (treasury), civil administration and civil justice.
- The EIC received the Diwani of Bengal Suba, that is Bengal, Orissa and Bihar.
- This was the first time the EIC formally received a sovereign function, for example the power to tax.
- Before Buxar the EIC had only trade income (since 31st December 1600).
- From 1765 it had two incomes: trade income and tax revenue from the richest province of India.
- The Nizamat remained with the Nawab legally: law and order and criminal justice.
- The military, in practice, was with the EIC.
- This arrangement was the Dual Government (1765-72).

Function	Legally with	What it covered
Diwani	The EIC	Revenue administration, the treasury, civil administration and civil justice (Civil Courts) over Bengal, Bihar and Orissa
Nizamat	The Nawab	Law and order, police, criminal justice (the military was in practice with the EIC, the teacher adds "since 1757")

- In practice the EIC appointed a Deputy Nawab (Naib Nazim), Md Reza Khan, as its Diwan.
- Indian civil servants continued to run the administration, reporting to the EIC on Diwani matters and to the Nawab on Nizamat matters.
- The Dual Government meant, in effect, that sovereign functions had been split into two and two separate top authorities installed over each.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Dual Government = "2 TOP AUTHORITIES": two bosses, BUT one administration.
- The Nizamat "stayed with" the Nawab, except the military, with the EIC since 1757.
- Drawn as a Y: Nawab [Nizamat] and EIC [Diwani] at the top, both meeting at the Deputy Nawab (Naib Nazim), then one long line of officials: "Admin = Indians".
- The men on the ground were the same Indian officials
- Only the top was split

TEACHER'S BOARD

Diwani notes: "PLUNDER (1757-65) now LEGAL"; "Two incomes now: OLD = TRADE, NEW = revenue of Bengal".

HANDOUT NOTE

- Listing differences. Handout text: Diwani = revenue administration, treasury, civil administration, civil justice.
- Handout treaty diagram: "(NOT health/education)" and Nizamat = "law and order + domestic governance".
- Slide: Nizamat = law and order + police + criminal justice.
- For the exam:
  - Diwani = revenue + civil justice
  - Nizamat = law and order (police) + criminal justice.

Why did the EIC not annex Bengal outright?

- The EIC was a company, and companies work for profit, not for ruling.
- When the opportunity existed to annex Bengal outright, it chose not to, because annexation would bring administrative costs and responsibilities.
- Military domination after Plassey 1757 meant the company was not threatened militarily.
- After Buxar 1764 it secured only the legal right over the finances of Bengal.
- So now the drain of Bengal's wealth was not illegal plunder but a legal right of the EIC.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- More reasons for not annexing: "RULING is a tension OR a responsibility" and "lack of experience of ruling".
- So the EIC took the money (Diwani) and left the headache (Nizamat) with the Nawab.

8.2.2 Policy of Indirect Rule, the 1770 famine and Direct Rule

- The Policy of Indirect Rule was now formally installed in Bengal's Nizamat.
- The three elements of Indirect Rule are:

The three elements of Indirect Rule (PoIR)

- The King or Nawab is a puppet.
- A British Resident is stationed in court.
- The Resident controls the puppet and thus governs indirectly.
- All three were now in place.

Policy of Indirect Rule (PoIR): the 3-step process Lecture 14 slide 11

- The EIC also obtained the legal right to appoint the Deputy Nawab.
- This meant that if the Deputy Subahdar refused to follow informal EIC instructions in Nizamat matters, he could be removed by the EIC.
- By 1772 the British Resident had established complete indirect control over the Nizamat.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PoIR is a "3 step PROCESS" and a process "can take years":
  - (a) the Nawab is a puppet
  - (b) a British Resident is stationed in court "to play the Nawab as a puppet"
  - (c) the Resident controls him.
- Board:
  - "Policy implementation takes time"
  - "Began in Bengal, ToA 1765".
- Hence "installed" in 1765 but "complete" only by 1772.

The Great Bengal Famine of 1770 (GBF 1770) and the end of the Dual Government

- In 1772 the Dual Government was formally ended.

- The Nizamat was taken over legally from the Nawab, and the EIC replaced Indian administrators with its own officers, establishing Direct Rule.
- Thus the Company State was properly established in Bengal.
- The reason was the Great Bengal Famine of 1770 (GBF 1770).
- The famine killed one crore people, an estimated one-third of Bengal's population.
- High land revenue demand and harsh tax collection methods continued even as crops failed and people starved.
- Grain hoarding by speculators went unchecked, because neither the EIC nor the Nawab took responsibility for famine relief.
- The EIC claimed that famine relief was the Nawab's domain, and the Nawab lacked the resources for it.
- Due to the famine, land revenue collection and law and order collapsed, forcing the EIC to establish its own Direct Rule.
- From 1772 the Nawab of Bengal became as powerless a figurehead as the Chhatrapati of the Marathas had become after the Treaty of Sangola 1750 (Chapter 4).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- GBF 1770 led to the collapse of L and O (law and order, the Nizamat side) and of LR (land revenue, the Diwani side): both halves of the Dual Government failed together.
- Direct Rule came under W. Hastings 73-85.
- PYQ (Mains): "Why were there recurrent famines in British-ruled India?" One paragraph of that answer comes from this topic.

Concept of famine: nature factor and human factor Lecture 14 slide 12

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Famine = a function of [NATURE factor AND HUMAN factor].
- Nature factor:
  - Drought or floods reduce the supply of food, so the price of food rises
  - that alone is not yet a famine
- Human factor:
  - Prosperous people with good savings can still buy (food can be imported)
  - A caring, welfare State maintains a buffer and imports food.
- A famine happens when nature fails and the human side fails.
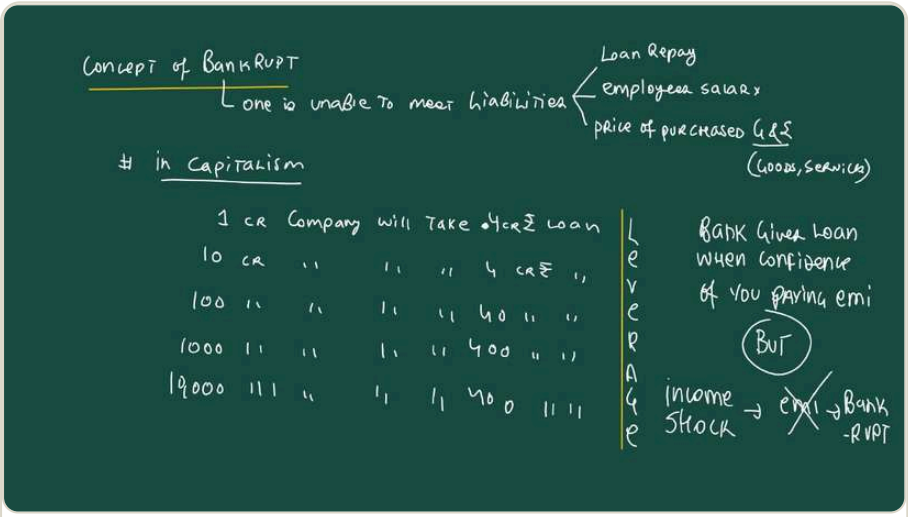
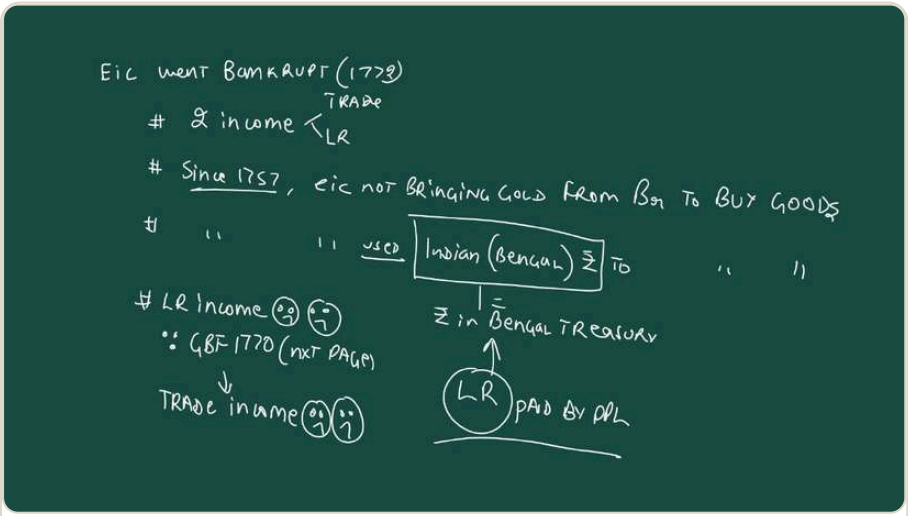
- In Bengal 1770 the human side failed completely: high revenue demand, hoarding unchecked, nobody in charge of relief.
- This is the paragraph for the Mains question.



Concept of bankruptcy: liabilities and leverage Lecture 14 slide 13



The EIC went bankrupt (1772): two incomes Lecture 14 slide 14

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Bankruptcy = being unable to meet liabilities (loan repayment, employees' salaries, price of goods and services bought).
- In capitalism companies run on LEVERAGE:
  - A 1 crore company takes a 0.4 crore loan
  - 10 crore takes 4
  - 100 crore takes 40
  - 1,000 crore takes 400
  - And so on
- A bank lends when confident of the EMI
- An income shock means no EMI, and the company is "Bank-RUPT".
- "The EIC went BANKRUPT (1772): it had two incomes, trade and LR (land revenue).
- Since 1757 it did not bring gold from Britain to buy goods but used Indian (Bengal) money, the money in the Bengal treasury, which was LR paid by the people.
- When GBF 1770 hit LR, trade income fell with it: both incomes collapsed together = the income shock.
- This is the money side of why the Dual Government ended in 1772.

From the Dual Government to Direct Rule

- 1765: Diwani to the EIC, Nizamat with the Nawab: power without responsibility at the top, one Indian bureaucracy below
- High revenue demand and harsh collection continue
- 1770 Great Bengal Famine:
  - About 1 crore dead (one-third of Bengal)
  - Hoarding unchecked
  - Neither the EIC nor the Nawab takes charge of relief
- Land revenue (Diwani side) and law and order (Nizamat side) collapse
- the EIC's two incomes fall
- The teacher: the EIC went bankrupt (1772)
- 1772: the EIC takes the Nizamat legally, replaces Indian administrators with its own officers
- Direct Rule (W. Hastings 73-85): the Company State is properly established in Bengal

8.3 @ Awadh

Clause	Terms
Compensation	Shuja 54-75 was made to pay 50 lakh rupees to the EIC as compensation
Benaras	Benaras was separated from Awadh (the EIC formally annexed it in 1775)

Clause	Terms
Kora and Allahabad	Went to the Emperor
Duty-free trade	The EIC was granted duty-free trade in Awadh, and Dastak misuse began there too
Policy of Ring Fence	Initiated with Awadh (see below)
Mini Subsidiary Alliance	Awadh partially outsourced its military to the EIC (see below)

The Policy of Ring Fence (PoRF)

- The Policy of Ring Fence was initiated with Awadh.
- It is mainly associated with Warren Hastings 73-85, but Clive 57-67 planted its seed here.
- It meant creating a military buffer around the EIC's core territory by signing military alliances with neighbouring States.
- Under this military alliance with Awadh, if anyone attacked the EIC in Bengal, Awadh was treaty-bound to help.
- Think of it like the US using NATO during the Cold War: a buffer of allied Western Europe protected the core, that is the USA, from the USSR.

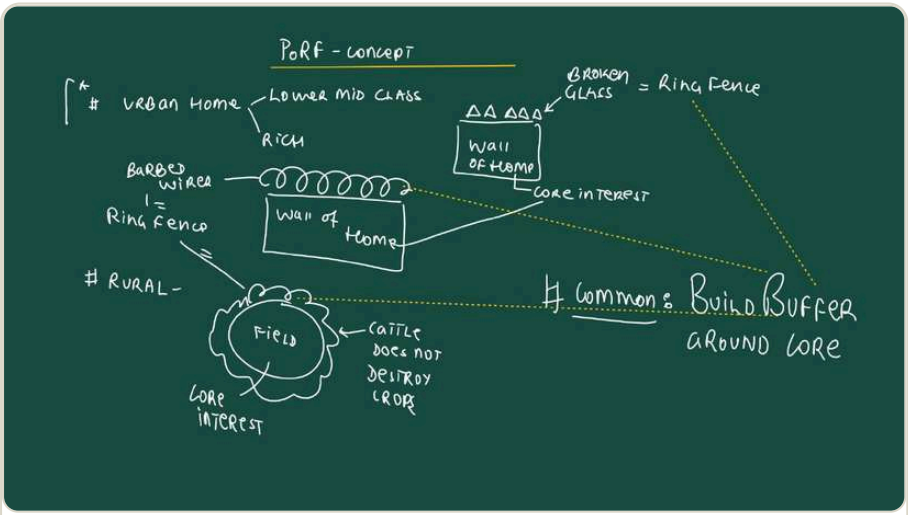
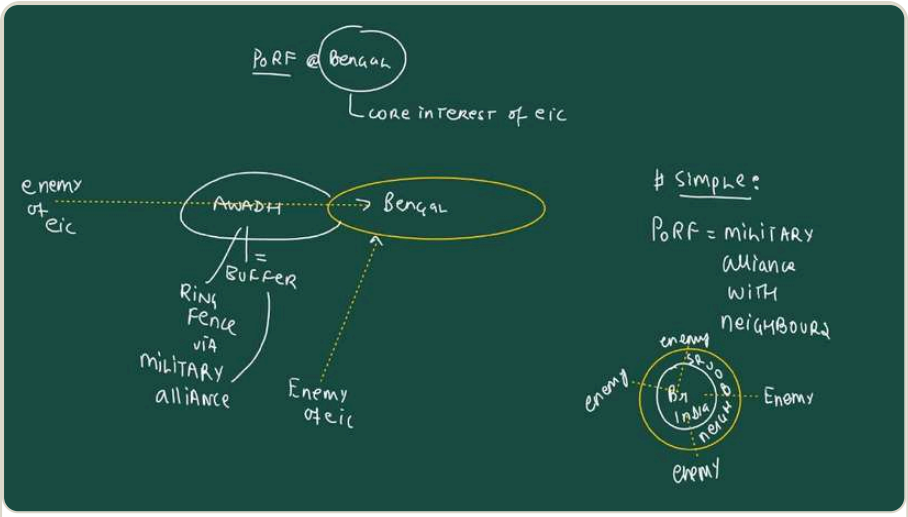
> Prelims match-the-following (forecast). PoRF = Warren Hastings 73-85, even though Clive 57-67 planted the seed with Awadh in 1765. Do not pick Clive 57-67.



Ring Fence concept: build a buffer around the core Lecture 14 slide 17



Ring Fence at Bengal: Awadh as buffer Lecture 14 slide 18

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Ring Fence analogy. Urban home:
  - A lower-middle-class house puts broken glass on the boundary wall
  - A rich house puts coils of barbed wire.
- Rural: a farmer rings his field with a thorny hedge so that cattle do not destroy the crop.
- The home or field is the CORE interest
- the glass, wire or hedge is the Ring Fence.
- Common idea: BUILD A BUFFER AROUND THE CORE.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Applied to 1765:
  - Bengal is the core interest of the EIC
  - Awadh is the buffer.
- An enemy of the EIC coming from the west must first pass through Awadh.
- The fence is "via military alliance".
- Simple definition: PoRF = military alliance with neighbours.
- Target diagram: British India = inner circle, allied neighbours = ring, enemies outside.

The mini Subsidiary Alliance

- A mini Subsidiary Alliance was signed. Awadh was forced to partially outsource a core sovereign function, its own military, to the EIC.
- The size of the Awadh army was reduced, and an EIC army was permanently stationed in Awadh and paid for by Awadh via an annual subsidy.
- (The handout's joke: the EIC saying "haha, thank you Dupleix 42-54 for the 1751 idea at Hyderabad".)
- Thus the EIC now partially controlled the military resources of Awadh.

- Combined with the military alliance, it meant that these resources could be used directly by the EIC itself (under its command) for protecting Bengal.
- The clauses relating to Awadh are a prelude to the full Subsidiary Alliance that Wellesley 98-05 would formalise three decades later (Chapter 11).
- A formal and proper Subsidiary Alliance was signed with Awadh in 1801, when Awadh's own army was disbanded and its foreign policy was also taken over by the EIC.
- But the architecture was drawn here in 1765.

Mini Subsidiary Alliance (1765) against the formal one (1801) Lecture 14 slide 20

Feature	Awadh in 1765 (mini SA)	Awadh in 1801 (formal SA)
British Resident	Yes (tick)	Yes
Military alliance	Yes (tick)	Yes
EIC army stationed	Yes (tick)	Yes
Subsidy paid by Awadh	Yes (tick)	Yes
Awadh's own army	Size reduced BUT not disbanded (cross)	Disbanded (tick, 1801)
External sovereign functions ("D, L, FA taken")	Legally not taken (cross)	Taken (tick, 1801): the handout says its foreign policy was also taken over

HANDOUT ALERT

- Two traps. (1) "Awadh was the first to sign a Subsidiary Alliance" is FALSE: the first was Hyderabad 1798.
- Awadh's 1765 arrangement was only a mini Subsidiary Alliance
- The formal one came in 1801.

8.4 Clive 57-67's empire toolkit: born in one treaty

Instrument	What Clive 57-67 invented or operationalised in ToA 1765
Policy of Indirect Rule	Puppet Nawab + British Resident + control through the Resident: installed in Bengal's Nizamat
Policy of Ring Fence	A buffer of allied neighbouring States around the EIC's core: seeded with Awadh
Mini Subsidiary Alliance	Outsourcing a State's military to the EIC, stationed and subsidised: drawn with Awadh

MNEMONIC · CLIVE 57-67'S TOOLKIT IN TOA 1765

R I M

Clive drew the RIM, the outer boundary, of the EIC's empire.

R Ring Fence: a buffer of allied States (with Awadh)

I Indirect Rule: puppet Nawab plus Resident (Bengal's Nizamat)

M Mini Subsidiary Alliance: army stationed and subsidised (with Awadh)

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: Clive 57-67 was the father of the strategic policy toolkit that the EIC used for empire building.
- The Policy of Indirect Rule, the Policy of Ring Fence and the mini Subsidiary Alliance were all either invented or operationalised by Clive 57-67 in this single treaty.
- Thus the foundations of Empire were laid by Clive 57-67 in ToA 1765, and men like Wellesley 98-05 later built upon it.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- ToA 1765 is the source of all three instruments.
- Learn them as a set with their places:
  - Indirect Rule in Bengal's Nizamat
  - Ring Fence and mini Subsidiary Alliance with Awadh.

  - Conspiracy with Mir Jafar 57-60
  - Conquest (military domination and political supremacy) without rule
- Plassey Plunder 1757-65:
  - Cash, political gifts, Gomasta trade, gold outflow: the Drain begins

    - a standing army is built
- Mir Qasim 60-63 resists:
    - Moves to Bihar, punishes zamindars, abolishes internal duties
    - Defeated 1763
- Buxar 1764: Awadh, the Emperor and Mir Qasim 60-63 lose a closely fought battle to Hector Munroe
- ToA 1765:

Subsidiary Alliance of Wellesley 98-05 (1798-1805)

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 114-119 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 1999, 2018, 2020, 2021

Mains PYQs: none on the slides (the handout lists Mains hooks, shown in the lens)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Fort William College: Calcutta, 1800, founded by Richard Wellesley 98-05 (not Arthur), to train British civil servants in Indian languages, laws and customs (Prelims 2018, 2020, 2021)
- Prelims 1999: the Governor General who kept the flag flying in the Napoleon era is Wellesley 98-05, not Warren Hastings 73-85 and not Francis Hastings 13-23
- Which statement does NOT apply to the Subsidiary Alliance (Prelims 2018 and 2021): a fixed income for the Company is false; a large army, Napoleonic danger and British paramountcy are true
- Arthur Wellesley was a Royal Army officer (33rd Regiment of Foot), not an EIC officer; Henry handled administration and diplomacy
- The ten signatories and their treaties: Hyderabad 1798 first, Cambay, Bassein (Vasai), Nagpur, Mandsaur; 8 under Wellesley 98-05 and 2 under Francis Hastings 13-23

MAINS HOOKS

- The Subsidiary Alliance as control without annexation: how Wellesley 98-05 got round the ban of Pitt's India Act 1784
- The legal logic of taking Foreign Policy, and the seven-link vicious chain for Indian States
- Why some rulers walked in willingly, and the SA as Divide and Rule at the level of the subcontinent
- The British State's share of responsibility for empire building (two European armies, 1756-63 till 1858)

The Subsidiary Alliance was control without annexation: Indian States kept the flag, the EIC took the army and Foreign Policy.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Money rules the chapter: high war expenditure produced the ban on conquest (1784), Wellesley 98-05 got round the ban with the Napoleon threat and the Subsidiary Alliance (control without annexation), and high war expenditure again got him recalled.

1. Three brothers, one mission. Richard Wellesley 98-05 becomes Governor General of Bengal in 1798, an empire builder who knows expansion raises his profile with a nationalistic British public. His brothers join him: Arthur, a Royal Army officer commanding the 33rd Regiment of Foot (not an EIC officer), and Henry, who handles the administration and diplomacy of the EIC. In 1800 Richard founds Fort William College, Calcutta, to train British civil servants in Indian languages, laws and customs.

   → But Richard has a legal problem: conquest is banned.

2. The money rule. GBF 1770 leads to the EIC's bankruptcy by 1772; the British State lends money but brings the EIC under supervision through the Regulating Act 1773, so it will not waste taxpayers' money on wars. Then the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82) and the 2nd Anglo-Mysore War (1780-84) mean high war expenditure, and Pitt's India Act 1784 bans conquest: the Governor General may fight only in defence, otherwise he needs the Court of Directors or the Board of Control.

   → So Richard needs a threat big enough to justify fighting.

3. Napoleon knocks at Egypt. In 1798 Napoleon attacks Egypt to control the Middle East and hurt British trade, and he is in contact with Tipu 82-99 of Mysore. Wellesley 98-05 overhypes a Napoleon and Tipu 82-99 alliance. The threat was there but not real: Britain's navy was superior, and the British had already burnt French ships in the Mediterranean.

   → But the British State agrees anyway, and wants a cheaper path.

4. The middle path. Protecting India from European rivals is the primary goal of British foreign policy, so the State does not take risks. Wellesley 98-05 offers the Subsidiary Alliance: political domination without the cost, administrative burden and symbolism of full annexation. The teacher's line: SA = control without annexation. The idea is older: Dupleix 42-54 at Hyderabad in 1751 and Clive 57-67 at Awadh in 1765 (a mini SA).

   → Now Wellesley 98-05 turns the idea into a policy, written down.

5. The model treaty. Wellesley 98-05 formalises the relationship in a written treaty, takes over Foreign Policy and disbands the State's army, State by State. The EIC gets five things: a Resident, a military alliance, the State's army disbanded and replaced, an annual subsidy and Foreign Policy. The ruler gets two promises: protection, and non-interference in succession, Diwani and Nizamat (minus military). Taking Foreign Policy closes a loophole: the army was paid by the State's subsidy, so only war and peace in EIC hands gave the EIC the right to deploy it.

   → So why would any ruler sign?

6. Why rulers walked in. Five arguments: protection against internal revolts, protection against external threats (Chauth raids, Mysore, Rohillas), a subsidy cheaper than annexation, royal dignity preserved, and help in succession disputes and against neighbours. The EIC made military help conditional on signing. The teacher tags the fifth argument FACTIONALISM.

   → But once signed, the chain starts to bite.

7. The vicious chain. The State's army is disbanded and Mansabdars lose their military role; the EIC army grows free of cost; the subsidy is high and rising (Drain of Wealth); taxes rise and peasants revolt; the EIC charges maladministration though the ruler has no power; territory is taken in lieu of cash (half of Awadh 1801, Berar 1853); and no alliances against the EIC remain possible. The teacher compares it to Bali of Ramayana: a military power shift.

→ Let us see who signed, and why.

8 The signing spree, 1798-1805. Hyderabad signs first in 1798, for protection against the Marathas and Mysore. Mysore signs in 1799 after Tipu 82-99 is killed at Seringapatam. Awadh in 1801: Sadat Ali Khan II had offered Rs 76 lakh in 1798 for John Shore 93-98 removing his nephew Wazir Ali (1797-98); he defaulted and Henry Wellesley imposed a full SA. The Gaikwad signs at Cambay in June 1802, the Peshwa Bajirao II 96-18 at Bassein in December 1802 after Yashwantrao Holkar defeats him, Scindia in 1803, the Jats, Rajputs and Bundelas in 1803-05, and Travancore in 1805 after a Nair mutiny.

→ But some land was not left to alliances at all.

9 Land taken outright. Wellesley 98-05 also annexes directly: Mysore territory in 1799 (to the Madras Presidency), half of Awadh in 1801 (the Doab, Gorakhpur, Rohilkhand: revenue twice the Rs 76 lakh subsidy, later the Ceded Districts, NWP 1836), and the Carnatic in 1801 (maladministration on record, the Nawab's many loans as context). In the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05) Bhonsle loses Orissa and Scindia loses Gujarat and everything north of the Yamuna, including Delhi.

→ But every war costs money.

10 The bill, and the recall. Wars are expensive for both winner and loser. The board repeats: loan and Regulating Act 1773, but still wars; Pitt's India Act 1784, but still wars. Under Wellesley 98-05 the 4th Anglo-Mysore War 1799 and the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War 1803-05 again mean high war expenditure, and he is recalled to London. Travancore in 1805 is the last SA of his term.

→ The last two signatories come under his successor.

11 The last two of ten. Under Francis Hastings 13-23, the Bhonsle of Nagpur signs in 1816 (Appa Sahib wins the Nagpur regency fight with EIC backing) and Holkar of Indore signs at Mandsaur in 1818 after defeat in the 3rd Anglo-Maratha War. The teacher's count: ten SAs in 20 years, eight under Wellesley 98-05 and two under Francis Hastings 13-23. Factionalism brought the Peshwa, Bhonsle and Gaikwad; war brought Scindia and Holkar.

Character	Role in the story	Hook
Dupleix 42-54	French root of the SA: Hyderabad 1751 with Bussy	The French Pioneer
Clive 57-67	British root: mini SA at Awadh in ToA 1765	The British Pioneer
John Shore 93-98	Removed Wazir Ali from the Nawabship in return for the 1798 subsidy offer	The Obliging Governor
Sadat Ali Khan II	Uncle who offered Rs 76 lakh, then defaulted; Awadh lost half in 1801	The Defaulter
Bajirao II 96-18	Peshwa beaten by Yashwantrao Holkar; signed Bassein, December 1802	The Fugitive Peshwa
Appa Sahib	Bhonsle of Nagpur; signed in 1816 to win the regency fight	The Regency Claimant
Wajid Ali Shah	Nawab of Awadh accused of maladministration; State annexed 1856	The Starkest Example
Md Ali 52-95	EIC's loyal ally; Carnatic annexed six years after his death	The Loyal Ally

In simple words

- Richard Wellesley 98-05 was joined in India by his two brothers: Arthur (Royal Army, not an EIC officer) and Henry (administration and diplomacy).
- Pitt's India Act 1784 had banned conquest because of high war expenditure
- Wellesley 98-05 got round it by overhyping the Napoleon and Tipu 82-99 threat, which was there but not real
- His middle path was the Subsidiary Alliance:
    - control without annexation. The EIC got a Resident, an army, a subsidy and Foreign Policy
    - The ruler got protection and a promise of non-interference
- The seven-link vicious chain (unemployment, free army, Drain of Wealth, tax hikes, maladministration charge, territory for cash, no alliances) left every signatory annexed or dependent.
- Ten SAs in 20 years (1798 to 1818): eight under Wellesley 98-05 and two under Francis Hastings 13-23. Wellesley 98-05 was recalled because his wars again meant high war expenditure.

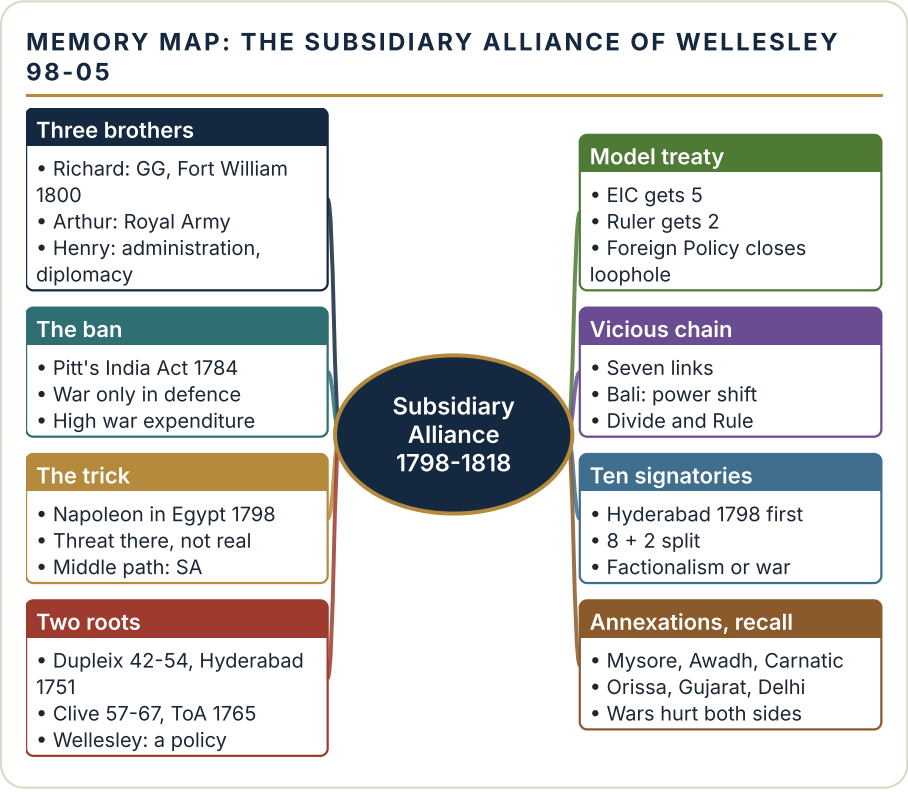
Key term	In plain words
Subsidiary (Subordinate) Alliance	A treaty that looks like an alliance but puts one party's rights below the other's: the EIC on top, the Indian State below
Pitt's India Act 1784	The Act that banned conquest: no offensive war without the Court of Directors or the Board of Control; war allowed only in defence
British Resident	The EIC's man stationed at the Indian ruler's court
Subsidy (Def BD)	The annual payment by the Indian State for the EIC army; it is the State's defence budget, but its size is decided by the EIC
External sovereign functions (D, C, FA)	Defence, Communications and Foreign Affairs, taken by the EIC

Key term	In plain words
Domestic sovereign functions	Home, Finance, Admin, Health and the like, which stayed with the Indian king
Symbolic sovereignty	The throne and title that stayed with the Indian king
Foreign Policy (in the SA)	War and peace, diplomacy, defence budget and foreign trade, all taken by the EIC
Company's Army / King's Army	The EIC's own private military / the British State's Royal regiments, whose cost the EIC had to reimburse
Factionalism	Rival groups fighting over who rules (the teacher's example: who will be regent of Nagpur)
Ceded Districts	Half of Awadh (the Doab, Gorakhpur, Rohilkhand) annexed in 1801; full province status in 1836 as NWP
Divide and Rule	Setting groups apart so they cannot unite against the EIC; the SA did this at the level of a whole subcontinent

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS SA = control without annexation: the EIC took the army and Foreign Policy; the Indian State kept the flag.

0 · What the name means: Subsidiary, or Subordinate, Alliance

STORY LINK

Story so far: the whole chapter is about one unequal treaty. Keep the picture: Amritsar is a level line, Hyderabad is a slope. Ask: who is on top?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Title additions: (1) "Richard" above the surname: the Governor General is Richard Wellesley 98-05.
- (2) "Subordinate [SA]" under Subsidiary: read Subsidiary Alliance as Subordinate Alliance.
- (3) "[BRO: ARTHUR (Br Royal Military), HENRY (eic)]": his brothers, Arthur in the British Royal Military and Henry with the EIC.
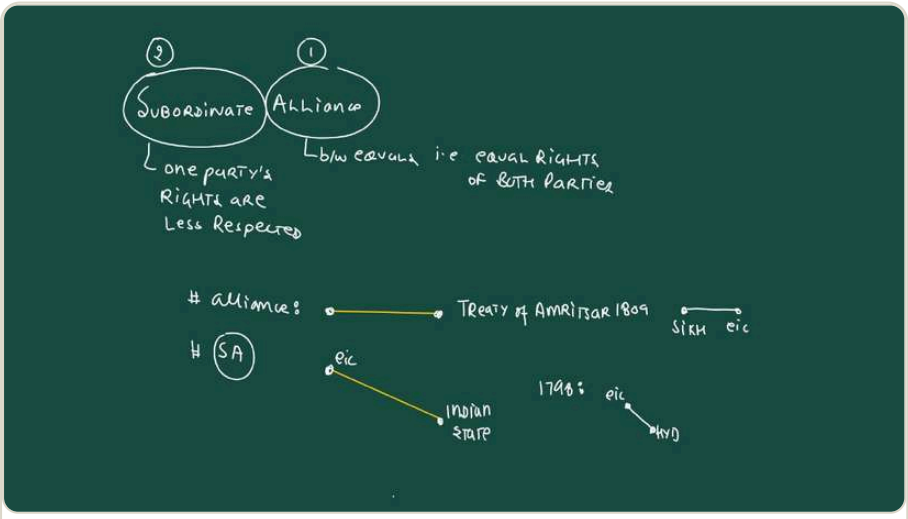
- The chapter turns on two ideas: an unequal alliance, and three brothers working together.



Meaning of Subordinate Alliance: level line versus sloping line Lecture 14 slide 29

Word (the teacher's order)	Meaning on the board	Picture on the board	Example on the board
1. Alliance	Between equals, that is, equal rights of both parties	A level line between two dots	Treaty of Amritsar 1809: Sikh and EIC on the same level
2. Subordinate	One party's rights are less respected	A line sloping down from the EIC to the Indian State	1798: EIC above, Hyderabad (HYD) below

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Order of the words: first "Alliance", then "Subordinate".
- Alliance alone = a treaty between equals.
- "Subordinate" cancels the equality: one party's rights are less respected.
- So a Subordinate (Subsidiary) Alliance looks like an alliance on paper, but the two parties are not level: the EIC is on top.
- The same sloping line returns under "Imbalance" (4.2).

1 · Who were the Wellesleys?

STORY LINK

Because the chapter is a family story, meet the three brothers first. Ask: which one fought, which one governed, which one handled diplomacy, and who was NOT an EIC officer?

Brother	Role
Richard Wellesley 98-05	Governor General of Bengal from 1798 to 1805. He was joined in India by both his brothers, Arthur and Henry Wellesley. An empire builder
Henry Wellesley	Handled the administration and diplomacy of the EIC
Arthur Wellesley	A military commander, but NOT an EIC officer: a commissioned officer in the British Royal Army

- Wellesley 98-05 was an empire builder. He understood that expanding the empire raised his profile among a nationalistic British public, which was useful for his political ambitions back home.
- He established Fort William College in Calcutta in 1800 to train British civil servants in Indian languages, laws and customs before posting them to the districts.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Key words: "empire builder", "Fort William College, Calcutta 1800", "train British civil servants", "Indian languages, laws".
- These are exactly the words UPSC has used: the founder pair and the purpose.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Fort William College has been tested in UPSC Prelims three times.
- Prelims 2018: the institution and founder pair (alongside Sanskrit College Banaras and Calcutta Madarsa).
- Prelims 2020 and Prelims 2021: the purpose of establishment.
- Learn: Wellesley 98-05, Calcutta, 1800, to train British civil servants in Indian languages, laws and customs.

1.1 Arthur Wellesley: a Royal Army officer, not an EIC officer

- Arthur Wellesley was a military commander, but he was NOT an EIC officer.
- He was a commissioned officer in the British Royal Army, commanding the 33rd Regiment of Foot (that is, infantry).
- He led his Royal regiment alongside EIC forces in the 4th Anglo-Mysore War (1798–99), including the Siege of Seringapatam (1799), and in the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803–05), including the Battle of Assaye (1803).
- He also fought Napoleon's army between 1808 and 1815.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Br State helped EIC in India, e.g. 3rd CW 1756-63
- Therefore the EIC GOT HELP of the Br State in Empire BUILDING in India." Arthur shows that the British State's own army fought the EIC's wars.
- Royal help goes back to the 3rd Carnatic War (1756-63).
- The empire was built by the Company and the British State together, not by a private company alone.

1.2 Two European armies in India (3rd Carnatic War 1756–63 till 1858)

- From the 3rd Carnatic War (1756-63) till 1858, two separate European military forces operated in India side by side:

Force	What it was	Who paid
Company's Army	The EIC's own private military. Majorly Indian sepoys, but it also had European sepoys. Senior officers were always European, that is, British	Paid for by the EIC
King's Army (Royal Military)	The official British State's regiments sent to India to support the EIC	The EIC had to reimburse the British State for the cost of

Force	What it was	Who paid
		Royal troops deployed in India

- Both forces fought together, but they were legally and institutionally distinct.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's note: the Company State in India received direct military support from the British Crown.
- Hence the British State cannot escape responsibility for empire building in India.
- Key phrase: "EIC had to reimburse the British State" (the Crown lent its regiments, the Company paid the bill).

1.3 Arthur's own verdict on the Marathas

- Arthur Wellesley on record stated that the Marathas were the most formidable enemy he ever faced, and that the Battle of Assaye (1803) against them was the toughest fight of his entire military career.
- The Marathas were harder to defeat militarily.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The handout's conclusion: had India not been a fragmented polity, that is, had there been one State ruling the whole of India, India would not have been colonised.
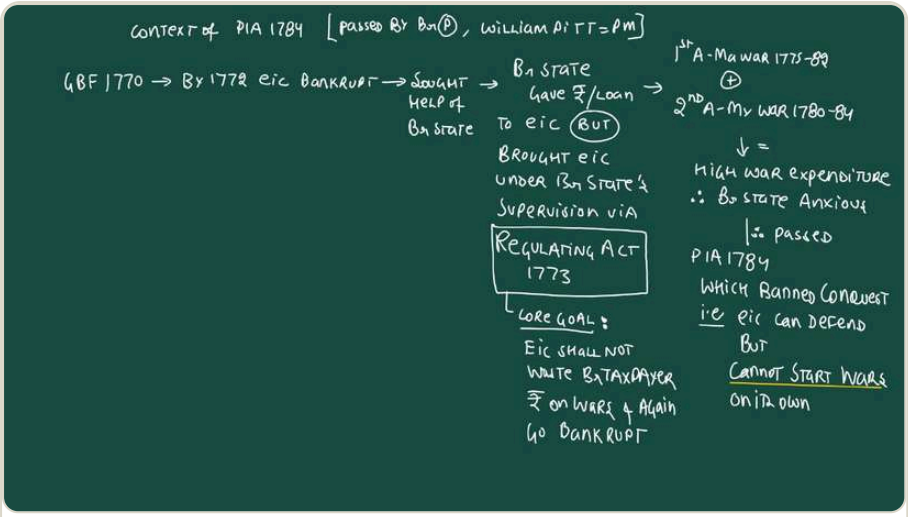
- This is a ready Mains line on why the EIC won.

2 · Pitt's India Act 1784 banned conquest: how Wellesley 98-05 re-initiated it

STORY LINK

Because conquest cost money, Parliament banned it in 1784. Ask: how does Wellesley 98-05 still go to war? Answer: an overhyped threat and a middle path.

2.1 Context of Pitt's India Act 1784 (the teacher's board)



Context of Pitt's India Act 1784: the money chain Lecture 14 slide 34

Why Pitt's India Act 1784 was passed (teacher's board)

- GBF 1770 (as written on the board)
- By 1772 the EIC is bankrupt
- It seeks the help of the British State
- The British State gives money (a loan) to the EIC, BUT brings the EIC under its supervision via the Regulating Act 1773
- Core goal of 1773: the EIC shall not waste British taxpayers' money on wars and go bankrupt again
- 1st Anglo-Maratha War plus 2nd Anglo-Mysore War (1780-84):
  - High war expenditure
  - The British State is anxious
- Pitt's India Act 1784 bans conquest: the EIC can defend but cannot start wars on its own

MNEMONIC · THE BAN'S MONEY CHAIN, IN ORDER

Grim Bills Require Watchful Parliament

- G GBF 1770: start of the board's chain
- B Bankruptcy of the EIC by 1772
- R Regulating Act 1773: loan, with supervision
- W Wars: 1st Anglo-Maratha 1775-82 plus 2nd Anglo-Mysore 1780-84
- P Pitt's India Act 1784: conquest banned

Order kept: five steps from the first bill to the ban.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Context of PIA 1784 [passed by Br (P), William PITT = PM]": passed by the British Parliament when William Pitt was Prime Minister.
- The logic is money:
  - The British State had already rescued a bankrupt Company once (loan, with supervision through the Regulating Act 1773)
  - Core goal: the EIC should not waste British taxpayers' money on wars and go bankrupt again.
- Two more wars meant high war expenditure, the State grew anxious and wrote the ban into law. Key phrase: "Cannot START WARS."

2.2 The ban and the reason for it

Aspect	Detail
The ban	Pitt's India Act of 1784 had banned conquest. The Governor-General (GG) could not start an offensive war without the express command and authority of either the Court of Directors of the EIC or the Board of Control of the British State (discussed in a later chapter)
The exception	The GG had the right to enter war on grounds of defence
The reason	High war expenditure
The wars that drained Company finances	The Three Carnatic Wars (1746–63), the Battle of Buxar (1764), two Anglo-Mysore Wars (1767–69 and 1780–84) and the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775–82)
What Parliament mandated instead	Diplomacy rather than war, in the form of the Policy of Indirect Rule (PoIR) and maintaining a balance of power among Indian States, instead of pursuing direct conquest

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's recall: the pacifist policy of the Mughals after 1707 was also for the same reason (the cost of war).
- And the handout's note: Wellesley 98-05 could not legally start an offensive war without prior authorisation.

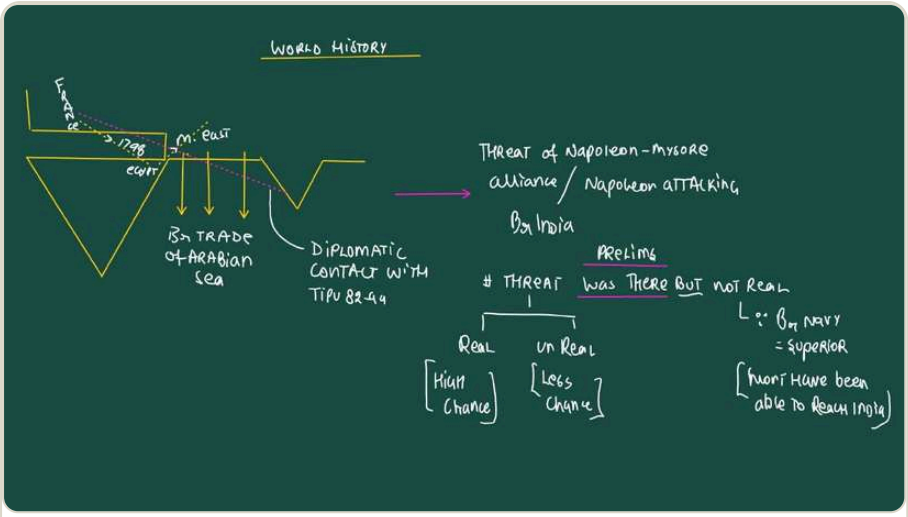
2.3 The Napoleon threat: there, but not real



World History board: the Napoleon threat, real or unreal Lecture 14 slide 36

The Napoleon-threat diagram (teacher's World History board)

- 1798:
  - France (Napoleon) attacks Egypt
  - The dotted line on the board runs France to Egypt, marked 1798
- Aim:
  - The Middle East
  - To hurt the British trade of the Arabian Sea (three arrows on the board)
- Diplomatic contact with Tipu 82-99 of Mysore
- Threat: a Napoleon and Mysore alliance, or Napoleon attacking British India
- But the threat was "there, not real"
- The British Navy was superior, so the French would not have been able to reach India

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Marked PRELIMS. Two kinds of threat:
  - Real = high chance
  - Unreal = less chance.
- Verdict: "THREAT was THERE BUT not Real": a threat existed, with a low chance, "because Br NAVY = SUPERIOR [would not have been able to reach India]." So in an exam statement "Napoleonic danger" is a correct feature of the Subsidiary Alliance (the danger was there), though not a real, high-chance one.

- Wellesley 98-05 re-initiated conquest by overhyping the threat of a Napoleon and Tipu 82-99 alliance.
- Napoleon had attacked Egypt in 1798 with the goal of controlling the Middle East and hurting British trade, and he was in communication with Tipu 82-99 of Mysore.
- A threat existed, but not a real one.

- Britain's navy was superior to France's, and a French fleet heading for India through the Arabian Sea would have been destroyed before arriving.
- The handout's note: the British had already burnt French ships in the Mediterranean once Napoleon landed in Egypt, leaving his army stranded with no way home.
- But the British State agreed anyway, because protecting India from European rivals was the primary goal of British foreign policy and it did not want to take any risks.
- Wellesley 98-05 also offered a middle path: the Subsidiary Alliance.
- It gave political domination without the cost, the administrative burden and the symbolism of full annexation.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Middle path = SA = CONTROL w/o annexation", with "w/o" before each item: without the cost, without the administrative burden and without the symbolism of full annexation.
- One-line definition: the Subsidiary Alliance is control without annexation.
- It suited a State that banned conquest because conquest was costly: the gains of conquest without its bill.

How Wellesley 98-05 got round the ban

- Pitt's India Act 1784:
  - No offensive war without the Court of Directors or the Board of Control
  - War only in defence
- 1798: Napoleon attacks Egypt and is in communication with Tipu 82-99
- Wellesley 98-05 overhypes the threat of a Napoleon and Tipu 82-99 alliance
- The British State agrees anyway:
  - Protecting India from European rivals is its primary foreign-policy goal
  - It will not take risks
- Middle path:
  - The Subsidiary Alliance
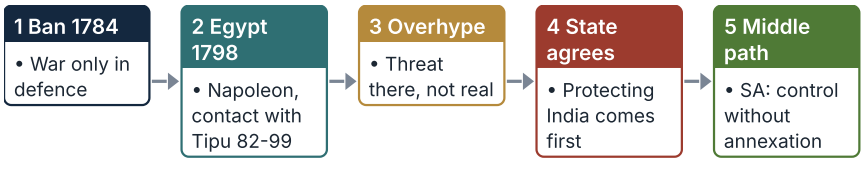
  - Control without annexation

HOW WELLESLEY 98-05 GOT ROUND THE BAN



HANDOUT ALERT

Prelims 2018 and Prelims 2021: option (b) was a TRUE statement: "Napoleonic danger was a feature of the SA." The danger was not real (less chance of a Napoleonic attack on India), but the danger was there (a chance existed). Do not mark it false.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1999: "At a time when empires in Europe were crumbling before the might of Napoleon, which one of the following Governors General kept the British flag flying high in India?" Options: (a) Warren Hastings 73-85, (b) Lord Cornwallis 86-93, (c) Lord Wellesley 98-05 (correct), (d) Lord Hastings.
- The trap: two different Governors General share the surname Hastings.
- Warren Hastings 73-85 is the pre-Napoleon era: wrong.
- Francis Hastings 13-23 (also called Lord Hastings) is the post-Napoleon era: wrong.
- Why (c): the tenure of Wellesley 98-05 (1798–1805) overlaps with Napoleon's offensive phase (1796–1812).
- Students sometimes pick (d) Lord Hastings because the name sounds Napoleon-era. It is NOT.

3 · Two roots of the SA: Dupleix 42-54 and ToA 1765

STORY LINK

Because the Subsidiary Alliance was not invented in 1798, ask who used the template first. Ask: French or British, 1751 or 1765, and what did Wellesley 98-05 add?

- The Policy of Subsidiary Alliance did not appear from nowhere.
- It has two roots: one French and one British.

Feature	French root: Dupleix 42-54 at Hyderabad, 1751	British root: Clive 57-67's ToA 1765 at Awadh
Who	Dupleix 42-54, as Governor General of French Establishments in India (GG of the French EIC)	Robert Clive 57-67
What he set up	The first mini or proto-form of the Subsidiary Alliance, at Hyderabad in 1751	The mini Subsidiary Alliance planted at Awadh via the Treaty of Allahabad (1765)
The occasion	Salabat Jung 51-62 became Nizam of Hyderabad with French backing	The Treaty of Allahabad (1765) with Awadh

Feature	French root: Dupleix 42-54 at Hyderabad, 1751	British root: Clive 57-67's ToA 1765 at Awadh
The army	A French force under Bussy was permanently stationed	An EIC army in Awadh
Who paid	Paid out in the form of Northern Sarkars revenues (and control)	Paid by subsidy from Awadh
The ruler's own army	Not stated in the handout	Size of the Nawab's controlled army reduced (not disbanded)
The man at court	A foreign adviser at court who would not just advise but establish indirect rule	A British Resident stationed

TWO ROOTS, THEN WELLESLEY 98-05'S POLICY

- Dupleix 42-54 had discovered the template: an external army at the Indian State's cost, with a foreign adviser at court who would not just advise but establish indirect rule.
- Clive 57-67's mini SA at Awadh was the British version, very close to the French template that Dupleix 42-54 had pioneered.

3.1 Wellesley 98-05's step: from a device to a policy

- Wellesley 98-05 took the next step. He formalised the relationship in a written treaty, took over the Indian State's Foreign Policy explicitly, and disbanded its army.
- The Subsidiary Alliance was NOT a Wellesley 98-05 invention.
- BUT the Policy of Subsidiary Alliance was initiated by him.
- Why "policy": a policy means a pre-meditated, formalised plan of action with a pre-decided intent, which is reflected in a series of events executed in line with that policy.
- Wellesley 98-05 formalised the SA into a policy, added the takeover of Foreign Policy and the disbanding of the Indian State's army, and implemented this policy State by State across India.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Invention versus policy. The idea is older: Dupleix 42-54 (Hyderabad, 1751) and Clive 57-67 (Awadh, ToA 1765).
- The policy is Wellesley 98-05's: a written treaty, Foreign Policy taken over, the army disbanded, applied State by State.
- If a statement says "Wellesley 98-05 invented the Subsidiary Alliance", it is wrong
- If it says he "initiated the Policy of Subsidiary Alliance", it is right

From proto-SA to the full Policy of Subsidiary Alliance

- 1751, Hyderabad (Dupleix 42-54):
  - French force under Bussy stationed, paid from the Northern Sarkars
  - A foreign adviser at court
- 1765, Awadh (Clive 57-67, ToA 1765)
- EIC army paid by Awadh's subsidy, Nawab's army reduced, British Resident stationed
- Wellesley 98-05: written treaty, Foreign Policy taken over explicitly, the State's army disbanded
- A policy, not a one-off: implemented State by State across India

4 · The model treaty of the Subsidiary Alliance and its legal logic

STORY LINK

Because the idea became a policy, the treaty was written down. Ask: what did the EIC get (five), what did the ruler get (two), and why did Foreign Policy matter?

- The standard terms of any Subsidiary Alliance fell into two groups, though the actual terms varied a little from State to State, depending on context.

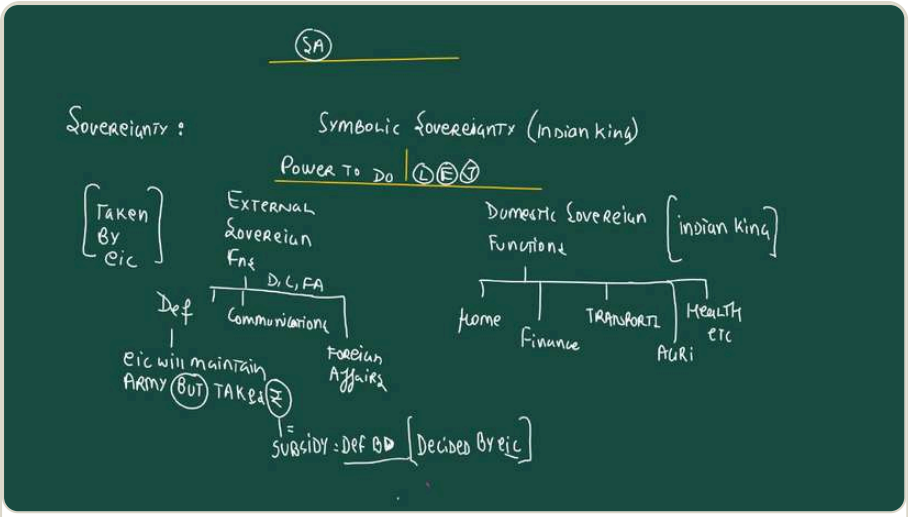
4.0 The teacher's board: how the SA splits sovereignty



How the SA splits sovereignty Lecture 14 slide 40

Part of sovereignty	What it contains	Who holds it under the SA
Symbolic Sovereignty	The throne and the title	The Indian king
External Sovereign Functions: D, C, FA	Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs	Taken by the EIC
Domestic Sovereign Functions	Home, Finance, Transport, Agri, Health etc.	The Indian king

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Sovereignty splits into Symbolic Sovereignty (who is called king) and the "power to do" (circled L, E, J; not expanded on the board).
- The power to do is cut in two.
- External Sovereign Functions (D, C, FA: Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs) are "[Taken by EIC]".
- Domestic Sovereign Functions (Home, Finance, Transport, Agri, Health etc.) stay with the "[Indian king]".
- Heart of the SA, under Def: "EIC will maintain the Army BUT TAKES money = SUBSIDY: Def BD [Decided by EIC]." The subsidy is the Indian State's defence budget (Def BD), but its size is decided by the EIC, not by the ruler who pays it.

Symbolic Sovereignty, Nizamat and Diwani Lecture 14 slide 41

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The same split in Mughal vocabulary. Diwani = civil administration plus Finance.
- Nizamat (minus Military) = Criminal Jurisdiction.
- Summary line:
  - "Simple: MILITARY and Foreign Policy with the EIC
  - The rest of Nizamat, and Diwani, and Symbolic Sovereignty with the Indian King." Hence the handout's non-interference promise in "succession, Diwani, Nizamat (minus military)".

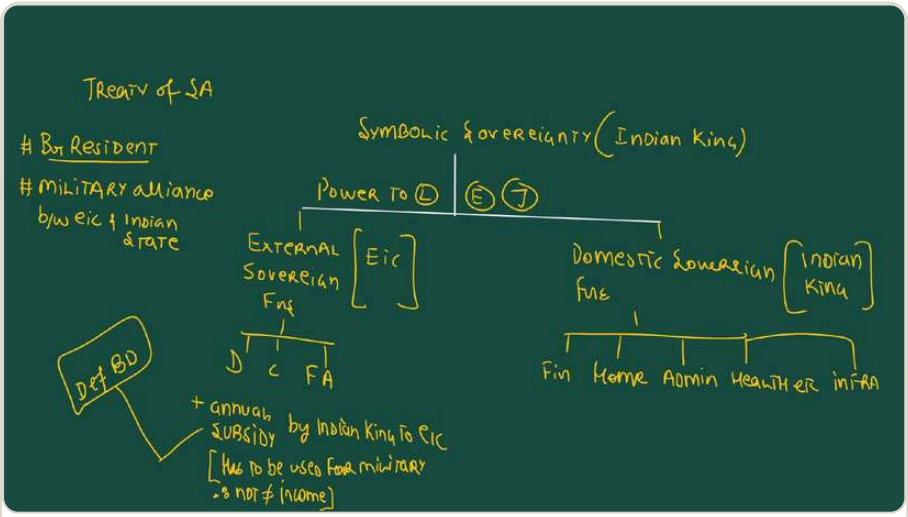
4.0b The same board, redrawn at the start of Lecture 15 (Treaty of SA)



Treaty of SA: the sovereignty board redrawn Lecture 15 slide 1

Part of sovereignty (L15 slide 1)	Holder	Branches the teacher writes
Symbolic Sovereignty	The Indian king	The title and throne

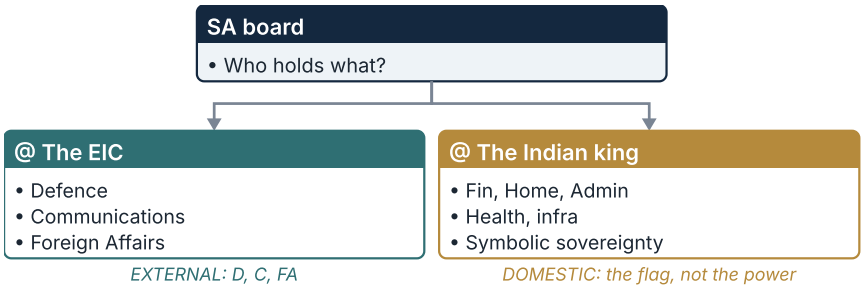
Part of sovereignty (L15 slide 1)	Holder	Branches the teacher writes
External Sovereign Functions	The EIC	D (Defence), C (Communications), FA (Foreign Affairs)
Domestic Sovereign Functions	The Indian king	Fin (Finance), Home, Admin, Health etc, infra

SOVEREIGNTY UNDER THE SA: WHO HOLDS WHAT



TEACHER'S BOARD

- The sovereignty board redrawn so that the model treaty can be revised in one picture.
- Left list: the first two of the five EIC terms: "Br Resident" and "Military alliance between the EIC and the Indian State".
- The "Def BD" (defence budget) box carries the next two: the Indian king pays an annual subsidy that "has to be used for military", so it is not income for the Company.
- Hence option (c) "secure a fixed income for the Company" is false in Prelims 2018 and 2021 (Section 8).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Two small differences from the earlier board.
- (1) The domestic list reads Fin, Home, Admin, Health etc, infra here, against Home, Finance, Transport, Agri, Health etc earlier.
- Same idea (domestic functions stay with the king)
- Learn the idea, not the list
- (2) The circled L, E, J after "Power to" are not expanded on either board
- Legislature, Executive, Judiciary is a natural guess but not written:.
- The symbol before "income" in the bottom note is also slightly unclear
- The sense is "used for military, so not income"

4.1 What the EIC got (5 terms)

MNEMONIC · THE 5 TERMS THE EIC GOT

Rajas Are Disarmed, Squeezed, Finished

- R British Resident stationed at the ruler's court, ruler a puppet
- A formal military Alliance between the EIC and the State
- D the State's army Disbanded, replaced by an EIC army
- S annual Subsidy paid to fund that army
- F Foreign Policy taken over by the EIC

Order kept: the five terms in the table's 1 to 5 order.

#	Term	Fine print from the handout
	subsidy to fund this EIC army	5th point, this ownership of the Indian State was lost
5	The EIC took over the Indian State's Foreign Policy	Decisions on war and peace, diplomacy, the defence budget and foreign trade. The GG's consent was needed before any European could be stationed at the court. The ruler had to consult the GG before negotiating with any other Indian State or foreign power. The subsidy, that is, the defence budget of the Indian State, was decided by the EIC

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Reasoning on the five terms. Term 1: "(1) Puppet Nawab (2) Br Resident" lead to "(3) CONTROL" = "promise in SA TREATY".
- The three elements of indirect rule are a puppet ruler, a Resident, and control through the Resident
- The SA treaty openly had the first two, while the third (control) was promised away on paper by the non-interference clause
- Term 2: "So the MILITARY maintained for the Indian State can be used FOR Br India as well": an alliance cuts both ways.
- Term 4: "= Def BD": the subsidy is the State's defence budget.
- Term 5:
  - "The money will GO TO the Indian State BUT the Decisions are the EIC's": the State keeps earning and paying
  - The EIC decides

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's note: the annual subsidy money was NOT surplus income that the EIC could use for anything.
- The subsidy was to be spent only for maintaining the army.
- The slide adds: the subsidy was earmarked for that army, but the EIC commanded it, so operational control was fully with the EIC.

4.2 What the Indian ruler got (2 terms)

Model treaty: what the Indian ruler got (2 terms) Lecture 14 slide 43

#	Term
1	EIC protection against neighbours and domestic threats
2	A formal promise of non-interference in internal affairs: succession, Diwani, Nizamat (minus military)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The imbalance. The ruler gets 2 promises
- The EIC takes 5 operational levers.
- The non-interference promise was routinely broken via the Resident: "creeping PoIR through the back door".
- Same sloping picture: EIC on top, Indian State below.
- Compare "DUAL GOVT (1765-72) in Bengal":
    - "From 1772 everything in Bengal with the EIC [symbolically the Nawabs continued into the 19th century]." In both cases an Indian ruler keeps the name and the responsibility while the Company holds real power
    - In Bengal the split ended in 1772, and the SA sets up a similar split State after State

4.3 Why the EIC took Foreign Policy: the legal logic

The legal logic of Term 5

- The EIC maintains the army using the Indian State's own subsidy money
- Loophole: one could argue that legal ownership, and the right to deploy that army, still belong to the Indian ruler
- The EIC takes Foreign Policy: the decision of war and peace
- Loophole closed: the right to deploy the army now legally rests with the EIC
- There is a legal logic to why the EIC specifically demanded Foreign Policy.
- The EIC maintained the army using the Indian State's own subsidy money.

- One could therefore argue that legal ownership, and the right to deploy that army, still belonged to the Indian ruler.
- The EIC closed this loophole by taking Foreign Policy.
- The decision of war and peace, and therefore the right to deploy the army, now legally rested with the EIC.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Why ToA 1765 was only a "mini" Subsidiary Alliance: an EIC army was stationed there at Awadh's expense, BUT Awadh's own army was not disbanded and Foreign Policy was not taken over.
- The proper SA (the full package) came only in 1801.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The formula: PoSA = PoIR (informally) + PoRF + EIC Military replacing the Indian State's Military + annual subsidy + loss of Foreign Policy.
- (PoSA = Policy of Subsidiary Alliance; PoIR = Policy of Indirect Rule; PoRF = Policy of Ring Fence, from Chapter 10.
- "Informally" because the treaty itself promised non-interference.)

4.4 The PYQ on SA features (Prelims 2018 and Prelims 2021)

HANDOUT ALERT

- UPSC asked the same question in both Prelims 2018 and Prelims 2021: "Which statement does NOT apply to the Subsidiary Alliance?" The four options tested the features of the SA.
- The false option was (c) "Secure a fixed income for the Company." The SA's annual subsidy was earmarked for maintaining the EIC army stationed in the host State.
- It was NOT surplus income for the EIC.
- The other three options were true: to maintain a large standing army, to defend against Napoleonic danger, and to establish British paramountcy.

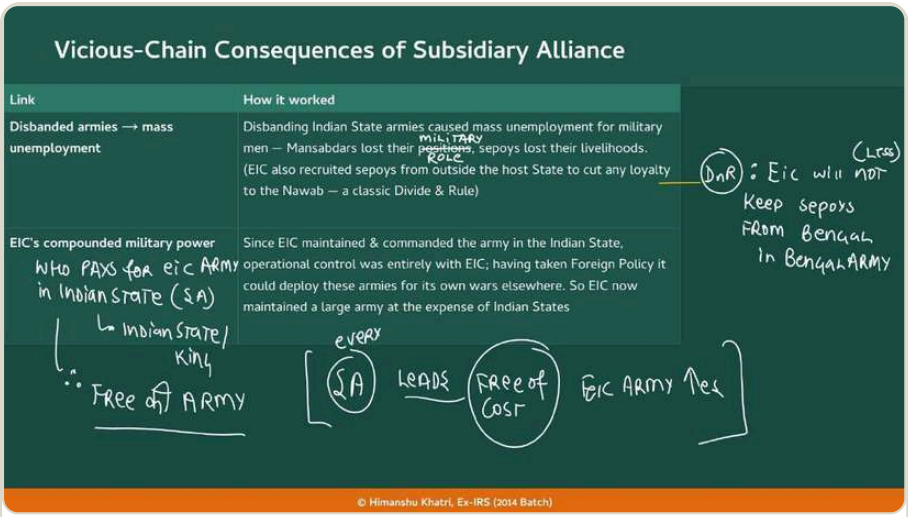
5 · The vicious chain: consequences of the Subsidiary Alliance for Indian States

STORY LINK

Because the EIC held the army and Foreign Policy, the chain of harm followed. Ask: at which link did the ruler lose his State?



Vicious chain, links 1 and 2: disbanded armies, the EIC's free army Lecture 14 slide 45

#	Link	How it worked
1	Disbanded armies, so mass unemployment	Disbanding Indian State armies caused mass unemployment for military men: Mansabdars lost their positions (the teacher corrects this to "military role"), sepoys lost their livelihoods
2	The EIC's compounded military power at the host State's expense	The EIC maintained and commanded the army in the Indian State, so operational control was entirely with the EIC. Having taken over Foreign Policy, it could deploy these armies for its own wars elsewhere. The EIC could now maintain a large army at the expense of Indian States
3	High and rising subsidy, so Drain of Wealth	Subsidy payments were high to begin with and the EIC gradually increased its demands. The same money could have been used by the ruler for his own State's development. Instead there was Drain of Wealth
4	Tax hikes, so unrest	To pay the ever-rising subsidy, rulers had to raise taxes. High taxes made rulers unpopular, fuelled peasant resentment and created conditions for unrest
5	Maladministration accusations, so grounds for annexation	The EIC then accused Indian rulers of maladministration. In reality the ruler had no real power left
6	Territory in lieu of cash	When the subsidy could not be paid in cash, the EIC simply took territory as payment
7	Permanent loss of alliance-forming capacity	By losing Foreign Policy and military control, Indian States permanently lost the ability to form alliances against the EIC

5.1 Links 1 and 2: unemployment and the EIC's free army

- Link 1. Disbanding Indian State armies caused mass unemployment for military men.
- Mansabdars lost their positions
- Sepoys lost their livelihoods.
- The handout's note: the EIC also recruited sepoys from outside the host State, to reduce any chance of loyalty to the Nawab in case he revolted: a classic Divide and Rule strategy.
- Link 2. Since the EIC maintained and commanded the army in the Indian State, operational control was entirely with the EIC.
- Since it had also taken over Foreign Policy, it could deploy these armies for its own wars elsewhere.
- Hence the EIC could now maintain a large army at the expense of Indian States.
- The handout's note: EIC Armies = the army of the Indian State maintained by the EIC using the Indian State's subsidy + the EIC's own army maintained from its own money.
- Both were available to the EIC for its own wars.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Teacher's correction. In "Mansabdars lost their positions", "positions" is struck out and "MILITARY ROLE" written above it. The handout prints "positions".
- Use: Mansabdars lost their military role.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Divide and Rule ("DnR"). Beside the note on recruiting outsiders: "DnR: the EIC will NOT (Less) keep sepoys from Bengal in the Bengal Army", i.e. few or no local men in the army of their own region
- A sepoy from outside has no loyalty to the local Nawab if he revolts. Who pays?
- "WHO PAYS for the EIC army in an Indian State (SA)?" "the Indian State / King", so a "FREE army" for the Company ("Free of ARMY").
- Conclusion: "[Every SA leads to a free-of-cost increase in the EIC army]".
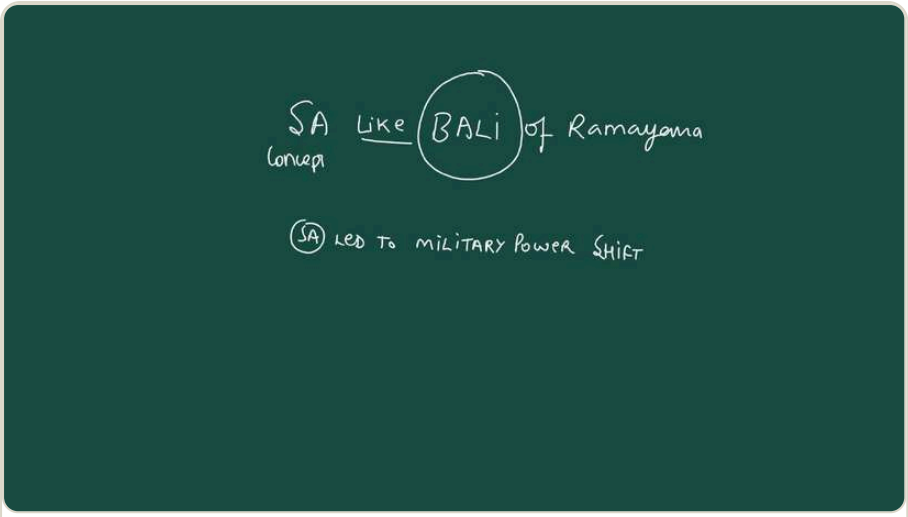
- Each treaty adds a paid-for army to the Company's strength without adding a rupee to its costs.



Bali analogy: SA led to military power shift Lecture 14 slide 46

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Bali analogy: "SA concept LIKE BALI of Ramayana" and "SA LED TO MILITARY POWER SHIFT." Under every SA the Indian State's military strength moves to the EIC: the State pays, its own army is disbanded, and the army it pays for fights for the Company.
- The ally grows weaker and the EIC stronger.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Only the analogy's name and conclusion are written ("like Bali of Ramayana", "military power shift").
- The story behind it was explained orally
- Check your class notebook before using it in an answer

5.2 Links 3 and 4: Drain of Wealth and tax hikes

- Link 3. Subsidy payments were high to begin with, and the EIC gradually increased its demands.
- The same money could have been used by the Indian ruler for his own State's development.
- Instead there was Drain of Wealth.
- Link 4. To pay the ever-rising subsidy, Indian rulers had to raise taxes.
- High taxes made rulers unpopular, fuelled peasant resentment and created conditions for unrest.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- After "for unrest": "Peasant Revolts". Chain: rising subsidy, higher taxes, peasant resentment, peasant revolts.
- Stressed: the cause ("rulers had to raise taxes") and the cost (the "same money could have funded" the "State development").

5.3 Links 5 and 6: maladministration and territory in lieu of cash

- Link 5. The EIC then accused Indian rulers of maladministration.
- In reality the ruler had no real power left.
- The British Resident had in many cases established Indirect Rule illegally, in direct breach of the treaty's own promise of non-interference.
- The ruler had no power, but all the responsibility.
- The most stark example was Nawab Wajid Ali Shah of Awadh: accused of maladministration, his State annexed in 1856.
- Link 6. When the subsidy could not be paid in cash, the EIC simply took territory as payment. In 1801, half of Awadh was annexed as permanent subsidy payment. In 1853, Hyderabad was made to give Berar.
- The handout's aside: the EIC can say "Thanks, Dupleix 42-54".
- He gave this idea when he took the Northern Sarkars from Hyderabad in 1751.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Under "Territory in lieu of cash": "Subsidy = TOOL of empire building." The subsidy was set high, kept rising, and on default the EIC took land: the subsidy itself turned an "alliance" into annexation.
- Two examples to memorise:
  - 1801, half of Awadh
  - 1853, Berar from Hyderabad.

5.4 Link 7 and the takeaway

- Link 7. By losing Foreign Policy and military control, Indian States permanently lost the ability to form alliances against the EIC.
- Hence the Subsidiary Alliance was, in effect, a sophisticated Divide and Rule instrument at the level of an entire subcontinent.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: the EIC via the SA got all military and diplomatic powers, with no responsibility of ruling and no burden of finances.
- The seven vicious-chain links explain why every single SA signatory ended up either annexed or permanently dependent.

The vicious chain in one line

- The State's army is disbanded: Mansabdars lose their military role, sepoys their livelihood
- The EIC's army grows free of cost and can be used for the EIC's own wars
- Subsidy high and rising: Drain of Wealth
- Taxes raised: rulers unpopular, peasant resentment, peasant revolts
- "Maladministration": the ruler has no power but all the responsibility (Awadh annexed 1856)

- Territory in lieu of cash: half of Awadh 1801, Berar 1853
- No alliances possible against the EIC: annexed or permanently dependent

MNEMONIC · THE VICIOUS CHAIN, LINK BY LINK

Unpaid Forces Drain Taxpayers; Misrule, Territory-grab, Loneliness

- U Unemployment: disbanded armies, Mansabdars lose their military role
- F Free army: the EIC army grows at the State's cost
- D Drain of Wealth: subsidy high and rising
- T Tax hikes: peasant resentment, peasant revolts
- M Maladministration charge: ruler has no power but all the responsibility
- T Territory in lieu of cash: half of Awadh 1801, Berar 1853
- L Loss of alliance-forming capacity: no alliances against the EIC

Order kept: the seven links in the table's order. The last word, Loneliness, is the State left with no allies.

6 · Which States signed, and under what circumstances

STORY LINK

Because the harm was slow, many rulers signed willingly or after a war. Ask: factionalism or war, and under which Governor General?

HANDOUT NOTE

- Sections 6 and 7 combine the handout with the board work on the five arguments, the signatories (corrected count ten), the annexations and the recall
- The PYQs follow in Section 8
- Where typed text disagrees with the board correction or the handout, an alert says which to use.

6.1 Why some rulers walked in willingly

- The SA was not forced on every signatory at sword-point.

- In several cases the Indian ruler walked in willingly, persuaded by five arguments:

MNEMONIC · WHY RULERS WALKED IN WILLINGLY

A I D E S

Rulers signed because they wanted AIDES: help against every danger they could name.

A Annexation avoided: the subsidy looked cheaper than annexation or a losing war

I Internal revolts: an EIC army inside the palace walls as insurance

D Dignity kept: title, court and ceremony preserved, the flag still flew

E External threats: Chauth raids, Mysore, Rohillas feared more than the distant British

S Succession disputes and neighbours: EIC help made conditional on signing (FACTIONALISM)

Order is free here, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

#	Argument	What it meant
1	Protection against internal revolts	A guaranteed EIC army inside the palace walls was attractive insurance against rival claimants or mutinous nobles
2	Protection against external threats	Small States feared Maratha Chauth raids, Mysorean expansion or Rohilla incursions far more than the distant British
3	Better than annexation	The subsidy was, on paper, cheaper than annexation or a losing war against the EIC
4	Preservation of royal dignity	The ruler's title, court and ceremonial status were formally preserved. The flag of sovereignty flew, even after its substance had been handed over
5	For winning succession disputes and for protection from neighbours	In many cases rulers sought EIC help in succession disputes and for protection from other Indian States. The EIC used this as an opportunity by making military help conditional upon the Indian ruler signing the SA

- Under the fifth argument, "Winning succession disputes": "FACTIONALISM".
- Rulers did not sign only out of fear of outsiders: groups inside the ruling family or court fought over the throne or the regency, and the side that wanted the EIC's help had to sign the SA to get it.
- The word returns for Nagpur (regency) and the five-way Maratha tag (6.2).
- The first four arguments carry no board addition.

Signatories 1798-1818: Hyderabad and Mysore Lecture 15 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Title corrected from "Nine" to "10" on every signatory slide.
- Counting rule:
  - TEN entries, with Jats-Rajputs-Bundelas as no. 7 (a group entry)
  - See the alert below

HANDOUT ALERT

- Count conflict:
  - Typed slides and handout say "Nine"
  - The board says TEN.
- The handout heading reads "The Nine Signatories" and its takeaway "9 SAs in 20 years
- The first seven under Wellesley 98-05"
- The board corrects these to 10 and 8, and the list has ten bullets
- Use:
  - Ten SAs
  - The first eight (Hyderabad to Travancore, counting Jats-Rajputs-Bundelas as no. 7) under Wellesley 98-05
  - The last two (Bhonsle, Holkar) under Francis Hastings 13-23.
- Only if a question counts just the named States is the number nine.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Under the Hyderabad and Mysore rows:
  - "Had India had one common centre, i.e. one State ruling all (T) of Indian, then this would not have happened." The circled T is not expanded (a single State over all the territory)
  - Same lesson as 1.3: a fragmented polity is why India was colonised.
- Bracket tagged (IR) (his tag for an international-relations lesson): "enemy/rival should not be ONE".
- Not spelt out
- Reading: the lesson is about facing a united rival: the Indian States were many, the EIC was one
- [Reading, not written: check your notebook.]

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Against the Mysore row, a second (IR) bracket: "Don't lose WARS." Mysore is the clearest case: the 4th Anglo-Mysore War was lost, Tipu 82-99 was killed at Seringapatam (1799), and the State was forced into an SA with the Wodeyars restored on a subsidiary throne.
- A war lost is an SA signed.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: 10 SAs in 20 years, 1798 to 1818.
- The first eight (Hyderabad to Travancore) were signed under Wellesley 98-05
- The last two under Francis Hastings 13-23. First: Hyderabad (1798).
- Last under Wellesley 98-05: Travancore (1805). Last of all: Holkar (1818).

Signatories takeaway: corrected count and the empire builders Lecture 15 slide 8

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Corrections: "9" becomes "10", "seven" becomes "8".
- "Empire builders" in time order: Clive 57-67, Wellesley 98-05, F.
- Hastings 13-23, Dalhousie 48-56, grouped by century:
  - Clive 57-67 and Wellesley 98-05 = "18th c"
  - F.
- Hastings 13-23 and Dalhousie 48-56 = "19th c" (Wellesley 98-05 starts in 1798, so he sits with the 18th century though his term runs to 1805).
- The circled "#" before Wellesley 98-05 and F.
- Hastings 13-23 is not explained
- Likely reason: these two are the Governors General under whom the ten SAs were signed (8 and 2).
- [Reading, not written: check your notebook.] Dalhousie 48-56 is the subject of Chapter 14.

HANDOUT NOTE

- On the count. The handout's list has ten bullets, and this table numbers all ten.
- The Jats, Rajputs and Bundelas (1803-05) are one group entry (several rulers under one bullet)
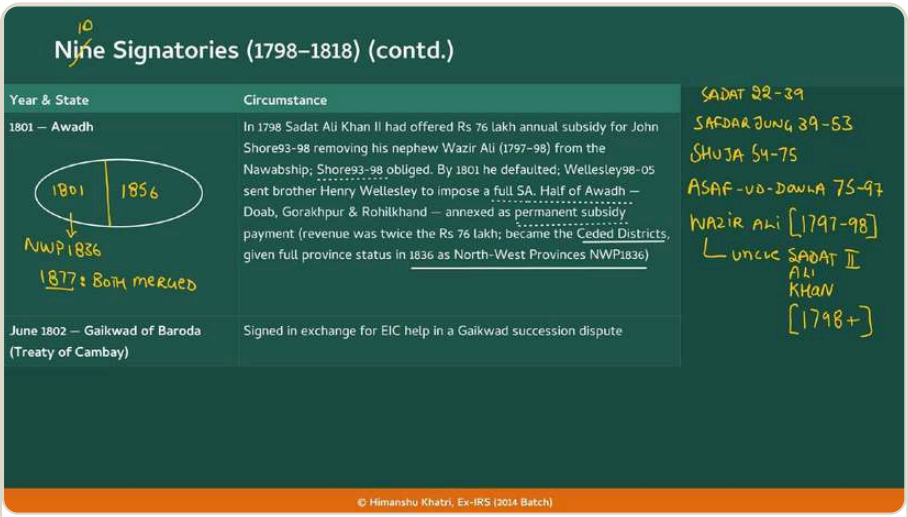
- If a question counts only the named States, the number is nine.
- Read the question for which count it wants.



Signatories: Awadh (1801 and 1856) and the Gaikwad of Baroda Lecture 15 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Awadh as an oval cut in two.
- Left half "1801" = the half annexed in 1801 (the Doab, Gorakhpur and Rohilkhand), leading to "NWP 1836", the full province status given to the Ceded Districts.
- Right half "1856" = the rest of Awadh, annexed in 1856 (Wajid Ali Shah, maladministration; see 5.3).
- "1877: Both merged" (1877 stressed): the NWP territories annexed in 1801 and Awadh annexed in 1856 were merged in 1877.
- Handout phrases to remember: "Shore 93-98 obliged" (the favour that started the story), "permanent subsidy" and "Ceded Districts".

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Nawab list in the margin: Sadat 22-39, Safdar Jung 39-53, Shuja 54-75, Asaf-ud-Dowla 75-97, Wazir Ali [1797-98], then "uncle Sadat II Ali Khan [1798+]".
- The SA was bought for the uncle who replaced his nephew Wazir Ali, and the same uncle defaulted by 1801.

HANDOUT ALERT

- "Whole" and "half" Awadh are the same story, not a conflict.
- "Awadh: 01 half, 56 whole" (5.3): the first half went in 1801, the rest in 1856, as the oval shows.
- Do not write "Awadh annexed in 1801" for the whole State
- 1801 = half (Ceded Districts), 1856 = the remainder.

Awadh, 1798 to 1801, step by step:

How Awadh came under the full Subsidiary Alliance

- 1798:
  - Sadat Ali Khan II offers the EIC Rs 76 lakh as annual subsidy
  - In exchange John Shore 93-98 is to remove his nephew Wazir Ali (1797-98) from the Nawabship
- Shore 93-98 obliges
- By 1801 Sadat Ali Khan II defaults
- Wellesley 98-05 sends his brother Henry Wellesley to impose a full Subsidiary Alliance
- Half of Awadh annexed as permanent subsidy payment: the Doab, Gorakhpur and Rohilkhand
- 1801, Awadh. In 1798, Sadat Ali Khan II had offered the EIC Rs 76 lakh as annual subsidy in exchange for John Shore 93-98 removing his nephew Wazir Ali (1797-98) from the Nawabship. Shore 93-98 obliged.

- By 1801, Sadat Ali Khan II defaulted.
- Wellesley 98-05 sent his brother Henry Wellesley to impose a full Subsidiary Alliance.
- Half of Awadh (the Doab, Gorakhpur and Rohilkhand) was annexed as permanent subsidy payment.
- The handout's note: this was unfair. The revenue from this territory was twice the Rs 76 lakh annual subsidy it was meant to cover.
- These territories became the Ceded Districts, and in 1836 were given full province status as the North-West Provinces (NWP 1836) of British India.

NUMBER CARD · AWADH IN NUMBERS

7 6 · 2 x · 0 1 · 5 6 · 7 7

Half went in 1801, the rest in 1856, and 1877 joined the halves.

Rs 76 lakh annual subsidy Sadat Ali Khan II offered in 1798

2x revenue of the annexed territory against that subsidy

1801 half of Awadh annexed: the Doab, Gorakhpur, Rohilkhand

1836 the Ceded Districts get full province status as NWP

1856 the rest of Awadh annexed (Wajid Ali Shah)

1877 the two halves merged (teacher's ink)

- Recall on Rohilkhand: most of Rohilkhand was annexed by Awadh with EIC help in 1774.
- The EIC had helped because of the ToA 1765 military alliance.
- The remaining small part of Rohilkhand became the autonomous State of Rampur, but under Awadh legally, and from 1801 under the EIC legally.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three small additions. (1) "Treaty of Bassein/Vasai" is stressed: know both names. (2) Scindia: "or 1804".
- Slide and handout print 1803
- The date may also be given as 1804.
- (3) "2nd A-Ma" in the Jats, Rajputs and Bundelas row: they were forced to sign during the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Scindia's date: 1803 (handout and slide) or 1804 (board).
- Both are inside the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05).
- Learn 1803 as the base date and know that 1804 is also acceptable.
- If an exam option shows only one of them, check the other options before deciding
- The safe anchor is "during the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War".

The Peshwa and the Treaty of Bassein, 1802:

From Bassein to the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War

- Yashwantrao Holkar defeats Peshwa Bajirao II 96-18
- He was avenging his brother's death
- Bajirao II 96-18 flees
- December 1802, Treaty of Bassein (Vasai): he signs the SA to regain the Peshwaship with EIC support
- Scindia and Bhonsle read this as a Peshwa selling the Confederacy to the British
- The 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803–05) follows
- December 1802, Peshwa Bajirao II 96-18. He had been defeated by Yashwantrao Holkar (avenging his brother's death).
- He fled, and signed the Treaty of Bassein (1802) to regain the Peshwaship with EIC support.
- The handout's note: Scindia and Bhonsle read this as a Peshwa selling the Confederacy to the British, and the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803–05) followed.
- The full treatment of Bassein 1802 and the war is in the Anglo-Maratha Wars chapter (Chapter 13).
- Recall: the Marathas captured Bassein from the Portuguese via the Treaty of Bassein (1739), and brought it under Peshwa control along with Salsette.
- So there are two Treaties of Bassein: 1739 (Marathas and the Portuguese) and 1802 (Peshwa and the EIC).
- 1816, Bhonsle of Nagpur. After defeat in the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05) the Bhonsles had resisted signing a full Subsidiary Alliance for over a decade.
- In 1816 Appa Sahib finally signed, using EIC backing to win the faction fight over who would be regent of the Bhonsle of Nagpur.
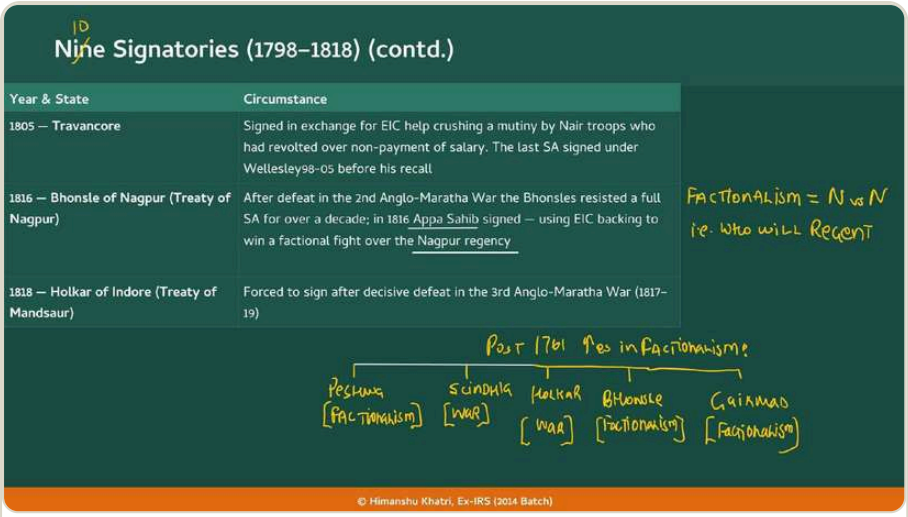
- (The story belongs to the Anglo-Maratha Wars chapter, Chapter 13.)



Signatories: Travancore 1805, Bhonsle 1816, Holkar 1818 Lecture 15 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

Factionalism defined at the Bhonsle entry (Appa Sahib, Nagpur regency): "FACTIONALISM = N vs N, i.e. who will Regent." Factionalism = rival groups fighting over who rules, here over the regency of Nagpur.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Five-way tree: each Maratha power after 1761.
- Heading "Post 1761 ... in Factionalism?".
- Tags:
  - Peshwa = FACTIONALISM
  - Scindia = WAR
  - Holkar = WAR
  - Bhonsle = factionalism
  - Gaikwad = factionalism. Matched to the signatories:

Maratha power	Teacher's tag	The signatory entry that proves it
Peshwa (Bajirao II 96-18)	Factionalism	Defeated by Yashwantrao Holkar, fled and signed Bassein (Dec 1802) to regain the Peshwaship
Scindia (Gwalior)	War	Forced to sign during the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05)

Gaikwad (Baroda)	Factionalism	Signed for EIC help in a Gaikwad succession dispute: Cambay, June 1802

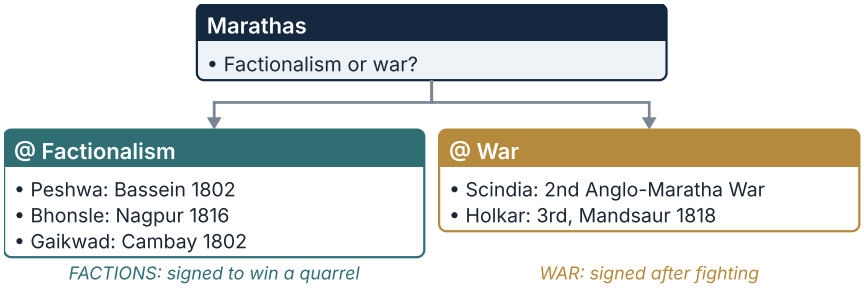
MARATHA POWERS AFTER 1761: FACTIONALISM OR WAR



HANDOUT ALERT

- Two wordings to notice in the handout.
- (1) The date of the 4th Anglo-Mysore War: Section 1 and Section 6 print "4th Anglo-Mysore War (1798–99)", while Section 7 and the index of the next chapter print "4th Anglo-Mysore War 1799" (as does Chapter 7).
- The fall of Seringapatam and the death of Tipu 82-99 are 1799 in every version.
- (2) Seringapatam:
  - Section 1 calls it the "Siege of Seringapatam (1799)"
  - Section 6 calls it the "Battle of Seringapatam (1799)". It is the same event

7 · Direct annexations and the recall of Wellesley 98-05

STORY LINK

Because alliances were not enough, land was also taken, and wars again cost money. Ask: what did he annex, and why was he recalled?

- What territory did Wellesley 98-05 directly annex, and why was he eventually recalled?
- Beyond Subsidiary Alliances, Wellesley 98-05 also directly annexed territory:

When	Territory	Detail
1799	Mysore territory	Significant territory taken from Mysore after the 4th Anglo-Mysore War 1799
Early 1801	Half of Awadh (the Ceded Districts)	Annexed as permanent subsidy payment (the NWP 1836 territories, covered in section 6)
1801	Carnatic	Annexed on grounds of maladministration, six years after the death of Md Ali 52-95 (1752–1795), who had been the EIC's loyal ally since the 2nd Carnatic War 1749-54

When	Territory	Detail
1803–05	2nd Anglo-Maratha War: Bhonsle	Bhonsle of Nagpur lost significant territory, including Orissa (which Bhonsle had himself taken from Bengal in 1751)
1803–05	2nd Anglo-Maratha War: Scindia	Scindia lost territory in Gujarat and all territory north of the River Yamuna, including Delhi

Direct annexations and the recall of Wellesley 98-05 Lecture 15 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board notes row by row. Mysore 1799: "To MADRAS PRESIDENCY": the territory taken after the 4th Anglo-Mysore War 1799 went to the EIC's Madras Presidency.
- Half of Awadh, early 1801: "SUBSIDY as TOOL or empire BUILDING": the subsidy was the tool through which an alliance became territory (as in 5.3).
- Carnatic 1801: "(not on RECORD REASON)" ...
- "BUT an imp context":
  - The reason on record is maladministration
  - the important context is "the Nawab HAD taken MANY loans from the EIC and its officers" = "Financial maladmin", i.e. financial mismanagement and debt to the Company and its officers. 2nd Anglo-Maratha War 1803-05: five things to remember: Bhonsle, Orissa, Scindia, Gujarat, and "all territory north of the River Yamuna, including Delhi".
- Beside the Delhi line:
  - "[Now PoIR in Delhi]" and "[1771 - 1803]"
  - Neither is explained and "PoIR" is hard to read: for the spoken reason
- Certain: Scindia lost Delhi and everything north of the Yamuna in 1803-05.

Annexation	Reason on record	Teacher's added context
Mysore territory 1799	4th Anglo-Mysore War 1799	Went to the Madras Presidency

Annexation	Reason on record	Teacher's added context
Half of Awadh 1801	Permanent subsidy payment (default)	Subsidy as tool of empire building
Carnatic 1801	Maladministration, six years after Md Ali 52-95 died	Not the real record reason: the Nawab's many loans from the EIC and its officers (financial maladministration)
Orissa, Gujarat, Delhi side 1803-05	2nd Anglo-Maratha War	"Now PolR in Delhi"; "[1771 - 1803]" (unclear)

- Carnatic: use "maladministration" as the recorded ground, and add the teacher's context.
- The handout gives only "annexed on grounds of maladministration".
- The teacher's two additions ("not on record reason", "Nawab had taken many loans from the EIC and its officers") do not contradict it
- They explain what the word covered
- In a Mains answer write: annexed on the ground of maladministration, in the background of the Nawab's heavy debts to the Company and its officers.

- Wellesley 98-05 was eventually recalled to London due to high war expenditure.
- Empire building was profitable only if wars were short and cheap. His were neither.

Why Wellesley 98-05 was recalled: wars are expensive for both Lecture 15 slide 10

The teacher's board: why even a winning war got Wellesley 98-05 recalled

- GBF 1770
- 1772 bankruptcy of the EIC
- Loan from the British State, with supervision through the Regulating Act 1773
- BUT STILL wars (sad face): the EIC keeps fighting
- Pitt's India Act 1784 bans offensive war

- BUT STILL wars (circled): under Wellesley 98-05 the 4th Anglo-Mysore War 1799 and the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War 1803-05
- Wars are expensive for both, winner and loser: high war expenditure, so he is recalled

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The board repeats the money chain of 2.1 (GBF 1770, bankruptcy 1772, loan from the British State, Regulating Act 1773, Pitt's India Act 1784) with the punch line "BUT STILL wars", twice.
- Under Wellesley 98-05 the two wars that cost him his post: 4th A-My 1799 and 2nd A-Ma 1803-05.
- Box: "Wars are expensive for both" (Winner and Loser): even the winner pays, so a Governor General who wins two big wars can still be recalled for the bill.
- (IR) note: "Wars HURT the economy of both sides."

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The chapter comes full circle on money.
- High war expenditure produced the ban on conquest in Pitt's India Act 1784.
- Wellesley 98-05 got round the ban with the Napoleon threat and the Subsidiary Alliance.
- And high war expenditure is what finally got Wellesley 98-05 recalled.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout page for this chapter ends with an index of the next chapter (Mysore's four wars, Dhondia Wagh, Tipu 82-99's religious policy, the Carnatic annexed in 1801, Travancore and Velu Thampi Dalawa).
- That material belongs to Chapter 12, not here.

8 · The PYQ slides of Lecture 15

STORY LINK

Last scene: use the chapter to answer five PYQs. Ask: which statement is NOT a feature of the SA, and who founded Fort William College?

HANDOUT NOTE

- Five PYQs close Chapter 11, each shown as question, answer and (for three of them) a written explanation.
- The first PYQ slide is a typed alert card (the Hastings-Hastings trap) repeating the handout alert in 2.3.
- The Chapter 12 title slide follows the last PYQ and is not in this chapter.
- Board marks appear only on PYQ 1, PYQ 2 and the PYQ 4 question
- The rest are typed answers and explanations
- Each answer was checked against the question bank (bank/ch11.json).

8.1 PYQ 1: Prelims 1999, the Governor General who kept the flag flying

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Solving Prelims 1999. (1) Napoleon = "1799-1815".
- (2) Codes beside each option, sorted by century:
  - (a) Warren Hastings 73-85 and (b) Cornwallis 86-93 = "1700s"
  - (c) Wellesley 98-05 and (d) Hastings 13-23 = "1800s", with "1798" over the second bracket as Wellesley 98-05 starts in 1798
- (3) "high" stressed, and "SA" over "My" and "Ma"
- Not spelt out
- Reading: keeping the flag high meant expanding, and Wellesley 98-05's expansion ran through the Subsidiary Alliance and dealings with Mysore (My) and the Marathas (Ma).
- [Reading, not written: check your notebook.] (4) Answer (c).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Two differences from the handout
- The handout answer still wins.
- (1) Napoleon's dates:
  - The board says 1799-1815
  - The handout says Wellesley 98-05's tenure overlaps Napoleon's offensive phase (1796-1812).
- Both frame the same era and give (c).
- Learn 1796-1812 (handout) if a question gives dates.
- (2) The code beside (d) reads "13-93", a slip
- Francis Hastings 13-23 is right (2.3). Use 13-23.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Answer:
  - (c) Lord Wellesley 98-05. Explanation: (a) wrong, Warren Hastings 73-85 was Governor General 1773-85, well before the Napoleonic era
  - (b) wrong, Cornwallis 86-93 was "a quiet phase, not a Napoleonic-era expansionist"
  - (d) wrong, Francis Hastings 13-23 fought after Napoleon's defeat in 1815.
- Bank check:
  - The bank's answer key reads (a), which is a key error (its own explanation says (c))
  - Use (c).

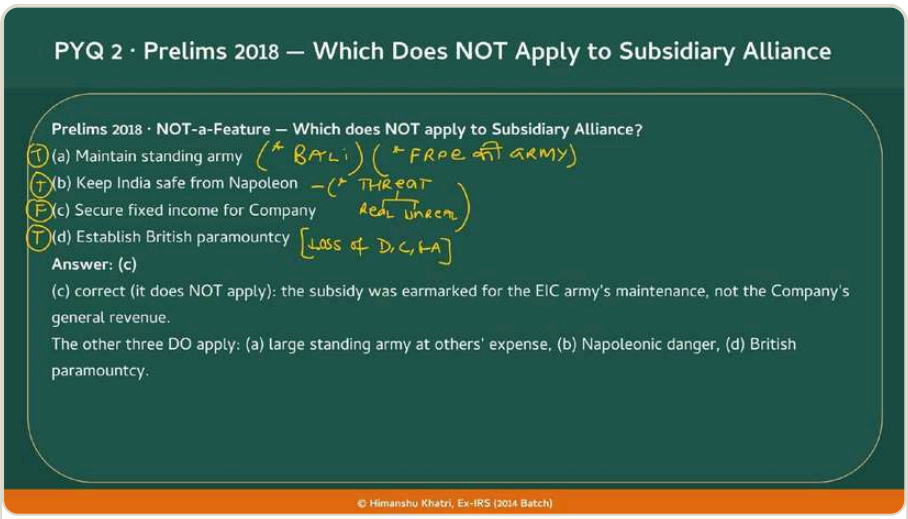
8.2 PYQ 2 and PYQ 3: "Which does NOT apply to the Subsidiary Alliance" (Prelims 2018, Prelims 2021; slides 15 to 18)

PYQ 1, Prelims 1999: the Governor General who kept the flag flying Lecture 15 slide 12



PYQ 2, Prelims 2018: which does NOT apply to the SA (answer) Lecture 15 slide 16

Option (2018 wording)	Teacher's mark	His margin tag	What it points back to
(a) Maintain standing army	T	"BALI", "FREE of ARMY"	Bali analogy and the free army at the State's cost (5.1)
(b) Keep India safe from Napoleon	T	"THREAT", split REAL or UNREAL	The threat was there but not real (2.3)
(c) Secure fixed income for Company	F	none	Subsidy is the Def BD, earmarked for the army, not income (4.0b, 4.4)
(d) Establish British paramountcy	T	"LOSS of D, C, FA"; on slide 15 "[SUPREMACY]"	Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs lost to the EIC (4.0): paramountcy = supremacy

TEACHER'S BOARD

- T-T-F-T drill:
  - T on (a), (b) and (d), F on (c), each true option with a recall tag: (a) "BALI" and "FREE of ARMY" (the Indian State pays for an EIC army: every SA adds a free army and shifts military power)
  - (b) "THREAT" split into REAL and UNREAL (the Napoleonic danger was a feature of the SA though not a real, high-chance one)
  - (d) "LOSS of D, C, FA" (the State loses Defence, Communications and Foreign Affairs, which is what paramountcy means; paramountcy glossed as "SUPREMACY")
- The false option is the one that says the Company gets income.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Answer:
  - (c) in both years. Prelims 2018 and Prelims 2021 are the same four-option set
  - The 2021 wording is slightly more polished ("to maintain a large standing army at others' expense"; "to keep India safe from Napoleonic danger"; "to establish British paramountcy over the Indian states")
- Explanation: "Subsidy is not surplus income", and the other three options DO apply by the same reasoning as 2018.
- Bank check: both entries are keyed (c) and match.

8.3 PYQ 4: Prelims 2018, institution and founder pairs

PYQ 4, Prelims 2018: institution and founder pairs Lecture 15 slide 19

Pair	Teacher 's mark	Why
1. Sanskrit College at Banaras, William Jones	F	Founded by Jonathan Duncan (1791) (slide 21); not in this chapter's handout
2. Calcutta Madarsa, Warren Hastings 73-85	(no mark; true)	The tick sits on (b) Only 2
3. Fort William College, Arthur Wellesley	F	Founded by Richard Wellesley 98-05, in 1800; Arthur was the Royal Army brother (1.1)

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Answer: (b) Only 2. Bank check: keyed (b) and matches.
- The trap is the swap of Richard for Arthur: the question tests whether you know the founder by his full name, hence "Richard" on the title in Section 0.

8.4 PYQ 5: Prelims 2020, why Wellesley 98-05 established Fort William College

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Answer: (d). Explanation: the purpose was administrative: Wellesley 98-05 wanted his EIC officers linguistically and legally competent before they began ruling Indian districts.
- (a) wrong:
  - The Board did not ask
  - It was Wellesley 98-05's own initiative.
- (b) wrong: reviving oriental learning was the Asiatic Society's mandate (William Jones from 1784), not this College's.
- (c) wrong:
  - William Carey joined later as a linguist-teacher
  - Employment for him was not the founding purpose
- Bank check:
  - The Prelims 2020 entry is keyed (d) and matches
  - The bank also holds a Prelims 2021 repeat of this question, also keyed (d), which is not shown on the class slides.

HANDOUT ALERT

- No conflict between slides and handout on any of the five answers.
- The slide answers, the handout alerts in Sections 1, 2.3 and 4.4, and the bank agree on (c), (c), (c), (b), (d) for Prelims 1999, 2018 (SA), 2021 (SA), 2018 (pairs) and 2020.
- The only mismatch is the bank's wrong key (a) on Prelims 1999 (see the Exam lens).

MODERN INDIAN HISTORY · CHAPTER 12

Anglo-Mysore Wars (1766-99) + Travancore + Carnatic

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 120-127 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 2001, 2004 (partial)

Mains PYQs: 'Why Indian States lost?' (150 or 250 words; the teacher's focus, no year)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- The four wars with years, result and treaty: 1st 1767-69 won by Mysore (Madras 1769); 2nd 1780-84 tie (Mangalore 1784); 3rd 1790-92 lost (Seringapatam 1792); 4th 1799 lost (Wodeyars restored under an SA)
- Prelims 2001: Tipu 82-99 sent delegations to France, Turkey and Egypt; Prelims 2004 (partial): Tipu 82-99 died in the 4th war (1799) at Seringapatam, not the 3rd, so only statement 3 is true
- Pollilur, September 1780: iron-cased rockets against Colonel Baillie, tested in Prelims
- Triple Confederacy 1780-82 (Nana Fadnis) against Triple Alliance (1766-67 and 1790); Warren Hastings 73-85's two moves (Guntur back, Salbai May 1782)
- The sums: 35 lakh to the Marathas, 20 lakh to the Nizam, 3 crore and two sons in 1792; what Mysore lost in 1792 (Malabar, Dindigul, Baramahal)
- Dhondia Wagh 1800; Carnatic annexed 1801; Travancore: Treaty of Perpetual Friendship 1795, Resident 1800, SA 1805, Kundara Proclamation January 1809

MAINS HOOKS

- 'Why Indian States lost?' (150 or 250 words, the teacher's focus): factionalism, war defeats, internal revolts; many States with a territory motive means rivalry; the EIC's better leadership and army
- Why Mysore lost: no stable alliance, French naval gap, Military Fiscalism over-extension, Seringapatam open to siege
- Travancore as the worked example of how an SA is extracted and why it breeds revolt; how the south was consolidated by 1809

Prelims: few questions, so hold the wars, treaties and numbers. Mains: the one question to prepare is the overall 'Why Indian States lost?'.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Mysore built a war machine and a trading State that frightened every neighbour, so the EIC kept building coalitions against it; across four wars Mysore went from winning to losing, and with its fall the Carnatic was annexed and Travancore was pulled into a Subsidiary Alliance, completing the south by 1809.

1. A State that frightened everyone. Hyder Ali 61-82 and Tipu 82-99 followed Military Fiscalism: the goal was a stronger military and the tool was maximising revenue. France gave arms and support in exchange for trade concessions, and Tipu ran a State-owned trading company and put an embargo on pepper, cardamom and sandalwood. The teacher's four anxious neighbours were the Marathas, Hyderabad, Travancore and the Carnatic.

   → So in 1766 the EIC and its friends moved.

2. 1766: the first alliance. Hyder Ali 61-82 had a modern arsenal at Dindigul Fort (1755) and in 1766 annexed Malabar and Calicut. The same year, under the Treaty of Hyderabad, the EIC promised to help Hyderabad invade Mysore and received the Northern Sarkars (4 of 5 districts, Guntur kept) for Rs 7 lakh a year. The Marathas joined, giving the triple alliance of EIC, Hyderabad and Marathas.

   → But Hyder knew how to buy a coalition apart.

3. The bribe and the gates of Madras. In 1767 Hyder paid the Marathas Rs 35 lakh to exit, and gave the Nizam Rs 20 lakh plus a promise of the Carnatic Nawabi for his son. Hyderabad made peace with the EIC in 1768. In 1769 Hyder reached the gates of Madras while the Bombay navy took coastal Mysore (Mangalore). The EIC signed the Treaty of Madras: territories returned and a defensive alliance. The teacher marks the 1st war as won by Mysore.

   → But a defensive alliance is only as good as who attacked whom.

4. A promise broken. In 1771 the Marathas attacked Mysore and the EIC refused its 1769 duty, so the alliance was a paper one. France then joined the American War (1778) and in 1779 the EIC seized the French port of Mahe, under Mysore's protection and Hyder's arms route.

   → Hyder struck back in 1780.

5. Pollilur and the Confederacy. Hyder invaded the Carnatic and took Arcot. At Pollilur (September 1780) his iron-cased rockets annihilated Colonel Baillie's infantry, one of the worst defeats ever suffered by a European army in India. Nana Fadnis, the first Indian statesman to grasp the EIC's empire ambitions, built the Triple Confederacy of Marathas, Mysore and Hyderabad (1780-82); Hyderabad joined over Guntur and the unpaid 7 lakh.

   → Warren Hastings answered with diplomacy.

6. Hastings splits the coalition. Warren Hastings 73-85 returned Guntur to Hyderabad and signed the Treaty of Salbai (May 1782) with the Marathas, ending the 1st Anglo-Maratha War. Mysore was left isolated. Hyder died of cancer in December 1782 and Tipu 82-99 continued, until the Treaty of Mangalore (1784): a stalemate, territories returned.

   → Tipu kept growing, and the EIC found a pretext.

7. The Travancore trigger, 1790-92. Tipu 82-99 attacked Travancore, a formal EIC ally (1789), and Cornwallis 86-93 used it to declare war. The EIC formed a Triple Alliance with the Marathas and Hyderabad in 1790, and Mysore faced a three-front campaign. By the Treaty of Seringapatam (1792) Tipu lost half his Kingdom (Malabar, Dindigul, Baramahal), paid 3 crore and gave two sons as hostages. The teacher: notice the encirclement by the EIC.

→ Seven years later came the last war.

8 Napoleon and the fall, 1799. Tipu 82-99's talks with Napoleon gave Wellesley 98-05 his pretext in London. Hyderabad had to fight because of its SA of 1798, the Peshwa sent no army on Nana Fadnis's advice, and Arthur Wellesley, with his Royal regiment, was among the key commanders at the siege. Tipu died defending Seringapatam. Kanara and Coimbatore went to the EIC and Hyderabad, and the Wodeyars returned under an SA with five-year-old Krishnaraja III.

→ So why did Mysore lose?

9 Four reasons and one answer. Mysore had no stable alliance (its external ally was weak and its Indian neighbours were rivals), a French naval gap (France was busy in 1776-83 and 1792-1804 and its navy could not match Britain's), Military Fiscalism over-extension (the war fine drained the treasury: the teacher's BUT), and a Seringapatam that three coalition armies could surround. Cornwallis 86-93 and Wellesley 98-05 judged it too strong for Indirect Rule: it fought well but largely alone. The teacher's Mains skeleton generalises this to why Indian States lost: factionalism, war defeats and fear of neighbours, internal revolts.

→ After the fall came the clean-up.

10 Clean-up in the south. Dhondia Wagh, a former prisoner of Tipu 82-99, raised a mounted force from soldiers disbanded under the SA, raided the Mysore-Maratha borderlands (1799-1800) as 'King of Two Worlds', and was killed in 1800 by Colonel Arthur Wellesley. In 1801 Wellesley 98-05 annexed the Carnatic, whose Nawabs had borrowed from private EIC officials against their Jagirs (the Carnatic Debts), citing financial maladministration and secret contact with Tipu. It became direct EIC territory, not an SA State.

→ One southern State was still outside: Travancore.

11 Travancore pays for help. Marthanda Varma 29-58 had built the State and beaten the Dutch at Colachel (1741), and Rama Varma 58-98 kept the EIC alliance as a hedge against Mysore, which triggered Tipu's 1789 attack. Travancore signed a Treaty of Perpetual Friendship in 1795, took a British Resident in 1800, and in 1805 signed a proper SA with Wellesley 98-05, extracted in exchange for crushing a revolt by its own Nair troops over unpaid salary.

→ The price proved unbearable.

12 Kundara, 1809. Velu Thampi Dalawa, Prime Minister 1802-09, led an armed revolt against heavy subsidy demands and constant interference, and in January 1809 issued the Kundara Proclamation calling all Travancoreans to rise. It was crushed within months and he died that year. With the Cochin SA of 1809, the EIC was paramount from the Krishna to Kanyakumari, setting up the 2nd and 3rd Anglo-Maratha Wars.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The board answers the one Mains question wanted from this chapter: "Why Indian States lost?" (1) Why multiple States?
- Each State's motive was T (territory), and territory means rivalry
- rivals do not form a stable alliance of Indians (sad face)
- (2) Why did States lose territory and sign the SA?
- Three branches:
  - Factionalism (Indians split)
  - War defeats (and fear of neighbours: Hyderabad joined the EIC for protection, Chapter 11)
  - Internal revolts (Travancore)
- (3) The EIC's opportunity: (B) Better leadership and Better army.
- Unreadable marks: the last line "(4)# (circled sign)" and the circled "2" in "alliance (2) of Indians".
- The circled T is read as territory, as in Chapter 10.

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR WARS, IN ORDER

Wins Taper, Losses Linger

W 1st war 1767-69: won by Mysore (Treaty of Madras 1769)

T 2nd war 1780-84: tie (Treaty of Mangalore 1784)

L 3rd war 1790-92: lost (Treaty of Seringapatam 1792)

L 4th war 1799: lost (Wodeyars restored under an SA)

Order kept: the wins fade and the losses stay.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Two groupings: the first two wars cost Mysore no territory; the last two cost it huge territory, shared by the EIC's Madras Presidency, the Marathas and Hyderabad. 2nd and 4th wars: "Reason: Fr FACTOR": the 2nd began when the EIC seized the French port of Mahe (1779), the 4th when Tipu 82-99's talks with Napoleon gave Wellesley 98-05 his pretext.

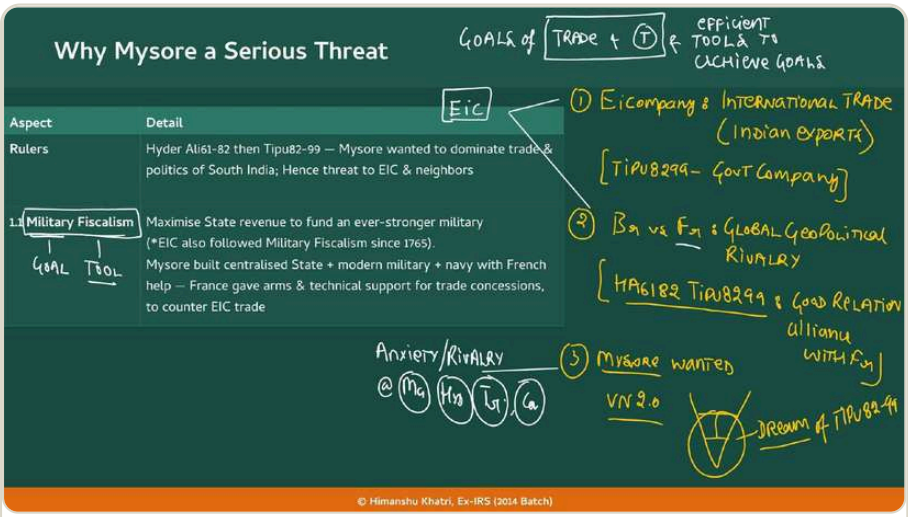
1 · Why was Mysore such a serious threat?

STORY LINK

Because Mysore built a war machine and a trading State, it frightened the EIC and every neighbour. Ask: what is the goal and what is the tool of Military Fiscalism?



Why Mysore was a serious threat: Military Fiscalism Lecture 15 slide 26

- Hyder Ali 61-82 and then Tipu 82-99 made Mysore more than a State trying to survive: it tried to dominate the trade, the coastline and the politics of South India.
- That made it a threat to every neighbouring power, and to the EIC in two special ways.

1.1 Military Fiscalism

- Mysore followed Military Fiscalism: the primary goal of maximising State revenue was to fund an ever-stronger military.
- (The EIC had followed the same model since 1765 to build its own strong military.)
- Under Hyder Ali 61-82 and Tipu 82-99, Mysore built a centralised State with a modern military and a navy, with French assistance.
- France gave arms and technical support in exchange for trade concessions, to counter EIC trade.
- The French connection made both the EIC and the neighbouring Indian States even more anxious.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Military Fiscalism: Military = GOAL, Fiscalism = TOOL.
- Frame for the chapter: each player has goals (TRADE + T for territory) and efficient tools to achieve them.
- Mysore's goal is military strength
- Its tool is revenue maximisation
- Under all three: "Anxiety/RIVALRY @ Ma, Hyd, Tr, Ca" (Marathas, Hyderabad, Travancore, Carnatic), the four neighbours who feared Mysore.

1.2 Mercantilist trading State

- Tipu 82-99 set up a State-owned trading company that entered international trade directly.
- Mysore was acting as a rival Mercantilist State, exactly as the EIC did.
- Two mercantilist powers competing over the same trade routes and coastal markets cannot coexist easily.
- In the late 1780s he put a trade embargo on exports of pepper, cardamom and sandalwood from ports under Mysore's control, and barred local merchants from dealing with British traders entirely.
- Malabar was a critical source of pepper for the EIC and had been under Mysore's control since 1766.
- He brought in his own Mauludi calendar: a new lunisolar calendar based on the Prophet's birth era, introduced to replace the Islamic Hijri calendar.
- He sent delegations to France, Turkey (the Ottoman Empire) and Egypt to seek anti-British alliances.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: the EIC-Mysore rivalry was not just a military conflict.
- It was a clash between two entities following the same model (Military Fiscalism plus Mercantilism) in the same geography. Only one could win.
- The EIC's diplomatic advantage: Mysore's ambitions also threatened every neighbouring State, so coalitions against Mysore were easy to build.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Trade embargo" (late 1780s) is the economic background that leads to the 3rd A-My 1790-92.
- France (the delegations, under "Other aspects") is a Prelims hook
- See Prelims 2001 below

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2001: answer (d) Tipu 82-99 Sultan 82-99.
- Reign codes beside the options place each ruler: Haider Ali 61-82 (built the French-model army but set up no modern embassies), Mir Qasim 60-63 (Nawab of Bengal, Buxar 1764), Shah Alam II 60-06 (the Mughal Emperor).
- Tipu 82-99's delegations to France, Turkey and Egypt are the "embassies on modern lines."

Map of South India: territories gained and lost in the Mysore Wars Lecture 15 slide 28

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Working map for the chapter. Guntur sits inside the Northern Sarkars: under the 1766 Treaty of Hyderabad, Hyderabad gave the Northern Sarkars to the EIC (4 of the 5 districts; Guntur was not given) and the EIC promised 7 lakh rupees a year plus military help to Hyderabad against Mysore (and, as written, against the Marathas "Ma" in future if needed).
- Lost in the 3rd war: Malabar, Bara Mahal (Baramahal), Dindigul.
- Lost in the 4th: Kanara, Coimbatore.
- Seringapatam is Mysore's capital
- Mangalore its coastal port
- Coorg lies between them (section 8)

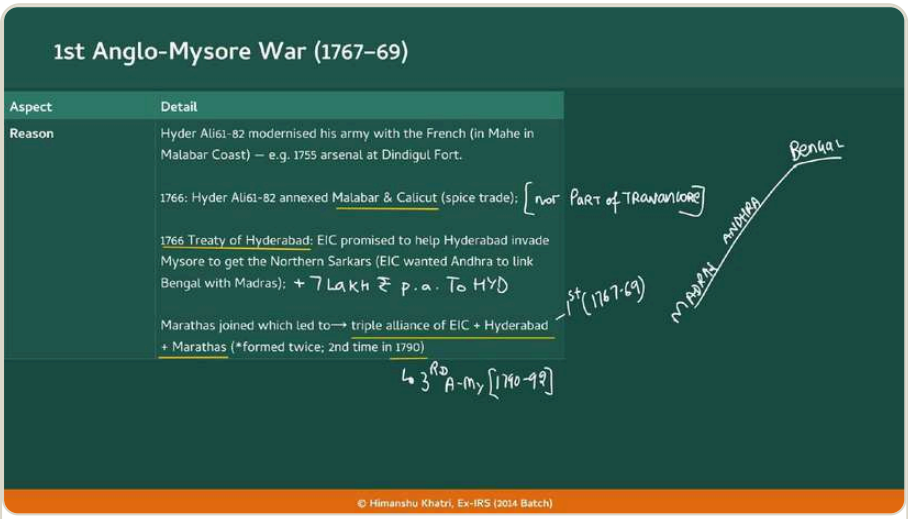
2 · 1st Anglo-Mysore War (1767-69): the EIC lost?

STORY LINK

Because the threat was real, the EIC and Hyderabad moved in 1766 and Hyder broke the coalition. Ask: who was paid how much?



1st Anglo-Mysore War (1767-69): the reason Lecture 15 slide 30

2.1 Reason

- Even before Hyder Ali 61-82 came to power, he had begun modernising his army with French help (the French were present in Mahe).
- In 1755 he set up a modern arsenal (arms factory) at Dindigul Fort.
- This continued friendship threatened the EIC.
- 1766: Hyder Ali 61-82 annexed Malabar (the slide adds Calicut), important for the spice trade.
- The same year, the EIC promised to help Hyderabad invade Mysore, so that the EIC would get the Northern Sarkars (important to connect Bengal with Madras).
- (Recall: in 1766 Hyderabad gave the EIC the Northern Sarkars in return for protection against Mysore and the Marathas.)
- The Marathas also saw Mysore as a rival and joined.
- So the EIC crafted a triple alliance of EIC, Hyderabad and Marathas against Mysore.
- (It was formed twice; the 2nd time in 1790.)

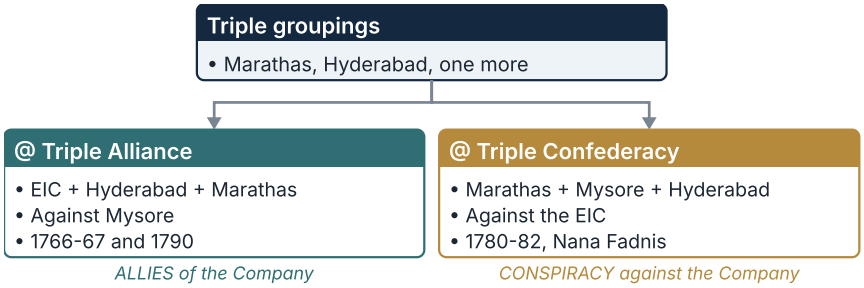
SAME THREE POWERS, OPPOSITE SIDES



TEACHER'S BOARD

- "[not Part of Travancore]" beside Malabar and Calicut: the 1766 annexation took Malabar and Calicut, not Travancore (Chapter 7).
- Map line Madras through Andhra to Bengal: the EIC wanted the Northern Sarkars as a land link between its two Presidencies.
- "+ 7 lakh Rs p.a. to HYD": what the EIC promised Hyderabad for the Sarkars.
- "3rd A-My [1790-92]" marks the second formation of the triple alliance.

2.2 Events

- Hyder Ali 61-82 broke the coalition through skilled diplomacy:
- 1767: he paid the Marathas Rs 35 lakh to exit the war.
- Then he allied with Hyderabad: he gave the Nizam Rs 20 lakh, promised to make the Nizam's son Nawab of Carnatic, and agreed to a joint future attack on Carnatic (it was under Md Ali 52-95, an ally of the EIC).
- 1768: Hyderabad feared a counter-invasion of Hyderabad itself by the EIC and exited by making peace with the EIC.
- 1769: Hyder Ali 61-82 had outmanoeuvred the EIC forces and marched to the gates of Madras.

NUMBER CARD · THE RUPEES THAT MOVED IN THE 1ST WAR

35 · 20 · 7

Hyder 61-82 paid the bigger power the bigger sum.

Rs 35 lakh Hyder Ali 61-82 to the Marathas, 1767, to exit

Rs 20 lakh Hyder Ali 61-82 to the Nizam, plus a promise of the Carnatic Nawabi for his son

Rs 7 lakh a year the EIC's promise to Hyderabad for the Northern Sarkars (later stopped)

- Meanwhile the EIC navy from Bombay captured coastal areas of Mysore, e.g. Mangalore.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "IR: No permanent friends or enemies in foreign policy": the Marathas and Hyderabad were EIC allies in 1766 and Hyder 61-82's partners (or paid-off neutrals) in 1767-68.
- "BY eic" under "made peace" (a caret mark, hard to read: check your notebook): the Hyderabad peace seems to be one made with the EIC's initiative.
- Stressed: Madras, "EIC's Bombay" navy and Mangalore: a land front at Madras and a sea front on the west coast.

2.3 Result: the Treaty of Madras (1769)

- The EIC, fearing the destruction of Madras, was forced to sign the Treaty of Madras (1769).
- Both sides returned conquered territories and agreed to a defensive military alliance: each promised to help the other if attacked by a third party.
- This was a PoRF arrangement only on paper (PoRF = Policy of Ring Fence, Chapter 10): a fake alliance in practice, as the very next war showed.

Military alliances: offensive versus defensive Lecture 15 slide 32

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why "military alliance" is taught here: the 1769 treaty was a defensive alliance.
- Offensive alliance: valid even when one member is the aggressor (Pact of Steel 1939, Germany and Italy).
- Defensive alliance: valid only when a member is the victim of aggression (NATO 1949, SEATO 1954, Baghdad Pact 1955, later CENTO 1958).
- Example: Pakistan was a member of these defensive blocs, but in the 1965 and 1971 wars Pakistan was the aggressor, so the pacts did not bind the others.
- Rule: a defensive clause is only as good as the question "who attacked whom".

3 · 2nd Anglo-Mysore War (1780-84): how the EIC broke the Mysore-Marathas-Hyderabad alliance

STORY LINK

Because the 1769 alliance was empty and Mahe was seized, Hyder struck again and a Confederacy formed. Ask: how did Hastings split it?

3.1 Reason for war

- 1771: the Marathas attacked Mysore, and the EIC refused to honour its 1769 treaty obligation to come to Mysore's defence.
- The final trigger: France entered the American War of Independence (1776-83) against Britain in 1778, and the EIC seized the French port of Mahe in Malabar in 1779.
- Mahe was under Mysore's military protection, and through it Hyder Ali 61-82 was importing French arms and ammunition.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mahe as the supply route: France to Mahe to Mysore.
- Seizing Mahe cut the arms line, so Hyder 61-82 attacked.
- World frame: the American Revolution runs 1765-83 in two phases, violent protest 1765-76 and the American War of Independence 1776-83.
- France joined in 1778: a war in America opens a war in India (the 2nd war is tagged "Fr FACTOR").

2nd Anglo-Mysore War (1780-84): the reason, French Mahe Lecture 15 slide 34

3.2 Events

- Hyder Ali 61-82 invaded Carnatic (an EIC ally) and captured Arcot (the capital).

- He then inflicted one of the worst defeats ever suffered by a European army in India at the Battle of Pollilur (September 1780): Colonel Baillie's disciplined infantry formations were annihilated, Hyder Ali 61-82's troops using iron-cased rockets to devastating effect.
- Pollilur was a shock to the EIC.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Battle of Pollilur (September 1780) has been tested in UPSC Prelims (the rocket-warfare innovation of Mysore).
- Keep the four tags: Sep 1780, Colonel Baillie, iron-cased rockets, Hyder Ali 61-82.

2nd Anglo-Mysore War: Pollilur and the Triple Confederacy Lecture 15 slide 35

- The Triple Confederacy (1780-82): an alliance of Marathas, Mysore and Hyderabad against the EIC, established by Nana Fadnis, the de-facto ruler and most important minister in the Peshwa's council.
- Nana Fadnis (Fadnavis) was the first Indian statesman to understand that the EIC was in India not just for trade but had ambitions of empire building.
- Hyderabad joined because the EIC had illegally occupied Guntur (one of the 5 districts of the Northern Sarkars, not handed over in 1766) and had stopped paying the annual 7 lakh rupees agreed for ceding the Northern Sarkars.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "PRE" beside Nana Fadnis, "1st Indian" stressed: a Prelims line.
- Board:
  - The three members (My, Ma, Hyd), 1780-82
  - an arrow from the Marathas to the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82) (the Marathas were already at war with the EIC)
  - "Guntur taken by EIC" under Hyderabad (their grievance)
- A confederacy is an alliance against the EIC: the reverse of the triple alliance of 1766 and 1790.

3.3 How the EIC broke it, and the result

Warren Hastings 73-85 broke the coalition through careful diplomacy:

- He returned Guntur to Hyderabad, removing their grievance.
- He signed the Treaty of Salbai (May 1782) with the Marathas, which ended the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82).
- The Marathas and Hyderabad withdrew their support, leaving Mysore isolated to fight the EIC alone.
- Nana Fadnis ensured the Marathas did not send an army in favour of the British (the handout's note: Chanakya Neeti, let both rivals destroy each other).
- Hyder Ali 61-82 died of cancer in December 1782.
- Tipu 82-99 took over and continued the war.
- Result: the Treaty of Mangalore (1784). The war ended in a stalemate.
- Both sides returned each other's territories
- The status quo was maintained.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Both of Hastings 73-85's moves are stressed
- The war is tagged "(Tie)".
- Each partner's gain:
  - Hyderabad = Guntur back
  - The Marathas = the Treaty of Salbai (which also closed their own war with the EIC).
- The coalition collapsed because each partner's grievance was settled separately.

4 · 3rd Anglo-Mysore War (1790-92): when the tide turned

STORY LINK

Because the 2nd war ended in a tie, the EIC waited for a pretext and rebuilt its alliance. Ask: what did Tipu lose in 1792?

4.1 Reason and events

- Tipu 82-99 attacked Travancore, a formal ally of the EIC.
- This gave Cornwallis 86-93 the justification to declare war.
- The EIC formed a Triple Alliance with the Marathas and Hyderabad in 1790 (in 1782-84 the Marathas did not fight Mysore).
- The combined forces of EIC, Marathas and Hyderabad put Mysore under severe military pressure from multiple directions.
- Tipu 82-99 fought hard but could not hold against a coordinated three-front campaign.
- (The handout's Travancore section dates Tipu 82-99's attack on Travancore to 1789 and calls it the pretext for this war: see section 10.1.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Key words: "attacked Travancore", "Cornwallis 86-93", "Triple Alliance".
- Story: a trigger (Travancore), a Governor General who uses it (Cornwallis 86-93), and the coalition Mysore had broken in 1767 and 1782 now rebuilt against it.
- The triple alliance of 1766-67 was formed twice, the second time in 1790 (3rd A-My).

4.2 Result: the Treaty of Seringapatam / Srirangapatnam (1792)

NUMBER CARD · THE PRICE OF SERINGAPATAM 1792

Term	Detail
Territory	Mysore lost half its Kingdom, including the rich Malabar, Dindigul and Baramahal
War fine	3 crore rupees
Hostages	Two of Tipu 82-99's own sons surrendered to guarantee compliance

MNEMONIC · THE THREE TREATIES, IN ORDER

Mild, Mild, Severe

M Madras 1769: territories returned, defensive alliance

M Mangalore 1784: territories returned, status quo

S Seringapatam 1792: half the Kingdom, 3 crore, two sons

Order kept: two mild treaties, then the one that hurt.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Every term is stressed: half its Kingdom, 3 crore rupees, Two of Tipu 82-99's own sons, hostages.
- Map: Malabar [important for spices], Baramahal and Dindigul are the hatched British areas, with small arrows to the Peshwa's and the Nizam's shares, and "Notice: encirclement by EIC": the EIC now held land on Mysore's west (Malabar), south-east (Baramahal) and far south (Dindigul), with allies to its north.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source mismatch on the war's dates. The title and the teacher's board say the 3rd war is 1790-92.
- The handout text in section 6 writes "1789-92" (counting from Tipu 82-99's attack on Travancore in 1789) and the handout's flow chart (section 5) writes "1789-92" too.
- Use 1790-92 for the war
- 1789 is the Travancore attack

Marked map of South India: Peshwa, Nizam and Tippoo dominions Lecture 15 slide 38

HANDOUT NOTE

- The same historical map is shown twice (before the 3rd war and after the 4th).
- Use it as a locating tool: Mahe and Calicut (the French and Malabar spice coast), Pondicherry and Karikal (the French towns on the east coast), Guntur (the Northern Sarkars) and the three dominions that divided Mysore. It adds no date.

5 · 4th Anglo-Mysore War (1799): how Mysore finally fell

STORY LINK

Because Tipu looked to Napoleon, Wellesley found his excuse. Ask: why did Hyderabad have no choice?

5.1 Reason

- Tipu 82-99's ongoing negotiations with Napoleon gave Wellesley 98-05 his political pretext in London.
- Britain was already at war with France.
- Wellesley 98-05, an empire builder by nature, used Tipu 82-99's secret letters to the French as proof of a threat and got British approval for war.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "(* Recall PIA 1784)":
    - Pitt's India Act 1784 banned offensive wars without the Court's command, so Wellesley 98-05 needed an excuse
    - The Napoleon letters were it (Chapter 11: the threat was there but not real)
- The war is tagged "Reason: Fr FACTOR".

5.2 Events and result

- The EIC and Hyderabad fought Mysore (Hyderabad had to, because of the SA of 1798).
- Peshwa Baji Rao II 96-18 did not send an army, on the advice of Nana Fadnis, despite EIC requests.
- Arthur Wellesley, commanding his Royal regiment alongside EIC forces, was among the key military commanders in the Siege of Srirangapatnam.
- Tipu 82-99 died defending his capital.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "D, C, FA of HYD with EIC: military alliance, therefore no choice." Since the 1798 SA, Hyderabad's Defence, Communications and Foreign Affairs were in the EIC's hands (Chapter 11), so Hyderabad could not refuse to fight.
- "Arthur Wellesley" and "Royal regiment" are stressed: he was a Royal Army officer, not an EIC officer, commanding his regiment alongside the EIC forces (no reign code: only Richard Wellesley 98-05, the Governor General, is Wellesley 98-05).

Result:

- The best parts of Mysore's remaining territory (Kanara, Coimbatore and others) were divided between the EIC and Hyderabad.
- The central core of Mysore went back to the old Wodeyar dynasty, with five-year-old Krishnaraja III placed on the throne under a Subsidiary Alliance (1799).
- The last major military threat to the EIC in the south was over.
- Some territory was offered to the Peshwa on condition of signing an SA
- The Marathas refused, on Nana Fadnis's advice

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Key words: Kanara, Coimbatore, Wodeyar dynasty, five-year-old Krishnaraja III, Subsidiary Alliance (1799).
- Map: Kanara (west coast near Mangalore) and Coimbatore (south-east of Mysore) are the 4th war's gains to the EIC.
- The 1792 gains were Malabar, Dindigul, Baramahal
- the 1799 gains were Kanara, Coimbatore.
- Do not mix the two lists.

  - Do not add to it from outside the board
- Slide and handout agree
- No conflict

6 · Why did Mysore lose?

STORY LINK

Because the fourth war ended Mysore, ask why. Four reasons, and then the teacher's wider question.

#	Reason	Explanation	Teacher's ink
1	No stable alliance	Mysore's aggressive expansion and the EIC's diplomacy prevented stable alliances	"External ally weak and could not help"; "Domestic - Rivalry" (Indian

#	Reason	Explanation	Teacher's ink
			neighbours were rivals)
2	French naval gap	Mysore depended on French arms and ammunition. France was busy with the American War of Independence (1776-83) and then the Revolutionary Wars (1792-1804), and its navy was no match for Britain's. A French fleet able to resupply Mysore at scale never reached the Indian coast	Underlined
3	Military Fiscalism over-extension	Revenue-maximisation funded a strong army, but war fines (3 crore rupees after the 3rd war) drained the treasury needed for a long campaign; the EIC was relatively rich	Circled "BUT" (the strength became the weakness); underlined 3 crore rupees
4	Seringapatam open to siege	A three-way coalition (EIC + Marathas + Hyderabad) could surround Mysore from many directions, as in 1789-92 and 1799; the capital's geography became a vulnerability, not a stronghold	none

- Beside reason 1: an external ally (France) was weak and could not help, and the domestic Indian neighbours were rivals (the "multiple States, motive T, rivalry" logic of the title board).
- Reason 3, circled "BUT": the same Military Fiscalism that made Mysore strong also emptied its treasury: strength and weakness from one source.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Verdict: Cornwallis 86-93 and Wellesley 98-05 concluded that Mysore was too strong and too ambitious for Indirect Rule to work: it had to be defeated militarily and then subordinated.
- Mysore fought well and modernised seriously.
- It lost because it fought largely alone.

How the teacher's "Why Indian States lost" skeleton uses this chapter (150 or 250 words):

MNEMONIC · WHY MYSORE LOST

L O S S

Mysore's LOSS had four causes: it was lonely, overstretched, sea-less and sieged.

L Lonely: no stable alliance (external ally weak, domestic rivalry)

O Overstretched: Military Fiscalism drained by war and the 3 crore fine (BUT)

S Sea gap: the French naval gap, no fleet resupplied Mysore at scale

S Seringapatam open to siege by a three-way coalition

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

EXAMPLE

- Intro (about 25 words):
  - Indian States lost to the EIC because they were many, not one: each pursued territory, so they were rivals and could not form a stable alliance
  - The EIC had better leadership and a better army and used diplomacy and war
- Body (three branches from the title board):
  - (1) Factionalism: Mysore's expansion made Marathas, Hyderabad, Travancore and Carnatic anxious, so the EIC built the triple alliances of 1766-67 and 1790
  - Hastings 73-85 broke the Triple Confederacy (1780-82) by settling each partner separately (Guntur to Hyderabad, Salbai with the Marathas)
- (2) War defeats and fear of neighbours:
  - Mysore lost Malabar, Dindigul and Baramahal in 1792 and Kanara and Coimbatore in 1799
  - Hyderabad, fearing neighbours, signed the first SA (1798) and had no choice but to fight Mysore
- (3) Internal revolts:
  - Travancore signed the SA in 1805 to crush a Nair mutiny, and the Kundara Proclamation of 1809 followed
  - Demobilised Mysore soldiers fed Dhondia Wagh (1799-1800)
- Closing:
  - Mysore fought well and modernised, but fought largely alone
  - By 1809 the EIC was paramount from the Krishna to Kanyakumari

HANDOUT NOTE

- For a 250-word version, add the Carnatic (Carnatic Debts, annexation 1801) and the Military Fiscalism "BUT" point
- For 150 words, keep intro plus the three branches in one or two sentences each
- The last board line "(4)# (circled sign)" is unreadable: for what it adds.

7 · Dhondia Wagh

> STORY LINK
> Because the SA disbanded Mysore's army, the jobless soldiers found a leader. Ask: who put him down?

- After Seringapatam (1799), a former prisoner of Tipu 82-99 named Dhondia Wagh escaped and raised a mounted force from demobilised Mysore soldiers (the SA disbanded the army), raiding the Mysore-Maratha borderlands in 1799-1800.
- He styled himself "King of Two Worlds" and threatened EIC supply lines.
- Colonel Arthur Wellesley was sent
- Dhondia was killed in action in 1800, with which the EIC was formally supreme in southern India by 1801.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - Stressed: "SA disbanded the army". A consequence of the SA (Chapter 11): disbanded soldiers had no job and became raiders.
> - Also: "prisoner of Tipu 82-99" (he knew Mysore's army) and "threatened EIC supply lines."

8 · A note on Tipu 82-99's religious policy

> STORY LINK
> A side note on Tipu's religious policy; the slides carry no ink. Ask: what is the handout's conclusion on his secularism?

- Tipu 82-99's religious approach was syncretic yet contradictory, often a source of confusion.

Facet	Detail
8.1 Patronage in the Mysore heartland	He patronised the Sringeri Sharada Math, wrote letters to its Shankaracharya seeking blessings, got yajnas conducted before wars and made generous grants to several Hindu temples in Mysore
8.2 Coercion in conquered Malabar and Coorg	Forced conversions of Nairs and Christians in Malabar; destroyed churches and temples during his campaigns there. The same brutalities in 1785 in Coorg against the Kodavas (the handout's note: mountain warriors who still do not need a licence for certain arms; earlier under the Hindu Nayakas) who were resisting occupation by Mysore
Geography	North to south: Mysore, Coorg (in the Western Ghats), Malabar. Coorg connected the capital (Seringapatam) to the wealthy coastal ports of Malabar

Facet	Detail
Conclusion	Secularism was not a value for Tipu 82-99 but a tactic for domestic stability of his Kingdom, since values (as per the discipline of Psychology) are hardest to change in one's personality
Note	The King of Coorg allied with the EIC in 1790 and helped Cornwallis 86-93's army navigate the mountains in the 3rd war (1790-92)

9 · The Carnatic annexed (1801)

> STORY LINK
> Because the Carnatic was a debtor to EIC officials, annexation was the end of a long squeeze. Ask: what were the two charges?

- The EIC had influence over Carnatic indirectly since the 2nd Carnatic War (1749-54), keeping its ally Md Ali 52-95 Wallajah 52-95 on the throne.
- Its grip tightened after establishing domination over South India's trade after the 3rd Carnatic War (1756-63).
- Six years after Md Ali 52-95's death in 1795, the EIC annexed Carnatic in 1801. (Wars and treaties: Chapter 9.)

9.1 The Carnatic Debts

- Even before formal annexation, much of Carnatic's wealth had been quietly extracted through the Carnatic Debts.
- Successive Nawabs borrowed massive sums from private EIC officials at high interest rates, using the Jagirs of Carnatic as collateral.
- EIC officials collected land revenue from those fertile lands directly as payment of interest.

9.2 Carnatic Treaty (1801): annexation under Wellesley 98-05

- Wellesley 98-05 used two justifications:
- 1. Maladministration by the Nawab (the board adds "Financial": financial maladministration).
- 2. The accusation that the Nawab had been secretly communicating with Tipu 82-99.
- Wellesley 98-05 held that a Nawab so financially compromised was not worth preserving even as a puppet.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two small additions carry the point. "Financial" before "Maladministration": the charge was about money (the Carnatic Debts), not law and order.
- "secretly communicating with Tipu 82-99" is stressed: the same Tipu 82-99 who had been the 4th war's target was the second excuse.
- Carnatic was annexed outright: direct EIC territory, not an SA State (contrast Mysore, Hyderabad, Travancore).

10 · Travancore: what happens when the SA breaks its own promises?

STORY LINK

Because Travancore hedged with the EIC against Mysore, it paid later. Ask: what did the EIC get for crushing a mutiny?

10.1 Travancore before the SA

- Travancore's modern State was built in the 18th century by Marthanda Varma 29-58, who decisively defeated the Dutch at the Battle of Colachel (1741) and reorganised the kingdom into a centralised revenue-based State.
- His successor Rama Varma 58-98 maintained the EIC alliance as a hedge against Mysore, relevant during Tipu 82-99's late-1780s expansion and embargo on Travancore's pepper exports (section 1).
- Rama Varma 58-98's EIC alliance was the trigger for Tipu 82-99's attack on Travancore in 1789, which Cornwallis 86-93 used as the pretext for the 3rd Anglo-Mysore War (section 4).
- After Rama Varma 58-98's death in 1798, the kingdom entered fiscal and political strain.

10.2 British Resident stationed (1800), Subsidiary Alliance signed (1805)

- Travancore signed a "Treaty of Perpetual Friendship" with the EIC in 1795 (in Rama Varma 58-98's reign): they agreed to pay for a British force to protect against Tipu 82-99.
- In 1800 a British Resident was stationed in Travancore's court (the handout's note: can you see the imprint of ToA 1765, Chapter 10?).
- In 1805 Travancore signed a proper Subsidiary Alliance with Wellesley 98-05.
- The EIC extracted it in exchange for helping the king crush a revolt by his own Nair troops, who had mutinied over non-payment of salary.
- The State lost sovereignty on the standard SA template (see the SA terms in Chapter 11).

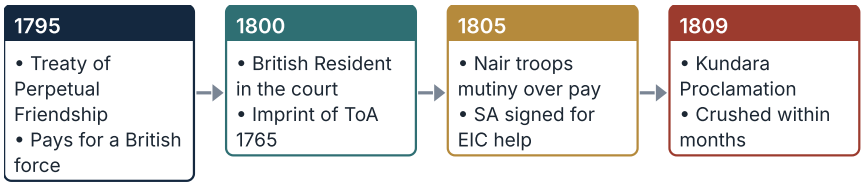
HOW THE SA WAS EXTRACTED FROM TRAVANCORE



KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: Travancore is the chapter's clearest worked example of how the SA gets extracted: not at sword-point, but in exchange for internal-security help that the EIC Resident has often had a hand in destabilising in the first place.
- The Nair troops' salary mutiny gave the king an immediate problem
- Wellesley 98-05 priced the help at full sovereign concession.
- Within four years the consequences exploded in the Velu Thampi Dalawa revolt and the Kundara Proclamation (1809).

HANDOUT NOTE

- Chapter 7 and Chapter 11 cover the same State from other angles.
- Chapter 7 gives Marthanda Varma 29-58's trade monopoly and the Colachel victory and tells the Malabar 1766 story
- Chapter 11 lists Travancore as the 8th SA signatory (1805), the last under Wellesley 98-05 before his recall.
- This chapter adds the 1795 Treaty, the 1800 Resident, the mechanism of extraction and the 1809 revolt (Chapter 7, Chapter 11).

11 · Velu Thampi Dalawa and the Kundara Proclamation (1809)

STORY LINK

Because the SA's costs were unbearable, Travancore rose. Ask: when and where was the proclamation issued?

- By 1809 the SA's consequences were unbearable.
- Velu Thampi Dalawa, Prime Minister of Travancore (1802-09), led a major armed revolt against the EIC, supported by soldiers and peasants angered by heavy subsidy demands and constant British interference in internal affairs, a direct breach of the SA treaty's own promise of non-interference.
- In January 1809, from the town of Kundara, he issued the Kundara Proclamation (1809): a public call to all Travancoreans to rise against British paramountcy.

- The revolt was crushed within months. Velu Thampi died later the same year.
- Travancore was reduced to a subservient SA State.
- (The handout's note: every consequence of the SA from Chapter 11 (loss of military jobs, high taxes from subsidy pressure, PoIR creeping in illegally) played out here within four years of signing.)

HANDOUT ALERT

- The Kundara Proclamation (January 1809) is one of the most significant early revolts against the British in South India. Use that wording.
- (The handout's flow chart in section 12 says "first organised revolt in south India"; the text and slide say "one of the most significant early revolts": the safer claim in an answer.)

12 · Legacy: southern consolidation completed

STORY LINK

Last scene: the south is closed. Ask: which State was handled how, in which year?

- The four Mysore wars ended the last big southern rival of the EIC.
- The Carnatic annexation of 1801, the Travancore SA of 1805 and the SA of 1809 with Cochin completed the southern consolidation.
- By 1809, with Kundara suppressed, the EIC was paramount from the Krishna to Kanyakumari, setting the stage for the 2nd and 3rd Anglo-Maratha Wars (1803-05, 1817-19) in the north-west and the Deccan (see Chapter 13).

Southern consolidation, 1799 to 1809

- 1799:
  - Mysore falls
  - The Wodeyars return under an SA
- 1801:
  - Carnatic annexed outright
  - Direct EIC territory (the EIC formally supreme in the south)
- 1805: Travancore SA (for crushing the Nair mutiny)
- 1809:
  - Kundara Proclamation crushed
  - Cochin SA
- By 1809: the EIC is paramount from the Krishna to Kanyakumari

MNEMONIC · SOUTHERN CONSOLIDATION, IN ORDER

Weakened, Conquered, Tied, Crushed

- W 1799: Mysore weakened, Wodeyars restored under an SA
- C 1801: Carnatic annexed outright (direct EIC territory)
- T 1805: Travancore tied by an SA
- C 1809: Kundara crushed; Cochin SA

Order kept: four steps, each State handled by its own method.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Figure-only details in this chart (not in the handout text): the ceded zones named as Bellary, Cuddapah and Anantapur (to the Nizam), the "honour-share to Marathas" (the text says the Peshwa was offered territory on condition of signing an SA and refused), Malabar listed with the 1799 gains (it was lost in 1792) and "first organised revolt in south India" for Kundara.
- Where chart and text differ, use the text and the slide.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 1999: match 1775, 1780, 1824, 1838 with the wars (answer c, A-3 B-4 C-1 D-2); use the year the war BROKE OUT, not the end year
- Prelims 2004: only B (1790-92 Third Mysore War) and C (1824-26 First Anglo-Burmese War) are right (answer d); 1767-69 is Mysore I and 1845-46 is Sikh I
- Prelims 2010: Abdali's immediate reason for Third Panipat (1761) was to avenge the expulsion of Timur Shah from Lahore (answer a)
- Sitabuldi (November 1817) is tested: Appa Sahib signed the SA in 1816 and still fought in 1817, so the SA's terms caused the war; the disbanded-army clause was bypassed with Arab and Rohilla mercenaries
- Order and who-negotiated-what: Subsidiary Alliances Gaikwad 1802, Peshwa 1802, Scindhia 1803/04, Bhonsle 1816, Holkar 1818; Warren Hastings 73-85 at Purandhar, Mahadji Scindhia at Salbai; Salsette and Bharuch in both

MAINS HOOKS

- No Mains PYQ is shown on the slides; the book practice questions are the guide
- Why did the Marathas lose despite numerical strength? Four reasons: factionalism, no unified command, EIC finances, naval and logistics advantage; a divided Maratha house was the EIC's most reliable ally
- Subsidiary Alliance against Paramountcy: SA bought control (the EIC army replaced the State's), PoP 1813-58 made the EIC supreme, even annexation; trajectory SA, PoP, annexation
- The EIC army's vested interest overhyped border threats (Nepal, Burma, Coorg, Afghanistan, Sindh); a protectorate is like an SA

Factionalism pulled the EIC in at Surat, the Subsidiary Alliance disarmed the Peshwa, the loophole of 1816 ended in war, and by 1818 the Peshwaship was gone; the Marathas lost more from their own structure than from the EIC's strength.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: A divided Maratha house kept inviting the EIC in (Surat 1775, Bassein 1802), the Subsidiary Alliance then took away the Peshwa's own army, and the EIC's Paramountcy turned the loophole of 1816 into the war that ended the Peshwaship in 1818.

1. The whole story on one board. The teacher puts the three wars on one line. The 1st war (1775-82): reason factionalism, it began at Surat 1775, the EIC 'won' and it ended at Salbai 1782 with a military alliance. The 2nd (1803-05): reason factionalism, it began with Bassein 1802, an SA signed for the Svarajya, and the Marathas lost. The 3rd (1817-19): reason a breach of the SA by the EIC, and the Marathas lost, with the Swarajya annexed.

   → So why did the EIC care so much about the Deccan?

2. Why the Deccan mattered. The Deccan and the Konkan coast were commercially critical to the EIC: a large coastline, a major cotton trade from Gujarat to China, and Maratha control over parts of the Malabar coast. The Maratha Confederacy and Mysore were the last major powers able to check the EIC. Three Anglo-Maratha Wars and four Anglo-Mysore Wars decided the outcome.

   → The first of the three wars began inside the Maratha house itself.

3. A claimant and a treaty at Surat. In 1773 Raghunath Rao 73-74 became Peshwa after the murder of his nephew Narayan Rao 72-73. In 1774, in the Baarbhai Conspiracy, Nana Fadnis and eleven other ministers removed him. He went to the EIC's Governor of Bombay, William Hornby, and in 1775 signed the Treaty of Surat: EIC help in return for Salsette, Bassein and some revenue from Bharuch and Surat.

   → But Calcutta did not like the bill.

4. Warren Hastings cancels, then Purandhar collapses. Warren Hastings 73-85, the Governor General in Calcutta, overturned Surat to avoid expensive war expenditure and negotiated the Treaty of Purandhar (1776) with Nana Fadnis. Madhav Rao II 74-95 was recognised, Raghunath Rao 73-74 pensioned, Salsette and Bharuch went to the EIC, and no French presence was allowed. But Bombay kept sheltering Raghunath, Nana Fadnis offered the French a port, and the war resumed.

   → Now the Marathas gave the EIC a bloody nose.

5. Wadgaon and the peace of Salbai. At Wadgaon (1779), near Pune, Nana Fadnis, Mahadji Scindhia and Tukoji Rao Holkar defeated the EIC and Raghunath Rao 73-74. The war then stalled, with both sides in difficulty, the Marathas also being tied to the 2nd Anglo-Mysore War (1780-84). In 1782 Mahadji Scindhia signed the Treaty of Salbai at Gwalior: a military alliance against Hyder Ali 61-82's retention of territories, Salsette and Bharuch to the EIC, no French, territory returned, Madhav Rao II 74-95 recognised and Raghunath pensioned.

   → Peace came, but the glue holding the Marathas together began to dissolve.

6. Twenty-one years of decline. Between Salbai (1782) and Bassein (1802) the Marathas declined. Mahadji Scindhia died in 1794, Madhav Rao II 74-95 committed suicide in 1795, Bajirao II 96-18 became Peshwa in 1796, and Nana Fadnis, the one man who held the Confederacy together for two decades, died in 1800. Wellesley 98-05, the empire-builder, was waiting for exactly this opportunity.

   → Then a Holkar execution lit the fuse.

7. Bassein: the Peshwa signs an SA. In 1801 Vithoji Rao Holkar was captured and executed on the orders of Bajirao II 96-18. To avenge his stepbrother, Yashwantrao

Holkar defeated the Peshwa and Daulat Rao Scindhia in October 1802. Bajirao fled and signed the Treaty of Bassein (December 1802), an SA in which the army of the Svarajya was to be disbanded once the EIC restored its puppet Peshwa. The Gaikwad had already signed the Treaty of Cambay in June 1802.

→ Ironically, the SA united the old rivals.

8 Assaye and a lost war. Scindhia, Holkar and Bhonsle united against the EIC. Arthur Wellesley fought them at Assaye (1803), which he called the toughest fight of his career, harder than anything against Napoleon. The Marathas lost: the Peshwa was a puppet; Scindhia lost all north of the Yamuna (Delhi, Agra) and all of Gujarat and signed an SA, with a British Resident in Delhi putting Shah Alam II 60-06 effectively under EIC indirect control; Bhonsle lost Orissa and signed only a mini alliance. Wellesley 98-05 was recalled for the war's cost, and Cornwallis 86-93 arrived in July 1805 and died in October.

→ After Wellesley the EIC pulled back, and trouble gathered at its edges.

9 Pindaris, Paramountcy and a loophole. After Wellesley 98-05 the EIC followed non-intervention, giving Bhonsle and Holkar time to rebuild. Pindaris, disbanded soldiers of Scindhia and Holkar, raided the Northern Sarkars and Madras. Francis Hastings 13-23 crushed them and launched the Policy of Paramountcy (1813-58): the EIC was to be supreme and could even annex. Residents treated Bajirao II 96-18 as a puppet. In Nagpur Appa Sahib signed an SA in 1816 but, using the loophole that retainers were allowed, secretly recruited Arab and Rohilla mercenaries and had Parsoji murdered.

→ The loophole turned into a battlefield.

10 The third war: Sitabuldi, Mahidpur, Koregaon. In late 1817 Bajirao II 96-18, Appa Sahib and Yashwantrao Holkar rose together. Appa Sahib, as Senapati, used his Arab mercenaries at Sitabuldi (November 1817) but was defeated. Holkar fell at Mahidpur (December 1817). At Koregaon (1 January 1818) a small EIC force of Mahar soldiers held off a much larger Peshwa army. The EIC used its largest force ever, about 1.2 lakh, and Bajirao surrendered in June 1818.

→ Now came the settlement.

11 The settlement of 1818. The Peshwaship was abolished and Bajirao II 96-18 pensioned to Bithur near Kanpur, where his adopted son Nana Sahib would later lead the Kanpur revolt of 1857. Svarajya was annexed into the Bombay Presidency. Appa Sahib was deposed, and Bhonsle lost huge territory. Holkar signed an SA at Mandsaur (1818). Satara and Kolhapur were spared as the Chhatrapati's symbolic line; Satara was annexed in 1848 under Dalhousie 48-56's Doctrine of Lapse.

→ Why did such a great power fall, and where did the EIC look next?

12 Why they lost, and the next wars. The Marathas lost for four reasons: factionalism, no unified command (Scindhia, Holkar, Bhonsle, Gaikwad), the EIC's finances, and its naval and logistics advantage. The EIC's army, with a vested interest in big threats, then overhyped border dangers: Nepal 1814-16 (Sugauli, a protectorate), Burma 1824-26 (Yandabo), Coorg 1834, Afghanistan 1838-42 (20,000 dead), Sindh 1843 (Napier's Peccavi), the Sikh wars and Burma II 1852-53.

Key term	In plain words
Factionalism	Splits inside the Maratha house; the teacher's reason for the 1st and 2nd wars
Baarbhai Conspiracy	1774: Nana Fadnis and eleven other ministers remove Raghunath Rao 73-74
Salsette and Bassein	Land near Mumbai that Raghunath Rao 73-74 promised the EIC at Surat (1775)

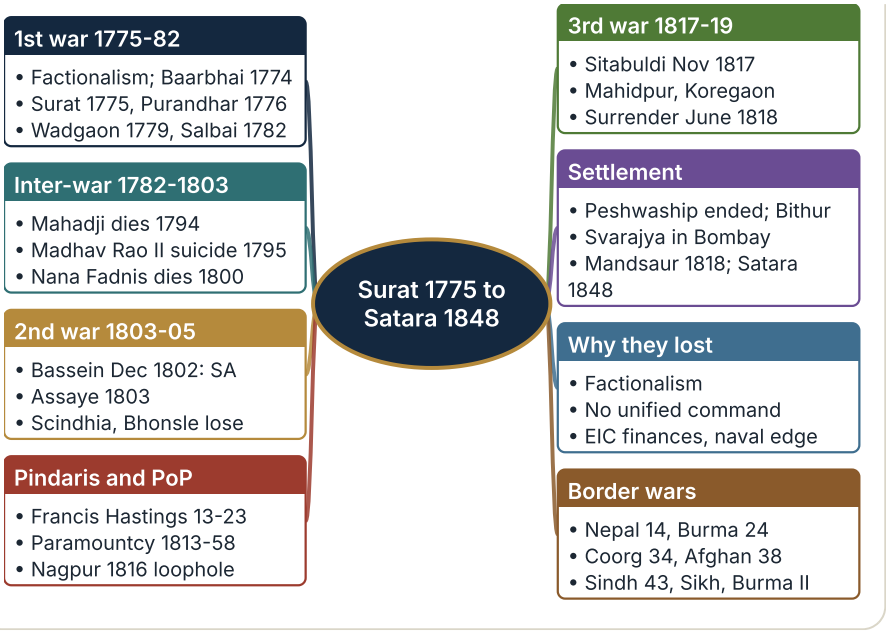
Triple Confederacy	1780-82 alliance of Marathas, Mysore and Hyderabad, broken by Salbai
Subsidiary Alliance (SA)	The EIC army replaces the State's own army; signed by Gaikwad, Peshwa, Scindhia, Bhonsle, Holkar
Mini alliance	Bhonsle's 1803-05 deal: territory ceded and an EIC army he pays for, not the full SA
Pindaris	Disbanded soldiers of Scindhia and Holkar who raided the Northern Sarkars and Madras Presidency
Policy of Paramountcy (PoP)	1813-58: the EIC is the supreme power and will do anything, even annex, to protect its interests
Senapati	Commander-in-Chief; the role Appa Sahib played at Sitabuldi
Protectorate	State loses external sovereignty to Britain but keeps symbolic and domestic sovereignty, like an SA
Peccavi	Napier's one-word dispatch after Sindh: 'I have sinned', a pun on 'I have Sindh'

Memory map

MEMORY MAP: ANGLO-MARATHA WARS TILL 1848



REMEMBER IT AS Factionalism pulled the EIC in at Surat, the SA disarmed the Peshwa, the loophole of 1816 led to war, and the Marathas lost from their own structure more than from EIC strength.

- Holkar had one.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Read the board with care. (1) The year after "SALBAI" on the 1st war looks like "1789"
- the typed slide and the handout say 1782. Use 1782.
- (2) Reason of the 3rd war: the board says "breach of SA by the EIC" (Residents turned Indirect Rule into puppetry), while a handout bracket calls the 1817 revolt "a violation of SA treaties" (the rulers' revolt).
- Use the teacher's line for "reason".

1 · Why did the Deccan matter so much to the EIC?

STORY LINK

Because the EIC needed coast, cotton and the Malabar side, the Marathas and Mysore stood in its way. Ask: which three reasons did the teacher underline?

Why the Deccan mattered to the EIC Lecture 15 slide 62

- The Deccan and the Konkan coast were commercially critical to the EIC: a large coastline, a significant cotton trade from Gujarat with China, and Maratha control over parts of the Malabar coast.
- The Maratha Confederacy along with Mysore were the last major Indian powers able to check EIC expansion across the subcontinent.
- Three Anglo-Maratha Wars and four Anglo-Mysore Wars (the previous chapter, Chapter 12) decided the outcome.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two commercial reasons:
  - Large coastline and cotton
  - the third is Maratha control of parts of the Malabar coast.
- The Deccan is drawn as an inverted triangle (inner lines).

HANDOUT ALERT

- The small years on the map (1802 along the Peshwa's territory, 1804 along Sindhia, 1805 along Gaikwar, 1803 near Agra and Surat) are not explained in the handout text.
- The Gaikwar "1805" does not match the text (Gaikwad signed June 1802, Treaty of Cambay).
- Use the map for where, the text for the years.

2 · First Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82)

STORY LINK

Because a Peshwa was thrown out by his own ministers, he sold land to the EIC for help. Ask: why is Purandhar an example of factionalism within the EIC?

2.1 What triggered the war?

- The cause was factionalism within the Maratha Confederacy itself, a pattern that repeats across all three wars.
- In 1773 Raghunath Rao 73-74 became Peshwa after the murder of his nephew Narayan Rao 72-73.
- In the Baarbhai Conspiracy (1774), Nana Fadnis and eleven other ministers of the Peshwa's council removed Raghunath Rao 73-74 from power.
- Raghunath Rao 73-74 then approached the EIC's Governor of Bombay, William Hornby, and signed the Treaty of Surat (1775).
- Under it the EIC agreed to help him regain the Peshwaship in return for Salsette and Bassein (Vasai, near Mumbai) along with some revenue from Bharuch and Surat.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Factionalism is the root cause. Learn the Peshwas' names and years, the Baarbhai Conspiracy 1774, the Bombay Governor William Hornby, and the deal: "EIC to help him" in return for Salsette and Bassein plus revenue.
- The deal = help for land and money.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The pattern (handout): exactly what happened in the Carnatic and Hyderabad during the Carnatic Wars: a succession dispute, a losing claimant, and Europeans offering military help for territory and influence.
- Factionalism of Indian States was the Europeans' most reliable ally. See Chapter 9.

How the 1st Anglo-Maratha War began

- 1773:
  - Narayan Rao 72-73 is murdered
  - Raghunath Rao 73-74 becomes Peshwa
- 1774, Baarbhai Conspiracy: Nana Fadnis + 11 ministers remove Raghunath Rao 73-74
- Raghunath Rao 73-74 goes to the EIC's Governor of Bombay, William Hornby
- 1775, Treaty of Surat: EIC help for him in return for Salsette, Bassein and revenue from Bharuch, Surat
- 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82) begins

2.2 Warren Hastings 73-85 overturns Surat: the Treaty of Purandhar (1776)

- Warren Hastings 73-85, the Governor General in Calcutta, overturned the Treaty of Surat to avoid expensive war expenditure.
- He negotiated the Treaty of Purandhar (1776) with Nana Fadnis:

Clause	Term
1	The EIC would recognise Madhav Rao II 74-95 as the legitimate Peshwa, and Raghunath Rao 73-74 would be pensioned off
2	The EIC would receive Salsette and Bharuch
3	The Marathas would not allow any French presence in their domain

Treaty of Purandhar 1776: terms and negotiators Lecture 15 slide 64

TEACHER'S BOARD

- [1665:
  - To PURANDHAR]: do not confuse the two Purandhars
  - The first was in 1665 (Chapter 4)
- Board note: GBF 1770 → 1772 → Loan by BANKRUPTCY (one word is).
- Read with Chapter 10: the Great Bengal Famine 1770 led to the EIC's bankruptcy in 1772, the money trouble behind Warren Hastings 73-85's wish to avoid war expenditure.
- The handout adds: this fits the Policy of Relative Isolation (later chapter).

- However, the EIC in Bombay continued sheltering Raghunath Rao 73-74.
- Nana Fadnis retaliated by offering a port to the French.
- Talks collapsed and war resumed.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "eg of FACTIONALISM within EIC": the Bombay EIC and the Calcutta EIC (Warren Hastings 73-85) pulled in two directions.
- Factionalism was not only a Maratha disease.

2.3 Events and the Treaty of Salbai (1782)

- In 1779, at the Battle of Wadgaon (near Pune), Nana Fadnis, Mahadji Scindhia and Tukoji Rao Holkar defeated the EIC and Raghunath Rao 73-74.
- But the war continued inconclusively. By 1782 the EIC was in a difficult position, but so were the Marathas, who were also engaged in the 2nd Anglo-Mysore War (1780-84).

Treaty of Salbai 1782: terms Lecture 15 slide 67

- The Treaty of Salbai (1782) was negotiated and signed at Gwalior by Mahadji Scindhia on behalf of the Marathas. It ended the war. Its terms:

Clause	Term
1	Military alliance between the EIC and the Marathas. The Marathas broke their anti-British alliance (the Triple Confederacy) and agreed to fight on the side of the EIC if Hyder Ali 61-82 did not restore the territories he had taken from the British and the Nawab of Arcot. (The handout: PoRF established by the EIC with the Marathas.)
2	The EIC got Salsette and Bharuch
3	No French settlements in Maratha domain
4	The EIC returned all Maratha territory it had captured, recognised Madhav Rao II 74-95 as Peshwa and pensioned off Raghunath Rao 73-74

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "alliance WITH neighbours" = Policy of Ring Fence (PoRF): a buffer of allied neighbours around the EIC (Chapter 10).
- Triple Confederacy = alliance of Marathas (Ma), Mysore (My) and Hyderabad (HYD), 1780-82
- it led to the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82) and the 2nd Anglo-Mysore War (1780-84).
- Stressed: military alliance, Salsette and Bharuch, no French settlements, Madhav Rao II 74-95 recognised, Raghunath Rao 73-74 pensioned off.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Why pension a rival? Handout:
  - Pensions were deliberate EIC diplomatic practice
  - the EIC could use this person in future succession disputes.
- The same device returns in 1818 with Bajirao II 96-18 at Bithur (Section 7).

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout figure is a one-page summary of the story
- it dates the Peshwa's pension to 1819 and the text dates Bajirao II 96-18's surrender to June 1818 (Section 6)
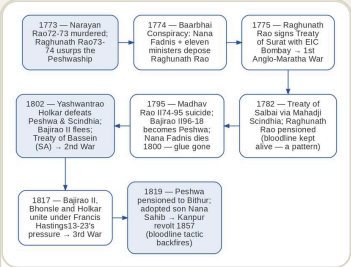
- Both belong to the same settlement (3rd war 1817-19).



Handout flow chart: Maratha chain of events, 1773 to 1819 handout figure

3 · The inter-war period (1782-1803)

STORY LINK

Because Salbai bought peace, the Marathas had 21 years to repair themselves. Ask: why did they decline instead?

- The 21-year gap between the Treaty of Salbai (1782) and the Treaty of Bassein (1802) was not a period of Maratha strength: it was a period of Maratha decline.

Year	What happened
1794	Mahadji Scindhia, who had dominated Maratha politics, dies
1795	Madhav Rao II 74-95 commits suicide
1796	Bajirao II 96-18 becomes Peshwa (the handout: Peshwa from 1796, formally tenured 1796-1818)
1800	Nana Fadnis dies: the one man who had consistently held the Confederacy together for two decades; factionalism accelerates sharply

- The Maratha capital, Shaniwar Wada at Pune, and the whole Confederacy were engulfed in factionalism.
- The empire-builder Wellesley 98-05 was waiting for exactly this opportunity.

4 · Second Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05): Wellesley 98-05's war

STORY LINK

Because a Holkar was executed, a Peshwa fled to the EIC and signed away his army. Ask: why did the SA unite the old rivals?

4.1 The trigger: Bassein (December 1802)

- In 1801 Vithoji Rao Holkar had been plundering the Peshwa's territories.
- He was captured and brutally executed on the orders of Peshwa Bajirao II 96-18.
- To avenge the death of his stepbrother, Yashwantrao Holkar attacked and defeated both the Peshwa and Daulat Rao Scindhia (who had supported the Peshwa) in October 1802.
- Bajirao II 96-18 fled and signed the Treaty of Bassein (December 1802): he agreed to a Subsidiary Alliance with the EIC in exchange for EIC help to regain the Peshwaship.
- The great army of Svarajya was to be disbanded once the EIC put its now-puppet Bajirao II 96-18 back as Peshwa.
- The Treaty of Bassein also triggered the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05).
- Ironically, it made Scindhia, Holkar and Bhonsle, who had been rivals, unite against the EIC.
- The Gaikwad had already signed an SA in June 1802 (Treaty of Cambay) to get EIC help in a succession dispute.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Stressed: Yashwantrao Holkar attacked and defeated the Peshwa and Scindhia, Treaty of Bassein (Dec 1802), Bajirao II 96-18 fled, Subsidiary Alliance, 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05), Gaikwad.
- SA order matters for the exam (section 4.3): Gaikwad (June 1802) came before the Peshwa (December 1802).

4.2 The battlefield: Assaye (1803)

- The EIC deployed significant military force.
- Arthur Wellesley, commanding his Royal regiment alongside the EIC army, fought key engagements, including the Battle of Assaye (1803) against the Marathas.
- He later described it as the toughest fight of his entire military career, harder, in his view, than anything he faced against Napoleon in Europe.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Stressed: Assaye, Arthur Wellesley, Royal regiment, alongside the EIC army.
- Two forces again: the Royal regiment (the King's army) fought alongside the EIC army (the Company's army), as at Plassey (Chapter 10).
- Arthur Wellesley is not the Governor General: the Governor General is Wellesley 98-05 (Chapter 11 on the Wellesley brothers).

4.3 Consequences

The war was lost by the Marathas. The consequences were far-reaching:

- 1. Bajirao II 96-18 regained the Peshwaship but was now a puppet of the EIC.
- 2. Scindhia lost all territory north of the River Yamuna, including Delhi and Agra, and all his territory in Gujarat.
- He was forced to sign a Subsidiary Alliance.
- In Delhi a British Resident was stationed, who established the Policy of Indirect Rule: the Mughal Emperor Shah Alam II 60-06 was now effectively under the EIC's indirect control.
- 3. Bhonsle of Nagpur lost Orissa but stubbornly refused to accept the Subsidiary Alliance.
- He was forced to sign a mini alliance (similar in structure to the Treaty of Allahabad 1765 with Awadh): he ceded territory and accepted an EIC army to be paid for by Bhonsle, but not yet the full Subsidiary Alliance.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Recall (handout bracket): Bhonsle raided the Bengal Suba in 1745-51 and extracted the Chauth of Bengal and Bihar and control of Orissa from Alivardi Khan 40-56.
- Orissa now returns to the EIC, the inheritor of Bengal (Chapter 10).
- The handout prints the Awadh treaty year as "17765"
- It is 1765.

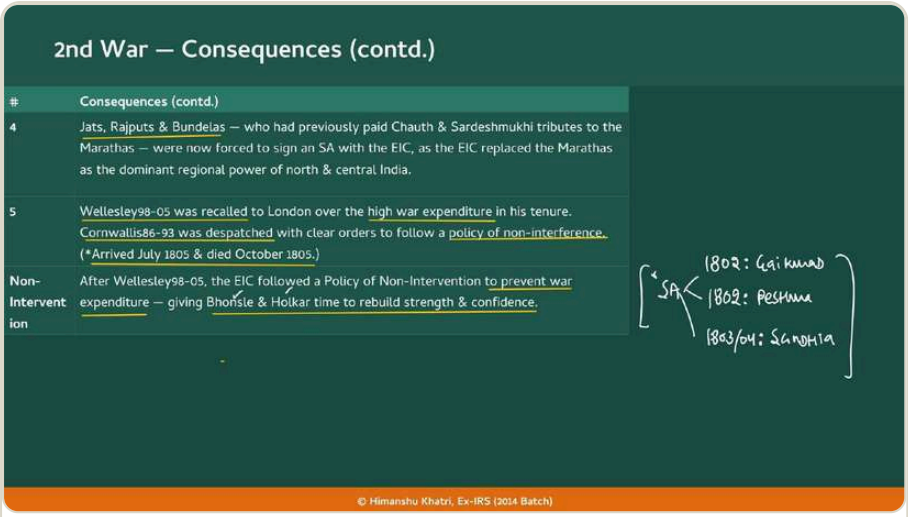
HANDOUT NOTE

The Emperor's masters, in order (handout bracket): Zulfikar Khan, the Sayyid Brothers, the Irani and Turani group, Safdar Jung 39-54, the Marathas, and now the EIC. See Chapter 2.



2nd War consequences contd.: Jats, Rajputs, Wellesley recalled, Non-Intervention Lecture 15 slide 72

- 4. The Jats, Rajputs and Bundelas, who had earlier paid Chauth and Sardeshmukhi tributes to the Marathas, were now forced to sign an SA with the EIC, as the EIC replaced the Marathas as the dominant regional power of north and central India.
- 5. Wellesley 98-05 was recalled to London because of the high war expenditure in his tenure.
- Cornwallis 86-93 was despatched with clear orders to follow a policy of non-interference (he arrived in July 1805 and died in October 1805).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Order of the Subsidiary Alliances: 1802 Gaikwad, 1802 Peshwa, 1803/04 Scindhia (1816 Bhonsle and 1818 Holkar follow, Section 7).
- Stressed: "high war expenditure" and "policy of non-interference".
- The Policy of Non-Intervention was meant to prevent war expenditure, but it gave Bhonsle and Holkar time to rebuild their military strength and confidence.

HANDOUT NOTE

Cornwallis 86-93: the code belongs to the man, not to the 1805 episode (a later, very short visit, July to October 1805, ending in his death); it is kept as written.

4.4 The Vellore Mutiny (1806)

SOURCE

- The handout's bracketed note on the Vellore Mutiny (1806), during George Barlow (Acting GG, 1805-07).
- Cause: new dress codes forbade sepoys from wearing religious marks (tilaks and turbans) and mandated leather cockades (ribbons shaped like a Christian cross on the hat, made of cow or pig skin).
- Result: an uprising in the Vellore Fort (north Tamil Nadu).
- It is often called the "Prelude to 1857."

TEACHER'S BOARD

Four exam handles: new dress codes, leather cockades, cow or pig skin, Vellore Fort (north Tamil Nadu).

5 · The Pindaris, Francis Hastings 13-23 and the Policy of Paramountcy (1813-58)

STORY LINK

Because Wellesley 98-05 spent too much, the EIC paused, and the pause let Pindaris and loopholes grow. Ask: what is Paramountcy, and what did the 1816 loophole allow?

- After Wellesley 98-05 the EIC followed a Policy of Non-Intervention to prevent war expenditure.
- This gave Bhonsle and Holkar time to rebuild their military strength and confidence.
- Meanwhile the Pindaris, disbanded soldiers of Scindhia and Holkar, began raiding EIC territory in the Northern Sarkars and parts of the Madras Presidency.
- They were defeated by the next empire-builder, Governor General Francis Hastings 13-23, whose Policy of Paramountcy (PoP, 1813-58) re-initiated imperial expansion.
- Under PoP the EIC was to be the paramount or supreme power in India and it would do anything, even annexation, if needed to protect its interests.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Pindaris: disbanded soldiers of Scindhia and Holkar who raided EIC territory (the who and the what).
- Two Hastings in this chapter: Warren Hastings 73-85 (1st war: Surat, Purandhar, Salbai) and Francis Hastings 13-23 (3rd war: Pindaris, Paramountcy). Do not mix them up.

HANDOUT ALERT

- The Hastings trap. "Lord Hastings" or "Hastings" alone can mean either.
- Fix it by the war:
  - 1775-82 = Warren Hastings 73-85
  - 1817-19 = Francis Hastings 13-23.
- The codes are the quickest tell: 73-85 against 13-23.

- The British Resident began treating Bajirao II 96-18 as a puppet, in a way that left him with no real authority.
- In Nagpur, Appa Sahib signed an SA under the Treaty of Nagpur (1816) for EIC help in a factionalism dispute over who would be regent of the Bhonsle of Nagpur (Maharaja Parsoji Bhonsle suffered from paralysis and was unable to rule).
- The treaty required disbanding the official state army, but rulers were allowed to keep retainers and police for internal security.
- Appa Sahib exploited this loophole by secretly recruiting fierce Arab and Rohilla mercenaries.

APPA SAHIB'S LOOPHOLE, 1816 TO SITABULDI

- Once his power was secure, and having Parsoji secretly murdered to become the actual Maharaja, Appa Sahib now wanted to rule independently and not as a puppet of the British Resident.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PoP = 1813-58. The 3rd war's reason on the overview board is "PoIR as part of PoP": the Policy of Indirect Rule (Residents controlling puppets) now ran inside the Policy of Paramountcy.
- Stressed: "signed SA", the succession dispute over the regent, secretly recruiting fierce Arab and Rohilla mercenaries, British Resident, "as a puppet" (for both Appa Sahib and Bajirao II 96-18).
- Same pattern as Surat 1775 and Bassein 1802: a succession or power dispute, the ruler asks the EIC for help, the EIC takes control.
- The loophole is the SA template's weak point and the reason the 3rd war broke out.

6 · Third Anglo-Maratha War and the Pindari War (1817-19)

STORY LINK

Because the rulers rebelled against being puppets, the largest EIC force ever marched. Ask: why does Sitabuldi show the SA caused the war?

6.1 The Battle of Sitabuldi (November 1817)

- In late 1817 Bajirao II 96-18, Appa Sahib (regent of the Bhonsle of Nagpur) and Yashwantrao Holkar united in revolt, determined to end the EIC's political domination.
- (The handout's bracket: this is a violation of SA treaties.) This led to the 3rd Anglo-Maratha War (1817-19).
- Bajirao II 96-18 had signed a Subsidiary Alliance under which the EIC army had replaced the Svarajya's own army, so technically he had no State army.
- He fought with men he personally recruited outside the EIC's supervision.
- Appa Sahib acted as Senapati (Commander-in-Chief). He used his Arab mercenaries to launch a surprise, close-quarters attack directly on the British Residency and the adjacent Sitabuldi hills.
- Despite heavily outnumbering the garrison, his forces were defeated at the Battle of Sitabuldi (November 1817).

HANDOUT NOTE

- Tested in Prelims (handout), Sitabuldi: (i) Appa Sahib signed the SA in 1816 but fought in 1817: the SA did not prevent the war, its terms caused it.
- (ii) The "disbanded army" requirement was bypassed through Arab and Rohilla mercenaries hired as "internal security retainers": the SA template's loophole.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Naming slip. The handout and typed slide name "Yashwantrao Holkar" among the rebels of 1817, while the board and later battle slides write only "Holkar".
- Learn "Holkar of Indore" for the 3rd war and "Yashwantrao Holkar" for the 1802 revenge on the Peshwa
- If a question gives a first name for 1817, follow the handout

6.2 Battles and surrender

K Koregaon, 1 January 1818: Mahar soldiers hold off the Peshwa army

S Surrender: Bajirao II 96-18, June 1818

Order kept: the battles in time order.

Event	Detail
Force size	The EIC deployed its largest military force ever in India: about 1.2 lakh troops
Battle of Sitabuldi (Nov 1817)	Appa Sahib defeated (Section 6.1)
Battle of Mahidpur (Dec 1817)	Holkar decisively defeated
Battle of Koregaon (1 Jan 1818)	A small EIC force of Mahar soldiers held off a much larger Peshwa army. Later commemorated as the Bhima-Koregaon Victory Pillar
Surrender (June 1818)	Peshwa Bajirao II 96-18 surrendered

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three battles, three opponents: Sitabuldi = Appa Sahib (Bhonsle), Mahidpur = Holkar, Koregaon = Peshwa.
- Also stressed:
  - Mahar soldiers held off a much larger Peshwa army
  - the Bhima-Koregaon Victory Pillar.

HANDOUT ALERT

1.2 lakh = 1,20,000 troops (handout). The question bank's explanation writes "1.2 lakh (110,000)"; the numbers disagree. Use about 1.2 lakh.

7 · Consequences of the Third Anglo-Maratha War (1817-19)

STORY LINK

Because the war was lost, the Peshwaship ended and the last throne was spared only for a while. Ask: what were the five results, and why was the Chhatrapati kept?

- 1. The Peshwaship was abolished. Bajirao II 96-18 was pensioned off to Bithur, near Kanpur.
- (His adopted son was Nana Sahib, who would later lead the Kanpur revolt in 1857.)
- 2. Svarajya was annexed into the Bombay Presidency.
- The original Maratha homeland became a province of the Company State
- the regional headquarters of EIC trade evolved into a province of British India.
- 3. Appa Sahib was deposed and replaced by a puppet. Bhonsle lost huge territory.

3rd War consequences contd.: Holkar, Satara and Kolhapur Lecture 15 slide 79

Order kept: the five signatories in time order.

- 5. Satara and Kolhapur were not annexed.
- The EIC maintained the Chhatrapati's line as a symbolic gesture.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Why keep the Chhatrapati? Handout:
  - A powerless figurehead since the 1750s anyway
  - keeping him cost nothing and avoided the optics of destroying a revered institution.
- Satara was annexed in 1848 under Dalhousie 48-56's Doctrine of Lapse (Chapter 14).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Family tree behind the two spared thrones: Shivaji 74-80 had two sons, Sambhaji 80-89 and Rajaram 89-00.
- Sambhaji 80-89's line: Shahu 19-49 (Satara), then Ram Raja (1749-77) ("To SANGOLA").
- Rajaram 89-00's line:
  - Tarabai [and Shivaji II]
  - his second wife Rajasbai's son Sambhaji II (1714) got Kolhapur by the Treaty of Warna, 1731.
- So Satara and Kolhapur are two branches of one family (Chapter 4).

HANDOUT ALERT

- The date beside "Sangola" on the board reads like "1758"
- Chapter 4 gives the Treaty of Sangola in 1750. Learn Sangola 1750 (Chapter 4)
- The last digit of "Shahu 19-49" on the board is also unclear
- Use Shahu 19-49.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Board: "1816: SA - BHONSLE" (Treaty of Nagpur) = full SA.
- Handout figure: Scindhia and Bhonsle "reduced to Subsidiary-Alliance rulers" after the 3rd war.
- They fit: mini alliance 1803-05, full SA 1816, complete reduction by 1818.

8 · Why did the Marathas lose?

STORY LINK

Because the pattern repeated in three wars, the teacher distilled four reasons. Ask: which two are internal and which two external?

Four structural reasons explain the Maratha defeat:

- 1. Factionalism.
- 2. Absence of unified command. Scindhia, Holkar, Bhonsle and the Gaikwad of Baroda never coordinated effectively.
- 3. The EIC's superior finances.
- 4. Naval and logistics advantage. The Konkan coast could be blockaded by EIC ships
- the EIC could move troops faster across India via sea and better road infrastructure than the Marathas

MNEMONIC · WHY THE MARATHAS LOST

F A T E

The Marathas met their FATE: divided at home and out-resourced abroad.

F Factionalism

A Absence of unified command: Scindhia, Holkar, Bhonsle, Gaikwad

T Troops and ships moved faster: the naval and logistics advantage

E EIC's superior finances

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Takeaway: the Confederacy fell less from EIC military superiority than from its own structure: factionalism and no unified command, against the EIC's deeper finances and naval-logistics reach.
- A divided Maratha house was the EIC's most reliable ally.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Stressed:
  - Factionalism (the first and repeating cause), unified command, Naval &amp
  - Logistics advantage.
- Overview-board lesson: factionalism is the reason in two wars out of three, and a disbanded army is the weak point in the third.

HANDOUT NOTE

The four reasons: the first two are internal (the Marathas' own structure), the last two external (the EIC's edge).

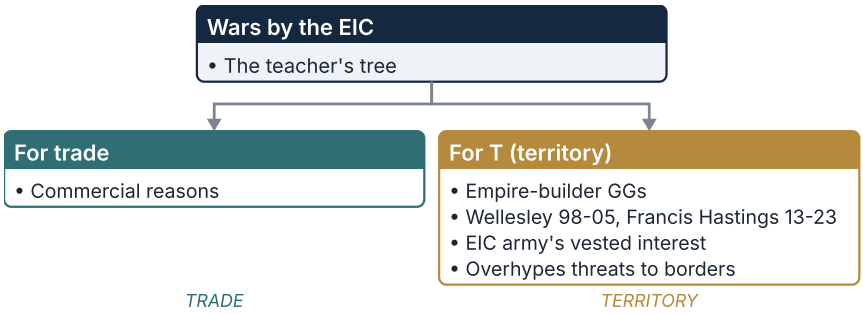
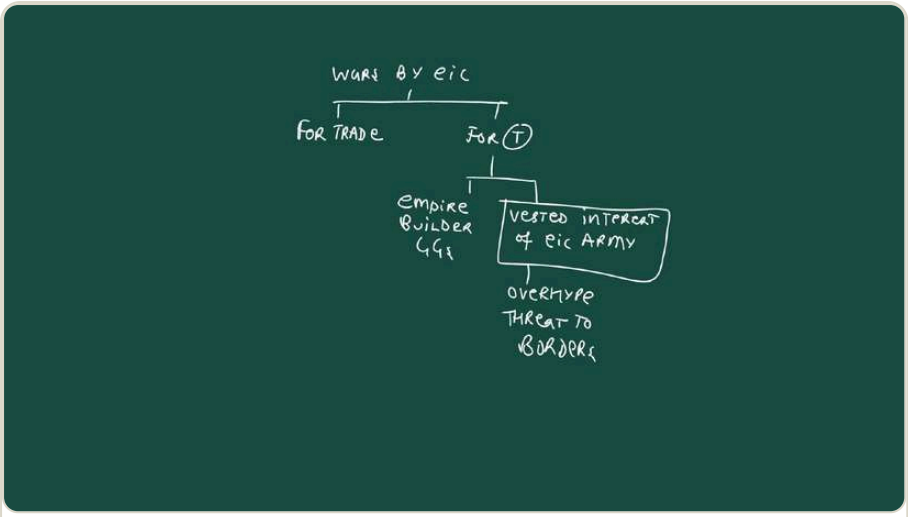
9 · Wars due to the EIC army over-hyping the threat to borders

THE EIC'S WARS: TWO KINDS



STORY LINK

Because the EIC had won in the Deccan, its army looked to the borders. Ask: what are the two kinds of EIC wars, and what is a protectorate?



Wars by the EIC: for trade or for territory Lecture 15 slide 82

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Wars by the EIC are of two kinds: for trade, and for T (territory).
- Wars for territory have two drivers: (1) empire-builder Governor Generals, and (2) the vested interest of the EIC army, which benefits from a big threat and overhypes the threat to the borders.
- The wars in this section are the second kind.

Protectorate: symbolic sovereignty not taken Lecture 15 slide 83

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Protectorate:
  - Symbolic sovereignty is not taken. Of the two kinds of sovereign function, external (EXT) goes to Britain (Br)
  - Domestic (Dom) is not taken.
- Like a Subsidiary Alliance: the State loses external sovereign functions but keeps symbolic sovereignty and domestic functions.

9.1 Nepal, Burma and Coorg

War	Years	Governor General	Treaty or result
Anglo-Nepal	1814-16	Francis Hastings 13-23	Treaty of Sugauli (1816): Nepal became a British Protectorate; it lost Kumaon, Garhwal and the Terai to British India
1st Anglo-Burmese	1824-26	Amherst 23-28	Burma was expanding territory, giving the EIC the chance to overhype the threat to borders. Treaty of Yandabo (1826) annexed Assam, Nagaland and parts of lower Burma (Arakan and Tenasserim); Cachar annexed in 1830. The Ahom Kingdom of Assam had supported the EIC: in a stab in the back it was annexed too
Coorg War	1834	William Bentinck 28-35	On grounds of maladministration by Vira Raja. Massive coffee plantations were set up after annexation

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "misc": the miscellaneous part of the chapter, a short list to memorise, not a full story.
- Burmese row: "= THREAT TO Assam" - the threat the EIC army overhyped was to Assam, the Ahom kingdom that had backed the EIC and was then annexed.
- Stressed: Sugauli (1816), British Protectorate, Kumaon-Garhwal-Terai, Yandabo (1826), Assam-Nagaland, lower Burma, Cachar 1830, maladministration by Vira Raja.

9.2 Afghanistan and Sindh

1st Anglo-Afghan War (1838-42), under Auckland 36-42:

- Part of the Great Game between Britain and Russia (the teacher: "over Central Asia").
- Under Auckland 36-42's Forward Policy (the teacher: "Aggressive foreign policy"), the EIC tried to install Shah Shuja in Kabul against the actual ruler, Dost Mohammed.
- Disaster: 20,000 British and Indian soldiers dead, expenditure of Rs 1.5 crore, and the famous retreat from Kabul (only one European survivor reached British India).
- Auckland 36-42 was recalled. Ellenborough 42-44 ended the war.

1 European survivor of the retreat from Kabul

- Dost Mohammed recaptured power but maintained good relations with the stronger power, the British.

Annexation of Sindh (1843), under Ellenborough 42-44:

- Taken from the "Char Yaar" (four Baloch chiefs of the Talpur dynasty) without any justification.
- The military commander was Sir Charles Napier.

TEACHER'S BOARD

  - The Great Game, Auckland 36-42's Forward Policy, Auckland 36-42 recalled, Ellenborough 42-44 ended it, Dost Mohammed

1780 Second Anglo-Mysore War (4)
1824 First Anglo-Burmese War (1)
1838 First Anglo-Afghan War (2)

STORY LINK

Because the exam loves chronology, three Prelims PYQs sit under this chapter. Ask: which year do you use to match a war, the start or the end?

SOURCE

- "Alert: Prelims PYQs": three real Prelims PYQs sit under this chapter, all chronology traps.
- PYQ 1 (Prelims 1999):
  - Match the year to the war
  - Use the year of outbreak, not the end year.
- PYQ 2 (Prelims 2004):
  - Match the AD range to the war
  - 1767-69 is Mysore, not Maratha.
- PYQ 3 (Prelims 2010): the immediate reason Abdali invaded and fought the Third Battle of Panipat.

PYQ Prelims 1999: match years with events Lecture 15 slide 89

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1999: answer (c) A-3 B-4 C-1 D-2.
- Anchor = the year the war broke out:
  - 1775 = 1st Anglo-Maratha War (Treaty of Surat)
  - 1780 = 2nd Anglo-Mysore War
  - 1824 = 1st Anglo-Burmese War
  - 1838 = 1st Anglo-Afghan War.
- Trap: memorising by end year (1782, 1784, 1826, 1842) gives a wrong code.
- Method: write the full range beside each war and match the first number.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2004: answer (d) 2 and 3.
- B (1790-92 = 3rd Anglo-Mysore War) and C (1824-26 = 1st Anglo-Burmese War) are correct.
- A is wrong: 1767-69 is the 1st Anglo-Mysore War (the 1st Anglo-Maratha began 1775).
- D is wrong:
  - 1845-46 is the 1st Anglo-Sikh War
  - the 2nd was 1848-49.
- The question is "Partial" because these wars sit in several chapters.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2010: answer (a). The immediate provocation: the Marathas seized Lahore and drove out Abdali's son and viceroy Timur Shah, so Abdali invaded to avenge the expulsion, ending in the Third Battle of Panipat (1761).
- (b) wrong: Adina Beg Khan invited the Marathas, not Abdali.
- (c) tribute was not the trigger
- (d) annexing Punjab is a general ambition, not the immediate reason. See Chapter 4

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Doctrine of Lapse: formulated by the Court of Directors in 1847, implemented systematically by Dalhousie 48-56 (the teacher wrote PRELIMS beside it); Dalhousie 48-56 = Doctrine of Lapse in the Prelims 2002 match
- Lapse order (Prelims 2004): Satara 1848, Sambalpur 1849, Jhansi 1854, so the sequence 1 Jhansi, 2 Sambalpur, 3 Satara reads 3, 2, 1; seven States in seven years, and Udaipur 1852 is the Chhattisgarh one, not Mewar
- Awadh 1856 was NOT Lapse: the ruler removed on the pretext of misgovernance (Prelims 2008); Berar 1853 came from Hyderabad in lieu of subsidy; Sindh 1843 was Ellenborough 42-44's, not Dalhousie 48-56's
- Match traps: the Vernacular Press Act 1878 is Lytton 76-80's, not Curzon 99-05's (Prelims 2004); Chilianwala 1849 is a 2nd Anglo-Sikh War battle, Wandiwash 1760 is French against the EIC (Prelims 1995)
- Prelims 1996 title ladder: Cornwallis 86-93 (Fort William), Dalhousie 48-56 (India), Minto 05-10 (Viceroy), Wavell 43-47 (Crown Representative); Treaty of Lahore 9 March 1846 against Treaty of Amritsar 16 March 1846 against Amritsar 1809

MAINS HOOKS

- Mains 2013 (10 marks): In many ways, Dalhousie 48-56 was the founder of modern India. Elaborate: the infrastructure skeleton (rail, telegraph, post, PWD, Wood's Despatch), built for colonial ends, outlasted them
- Dalhousie 48-56 as annexationist and moderniser at once, and the Doctrine of Lapse with its 1857 link (Lakshmibai, Nana Sahib, Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57)
- Why Awadh and Punjab fell: the Ring Fence logic failing from inside (no power but all the blame; factionalism after Ranjit Singh 01-39)
- The five-policy arc (Relative Isolation to Subordinate Union) as the reason 1857 came when it did: consolidation at the cost of legitimacy

Dalhousie 48-56 used Paramountcy to take the Company State to 63% of the land and 78% of the people, and the same annexations cost it its legitimacy before 1857.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Paramountcy made British interests supreme, so Dalhousie 48-56 used Lapse, war and unpaid subsidy to take the Company State to 63% of the land; the same annexations, from Jhansi to Awadh, cost it the legitimacy that 1857 then tested.

1. A trading company that wanted to be left alone. In 1600 the EIC was a trading company, here for business and not for ruling. Its army was small (the Child's War 1686-90 showed it), so it stayed out of Indian politics, but not absolutely: when an opportunity came, as after Buxar 1764, it interfered, took a benefit and went back. After 1757 its power kept rising, and so did its interference.

   → So by 1813 interference became a declared policy.

2. Paramountcy: British interests first. Francis Hastings 13-23 began the Policy of Paramountcy in 1813: among all States in India the Company State is supreme, British interests come first, and the EIC will annex if it must. Every State was locked in a sealed bubble with the EIC as gatekeeper. Paramountcy was the Subsidiary Alliance minus the rights of the Indian State.

   → Into this policy walks Dalhousie 48-56.

3. Three roads to expansion. Dalhousie 48-56 used Paramountcy in three ways: the Doctrine of Lapse, wars (Punjab 1849, Pegu 1852-53) and annexation in lieu of subsidy (Berar 1853). By 1856 the Company State held 63% of India and 78% of its people, and no more mainland was annexed after him. The teacher's logic: a succession dispute means instability, which hurts British business, and British interests are paramount.

   → The first road was a rule about heirs.

4. The Doctrine of Lapse. The Court of Directors formulated it in 1847; Dalhousie 48-56 implemented it. If a ruler died without a biological heir his rights lapsed, overriding adoption under Hindu law. Seven States fell in seven years: Satara 1848, Sambalpur and Jaitpur 1849, Baghat 1850, Udaipur 1852 (in Chhattisgarh), Jhansi and Nagpur 1854. The Inam Commission of 1852 applied the same logic to land, seizing about 20,000 estates in the Bombay Presidency, and the pension of Bajirao II 96-18 was refused to Nana Sahib.

   → The second road was unpaid subsidy.

5. Berar and Awadh: subsidy turns into land. Hyderabad signed the first Subsidiary Alliance in 1798; by 1853 it could not pay, so Dalhousie 48-56 annexed Berar. Awadh followed the same chain: Clive 57-67's treaty of 1765, Shore's swap of Wazir Ali 97-98 for Sadat Ali Khan II in 1798 for Rs 76 lakh, half of Awadh taken in 1801 under Wellesley 98-05, and in 1856 the rest, on maladministration. Wajid Ali Shah had heirs, so this was not Lapse.

   → The third road was war, and its first target was the Sikh State.

6. The Sikh State: from buffer to target. Under Ranjit Singh 01-39 the Sikh State was the ideal stable, strong, friendly buffer. After 1839 four factions tore it apart: the royal family, the Sindhanwaliyas, the Dogra Rajputs and the Khalsa Army. The Treaty of Lahore (9 March 1846) cut the army, took the Jalandhar Doab, and sold Kashmir to Gulab Singh for 75 lakh Nanakshahee rupees against a 1.5 crore indemnity, formalised by the Treaty of Amritsar (16 March 1846).

→ But a Resident and a reduced army were not the end.

7 Punjab annexed, the Koh-i-Noor taken. In 1848 the Sikh Governors Mulraj (Multan) and Chattar Singh (Haripur) revolted, the opportunity the empire-builder Dalhousie 48-56 needed. Punjab was annexed in 1849 from Duleep Singh 43-49, a child of 5 at accession; the Koh-i-Noor went to the British Crown and a Board of Administration (the Lawrence Brothers and Charles Mansel) ruled. The frontier now touched the Afghan foothills.

→ War also reached the eastern shore.

8 Pegu and the sea ring. The 2nd Anglo-Burmese War 1852-53 annexed Pegu; with Arakan and Tenasserim (1824-26) the Bay of Bengal became a British lake. The Bay's coast fell clockwise from Bengal 1757 to Pegu 1853, and the Arabian Sea anticlockwise from Bombay 1668 to Sindh 1843 (not Dalhousie 48-56's, but Ellenborough 42-44's). Beyond India came Kalat 1854, Jacobabad 1876, Persia 1856-57, 1907 and 1909.

→ But Dalhousie 48-56 did not only annex.

9 The moderniser. A follower of Utilitarianism, Dalhousie 48-56 built the skeleton of modern India: railways from 1853 (Bombay-Thane first), the telegraph (about 4,000 miles), the Post Office Act 1854 with a half-anna rate, a civilian PWD and the restored GT Road, and Wood's Despatch 1854. The motives: troops, cheaper administration, raw materials and markets. The three universities came in 1857 under Canning 56-62.

→ Yet each annexation was adding to a hidden bill.

10 The five policies and the hidden bill. The arc ran from Relative Isolation through PoIR and PoRF, the Subsidiary Alliance 1798 and Paramountcy 1813 to Subordinate Union 1858; each step built on the last, which is why 1857 came when it did. Dalhousie 48-56 consolidated the Company State but destroyed its legitimacy: Rani Lakshmibai (Lapse 1854), Nana Sahib (pension 1851), Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57, the Awadh court, disbanded Sikh soldiers, talukdars and inam-holders were all aggrieved.

→ And then the Crown had to clean up.

11 1858: the reversal. Dalhousie 48-56 handed over to Canning 56-62 in 1856, who inherited the revolt. The Government of India Act 1858 abolished the Company State, and Queen Victoria's Proclamation of 1858 ended the Doctrine of Lapse and pledged respect for the treaties and rights of Indian rulers. Paramountcy gave way to Subordinate Union, Indian Kings became Indian Princes, and there were no further annexations.

In simple words

- Dalhousie 48-56 used the Policy of Paramountcy (1813-58) in three ways: the Doctrine of Lapse, wars (Punjab 1849, Pegu 1852-53) and territory in lieu of subsidy (Berar 1853).
- By 1856 the Company State held 63% of the land and 78% of the people, and after Dalhousie 48-56 there were no further annexations.
- The Doctrine of Lapse (Court of Directors 1847) said no biological heir, rights lapsed: seven States in seven years (1848-54). Awadh 1856 went for maladministration, not Lapse.
- He was also a moderniser (Utilitarianism, James Mill): railways, telegraph, post, PWD, Wood's Despatch, built for troops, cheaper administration, raw materials and markets.
- The five policies ran from Relative Isolation to Subordinate Union (1858-1947)
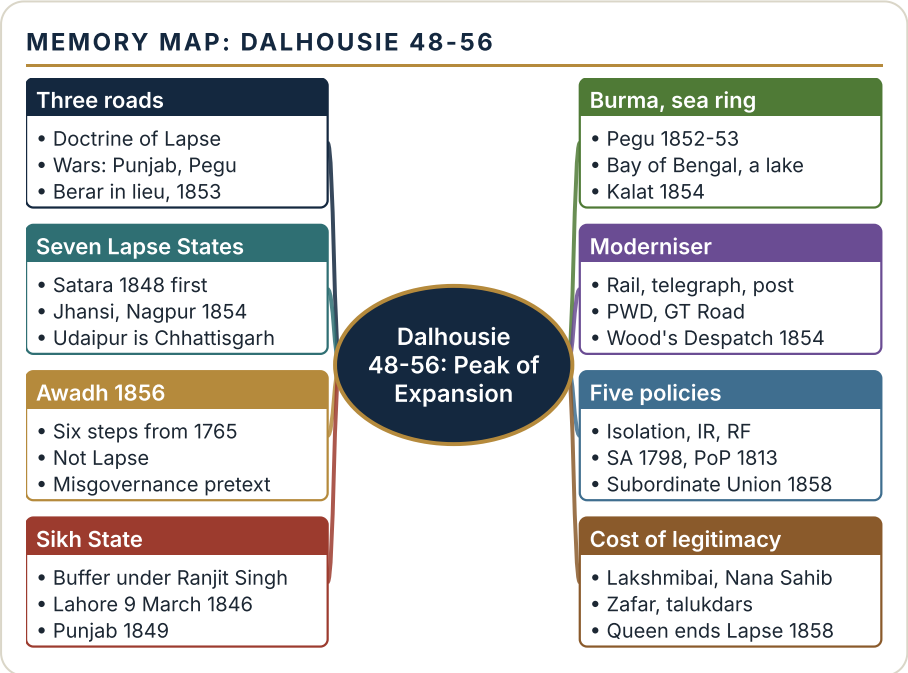
- Each step built on the last, which is why the annexations cost the Company State its legitimacy before 1857

Key term	In plain words
Policy of Paramountcy (PoP 1813-58)	Started by Francis Hastings 13-23: the Company State is supreme among all States in India and British interests come first, even if that means annexation
Doctrine of Lapse	Formulated by the Court of Directors in 1847: if a ruler dies without a biological heir his rights lapse and the State is annexed, overriding adoption under Hindu law
Court of Directors	The top decision-making body of the EIC (a company body, not a Government body)

Key term	In plain words
Annexation in lieu of subsidy	Taking territory as permanent payment when a State cannot pay its subsidy (Berar 1853; half of Awadh 1801)
Inam Commission (1852)	Set up in the Bombay Presidency to demand proof of title for tax-free grants (inams); about 20,000 estates seized
Ceded Districts	The half of Awadh annexed in 1801 (the Doab, Gorakhpur, Rohilkhand); NWP in 1836
Policy of Indirect Rule (PoIR)	A British Resident in the court controlling administration without formal annexation
Policy of Ring Fence (PoRF)	A military alliance with a frontier State as a buffer against external threats
Koh-i-Noor	The diamond surrendered by Duleep Singh 43-49 to the British Crown when Punjab was annexed
Pegu	Lower Burma, annexed after the 2nd Anglo-Burmese War 1852-53; with Arakan and Tenasserim it made the Bay of Bengal a British lake
Subordinate Union (1858-1947)	Paramountcy plus sovereignty formally with the British Crown; Indian Kings become Indian Princes
Symbolic sovereignty	The title that stayed with the Indian ruler while the external functions (Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs) went to the stronger power

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS Dalhousie 48-56 = Lapse, War, Lieu: 63% of the land, 78% of the people, and the legitimacy spent before 1857.

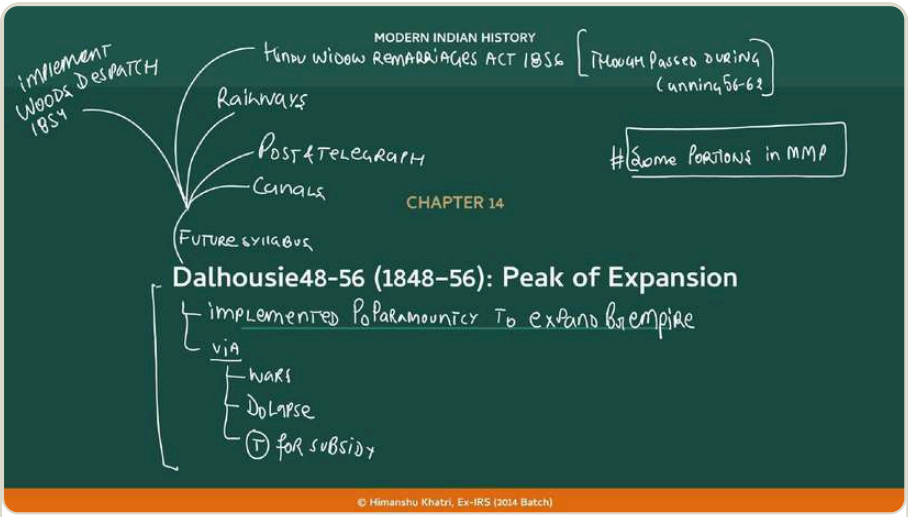
0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Story so far: one man, three roads (Lapse, War, Lieu), and a second face as builder. Keep the board in mind. Ask: what did the teacher say Dalhousie 48-56 implemented, and via what?



Chapter 14 title: Dalhousie 48-56, Peak of Expansion Lecture 16 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Dalhousie 48-56 implemented the Policy of Paramountcy to expand the British empire "via" three routes: Wars, Doctrine of Lapse, and territory (T) in place of subsidy.
- The other face of the same man ("Future syllabus", see Chapter 19 for education and social reform): Wood's Despatch 1854, Hindu Widow Remarriage Act 1856 (passed during Canning 56-62, so Dalhousie only supported it), Railways, Post and Telegraph, Canals.

Policy of Paramountcy 1813-58 Lecture 16 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Policy of Paramountcy (1813-58), by Francis Hastings 13-23 (1813-23). Paramount = Supreme.
- "Among all States in India, the Company State is paramount
- British interests are supreme, and to guard those interests the EIC will do anything, even annexation." India = Company State (63% of territory, 78% of population) + 565 Indian States.
- It "contributed to the 3rd Anglo-Maratha War 1817-19" (Chapter 13).
- "Paramountcy of the British Crown" (1858 to 15 August 1947) = a legal relationship between the Crown and the Indian Prince, "not British India" (British India is the part ruled by the British).
- Do not mix the two Paramountcies: the EIC's (1813-58) and the Crown's (1858-1947).

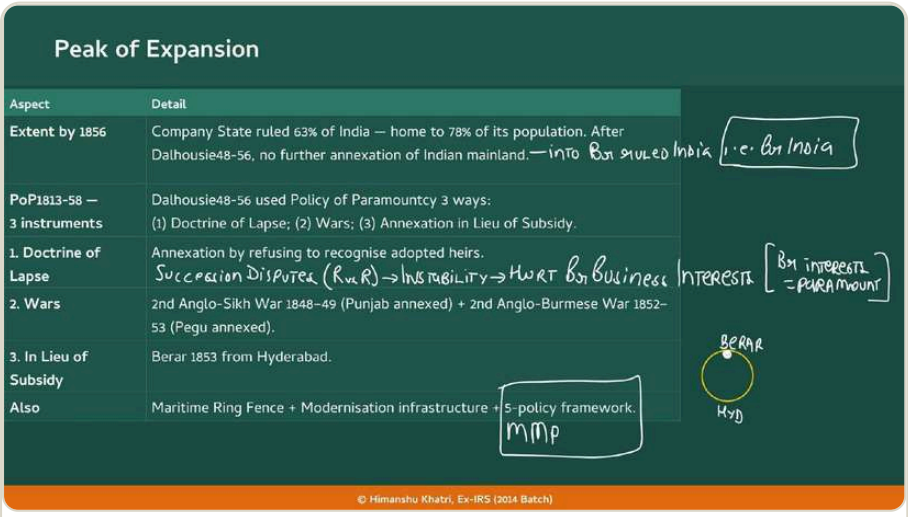
HANDOUT ALERT

Board "Notes of Foundation" with "MMP": it reads as: most of this chapter's material is the "foundation" (this notebook) and a small part is covered in the teacher's MMP. Nothing more is given.

1 · Peak of Expansion: how far and by what means

STORY LINK

Because Paramountcy made British interests supreme, expansion had a policy behind it. Ask: what were the three instruments, and what share of land and people did the Company State hold by 1856?



Peak of Expansion: extent by 1856 and three instruments Lecture 16 slide 5

- By the end of Dalhousie 48-56's tenure the Company State controlled 63% of India, home to 78% of its population.
- After Dalhousie 48-56 there were no further annexations.

NUMBER CARD · THE SIZE OF THE COMPANY STATE

6 3 · 7 8 · 7

Six-three of land, seven-eight of people, seven States in seven years.

63% of India's territory under the Company State by 1856

78% of India's population under the Company State

7 States annexed by Lapse in seven years, 1848-54

1847 Court of Directors formulates the Doctrine of Lapse

1852 Inam Commission: about 20,000 estates seized in Bombay Presidency

- He used the Policy of Paramountcy (PoP 1813-58) in three ways:

THE THREE INSTRUMENTS OF PARAMOUNTCY

- 1. Doctrine of Lapse: annexation by refusing to recognise adopted heirs.
- 2. Wars: the 2nd Anglo-Sikh War 1848-49 (Punjab annexed) and the 2nd Anglo-Burmese War 1852-53 (Pegu annexed).
- 3. Annexation in Lieu of Subsidy: Berar 1853 from Hyderabad.
- Besides these: the Maritime Ring Fence, the modernisation infrastructure and the five-policy framework.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Annexation of the Indian mainland" = annexation "into British-ruled India, i.e. British India." Logic of Lapse: succession disputes (R v R, ruler against ruler) → instability → hurt British business interests
- "British interests = Paramount." So Lapse is not just a legal trick: instability in an Indian State threatens British trade, and British interests are supreme.
- Third instrument: Berar, drawn inside the Hyderabad circle.

2 · The Doctrine of Lapse: legal principle against pretext

STORY LINK

Because succession disputes hurt trade, a rule about heirs became a tool of expansion. Ask: who formulated it, who implemented it, and what did it override?

- The Doctrine of Lapse was formulated by the Court of Directors of the EIC in 1847 but implemented systematically by Dalhousie 48-56.
- The rule was simple: if an Indian ruler died without a biological heir, his rights lapsed and the State was annexed into British India.
- Under Hindu law, adoption was a legitimate mechanism for succession: adopted sons inherited with full legitimacy.
- The Doctrine of Lapse refused to recognise this.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Court of Directors = "top decision-making body of the EIC", i.e. the Board of Directors, "not a Government body." "PRELIMS": who formulated the doctrine (Court of Directors, 1847) against who implemented it (Dalhousie 48-56, "Author of DoL" in common speech).
- "Rights lapsed" = R2 Rule, R2 Pension: the right to rule and the right to the pension both lapsed. "DoL overrides Hindu Law."

HANDOUT ALERT

- "Author" is not "formulator." Handout:
  - Formulated by the Court of Directors in 1847, implemented systematically by Dalhousie 48-56
  - he is "author" only loosely
- In a Prelims statement choose by the verb:
  - Formulated = Court of Directors
  - Implemented = Dalhousie 48-56.

3 · Seven States in seven years (1848-54)

STORY LINK

Because the rule was applied State by State, seven fell in seven years. Ask: which was first, which two share 1849, and which Udaipur is meant?

- Under the Doctrine of Lapse, Dalhousie 48-56 annexed seven States in seven years.

MNEMONIC · SEVEN LAPSE STATES, IN DATE ORDER

Sonless Sovereigns Judged Barren; Unseated, Jhansi, Nagpur

- S Satara 1848: Maharashtra
- S Sambalpur 1849: Odisha
- J Jaitpur 1849: Bundelkhand, UP
- B Baghat 1850: hill State near Solan, HP
- U Udaipur 1852: Chhattisgarh, not Mewar
- J Jhansi 1853-54: UP
- N Nagpur 1854: Maharashtra

Order kept: the table's date order. Awadh 1856 is not on this list.

#	Year	State	Present-day region
1	1848	Satara	Maharashtra
2	1849	Sambalpur	Odisha
3	1849	Jaitpur	Uttar Pradesh, Bundelkhand region
4	1850	Baghat	Himachal Pradesh: a small hill State near Solan
5	1852	Udaipur	Chhattisgarh (formerly part of the Central Provinces)
6	1853-54	Jhansi	Uttar Pradesh
7	1854	Nagpur	Maharashtra

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mnemonic: "BHAGAT SAMBHAL, JA JHAdio mein, UDta SA NAG" = Baghat, Sambalpur, Jaitpur, Jhansi, Udaipur, Satara, Nagpur.
- This is not date order
- Use the table for dates
- Nagpur: "L 1816 Subordinate Alliance" (its treaty of 1816, Chapter 13, and its later fate).

HANDOUT ALERT

- The Udaipur annexed in 1852 is NOT the famous Rajput kingdom of Udaipur (Mewar) in Rajasthan.
- It is a smaller princely State in present-day Chhattisgarh (then the Central Provinces).
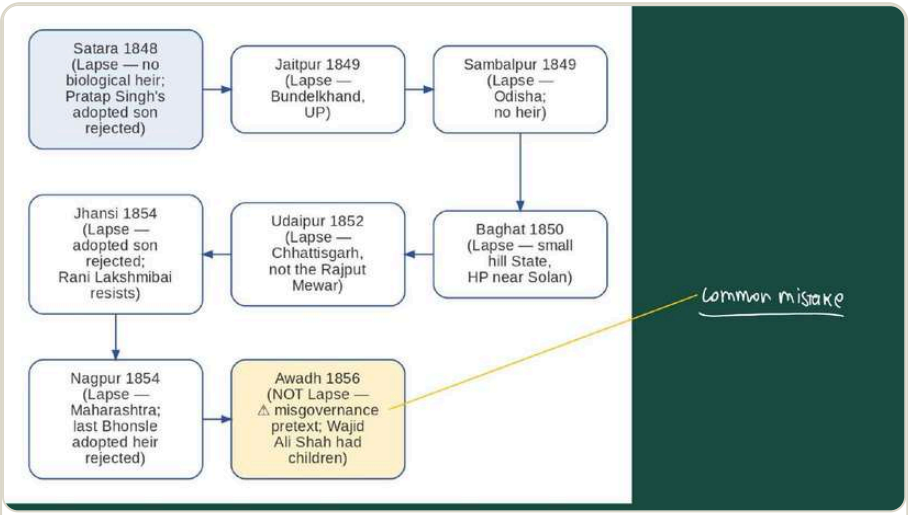
- The handout and slide both flag this trap.



Lapse annexations: flowchart Lecture 16 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Common mistake": Awadh 1856 is not a Lapse annexation.
- It sits apart at the end of the Lapse chain. Why: Section 7.

HANDOUT NOTE

- A date wrinkle. The handout table gives Jhansi as 1853-54
- the flowchart and the Prelims 2004 answer give 1854.
- For a sequence question use 1854.
- (Satara 1848, Sambalpur 1849, Jhansi 1854 gives order 3, 2, 1.) The flowchart lists Jaitpur before Sambalpur
- Both are 1849, so the table's order (Sambalpur, then Jaitpur) is the one to learn

4 · The Inam Commission (1852)

STORY LINK

Because the same logic was turned on land, tax-free grants were tested for proof of title. Ask: where, in what year, and how many estates?

Dalhousie 48-56 also targeted privileged landholdings.

- In 1852 the Bombay Presidency set up the Inam Commission to investigate inams (tax-free grants) made by earlier Indian rulers to Brahmins, temples and others.
- The Commission demanded proof of title
- grants with insufficient proof were confiscated.
- Around 20,000 estates were seized in the Bombay Presidency alone.
- The logic: the Inam Commission was the Doctrine of Lapse applied to land titles instead of thrones.
- If you cannot prove your claim to the Company's satisfaction, the Company takes it. The logic was identical.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Four facts to hold: Bombay Presidency, tax-free grants (inams), proof of title, about 20,000 estates.
- The Logic row (Lapse applied to land titles) is marked "ignore": a handout aid, not for memorising.
- The handout repeats it in the legitimacy discussion (Section 13).

5 · The Doctrine of Lapse applied to pensions: Nana Sahib

STORY LINK

Because Lapse also reached pensions, a Peshwa's adopted son was refused. Ask: why did this make Nana Sahib an 1857 leader?

- Dalhousie 48-56 extended the Doctrine of Lapse to pensions.
- Peshwa Bajirao II 96-18 died in 1851.
- Dalhousie 48-56 refused to continue the State pension of Rs 8 lakh per annum to his adopted son Nana Sahib.
- The argument: adopted sons inherit private wealth, not political titles or State pensions.
- The refusal made Nana Sahib a key 1857 leader from Bithur, where Bajirao II 96-18 had been pensioned off in 1819 after the 3rd Anglo-Maratha War.

6 · Annexation in lieu of subsidy: Berar (1853)

STORY LINK

Because Hyderabad could not pay its subsidy, land became payment. Ask: which province in which year, and which earlier case follows the same pattern?

- Annexation in Lieu of Subsidy is the second instrument (the slide's order) of Dalhousie 48-56.
- Hyderabad signed the first Subsidiary Alliance in 1798 and had been paying ever-rising subsidy ever since.
- By 1853 Hyderabad could not pay. Dalhousie 48-56 annexed Berar as permanent payment of the subsidy.
- Recall: in 1801 half of Awadh was annexed as subsidy (Section 7).
- The pattern is the same: unpaid subsidy becomes territory.

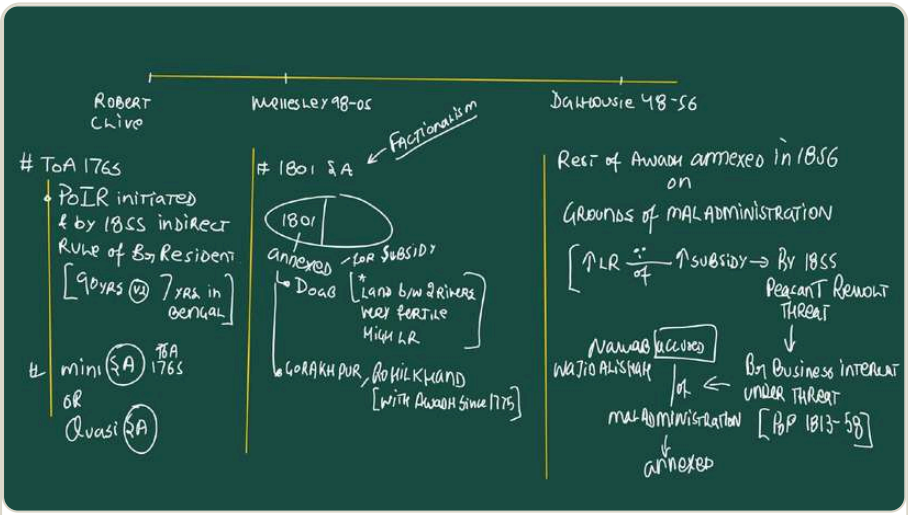
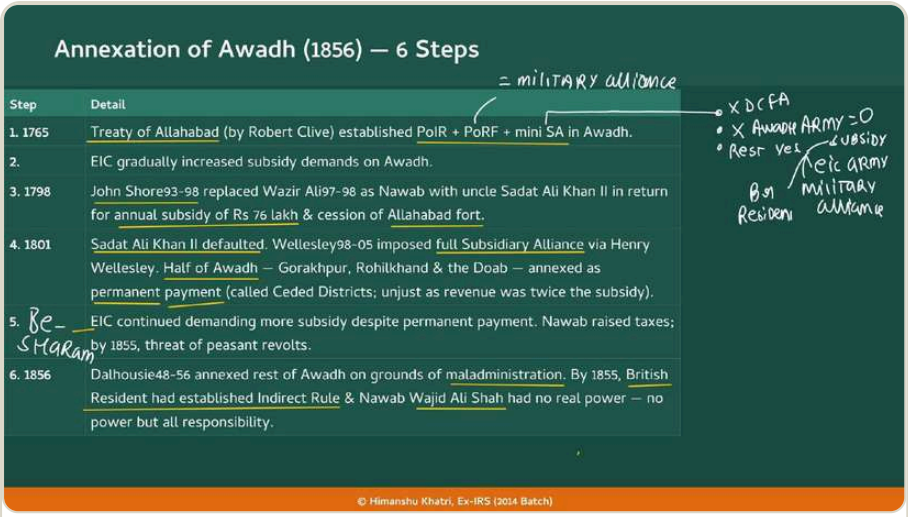
7 · The annexation of Awadh (1856)

STORY LINK

Because Awadh fell over six steps from 1765, it was not a Lapse case. Ask: why could Lapse not apply, and what pretext was used?



Awadh: Clive, Wellesley 98-05 and Dalhousie 48-56 Lecture 16 slide 14



Annexation of Awadh 1856 in six steps Lecture 16 slide 15

The six steps of Awadh's fall:

- 1. 1765: Treaty of Allahabad (by Robert Clive 57-67) established PoIR + PoRF + a mini Subsidiary Alliance in Awadh.
- 2. The EIC gradually increased its subsidy demands on Awadh.
- 3. 1798: John Shore 93-98 replaced Wazir Ali 97-98 as Nawab with his uncle Sadat Ali Khan II, in return for an annual subsidy of Rs 76 lakh and the cession of Allahabad fort.
- 4. 1801: Sadat Ali Khan II defaulted.
- Wellesley 98-05 imposed the full Subsidiary Alliance by sending Henry Wellesley.
- Half of Awadh (Gorakhpur, Rohilkhand and the Doab) was annexed as permanent payment of the subsidy, called the Ceded Districts
- it was unjust, as the revenue was twice the subsidy.
- 5. The EIC kept demanding more subsidy despite the permanent payment.
- The Nawab had to raise taxes and by 1855 there was a threat of peasant revolts.
- 6. 1856: Dalhousie 48-56 annexed the rest of Awadh on grounds of maladministration.
- By 1855 the British Resident had established Indirect Rule and Nawab Wajid Ali Shah had no real power, hence no power but all responsibility.

MNEMONIC · AWADH'S SIX STEPS, IN ORDER

S Shore 93-98 swaps Wazir Ali 97-98 for Sadat Ali Khan II, 1798: Rs 76 lakh

H Half of Awadh annexed 1801 under Wellesley 98-05: the Ceded Districts

P Peasant revolt threat by 1855: more subsidy, more taxes

D Dalhousie 48-56 annexes the rest, 1856, on maladministration

Order kept: the six steps in the handout's 1 to 6 order.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three men on one timeline. Clive 57-67 (ToA 1765):
  - PoIR initiated
  - By 1855 Indirect Rule of the British Resident
- "90 yrs vs 7 yrs in Bengal": Indirect Rule lasted 90 years in Awadh (1765 to 1855) against about 7 in Bengal (1765 to 1772).
- The 1765 arrangement = "mini SA" or "quasi SA": "X DCFA, X Awadh Army = 0, Rest Yes" (Defence, Communications and Foreign Affairs not fully taken over, Awadh's army not reduced to zero, the rest yes: subsidy, an EIC army, military alliance, a British Resident). "= military alliance" = PoRF.
- Wellesley 98-05 (1801 SA):
  - The Doab is land between two rivers, very fertile, high land revenue
  - Gorakhpur and Rohilkhand had been with Awadh since 1775
- Dalhousie 48-56:
  - Rising land revenue → rising subsidy → by 1855 threat of peasant revolt → British business interests under threat [PoP 1813-58]
  - The Nawab is accused of maladministration, so Awadh is annexed
- "Be-SHaram" (shameless), said of step 5: the EIC demanded more after taking half the State.

HANDOUT ALERT

- The 1856 Awadh annexation was NOT under the Doctrine of Lapse: Wajid Ali Shah had heirs.
- Prelims 2008: "Which State's ruler was removed on the pretext of misgovernance?" Answer: Awadh (a).
- Jhansi and Nagpur went by Lapse
- Satara was the first Lapse State, 1848

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout and slide order: step 3 names the Nawab placed in 1798 as Sadat Ali Khan II.
- Ch 10 notes the formal alliance with Awadh as 1801 (Chapter 10).
- The handout also describes the 1765 treaty as "PoIR + PoRF + mini SA"
- That is the Clive 57-67 chain taught in Chapter 10 and Chapter 11

8 · The Sikh State: from ideal buffer to annexation target

STORY LINK

Because Ranjit Singh 01-39 held the buffer together and factions tore it apart after 1839, the EIC moved from treaty to annexation. Ask: what did Lahore take, and what did Amritsar 1846 do?

8.1 Buffer to target

- Under the Policy of Ring Fence (PoRF) the EIC wanted stable, strong, friendly border States as a protective buffer around British India.
- If stability could not be achieved, the EIC either:

BORDER STATES: INDIRECT RULE OR ANNEXATION

- established Indirect Rule:
  - Nepal 1814-16, Afghanistan 1839, Punjab 1845
  - or
- directly annexed: Assam and parts of lower Burma 1824-26, Punjab 1849, Burma 1852-53.

Sikh State: from buffer to target Lecture 16 slide 19

- The Sikh State had been that ideal buffer under Maharaja Ranjit Singh 01-39.
- After his death in 1839, factionalism tore the State apart:
- 1. Royal family members fought for succession.
- 2. The Sindhanwaliyas, a Jat clan or misl.
- 3. Dogra Rajputs who served as Wazirs at different times.
- 4. The Khalsa Army itself.
- Succession disputes and political murders followed
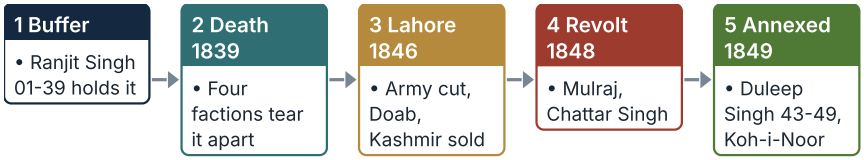
- the PoRF was now useless as the State weakened from within.

THE SIKH STATE: BUFFER TO ANNEXATION



TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Imp": the three qualities of a buffer State: stable, strong, friendly.
- Great Game: Russia → Afghanistan → Punjab (Sutlej) → British India.
- "This fear led to 1809: the Treaty of Amritsar" (the EIC's PoRF with the Sikhs). 1838 Tripartite Treaty: the EIC aimed at PoIR in Afghanistan by installing a puppet, Shah Shuja, against Dost Md (a cryptic scribble beside it is).
- Law of power: power centralises in a strong personality, BUT if the personality weakens, it leaves either "vertically downward" [R v N, R v R, N v N: ruler against noble, ruler against ruler, noble against noble] or by "horizontal replacement" [annexed by the British, 1849].
- Ranjit Singh 01-39's strength held the Sikh State
- After 1839 power leaked down into factions, then sideways to the British

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The Dogra Rajputs were also "Rulers of Jammu (part of the Sikh empire)".
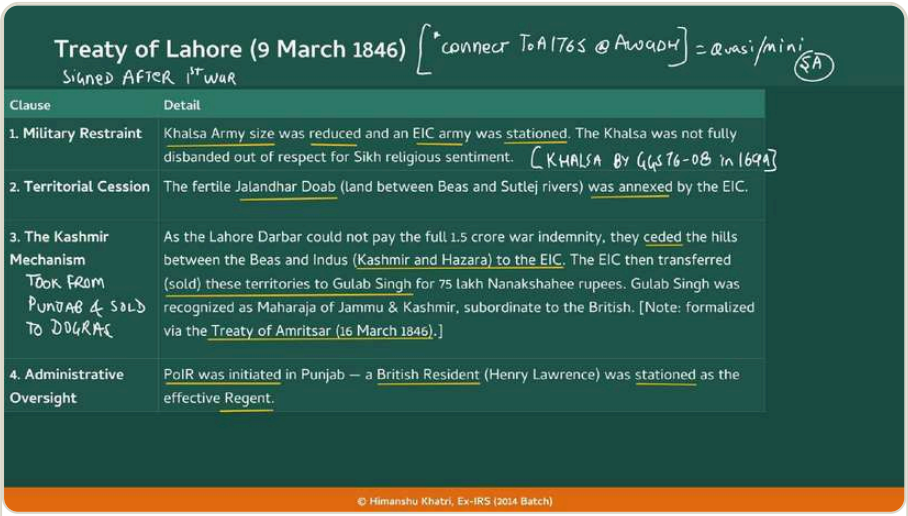
- This sets up Gulab Singh in the Treaty of Amritsar 1846 (Section 8.2).

HANDOUT NOTE

The Khalsa Army's democratic spirit: the handout adds that it wanted governance by Panchayats, a form of collective military and civil self-governance, and was harder for the EIC to manage than a feudal-loyal army.

8.2 The First Anglo-Sikh War and the Treaty of Lahore (9 March 1846)



Treaty of Lahore, 9 March 1846: four clauses Lecture 16 slide 21

Result of the 1st Anglo-Sikh War: the Treaty of Lahore (9 March 1846).

- 1. Military restraint: the Khalsa Army was reduced in size and an EIC army was stationed.
- The Khalsa was not fully disbanded out of respect for Sikh religious sentiment.
- 2. Territorial cession: the fertile Jalandhar Doab (the land between the Beas and Sutlej) was annexed by the EIC.
- 3. The Kashmir mechanism: the Lahore Darbar could not pay the full war indemnity of Rs 1.5 crore, so it ceded the hills between the Beas and Indus (Kashmir and Hazara) to the EIC.
- The EIC then transferred (sold) these territories to Gulab Singh for 75 lakh Nanakshahee rupees.
- Gulab Singh was recognised as Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir, subordinate to the British.
- This was formalised by the Treaty of Amritsar (16 March 1846).

J Jalandhar Doab annexed (between Beas and Sutlej)

K Kashmir mechanism: indemnity Rs 1.5 crore unpaid, hills sold to Gulab Singh for 75 lakh

R Resident Henry Lawrence: PoIR initiated in Punjab

Order kept: the handout's clauses 1 to 4.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Signed after the 1st war." Linked to ToA 1765 at Awadh: both "quasi / mini SA": a defeated State keeps its ruler but its army is cut, an EIC army is stationed and a Resident is placed.
- Clause 1: "[Khalsa by GGS 76-08 in 1699]" - the Khalsa was founded by Guru Gobind Singh 76-08 (GGS) in 1699 (hence the religious sentiment behind not disbanding the army).
- Kashmir mechanism: "Took from Punjab and sold to Dogras" (Dogras: Gulab Singh, ruler of Jammu).

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Strategic Note. Kashmir, of enormous strategic importance, was sold to reward Gulab Singh's neutrality.
- The "Kashmir Question" has its legal origin here, creating a Hindu monarchy over a Muslim-majority population.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Two Treaties of Amritsar must be distinguished.
- (1) Treaty of Amritsar 1809:
  - Between Ranjit Singh 01-39 and the EIC
  - it established the Sutlej as the Sikh-EIC boundary (PoRF with the Sikhs)
- (2) Treaty of Amritsar 1846 (16 March):
  - Formalised the Kashmir sale to Gulab Singh
  - The legal foundation of the Princely State of Jammu and Kashmir.
- The Treaty of Lahore (9 March 1846) is a third document, signed seven days earlier.

8.3 The Second Anglo-Sikh War (1848-49)

- Reason. The Sikh Governors of Multan (Mulraj) and Haripur (Chattar Singh) revolted, giving empire-builder Dalhousie 48-56 the opportunity he needed.

Result.

- 1. Annexation: Punjab was annexed from Maharaja Duleep Singh 43-49 (a child of 5 at accession).

- 2. The Koh-i-Noor: as part of the terms of surrender, the diamond was taken from Maharaja Duleep Singh 43-49 and surrendered to the British Crown.
- 3. Administrative shift: Punjab was initially governed by a "Board of Administration" (the Lawrence Brothers and Charles Mansel).
- Conclusion. The last major independent State outside the Company State was gone.
- The EIC's frontier now touched the natural boundaries of the Afghan foothills.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Reason row:
  - "British interest paramount" - the revolt of two governors was an opportunity
  - the real reason is the same as for Lapse: PoP means British interests come first.
- Conclusion: "Khyber Pass: entry point" - the frontier now reached the pass through which invaders came into India.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Chilianwala (1849) was a battle of the 2nd Anglo-Sikh War between the EIC and the Sikhs, not "Dalhousie 48-56 against the Marathas." This is the Prelims 1995 trap.
- The notes name Chilianwala only through this PYQ.

9 · The Second Anglo-Burmese War (1852-53): Lower Burma and Pegu

STORY LINK

Because the Ring Fence also faced east, Pegu was taken in 1852-53. Ask: which three Burma wars, and which governor general for each?

- The war was fought on the PoRF logic of securing the eastern frontier from an expansionist Burma.
- Dalhousie 48-56 annexed Lower Burma / Pegu.
- Combined with Arakan and Tenasserim (annexed 1824-26 under the 1st Anglo-Burmese War and the Treaty of Yandabo 1826), this brought the eastern shore of the Bay of Bengal under British control: the Bay was now effectively a British lake.

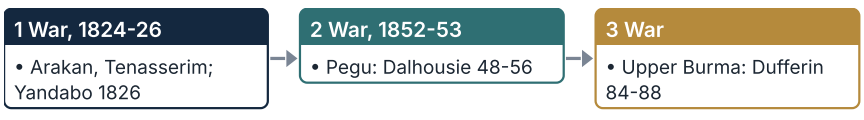
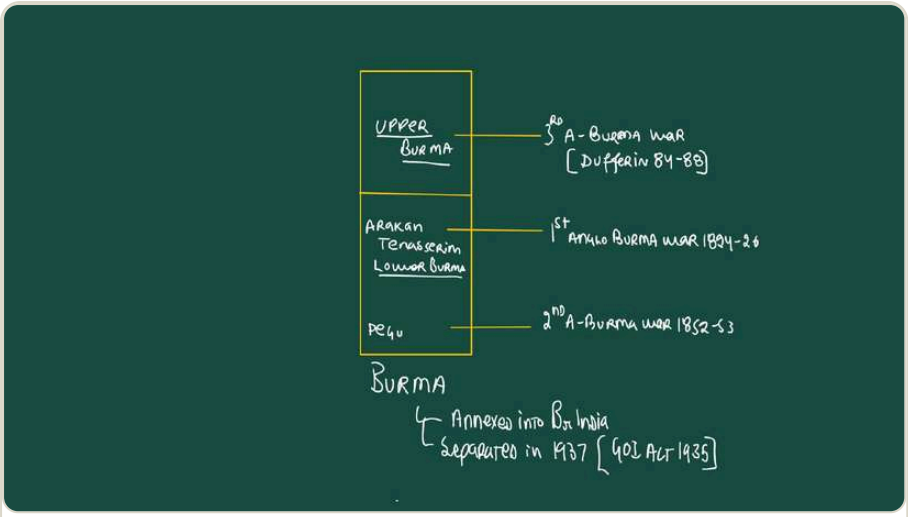
BURMA IN THREE WARS





Burma annexed in three wars Lecture 16 slide 6

Part of Burma	War	Dates	Ruler
Arakan, Tenasserim (the rest of "Lower Burma")	1st Anglo-Burmese War (Treaty of Yandabo 1826)	1824-26	not named
Pegu	2nd Anglo-Burmese War	1852-53	Dalhousie 48-56
Upper Burma	3rd Anglo-Burmese War	the board gives no years (see the alert below)	Dufferin 84-88

HANDOUT ALERT

- Dates for the 3rd Burmese War. The board gives only [Dufferin 84-88] (the Viceroy's code), not the war's years.
- The handout index lists "Dufferin 84-88's Upper Burma (1886)" under Chapter 15.
- Use the code here
- See Chapter 15 for the year

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Burma was "annexed into British India" and "separated in 1937 [GOI Act 1935]".
- Three stages:
  - Lower Burma (Arakan, Tenasserim) = 1st war 1824-26
  - Pegu = 2nd war 1852-53
  - Upper Burma = 3rd war [Dufferin 84-88].

HANDOUT ALERT

- Sindh 1843 was NOT Dalhousie 48-56's. It was annexed by Charles Napier under Ellenborough 42-44.
- Dalhousie 48-56's annexations: Lower Burma 1852-53, Berar 1853, Punjab 1849 and the seven Lapse States.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Bay of Bengal sweep, clockwise: Bengal 1757 → Northern Sarkars 1766 → (1798 SA with Hyderabad) → Carnatic 1801 → Orissa 1803 → 1826 Arakan and Tenasserim → 1853 Pegu.
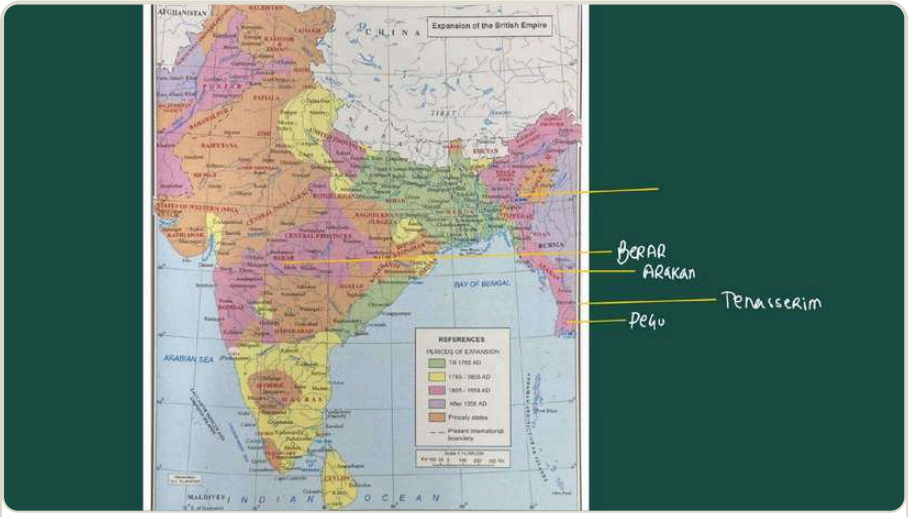
- "Bay of Bengal 100 yrs": the whole coast fell in about a century (1757 to 1853).
- The list follows the board's curve, not strictly date order.



Map: expansion of the British Empire by period Lecture 16 slide 26

HANDOUT NOTE

- One line on this map points to the Assam and Cachar area and has no label.
- Add it from your notebook if the teacher named it.
- The handout map carries only a small dot at Cachar.

10 · Britain's maritime Ring Fence

STORY LINK

Because the Ring Fence did not stop at the coast, the sea was also controlled. Ask: which coast runs clockwise, which anticlockwise, and which treaties lie beyond India?

- A land empire is visible on a map.
- A maritime empire is harder to see but just as deliberate.
- While the EIC was annexing territories inland, it was simultaneously, piece by piece, bringing every coastline touching the Indian Ocean under British control.
- By the time Dalhousie 48-56 left in 1856, the picture was complete.
- PoRF logic did not stop at India's coastline: every sea approach had to be controlled, through whichever instrument was cheapest and most effective (not always annexation).

Beyond India (strategic frontier)	1854 Treaty of Kalat, 1876 Treaty of Jacobabad, 1856-57 Anglo-Persian War, 1907 Anglo-Russian Convention, 1909 Anglo-Persian Oil Co.

10.2 Sea approaches beyond India: Balochistan and the Persian Gulf (self read)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Balochistan, Treaty of Kalat, Treaty of Jacobabad, Gwadar and the Persian Gulf are "Self Read, not MIH syllabus" (MIH = Modern Indian History).
- They are covered here fully, but not expected as core.

- Balochistan coast and Gwadar. The Makran coast (today's Balochistan coastline) belonged to the State of Makran, itself a vassal of the Khan of Kalat.
- The British brought this region under control through two treaties that fall on opposite sides of 1857 and the Government of India Act 1858:

Treaty	Signed by	Negotiated by	Terms
Treaty of Kalat (1854)	The EIC, under Dalhousie 48-56	Major John Jacob	The Khan of Kalat surrendered foreign policy and allowed EIC military outposts inside Kalat; in exchange the EIC paid the Khan an annual subsidy of Rs 50,000. A reverse-SA pattern: the imperial power pays the local ruler for special rights to an external power
Treaty of Jacobabad (1876)	The British State (the Crown)	Robert Sandeman, under Viceroy Lytton 76-80	By 1876 the Government of India Act 1858 had abolished the EIC. This treaty ran under the Policy of Subordinate Union (1858-1947), not the EIC's PoP. It went further: the British State could station troops permanently in Kalat, build railways and telegraphs through it and act as supreme arbitrator between the Khan and his tribal chiefs (Sardars)

- PoIR had fully arrived in Kalat in 1876: the Resident was not just in the court, he was now the court.
- The shift from 1854 to 1876 in Kalat mirrors what happened to all 565 Indian princely States overnight in 1858: from subordinates of a trading company to legal subjects of the British Crown.
- The same geography and subordination, with a different legal authority above them.
- (The handout leaves the detail to the chapters on 1857 and the constitutional Acts: Chapter 17, Chapter 21.)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Gwadar: a unique 170-year Omani enclave inside Balochistan.
- In 1783 the Khan of Kalat gifted the port of Gwadar to a prince of Oman, so Gwadar became an overseas territory of the Sultanate of Oman for over 170 years.
- The British Empire controlled everything around Gwadar but never owned it.
- Pakistan purchased Gwadar from Oman in 1958, eleven years after Independence.
- Today Gwadar is at the heart of the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC).

- The Persian Gulf and Iran (Persia). Persia stayed a formally independent sovereign State
- the British never annexed it
- But formal independence did not mean freedom from foreign control. Three mechanisms:
- 1. Temporary military force (1856-57). The Anglo-Persian War (1856-57) captured coastal cities including Bushehr and Kharg Island.
- Under the Treaty of Paris (1857) the British withdrew in exchange for Iran giving up its claims to Herat in Afghanistan (PoRF logic: protect the western land approach to India, not for Iran's sake).
- 2. Formal diplomatic partition (1907). Under the Anglo-Russian Convention of 1907 Britain and Russia divided Iran into spheres of influence.
- The southern coastal region along the Persian Gulf was recognised as the British sphere: naval dominance without a single annexation.
- 3. Economic control (1909). The Anglo-Persian Oil Company (1909), later the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company (today's BP), gave Britain economic control of the Iranian coastline
- oil was extracted and shipped under British naval protection

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's closing remark: economic imperialism at its most efficient: control the resource, control the coast, without the cost of running a colony.
- The British learnt that formal annexation was expensive
- a sphere of influence and an oil company could do the same more cheaply

11 · Dalhousie 48-56 as moderniser

STORY LINK

Because the empire needed troops and trade routes, he also built. Ask: what came in 1853, what in 1854, and which university year is not his?

- Not just an annexationist: the most transformative Governor General in physical and institutional infrastructure.
- A follower of Utilitarianism (James Mill: reform through laws by a strong State), he built the skeleton of modern India's communication and administrative framework.

W Wood's Despatch 1854: Magna Carta of Indian Education

U Universities: groundwork his, set up 1857 under Canning 56-62

Order kept: the slide order of the six main items.

TEACHER'S BOARD

The Moderniser section ("MMP") is where the "future syllabus" items land: Railways, Post and Telegraph, Canals, Wood's Despatch.

Dalhousie as Moderniser (1/3): railways, telegraph, post, PWD Lecture 16 slide 33

#	Item	What to remember
1	Railways (1853)	Built primarily for army movement, secondarily for administration, raw-material extraction and market creation. First line: Bombay to Thane, opened 1853. By 1856: Calcutta-Raniganj (coal-rich) and Madras-Arakkonam. The teacher's board: West (1853), East (by 1856), South (by 1856)
2	Telegraph (1853)	Telegraph Department established; about 4,000 miles laid across major cities
3	Post Office Act (1854)	A network with a uniform half-anna (2 paise) rate from Peshawar to Calcutta
4	Public Works Department (PWD)	Removed from military control, made civilian. GT Road (Peshawar to Calcutta) restored to functionality. Canals and bridges built across India
5	Wood's Despatch (1854)	Sometimes called the "Magna Carta of Indian Education": a blueprint for mass education: vernacular elementary schools, universities, structured education administration. Dalhousie 48-56 supported and implemented it
6	Vernacular push	Favoured vernacular elementary schools for their utilitarian value, expanding them in Bengal and Bihar. Backed technical education: the goal was efficient labour, good consumers and cheaper administration
7	Female education	J.E. Drinkwater Bethune (Law Member of Dalhousie 48-56's Council) opened a girls' school in Calcutta in 1849: the Bethune School, India's first successful secular school for girls. (Savitribai and Jyotirao Phule's Pune school, 1 January 1848, predates it as India's first girls' school overall; secular = completely free from religious instruction)
8	Widow remarriage	Dalhousie 48-56 supported Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar's work on girls' education and the Hindu Widow Remarriage Act 1856. Vidyasagar became Principal of Sanskrit College in 1851 and Inspector of Schools in 1856, both under Dalhousie 48-56's tenure
9	Universities	Groundwork through Wood's Despatch, but Dalhousie 48-56 left India in 1856. The three universities (Bombay, Madras, Calcutta) were officially established in 1857 under Canning 56-62. Also the Engineering College at Roorkee; a Director of Education at the Provincial level with an Inspector at the District level

- "Woods Despatch" heads the vernacular-schools row: the vernacular push comes from Wood's Despatch.
- Dalhousie 48-56 supported the Hindu Widow Remarriage Act 1856, but it was passed after he left (Canning 56-62 took over in 1856).

Handout flowchart: Dalhousie's moderniser list handout figure

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source note on dates. The slide table and the handout write Telegraph (1853)
- the handout flowchart writes Telegraph 1854.
- The board stresses (1853) beside Telegraph, so use 1853.
- The flowchart also gives Bombay-Thane = 21 miles and adds Ganges Canal and Port reform (Calcutta, Bombay and Madras upgraded for steamships), which are in the figure but not in the handout text.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Universities and Wood's Despatch belong to Chapter 19.
- The handout says the three universities were established in 1857 under Canning 56-62 and that Dalhousie 48-56's part was groundwork.
- For the details of Wood's Despatch (grants-in-aid, universities, aims) see Chapter 19.
- The question bank lists Prelims PYQs on it for that chapter.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Why the infrastructure was built, in the handout's own words: easier troop movement, cheaper administration, raw-material extraction and market creation.
- The infrastructure outlasted its purpose: India inherited it and built a nation on it.

The Mains 2013 skeleton

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Mains 2013 (10 marks, 200 words): "In many ways, Lord Dalhousie 48-56 was the founder of modern India." Elaborate.
- The directive "Elaborate" asks for examples and reasoning, not a yes-or-no debate.
- The phrase "in many ways" accepts a qualified yes: list the ways and say why they were foundational.
- Intro (about 25 words): Dalhousie 48-56 was in many ways the founder of modern India: the physical and institutional infrastructure he built for colonial purposes outlasted them, and India inherited it.
- Body (pick 4 to 5): (1) Railways 1853 (Bombay-Thane; by 1856 Calcutta-Raniganj and Madras-Arakkonam).
- (2) Telegraph 1853, about 4,000 miles.
- (3) Post Office Act 1854, half-anna uniform rate, Peshawar to Calcutta.
- (4) PWD made civilian, GT Road, canals and bridges.
- (5) Wood's Despatch 1854, "Magna Carta of Indian Education": vernacular schools, universities, an education administration.
- (6) Three universities (established 1857 under Canning 56-62; groundwork his).
- Add the colonial purpose (troops, cheaper administration, raw materials, markets).
- Closing (about 25 words): What he built for empire became the skeleton of an independent nation: the infrastructure outlasted its colonial purpose.
- The strongest single anchor is Wood's Despatch.

12 · The five-policy arc (1600-1858) and the Policies towards Indian Kings

STORY LINK

Because each policy built on the last, the arc explains the timing of 1857. Ask: which five, which dates, and what is Paramountcy minus?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Next Topic: Policies of British towards Indian Kings" splits into "EIC till 1858" and "Br State 1858+".
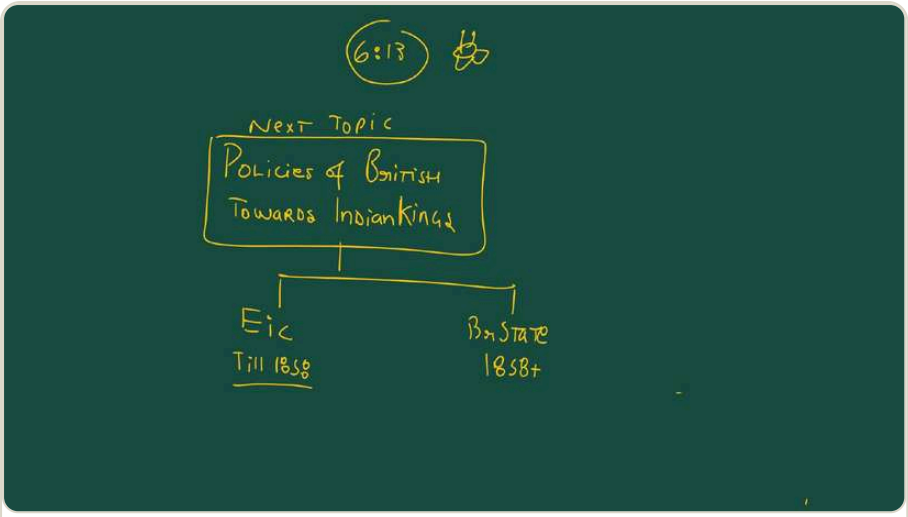
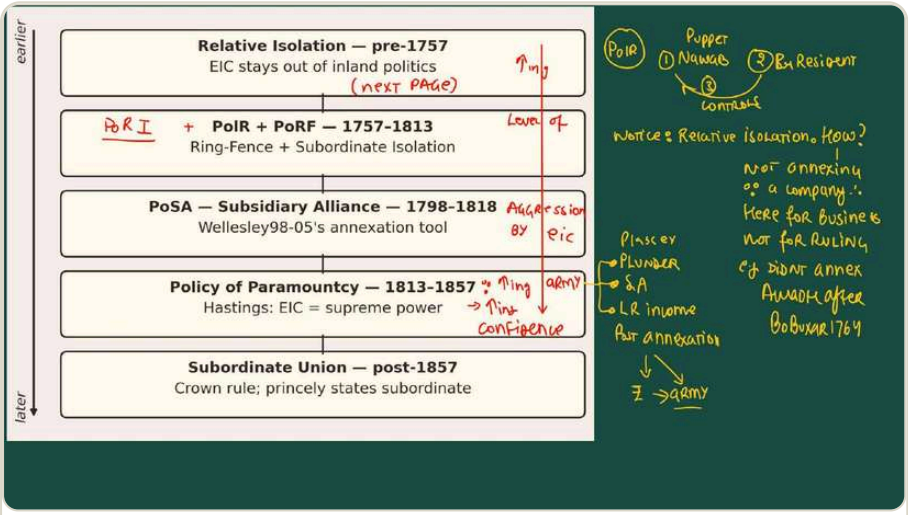
- This is the handout's Sec 12 (Five-Policy Arc) and belongs to this chapter, not to Chapter 15 (which starts with "British Imperial Ideology").



Next topic: policies of the British towards Indian kings Lecture 16 slide 37



Flowchart of the policy phases Lecture 16 slide 38

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Rising-aggression arrow: the level of aggression by the EIC rises from the first box to the last: more army, then more confidence.
- The army grew from three sources: Plassey plunder, subsidy (SA) and land-revenue income (after annexation, the revenue of annexed land: "post annexation → army").
- PoIR: ① a puppet Nawab, ② a British Resident, ③ the Resident controls the puppet.
- Relative isolation in one line: the EIC did not annex because it was a company, "here for business, not for ruling," e.g. it did not annex Awadh after Buxar 1764 (Chapter 10's ToA 1765).
- Hence the first policy is called "relative".

HANDOUT ALERT

- The flowchart and the handout give different dates for the phases. Teacher and handout win.
- Flowchart:
  - Relative Isolation pre-1757
  - PoIR + PoRF 1757-1813
  - PoSA 1798-1818
  - Paramountcy 1813-1857
  - Subordinate Union post-1857.
- Handout:
  - Relative Isolation until 1813 (the arc starts at 1600)
  - PoIR and PoRF run alongside, with military alliances from 1765
  - PoSA 1798-1858
  - Paramountcy 1813-58
  - Subordinate Union 1858-1947.
- The board gives Paramountcy (1813-58) and places ToA 1765 inside isolation.
- Use the handout's dates
- Know the flowchart's version exists

12.1 Relative Isolation (until 1813)

- The EIC was militarily not confident in its early decades
- Its primary interest was international trade.
- It stayed out of Indian politics as far as possible but not absolutely.
- It defended and expanded its trading interests through diplomacy and selective warfare, signed military alliances (Treaty of Allahabad 1765, Treaty of Salbai 1782) and interfered in succession disputes (Treaty of Surat 1775) to extract territories for trade expansion.
- (The Treaty of Purandhar 1776 shows the isolation pull: Hastings 73-85 wanted to settle commercially and avoid full war.)

Policy of Relative Isolation Lecture 16 slide 39

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Relative isolation, point by point. (1) Primary motive = trade, not Indian politics.
- The EIC's army was initially small: proof = the "Child's war 1686-90", in which "[a Mughal ruler, written A2S807, not readable with confidence] thrashed the EIC".
- Therefore it stayed isolated from Indian politics.
- (2) "Relative" = not 100% = not absolute: if an opportunity presented itself, the EIC "temporarily" interfered, extracted trade or rupee benefits, then reverted to isolation.
- Examples: the 1st Anglo-Maratha War 1775-82 (RR 73-74 promised Salsette and Vasai/Bassein if made Peshwa, so the Treaty of Surat 1775 and war: Chapter 13) and Shuja 54-75, Shah Alam II 60-06 and Qasim 60-63 attacking the EIC (Buxar): victory was an opportunity, giving ToA 1765 (Chapter 10).

No interference to Paramountcy Lecture 16 slide 43

TEACHER'S BOARD

- After 1757 the power of the EIC (the Company State) kept rising
- Therefore interference and aggression kept rising
- By 1813 this became the Policy of Paramountcy.
- "No interference" → "PoParamountcy" is the whole arc in one line.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Geopolitics rule: "In geopolitics, States behave in line with their power" (political, military, economic, intellectual/tech, social and soft power).
- When power is very low, States invoke ethics
- When very high, they choose national interest first and then develop a language of ethics to match.
- Applied to India's own rise: yesterday NAM, today NAM partially, tomorrow "we will/should interfere in others' affairs." An analogy for the EIC's rising aggression.

12.2 Policy of Indirect Rule (PoIR) and Policy of Ring Fence (PoRF)

Policy	Definition	Examples
PoIR (Indirect Rule)	A British Resident in the court controlling administration without formal annexation	Bengal by 1772, Delhi 1803, Travancore by 1809, Satara by 1818, Punjab 1846, Awadh by 1855
PoRF (Ring Fence)	A military alliance with a frontier State as a buffer against external threats	Awadh (ToA 1765), Hyderabad (Treaty of Hyderabad 1766), Mysore (Treaty of Madras 1769), Marathas (Treaty of Salbai 1782), Sikh (Treaty of Amritsar 1809)

TEACHER'S BOARD

"MMP" with "1 Q": one question expected from this part.

12.3 Policy of Subsidiary Alliance (PoSA, 1798-1858)

- PoSA (1798-1858): the EIC subordinated Indian rulers as junior alliance partners by taking over their foreign policy and military, both funded by an annual subsidy from the Indian State, while formally promising non-interference in internal affairs.
- The promise was routinely broken through illegal PoIR.
- Bajirao II 96-18 signed the SA via the Treaty of Bassein 1802 to regain his throne
- the treaty promised non-interference, but British Resident Mountstuart Elphinstone soon bypassed the Peshwa and interfered directly: creeping PoIR through the back door.
- When Bajirao II 96-18 launched the 3rd Anglo-Maratha War (1817), it was not aggression: it was a ruler trying to shake off interference the treaty had explicitly promised would never happen.
- No powers, but all the blame: the same pattern as Awadh 1856 (Section 7).

12.4 Policy of Paramountcy / Subordinate Isolation (1813-58)

- Initiated by Francis Hastings 13-23. From 1813 the EIC formally declared itself paramount: the supreme power among all States in India.
- To protect British interests it would interfere in internal affairs and annex if needed.

- (Earlier this happened in practice; from 1813 the EIC shed the pretence.
- Indian States were to have no rights if British interests demanded otherwise.)
- Diplomatic isolation (cutting off a State's right to deal with other States independently) had existed since early SA treaties.
- After 1813 every Indian State, large or small, was locked in a sealed bubble: no communication, negotiation or alliance with any other State without the EIC as absolute gatekeeper.
- Conceptually: Policy of Paramountcy = Policy of SA minus the rights of the Indian State.

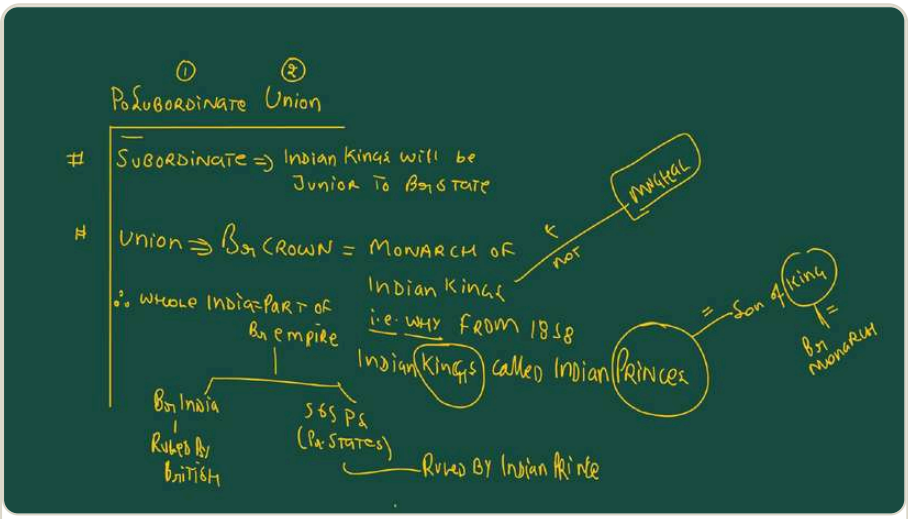
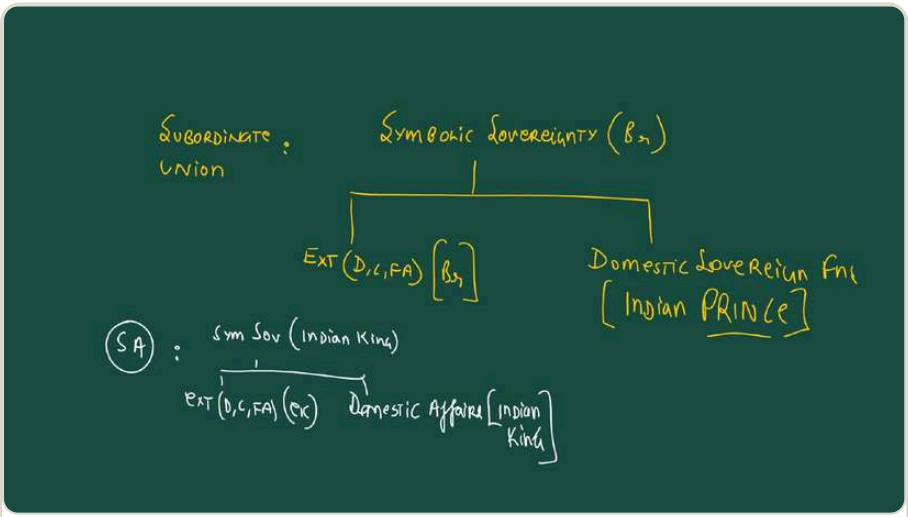
12.5 Policy of Subordinate Union (1858-1947)



Policy of Subordinate Union Lecture 16 slide 40



Subordinate Union and symbolic sovereignty Lecture 16 slide 41

- After 1857 the EIC was abolished and the British State took direct control.
- Indian rulers were now not just subordinate but legally part of the British Empire, hence "union." Paramountcy became the formal legal relationship between the British Monarch and the Indian Prince.
- (Prince, not King:

    - Indian rulers were now legally junior members of the British imperial family.) Sovereignty and the external sovereign functions (Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs) were with the British Crown
    - Domestic sovereign functions remained with the Indian Prince.
- Conceptually: Policy of Subordinate Union = Policy of Paramountcy + sovereignty formally with the British Crown.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- SUBORDINATE: Indian kings will be junior to the British State.
- UNION: the British Crown = the monarch of Indian kings (not the Mughal emperor).
- Hence from 1858 Indian "Kings" were called Indian "Princes": a Prince is the son of a King, and the King is the British monarch.
- Therefore the whole of India is part of the British empire, split into British India (ruled by the British) and 565 princely States (ruled by an Indian Prince).
- Symbolic sovereignty:
    - Under Subordinate Union the British hold external sovereignty (D, C, FA: Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs) and the Indian Prince holds domestic sovereign functions
    - under SA the split was the same, but the Indian king held symbolic sovereignty and the EIC held the external functions (D, C, FA)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Do not use "Prince" and "King" loosely in answers about 1858 onwards.
- The handout and the teacher both say:
    - After 1858 the correct word is Indian Prince
    - "King" is the pre-1858 word
- Paramountcy of the EIC (1813-58) and Paramountcy of the Crown (1858-1947) are two different legal relationships.

12.6 The arc in five steps

The arc: 1600 to 1858 in five steps

- 1600: a trading company that wanted to be left alone (Relative Isolation)
- 1765: a military alliance partner (PoIR and PoRF; ToA 1765)
- 1798: a dominant power controlling neighbours' armies and foreign policies (PoSA)
- 1813: a State openly declaring all others subservient to its interests (Paramountcy, Francis Hastings 13-23)
- 1858: a Crown that absorbed 565 Indian princes as legal subordinates (Subordinate Union)

MNEMONIC · THE FIVE POLICIES, IN ORDER

Isolation Raised Soldiers; Paramountcy Subjugated

- I Relative Isolation (until 1813): trade first, temporary interference
- R Indirect Rule and Ring Fence: Resident in court, buffer alliances (ToA 1765)
- S Subsidiary Alliance 1798: foreign policy and army taken
- P Paramountcy 1813: Francis Hastings 13-23; PoSA minus State's rights
- S Subordinate Union 1858: Crown absorbs 565 princes

Order kept: the policy arc, 1600 to 1858 and after.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Each stage built legally and institutionally on the previous.
- This logical unfolding is exactly why 1857 happened when it did. (Handout, Sec 12.)

13 · Critique: consolidation at the cost of legitimacy

STORY LINK

Because annexation made enemies, legitimacy was lost. Ask: which three leaders, which grievance each, and what did the Proclamation of 1858 reverse?

13.1 Consolidation at the cost of legitimacy

- Dalhousie 48-56 consolidated the Company State but destroyed its legitimacy.
- Almost every major leader of the 1857 revolt was annexation-aggrieved:

Leader	Grievance
Rani Lakshmibai of Jhansi	Lapse 1854 (Section 3)
Nana Sahib	Bajirao II 96-18's pension refused, 1851 (Section 5)
Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57	The last Mughal, whose titular dignity Dalhousie 48-56 sought to end

- The court of Awadh (Section 7), the disbanded Sikh soldiery (Section 8), the dispossessed talukdars and the inam-holders stripped by the Inam Commission 1852 (Section 4) all joined or supported the revolt.

- (Recall: the Inam Commission was Lapse applied to land titles: the same legitimacy-override logic.) See Chapter 21.

13.2 Post-Dalhousie: Canning 56-62 inherits and the Queen ends Lapse

- Dalhousie 48-56 handed power to Canning 56-62 in 1856, who inherited the empire Dalhousie 48-56 built and the revolt his annexations had sown the seeds of.
- After the suppression of the 1857 revolt, the Government of India Act 1858 abolished the Company State and transferred power to the British Crown.
- Queen Victoria's Proclamation of 1858 formally ended the Doctrine of Lapse and pledged that the treaties and rights of Indian rulers would be respected: an explicit reversal of Dalhousie 48-56's core policy.
- Paramountcy became Subordinate Union (Section 12.5).
- No further annexations followed, a line Dalhousie 48-56's successors (including Viceroy Lytton 76-80) did not cross, even where Paramountcy-era instruments were tightened (the Treaty of Jacobabad 1876 with Kalat).
- The empire was complete
- It only needed managing.

14 · The PYQs the teacher worked on slides (Prelims)

STORY LINK

Last scene: use the chapter to answer six PYQs. Ask: which pair is not matched, what is the Lapse order, and which State went by misgovernance?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Seven Prelims PYQs (question slides with the teacher's working, typed answer slides).
- Most do not test the Doctrine of Lapse directly: they test whether you can place Dalhousie 48-56 among other Governors General and events.
- Method: write the years beside each name and eliminate.

14.1 Prelims 1996: Governor General and Viceroy match

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1996: answer (a) A-3 B-2 C-4 D-1.
- A = Governor General of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal (Regulating Act 1773) = 3 Cornwallis 86-93.
- B = Governor General of India (Charter Act 1833) = 2 Dalhousie 48-56.
- C = Governor General and Viceroy (the 1858 Act; "Indian Councils Act" corrected to GoI Act 1858) = 4 Minto 05-10.
- D = Governor General and Crown Representative (Government of India Act 1935) = 1 Wavell 43-47.
- Wrong options:
  - (b) pairs the Charter Act 1833 GG with Wavell instead of Dalhousie 48-56
  - (c) pairs the Regulating Act GG with Dalhousie 48-56 instead of Cornwallis 86-93
  - (d) pairs the Regulating Act GG with Wavell

14.2 Prelims 2002: person and event match

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2002:
  - Answer (a) A-2 B-3 C-1 D-4: Macdonald = Communal Award 1932
  - Linlithgow 36-43 = August Offer 1940
  - Dalhousie 48-56 = Doctrine of Lapse
  - Chelmsford 16-21 = Dyarchy 1919.
- The trap is Chelmsford 16-21 with Doctrine of Lapse (option b) or any option that swaps Dalhousie 48-56 with Chelmsford 16-21.
- (Option (d) repeats (b) in print; see the Exam lens alert.)

14.3 Prelims 2004: "NOT correctly matched"

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2004: answer (c) Vernacular Press Act : Curzon 99-05 is NOT correctly matched.
- The Vernacular Press Act 1878 was passed by Lytton 76-80, not Curzon 99-05.
- Correct pairs:
  - Pitt's India Act 1784 : Warren Hastings 73-85
  - Doctrine of Lapse : Dalhousie 48-56
  - Ilbert Bill : Ripon 80-84.
- The question says "not correctly", so the one F is the answer.

14.4 Prelims 2004: Lapse annexation order, Prelims 2008: Awadh

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2004 (Lapse order): answer (c) 3, 2, 1: Satara 1848 → Sambalpur 1849 → Jhansi 1854.
- (a) and (b) put Jhansi before Satara:
  - Impossible
  - (d) puts Jhansi before Sambalpur
- Prelims 2008:
  - Answer (a) Awadh: annexed 1856 on the pretext of misgovernance
  - Wajid Ali Shah had heirs, so Lapse could not apply
- Jhansi and Nagpur were Lapse annexations (1854)
- Satara was the first (1848)

14.5 Prelims 1995: battle pairs

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1995: answer (b) Battle of Wandiwash (1760): French against the EIC.
- (a) Buxar 1764 was fought by Mir Qasim 60-63, Shuja 54-75 and Shah Alam II 60-06 against the EIC, not "Mir Jafar 57-60 vs Clive 57-67" (Chapter 10).
- (c) Chilianwala (1849) was a 2nd Anglo-Sikh War battle, not "Dalhousie 48-56 vs Marathas." (d) Kharda (1795) was fought by the Marathas against the Nizam (Chapter 13), not the Nizam against the EIC.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Kharda in (d):
  - The notes give only 1795
  - The handout and slide answer say the pairing is wrong
- That the Marathas fought the Nizam is the usual textbook fact (Chapter 13)
- This chapter's sources do not give the combatants

Chapter 10: Battle of Plassey 1757 & Battle of Buxar 1764

ToA 1765 at Awadh is step 1 of Awadh's fall; PoIR, PoRF and the mini SA were Clive 57-67's toolkit; "relative isolation" uses Buxar as its opportunity.

Chapter 11: Subsidiary Alliance of Wellesley 98-05

Hyderabad 1798 and Awadh 1801 are the SA moves that Berar 1853 and Awadh 1856 complete; PoSA is step 3 of the arc.

Chapter 12: Anglo-Mysore Wars (1766–99) + Travancore + Carnatic

Mysore (Treaty of Madras 1769) as PoRF; Travancore 1805, Carnatic 1801 and Mysore/Malabar on the Arabian Sea and Bay sweeps.

Chapter 13: Anglo-Maratha Wars (1775–1819) till 1848

Surat 1775, Purandhar 1776, Salbai 1782, Bassein 1802 and the 3rd war 1817 are the arc's treaties; Satara (Pratap Singh 39-63) and Nagpur's Lapse annexations; Bajirao II 96-18's pension and Nana Sahib.

Chapter 6: Punjab & the Sikh State

Ranjit Singh 01-39, the Khalsa and the Sikh factions that Section 8 uses.

Chapter 15: British Imperial Ideology

Opens with the ideas (Orientalism, Liberalism, Utilitarianism, racism) behind the policies of this chapter; Dufferin 84-88's Upper Burma (1886) is in that chapter's index.

Chapter 19: Social Reforms, Education Reforms & Print Culture

Wood's Despatch 1854, Bethune School, Vidyasagar and the Hindu Widow Remarriage Act 1856.

Chapter 21: The Revolt of 1857

Lakshmibai, Nana Sahib, Zafar and the Awadh court as annexation-aggrieved leaders.

Chapter 17: Constitutional History of EIC's British India (1773–1858)

The Regulating Act 1773 GG, Charter Act 1833 GG and Government of India Act 1858 in the Prelims 1996 match.

Prelims PYQs: 1997, 1999, 2000, 2020, 2023

Mains PYQs: Mains 2014 (10 marks, 150 words): What were the major political, economic and social developments in the world which motivated the anti-colonial struggle in India?

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Fort William College (1800, Wellesley 98-05) was founded to train British civilians, not at the Board's request, not to revive oriental learning, not for Carey's job (Prelims 2020)
- Sleeman = Thugs (Prelims 1997); Prendergast = Upper Burma 1885-86, Burnes = Afghan frontier killed in the 1st Anglo-Afghan War 1841, Pemberton = Assam/Burma frontier
- Lytton 76-80 = Forward Policy (Prelims 1999), Ripon 80-84 reversed it; Dufferin 84-88 = Upper Burma, January 1886, the last major extension (Prelims 2000, with the slide's Dalhousie 48-56 nuance)
- Imperial Preference = tariff privileges for British imports in India, formalised at Ottawa 1932 (Prelims 1999); the five antiquarians Rea, Longhurst, Sewell, Burgess, Elliot = archaeological excavations (Prelims 2023)
- Champion pairs and the four Orientalist institutions (1781, 1784, 1791, 1800); the Charter Act 1833 did NOT make an Indian the law member of the GG's council (slide 104)

MAINS HOOKS

- Mains 2014 (10 marks, 150 words): the major political, economic and social developments in the world which motivated the anti-colonial struggle in India: political (American, French, 1830 and 1848, Irish), economic (deindustrialisation, Drain Theory), social (Russia 1917, Wilson 1918, anti-racism), and the carriers Gandhi and Nehru
- Why ideology came before policy: each one was both a sincere belief and a convenient narrative; always show both layers
- The arc Orientalism to Authoritarianism to Liberal-Utilitarian-Evangelical to Racism, and the post-1857 six-front shift

Every ideology was a different answer to one question, how exactly should we civilise India, and every one served British power.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The British told themselves that ruling India was moral (the White Man's Burden), and each ideology under that roof rose or fell with the EIC's confidence:

Orientalism while it was unsure, Authoritarianism under Cornwallis 86-93, the three reform ideologies after 1813, and Racism once 1857 had shocked them.

1. A nation sure of itself. Britain had reasons for pride: the first modern democracy, the Industrial Revolution (c. 1750-1850), victory in the Seven Years' Global War (1756-63), Napoleon beaten (Leipzig 1813, Waterloo 1815) and the rise of capitalism and science. Within 150 years it could convince itself it was destined to lead, and that it owed the world its civilisation. This is the White Man's Burden.

   → So what should the British do in India?

2. Scared, so Orientalist. Before 1813 the EIC was not militarily confident, and one badly handled insult could trigger mass resistance. Scholars like William Jones found Sanskrit older and more sophisticated than Greek and Latin. So Orientalism said: rule India the India way, with Hindu law, Islamic law, Indian languages and an Indian syllabus. Warren Hastings 73-85 was its champion.

   → Institutions followed the idea.

3. Four Orientalist institutions. The Calcutta Madrasa came in 1781 (Warren Hastings 73-85), the Asiatic Society of Bengal in 1784 (Sir William Jones), the Sanskrit College at Banaras in 1791 (Jonathan Duncan) and Fort William College in 1800 (Wellesley 98-05) to train British civilians. The Aryan Invasion Theory and kinship through language added a rhetoric of love: we are cousins who have come home.

   → But Orientalism had critics from the start.

4. My way or highway. The critics said the study of India showed a glorious past and a degenerate present, so restoring the past was pointless. Cornwallis 86-93 ruled India the English way: all-British senior posts, rule of law with the Collector no longer also Judge (Charter Act 1793), the Permanent Settlement 1793 and an Aloof Elite. He had lost America and did not want settlers putting down roots.

   → Between the two, a hybrid appeared.

5. Indian coat, British hand. Thomas Munro, Governor of Madras 1820-27, governed through Indian forms but kept all power with the EIC: Orientalist in form, Authoritarian in substance. His Ryotwari Settlement copied the ancient State-peasant model but all collection was by EIC officials. Elphinstone, Malcolm and Metcalfe followed him.

   → Then, by 1813, the EIC stopped being cautious.

6. 1813: confidence, then three ideas. Indian powers had been beaten except Holkar, Bhonsle and the Sikh State, the army was huge, Napoleon was beaten and the Industrial Revolution was in full swing, with a market for British goods to win. Liberalism (Macaulay: Law Commission 1834, Minute on Education 1835, Brown Sahibs), Utilitarianism (Bentham and James Mill: good laws, a strong State, the schoolmaster) and Evangelicalism (Charles Grant, Charter Act 1813, Lex Loci Act 1850) filled the space.

   → Bentinck 28-35's years were the high-water mark.

7. The Liberal window, 1828-35. From Bentinck 28-35 through the Charter Act 1833 to Macaulay's Minute 1835, Liberal confidence peaked: the Sati Abolition Act 1829, Thuggee suppression under Captain Sleeman (three tools: informants, approvers, swift commissions; over 3,000 Thugs convicted 1831-41), English replacing Persian in higher instruction, and Cornwallis 86-93's Code revised into uniform criminal procedure.

   → Then 1857 broke the story.

8 The shock of 1857. The Revolt shook the British psychologically and broke the paternalistic narrative. Six fronts shifted: reform retreated, race was read by physical features, the Aryan theory was twisted, Dogs and Indians not allowed, Authoritarianism rose and social reforms slowed after Queen Victoria's Proclamation of 1858. Lytton 76-80 (Vernacular Press Act and Arms Act 1878) and Curzon 99-05 (Partition of Bengal 1905) were its architects.

→ The same hard mood showed on the frontiers.

9 The Forward Policy and the Great Game. Fearing Tsarist Russia, the British pushed the frontier into Afghanistan: Auckland 36-42's 1st Anglo-Afghan War 1839-42, Ellenborough 42-44's punitive return to Kabul, Lytton 76-80's 2nd war 1878-80 and the Treaty of Gandamak 1879, then Ripon 80-84's reversal. The defensive twin was the Ring Fence, and the Persian flank ended with the Anglo-Russian Convention of 1907.

→ And the land-grab ended in Burma.

10 Upper Burma and Imperial Preference. Dufferin 84-88 annexed Upper Burma in January 1886, the last major extension, deposing King Thibaw. Trade was also bent to the empire: Imperial Preference, formalised at Ottawa in 1932, let British goods enter Indian ports at lower tariffs than German, Japanese or American goods.

→ But the empire's own claims came back to haunt it.

11 The ideas come home. The White Man's Burden produced its opposite: the American Revolution, the French Revolution 1789, the European revolutions of 1830 and 1848 and the Irish struggle. Later shocks added deindustrialisation and the Drain Theory, the Russian Revolution 1917, Wilson's self-determination and anti-racism. They travelled through people: Gandhi from South Africa (1893-1915) and Nehru from Cambridge.

In simple words

- The White Man's Burden is the roof: Western Europe was superior, so the British had a duty to civilise the world. The ideas under it changed with the EIC's confidence.
- Orientalism (1765-1813): rule India the India way (Hindu law, Islamic law, languages, syllabus). Cornwallis 86-93 then said my way or highway: Indians out of senior posts, Permanent Settlement 1793, an Aloof Elite.
- After 1813 came three: Liberalism (best ideas, but best = west; Macaulay), Utilitarianism (good laws, strong State; Mill) and Evangelicalism (Christianize to modernize; Grant).
- 1857 was a shock:
    - reform retreated, race was read by physical features, Dogs and Indians not allowed
    - Lytton 76-80 and Curzon 99-05 were its architects
- Beside the ideas ran Sleeman and the Thugs, the Forward Policy (Auckland 36-42 to Lytton 76-80, reversed by Ripon 80-84), Upper Burma 1886, Imperial Preference and the foreign currents that fed Indian nationalism.

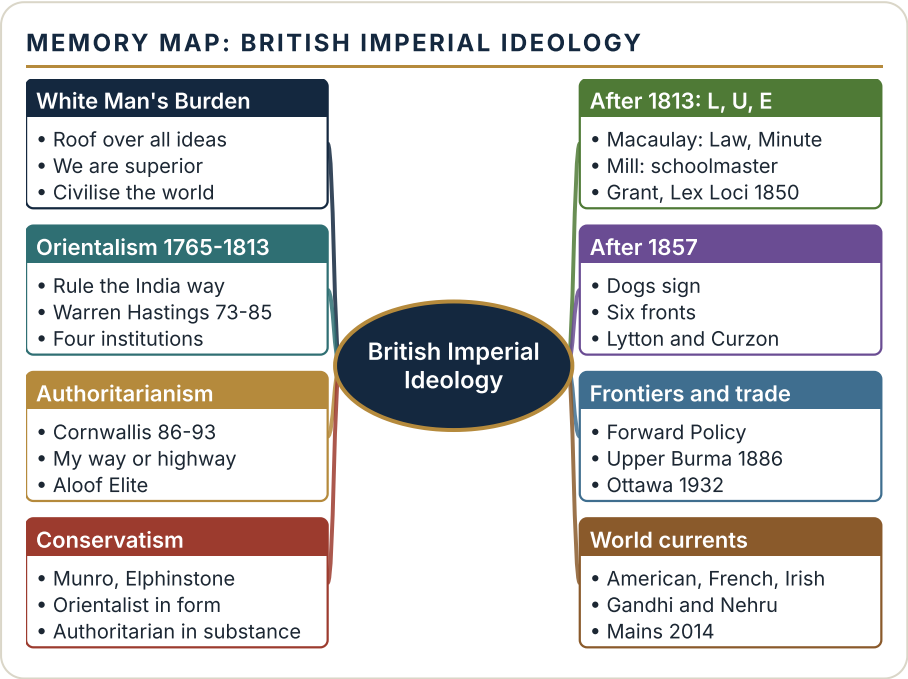
Key term	In plain words
White Man's Burden (WMB)	The belief that Western European civilisation was superior and so had a duty to civilise the rest of the world
Orientalism	Rule India the India way: study Indian tradition and rule through its own laws, languages and learning (1765-1813)
Authoritarianism	My way or highway: Cornwallis 86-93 removed Indians from senior posts and imposed the English way
Aloof Elite	The doctrine that EIC officials must not mix with Indians or put down roots: never let India become home
Conservatism	Munro's school: Orientalist in form, Authoritarian in substance
Liberalism	Give India the best ideas of the age (best = west) and free it from feudalism; champion Macaulay
Utilitarianism	Good laws and a strong State for the greatest number; civil servant mind (Bentham, James Mill)
Evangelicalism	Change India's religion to change everything: Christianize India to modernize India
Brown Sahibs	Indians brown outside and British inside, created by Macaulay's English education as cultural go-betweens

Key term	In plain words
Forward Policy	Pushing the effective frontier into Afghanistan to pre-empt Tsarist Russia
Great Game	The Anglo-Russian rivalry over Central Asia
Imperial Preference	Lower tariffs among Britain, the Dominions and India than for non-Empire rivals; formalised at Ottawa 1932

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS WMB is the roof; under it Orientalism, Authoritarianism, Liberal-Utilitarian-Evangelical, then Racism: each a different answer to how to civilise India.

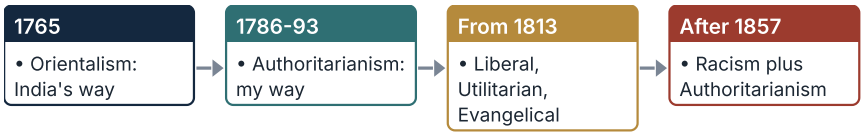
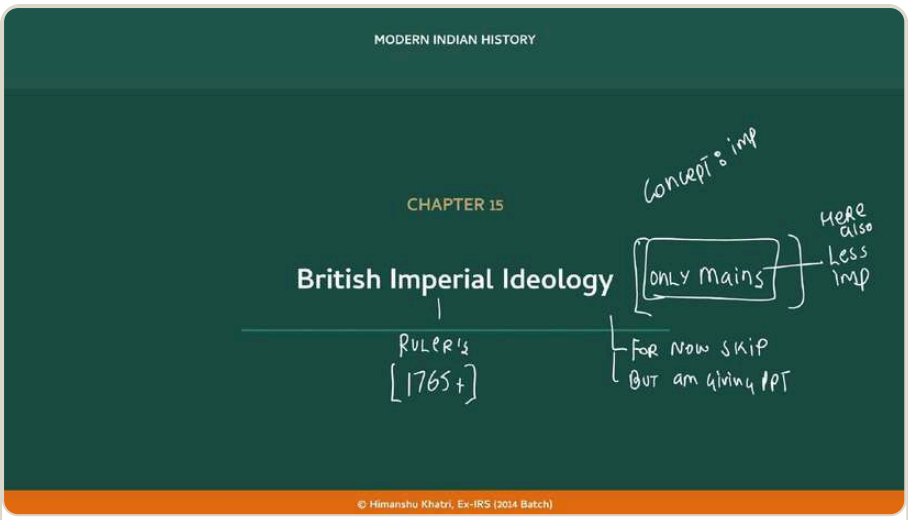
THE ARC OF IDEOLOGIES



STORY LINK

Story so far: one roof, four columns. Keep the board in mind: 1765 Orientalism, 1786-93 Authoritarianism, from 1813 three reform ideas, from 1858 Racism. Ask: what was the teacher's one-line summary of each?



Chapter 15 title: British Imperial Ideology Lecture 16 slide 64

Master board: four phases of imperial ideology under White Man's Burden Lecture 16 slide 66

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Whole chapter on one board:
  - 1765 Orientalism
  - 1786-93 Cornwallis 86-93's Authoritarianism
  - From 1813 Liberalism + Utilitarianism + Evangelicalism
  - From 1858 Racism + Authoritarianism
  - All under the roof "White Man's Burden".
- The one-liners are the exam answers.
- Orientalism = "Rule India the India Way" (Hindu law, Islamic law, Indian languages, Indian syllabus).
- Authoritarianism = "My way or highway" (Indians removed from all senior positions).
- Liberalism = "give the best ideas of our time to India, but best = west." Utilitarianism = "civil servant mind" (effectiveness, max results, implementable, practical): good laws and a strong State.
- Evangelicalism = "Christianize India to modernize India." After 1857: "Indians are beyond reform... Dogs and Indians not allowed... more Authoritarianism plus more Racism."

HANDOUT ALERT

- Board versus handout on dates. Board: Authoritarianism 1786-93 (Cornwallis 86-93), boundaries 1813 and 1858 (Queen Victoria's Proclamation, Section 7.1).
- Handout summary table (Section 13): 1786-1805 (Cornwallis 86-93 and Wellesley 98-05) plus Conservatism 1801-27, which the board omits.
- Use the board for the sequence, the table for champions.

1 · Why ideology comes before policy

STORY LINK

Because every ideology was both belief and cover story, policy followed ideas. Ask: what are the two layers, and why show both in Mains?

- British Imperial Ideologies are the ideas that shaped colonial policy.
- They were not one fixed set. They changed over time and sometimes competed.
- They shared one function: they gave the British a way to tell themselves and the world that what they were doing in India was not just profitable but morally right.
- Every ideology was both a genuine belief held by some Englishmen and a convenient narrative to make imperialism look ethical. Both layers operate at once.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- For Mains: always show both layers. Sincere belief and convenient cover story together.
- Many Englishmen were sincere (Section 5.5), and the ideas still served British power.

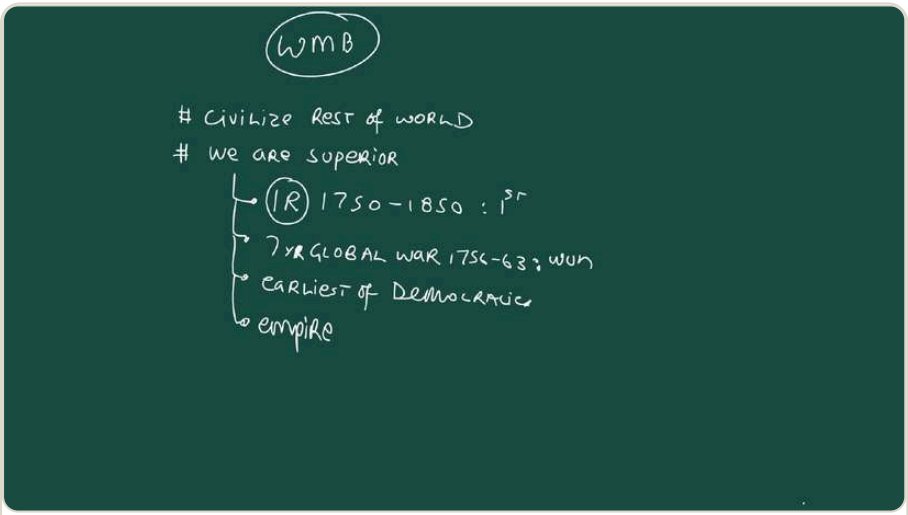
2 · Foundation: the White Man's Burden (WMB)

STORY LINK

Because the British were sure of themselves, they felt a duty to civilise. Ask: which five roots of confidence, and which four counter-currents did WMB create?

HANDOUT NOTE

No class notes beyond the board below; the typed slides repeat the handout.



White Man's Burden: why Britain felt superior Lecture 16 slide 65

- All other ideologies rested on one belief: Western European civilisation was superior, so the British had a responsibility to civilise the rest of the world.
- This is the White Man's Burden (WMB).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- WMB = "Civilize the rest of the world" and "We are superior".
- Reasons for the confidence:
    - Industrial Revolution 1750-1850: first
    - Seven Years' Global War 1756-63: won
    - Earliest of democracies
    - Empire.
- (The list trails off; the handout carries the rest.)

2.1 The roots of British civilisational confidence

- The British had genuine reasons to believe in their superiority:
- 1. World's first modern democracy: the English Civil War + Glorious Revolution (17th century).
- 2. Birthplace of the Industrial Revolution (c. 1750-1850).
- 3. Won the Seven Years' Global War (1756-63): the top global power.
- 4. Financially backed the coalition that defeated Napoleon at Leipzig (1813)
- led the allied armies to final victory with Prussia at Waterloo (1815).
- 5. Capitalism and science transforming British society at an unprecedented pace.
- A nation that achieves all this within 150 years can convince itself that it is destined to lead the world.
- Every major imperial power had its own version of WMB.

2.2 WMB as roof, and the counter-ideologies as reaction

- WMB was the roof over everything else.
- The specific ideologies below were different answers to the same question: how exactly should we civilise India?
- WMB also generated its opposite: powerful anti-colonial counter-ideologies worldwide:
- 1. American Revolution: a political movement from 1765, War of Independence 1776-83.
- 2. French Revolution (1789): liberty, equality, fraternity.
- 3. European revolutions of 1830 and 1848.
- 4. Irish Home Rule movement (1870-1914) and the Irish armed struggle for independence (1916-21).
- These challenged imperial-superiority assumptions and inspired colonised peoples, including Indian nationalists.
- (Section 12 develops this: Mains 2014.)

HANDOUT NOTE

- The typed slide shows only two of the four counter-ideologies (American Revolution, Irish struggle).
- Use the handout's four (repeated in Section 12).

3 · Orientalism (1765-1813): Rule India, the India Way

STORY LINK

Because the EIC was scared and some wanted to spare India, it chose to rule the India way. Ask: which four things, which four institutions, and which one is the Prelims 2020 answer?

3.1 Orientalism defined

- In the 18th century the British used language and literature as the measure of civilisation.
- Scholars like William Jones studied Sanskrit and found it older and grammatically more sophisticated than ancient Greek and Latin.
- The conclusion: India had been a great ancient civilisation, and European and Indian languages belonged to the same family (today's Indo-European family: genuine scholarship, not propaganda).
- So Orientalism said: India's ancient past was glorious even if its present was degenerate, so the British should study Indian tradition and rule India by its own customs and laws.
- In short: Rule India, the India Way.

MNEMONIC · WHAT ORIENTALISM RULED BY

H I L L

Orientalism: go up the HILL of Indian tradition.

- H Hindu law
- I Islamic law
- L Indian Languages
- L Learning: Indian syllabus in schools and colleges

Order is free here, so the letters were arranged into a word.

HANDOUT ALERT

Date slip in the typed slide: William Jones is dated "(late 19th c)"; the handout places this scholarship in the 18th century (Asiatic Society 1784). Use the handout.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Oriental" = related to east. "Rule India the INDIA WAY" = four things: Hindu law, Islamic law, Indian languages, Indian syllabus in schools and colleges.

3.2 Why the EIC adopted Orientalism

- Two practical reasons:
- 1. The EIC was militarily not yet confident before 1813.
- Victory in the Carnatic, Mysore and Maratha Wars was never guaranteed, and one badly handled cultural insult could trigger mass resistance.
- Ruling through Indian customs reduced that risk.
- 2. Some Englishmen believed India was not ready for British modernity.
- Imposing alien systems would do more damage than good.
- Warren Hastings 73-85 was Orientalism's most prominent champion.
- He argued that the more the British understood Indian traditions, the lighter the chains of colonialism would feel.

3.2.1 The four Orientalist institutions

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR ORIENTALIST INSTITUTIONS, IN ORDER

Men Admired Sanskrit Fluently

M Calcutta Madrasa 1781: Warren Hastings 73-85, GG

A Asiatic Society of Bengal 1784: Sir William Jones, Puisne Judge

S Sanskrit College, Banaras 1791: Jonathan Duncan, Resident

F Fort William College 1800: Wellesley 98-05, GG, trains civilians

Order kept: the years climb 1781, 1784, 1791, 1800.

#	Year	Institution	Founder and capacity
1	1781	Calcutta Madrasa	Warren Hastings 73-85, as Governor-General of Bengal; mainly for the study of Islamic law and customs
2	1784	Asiatic Society of Bengal	Sir William Jones, as Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court at Calcutta; to study Asian history, antiquities and culture
3	1791	Sanskrit College, Banaras	Jonathan Duncan, as British Resident at Benares; for the study of Hindu law and philosophy
4	1800	Fort William College, Calcutta	Wellesley 98-05, as Governor-General of Bengal; to train newly recruited EIC civil servants in Indian languages and administration

HANDOUT NOTE

- Figure-only names: Colebrooke, Wilson and Prinsep (Brahmi decipherment) and the ASI founded 1861 by Alexander Cunningham.
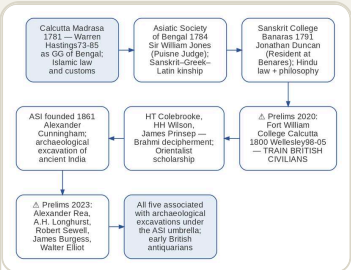
- The summary table (Section 13) also lists Colebrooke and Wilson as Orientalism champions. Learn them lightly.



Flow chart: Orientalist institutions, Fort William College, ASI 1861 handout figure

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Wellesley 98-05's second motive for Fort William College: to keep French republican ideas away from his officers.
- The French Revolution 1789 had overthrown the monarchy by 1792, and Wellesley 98-05 did not want anti-monarchy ideas infecting his men.

3.3 Orientalism's political angle

- The British supported the Aryan Invasion Theory: ancient India's cultural greatness was actually brought by Europeans who migrated to India in ancient times.
- Even while praising India, the British claimed credit.
- The argument of kinship: Europeans and Indians were separated kin connected through language.
- It was used to reduce Indian opposition: "we are not foreigners, we are cousins who have come home."
- This was a rhetoric of love to disguise the reality of exploitation.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2020 trap: (d) train British civilians.
- (a) Board of Directors asked: wrong, it was Wellesley 98-05's own initiative.
- (b) revive oriental learning: wrong, that was the Asiatic Society 1784 and Sanskrit College 1791.
- (c) employment for William Carey: wrong, Carey was an employee, not the founding purpose.

4 · Authoritarianism: Cornwallis 86-93 and Conservatism

STORY LINK

Because critics said the past was dead, Cornwallis 86-93 imposed the English way. Ask: which four steps, and what did Munro's formula add?

4.1 The Cornwallis 86-93 shift

- Orientalism had critics from the beginning. The study of ancient India had only confirmed that India's past was glorious and its present degenerate.
- That made restoring the past pointless and called for imposing the British system instead.
- Cornwallis 86-93 was the first Governor-General to implement this vision systematically.
- He ruled India, the English Way.
- Four specific measures:
- 1. All-British senior administration. He replaced all Indians in senior administrative positions with British officials.
- His argument:
    - Indian administrators were corrupt and incompetent
    - only British authority could deliver rule of law.
- (Deeper argument: only by removing Indians from power can the British civilise India.
- This "corrupt-native-needs-the-honest-foreigner" story was used through 1947 to justify exclusion.)
- 2. Rule of Law through codification. The Charter Act 1793, influenced by Cornwallis 86-93, established civil law and protection of individual rights and private property.
- It reintroduced separation of powers at the district level: the District Collector would no longer also be the District Judge.
- 3. Permanent Settlement (1793) in Bengal, converting zamindars into large landlords on the English model.
- (Full treatment in the Land Revenue Systems chapter, Chapter 16.)
- 4. Aloof Elite. EIC officials were discouraged from mixing with Indians. Indian wives were discouraged.
- Eurasians were barred from EIC service.
- Officials having Indian wives were barred from purchasing land in India.

MNEMONIC · CORNWALLIS 86-93'S FOUR STEPS, IN ORDER

Alien Rulers Prefer Aloofness

A All-British senior administration: Indians removed

R Rule of Law by codification: Charter Act 1793, Collector no longer Judge

P Permanent Settlement 1793: zamindars as English-style landlords

A Aloof Elite: no mixing, no Indian wives, Eurasians barred

Order kept: the handout's four measures.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Authoritarianism = "MY WAY OR HIGHWAY": "Removed Indians from all senior positions." "PS 1793 based on English way of agriculture = OUTLIER to Orientalism." Orientalism meant ruling the Indian way; the Permanent Settlement copied the English landlord model, so it breaks that pattern and belongs with Authoritarianism.

4.2 The Aloof-Elite doctrine

- Cornwallis 86-93 had personally commanded the British army's defeat in the American War of Independence (1776-83).
- He had watched British settlers in the 13 American colonies develop deep roots (family, property, identity) and then fight for independence as their homeland.
- He was determined not to let the same happen in India.
- The rule: keep the rulers separate from the ruled. Never let India become home.
- Wellesley 98-05 shared this authoritarian instinct. Both administrations were control-oriented, centralised and mistrustful of Indian agency.

4.3 Conservatism: Munro, Malcolm, Elphinstone, Metcalfe

- Thomas Munro (Governor of Madras 1820-27) was a hybrid of Orientalism and Authoritarianism.
- India should be governed through its own traditions, but the British would govern, with no leadership role for Indians.
- Total power centralised in EIC hands, but exercised through Indian forms (Indian laws and customs).
- His Ryotwari Settlement (1801-07, 1820+) in the Madras Presidency was inspired by the ancient Indian model of the State collecting revenue directly from the peasant, without intermediaries.
- But all collection was done by EIC officials, with no Indians in senior roles.
- The formula: Orientalist in form, Authoritarian in substance.
- Mountstuart Elphinstone, John Malcolm and Charles Metcalfe followed the same school.
- Elphinstone, a disciple of Munro, later implemented the Ryotwari Settlement in Bombay.

HANDOUT NOTE

No class notes for Conservatism beyond the typed slide; the master board has no column for it.

5 · Three new ideologies (post 1813): Liberalism, Utilitarianism, Evangelicalism

STORY LINK

Because the EIC was confident by 1813, three reform ideas took over. Ask: what did each want, and who was the champion of each?

5.1 The post-1813 sharp turn

- By 1813 the landscape had changed dramatically:
- 1. The EIC had defeated all major Indian powers
- only Holkar, Bhonsle and the Sikh State remained as potential rivals
- 2. The Company's army had grown huge.
- 3. Britain had defeated Napoleon.
- 4. The Industrial Revolution was in full swing.
- The EIC was now confident enough to rule India the British way: openly, aggressively, without apology.
- There was also a new economic motive: an India with western tastes and western education would become a market for British manufactured goods.
- Three ideologies filled the space Orientalism had occupied: Liberalism, Utilitarianism, Evangelicalism.

5.2 Liberalism

- Liberals argued that the EIC had governed India badly under Orientalism.
- The Great Bengal Famine of 1770 (one crore Indians perished while the EIC doubled land revenue) was cited as proof.
- India needed to be modernised through the best ideas of the age (best meaning western).
- Goal: liberate India from feudalism: feudal polity (no democracy), feudal economy (agrarian, closed, unequal), feudal society (birth-based discrimination, no women's rights), and replace it with modern British institutions.
- Thomas Macaulay, legal member of the GG's council under the Charter Act 1833, was the most prominent Liberal. His three signature interventions:
- 1. Law Commission (1834): codified western-style laws for British India by 1837.
- 2. Minute on Indian Education (1835): proposed western education in English to create Brown Sahibs (brown on the outside, British on the inside): a class of Indians as cultural intermediaries between British rulers and the Indian masses.

- 3. Charter Act 1813 (a Liberal-influenced reform): ended the EIC's monopoly over Indian trade and let non-EIC British businesses enter India freely.
- This was economic liberalism for British businesses, not for Indian ones.
- Social reform followed too: Bentinck 28-35 brought the Sati Abolition Act 1829 under Liberal influence (full treatment in Chapter 19).

HANDOUT NOTE

- Date wrinkle. The slide and handout list the Charter Act 1813 among Macaulay's "interventions", yet his council seat came under the Charter Act 1833.
- The handout calls the 1813 Act a "Liberal-influenced reform": read it as a Liberal-era measure that opened trade, not Macaulay's own act.
- His own: Law Commission 1834, Minute 1835.

5.3 Utilitarianism

- Associated with Jeremy Bentham and James Mill.
- India needed not culture change but good policy and a strong rule of law.
- The State's job: design laws that maximise benefit for the largest number of people.
- James Mill's History of British India (1818) declared India's great past a myth and argued India needed an effective schoolmaster: someone to impose good governance from above.
- Mill joined the Court of Directors of the EIC in London and pushed for the Law Commission in 1834 under Macaulay.
- Utilitarianism contains an inherent authoritarian streak.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Utilitarianism = "civil servant mind": effectiveness, max results, implementable, practical.
- "Bring good laws and a strong State for rule of law." A utilitarian cares what works, not what is traditional or Christian, hence laws and a strong State.

5.4 Evangelicalism

- Evangelists argued India's fundamental problem was its religion, which promoted superstition, ignorance, idolatry and tyranny of priests and blocked scientific thinking.
- Religion shapes values
- Values shape society. Change the religion, change everything.
- Their model was Protestant Christianity in western Europe, where Protestant ethics supported the rise of capitalism and modernity.
- Charles Grant, a member of the Court of Directors and later an MP, influenced the Charter Act 1813 to legalise the entry of Christian missionaries into India.
- The Lex Loci Act / Removal of Religious-Caste Disabilities Act (1850) allowed a convert to retain inheritance rights in family property, removing one practical obstacle to conversion (full treatment in Chapter 19).

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Evangelicalism: CHRISTIANIZE India to MODERNIZE India."

HANDOUT ALERT

- Charter Act 1813 appears under two ideologies.
- Liberal side: ended the EIC's trade monopoly (section 5.2).
- Evangelical side: allowed missionaries (this section). Both are in the handout. Keep the two effects apart.

5.5 Common ground across the three

- All three pushed for reform of the colonial State and together built the narrative of Benevolent Colonialism: "we are here to help you."
- Many Englishmen who believed in these ideologies were sincere.
- And yet all three together contributed to the conditions that produced the Revolt of 1857: cultural, economic and political resistance to a colonial project that had touched almost every aspect of Indian life.

6 · The Liberalism shift 1828-35

STORY LINK

Because Liberal confidence peaked in 1828-35, four interventions followed. Ask: which four, and what is the Charter Act 1833 trap?

- The short window from Bentinck 28-35 through the Charter Act 1833 to Macaulay's 1835 Minute is the high-water mark of Liberal confidence in India. Four headline interventions:
- 1. Sati Abolition Act 1829: criminalised widow-burning (full treatment in Chapter 19).
- 2. Thuggee Suppression (1830s-40s):
  - Under Captain William Sleeman
  - restored police order on the Grand Trunk roads (Section 8; Prelims 1997)
- 3. Macaulay's Education Minute 1835: made English the medium of higher instruction, displacing Persian.
- 4. Cornwallis 86-93 Code progressively revised into a uniform criminal procedure: the foundation Macaulay's 1834 Law Commission would build on.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Charter Act 1833 trap: it did NOT provide for an Indian to be appointed law member in the GG's council (Prelims 2003, answer (d) in the bank).
- Macaulay, the law member, was a Briton.

7 · Racism + Authoritarianism (post 1857)

STORY LINK

Because 1857 shocked the British, reform retreated and race hardened. Ask: which six fronts, and which two architects?

- The Revolt of 1857 shook the British not just militarily but psychologically.
- The scale of Indian violence against British rule (soldiers, civilians, women, children) broke the paternalistic narrative.
- The British had told themselves they were trustees and reformers. 1857 told them that a very large number of Indians did not see it that way.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Board column 4: "1857 Revolt = SHOCK for British." "Indians are beyond Reform." "Ideology = DOGS & Indians not allowed." "Up-up Authoritarianism (+) up-up RACISM."

7.1 The six-front sharp shift after 1857

- 1. Reformist impulse retreated sharply. Liberalism, Utilitarianism and Evangelicalism (Section 5) collapsed.
- Many concluded that Indians were beyond redemption through reform.
- 2. Racial sciences shift. European racial classification in the second half of the 19th century shifted from language (the Orientalist criterion) to physical features.
- Indians were now classed as an inferior and fundamentally different race: not separated kin (Section 3) but a lower order of humanity.
- 3. Aryan Invasion Theory kept but twisted.
- Europeans had founded the Vedic civilisation, but by intermarrying with indigenous Indians over millennia they lost their racial superiority and degraded.
- Even India's ancient greatness was now used as evidence of Indian inferiority.
- 4. "Dogs and Indians not allowed":
    - Seen on signs at clubs and parks in colonial India
    - It captures the spirit of post-1857 attitudes
- 5. Authoritarianism increased. The British became distrustful of sharing power with Indians in any meaningful way.

- 6. Social reforms slowed sharply. Queen Victoria's Proclamation of 1858 explicitly promised religious tolerance and non-interference in Indian customs: a direct acknowledgement that missionary and reformer interference had been a major grievance of 1857.
- From here, social and political reforms came mainly in response to pressure from Indian leaders, not British initiative.

MNEMONIC · THE SIX FRONTS AFTER 1857, IN ORDER

Ruling Races Assumed Dominion, Asserting Supremacy

- R Reformist impulse retreated
- R Racial sciences: language to physical features
- A Aryan Invasion Theory kept but twisted
- D Dogs and Indians not allowed
- A Authoritarianism increased
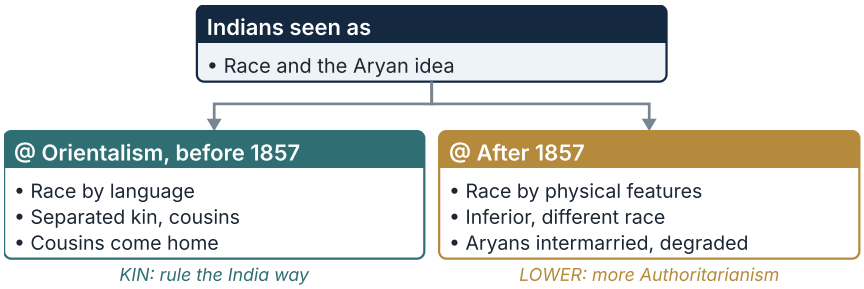
- S Social reforms slowed: Queen's Proclamation 1858

Order kept: the handout's six fronts.

- The table below contrasts the two uses of the Aryan idea and of race.

RACE BEFORE AND AFTER 1857



Aspect	Orientalism (before 1857)	After 1857
Criterion of race	Language	Physical features
Indians seen as	Separated kin, cousins	Inferior, different race, a lower order
Aryan Invasion Theory	Europeans brought India's greatness: "cousins come home"	Europeans founded Vedic civilisation but intermarried and degraded
Policy mood	Rule India the India Way	Reform retreated; more Authoritarianism

7.2 Post-1857 architects: Lytton 76-80 and Curzon 99-05

- The architects of this harder imperialism were Lytton 76-80 and Curzon 99-05: men for whom empire was a project of prestige, paramountcy and racial hierarchy.
- 1. Lytton 76-80: the Vernacular Press Act 1878 and Arms Act 1878 reinstated racial privilege (VPA in Chapter 19).
- 2. Curzon 99-05: the Partition of Bengal (1905) was the same mindset applied administratively (in Chapter 29).

8 · Law and order paternalism: Sleeman and the Thugs

STORY LINK

Because the roads were unsafe, a parallel track of law-and-order paternalism ran. Ask: whose department, which three tools, and which distractors in Prelims 1997?

- Between Orientalism and Liberalism the EIC also ran a parallel track of law-and-order paternalism: reclaiming the roads, the courts and rural policing in the name of the peasant's physical safety.
- The flagship was the Thuggee and Dacoity Suppression campaign of the 1830s-40s, built around Captain (later Major-General Sir) William Sleeman, under Bentinck 28-35.
- His Thuggee and Dacoity Department (set up 1835) used three tools:
- 1. Informant networks infiltrating Thug bands.
- 2. Approver testimony: captured Thugs gave evidence against their associates in exchange for lighter sentences.
- 3. Swift judicial commissions: dedicated tribunals delivering rapid trials.
- Together these dismantled organised highway murder cults that had made long-distance trade on the Grand Trunk Road a life-and-death gamble.
- Over 3,000 Thugs were convicted between 1831 and 1841.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1997 trap: answer (b) Captain Sleeman.
- Prendergast = Upper Burma 1885-86 (Section 10).
- Burnes = Afghan frontier, killed in the 1st Anglo-Afghan War 1841 (Section 9). Pemberton = Assam/Burma frontier officer.

9 · The Forward Policy in Afghanistan: from Auckland 36-42 to Lytton 76-80

STORY LINK

Because Russia was feared, the frontier was pushed into Afghanistan. Ask: which four Governors-General, and what did Gandamak 1879 give?

- The Forward Policy was the militarised face of post-1840s British imperialism on the north-west frontier: Britain should actively push its effective frontier into Afghanistan to pre-empt Tsarist Russian influence, rather than defend a fixed line at the Indus.
- Its arc ran through multiple Governors-General and is a classic PYQ trap:
- 1. Auckland 36-42 launched the disastrous 1st Anglo-Afghan War (1839-42) to reinstall Shah Shuja against Dost Mohammad.
- The retreat from Kabul (January 1842) wiped out almost an entire British-Indian army.
- 2. Ellenborough 42-44 initiated what later came to be called the Forward Policy: a punitive return to Kabul in 1842 to restore British prestige, followed by a doctrine of pushing the frontier outward.
- 3. Lytton 76-80 carried forward the Forward Policy and launched the 2nd Anglo-Afghan War (1878-80), forcing the Treaty of Gandamak 1879.
- The war continued into its 2nd phase after the massacre of British Resident Louis Cavagnari at Kabul.
- 4. Ripon 80-84 reversed the Forward Policy and withdrew British forces from Afghanistan: the pendulum swing that Liberal governments in London demanded.

MNEMONIC · THE FORWARD POLICY ARC, IN ORDER

Aggressive Empires Lunge, Retreat

- A Auckland 36-42: 1st Anglo-Afghan War 1839-42
- E Ellenborough 42-44: punitive return to Kabul 1842
- L Lytton 76-80: 2nd Anglo-Afghan War 1878-80, Gandamak 1879
- R Ripon 80-84: reversed it and withdrew

Order kept: the four Governors-General in time order.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Slide versus handout on Ellenborough 42-44. Handout: he initiated the Forward Policy (punitive return to Kabul 1842 to restore prestige, then the frontier-outward doctrine; its flow chart agrees).
- Slide: he "Ended Forward Policy (*Correct this in notes)", so the slide is flagged for correction by its own author. This notebook follows the handout.
- The safe core is the same either way:
  - Auckland 36-42 = 1st war 1839-42
  - Lytton 76-80 carried forward the Forward Policy (2nd war 1878-80)
  - Ripon 80-84 reversed it. The slide also spells "Aukland"

9.1 The Treaty of Gandamak 1879

- The handout calls Gandamak 1879 a mini subsidiary alliance, with five terms:

Term	Detail
British Resident stationed	At the Amir's court
Army stationed	British forces
Foreign policy taken	By the British
Territory	Khyber Pass and some other lands to the British
In return	The British pay 6 lakh annually to the Amir

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1999 trap: (d) Lytton 76-80. (a) Minto (Minto II 1905-10) is after Curzon 99-05.
- (b) Dufferin 84-88 is famous for Upper Burma 1886, not Afghanistan.
- (c) Elgin (I 1862-63 or II 1894-99) is a different era.
- The answer slide says Lytton 76-80 carried forward the policy "initiated by Ellenborough 42-44", which supports the handout over the Ellenborough slide.

9.2 Revision: Russophobia and the Great Game

- Russophobia: the British fear that Czarist Russia, expanding through Central Asia, would one day reach the north-west land approach to India.
- The Great Game: this Anglo-Russian rivalry over Central Asia.
- It shaped British frontier and foreign policy far more than trade.
- Offensive answer: the Forward Policy, pushing the effective frontier outward through the two Anglo-Afghan Wars (1839-42 and 1878-80).
- Defensive twin: the Policy of Ring Fence: keeping strong, friendly border States as a buffer around British India, with Afghanistan and Punjab as the buffer in the north-west.
- The 1838 Tripartite Treaty (Sikh State, EIC and Shah Shuja) was built on this buffer logic (see Chapter 6, Chapter 14).

- The Persian flank: the same logic produced the Anglo-Persian War 1856-57 and finally the Anglo-Russian Convention of 1907, which split Iran into three: a Russian sphere in the north, a neutral buffer in the middle and a British sphere in the south (see Chapter 14).

HANDOUT NOTE

Revision box. Belongs with the policies chapter: the Ring Fence idea began with Clive 57-67 in 1765 (Chapter 10); the Five-Policy Arc is in Chapter 14.

10 · Dufferin 84-88 and Upper Burma (1886)

STORY LINK

Because the land-grab ended in Burma, one year matters. Ask: which Viceroy, which year, and what is the slide's nuance?

- The last major territorial extension of British India was Upper Burma, annexed in January 1886 after the 3rd Anglo-Burmese War 1885-86.
- The Viceroy was Dufferin 84-88. King Thibaw was deposed and exiled to Ratnagiri.
- The field commander was General Henry Prendergast, the same man who appeared as a distractor in the Prelims 1997 Thuggee question.
- Upper Burma was merged with Lower Burma (British from 1852) and governed as a province of British India until the 1937 separation.

NUMBER CARD · FRONTIER AND TARIFF DATES

1 8 3 9 · 1 8 7 8 · 1 8 8 6 · 1 9 3 2

Two Afghan wars, one Burma, one tariff.

1839-42 1st Anglo-Afghan War: Auckland 36-42

1878-80 2nd Anglo-Afghan War: Lytton 76-80; Gandamak 1879, 6 lakh a year to the Amir

1886 Upper Burma annexed in January: Dufferin 84-88

1932 Ottawa Conference: Imperial Preference

HANDOUT NOTE

- "Lower Burma, British from 1852" is the 2nd Anglo-Burmese War (1852-53) of Dalhousie 48-56 (Chapter 14).
- The handout's Ch 14 section on it is the home for that war.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2000: (a) Dufferin 84-88, with a nuance.
- Handout: Dufferin 84-88 added Upper Burma in January 1886.
- Traps:
  - Dalhousie 48-56 (Punjab 1849, Awadh 1856, Doctrine of Lapse) was the big annexation GG, but his last major extension was Awadh 1856
  - Lytton 76-80 made no territorial extension (he tightened Paramountcy-era instruments, such as the Treaty of Jacobabad 1876, without annexing)
  - Curzon 99-05's Partition of Bengal 1905 was administrative
- Nuance:
  - Burma was not traditionally part of India, so the "famous" answer, and possibly the official key, is Dalhousie 48-56
  - But the question says "British Indian territory", so (a) Dufferin 84-88 is legally correct
- Use (a), as the handout and bank do, and keep Dalhousie 48-56 in mind.

11 · Imperial Preference

STORY LINK

Because trade was bent to the empire, tariffs favoured Britain. Ask: what is the key word, and where was it formalised?

- "Imperial Preference" was a commercial tariff arrangement: the constituent units of the British Empire (Britain, the Dominions and India) granted one another preferential (lower) tariff rates denied to non-Empire competitors.
- Formalised at the Ottawa Conference of 1932, locking India's trade into an Empire-first structure that subordinated Indian industrial interests to British manufacturing needs.
- (Full treatment in the Drain Theory chapter, Chapter 27.)
- Effect on India: British goods entered Indian ports at a lower tariff than German, Japanese or American competitors.
- India's tariff regime systematically advantaged the very British manufacturing economy that Indian industries were trying to compete with.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1999 trap: answer (a) special privileges on British imports in India.
- (b) racial discrimination is a different phenomenon (Section 7).
- (c) subordination of Indian interest is too vague, a general description of colonialism and not the specific definition.
- (d) preference to British political agents over Princes is Political Department protocol. The key word is tariff.

11.1 The stray table of five antiquarians (Prelims 2023)

#	Name	Notable work
1	Alexander Rea	Excavated at Amaravati and Bhattiprolu
2	A.H. Longhurst	Excavated at Nagarjunakonda and Hampi
3	Robert Sewell	Wrote "A Forgotten Empire" (Vijayanagara)
4	James Burgess	First Director of the Archaeological Survey of Western and Southern India
5	Walter Elliot	Of the Madras Civil Service; catalogued Andhra Buddhist sites and coins

HANDOUT ALERT

- Stray table. It sits between Imperial Preference and the foreign ideologies with no heading or link to the ideology story
- It answers Prelims 2023: all five = archaeological excavations (a).
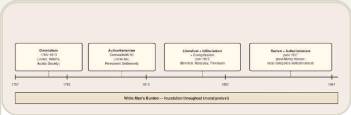
- The handout's flow chart ties it to Orientalist scholarship through the ASI (founded 1861, Alexander Cunningham) (Section 3.2.1).
- The full ASI story is not in this chapter.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Names only in the figure: Wilkins (Orientalism) and Trevelyan (Liberal-era) are not in the handout text.
- Use the figure as a picture of the sequence, and the text for facts.



Timeline of the ideologies, 1757 to 1947, over the White Man's Burden bar handout figure

12 · Foreign ideologies motivating India's anti-colonial struggle

STORY LINK

Because the burden produced its opposite, world events fed Indian nationalism. Ask: which three buckets and which two carriers answer Mains 2014?

HANDOUT NOTE

Numbering glitch. The handout numbers these points 13.1 to 13.3 (under "Sec. 13"); here they are 12.1 to 12.3.

- WMB (Section 2) produced its opposite: powerful anti-colonial counter-ideologies across the globe that travelled back into India through newspapers, returning students and political exiles.

12.1 Pre-1900 political and ideological currents

- 1. American Revolution (1765-83): political movement from 1765, War of Independence 1776-83.
- 2. French Revolution of 1789: liberty, equality, fraternity.
- 3. European revolutions of 1830 and 1848: democratic uprisings across the continent.
- 4. Irish Home Rule (1870-1914) and Irish armed struggle (1916-21) against Britain: direct anti-British inspiration.
- All challenged imperial superiority and inspired colonised peoples worldwide.

12.2 Three 20th-century shocks that radicalised Indian nationalism

- 1. Industrial Revolution's destructive impact on Indian handloom: deindustrialisation fed the Drain Theory of Dadabhai Naoroji and R.C. Dutt.
- 2. Russian Revolution of 1917: gave the Indian left a peasant-worker mobilisation model and an anti-imperial vocabulary.
- 3. Post-WWI principle of self-determination (Wilson's Fourteen Points, 1918) and rising anti-racism: made continued British rule increasingly indefensible in international forums.

12.3 Returning Indian leaders brought these currents home

- The world-developments travelled through people, not ideas alone:
- 1. Gandhi from South Africa: anti-colonial training from Indian-diaspora struggles in South Africa (1893-1915).
- 2. Nehru from Cambridge: Western liberal-democratic political theory absorbed during his Cambridge studies, applied in Indian Congress politics.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Mains 2014 (10M, 150 words):
  - "What were the major political, economic and social developments in the world which motivated the anti-colonial struggle in India?" Handout's three-bucket answer: Enlightenment + American + French + Irish revolutions (political and ideological)
  - Industrial Revolution deindustrialisation (economic)
  - Russian Revolution 1917 + Wilson's self-determination + anti-racism (social and ideological)
  - Then returning leaders (Gandhi from South Africa, Nehru from Cambridge)
- The companion Appendix FYQ_Mains with the five-part treatment is not in this notebook. Skeleton: see the Exam lens.

Chapter 14: Dalhousie 48-56

The Five-Policy Arc (Isolation, Indirect Rule and Ring Fence, Subsidiary Alliance, Paramountcy, Subordinate Union) is the policy side of these ideologies; the 1838 Tripartite Treaty, the Anglo-Persian War and the 1907 Convention are told there too.

Chapter 10: Plassey and Buxar

The Drain, the 1770 famine (the Liberals' proof) and Clive 57-67's Ring Fence all start there.

Chapter 11: Subsidiary Alliance

Wellesley 98-05, Fort William College 1800 and the authoritarian instinct he shared with Cornwallis 86-93.

Chapter 16: Land Revenue Systems

Permanent Settlement 1793 (English model) and Munro's Ryotwari (Orientalist in form).

Chapter 19: Social Reforms, Education Reforms and Print Culture

Sati 1829, Lex Loci 1850, Macaulay's Minute 1835 and the Vernacular Press Act 1878.

Chapter 21: The Revolt of 1857

The three reform ideologies helped produce it; its shock produced the racist turn.

Chapter 29: Extremists and the Swadeshi Movement

Curzon 99-05's Partition of Bengal 1905.

Chapter 27: Moderates: Positives and Drain Theory

Naoroji, Dutt and the Drain; Imperial Preference as its tariff form.

Chapter 35: Gandhi in South Africa

Gandhi's 1893-1915 apprenticeship, one of the carriers of foreign ideas.

Land Revenue Systems (1765-1885)

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 154-165 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 2000, 2001, 2011 (litigation), 2012, 2017, 2021, 2024; class-slide revision 1995 and 2011 (Kheda)

Mains PYQs: "Why so many famines in British India?" (teacher's starred prompt); "British empire built and sustained by DnR" (class-slide FYQ)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 2000 match: the peasant with sublet, mortgage and sale rights = Ryotwari; settlement at village level = Mahalwari (tie C and D first; the Jagirdari and Zamindari rows are read differently by the handout and the class slide)
- Prelims 2012 on Ryotwari (c): direct payment, pattas, survey first; Prelims 2017 (c): Read and Munro, not Cornwallis 86-93
- Prelims 2024 (b): remission is a cut, not zero, and Ryotwari is not Cornwallis 86-93's; the Zamindar who defaults loses the land (Sunset Clause)
- Prelims 2001 (b): no official check upon the Zamindar; Prelims 2011 (d): litigation came from the Cornwallis 86-93 Code of 1793
- Prelims 2021 (c): commercialisation of agriculture; the four pillars of PS 1793 and the 66 to 60 arithmetic; Regulation VII of 1799 against 1822
- Class-slide revision: Prelims 1995 Wandiwash (b); Prelims 2011 Kheda (a, read the alert in Section 7)

MAINS HOOKS

- Why so many famines in British India? Cash revenue demand, cash crops, less food reserve, plus the 1770 famine as the early case (the teacher's starred prompt)
- British empire built and sustained by DnR: PS 1793 as the Sustained half (loyal Zamindars below, rightless ryots)
- Compare PS and Ryotwari on the cultivating class (tenant at will against the over-assessed owner); neither matched the Mughal patta
- Why three systems and why the ryot suffered in all: ideology, geography and finance; high demand, faulty surveys, legal vulnerability, moneylenders

The landowner changed with each system, but the ryot lost out in all three, worse off than under the Mughal patta; only the Rent Act 1859 and the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885 partly repaired PS.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Every system answers five questions (landowner, assessment, settlement, collection, tenants' rights), and every British answer left the ryot worse off than the Mughal patta: auction, then a fixed-forever Zamindar, then an over-assessed ryot, then an unsurveyed Mahal, with cash revenue pushing him to cash crops and famine. Each failure forced the next experiment.

1. The Mughal patta. The Khudkasht (cultivator) holds customary occupancy rights and pays by a patta, a written record of what he owes, plus abwabs to his Primary Zamindar. The chain runs Khudkasht, Primary Zamindar, Intermediary Zamindar, then the Jagirdar or State, with Amils and Amalguzars checking. The Zamindar is a commission collector (Vatan right, 10%) and not the owner: only the King is legal owner. When the State needs money in a hurry it auctions the collection (Ijaradari).

   → But in 1765 the EIC takes over the collecting.

2. Diwani, but the old chain (1765-70). The Treaty of Allahabad gives the EIC the Diwani of Bengal, Orissa and Bihar. It keeps the Mughal collection (Orientalism) under Deputy Subadar Muhammad Reza Khan as Diwan. But the patta is ignored and rents run far beyond the record, then back-to-back droughts strike: the Great Bengal Famine of 1770 kills 50 lakh to 1 crore, the demand is doubled and brutality is used. Reza Khan is jailed without trial 1772-74 as scapegoat.

   → By 1772 the EIC is in trouble itself.

3. Bankrupt (1772). Since 1757 the EIC bought Indian goods with India's own land revenue, so the famine hit its income directly. Nabobs' corruption, the famine and the army and Dual System expenses bring it to the verge of bankruptcy. Parliament lends 1.4 million pounds at 4% on condition of parliamentary oversight, which leads to the Regulating Act 1773.

   → Meanwhile Warren Hastings 73-85 tries to squeeze more.

4. The auction year (1772). Warren Hastings 73-85, an Orientalist, revives Ijaradari as the Farming System: each district's collection is auctioned to the Revenue Farmer, who works under a European District Collector. The farmers squeeze the ryots to recover their bids, the demand is so high that peasants pay nothing, and revenue does not improve.

   → Now the EIC wants certainty and a loyal landlord class.

5. Cornwallis 86-93, the Believer (1793). Cornwallis 86-93 comes from a landlord family and believes in English landlordism ('my way or highway'). His Permanent Settlement Act 1793 covers Bengal, Orissa, Bihar, North Madras and Benaras. Four pillars: the Zamindar becomes legal owner; settlement is with him; LR is fixed at 10/11 of the 1789-90 revenue forever (Rs 66 becomes Rs 60); and the Sunset Clause auctions his land if he misses the evening deadline.

   → But the results diverge from the intentions.

6. What the Permanent Settlement did. Frequent auctions at first (Jotedars and the Zamindar's family buy), later loyal Zamindars (largely on the British side in 1857) and certain revenue. But Zamindars do not invest, become absentee, and the ryot is a tenant at will with the patta ignored. Wellesley 98-05 gives back seizure, imprisonment and rent rises (Regulation VII of 1799), and the Cornwallis 86-93 Code clogs the courts.

   → Ryots revolt and the British have to act.

7. Patching the ryot's rights (1859 and 1885). The Rent Act 1859 gives occupancy rights after 12 years on the same plot, revives the patta and bans imprisonment, but Zamindars evict at year 11 and keep lathiyals; the Indigo Revolt 1859-63 and the Pabna Agrarian Leagues 1873 follow. After Ripon 80-84's Rent Commission of 1880, the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885 under Dufferin 84-88 counts 12 years across plots in a village and is implemented sincerely.

→ Meanwhile, in the south, Munro rejects the Bengal model.

8 Munro's Ryotwari (1792-1820). Cornwallis 86-93 and Wellesley 98-05 tried to create big Zamindars in Madras through the Poligars; it failed. Thomas Munro convinced the Court of Directors in 1801: Read had begun in Baramahal in 1792, Munro applied it 1801-07, and as Governor of Madras 1820-27 re-established it. His reasons: Scottish yeoman ideology, no big Zamindars, stressed finances, eliminating Poligars, political stability. The ryot owns, is settled with directly, after a field survey (SCAM-B).

→ But the survey is the hard part.

9 Over-assessment and the Deccan riots. Phase 1 took 33% to 50% of gross produce and ignored costs: ruin, abandoned land, moneylender debt. Phase 2 used net produce (Ricardian Economic Rent): Pringle 1830 reached 55%, the Wingate Settlement 1835 fixed it for 30 years; in Madras the Torture Commission 1855 led to a 50% cap. Mirasidars wore three hats, Patils were demoted, and when the cotton boom of the US Civil War years (1861-65) collapsed, debts to Marwari and Gujarati moneylenders plus crop failures led to the Bombay Deccan Peasant Riots of 1875.

→ In the north, a third answer is built for Awadh.

10 Mahalwari (1822-1856). In Awadh half came under British rule in 1801 and the Taluqdars were crushed 1801-22. Holt Mackenzie's recommendations became Regulation VII of 1822: settlement with the Mahal through its Lambardar, a hybrid where the Taluqdar owns in some areas. R.M. Bird's Revised Mahalwari of 1833 assesses at Mahal level, 66% of rental value for 30 years; Dalhousie 48-56 carries it to Punjab and Central India (CUP). Improper surveys and the summary settlement of Awadh in 1856 feed the 1857 revolt.

→ One more pressure squeezed all three systems: cash.

11 Cash instead of grain. The Mughals took much in kind; the British demanded cash. Ryots, compelled or induced by moneylenders and traders, shifted from food crops to indigo, cotton, opium, jute and sugarcane. Land that grew rice, wheat and millets served British factories (after the Industrial Revolution India became an export market and a source of raw materials). Less grain in reserve fed the famines of the late 19th century.

→ So whichever system, the ryot lost.

12 Why three systems, and why the ryot lost. Cornwallis 86-93 the landlordist made PS, Munro the yeoman man made Ryotwari, and Mahalwari was a practical compromise: ideology, geography and fiscal pressure. In all three, high demand, faulty surveys, legal vulnerability and predatory moneylending left the cultivating class worse off than under the Mughal patta.

- The Zamindar only collected on commission and the King alone was the legal owner
- From 1765 the EIC held the Diwani:
    - The patta was ignored, droughts struck and the demand was doubled, giving the 1770 famine
    - By 1772 the EIC was bankrupt and tried the Farming System (an auction)
- Cornwallis 86-93 made the Permanent Settlement 1793:
    - The Zamindar owned the land, paid 10/11 fixed forever and lost it at the Sunset Clause
    - The ryot became a tenant at will
- Munro answered with Ryotwari (the ryot owns and is settled with directly, after a field survey)
- Holt Mackenzie and R.M. Bird built Mahalwari (settlement with the Mahal). Both suffered from faulty surveys and over-assessment
- Cash revenue pushed ryots into cash crops and moneylenders' hands, so food reserves fell and famines followed
- The Rent Act 1859 and the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885 only partly repaired the ryot's position

REMEMBER IT AS Every system answers five questions, and in every one the ryot lost: Mughal patta, then auction, Zamindar, Ryotwari and Mahal, all squeezed by cash revenue.

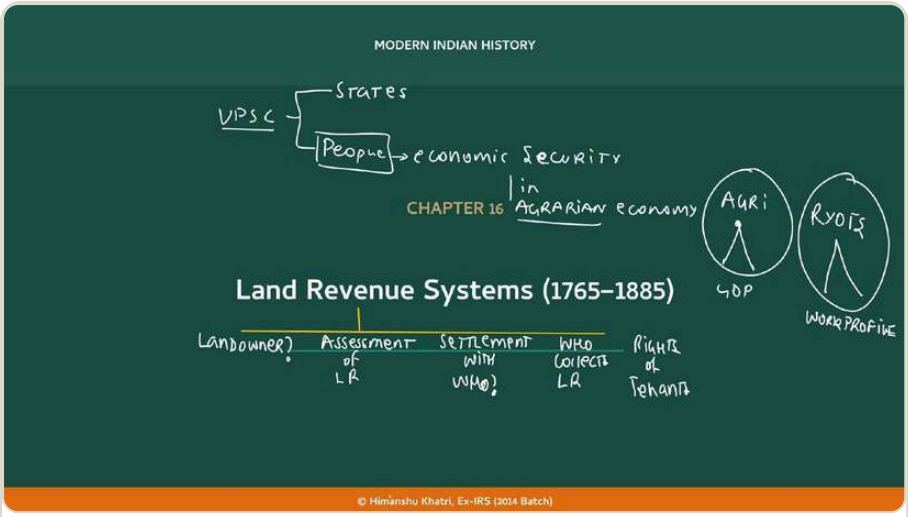
0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Because the State's duty to its people is economic security in an agrarian economy, every land system is judged on five questions. Ask: who owns, how is it assessed, who settles, who collects, and what do tenants get?



Chapter 16 title: land revenue and the five-question frame Lecture 17 slide 1

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why this chapter matters:
  - The State's duty to its people is economic security
  - In a pre-industrial country that means the agrarian economy (agriculture = big share of GDP; ryots = big share of the work profile)
- Five-question frame, repeated for the Mughal system, Ijaradari, PS 1793, Ryotwari and Mahalwari: who is the landowner, how is the revenue assessed, with whom is the settlement, who collects, what rights do tenants have.
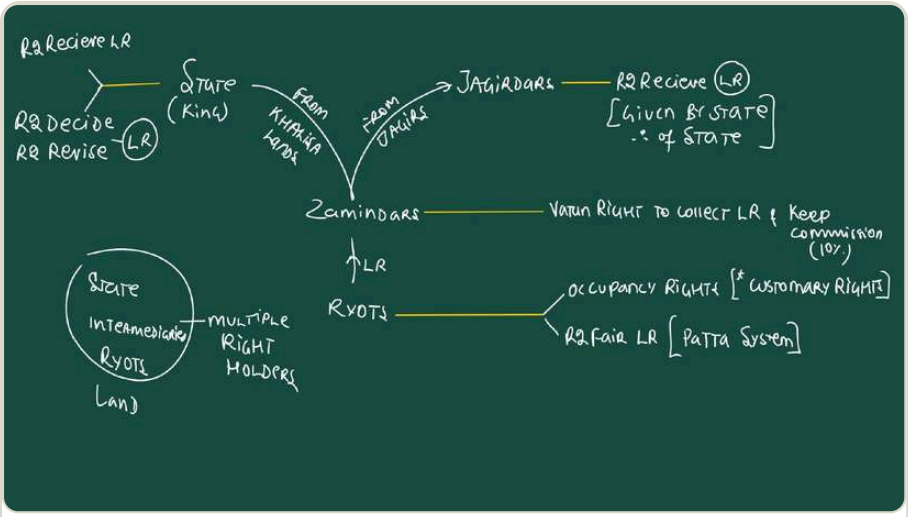
- Learn every system as a row of those five answers.

1 · The Mughal blueprint for land revenue

STORY LINK

Because the British inherited the Mughal chain, you must know it first: it is the yardstick the later systems fall short of. Ask: where did the Khudkasht's protection come from, and who really owned the land?



Mughal LR: State, intermediaries and ryots Lecture 17 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Multiple right holders: the State (King) holds the right to receive, decide and revise LR.
- From khalisa lands LR goes straight to Zamindars
- From jagirs to Jagirdars (right to receive LR, given by the State)
- Zamindars: Vatan right to collect LR and keep a commission (10%).
- Ryots:
  - Send LR upward
  - Hold customary Occupancy Rights and the right to fair LR (Patta system)

- The Khudkasht was the actual cultivator. He held customary occupancy rights over his land (he could not simply be thrown off).
- He paid land revenue by the Patta system: a document (patta) recorded the amount he owed, a legal safeguard against arbitrary over-extraction.
- He also paid abwabs (informal tributes) to his Primary Zamindar.

The Mughal revenue chain: who collected, who paid up

- Khudkasht (cultivator):
  - Customary occupancy rights
  - Pays LR per his patta
  - pays abwabs to the Primary Zamindar
- Primary Zamindar: keeps his commission, passes the rest up
- Intermediary Zamindar: collects, keeps his cut, passes the rest up
- Jagirdar if the land was a jagir
- the State if it was khalisa land

- Figure label slip. The figure's bottom box says "Amlas"
- The handout text names the State's supervisors as Amils and Amalguzars.
- Amlas are private employees of Zamindars, not State officers (Section 4.1). Use Amils and Amalguzars.

Mughal chain: Khudkasht, Primary Zamindar, Intermediary Zamindar, Jagirdar or State handout figure

- Amils and Amalguzars (government officers) supervised the chain so that Zamindars did not under-report collections.
- Critical point: the Zamindar was not the owner of land.
- He was a revenue collector on commission (Vatan right to collect LR and keep a 10% commission).
- He also had police duties alongside revenue work.
- Legal private ownership of property was not a Mughal idea
- It was British, imported from English law
- Ijaradari: when the State needed money in a hurry it auctioned the right to collect land revenue to the highest bidder.
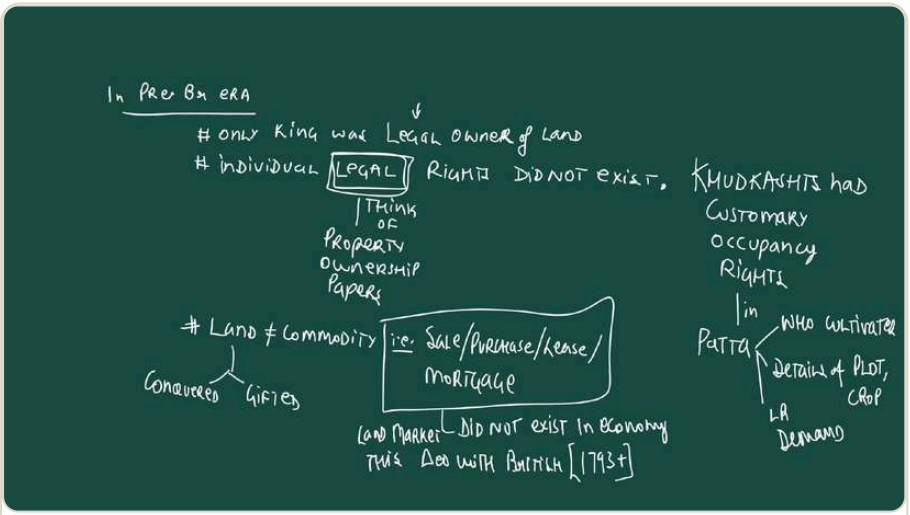
- The British would replicate this (Section 2.2).



Pre-British land rights: only the King owned; customary rights; no land market Lecture 17 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Legal against customary. Mughal era:
  - Only the King was legal owner
  - no individual legal property rights existed (think of property ownership papers)
- The Khudkasht's right was customary (from custom, not State law), recorded in his patta (who cultivates, plot and crop details, LR demand).
- Land was not a commodity: it changed hands only by conquest or gift, so no sale, purchase, lease or mortgage and no land market.
- The land market develops with the British, from 1793.

Mughal LR system on the five-question frame Lecture 17 slide 13

The five questions	Mughal system	Ijaradari (Mughal fallback)
Landowner	Khudkasht (practically his milkiyat; legally only the King owned)	Ryot or Khudkasht (practical)
Assessment	Detailed survey; % of gross produce (e.g. one-third); revisable	Summary, by auction; an amount
Settlement with	The ryot (he gives a Qubuliyat to the State; the State gives him a patta)	The Ijaradar, via auction
Collection by	A non-State actor: the Zamindar	The Ijaradar
Tenants	Rightless, landless Pahikashts	(not written)

MNEMONIC · THE FIVE QUESTIONS ASKED OF EVERY SYSTEM

R A T E S

Land revenue is charged at RATES, and every system answers these five questions.

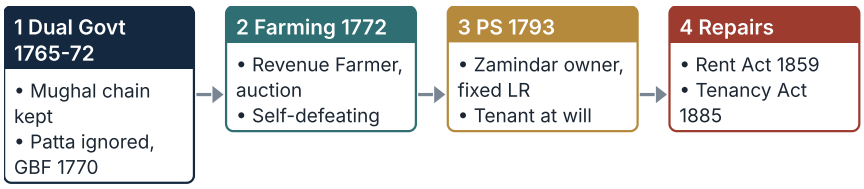
R Rights of tenants: what protection do they have?

A lAndowner: who owns the land?
T seTtlement: with whom is the demand agreed?
E collEction: by whom is LR collected?
S aSsessment: how much is owed, by survey or summary?

Order is free here, so the letters were rearranged into a word (a letter is taken from inside the key word where its first letter did not fit).

2 · Bengal: three experiments

BENGAL: THREE EXPERIMENTS AND THE REPAIRS



STORY LINK

Because the EIC held the Diwani from 1765, it had to collect land revenue, and Bengal became the laboratory. Ask: what did each of the three experiments do to the ryot, and why did the next one follow?

2.1 Experiment 1: Dual Government (1765-72)

- In 1765 the EIC received the Diwani (right to collect land revenue) of Bengal, Orissa and Bihar through the Treaty of Allahabad (ToA 1765) (the treaty itself is in Chapter 10).
- It did not administer directly. It appointed Deputy Subadar Muhammad Reza Khan as its Diwan.
- The Mughal collection system continued: the EIC followed Orientalism (Indian traditions are best administered on their own terms).
- Ideology did not stop greed. In five years:
    - Frantic experiments to squeeze more revenue
    - The Patta system was ignored
    - rents were extracted far beyond what pattas recorded. Then back-to-back droughts.
- The Great Bengal Famine of 1770 killed between 50 lakh and 1 crore.
- The EIC doubled the revenue demand in 1770 and used brutality to collect.
- For the first time some British men acted as whistleblowers, writing to London newspapers.

- Reza Khan was made a scapegoat: imprisoned without trial on corruption charges, 1772-74.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Pre-British, the words "rent" and "revenue" were used interchangeably.
- Stressed phrases: Deputy Subadar, Orientalism, Patta ignored, back-to-back droughts, doubled in 1770, brutality, imprisoned without trial, 1772-74.
- The famine fits the nature factor and human factor idea from Chapter 10: droughts = nature
- The doubled demand, ignored pattas and brutality = human

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout here gives the famine toll as 50 lakh to 1 crore.
- Chapter 10's handout says about 1 crore, one-third of Bengal.
- Quote the range in this chapter's answers
- "about one crore" is the upper end

- Since 1757 the EIC had bought Indian goods with India's own land revenue rather than gold from England, so a famine hit its income directly (the Drain logic of Chapter 10).
- Famine destroyed the agrarian economy and land revenue collapsed.
- By 1772 the EIC was on the verge of bankruptcy: rampant corruption by its officials (the "Nabobs"), the 1770 famine, and heavy expenses of the army and the Dual System.

MNEMONIC · WHY THE EIC WAS BANKRUPT BY 1772

F E N

By 1772 the EIC had sunk into a FEN of debt, and Parliament lent 1.4 million pounds at 4%.

F Famine of 1770 destroyed the agrarian economy and land revenue collapsed
E Expenses of the army and the Dual System
N Nabobs: rampant corruption by EIC officials

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- The EIC asked the British Government for an emergency bailout.
- Parliament granted 1.4 million pounds at 4% interest, on the strict condition of parliamentary oversight, which led directly to the Regulating Act of 1773 (Chapter 17).

2.2 Experiment 2: the Farming System of Warren Hastings 73-85 (1772)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Farming System = the English name for Ijaradari
- Revenue Farmer = Ijaradar.
- Warren Hastings 73-85 = Governor of the Bengal Presidency.
- The ryot's three blows in a row: 1757+ high LR, 1770 Great Bengal Famine, 1772 Ijaradari.
- Hastings's years, as listed: "To Purandhar 1776 @ Ma", "To Salbai 1782", "HA 61-82: military alliance 1769", "2nd A-My 1780-84" ("To" = Treaty, "Ma" = Marathas, "HA" = Haidar Ali 61-82;).
- See Chapter 12 and Chapter 13.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Till 1813 the ideology was Orientalism: "Rule India the India way." Hence Mughal collection kept after 1765, Ijaradari revived in 1772, and Hastings 73-85 called an Orientalist.
- The turn away follows the Charter Act of 1813 (Chapter 17).

- Warren Hastings 73-85, himself an Orientalist, revived the Mughal Ijaradari system.
- The right to collect LR in each district was auctioned to the highest bidder: the Revenue Farmer (so named because, like a farmer, he aimed to extract profit through a contract; not a farmer who tills soil).

Experiment 2: Hastings's Farming System 1772 Lecture 17 slide 20

- The Revenue Farmer worked under a European District Collector (DC) (European = English, Scottish or Irish, not English alone).
- Outcome: farmers squeezed the maximum from ryots to recover their bids and make profit.
- The demand was often so high that peasants paid nothing: self-defeating.
- Revenue did not improve

- The rural population was ruined

2.3 Primer: tax, property, settlement (taught first in the lecture)

HANDOUT NOTE

- The lecture teaches these concepts before the Mughal system
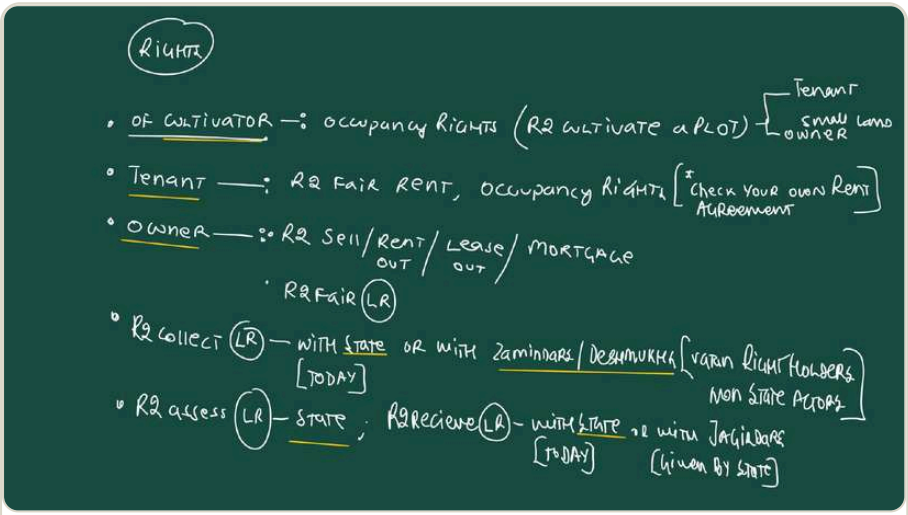
- The handout puts them here as Section 2.3
- Read them before the pillars of PS 1793.



Rights in land: cultivator, tenant, owner, State Lecture 17 slide 7

Rights in land have five layers:

Layer	Right
a)	The ryot's right to cultivate and occupy his plot
b)	The right to fair rents (tenant ryot) or fair land revenue (owner)
c)	The landowner's right to sell, lease, rent and mortgage land and receive those proceeds
d)	The right to collect taxes (State, or Vatan right holders such as Zamindars)
e)	The right to receive tax proceeds and revise tax rates (State; Jagirdars receive but by the State's grant)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two kinds of rights: given by law (made by the State through rules) and customary or traditional (from the conventions of a society), e.g. the Vatan rights of Zamindars.
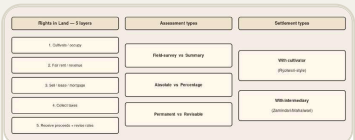
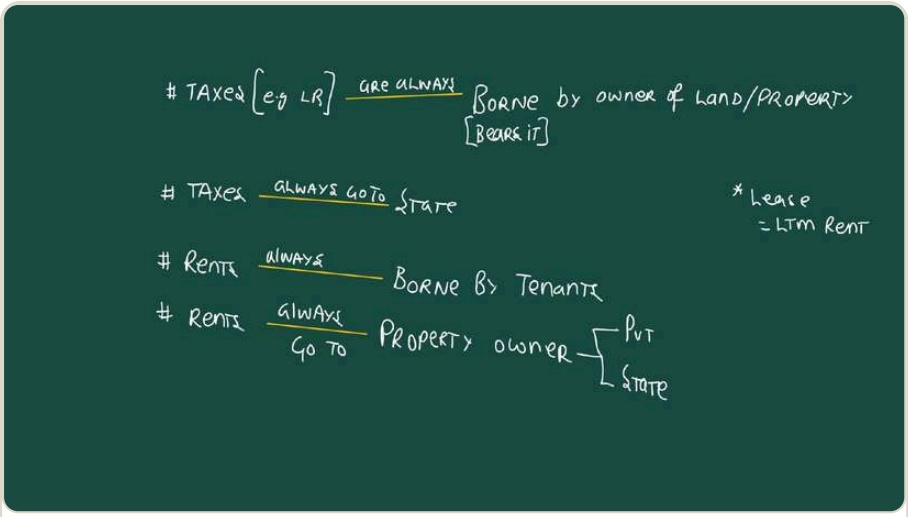
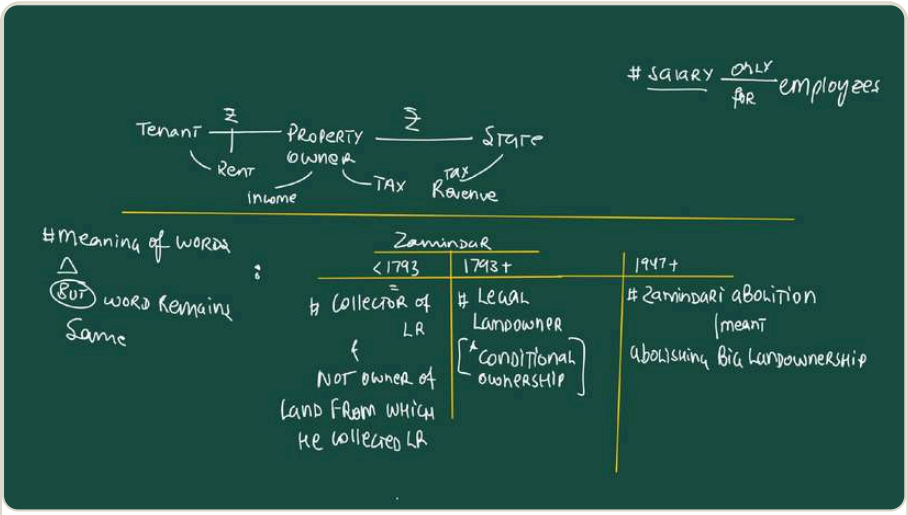
- (A star note "MIH" and a small "7 ... PPT" beside the law branch are.)



Rights in land, assessment types and settlement types handout figure



Taxes versus rents Lecture 17 slide 5



The word Zamindar changes meaning: before 1793, from 1793, from 1947 Lecture 17 slide 6

TEACHER'S BOARD

Words change meaning; the word stays. Zamindar before 1793 = collector of LR, not owner; from 1793 = legal landowner ("conditional ownership": the Sunset Clause can take the land); after 1947 "Zamindari abolition" meant abolishing big landownership.

- Assessment = deciding how much tax is owed, by detailed field survey (soil quality, irrigation, crop type, plot size, rainfall; the board adds frequency of drought or flood and past LR trends) or summarily (a rough estimate).
- The demand is a fixed absolute amount or a percentage of produce
- it is permanent or revisable.
- Settlement = with whom the State negotiates the tax demand, and who is responsible for depositing it.
- It is with the cultivator (Ryotwari-style) or with an intermediary (Zamindari or Mahalwari).

Settlement: agreement on LR plus the duty to deposit it Lecture 17 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Settlement = agreement on LR plus the duty to deposit it.
- Analogy: in GST the shopkeeper (XYZ) deposits a tax that the buyer bears, so the depositor need not bear the tax.
- In the land systems the owner always bears the tax, but settlement may or may not be with the owner: PS 1793: landowner (Zamindar)
- Ryotwari 1801, 1820: landowner (ryot)
- Mahalwari 1822: not the landowner (the Mahal, via its Lambardar)

- A lease is a long-term rent
- A salary is only for employees
- Rent is always paid by a tenant to a property owner.
- Taxes are always borne by the property owner.
- The State is always the ultimate recipient but may collect through its own officers or non-State intermediaries.
- In the Farming System of 1772, assessment was by auction and settlement was with the Revenue Farmer.

2.4 Experiment 3: the Permanent Settlement Act, 1793

- Applied in: Bengal, Orissa, Bihar, North Madras, Benaras.
- Cornwallis 86-93 (GG of Bengal 1786-93) was sent with one primary assignment: fix the land revenue problem.
- After several experiments he passed the Permanent Settlement Act of 1793 through the GG(Bengal)'s Council and extended it to Madras on his instructions.
- By 1801 Thomas Munro convinced the Court of Directors in London to replace it with Ryotwari in Madras, though it survived in North Madras.

Permanent Settlement Act 1793: where, who, 1801 rollback Lecture 17 slide 24

TEACHER'S BOARD

- AUTHORITARIANISM under Cornwallis 86-93:
  - "my way or highway." He came from a landlord family and was inspired by how agriculture was done in England (agrarian capitalism)
  - CW 86-93 = Believer (in English landlordism)
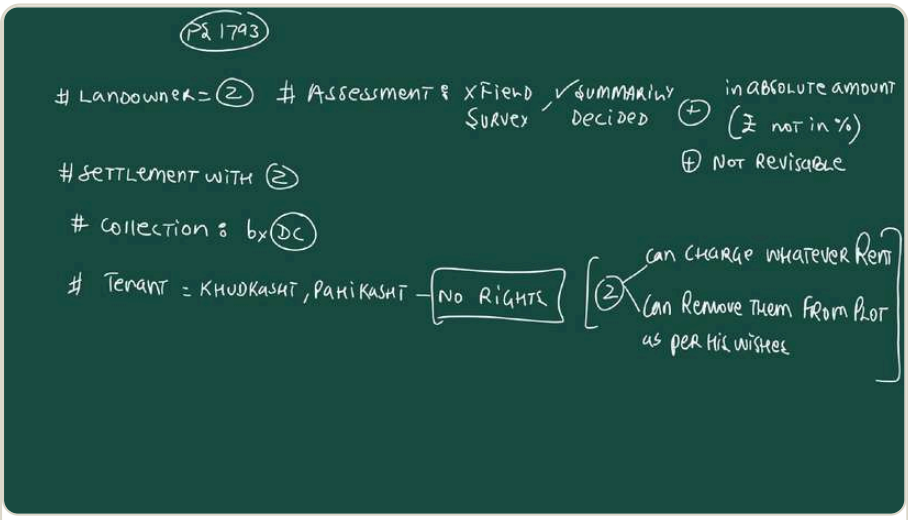
- That belief explains the model: see Pillar 1 below.



PS 1793 on the five questions Lecture 17 slide 23

The five questions	Permanent Settlement 1793
Landowner	The Zamindar
Assessment	No field survey; summary; an absolute amount (not %); not revisable
Settlement with	The Zamindar
Collection by	The District Collector (DC)

The five questions	Permanent Settlement 1793
Tenants	No rights: the Zamindar can charge whatever rent and remove them from the plot

Pillar 1: landownership went to the Zamindar.

- Zamindars got full proprietary rights for the first time, making them legal owners.
- Land became a commodity: sold, purchased, leased, rented, mortgaged. Hereditary, transferable within the family.
- Why? (a) Ideology:
  - Belief in English-style landlordism
  - convert Zamindars into agrarian capitalists like England's landed gentry
  - Security of property would induce investment.
- (b) Agrarian capitalism would improve food security, boost agricultural trade and grow the EIC's LR income.
- (c) Loyalty of Zamindars, the traditional leaders of rural society, would buy political stability.
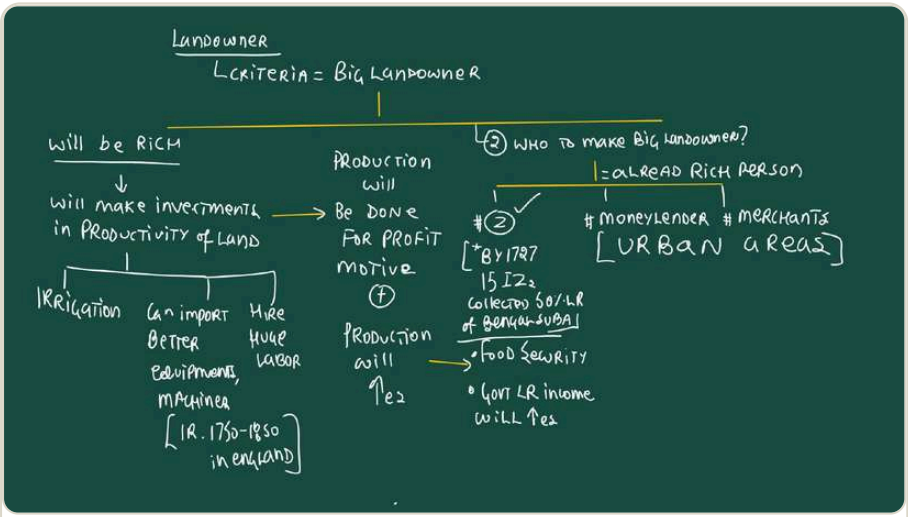
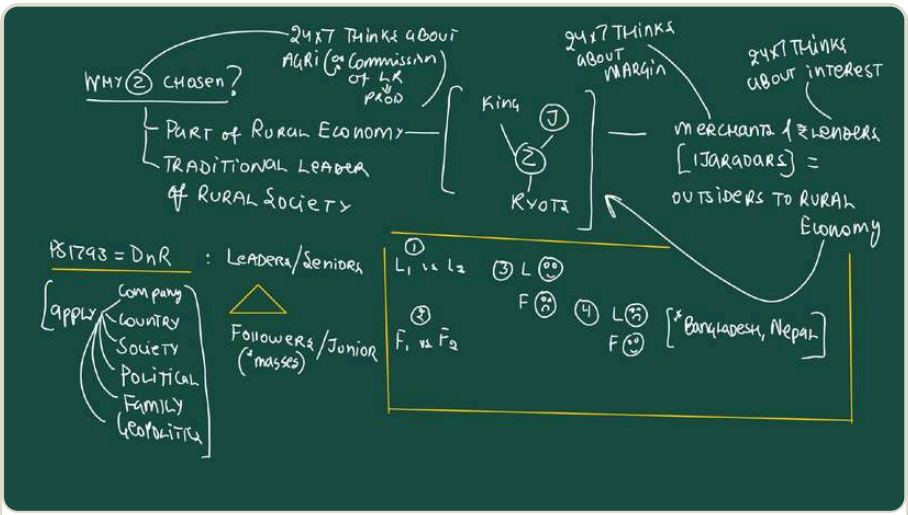
- Revenue Farmers, though wealthy, were not made landowners: they were not part of the traditional agrarian economy and lacked agricultural expertise.



Big landowner criteria: why the Zamindar Lecture 17 slide 25



Why the Zamindar was chosen; PS 1793 = Divide and Rule Lecture 17 slide 26

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why a big landowner? A rich man invests (irrigation, better equipment and machines as in England's Industrial Revolution 1750-1850, hired labour) and produces for profit, so production rises: food security and government LR income rise. Whom?
- An already rich person: the Zamindar (by 1727, 15 Intermediary Zamindars collected 50% of Bengal Suba's LR, the group Murshid Quli Khan (MQK 17-27) had built), a moneylender, or an urban merchant. Why the Zamindar?
- He is part of the rural economy and its traditional leader, and thinks about agriculture 24x7 because his commission depends on production
- Merchants and moneylenders (Ijaradars) think about margin and interest and are outsiders to the rural economy.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "PS 1793 = DnR" (Divide and Rule).
- In any setting (company, country, society, politics, family, geopolitics) there are leaders and followers
- DnR can pit leader against leader, follower against follower, or favour one tier: L happy, F sad or L sad, F happy (examples: "Bangladesh, Nepal")
- The board does not state which pattern PS 1793 is.
- Read from Section 2.5, it is leaders (Zamindars) rewarded, masses (ryots) stripped of rights
- that is a reading, not a board statement

- Pillar 2: settlement with the Zamindar. Fewer, bigger counterparties (board: "LR payers" for "counterparties") made collection simpler.
- The State negotiated with Zamindars
- The Zamindar was responsible for depositing LR.

Pillar 3: assessment was permanent.

- LR was fixed at 10/11 of the Zamindar's pre-existing revenue (what he had collected from ryots before deducting his commission), with 1789-90 as the base year.
- Fixed forever, as an absolute annual amount, not a percentage.

NUMBER CARD · THE PS ARITHMETIC

1 0 0 · 6 6 · 6 0

Sixty-six, sixty, then the clock stops.

Rs 100 the ryot's produce
Rs 66 LR at two-thirds, collected by the Zamindar

Rs 6010/11 of 66, fixed forever as a figure, not a percentage

Rs 59.4 and 6.6before 1793 the State got Rs 59.4 and the Zamindar kept 10% = Rs 6.6

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The arithmetic. Before 1793:
  - Ryot's produce Rs 100
  - LR = two-thirds = 66% = Rs 66, collected by the Zamindar (Z's revenue)
  - Ryot keeps Rs 34
  - Zamindar keeps 10% of 66 = Rs 6.6
  - the State gets Rs 59.4.
- After 1793: 10/11 x 66 = Rs 60, fixed forever (FOREVER = Permanent-ly; "FIG not %").
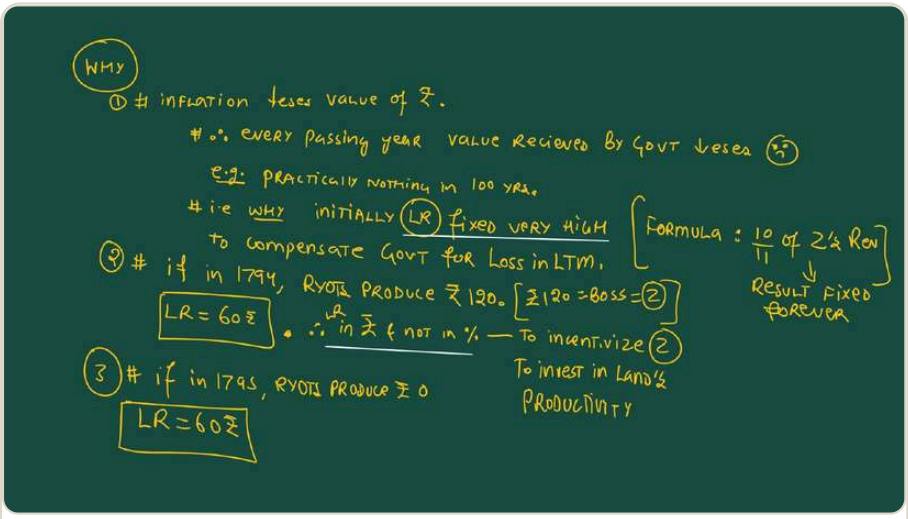
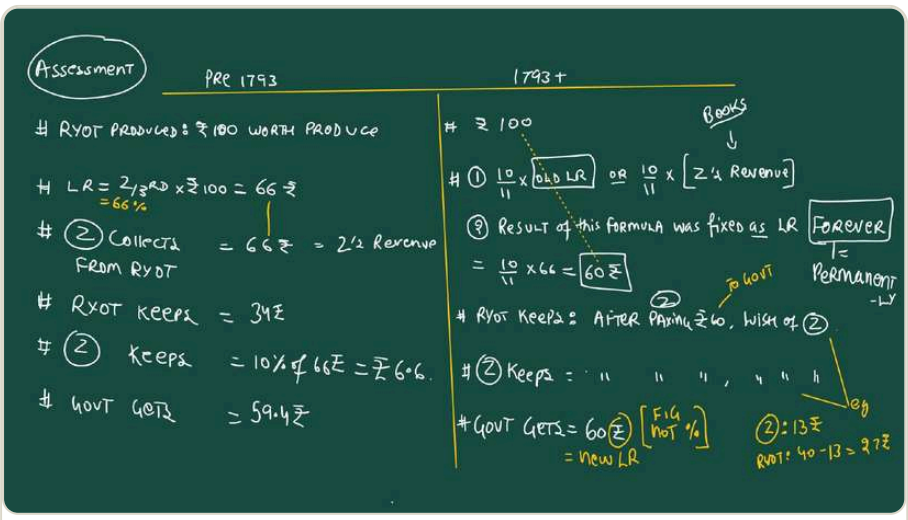
- Anything above Rs 60 is the Zamindar's: e.g. the Zamindar takes Rs 13 and the ryot keeps 40 - 13 = Rs 27 (the source of the 40 is).



Why LR was fixed so high, and in rupees Lecture 17 slide 31



PS 1793 worked example: 66 to 60, fixed forever Lecture 17 slide 30

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why so high, why in rupees: inflation shrinks what the State receives each year (practically nothing in 100 years), so the initial demand was fixed very high to compensate for the long-term loss.
- As a fixed amount, not a percentage:
  - If ryots produce Rs 120 in 1794 the State still gets Rs 60, so the Zamindar keeps the gain and is incentivised to invest
  - if they produce Rs 0 in 1795 the State still gets Rs 60 (the Zamindar carries the risk)

- Why permanent and absolute? (a) To incentivise the Zamindar: revenue would not rise however profits grew, so he had every reason to invest and produce more.
- (b) Certainty for the State: even in a drought year the State knew what it would receive.
- (c) Less administration: no repeat assessment surveys (also corruption would fall, since no officer could reduce the demand).
- (d) Trade-off: since the State gave up future increases, it set the initial demand very high.
- Estimates vary:
  - Some historians say double the 1765 level
  - others, 20% above 1757 levels.

Pillar 4: the Sunset Clause.

- If a Zamindar did not pay LR by the evening of a pre-set deadline, his land was auctioned to anyone who agreed to pay the required land revenue.
- The buyer only had to agree to pay (not pay in full at once), given the large amounts.
- Collection was by State officers: the District Collector.

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR PILLARS OF THE PERMANENT SETTLEMENT

Miss the sunset deadline and the Zamindar's land is SOLD.

S Sunset Clause: miss the evening deadline and the land is auctioned

O Owner: the Zamindar becomes legal owner, hereditary

L LR fixed: 10/11 of the 1789-90 revenue, an absolute amount forever

D Deposit: settlement with the Zamindar, who must deposit LR

Order is free here, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The buyer bids for the LR, not the land's value.
- Example:
  - The buyer agrees to pay Rs 60 a year
  - "who can pay the value of the land of 300 villages?" "No one." That is why the Sunset Clause is workable

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2024: answer (b) 2 only. Statement 1 (F): Ryotwari is not Cornwallis 86-93's, and a bad harvest earned remission (a reduction of LR), not exemption (zero LR).
- Statement 2 (T): a Zamindar who failed to pay lost his land at auction: the Sunset Clause.

2.5 Impact of PS 1793

- The results diverged sharply from Cornwallis 86-93's intentions.
- 1. Short term:
  - Frequent land auctions
  - the demand was so high that many Zamindars defaulted
- Buyers: Jotedars (rich farmers, less wealthy than Zamindars) and the Zamindar's own family members, who bid to keep land in the family.
- Over time it stabilised and Zamindars became loyal (in 1857 Bengal's Zamindars largely stayed on the British side).
- 2. Long term: the British got certainty and regularity of LR income. That objective was achieved.
- 3. But the core economic vision failed: Zamindars did not invest.
- The demand left little surplus, and they would not risk old family wealth in an uncertain colonial environment.
- 4. Absentee landlordism: Zamindars leased lands to intermediaries for a lease amount and moved to cities.
- The hands-on agrarian-capitalist vision was abandoned.
- 5. The ryot's situation became catastrophic. PS gave legal rights to Zamindars but did not recognise the ryot's customary rights.
- The ryot became a "tenant at will," evicted without legal protection
- Patta ignored
- high rents
- Abwabs, now illegal for lack of legal basis, still collected.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Stressed points:
  - Frequent auctions
  - Buyers Jotedars and the Zamindar's own family
  - Later stabilised, Zamindars loyal
  - Certainty and regularity of LR
  - Zamindars did not invest
  - Absentee landlordism, moved to cities, vision abandoned
  - "tenant at will," Patta ignored, high rents, abwabs still collected.
- The loyalty is the "Sustained" half of the DnR Mains question (Section 0).

- 6. Zamindars regained coercive powers in 1799.
- Cornwallis 86-93 had removed their police powers (a Zamindar is a businessman, not law enforcement).
- Wellesley 98-05 reversed this through Regulation VII of 1799.
- The Zamindar could now:
  - (a) seize a tenant's property (crops, cattle) without a court order on rent default
  - (b) imprison tenants
  - (c) increase rents at will.
- (Class slide: the result was a wave of peasant revolts after 1793.)
- 7. Increased litigation after 1793 came from the Cornwallis 86-93 Code of 1793 (judicial changes that made the system inefficient in practice): (a) the District Collector was stripped of all judicial and magisterial powers, so revenue disputes once settled swiftly and informally on the spot had to be formally filed in the Diwani Adalats
- (b) court fees were abolished to make justice "accessible," which flooded the courts with genuine and frivolous suits (fees reimposed in 1795)
- (c) formal recognition of lawyers (Vakils) with a rigid hierarchy of appeals let cases be deliberately prolonged

MNEMONIC · THE SEVEN IMPACTS OF PS 1793, IN ORDER

Auctions Came, Vision Abandoned, Tenants Rebelled, Litigated

A Auctions: frequent; Jotedars and the Zamindar's family buy; later loyal

C Certainty and regularity of LR in the long term

V Vision failed: Zamindars did not invest

A Absentee landlordism: land leased out, owners moved to cities

T Tenant at will: patta ignored, abwabs still collected

R Regulation VII of 1799: Zamindars regain seizure, imprisonment, rent rises

L Litigation: the Cornwallis 86-93 Code of 1793

Order kept: the handout's seven points. R stands for Regulation VII of 1799, and 'Rebelled' recalls the wave of peasant revolts after 1793.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Not of this chapter, but here so the student knows." The judicial reforms belong to Chapter 18; the three points are here because of Prelims 2011.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2011:
  - Answer (d). The three options on offer are not the cause
  - The cause is the Cornwallis 86-93 Code of 1793 (point 7)
- (a) strong Zamindars did not mean more suits: ryots had no means to sue.
- (b) the EIC was already the overlord of the Zamindars' region since 1765 (the Diwani).
- (c) the courts became less efficient.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2001:
  - Answer (b) "no official check upon the Zamindar." The slide adds: Bengal Regulation VIII of 1793 required Zamindars to issue pattas (specifying rent and tenancy terms, so a patta is a rent agreement)
  - The ryot could demand a patta.
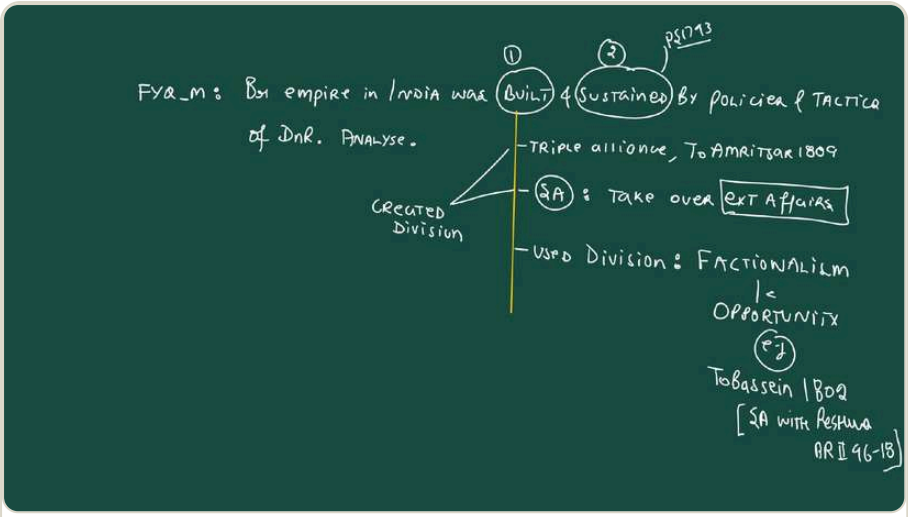
- The gap was enforcement: the government cared about punctual payment of its fixed revenue.
- (a) trust does not explain it
- (c) issuing pattas was the Zamindar's duty
- (d) pattas protected cultivators



Mains FYQ: empire built and sustained by Divide and Rule Lecture 17 slide 28

TEACHER'S BOARD

- FYQ-M: built and sustained by DnR. Built = created division (Triple Alliance, Treaty of Amritsar 1809, Subsidiary Alliance taking over external affairs) and used division (factionalism as opportunity, e.g. Treaty of Bassein 1802, an SA with Peshwa Baji Rao II 96-18). Sustained = PS 1793.

  - Chapter 11, Chapter 13, Chapter 6
  - Here hang PS 1793 on the "Sustained" hook

2.6 The Rent Act of 1859 and the Bengal Tenancy Act of 1885

- After decades of peasant revolts the British were compelled to act.
- The Rent Act of 1859 (Bengal Presidency):

Provision	Content
a)	A tenant who cultivated the same plot continuously for more than 12 years gained occupancy rights: no eviction without a court order; rent not raised without the Zamindar showing just cause
b)	With fewer than 12 years on a plot, rents could not be increased frequently
c)	The Patta system was revived: Zamindars had to collect rents at recorded rates
d)	Zamindars lost the power to imprison tenants

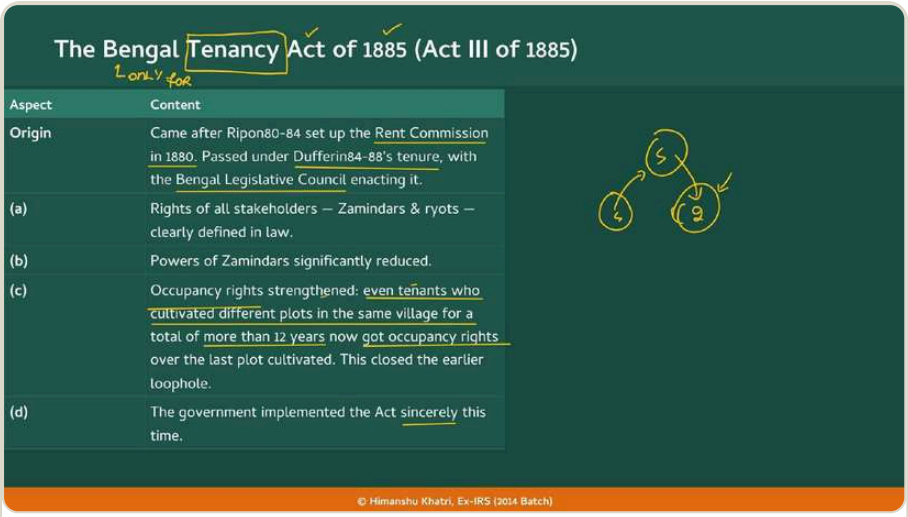
TEACHER'S BOARD

"No more tenant at will of the Zamindar." Poorly implemented: the loophole was to evict the tenant just before 12 years, denying him occupancy rights; Zamindars kept private armed men ("Z contd to keep LATHIYALS," club-men, paid through bribery) and officials turned a blind eye.

- The failure drove the Indigo Revolt (1859-63) and the Pabna Agrarian Leagues (1873), where ryots fought specifically for occupancy rights (the revolts themselves: Chapter 20, Chapter 22).



Bengal Tenancy Act 1885 (Act III of 1885) Lecture 17 slide 39

- The Bengal Tenancy Act of 1885 (Act III of 1885) followed Ripon 80-84's Rent Commission of 1880 (passed under Dufferin 84-88's tenure, enacted by the Bengal Legislative Council):
- Rights of all stakeholders, Zamindars and ryots, clearly defined in law.
- Powers of Zamindars significantly reduced.
- Occupancy rights strengthened: even tenants who cultivated different plots in the same village for a total of more than 12 years now got occupancy rights over the last plot cultivated, closing the loophole.
- The government implemented it sincerely this time.

MNEMONIC · REPAIRS FOR THE RYOT, IN ORDER

Rents Invite Protest, Reform Triumphs

- R Rent Act 1859: 12 years on the same plot, poorly implemented
- I Indigo Revolt 1859-63
- P Pabna Agrarian Leagues 1873
- R Rent Commission 1880 (Ripon 80-84)
- T Tenancy Act 1885: 12 years across plots (Dufferin 84-88)

Order kept: this is a chronology. The failure of 1859 drove the revolts; the revolts and the Commission led to 1885.

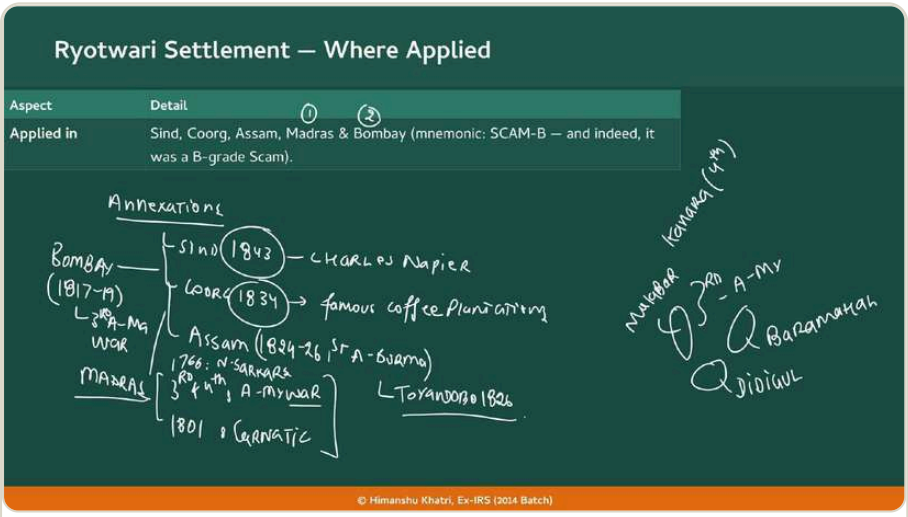
TEACHER'S BOARD

Stressed: Rent Commission in 1880, Dufferin's tenure, Bengal Legislative Council, "even tenants who cultivated different plots ... more than 12 years", "got occupancy rights", "sincerely". Board: "Tenancy ... Act ... only for ..." with a three-circle sketch (State, Zamindar, one unclear circle;).

3 · Ryotwari settlement

STORY LINK

Because the Permanent Settlement could not be copied where Madras lacked big Zamindars, Munro built another model around the ryot. Ask: what made the field survey the crux, and why did assessment drift from gross to net?



Ryotwari: where applied and the annexations behind it Lecture 18 slide 1

Applied in: Sind, Coorg, Assam, Madras and Bombay.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Ryotwari followed annexations. Sind 1843 (Charles Napier)
- Coorg 1834 (coffee plantations)
- Assam 1824-26 (First Anglo-Burmese War; Yandabo 1826)
- Bombay 1817-19 (Third Anglo-Maratha War)
- Madras came in pieces:
  - 1766 Northern Sarkars
  - Third and Fourth Anglo-Mysore Wars (Malabar and Baramahal from the 3rd, Kanara from the 4th, Dindigul too)
  - 1801 the Carnatic (see Chapter 12)
- Two circled numbers above the table:.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The class map lists Berar under Ryotwari as well
- The handout's list does not
- Both agree on the five places above.

3.1 Ryotwari in Madras (1801 onward, firmly from 1820)

- The first attempt in Madras was the same as Bengal: extend PS.
- Cornwallis 86-93 and Wellesley 98-05 tried to create big Zamindars by recognising the Poligars (landed magnates with private armies, autonomous since the Vijayanagar Empire of 1336-1646) as landowners.
- The experiment failed. Thomas Munro convinced the Court of Directors in London in 1801 to replace it with Ryotwari in Madras.
- He had first experimented in parts of Madras in 1792 under Alexander Read (the slide: in Baramahal, annexed in the Third Anglo-Mysore War 1790-92). 1801-07 Ryotwari applied in Madras.

Ryotwari in Madras: from PS to Munro Lecture 18 slide 2

- It was diluted after he left for Britain in 1807
- he re-established it firmly as Governor of Madras (1820-27). He died in India

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2017: answer (c) 2 and 3 only.
- Statement 1 is wrong: Lord Cornwallis 86-93 was the PS 1793 architect and even tried PS in Madras through the Poligars.
- Read (1792) and Munro (1801-07, and 1820) are the Ryotwari pair.
- Years on the slide:
  - Cornwallis 86-93
  - Read 1792
  - Munro 1801-07 and 1820
- Handout hook:
  - Read and Munro = Ryotwari (Scottish, yeoman)
  - Cornwallis 86-93 = Permanent (English landlordism).

Why Munro pushed Ryotwari over PS: five reasons.

Reason	What it says
a) Scottish ideology	Munro was from Scotland, where the hero of agrarian society was the Yeoman farmer (a landowner who also cultivates his own land, a more prosperous Khudkasht). As an Orientalist he argued ancient India had no intermediaries between the State and the cultivator
b) No big Zamindars	In Bengal, Murshid Quli Khan (MQK 17-27) created super-rich Intermediary Zamindars: by 1727, 15 of them collected 50% of Bengal's LR, which made PS viable. Madras had no such class
c) State finances	Madras was under stress from low productivity and past wars: three Carnatic Wars (1746-63) and four Anglo-Mysore Wars (1767-99). PS fixes LR forever in amount, not %, so there is no room to grow State income
d) Eliminate intermediaries	Poligars' profits came at the State's expense (the slide adds Deshmukhs). Remove them: the share can go partly to the State, partly to lighter burden on ryots
e) Political stability	Removing Poligars as a class of powerful non-State actors reduces resistance; loyalty of the masses comes from giving them land (board: "To bar political authority")

MNEMONIC · WHY MUNRO CHOSE RYOTWARI OVER PS

S C O T S

Munro was a Scot, and the five reasons spell it: SCOTS.

S Scottish yeoman ideology (ticked by the teacher)

C finanCes stressed: 3 Carnatic and 4 Mysore wars; PS fixes LR in amount

O nO big Zamindars in Madras (15 Zs, 50% in Bengal by 1727)

T inTermediaries to eliminate: Poligars (and Deshmukhs)

S Stability, political: powerful non-State actors removed

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word (letters C, O and T come from inside the key word).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- (a) Scottish ideology is stressed
- Beside (e): "To bar POLITICAL AUTHORITY" (the Poligars' private armies and autonomy)
- The logic of PS:
  - Big landlords must be very rich, so they can pay the LR (10/11) and invest huge sums in land
  - Bengal had them (15 Zs, 50%), Madras did not.

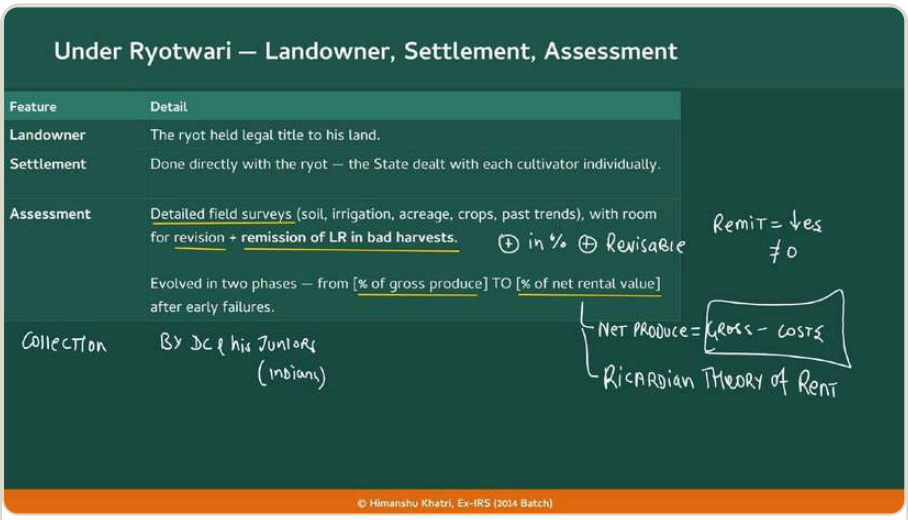
3.2 Under Ryotwari



Under Ryotwari: the five questions Lecture 18 slide 5

The five questions	Ryotwari
Landowner	The ryot, who held legal title
Settlement	Directly with the ryot: the State dealt with each cultivator individually
Assessment	Detailed field surveys (soil productivity, irrigation, acreage, crops, past trends), in %, revisable, with revision and remission in bad harvests
Collection	By State officers: the DC and his juniors (Indians)
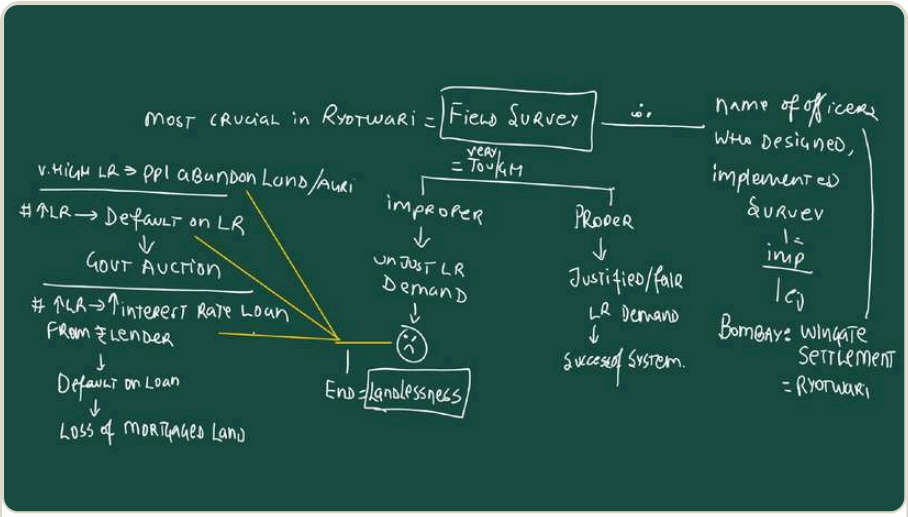
Tenants	(not stated on the slides)



Field survey: the crux of Ryotwari, and what goes wrong Lecture 18 slide 6

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The field survey is the crux of Ryotwari (very tough).
- Improper survey leads to unjust LR demand, then landlessness.
- Three roads to loss of land from high LR:
  - People abandon the land
  - default on LR, then government auction
  - higher moneylender interest, default, loss of the mortgaged land.
- "Name of officers who designed and implemented the survey = imp"
- "Bombay: Wingate Settlement = Ryotwari." Learn the surveyors' names

Assessment evolved in two phases.

	Phase 1: gross produce	Phase 2: rental value or net produce
Where and when	Madras, by Alexander Read and Thomas Munro (1792-1820)	Bombay (Pringle 1830, Wingate 1835) and Madras (1855, 1864)
Demand	33% to 50% of estimated gross produce	Based on net produce (gross crop value minus cost of cultivation: seeds, manure, bullocks, labour, implements): the Ricardian theory of Economic Rent
Flaw or fix	Surveys often improper; method arbitrary and ignored the cost of cultivation	Reformed after the ruin of the agrarian economy
Result	Severe over-assessment: poverty, land abandonment ("Kheti hi chhod diye"); crop failure → borrow from moneylenders at high interest → default → lose mortgaged land or lose it in government auctions	Bombay: Wingate fixes it; Madras: capped at 50%

Phase 2 in Bombay.

- Elphinstone brought Ryotwari to Bombay (the slide dates it 1819 and says he did no fresh survey and used existing Maratha revenue records and assessments).
- R.K. Pringle (1830) first applied the Economic Rent theory but faulty calculations gave an excessive 55% demand.
- The Wingate Settlement of 1835 (Bombay Survey System, by Wingate and Goldsmid, implemented across the Bombay Deccan by 1847) fixed the flaw: it assessed LR fairly and fixed a reasonable annual amount for 30 years.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Beside "reasonable annual amount for 30 years": "Check it was %" (is the Wingate demand a percentage?; the handout says annual amount).
- The Deccan splits into the Bombay Deccan and the Hyderabad Deccan: Wingate applied to the Bombay part.

Ryotwari phase 2 in Bombay: Elphinstone, Pringle, Wingate Lecture 18 slide 9

HANDOUT ALERT

- Pringle's date. Handout:
  - R.K. Pringle (1830). Comparison slide: "PRINGLE 1830" (beside a partly unclear "Bomb 44",)
  - Milestone slide: "Pringle's revenue survey" at 1824-1828.
- Use 1830 for the Economic Rent application
- 1824-28 are the survey years on that card

Phase 2 in Madras.

- Madras Torture Commission Report (1855) exposed severe oppression in revenue collection.
- The Madras Rules (1855/1864) capped LR at 50% of net produce or rental value for 30 years (the slide: the Court of Directors ordered 30-year settlements with lower LR in 1855; in 1864 SoS Charles Wood directed the half-of-net-produce cap).

- The handout adds that addressing these grievances kept Madras relatively quiet during the 1857 revolt.
- Corruption: the lower bureaucracy relied on Mirasidars (rich landowner-cultivators acting as village-level revenue officers).

Ryotwari phase 2 in Madras: Mirasidars, Torture Commission, Madras Rules Lecture 18 slide 8

- Because the DC and his officers held concentrated judicial, police and revenue powers, Mirasidars oppressed ryots, forced defaults and bought the best lands in auctions.
- The goal of removing big intermediaries failed: Mirasidars became big landowners themselves.

>
> "Over concentration of powers": the DC and his juniors (the Mirasidars) held admin (LR collection), judicial and police powers together, so a village official could squeeze the ryot, force default and then buy the land.

> HANDOUT ALERT
> - Prelims 2012 (handout and class agree): answer (c) 1, 2 and 3.
> - (1) Rent paid directly by peasants to the government: settlement is with the ryot.
> - (2) Pattas given to ryots: the patta system was preserved.
> - (3) Surveyed and assessed before taxed: detailed field surveys.

3.3 Impact in Bombay

- Collection:
  - After annexing the Maratha Svarajya (3rd Anglo-Maratha War 1817-19) the EIC first used Patils (village headmen) and Deshmukhs to collect revenue, a nod to Orientalism
  - later it used officers.

- A) Patils lost their historic status. Earlier a Patil held executive, judicial, revenue and police powers and earned a commission
- Now he was an ordinary salaried officer
- b) Massive indebtedness to Marwari and Gujarati moneylenders swept the central Deccan in the 1850s.
- c) Not solely Ryotwari: crop failures and the collapse of cotton prices after the US Civil War (1861-65).

Collection under Ryotwari in Bombay: Patils and Deshmukhs Lecture 18 slide 10

- Indian cotton boomed in 1861-65 because the Union naval blockade cut off Confederate cotton
- When the war ended, US cotton flooded markets again and the premium vanished.
- Combined result: the Bombay Deccan Peasant Riots of 1875.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Stressed:
  - Patils demoted
  - Executive, judicial, revenue and police powers and a commission
  - Indebtedness
  - Marwari and Gujarati moneylenders
  - "crop failures played a role"
  - "collapse of cotton prices after the US Civil War (1861-65)"
  - Bombay Deccan Peasant Riots of 1875.
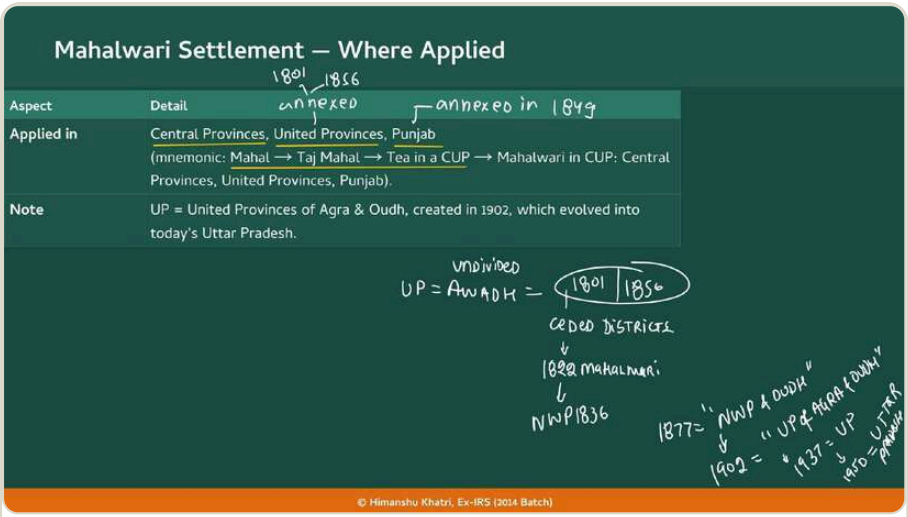
- Maratha chain: Deshmukh above the village Patils, ryots paying LR upward.

4 · Mahalwari settlement

STORY LINK

Because neither clean model fitted Awadh and the north-west, a compromise grew from the Taluqdars' fall. Ask: who is the owner, who settles, and why did it feed 1857?



Mahalwari: where applied (CUP) and annexation dates Lecture 18 slide 12

Applied in: Central Provinces, United Provinces, Punjab.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- UP = Awadh, undivided, taken in two parts: 1801 and 1856.
- The 1801 ceded districts got Mahalwari in 1822 and were organised as the North-Western Provinces (NWP) in 1836
- Awadh was annexed in 1856
- Punjab in 1849.
- Name in four steps:
  - 1877 "NWP and Oudh
  - " 1902 "UP of Agra and Oudh
  - " 1937 "UP
  - " 1950 "Uttar Pradesh." (The handout's note "UP of 1937 = United Provinces of Agra and Oudh created in 1902" is untangled: 1902 is when it was named so; 1937 the short form UP; 1950 the modern name.)

4.1 Origin in Awadh

- Before the British, Taluqdars (Intermediary Zamindars) and Primary Zamindars dominated Awadh's agrarian economy.
- Half of Awadh came under British administration in 1801 (the nucleus of the North-Western Provinces).
- 1801-22: severe over-extraction. Taluqdars who resisted lost their milkiyats (landed estates): an entire class of landed magnates was crushed.

- In Mahalwari areas the Mughal-era revenue officers (Amils and Amalguzars at the district level, Tehsildars at the sub-district level) grew powerful and bought the best lands in auctions (note: Amlas are different, private employees of Zamindars, not State officers).
- Moneylenders, bankers and merchants also acquired milkiyat lands.
- Holt Mackenzie's recommendations were implemented through Regulation VII of 1822, creating the Mahalwari Settlement.
- Mahal = a community of people at the village, estate or district level.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Taluqdar = a traditional leader of rural society
- milkiyat = personal lands (milkiyat holders = big landowners)
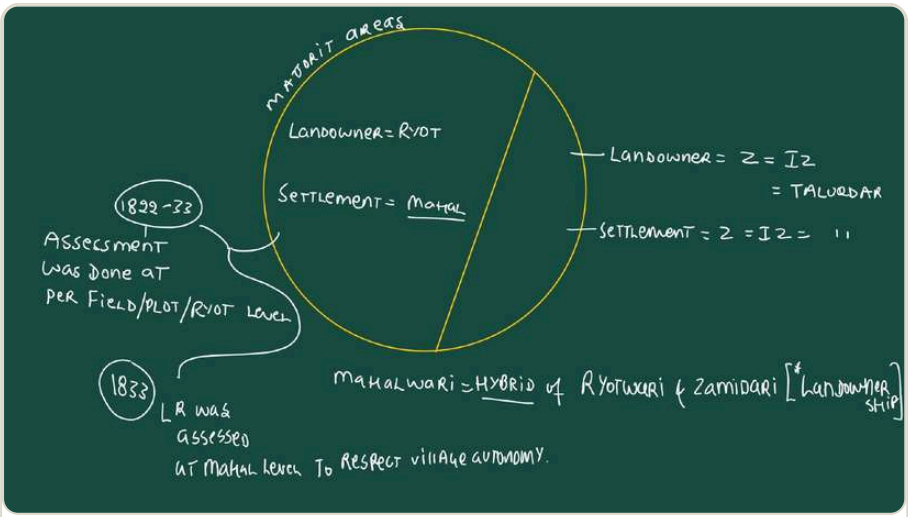
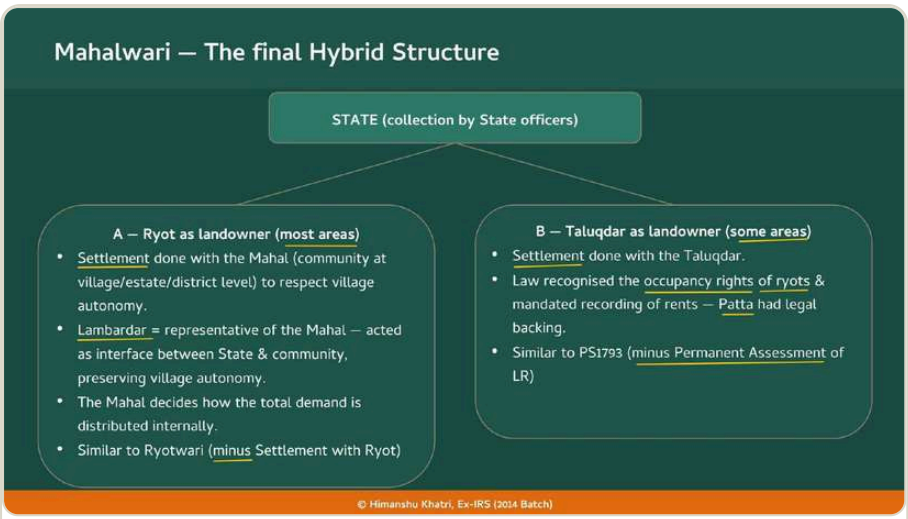
- Against Regulation VII of 1822 the board notes "7th Law of 1822" (as with "7th Law of 1799", Section 2.5): two Regulation VIIs, 1799 for Zamindar powers, 1822 for Mahalwari.

Mahal and the Lambardar: settlement with the community Lecture 18 slide 13

4.2 The hybrid structure



Mahalwari as a hybrid of Ryotwari and Zamindari Lecture 18 slide 15



Mahalwari final structure: ryot-owner and Taluqdar-owner areas Lecture 18 slide 17

The five questions	Mahalwari (a hybrid)
Landowner	Most areas: the ryot. Some areas: the Taluqdar
Settlement	Most areas: with the Mahal, through the Lambardar (its representative; he is the interface between State and community, preserving village autonomy; the Mahal decides internally how to spread the total demand). Some areas: with the Taluqdar
Assessment	Mahal-level after 1833 (before: per field or ryot); 66% of rental value for 30 years, revisable
Collection	State officers (the DC)
Tenants	Where the Taluqdar was owner, the law recognised ryots' occupancy rights and required recording of rents: the Patta had legal backing

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mahalwari = a HYBRID of Ryotwari and Zamindari (on landownership).
- Rule of thumb:
  - Type A = Ryotwari minus settlement with the ryot (it is with the Mahal)
  - Type B = PS 1793 minus permanent assessment.

4.3 The Revised Mahalwari System (R.M. Bird, 1833)

- Initially LR was assessed at the individual field or ryot level, but improper surveys led to excessive demands. In 1833, R.M.
- Bird introduced the Revised Mahalwari System in the NWP:
  - (a) assessment at the Mahal level, not plot level, respecting the community's collective character
  - (b) individual contributions decided by the community

- (c) if the Mahal's collective LR fell short, the State could auction individual ryots' lands
- (d) LR fixed at 66% of the Rental Value (Net Assets, the teacher: net produce) for 30 years, subject to State revision.

- Dalhousie 48-56 extended Mahalwari to Punjab and Central India.

4.4 Why Mahalwari failed

- Improper field surveys → unjust land revenue → ryots lose land in State auctions or fall into debt and lose mortgaged land.
- When Awadh was finally annexed in 1856 a summary settlement was made (revenue without field surveys, because surveys take time): unjust demands and landlessness.
- Crushing of Taluqdars (1801-22), unjust demands, the summary settlement of 1856 and landlessness of ryots fed directly into the 1857 revolt in the NWP and Awadh (see Chapter 21).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two sad groups, both heading to 1857.
- Taluqdars (the leaders) were crushed
- the ryot may have gained in the short term but suffered in the long term (landlessness in the long term). Both end at "1857 REVOLT."

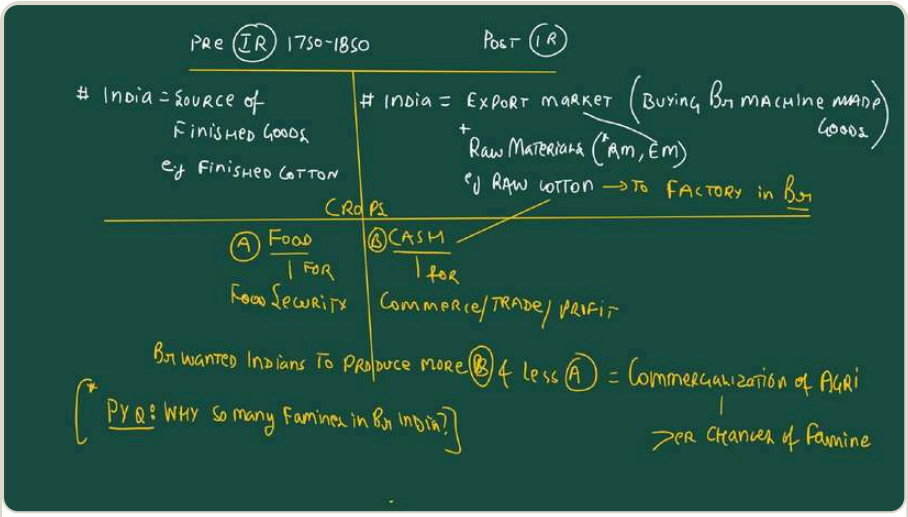
Why Mahalwari failed: surveys, summary settlement 1856, road to 1857
Lecture 18 slide 18

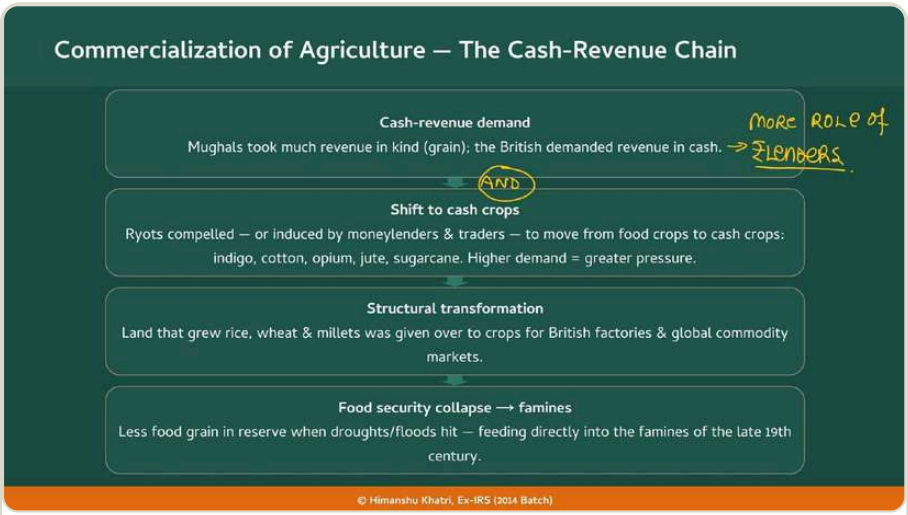
5 · Commercialisation of agriculture

STORY LINK

Because all three systems demanded cash, the ryot turned to cash crops and the moneylender. Ask: how does the chain run from cash demand to famine?



India before and after the Industrial Revolution; food versus cash crops Lecture 18 slide 19



Commercialisation of agriculture: the cash-revenue chain Lecture 18 slide 20

- Under the Mughals much of the demand could be met in kind (grain for grain).
- The British demanded revenue in cash.
- To get cash, ryots were compelled, or induced by moneylenders and traders, to shift from food crops (feed the family, low market price) to cash crops: indigo, cotton, opium, jute, sugarcane.

Commercialisation chain: cash demand, cash crops, debt trap, famines, revolts handout figure

FROM CASH REVENUE TO FAMINE

1 Cash demand
- Mughals took kind
- British want cash

2 Cash crops
- Moneylenders and traders push
- Indigo, cotton, opium

3 Land shifts
- Rice, wheat, millets
- to British factories

4 Food security falls
- Less grain in reserve
- Late-19th-century famines

- The higher the demand, the greater the pressure to grow cash crops: a structural transformation.

MNEMONIC · THE FIVE CASH CROPS

P R I C E

Cash crops are grown for the market PRICE, not for the family's food.

- P oPium
- R sugaRcane
- I Indigo
- C Cotton
- E jutE

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word (P, R and E come from inside the crop name).

- Land that grew rice, wheat and millets now served British factories or global commodity markets.
- Food security declined: less food grain in reserve when drought or flood struck.
- This is one of the most important long-term legacies of British land policy and fed directly into the famines of the late 19th century.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two Indias. Before the Industrial Revolution (1750-1850) India was a source of finished goods (e.g. finished cotton)
- After it, an export market for British machine-made goods and a source of raw materials (raw cotton to British factories)
- Britain wanted more cash crops (B) and fewer food crops (A) = commercialisation of agriculture, so a higher chance of famine.
- Starred Mains prompt: "Why so many famines in British India?" Also: "More role of Rs Lenders" as cash demand rises (cash demand AND the shift to cash crops).

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout figure also names tea and coffee (plantation crops), oilseeds and a debt trap, and ends with peasant revolts (1857, Pabna, Deccan 1875).
- The handout's text lists indigo, cotton, opium, jute and sugarcane
- Use the text's list for Prelims, and the figure's extras only as colour in a Mains answer

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2021: answer (c) commercialisation of Indian agriculture.
- Board:
  - (a) F (before the IR India exported finished goods; in the 19th century, the mature IR stage, India became a source of raw materials and an export market, so handicraft exports fell: deindustrialisation)
  - (b) F (no conclusive evidence of growing Indian-owned factories)
  - (c) T ("RM": raw materials need cash crops)
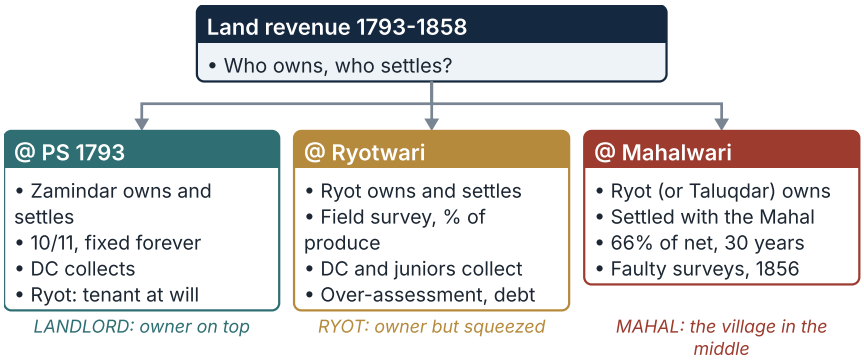
  - (d) F (no conclusive evidence of rapid urbanisation)

6 · Reading the three systems together

THREE SYSTEMS ON THE FIVE QUESTIONS



STORY LINK

Because the three systems answered the same five questions differently, line them up side by side. Ask: what did Cornwallis 86-93, Munro and Mackenzie with Bird each believe, and what did the ryot suffer in all three?

- Why three systems? Ideology, geography and fiscal pressure pulled in different directions.
- Cornwallis 86-93, an Englishman who believed in landlordism, made the Permanent Settlement.
- Munro, a Scotsman who believed in the yeoman farmer, made Ryotwari.
- Mahalwari was a practical compromise where neither clean model fit.

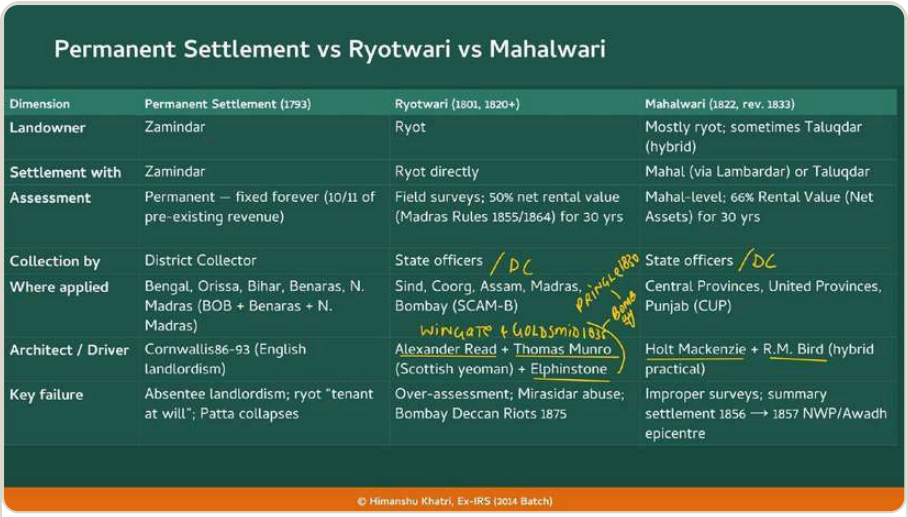
6.1 Permanent Settlement against Ryotwari against Mahalwari



Comparison of the three systems on seven dimensions Lecture 18 slide 23

Dimension	Permanent Settlement (1793)	Ryotwari (1801, 1820+)	Mahalwari (1822, revised 1833)
Landowner	Zamindar	Ryot	Mostly ryot; sometimes Taluqdar (hybrid)
Settlement with	Zamindar	Ryot directly	Mahal (via the Lambardar) or Taluqdar
Assessment	Permanent: fixed forever (10/11 of pre-existing revenue)	Detailed field surveys; 50% of net rental value (Madras Rules 1855/1864) for 30 years	Mahal-level; 66% of Rental Value (Net Assets) for 30 years
Collection by	District Collector	State officers (and the DC)	State officers (and the DC)
Where applied	Bengal, Orissa, Bihar, Benaras, North Madras (BOB + Benaras + N. Madras)	Sind, Coorg, Assam, Madras, Bombay (SCAM-B)	Central Provinces, United Provinces, Punjab (CUP)
Architect or driver	Cornwallis 86-93 (English landlordism)	Alexander Read + Thomas Munro (Scottish yeoman); slide adds Elphinstone (Bombay)	Holt Mackenzie + R.M. Bird (hybrid, practical)
Key failure	Absentee landlordism; ryot a "tenant at will"; Patta collapses	Over-assessment; Mirasidar abuse; Bombay Deccan Riots 1875	Improper surveys; summary settlement 1856; 1857 NWP and Awadh epicentre

NUMBER CARD · THE THREE ASSESSMENTS

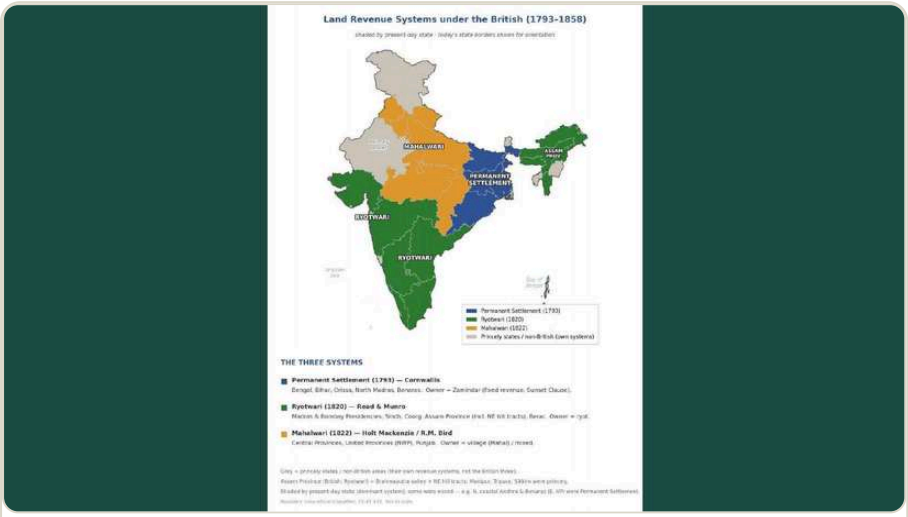
6 6 · 5 0 · 1 0 / 1 1

The biggest slice first, then the middle one, then the frozen fraction.

66%Mahalwari: of rental value (net assets), 30 years, revisable

50%Ryotwari in Madras: of net produce or rental value, 30 years (Rules 1855/1864)

10/11Permanent Settlement: of the Zamindar's pre-existing revenue, forever



Class map: land revenue systems under the British, 1793-1858 Lecture 18 slide 24

HANDOUT NOTE

- Reading the map. It shades by today's state and shows the dominant system only.
- Princely states (grey) had their own revenue arrangements and are not among the three.
- The north coastal Andhra and Benaras pockets belong to PS (the handout's "North Madras" and "Benaras").
- Berar appears under Ryotwari on the map but not in the handout's list.

6.2 Common causes of ryot suffering

- What united all three was a common outcome: ryots suffered.
- Whoever the landowner was (Zamindar, ryot, Taluqdar), the mix of high land revenue demands, faulty surveys, legal vulnerability and predatory moneylending left the cultivating class worse off than under the imperfect but customary protections of the Mughal system.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2000, the handout and the class slide disagree on the first two rows (see the alert in the Exam lens).
- Handout:
  - A = Zamindari, B = Jagirdari, code A-4 B-1 C-2 D-3 = (b)
  - class slide and teacher's circles: A = Jagirdari, B = Zamindari, code A-1 B-4 C-2 D-3 = (b). The letter (b) is common
- C = Ryotwari and D = Mahalwari are common.
- If you remember only one rule:
  - Peasant with the right to sell = Ryotwari
  - Village level = Mahalwari.

7 · Revision PYQs on the class slides (not in the handout)

STORY LINK

Because the teacher parked two revision questions here, treat them as extra drills. Ask: how does Wandiwash 1760 differ from Buxar 1764, and what was Kheda's grievance?

HANDOUT NOTE

- The class slides end with two revision PYQs from other chapters.
- No handout coverage in this chapter.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1995: answer (b) Battle of Wandiwash (1760): French against the EIC (3rd Carnatic War 1756-63, which ended French ambitions).
- (a) Buxar 1764 was Mir Qasim 60-63, Shuja 54-75 and Shah Alam II 60-06 against the EIC, not Mir Jafar 57-60 (he is the Plassey man).
- (c) Chilianwala 1849 was against the Sikhs, not Marathas .
- (d) Kharda 1795: "MA" (Marathas) against the Nizam, not the EIC.
- See Chapter 9, Chapter 10, Chapter 13, Chapter 14.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2011 Kheda: the question-slide marks and the answer slide disagree.
- Question slide:
  - F after both statements and (d) Neither underlined
  - The reasoning chain reads "Kheda in Gujarat, in Bombay, Ryotwari
  - Bad harvest means Remit (reduces LR)," with "Remit" written above "suspend" in statement 1
- Typed answer slide: (a) Only 1: the government did not give the remission that Ryotwari rules entitled Kheda's ryots to (yield below one-quarter of normal) in 1918, with a failed harvest and plague.
- The bank's recorded answer is also (a).
- Use (a) for practice, and check your notebook for what was said in class
- The Kheda story is in Chapter 37
- Statement 2 is false either way (Kheda was Ryotwari, so no PS).

From Diwani to the Tenancy Act

- 1765:
  - Diwani to the EIC
  - Mughal collection continues
  - Patta ignored
  - Drought
- 1770:
  - Great Bengal Famine
  - Demand doubled
- 1772:
  - Bankrupt
  - Hastings 73-85's Farming System
  - Bailout leads to Regulating Act 1773
- 1793: Permanent Settlement: Zamindar owner, fixed 10/11, Sunset Clause
- After 1793:
  - Tenant at will
  - Absentee landlords
  - Regulation VII 1799
  - Litigation
- 1801 to 1820:
  - Munro's Ryotwari in Madras
  - Bombay 1819
  - Pringle 1830
  - Wingate 1835
- 1822 to 1833:
  - Mahalwari (Mackenzie), revised by Bird

- Awadh summary settlement 1856

- 1859 and 1885:
  - Rent Act (12 years)
  - Bengal Tenancy Act closes the loophole

System	Owner	Settles with	Assessment	Pain
Permanent Settlement	Zamindar	Zamindar	10/11 of 1789-90 revenue, forever	Absentee landlords; tenant at will
Ryotwari	Ryot	Ryot	33-50% gross, then net; 50% in Madras	Over-assessment; Mirasidars; 1875 riots
Mahalwari	Ryot or Taluqdar	Mahal or Taluqdar	66% of net, 30 years	Improper surveys; Awadh summary settlement

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 2003 (d): the first Law Member was Macaulay, an Englishman; Prelims 2007 (b): Hastings 73-85 first GG of Bengal, Bentinck 28-35 first GG of India; Prelims 2023 (d): Charter Act 1833 made the GG of India
- Prelims 2006 (b): the India trade monopoly ended in 1813, while 1833 ended Tea, Opium and China; Prelims 2019 (a): Charter 1813 ended trade except tea and China and asserted Crown sovereignty (see the revenue source conflict)
- Prelims 2002 match A-2 B-4 C-3 D-1: 1813 trade ended, 1773 Directors report, 1858 Crown, 1784 Board of Control; Prelims 2014 (a): the Proclamation = no annexation and Crown administration
- Prelims 2005 (b): British-pattern police is Cornwallis 86-93's, not Hastings 73-85's; Prelims 2004 (c): the Vernacular Press Act is Lytton 76-80's, not Curzon 99-05's
- Prelims 1996 (a): the teacher matches Cornwallis 86-93, Dalhousie 48-56, Minto 05-10, Wavell 43-47; the Sepoy Mutiny question: Canning 56-62
- The two lenses @GG and @Br State; Double Government 1784-1833 against Dual Control 1784-1858; the form of the GG's council from 1773 to 1853

MAINS HOOKS

- "1857 Revolt was only a final nail in the coffin of EIC's empire in India. Discuss." Each Act stripped the EIC of powers and gave them to the Br State
- Why the Br State regulated the Company State in 1773 instead of ending it (two incomes, burden of ruling, empire and geopolitics against the five worries)
- Dual Government against Dual Control; centralisation in the GG (peak 1833) and the start of a separate legislature
- State responsibility for conquest despite the 1784 ban: Sub-Imperialism against the Charter, military aid, finance and control of empire-builders

The sovereignty moved to the Crown by 1793 and the Company's body was left in place until the Crown could take it over in 1858.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: London first let the Company rule, then took its powers one by one: it regulated the political (CMR) side in 1773, controlled it in 1784, took the head in 1793, the trade in 1813 and 1833, the jobs and the Budget in 1853, and the body in 1858. Each Act moved power from the EIC to the Br State, so 1857 was the final nail, not the first wound.

1. A trader turned ruler (1765). The EIC has done business since 31 December 1600; since the Treaty of Allahabad in 1765 it also runs Civil, Military and Revenue (CMR) affairs, a Company State. The Br State has no problem with a trader but 'problem and anxiety' with a Company State, since only a State holds power over territory. Yet it does not end it: the EIC brings two incomes (trade and land revenue), bears the burden of ruling far-away India, and raises Britain's empire and geopolitical power indirectly. So from 1773 the State regulates the EIC's political matters.

   → But why was London so nervous?

2. Five worries. Money: in 1767 the State demanded 400,000 pounds a year. America: the revolution of 1765-83 ended with the USA in 1783, so what if EIC men did the same? The taxpayer: the EIC went bankrupt in 1772 and was lent 1.4 million pounds. Conscience: the Great Bengal Famine of 1770 and the Nabobs. Careers: Clive 57-67 and Hastings 73-85 wanted a Crown link. The Select Committee of 1772 kept the EIC's trade monopoly but made the Court of Directors accountable for its political functions.

   → So Parliament passes the Regulating Act of 1773.

3. The Regulating Act 1773 in India. The Governor of Bengal becomes GG(Bengal) and is made senior to Bombay and Madras in war and peace, except in emergency; commerce is untouched. A Supreme Council of GG + 4 decides by majority and the GG has only a casting vote, so he needs at least two councillors: a check on an empire-builder. Law-making for Bengal and on war and peace goes to the council.

   → And in London the State gets its own hooks.

4. The Regulating Act 1773 in London. For the first time Parliament's right to regulate the EIC's political affairs is recognised. The GG sends information to the Court of Directors and the Directors send political matters to the State. A Supreme Court at Calcutta (a Chief Justice and three puisne judges, all chosen by the Crown, Elijah Impey first in 1774) is created, officials may not take gifts, and the tenures are 4, 5 and 4 years.

   → But the Act leaks.

5. The leaks of 1773. The Supreme Court clashes with the GG's council over officials' official acts; distance blunts supervision; Bombay signs the Treaty of Surat in 1775 without the GG, starting the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82). With no veto, the GG is blocked by factions: Philip Francis opposes Hastings 73-85 and Edmund Burke leads an impeachment, which ends in acquittal. The Amending Act of 1781 fixes the Supreme Court's jurisdiction.

   → Having lost America, London moves from supervision to control.

6. Pitt's India Act 1784. Britain lost 13 colonies in 1783, so the State fears an Indian declaration of independence. A Board of Control (six members, a ministry for Indian affairs) takes political affairs while the Court of Directors keeps commerce: Double Government 1784-1833. The BoC can also order the GG directly: Dual Control 1784-1858. The council shrinks to GG + 2 + CIC and the GG gets a regular and a casting vote. Conquest is declared 'repugnant'. The Amending Act of 1786 gives a veto and lets Cornwallis 86-93 hold both GG and C-in-C.

→ Still, the Company appoints its own top men.

7 1793: the Crown takes the head. Subjects of the Crown cannot acquire sovereign power except on behalf of the Crown, so the EIC is an agent. Principal Servants (GG, Governors, C-in-C, Councillors) are appointed by the EIC but only after Crown approval, and Parliament renews the Charter for the first time. The head of the Company State belongs to the State while the body stays with the EIC. In India the GG can supersede Governors, the CIC becomes an extra-ordinary member, and Cornwallis 86-93's Code makes law written.

→ Next, free-trade ideas knock on the door.

8 1813: the monopoly breaks. Adam Smith (1776), Liberals, Utilitarians and Evangelists, and lobbying manufacturers attack the monopoly; the Industrial Revolution makes Britain want India's raw material and an export market. The India trade monopoly ends (Tea, Opium and China stay), Crown sovereignty is stated as undoubted, missionaries enter with a licence and Rs 1 lakh a year goes to education. The Act contributes to 1857.

→ The rest of the trade follows in 1833.

9 1833: one India, one law. The St Helena Act ends the EIC's commercial function: no more business, only a political agent. The BoC supervises all administration and its President is renamed Minister for Indian Affairs. The GG(Bengal)-in-Council becomes GG(India)-in-Council (Bentinck 28-35 first), the Governors of Bombay and Madras lose law-making, Macaulay joins as Law Member, the Law Commission of 1834 begins codification and the UCS opens to Indians. Centralisation peaks.

→ 1853 takes the jobs and the purse.

10 1853: no term, no jobs, no Budget. The Charter lasts only 'till Parliament specifies otherwise'; a Civil Services exam (first held in London in 1855) ends the EIC's patronage and opens the CCS to Indians; the Budget goes to Parliament. Six Legal Members (four provincial, a Chief Justice and a judge) make a legislative council of twelve, and in 1854 Dalhousie 48-56 appoints Halliday as first LG of Bengal.

→ Then 1857 arrives.

11 1858: the Crown takes the body. The EIC is blamed for 1857; the public, free traders and the western-educated middle class want direct rule. The GOI Act 1858 ends Company rule: a Secretary of State with a 15-member India Council replaces the BoC, Dual Control ends, and Canning 56-62 is first Viceroy. Mughal sovereignty is ended (Zafar 37-57 goes to Rangoon) and the princes of the 565 PS live under Paramountcy. The Proclamation promises no annexation, Crown administration, religious non-interference and amnesty; the Royal Titles Act 1876 makes Victoria Kaesar-i-Hind.

→ But who was responsible for the conquest itself?

12 Whose conquest? Britain claimed no official policy of conquest; Sub-Imperialism by EIC officials drove it, and Pitt's India Act 1784 banned it. Yet the State gave the Charter (the tools), sent the Royal Military at Plassey and in October 1857, financed the EIC, followed the money, controlled the empire-builders and used the EIC as a foreign-policy tool (the 1st Afghan War, the Great Game).

In simple words

- The Br State let the EIC rule as a Company State, but from 1773 it regulated only the EIC's political (CMR) work, because trade is private business and territory is a State matter.
- 1773 (Regulating Act): GG(Bengal), a council of GG + 4, a Supreme Court at Calcutta. 1784 (Pitt's India Act): the Board of Control, Double Government and Dual Control.
- 1793: the Crown took the head (sovereignty, Principal Servants after Crown approval). 1813 ended the India trade monopoly, 1833 ended all trade and made the GG of India, 1853 took patronage and the Budget.
- After 1857, the GOI Act 1858 replaced the EIC with the Crown: a Secretary of State, the India Council, a Viceroy and Paramountcy over the princes.
- Read every Act through two lenses, @GG (the Company State in India) and @Br State (London over the EIC). Each Act moved power from the EIC to the State, so 1857 was only the final nail.

Key term	In plain words
CMR	Civil, Military, Revenue: the EIC's political (State) affairs, the part London chose to regulate
@GG / @Br State	The two lenses: the Company State in India / the relationship between the EIC and the Crown
CoD / BoC	Court of Directors (the EIC's own body, chosen by shareholders) / Board of Control (the State's body, from 1784)
Casting vote	A tie-breaking vote: the GG's only vote in 1773; regular plus casting vote from 1784
Double Government	1784-1833: commerce under the CoD, CMR under the BoC
Dual Control	1784-1858: the GG has two bosses in CMR matters, the CoD and the BoC
Principal Servants	GG, Governors, C-in-C and Councillors: appointed by the EIC only after Crown approval (1793)
Ordinary / extra-ordinary member	Ordinary: the law orders him to sit; extra-ordinary: the law lets someone, such as the CoD, appoint him
UCS / CCS	Uncovenanted (roughly Group B) / Covenanted (Group A) Civil Services, opened to Indians in 1833 / 1853
Paramountcy	Princes rule at home; Sovereignty, Defence, Communications and Foreign Affairs stay with the Crown
Sub-Imperialism	Expansion driven by the ambitions of senior EIC officials in India, not by official policy
Viceroy	The Crown's representative (the vice-captain); the same man as GG, the ruler of British India

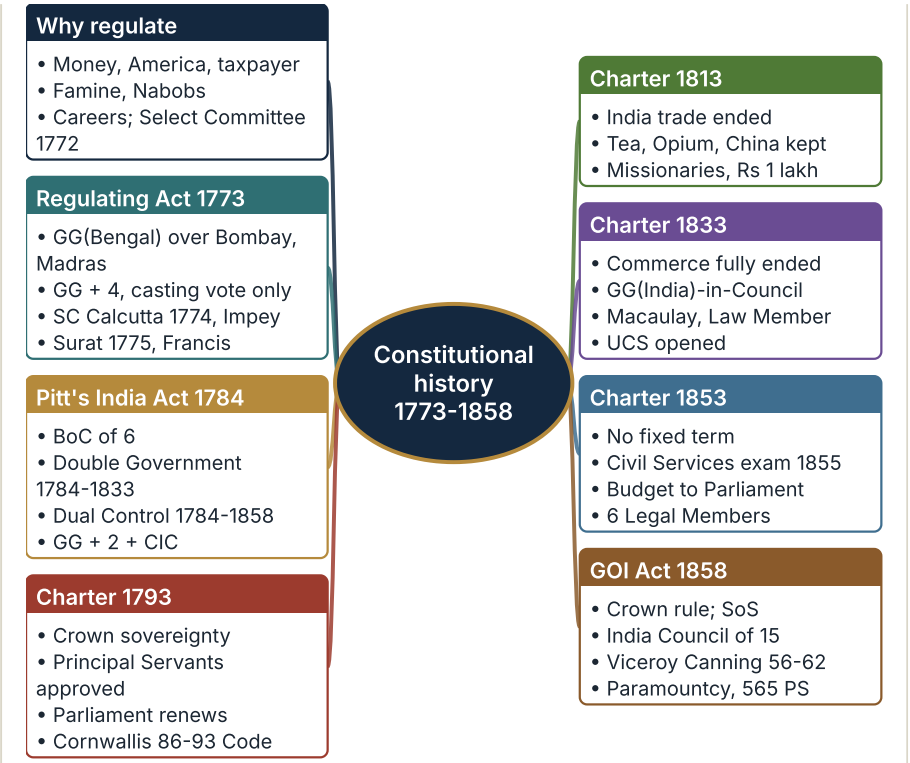
MEMORY MAP: HOW LONDON TOOK OVER THE EIC



REMEMBER IT AS Each Act moved power from the EIC to the Br State: regulate in 1773, control in 1784, the head in 1793, the trade by 1833, jobs and Budget in 1853, the body in 1858.

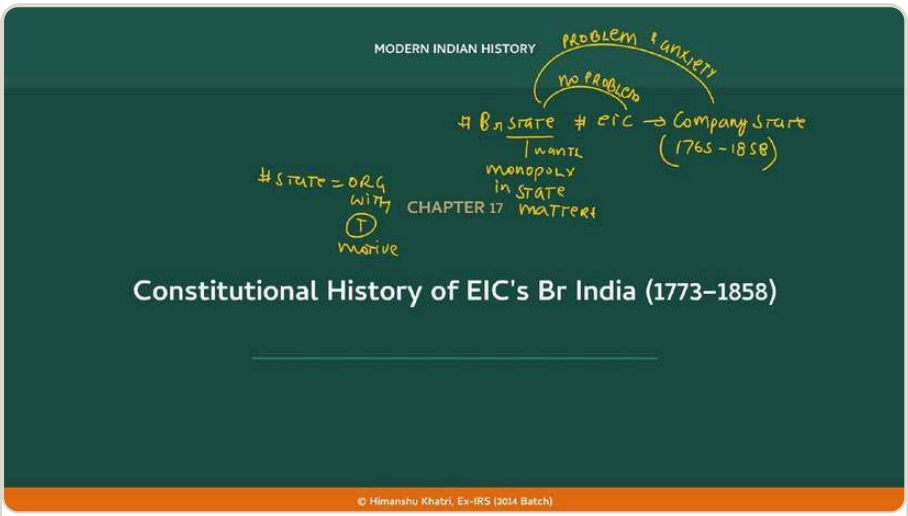
STORY LINK

Because the Br State held that only a State may hold power over territory, it faced a Company State it could neither ignore nor end. Ask: why regulate only CMR and not trade, and what are the two lenses?



Chapter 17 title: Br State versus Company State Lecture 18 slide 44

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Br State versus EIC versus Company State.
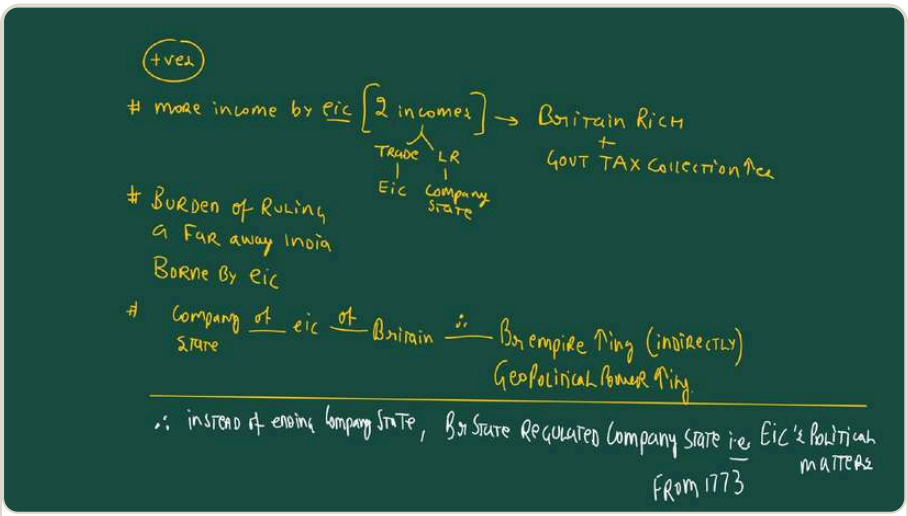
- The Br State has no problem with the EIC as a trader but "problem and anxiety" with the Company State (1765-1858), because only a State may hold power over territory: "Br State wants monopoly in State matters." A State = an organisation with a territory motive (see Chapter 10).



Why the Br State regulated, not ended, the Company State Lecture 18 slide 45

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why the State did not end the Company State.
- Positives:
    - (1) more income by the EIC from two incomes, trade (EIC) and land revenue (Company State), so Britain gets rich and government tax collection goes up
    - (2) the burden of ruling a far-away India is borne by the EIC
    - (3) Company State of EIC of Britain, so the British empire goes up (indirectly) and so does geopolitical power.
- Therefore, instead of ending the Company State, the Br State regulated the EIC's political matters from 1773.

Two affairs of the EIC: commercial and political (CMR) Lecture 18 slide 46

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The two affairs of the EIC. Commercial (business, private trade) since 31 December 1600.
- Political or public since 1765 (Treaty of Allahabad, Chapter 10): Civil, Military, Revenue (CMR) = State matters.
- In capitalism the State does not interfere in business, so regulation focuses on CMR matters. "Affairs" = function = work.

Study method: the two lenses @GG and @Br State Lecture 18 slide 47

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The two lenses. @GG = the Company State and its Governors, the GG of the EIC = India (British India). @Br State = the Court of Directors (CoD) of the EIC and the Br State = Britain.
- Every provision below sits in one of these two boxes.

Lens	What it covers	Where it sits	Teacher's bracket
@GG	Provisions that shaped the structure and functions of the Company State in India: the GG, the Governors, the councils, law-making	India	[Br India]
@Br State	Provisions that shaped the relationship between the EIC and the Br State or Crown: how much control London had over the Company	Britain (CoD of the EIC and the Br State)	[Britain]

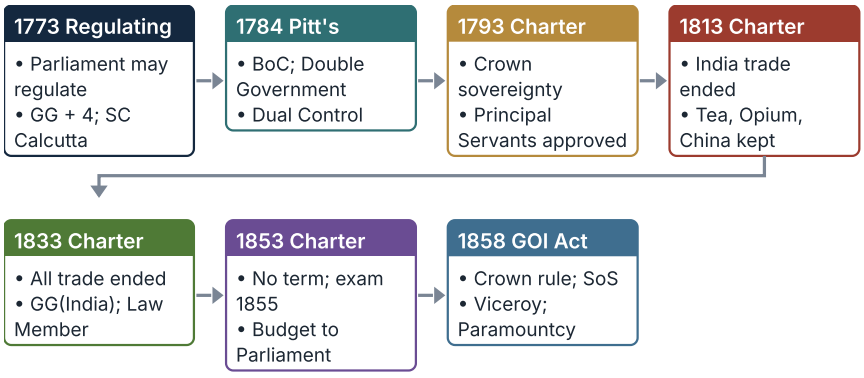
ACT BY ACT: WHAT LONDON TOOK



1 · Why the Br State wanted to regulate the EIC

STORY LINK

Because the EIC grew rich and powerful after 1765, London grew anxious. Ask: which of the five drivers were about money, which about fear, which about conscience?

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The 1857 revolt is often seen as why EIC rule ended, but the laws Parliament passed from 1773 show the EIC's autonomy declining nearly a century earlier.
- Each Charter Act and Regulating Act stripped the EIC of powers and transferred them to the British State. 1857 was the final nail, not the first wound.

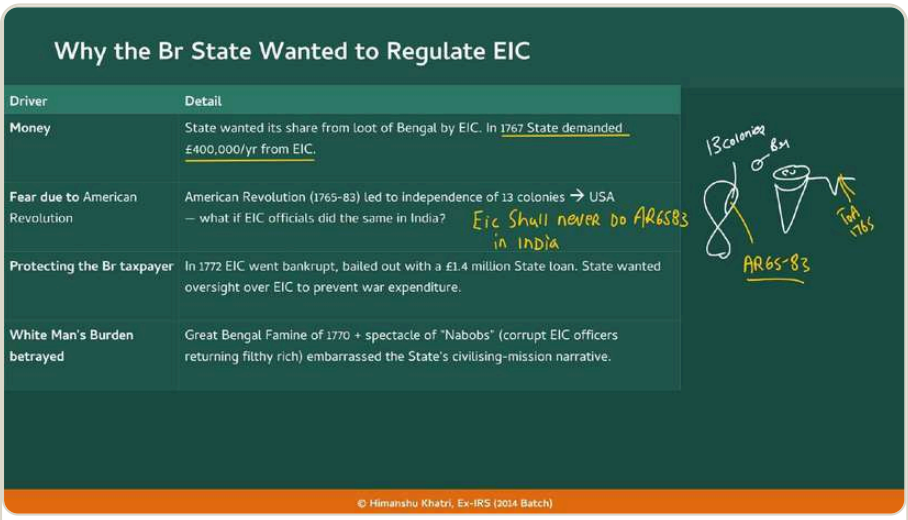
1.1 The five drivers



Why the Br State wanted to regulate the EIC: five drivers Lecture 18 slide 48

Driver	Detail
1. Money	After Plassey (1757) and the ToA 1765, the EIC got both plunder and Bengal's land revenue. In 1767 the Br State demanded 400,000 pounds a year from the EIC, arguing the State had helped the EIC in conquest. The State wanted its share
2. Fear of another America	The American Revolution began in 1765 (the Stamp Act crisis marks the start of the political revolution) and by 1783 the USA was created. The armed War of Independence began in 1775. What if EIC officials, growing rich and powerful in India, did the same?
3. Protecting the taxpayer	In 1772 the EIC went bankrupt and was bailed out with a 1.4 million pound loan from the State ("too big to fail"). The State wanted oversight to prevent reckless war expenditure

Driver	Detail
4. White Man's Burden betrayed	The Great Bengal Famine of 1770 and the "Nabobs" (corrupt EIC officers who returned to Britain filthy rich) embarrassed the State and went against the civilising mission narrative
5. Career ambitions of EIC men	Senior officials such as Robert Clive 57-67 and Warren Hastings 73-85 also wanted a formal relationship with the State: the Crown gave legitimacy and career advancement

MNEMONIC · THE FIVE DRIVERS OF REGULATION

P O W E R

Behind all five drivers the Br State wanted POWER over the Company State.

P Protecting the taxpayer: 1772 bankruptcy, 1.4 million pound loan, war expenditure

O mOney: in 1767 the State demanded 400,000 pounds a year

W White Man's Burden betrayed: Great Bengal Famine 1770 and the Nabobs

E fEar of another America: revolution 1765-83, USA by 1783

R caReer ambitions: Clive 57-67 and Hastings 73-85 wanted a Crown link

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word (O, E and R come from inside the key word).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "EIC shall never do AR65-83 in India" (American Revolution 1765-83): 13 colonies broke from Britain just as the ToA 1765 raised the Company's Bengal income.
- Stressed: the 400,000 pounds a year (1767).

1.2 Select Committee of Parliament (1772)

- Parliament set up a Select Committee to study the EIC's affairs in India and to advise on the relationship between the British State and the EIC with regard to the EIC's territorial possessions.
- Only political functions were examined (in capitalism the State does not interfere in a company's business).
- Result: the EIC kept its monopoly over trade with India.
- But the Court of Directors (CoD) in London was now made accountable for the EIC's political functions in India.

- This led directly to the Regulating Act of 1773.

Why regulation, and why in 1773

- 1765 ToA: the EIC becomes a Company State, with two incomes, trade and land revenue
- 1767:
    - The State demands 400,000 pounds a year
    - 1765-83: the American Revolution
    - 1770: famine and Nabobs
- 1772:
    - The EIC goes bankrupt
    - The State lends 1.4 million pounds
    - Select Committee of Parliament
- Result:
    - Trade monopoly kept
    - The CoD made accountable for political functions
- Regulating Act 1773: the State regulates the EIC's CMR matters, not its trade

---

2 · Regulating Act of 1773

> STORY LINK
> Because the five worries peaked in 1772, Parliament regulated in 1773. Ask: what did the Act do in India (@GG) and in London (@Br State), and where did it leak?

2.1 @GG: provisions shaping the Company State in India

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - Reporting chain, RA 1773. GG(Be) gives orders on war and peace to G(Bo) and G(Ma), who send all information back.
> - GG(Be) sends all information (6 months) on Commerce and CMR to the CoD of EIC, which passes CMR information to the Br STATE [circled E and P: unclear, probably Executive and Parliament
> - Check your notebook]
> - GG(Be)'s council = Supreme Council of Bengal = 4 Councillors (C1 to C4).

- 1. The Governor of the Bengal Presidency was elevated to Governor-General of the Bengal Presidency (GG/Bengal).
- He stayed Governor of Bengal but was now a General over the Governors of Bombay and Madras in specific matters.
- 2. The Governors of Bombay and Madras were subordinated to GG(Bengal) in matters of war and peace, except in emergency circumstances.

Regulating Act 1773: reporting chain and Supreme Council Lecture 18 slide 49

- They could be suspended if they disobeyed.
- The logic:
  - High war expenditure caused the 1772 bankruptcy, so the GG was made accountable
  - and accountability without power is meaningless.
- 3. Commercial affairs were untouched. In commerce the Governors stayed independent regional managers.
- 4. A Supreme Council of Bengal was created with four councillors (GG + 4).
- All decisions were by majority vote of the four councillors.
- The GG had only a casting vote, a tiebreaker.
- This was a check on any empire-building ambitions of the GG.
- 5. Legislative function was given to the GG's Council: it could make laws governing Bengal and on matters of war and peace.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "GG is not boss in commerce matters" (row 3): in commerce the Governors stayed independent.
- "[Treaty = Law]" (row 5): a treaty on war and peace is made by law of the GG's Council.
- In "Governor-General", Governor = ruler of the Bengal Presidency, in charge of making laws and implementing them
- General = senior to G(Bo) and G(Ma)

Decision making in the Supreme Council Lecture 18 slide 50

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Decision making in the Supreme Council: a check against the empire-builder GG. (1) The GG proposes.
- (2) Only the four councillors C1 to C4 vote.
- (3) On a tie, the GG's casting vote decides.
- So the GG needs the support of at least 2 councillors (2 for and 2 against is a tie he breaks).

2.2 @Br State: provisions shaping the EIC-State relationship

Handout flow chart: GG (Bengal), Supreme Council of 4, casting vote only on a tie handout figure

- 1. For the first time Parliament's right to regulate the EIC's political affairs was legally recognised. Commercial affairs stayed outside supervision.
- (Since 1600 the EIC had commercial functions; since 1765 also political functions, civil, military and revenue.)
- 2. The GG collects information on commercial and political matters and sends it to the Court of Directors (CoD) in London.
- The CoD submits information on political matters to the British State.
- 3. A Supreme Court in Calcutta: one Chief Justice and three puisne judges ("puny", junior judges), all chosen by the Crown.
- The first Chief Justice was Sir Elijah Impey (1774).
- It heard cases involving British-born subjects and their Indian servants in the Bengal Presidency, under British law.
- Similar courts followed at Madras in 1800 and Bombay in 1823 (earlier cases involving British subjects went to Mayor's Courts): thus 3 Supreme Courts.
- 4. To curb corruption, EIC officials were barred from accepting gifts from Indians.
- 5. Tenures:
    - Directors of the EIC 4 years, not immediately re-eligible
    - GG(Bengal) 5 years, re-appointable

- Councillors 4 years
- all first appointees were named in the Act itself, future ones by the CoD

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "[not today's SC]": a British-law court at Calcutta, not today's Supreme Court of India.
- "(not BY EIC)": judges chosen by the Crown, not the EIC, so the court was the State's instrument.
- "Hastings 73-85 [GG's terms]": the first GG's 5-year tenure.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Slide typeset detail:
  - "Sir" is struck before Elijah Impey on the slide
  - The handout writes "Sir Elijah Impey"
- Either is fine for the exam.

HANDOUT ALERT

Source note on the code: the typed slide, handout and PYQ board all write Warren Hastings 73-85 (the last digit can look like 86). Use 73-85.

Post	Term	Remark
Directors of the EIC	4 years	Not immediately re-eligible
GG(Bengal)	5 years	Re-appointable (Warren Hastings 73-85 the first)
Councillors	4 years	First ones named in the Act; later ones by the CoD

2.3 Impact of the 1773 Act

- 1. The Supreme Court was set up at Calcutta in 1774.
- (The Act was passed in 1773; Warren Hastings 73-85 assumed office as the first GG of Bengal in 1774.) Conflict arose between the Supreme Court and the GG's Council over cases arising from acts done by EIC officials in their official capacity.
- 2. Poor supervision: the huge distance between India and London and no modern communication.
- 3. Centralisation of power in the GG began: the journey of India's central executive and central legislature starts here.
- (Three equal Governors become one GG over two Governors.)
- 4. Bombay and Madras still acted independently because of the vague phrase "emergency circumstances." Example: the Treaty of Surat (1775) was signed by the Governor of Bombay without the GG's approval, leading directly to the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82).
- 5. The GG had no veto over his council.
- With factional politics this led to paralysis, the indecision problem.

- Philip Francis, a councillor who wanted to replace Hastings 73-85, kept opposing the GG and wrote complaint letters to London.
- This contributed to Edmund Burke leading an impeachment trial against Hastings 73-85 in Parliament on corruption charges
- He spent his life savings and was acquitted.
- (Robert Clive 57-67 was likewise tried in Parliament in 1773 and acquitted.)

2.4 Amending Act of 1781 (Bengal Judicature Act)

- The Amending Act of 1781 (also called the Bengal Judicature Act or Declaratory Act) resolved the jurisdiction conflict.
- The Supreme Court's jurisdiction was now:
- All cases within Calcutta's territory.
- All cases of British subjects in the Bengal Presidency (excluding cases arising from official acts of EIC officials, which went to the GG's Council).
- All cases related to EIC property in Fort William.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2005 trap (full question in the Exam lens).
- (1) Warren Hastings 73-85 and the regular police force on the British pattern: WRONG, it is Cornwallis 86-93's reform under the Cornwallis 86-93 Code 1793 (Chapter 18).
- (2) Supreme Court at Calcutta by the Regulating Act 1773: CORRECT.
- (3) IPC in 1860: CORRECT (Macaulay's draft from the 1834 Law Commission). Answer (b) 2 and 3.
- Board note on statement 1: "Till 1813 orientalism. Rule India, the India way": until 1813 the policy was to rule India by its own ways (orientalism), which is why a British-pattern police is out of place under Hastings 73-85.

HANDOUT NOTE

Pitt's India Act slides are repeated and extended with board work in the next lecture; the section below uses both.

3 · Pitt's India Act, also the East India Company Act (1784)

STORY LINK

Because the Regulating Act leaked and America was lost, London moved from supervision to control. Ask: who is the top authority for commerce, for CMR, and who bosses the GG?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Named after the British PM William Pitt.
- Context: Britain lost its 13 North American colonies in 1783 (American War of Independence 1776-83, USA created), so the Br State became anxious about India and shifted from supervision to direct control of the EIC.

Context of Pitt's India Act: shift to control Lecture 19 slide 1

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two roads lead to the 1784 shift to control.
- Road 1: the American Revolution 1765-83 produced the USA in 1783, so anxiety in the Br State that the EIC in India might declare independence.
- Road 2: GBF 1770, then the 1772 bankruptcy and 1.4 million pound loan, then the Regulating Act 1773, then the Wars: 1st Anglo-Maratha War 1775-82 (result noted "Ma" with a smiley) and 2nd Anglo-Mysore War 1780-84 (result noted "Tie").
- Both roads end at "shift to control of PIA 1784."

HANDOUT ALERT

"Ma" (smiley) and "Tie" are the teacher's own result notes on the two wars; the handout does not give them (see Chapter 13 and Chapter 12). Check your notebook for what was said aloud.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Key question: who chose the Directors in the CoD? The SHAREHOLDERS of the EIC.
- The CoD is the EIC's own body
- The BoC is the State's body

3.1 The concept of Double Government (1784-1833)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The 1784 structure. The CoD of the EIC sits with the English EIC and private people
- the BoC sits in the Br State box
- BoC = "ministry for Indian Affairs." All incoming and outgoing letters of the CoD go to the BoC.
- BoC to CoD = binding orders
- BoC to GG(Be) = binding orders, bypassing the CoD.
- The council shrinks from C1 to C4 (RA 1773) to C1 to C3 (PIA 1784).
- Summary: "Shift from regulation / supervision to CONTROL: PIA 1784."

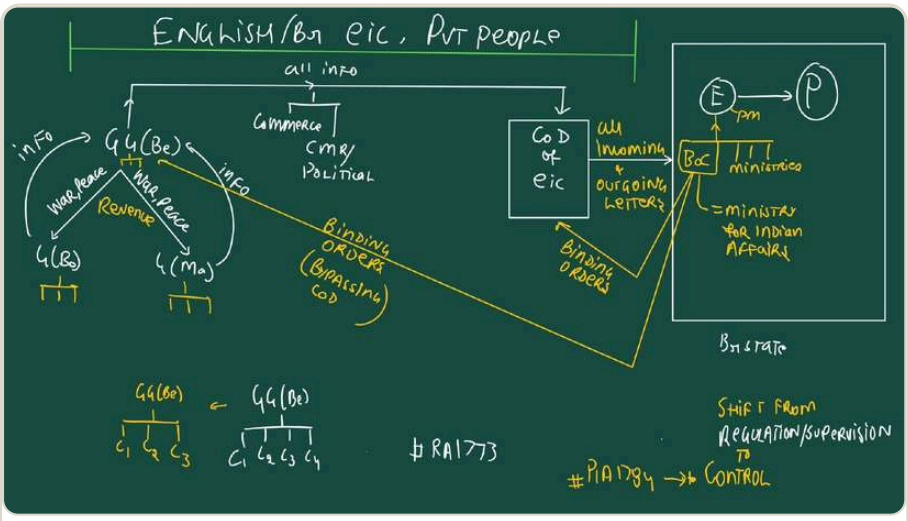
Double Government of EIC affairs: commerce under CoD, CMR under BoC
Lecture 19 slide 4



Double Government 1784-1833: the whole structure Lecture 19 slide 3

Look-alike splits: Dual Government, SA, UT with Legislature Lecture 19 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Double Government of EIC affairs (1784-1833) is not the Dual Government in Bengal (1765-72) and not the Subsidiary Alliance (SA).
- The EIC's work is split into two parts under two top bosses
- top authority (final) = no one above: commerce: CoD of the EIC
- CMR (political): BoC of the Br State. 1833: commercial function ended, so one work, one top authority, the BoC.
- Look-alike splits:
  - Dual Government Bengal 1765-72 (Diwani with the EIC, Nizamat with the Nawab)
  - SA (external affairs with the EIC, domestic with the Indian king)
  - UT with Legislature (public order, police, land with the Union Government through the LG; the rest with the CM and State Legislative Assembly).
- Analogy, "Mera Ghar": ABC = Papa, PQR = Mumma.

Arrangement	Who holds what	Years
Double Government of EIC affairs	Commerce: CoD of the EIC. CMR (political): BoC of the Br State	1784-1833
Dual Government in Bengal	Diwani: the EIC. Nizamat: the Nawab	1765-72 ([[10	Chapter 10]])
Subsidiary Alliance	External affairs: the EIC. Domestic affairs: the Indian king	From 1798 ([[11	Chapter 11]])

3.2 @Br State: provisions shaping the EIC-State relationship

- 1. The Act used the phrase "British territorial possessions in India" (for the first time) but left it ambiguous whether British India belonged to the EIC or the British State.

Handout diagram: pre-1784 supervision versus Double

Government 1784-1833 handout figure

- 2. Double Government of EIC affairs (1784-1833): political affairs went under the supreme control of the Br State through a new Board of Control (BoC) in London, effectively a ministry for Indian affairs.
- On commercial affairs the top authority remained the CoD of the EIC
- on political affairs it was now the BoC.
- 3. The BoC had six members: one Secretary of State (a Cabinet minister) as President of the BoC, the Chancellor of the Exchequer (the Finance Minister) and four members of the Privy Council.
- (The Privy Council is the Crown's advisory body; earlier it worked like the Mughal Darbar or the Chhatrapati's Ashtapradhan.) Its role: to superintend, direct and control all acts relating to Civil, Military and Revenue government of the British territorial possessions in the East Indies.
- "East Indies" was deliberate: territories annexed outside India (for example Burma later) also came under the BoC.
- 4. A Secret Committee of three directors within the CoD, through which the BoC could send confidential orders directly to India, bypassing the full CoD, for sensitive military and diplomatic matters.
- 5. The CoD now had to send all incoming and outgoing letters on India to the BoC.
- (In 1773 it was information; now original letters: the State's anxiety had grown after 1776-83.)
- 6. The EIC retained commerce and patronage in 1784: the right to independently appoint EIC officials, including the Principal Servants (GG, Governors, C-in-C, Councillors).
- The CoD kept the exclusive power to nominate them
- The Crown's prior approval was not required (a doubt on this was settled by the Amending Act of 1786)
- The Crown's control ran through the BoC (policy) and the Crown's power to recall or remove officers.
- 7. Dual Control over GG (1784-1858): the BoC could pass binding orders both to the CoD and directly to the GG, bypassing the CoD.
- So the GG had two bosses in political, civil, military and revenue matters, the CoD and the BoC.
- In commerce only one boss, the CoD.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Power to give job" = patronage. "imp": GG, Governors, Councillors, C-in-C of EIC army = the Principal Servants.
- "= Br STATE" = the Crown, who got the power to recall or remove.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source conflict on the Principal Servants. Handout Section 3.1 #6: the CoD appointed them without Crown approval in 1784
- Section 3.3 #6 and the slide: only after Crown approval.
- The board resolves it with "Done in [1793]":
  - Crown approval comes with the Charter Act 1793 (Section 4)
  - In 1784 the Crown only gets the power to recall or remove.

Dual Control over the GG, 1784-1858: two bosses Lecture 19 slide 6

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Dual Control over the GG (1784-1858) = two bosses of the GG in C, M, R matters (political matters, the Company State).
- A boss = a person who can give a direct order.
- Single control would be BoC → CoD → GG → Governors.
- In dual control the BoC also orders the GG directly: a breach of the chain of command ("everyone has only one boss").

Feature	Double Government of EIC affairs	Dual Control over GG
Years	1784-1833	1784-1858
What is split	The EIC's work: commerce (CoD) and CMR (BoC)	The GG's bosses: CoD and BoC in CMR matters
Who is the top authority	Commerce: CoD; CMR: BoC	In CMR: both, each can give direct orders
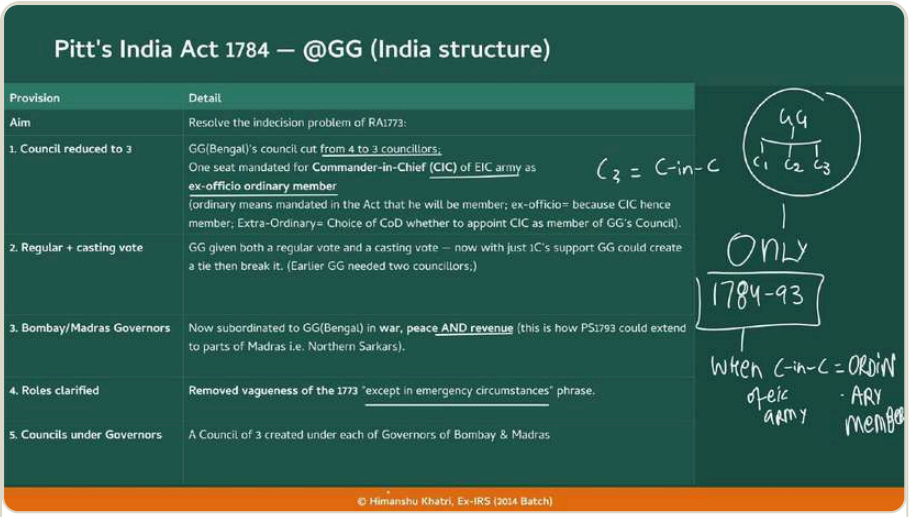
When it ended	1833, when the commercial function ended (one work, one top authority = BoC)	1858, when the India Council and the SoS replaced the BoC and CoD (the GG reports only to the SoS)

3.3 @GG: provisions shaping the Company State in India



Pitt's India Act 1784 @GG: six provisions Lecture 19 slide 11

Aim: resolve the indecision problem of 1773.

- 1. GG(Bengal)'s council cut from 4 councillors to 3.
- One seat was mandated for the Commander-in-Chief (CIC) of the EIC army as an ex-officio ordinary member.
- (Ordinary = mandated in the Act; ex-officio = member because he is the CIC; extra-ordinary = the CoD chooses whether to appoint him.) Council of 1784 = GG + 2 councillors + CIC.
- 2. The GG was given both a regular vote and a casting vote.
- With just one councillor's support the GG could create a tie and break it in his favour.
- (Earlier he needed at least two.
- In effect one councillor was removed and his vote was given to the GG.)
- 3. Bombay and Madras Governors were now subordinated to GG(Bengal) in war, peace and revenue (earlier only war and peace).
- This is how the Permanent Settlement of 1793 could extend to parts of Madras (the Northern Sarkars; see Chapter 16).
- 4. Responsibilities of the GG and the Governors were more clearly defined, removing the vagueness of "except in emergency circumstances" (RA 1773).
- 5. A Council of 3 was created under each of the Governors of Bombay and Madras (the beginning of today's State assemblies and Council of Ministers, without separation of powers).
- 6. "Conquest in India is repugnant to the wish, policy and honour of this nation." The Act thus banned imperial expansion, a response to the heavy war expenditure of the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82) and the 2nd Anglo-Mysore War (1780-84).
- (The handout's aside: in reality only fiscal decline was repugnant, not empire-building.)

Casting vote: 4 councillors (1773) versus 3 councillors + GG vote (1784) Lecture 19 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why the 1784 council helps the GG.
- Before (1773):
  - 2 for, 2 against, a tie
  - The GG casts and wins 3 against 2.
- After (1784): council C1, C2, C3 and the GG also votes: with only C3 for him, the votes are 2-2 (C3 + GG against C1 + C2), a tie, he casts: 3 against 2.
- So C4's normal vote is given to the GG.
- Aim: end factionalism and indecision and make the GG more powerful.

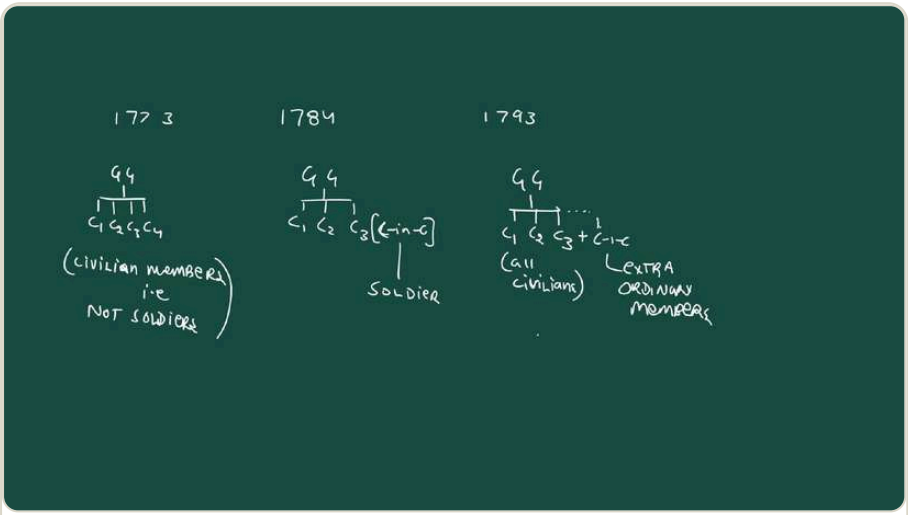
Ordinary versus extra-ordinary member of the council Lecture 19 slide 10

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Ordinary member: the law itself says the person will be a member of the council.
- Extra-ordinary member: the law does not say so but gives someone, e.g. the CoD, the power to appoint him. 1784 (PIA): the C-in-C was made an ordinary member of the GG's council. 1793: the C-in-C can be an extra-ordinary member if the CoD wants.



The GG's council compared: 1773, 1784, 1793 Lecture 19 slide 19

3.4 Impact of the 1784 Act and the Amending Act of 1786

- 1. Dual control in practice meant no effective control: the GG could play his two masters (CoD and BoC) against each other, given the distance and no modern communication.
- 2. The GG still had no veto over his council: if all three councillors opposed him, the indecision problem continued.
- (Indecision continued, BUT the position improved because he needed only one councillor.)
- 3. Conflict between the GG and the C-in-C: the decision of war and peace rested with the GG, but the right to use the army rested with the C-in-C.
- 4. The Amending Act of 1786 amended Pitt's Act by:
    - (i) giving the GG a veto over his council in extraordinary circumstances
    - (ii) letting the EIC appoint the same person to both posts, GG and C-in-C, to avoid the rift (the posts were not merged, and it was not compulsory, just permitted)
- This was done on the insistence of Cornwallis 86-93 (GG 1786-93), who became the first person to hold both posts.

- R Rajagopalachari: first Indian GG, June 1948 to 26 Jan 1950
- R Rajendra Prasad: first President of the Republic

Order kept: the office climbs from Company to Crown to free India.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "To understand: GG = PM of Br India" (key idea): before 1858 the GG ran British India as a Prime Minister would.
- "(Powerless) GG = President of India": after 1947 the GG is only a symbolic head, like the President.
- Same line on the 1853 board: since 1833 the GG was effectively PM of Br India and CM of Bengal.

KEY TAKEAWAY

The system of controlling the EIC's political affairs built in 1773-1786 continued till 1858 with very little structural change: binding orders by the BoC to the CoD and to the GG; Principal Servants appointed only after Crown approval (done in 1793); original letters to the BoC; the GG as the main authority in India.

HANDOUT ALERT

4 · Charter Act of 1793

STORY LINK

Because Pitt's Act left the Company choosing its own top men, the Crown claimed the head. Ask: what does 'sovereignty only on behalf of the Crown' change for the EIC?

4.1 @Br State

- 1. "Subjects of the Crown cannot acquire sovereign powers over territory on their own but only on behalf of the Crown." So the EIC was now only a manager or agent of the British State.
- Sovereignty over British India was with the British State, not the EIC.
- (However, Mughal sovereignty over the whole of India was accepted until 1858.)
- 2. The size of the BoC was decreased: the President was retained with only two junior members under him, who need not be Privy Councillors.

Charter Act 1793 @Br State: six provisions Lecture 19 slide 16

- This concentrated real authority in the President and reduced factionalism.
- 3. The salary of BoC members was now paid by the EIC.
- (This later connects to the Home Charges under the Drain of Wealth theory of the Moderates, Chapter 27.)
- 4. The EIC's charter was renewed for 20 years, and for the first time by Parliament, not the Monarch.
- 5. Principal Servants (GG, Governors, C-in-C, Councillors) were appointed by the EIC but only after the approval of the Crown.
- The State took hold of the head of the Company State in India while its body stayed under the EIC, making a declaration of independence impossible.

THE EIC LOSES ITS HEAD, ITS BODY AND ITS NAME

- 6. The EIC retained commerce and patronage: it independently appointed officials other than the Principal Servants.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Who owned what. India = Mughal + Sikh (with names such as Tipu 82-99 and the Nizam) on one side
- Indian States and British India [of the EIC, now of the Br Crown] on the other
- After 1793 British India belongs to the Br Crown, not the EIC, while the Mughal claim over the whole of India stands until 1858.
- Three-step chain: 1784 "Br (T) possessions" (T = territorial), 1793 "sovereign powers only on behalf of Crown", 1813 "undoubted sovereignty of Crown".

Principal Servants: more loyal to the Br State than the EIC Lecture 19 slide 17

TEACHER'S BOARD

Principal Servants: now more loyal to the Br State than the EIC, because they are appointed by the EIC (appointment letter and salary are the EIC's) but only after Crown approval: the head taken by the State while the body stays with the EIC.

4.2 @GG

- 1. GG(Bengal)'s power over his council and over the Governors of Bombay and Madras increased further.
- When present in Madras or Bombay, the GG could supersede their Governors
- even when absent from Bengal he could issue directives to the presidencies without consulting his own council. (Teacher: "Not imp.")
- 2. The CIC's seat was given to a civilian.
- The CIC could be appointed an extraordinary member by the CoD (and was).
- GG's council 1793 = GG + CIC (extraordinary) + 3 ordinary councillors.

NUMBER CARD · THE GG'S COUNCIL IN NUMBERS

4 → 12

From four councillors to a legislative council of twelve.

1773 GG + 4 civilians; majority vote, GG casting vote only

1784 GG + 2 + CIC (ordinary, ex-officio); GG regular + casting vote

1793 GG + CIC (extra-ordinary) + 3 civilians

1833 Executive GG + CIC + 3; legislative adds 1 Law Member (Macaulay)

1853 Executive GG + CIC + 4; legislative [GG + CIC + 4] + 6 = 12

- 3. Hallmark:
  - Civil Law. A code of all regulations governing Bengal was to be framed, dealing with rights of persons and property
  - courts were bound to follow them
  - all laws were printed in the vernacular so people knew their rights
- (This is Cornwallis 86-93's belief in the rule of law and anti-corruption; the laws included Hindu and Islamic laws and the Permanent Settlement Act of 1793 for land revenue and property.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Written law, written judgement": law and court judgements become written (Hindu and Islamic laws + Permanent Settlement Act 1793, the Cornwallis 86-93 Code, Chapter 18).

What a code means: civil and criminal law Lecture 19 slide 20

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A code = written law. Law is on civil or criminal matters.
- Civil, personal (inheritance, marriage and divorce, parent-child relations): customs of the community, i.e. personal law of that religion
- the State can make law for social reforms (Sati Abolition Act 1829, Removal of Religious Disabilities Act 1850, Hindu Widow Remarriage Act 1856, Hindu Succession Act, Triple Talaq, UCC, abolition of untouchability by the COI 1950)
- Civil, non-personal (secular) (property, contracts): civil law made by the State.
- Criminal is always non-personal: State versus the accused, not accused versus victim, so law and order is the State's responsibility.

Year	Act	Council	The CIC's seat
1773	Regulating Act	GG + 4 councillors (all civilians)	None
1784	Pitt's India Act	GG + 2 councillors + CIC (GG's regular and casting vote)	Ordinary, ex-officio (mandated by the Act)
1793	Charter Act	GG + CIC + 3 councillors (3 civilians)	Extra-ordinary (CoD may appoint; he was)

5 · Charter Act of 1813: Westernisation begins

STORY LINK

Because Britain's interest shifted with the Industrial Revolution, the trade monopoly became a burden. Ask: what stayed with the EIC, and what arrived with the missionaries?

5.1 Context

- 1. The narrative for ending the monopoly.
- Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations" (1776) argued for a free market (laissez faire), so the monopoly was under intellectual attack since 1776.
- Liberals, Utilitarians and Evangelists argued that British manufacturers would industrialise India through technology transfer and FDI, fulfilling the White Man's Burden (WMB).
- There was also heavy lobbying by manufacturers and non-EIC traders.
- ("[Recall: interlopers]", the non-EIC British traders of Chapter 10.)
- 2. British national interest. The Industrial Revolution (1750-1850) was progressing
- British manufacturers wanted India as a source of raw materials and an export market.
- It was no longer in the British national interest for a trading company to hold the monopoly over British business with India.
- 3. The push to westernisation. Liberals, Utilitarians and Evangelists argued that the idea of a Great Ancient India was a myth and that westernising India fulfilled the White Man's Burden.

MNEMONIC · WHY THE CHARTER ACT 1813 WAS PASSED

W I N

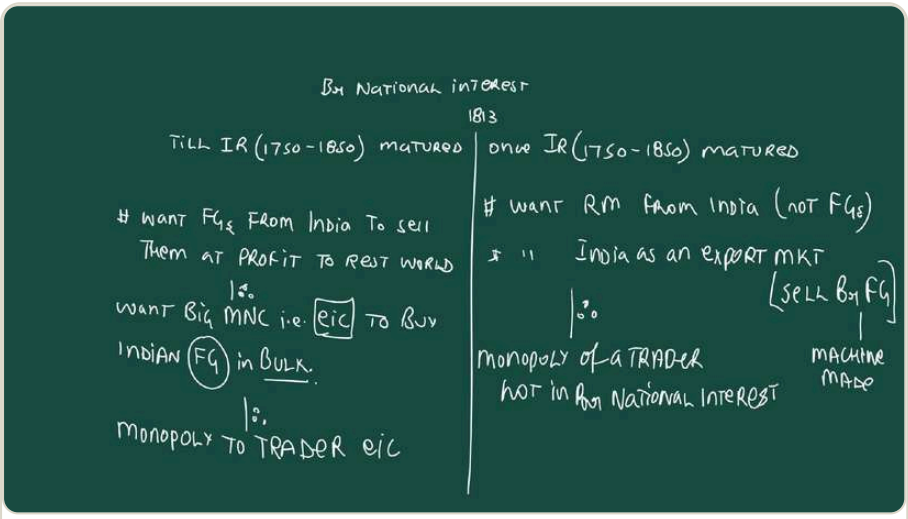
Free-trade Britain wanted to WIN India's market, so the monopoly had to go.

W Westernisation push: 'Great Ancient India' a myth, White Man's Burden

I Interest of Britain: the Industrial Revolution wants raw material and an export market

N Narrative against monopoly: Adam Smith 1776, laissez faire, lobbying by manufacturers and non-EIC traders

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.



British national interest in 1813: before and after the Industrial Revolution
Lecture 19 slide 22

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Br national interest in 1813. Till the IR (1750-1850) matured: Britain wanted finished goods (FGs) from India to sell at a profit to the world, so a big MNC, the EIC, buying Indian FG in bulk, hence monopoly to the trader EIC.
- Once the IR matured: Britain wanted raw material (RM) from India, not FGs, and India as an export market for British machine-made FG, hence a trader's monopoly is not in the national interest.

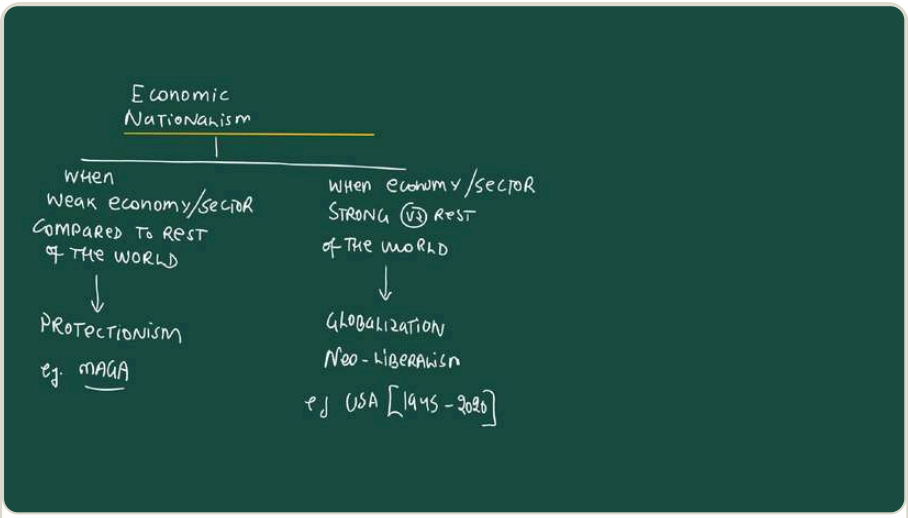
Westernization: polity, economy, society Lecture 19 slide 23

TEACHER'S BOARD

Westernisation has three arms: polity and administration (west like); economy (west like: machines, factories, machine-based industry); society (education, and customs and religion leading to social reforms).



Economic Nationalism: protectionism versus globalisation Lecture 19 slide 24

HANDOUT NOTE

- Economic nationalism is a teaching aside:
  - A weak economy turns protectionist (e.g. MAGA), a strong one globalist (e.g. USA 1945-2020)
  - It explains why strong Britain wanted free trade in 1813
- Nothing in the handout matches it.

5.2 @Br State

- 1. "Undoubted sovereignty of the Crown over Indian territorial possessions." Sovereignty was of the British State, not the EIC.
- (At this stage the Crown was not challenging Mughal sovereignty over India as a whole.)
- 2. The EIC's monopoly over (British) trade with India was ended, but the EIC retained the monopoly over Tea, Opium and trade with China.
- (The board inserts "Br": the monopoly was over British trade with India.)
- 3. Cultural Colonialism began. Christian missionaries could enter India for conversions with a licence from the CoD or the BoC.
- A push to education and social reforms was mandated: the EIC was to spend Rs 1 lakh a year on education.
- The debate on western versus Indian education and medium continued till 1835, when it was settled in favour of western education in English.

- 4. The 1813 Act contributed to the 1857 revolt by enabling cultural colonialism and undermining Indian institutions and social structures.
- 5. The Charter was renewed for 20 years.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2019 trap (full question in the Exam lens).
- (1) Ended the trade monopoly except tea and China: CORRECT.
- (2) Asserted the sovereignty of the Crown over Indian territories: CORRECT.
- (3) Revenues of India controlled by Parliament: WRONG for 1813 (see the source-conflict alert in the Exam lens: BoC revenue supervision 1784; Budget under Parliament 1853; the board says 1858). Answer (a) 1 and 2.

6 · Charter Act of 1833, also the St. Helena Act

STORY LINK

Because the trade monopoly was gone, the Company was left a political agent. Ask: how did one GG, one law and one legislature emerge, and what did the Governors lose?

6.1 @Br State

- 1. The EIC lost its monopoly over Tea, Opium and China trade.
- Its commercial function was fully ended: the EIC would no longer conduct business and had only a political function, and that only as an agent of the British State.
- (The Double Government of EIC affairs (1784-1833) thus ended: no more dual identity of trader and ruler.
- The slide adds that books still use the phrase till 1858.)
- 2. The BoC's supervisory power was extended to all administrative affairs in India: not just policy and laws, but supervision over implementation, officers, their transfers and postings.
- (The handout links this to the 2023 Supreme Court case on administrative control between the Centre and Delhi's elected executive.)
- 3. The President of the BoC was renamed Minister for Indian Affairs in 1833.

HANDOUT ALERT

The "8 ✓" in the right margin cannot be read with confidence (perhaps the 8 numbered points of the Act).

6.2 @GG

TEACHER'S BOARD

GG(Bengal) versus GG(India). 1773: "Governor" = ruler of the Bengal Presidency, in charge of making laws and implementing them; "General" = senior to the Governors of Bombay and Madras. 1833: "General" same as before; "Governor" is now the ruler of all British India (Bengal, Bombay, Madras), so a true PM of British India, and the law-making powers of the Governors of Bombay and Madras are taken away.

- 1. A landmark: GG(Bengal)-in-Council was elevated to GG(India)-in-Council.
- As the EIC's territory expanded and Britishers entered India in larger numbers after 1813, uniform laws and administration across British India became necessary: one country, one law, one executive (like GST today or the Napoleonic Code of 1804). (Board note: "implementation of law.")
- 2. The GG(India) was made Executive and Legislative head of British India: empowered to make and administer laws for the whole of British India, equally applicable to Indians and Britishers.

GG(Bengal) versus GG(India): the word-play Lecture 19 slide 27

- 3. The legislative powers of the Governors of Bombay and Madras were taken away (restored by the Indian Councils Act 1861, Chapter 25).
- 4. Centralisation in the GG peaked in 1833
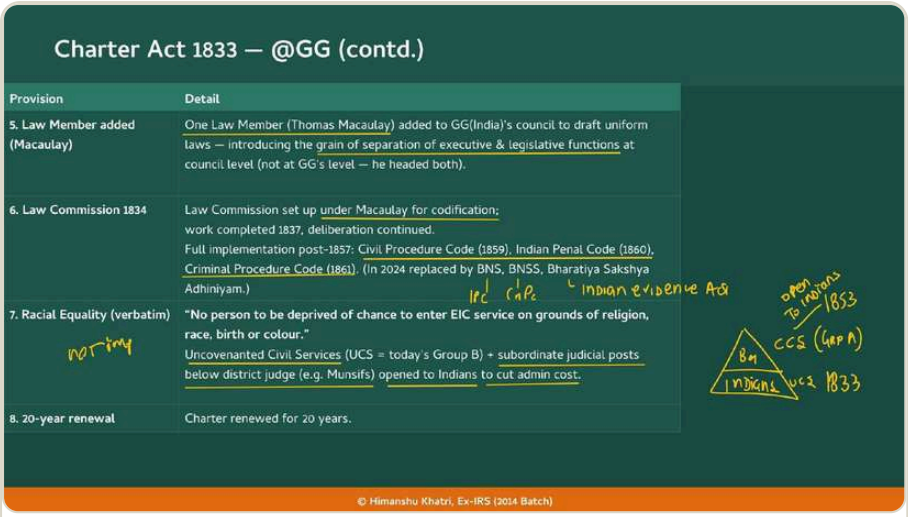
- Decentralisation to the provinces began in 1861 and peaked in 1935 (the journey of federalism and Centre-State relations)



Charter Act 1833 @GG: Law Member, Law Commission, racial equality
Lecture 19 slide 29

- 5. One Law Member (Thomas Macaulay) was added to the GG(India)'s council to draft uniform laws.
- This introduced the grain of separation of the executive and legislative functions at the council level (not at the GG's level, he still headed both).
- The journey of a separate legislature begins here.
- 6. In 1834 a Law Commission was set up under Macaulay for codification of laws.
- Work was completed by 1837, but deliberation went on.
- Full implementation post-1857: Civil Procedure Code (1859), Indian Penal Code (1860), Criminal Procedure Code (1861).
- (In 2024 India replaced these with the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS) and Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam.) The board also lists the Indian Evidence Act.
- 7. Racial equality promised: "No person to be deprived of chance to enter EIC service on grounds of religion, race, birth or colour." The Uncovenanted Civil Services (UCS, roughly today's Group B) and subordinate judicial positions below the district judge (e.g. Munsifs) were opened to Indians to reduce the cost of administration. (Teacher: "not imp.")
- 8. The Charter was renewed for 20 years.

  - (c) all law-making to the GG in Council: in 1833
  - (d) an Indian as law member: NOT in 1833 (Macaulay was an Englishman; an Indian Law Member came much later). Answer (d).

  - (2) Bentinck 28-35 first GG of India: CORRECT (Charter 1833). Answer (b).
- Prelims 2023: the Act that redesignated GG of Bengal as GG of India: Charter Act 1833 (d).
- RA 1773 only created GG/Bengal
- PIA 1784 created the BoC and Double Government
- Charter 1793 raised the GG's power but did not rename him

7 · Charter Act of 1853

STORY LINK

Because the Company was now only an agent, its last powers were removed. Ask: what did it lose (term, jobs, Budget) and how did the council grow?

7.1 @Br State

- 1. The Charter was valid only "till Parliament specifies otherwise": no fixed renewal period.
- (A sword permanently hanging over the EIC's neck, since the Charter was its founding document.)
- 2. The EIC lost patronage (the power to independently appoint its officials) because a Civil Services Examination was introduced.
- The first exam was held in 1855 in London.
- From this point the EIC hardly controlled policies in India. (Flagged "[* UPSC exam]".)
- 3. The Covenanted Civil Services (CCS) were opened to Indians (the UCS had been opened in 1833).
- 4. The revenues of British India (the Budget) were placed under the control of the British Parliament.

7.2 @GG

- 1. Deeper separation of the executive and legislative functions within the GG(India)'s council by adding 6 more Legal Members.
- 2. Provincial law-making. Since 1833 only the GG's council could make laws for all British India, but every country has issues that need province-specific laws.
- The four provincial representatives in the council would draft such laws (for example the Rent Act of 1859 for Bengal by the Bengal member).
- 3. A Lieutenant-Governor (LG) for Bengal. The GG was empowered to appoint an LG to reduce his workload (since 1833 the GG was effectively PM of British India and CM of Bengal, an impossible dual burden).

Two kinds of laws: country-level and province-level Lecture 19 slide 32

- In 1854 Dalhousie 48-56 appointed Frederick James Halliday as the first LG of Bengal.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two kinds of laws: all-country-level and province-level (unique problems and context of each province).
- Province-level examples:
  - The Permanent Settlement 1793 for Bengal
  - The Ryotwari system 1801-07 and 1820 (the board also reads "SCAM-B")
- Solution:
  - Since 1833 only the GG(I)'s council can make law, so 1853 adds 6 more legal members
  - the first four are Bengal, Bombay, Madras and NWP (North-Western Provinces, "NWP 1836") = 4 Provincial Reps.

Seat	Number	What they did
Provincial representatives (Bengal, Bombay, Madras, North-Western Provinces)	4	Drafted province-specific laws (e.g. Rent Act 1859 by the Bengal member)
Chief Justice of the Calcutta Supreme Court	1	Legal weight in the legislature
A regular judge of the Calcutta Supreme Court	1	Legal weight in the legislature
Total added	6	Legislative meetings: [GG + CIC + 4] + 6 = 12 persons

7.3 Governor versus Lieutenant-Governor (post 1858)

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Curiosity but not imp", "post 1858": a comparison of post-1858 Governors and LGs, not a priority for the exam.

Feature	Governor	Lieutenant-Governor (LG)
Jurisdiction	Presidencies (Bengal, Bombay, Madras): the oldest, most prestigious centres of power	Provinces (e.g. Punjab, UP, Bihar): newer or subdivided territories
Appointed by	The British Crown directly	The Governor-General of India (with Crown approval)
Background	Usually British aristocrats, peers or high-profile politicians imported from London	Usually veteran ICS officers, career bureaucrats
Autonomy and reporting	High: could correspond directly with the Secretary of State in London	Low: strictly subordinate, all communication through the GG
Executive council	Yes: ruled collectively as the "Governor-in-Council"	No: ruled as a sole executive for most of the colonial period

7.4 Evolution of the council (1833 to 1853)

TEACHER'S BOARD

"One council, two avatars." The same council meets as the Executive ("[Cabinet meeting]") for day-to-day administration, taxes and war, and as the Legislative with extra members to draft laws. 1833: executive = GG + CIC + 3 ordinary (since 1793); legislative = the same + 1 Law Member (Macaulay). 1853: executive = GG + CIC + 4 ordinary (the 1833 Law Member promoted to 4th ordinary member); legislative = [GG + CIC + 4] + 6 = 12.

KEY TAKEAWAY

8 · Government of India Act 1858, also the Act for Better Government of India

STORY LINK

Because the revolt gave the occasion and the Acts had done the work, the Crown took over. Ask: what replaced the BoC and the CoD, and what do the princes keep under Paramountcy?

8.1 Background

Driver	Detail
1. EIC blamed for 1857	The EIC was blamed for mismanagement of Indian affairs and for the 1857 revolt, in which many British were killed and the EIC's monopoly on violence was broken
2. Public demand	The British public demanded an end to EIC rule, replacing Absentee Sovereignty with direct rule of the British State (since Charter 1793 sovereignty was with the State, but it was absent and ruled through its agent, the EIC)
3. Free traders	Non-EIC merchants wanted direct British rule, claiming the EIC ignored their business interests
4. WEMC	The Indian Western-Educated Middle Class wanted direct British rule for accountability and modernisation (the Industrial Revolution and democracy came under State rule in Britain, not under a company)
5. Stronger control	Britain wanted stronger control over India after 1857

8.2 @Br State

- 1. EIC rule was replaced by the direct rule of the British State in British India.
- (Irony: in 1856 the EIC annexed Awadh on grounds of maladministration; now the EIC was removed on the same grounds.
- The EIC was formally dissolved in 1874.)
- 2. Policy of Subordinate Union towards Indian rulers.

GOI Act 1858 @Br State: Crown rule and Paramountcy Lecture 19 slide 37

- Mughal sovereignty over Indian territory was legally ended (Mughal State 1526-40 and 1556-1858).
- Note: Mughal sovereignty was not over the whole of India (Travancore was never part of the Mughal State and the Sikh State was legally independent).
- The British Crown was now sovereign over the whole of India:
    - (i) British India (about 63% of the territory and 78% of the population) was ruled directly by the GG
    - (ii) Princely States were ruled by Indian princes under Paramountcy, a legal relationship in which Sovereignty, Defence, Communications and

Foreign Affairs (Sov, D, C, FA) rested with the Crown and domestic affairs with the Prince (the handout's analogy: "Article 370 without democracy")

- (Seven members of the EIC's CoD were absorbed into the India Council for continuity and experience.)
- 6. Dual Control over the GG (1784-1858) ended: as "Viceroy and GG" he now reported only to the SoS.
- (As GG he is the ruler of British India; as Viceroy he is the representative of the Crown in India, like a Vice-Captain representing the Captain when the Captain is not on the field.)
- 7. No change in the actual powers of the GG(India) as "Viceroy and GG."
- 8. In 1858 Charles Canning 56-62 became the first Viceroy.
- 9. The same Civil Services examination continued and was still held only in London.

8.3 Queen Victoria's Proclamation (1858)

- The Proclamation announced the transfer of governance from the East India Company to the British Crown. It specifically:
- (a) Disclaimed any intention to annex Indian States (a walk-back from Dalhousie 48-56's Doctrine of Lapse and the Awadh annexation 1856).
- Teacher: "Rule of Indian Princes in 565 PS."
- (b) Placed the Indian administration (British India) under the British Crown.
- Teacher: "Rule of Br State in Br India."
- (c) Promised religious non-interference, fair treatment of all subjects and opportunity in public service without discrimination of race or creed (re-affirming the Charter Act 1833 racial-equality clause).

- (d) Granted amnesty to those who took part in the 1857 revolt, with limited exceptions.

  - (2) administration under the Crown: CORRECT
  - (3) regulate the EIC's trade with India: WRONG (the teacher: "ended 1813"; the EIC's commercial function was over by 1833 and the Company was being dissolved). Answer (a) 1 and 2.
- Prelims 2006:
  - (1) Charter 1833 abolished the EIC's monopoly of Indian trade: WRONG (1813 did that; 1833 ended Tea, Opium, China)
  - (2) under GOI 1858 Parliament abolished the EIC altogether and took over direct rule: CORRECT. Answer (b).

8.4 Royal Titles Act (1876)

- 1. The Royal Titles Act (1876) by the British Parliament empowered Queen Victoria to take the title of Kaesar-i-Hind (Empress of India).
- 2. In 1877 Lytton 76-80 organised the Imperial (Delhi) Darbar where Victoria was coronated as Kaesar-i-Hind.
- (She had been unofficially using the title since 1858.)

9 · Conquest in India: policy versus drift

STORY LINK

Because the 1784 Act banned conquest yet the empire grew, the State's role needs explaining. Ask: was conquest policy or drift, and where was the State involved?

HANDOUT NOTE

- Section 9 rests on typed slides without board work
- the handout gives the same points
- It is the "Br State responsibility for conquest" Mains angle.

9.1 No official policy of conquest

- On the surface, Britain had no official policy of conquest.
- Imperial expansion was largely driven by Sub-Imperialism: the policies, actions and personal ambitions of senior EIC officials in India, many of whom built political careers back home after their India tenures.
- Pitt's India Act (1784) explicitly banned conquest in India, a response to the heavy expenditure of the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (1775-82) and the 2nd Anglo-Mysore War (1780-84).

9.2 British State responsibility

- However, the British State was responsible for conquest, for these reasons:
- a) Tools of conquest given by the State:
    - The EIC's Charter gave it the right to wage war, acquire and administer territory
    - the Charter was issued first by the Crown and later by Parliament.
- b) Military aid at critical junctures:
    - Plassey (1757) was won with the help of the Royal British Military (Chapter 10)
    - When the 1857 revolt nearly overthrew Company rule, the arrival of the Royal Military in October 1857 turned the tide
- The State helped both the initiation and the survival of conquest.
- c) The State financed the Company: trade monopoly over Britain's East Indies trade (1600-1813).

- King Charles II 60-85 rented Bombay (received as a dowry from the Portuguese in 1661) to the EIC for just 10 pounds a year in 1668.
- Thomas Roe was sent as a State representative to Jahangir 05-27's court to lobby.
- The State bailed out the EIC with a 1.4 million pound loan in 1772.
- d) Follow the money trail:
    - Over 1,50,000 pounds to the Monarch in the 17th century for Charter renewals
    - In 1698 Parliament gave the monopoly to a "New Company" because it offered a 2 million pound loan against the EIC's 7,00,000
    - in 1767 the EIC had to pay 4,00,000 pounds a year
    - many Parliamentarians and even Queen Elizabeth I 58-03 were shareholders receiving dividends

NUMBER CARD · THE STATE'S MONEY TRAIL

1668 · 1698 · 1767 · 1772

From a ten-pound rent to a 1.4 million pound loan.

17th century over 1,50,000 pounds to the Monarch for Charter renewals

1668 Charles II 60-85 rents Bombay to the EIC for 10 pounds a year

1698 the New Company wins the monopoly: a 2 million pound loan against the EIC's 7,00,000

1767 the EIC must pay 400,000 pounds a year

1772 the State lends the EIC 1.4 million pounds

- e) The State controlled the empire-builders: after 1784 Principal Servants (the sub-imperialists themselves) could be appointed only after Crown approval, and binding orders could go directly to the GG (empire-builders were, in effect, favourites of the State).
- f) The EIC as a foreign-policy tool: Britain dominated world trade through the EIC, as large MNCs today serve a State's foreign policy (the handout's examples: Google or private banks for sanctions on Russia, Airtel in Africa).
- The 1st Afghan War (1838-42) fought by the EIC was part of the Great Game between Britain and Russia.

P foreign-Policy tool: the 1st Afghan War 1838-42, the Great Game

10 · The Governor General across the Acts (Prelims 1996) and the Sepoy Mutiny question

STORY LINK

Because the GG's title changed with each Act, the teacher drills it by matches. Ask: which famous holder goes with each Act, and where does 1857 fall?

Office (Act)	Match	Who held it (era)
A. GG of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal (RA 1773)	3 = Cornwallis 86-93	The era's holder (first held by Warren Hastings 73-85)
B. GG of India (Charter Act 1833)	2 = Dalhousie 48-56	First was Bentinck 28-35; UPSC takes the era's famous GG
C. GG and Viceroy of India (GOI Act 1858)	4 = Minto 05-10 (1905-10)	First was Canning 56-62; UPSC takes a later Viceroy
D. GG and Crown Representative (GOI Act 1935)	1 = Wavell 43-47 (1943-47)	Holder in the 1940s

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1996: handout and slide agree, (a) A-3, B-2, C-4, D-1.
- The key uses the famous holders of each office, not the first holders: Cornwallis 86-93 (GG, 1773 framework), Dalhousie 48-56 (GG of India, 1833 framework), Minto 05-10 (Viceroy, post-1858 framework), Wavell 43-47 (GG and Crown Representative, 1935 framework).
- The handout writes "Indian Councils Act 1858" in List I
- The slide and the Act are GOI Act 1858.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Decide by dates. 1857 against each option's years:
  - Canning 56-62 covers 1857
  - Bentinck 28-35 earlier
  - Hardinge 10-16 in the 1900s
  - Lytton 76-80 later
- Answer: Canning 56-62 (first Viceroy in 1858).

Chapter 10: Battle of Plassey 1757 & Battle of Buxar 1764

The Company State begins with ToA 1765 and the Great Bengal Famine 1770 and the 1772 bankruptcy; the Dual Government (Diwani to the EIC, Nizamat to the Nawab) is the look-alike of Double Government.

Chapter 11: Subsidiary Alliance of Wellesley 98-05

The Subsidiary Alliance is the third "two-boss" split in the teacher's board (external with the EIC, domestic with the Indian king).

Chapter 12: Anglo-Mysore Wars (1766-99) + Travancore + Carnatic

The 2nd Anglo-Mysore War 1780-84 (the teacher's "Tie") is a reason for the 1784 ban on conquest.

Chapter 13: Anglo-Maratha Wars (1775-1819) till 1848

The Treaty of Surat 1775 and the 1st Anglo-Maratha War (the teacher's "Ma" with a smiley) show the failure of the 1773 "emergency circumstances" clause.

Chapter 14: Dalhousie 48-56: Peak of Expansion

Dalhousie 48-56 appoints the first LG of Bengal (1854); the Doctrine of Lapse and Awadh 1856 are disclaimed by the 1858 Proclamation.

Chapter 15: British Imperial Ideology

The White Man's Burden, Liberals, Utilitarians and Evangelists, orientalism versus westernisation behind the Charter Act 1813.

Chapter 16: Land Revenue Systems (1765-1885)

PIA 1784 puts revenue under the GG, which lets the Permanent Settlement 1793 reach the Northern Sarkars; the Cornwallis 86-93 Code carries the Permanent Settlement Act.

Chapter 18: EIC Administration: Judiciary, Civil Services, Police

Supreme Court 1773, Cornwallis 86-93 Code 1793, Macaulay's codes, the 1853 exam and the police (Hastings 73-85 versus Cornwallis 86-93).

Chapter 19: Social Reforms, Education Reforms & Print Culture

Missionaries and Rs 1 lakh (1813), the 1835 English-medium decision, the social reform laws the teacher lists beside the civil law board.

Chapter 21: The Revolt of 1857

The revolt is the "final nail"; Royal Military in October 1857; the Charter Act 1813's cultural colonialism as a cause.

Chapter 25: Indian Councils Act, 1861

Restores legislative powers to Bombay and Madras after the 1833 peak of centralisation.

Chapter 27: Moderates: Positives & Drain Theory

BoC members' salary paid by the EIC (1793) becomes the Home Charges in the Drain of Wealth theory.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 2010: why the DC lost his judicial powers by the 1793 regulation: (c) absolute power in one person was undesirable (separation of powers after PS1793); (a) and (d) are partial truths, (b) is wrong because Cornwallis 86-93 removed Indians from all senior posts
- Prelims 2010: who created the Covenanted Civil Service: (c) Cornwallis 86-93, not Hastings 73-85, Wellesley 98-05 (Fort William College 1800) or Bentinck 28-35 (opened the UCS to Indians); CCS became ICS in 1892 by executive order under Lansdowne 88-94, NOT by the Indian Councils Act 1892
- Judiciary hooks: 1772 (DC as civil judge, Kazi and Mufti supervised), 1773 (18 Mofussil courts), 1774 Supreme Court (Madras 1800, Bombay 1823), Gentoo 1776, Hedaya 1791, Code of 1781, the 1793 Code (four divisions, Circuit, Anglo-Muhammadan law), Madras 1814, Bombay 1819, CPC 1859, IPC 1860, CrPC 1861, High Courts 1862, Federal Court 1937
- Civil services hooks: CCS and UCS; what Cornwallis 86-93 did and did NOT introduce; Charter Act 1853, first exam 1855, Satyendranath Tagore 1864; Aitchison 1887 and 1892; Islington 25%; GOI Act 1919 (exam in India 1922, PSC 1926, 33%); Lee 20-40-40; Article 378

MAINS HOOKS

- The teacher writes 'No Qs in MAINS'; the five Mains PYQs mapped here are cross-chapter economic questions answered in Chapters 10, 15, 16, 21 and 27
- Trace how the EIC moved from patronage to an exam-based civil service (practice skeleton: Cornwallis 86-93, training, 1853, Indianisation demands, 1919, Lee, 1935 and the PSC)
- The three pillars changed only when a crisis (the 1770 famine, the 1857 revolt) or Indian pressure forced it; the British Indianised only as far as cost or politics demanded
- Closing idea: codified law, an organised civil service and a hierarchical police are the institutions independent India inherited
- Lecture 21 hooks: the Islington 'CONTRADICTION' (25% reservation recommended, yet simultaneous exam in India rejected) and the police as a 'political control mechanism' built to 'ensure no repeat of 1857' is the Permanent Settlement); the 2010 pair now confirmed on class slides

- Lecture 21 civil services hooks: Aitchison three tiers (ICS, PCS, Subordinate) with 'Imperial' proposed but 'Indian' kept in 1892; Islington 25% (first reservation recommended) versus GOI Act 1919 33% (first implemented); PSC October 1926, Ross Barker first Chairman; GOI Act 1935 'last COI by Bn (P)'
- Police hooks: Daroga system 1793 (thana of 30 square miles), Police Act 1861 (IG, SP, SI), the Sindh, Punjab, Bombay, Madras road-test, Napier did NOT head the 1860 commission, Fraser 1902-03, IPS 1948 and the AIS Act 1951; from Lecture 21: Naib Nazim = Md Reza Khan, DC (Diwani) and DM (Nizamat) are one person, Police Act 1861 made by the GG's Council, SI reports to SP not DC, IP opened to Indians 1920 (exams from 1921) but the ICS exam in India was 1922, 20% of SPs Indian by 1931

Each pillar of the Company State was built in the same way: keep the Mughal frame at first, tighten control after a crisis, and open the doors to Indians only as far as cost or politics forced.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The EIC kept the Mughal frame for courts, services and police until a crisis (the 1770 famine) forced it to take control; Cornwallis 86-93 then built the structure, and Indians were let in only as far as cost or pressure from the Indian movement forced, leaving independent India with codified law, an organised civil service and a hierarchical police.

1 A trading company must run a state. Administration is the machinery by which a State carries out its policies, laws and schemes on the ground. When the EIC turned from a trading company into a Company State (1765-1858; the Charter Act 1833 ended its commercial function) it had to decide how much Indian machinery to keep and how much to replace. Three pillars carry the story: judiciary, civil services and police. The teacher calls the whole chapter the history of Public Administration in British India.

→ First, what court system did the EIC inherit?

2 The Mughal ladders of Bengal. Before 1772 Bengal had two separate hierarchies. In civil matters (Diwani) courts ran up to the Sadar Diwani Adalat, with Pandits and Maulvis judging personal law and the Zamindar's Kachari handling land revenue disputes. In criminal matters (Nizamat) Islamic law applied to everyone:

the Kazi judged, the Mufti interpreted and the Faujdar, like today's SP, caught the accused and carried out the sentence.

→ Then the EIC took over the revenue, but not the rest.

3 One man, two hats. After the Treaty of Allahabad 1765 the EIC held the Diwani and the Nawab kept the Nizamat: a Dual Government. Guided by Orientalism, the EIC let Muhammad Reza Khan head both and cared mainly about revenue. Revenue fell, law and order broke down, and the Great Bengal Famine of 1770 killed about one-third of Bengal.

→ So the EIC decided to rule directly.

4 Hastings 73-85 steps in. In 1772 Hastings 73-85 ended the Dual Government. The British DC sat as judge in the civil courts, while in criminal courts the Kazi and Mufti stayed as judges under the DC's watch, because law and order was too sensitive to replace. The Regulating Act 1773 led to the Supreme Court at Calcutta in 1774 for British subjects under British law, with Madras (1800) and Bombay (1823) to follow. Laws were written down too: the Gentoo Code (1776), the Hedaya (1791) and the Code of 1781.

→ But the DC was still both collector and judge.

5 Cornwallis 86-93's Code of 1793. With the Permanent Settlement of 1793, zamindars became property owners and needed courts they could trust: if the DC auctioned an estate and then judged the owner's appeal, there was a conflict of interest. Cornwallis 86-93 stripped the DC of all judicial power (the Prelims 2010 answer), divided Bengal into four divisions with Provincial Courts of Appeal and Courts of Circuit, created Anglo-Muhammadan law, removed Indians from all senior posts and permitted lawyers.

→ Yet the new system clogged, and the model did not fit everywhere.

6 Ryotwari, Bentinck 28-35 and the codes. Courts clogged after 1793: the DC could no longer settle disputes on the spot, court fees were abolished (back in 1795), and lawyers prolonged cases. In Ryotwari areas, with many small landowners, Madras (1814, on Munro's advice) and Bombay (1819, Elphinstone) merged the DC's roles again. Bentinck 28-35 abolished the divisional courts, replaced Persian in 1835, and the Charter Act 1833's Law Commission under Macaulay led to the CPC 1859, IPC 1860 and CrPC 1861. High Courts came in 1862 and the Federal Court in 1937.

→ Now the people who staffed the courts.

7 From patronage to a service. A service means a career ladder with rules, not total discretion. Early EIC officials came by nomination and patronage, and Directors lobbied Parliamentarians with jobs for their sons. Cornwallis 86-93 organised them into the Covenanted Civil Service (senior, signed a covenant in London, Europeans only, like Group A) and the Uncovenanted (junior, hired locally, where Indians served, like Group B), with higher pay, curbed private trade and strict seniority; but entry stayed by nomination until the Charter Act 1853.

→ Then came the exam, with three locks on the door.

8 The exam and its three locks. The Charter Act 1853 mandated an exam for the CCS and the first exam was held in London in 1855. Indians were eligible on paper, but the age limit was kept low, the syllabus was dominated by English Literature (to produce Macaulay's Brown Sahibs) and the venue was London. Satyendranath Tagore became the first Indian to clear it in 1864 and four more followed in 1867.

→ The western-educated Indians began to push back.

9 The long fight for Indianisation. From 1860 the WEMC demanded a simultaneous exam in India and a higher age limit. The British answered with Lytton 76-80's lateral entry for loyal elite Indians (a Statutory Civil Services Act the teacher calls unimportant). Aitchison 1887 led to the three tiers ICS, PCS and Subordinate in 1892 by executive order under Lansdowne 88-94; Islington (1912, report 1917) offered 25% yet refused a simultaneous exam, which the teacher marks as a CONTRADICTION; the GOI Act 1919 brought the exam to India in 1922, the PSC in 1926 and a 33% target; Lee (1923-24) set 20-40-40 and the PSC came in October 1926 with Ross Barker as first Chairman; the GOI Act 1935 gave the Federal PSC (1937), over 50% were Indianised by 1947, and Article 378 made it the UPSC in 1950.

→ The third pillar, the police, followed its own path.

10 From Faujdar to Daroga. Under the Mughals the chain ran Naib Nazim, Faujdar, Kotwal, Zamindar. After the 1770 famine raised crime, Hastings 73-85 put English Magistrates in place of the Faujdars in 1781. Cornwallis 86-93 ended the zamindars' police powers in 1793: thanas of 30 square miles under an Indian Daroga, the DM supreme in his district. But a Daroga-Zamindar nexus of bribes and lathiyals oppressed the rural poor; Wellesley 98-05 restored the zamindars' powers in 1799, and the Madras trial of 1802 ended in the Torture Commission report of 1855.

→ The British then went looking for a proven model.

11 The Police Act 1861. The British turned to the Irish Constabulary model, a centralised, quasi-military force built as much for political control as for crime. It was road-tested in Sindh (1843, Charles Napier), Punjab (1849), Bombay (1853) and Madras (1859); M.H. Court's 1st Police Commission (1860), set up by Canning 56-62, borrowed from Sindh, and Napier did not head it. The Police Act (March 1861), passed by the GG's Council, set up the IG, SP and SI hierarchy (the SI reports to the SP, not the DC) but only posts, not a service. Fraser's commission (1902-03) created the Imperial Police cadre, closed to Indians; direct entry opened to Indians in 1920, yet only 20% of SPs were Indians by 1931; the IPS came in 1948 and the AIS Act in 1951.

→ What did all three pillars leave behind?

12 Crisis or pressure. Each major reform followed a crisis (the 1770 famine, the 1857 revolt) or a concession won by the Indian National Movement. The British Indianised only as far as cost or politics demanded. What they left behind, however inadvertently, was codified law, an organised civil service and a hierarchical police, which independent India inherited and adapted.

- Later judiciary: Madras 1814 and Bombay 1819 merged the DC's roles in Ryotwari areas
- Bentinck 28-35 binned the divisional courts and replaced Persian (1835)
- CPC 1859, IPC 1860, CrPC 1861

- Police: the Mughal chain (Naib Nazim, Faujdar, Kotwal, Zamindar) gave way to the Daroga (thana of 30 square miles, 1793), which failed in the Daroga-Zamindar nexus
- The Irish Constabulary model, road-tested from Sindh 1843, became the Police Act 1861 (IG, SP, SI)
- Fraser 1902-03 built the cadre

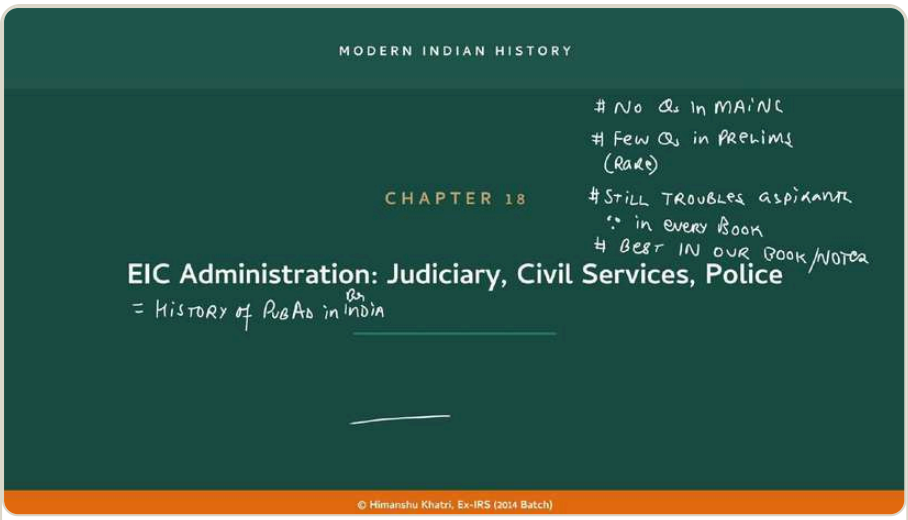
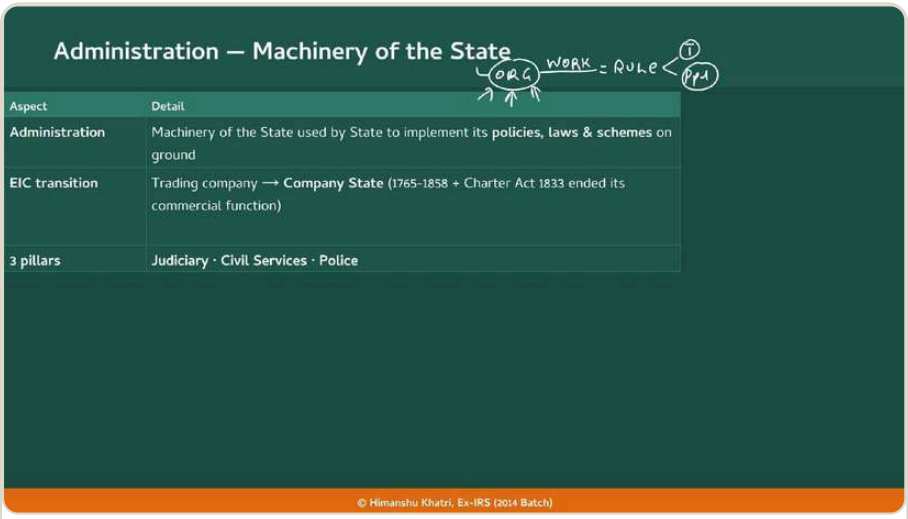
Story so far: the EIC holds the territory; now it must run it. The teacher's four verdicts set the weight of this chapter. Ask: why does he call the whole thing PubAd in British India?



Chapter 18 title slide: EIC administration Lecture 20 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Four verdicts: no Qs in Mains, few rare Qs in Prelims, troubles aspirants in every book, best version in this handout.
- Subject = history of Public Administration (PubAd) in British India: how a Company State built its working machinery, not a list of Acts.



Administration: machinery of the State, three pillars Lecture 20 slide 3

1 · Administration as the machinery of the State

STORY LINK

Because the State needs machinery to work, the EIC had to build or borrow it. Ask: which three pillars carry the chapter, and what are 'T' and 'Ppl'?

- Administration is the machinery of the State: how the State implements its policies, laws and schemes on the ground.
- When the EIC changed from a trading company into a Company State (the Charter Act 1833 ended its commercial function; the slide dates the Company State 1765-1858), it had to build this machinery from scratch.
- More accurately, it had to decide how much of the existing Indian machinery to keep and how much to replace.
- The chapter covers three pillars: Judiciary, Civil Services and Police.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- ORG (the State) = its three machines.
- "WORK = RULE": rule over T (territory) and Ppl (people).
- Administration is the daily work of ruling them.
- Links to the L, E, J shorthand (Chapter 8, Chapter 10):
  - The Company State had taken the territory
  - This chapter is how it handled the people

HANDOUT ALERT

- Mains warning (handout). UPSC Mains PYQs mapped to administration mostly ask about the economic impact of British rule: Drain of Wealth, de-industrialisation, the Sepoy Army as an imperial tool.
- They need other chapters:
  - Drain of Wealth in Moderates / Drain Theory
  - De-industrialisation in British Imperial Ideology and Land Revenue Systems
  - Sepoy Army in the 1857 Revolt
- This chapter is the administrative skeleton
- Those supply the economic and military flesh.

2 · Judiciary

STORY LINK

Because law was sensitive, the EIC began with Mughal courts and changed them only step by step. Ask: which six questions did every reform have to answer?

2.1 Why judicial reform was so complicated

- The EIC was not walking into a blank slate.
- It entered a society with established legal traditions, different religious communities and a functioning (though imperfect) court system.
- It had to answer six questions:

No.	Question	Where the chapter answers it
1	Which law should apply: Hindu, Islamic or British?	Personal laws kept; Anglo-Muhammadan law; Supreme Court on British law
2	Should laws be written down or left to the judges' discretion?	Codification: Gentoo Code, Hedaya, Code of 1781, Cornwallis 86-93 Code
3	What hierarchy of courts?	1772, 1773, 1793, Bentinck 28-35
4	Should lawyers be allowed to represent parties?	Yes, from 1793
5	Should judges be Indians or British?	All senior posts European under Cornwallis 86-93; lower posts opened from 1833
6	In which language should courts function?	Persian replaced in 1835

- Each question carried political, social and financial implications, and the answers changed as British confidence, ambition and administrative needs evolved.

MNEMONIC · SIX QUESTIONS FOR JUDICIAL REFORM

R I G H T S

All six questions decide the people's RIGHTS.

R Hierarchy: what hierarchy of courts?
I Indians or British judges?
G Language: in which language should courts function?
H Which law: Hindu, Islamic or British?
T Written down or left to the judges' discretion?
S Lawyers: should they represent parties?

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

2.2 The Mughal judicial system in Bengal (before 1772)

- The Mughal system in Bengal had two separate hierarchies, one for civil and one for criminal matters.
- Civil matters (Diwani = finance, land revenue and civil justice):
- Courts ran from the local level up to the Sadar Diwani Adalat (SDA) at the suba (provincial) level.
- In inter-personal matters (marriage, inheritance) the personal laws of Hindus and Muslims applied.

Mughal judicial system in the provinces: civil and criminal Lecture 20 slide 5

- Pandits judged Hindu cases and Maulvis judged Muslim cases.
- At the top the Diwan served as Chief Justice of the SDA.
- For land revenue and non-personal civil disputes, the original jurisdiction lay with the Zamindar at the local level, in his revenue court, the Kachari.
- Appeals went up: Zamindar, then Amil (the provincial revenue officer at district level), then the SDA at the provincial capital (Murshidabad), presided over by the Diwan or Naib Diwan.
- Around this time Muhammad Reza Khan, the Naib Nazim, held the posts of Chief Justice of both the SDA and the Sadar Nizamat Adalat.

HANDOUT NOTE

Amil versus Amalguzar. The handout uses Amil for the mutated 18th-century Bengal system; the canonical Mughal term is Amalguzar (revenue officer at district level). Same post.

Criminal matters:

- Nizamat Adalats (commonly called Faujdari Adalats) sat at the district level, with the Sadar Nizamat Adalat (SNA) at the top.
- The Mughal State was an Islamic state, so Islamic law governed criminal proceedings, applied uniformly regardless of religion.
- At the village level the Zamindar held petty criminal jurisdiction alongside his police duties.
- Major crimes bypassed the Zamindar and went straight to the district Faujdari Adalat.
- Strict division of labour: the Kazis were the actual judges who pronounced verdicts (the board calls it a "2 People Bench," Kazi with Mufti), the Muftis gave expert interpretation of Islamic law, and the district Faujdar (executive police chief) secured the accused and physically executed the sentence.
- The Naib Nazim headed the SNA.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Civil courts were religion-specific (judge depended on faith)
- Criminal courts were State-uniform (ruling State's law for everyone).
- Civil has two tracks under the SDA: personal law (Diwani Adalat, Pandits and Maulvis) and LR / non-personal (Amalguzar, then Zamindar's Kachari).
- Criminal has one track: "Law = Islamic Law."

18th-century Bengal courts at suba level Lecture 20 slide 6

HANDOUT ALERT

- Who is Chief Justice of the SNA?
- General Mughal board: SNA [CJ = Nazim / Subadar]. 18th-century Bengal boards and the handout: CJ = Naib Nazim.
- By the 18th century the Subadar was distant and Naib Nazim Muhammad Reza Khan ran the courts.
- For Bengal before 1772 use Naib Nazim for the SNA and Diwan for the SDA
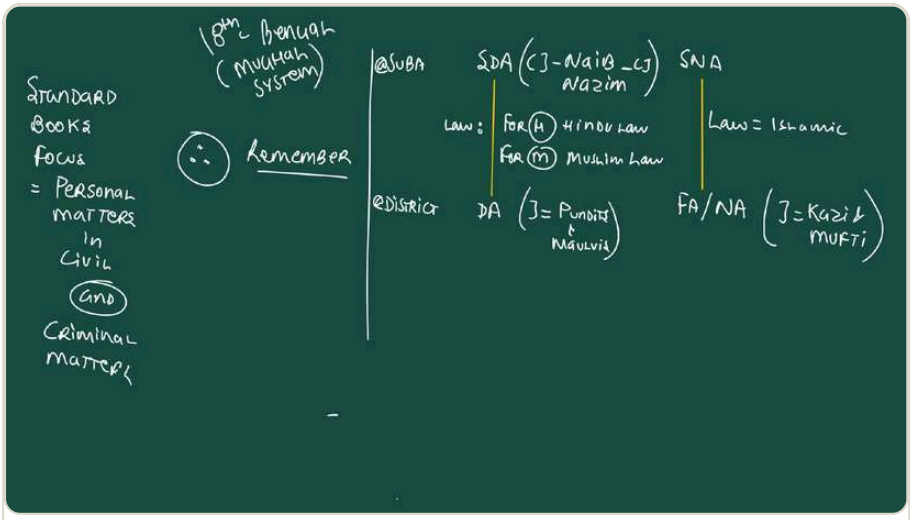
- Reza Khan held both chief justiceships, having been made the EIC's Diwan in 1765



Personal matters in civil and criminal law, 18th-century Bengal Lecture 20 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Remember this pair: standard books stop at personal law in civil matters and criminal law in criminal matters.
- Civil = Hindu law for Hindus, Muslim law for Muslims.
- Criminal = Islamic law for everyone.

Faujdar: like the SP at district Lecture 20 slide 8

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Faujdar = like today's SP (Superintendent of Police) at the district.
- Two jobs: LEO (as the board writes it; the handout calls him the executive police chief who secured the accused) and executing the judgement of the Nizamat or Faujdari Adalat.
- He does not judge
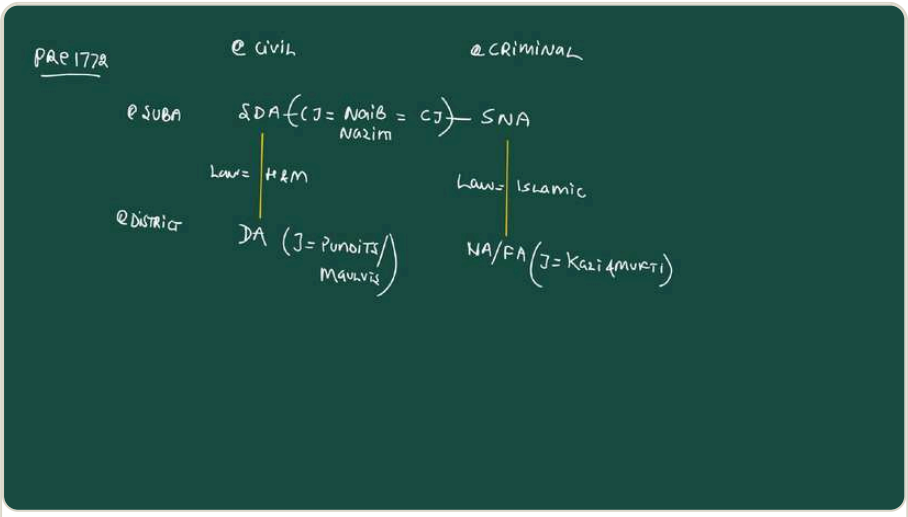
- The Kazi does



Judicial structure before 1772 Lecture 20 slide 12

Level	Civil (Diwani)	Criminal (Nizamat)
Suba (province)	Sadar Diwani Adalat (SDA), CJ the Diwan (Reza Khan held both chief justiceships)	Sadar Nizamat Adalat (SNA), headed by the Naib Nazim
District	Diwani Adalat: Pandits (Hindu cases) and Maulvis (Muslim cases); revenue side: Amil (Amalguzar)	Nizamat or Faujdari Adalat: Kazi judges, Mufti interprets, Faujdar executes
Local	Zamindar's Kachari: land revenue and non-personal disputes	Zamindar: petty crimes only; major crimes go straight to the district court
Law applied	Personal law (Hindu law, Muslim law)	Islamic law for all

2.3 The Dual Government period (1765-1772)

- After the Treaty of Allahabad 1765 the EIC gained the Diwani rights over Bengal: revenue administration, Treasury and control of property / civil courts.
- (Modern welfare duties such as health and education were not included: they were traditionally handled by private or religious patronage, not by the Mughal government.)
- The Nawab retained the Nizamat (law and order). This created the Dual Government.
- Guided by Orientalism ("rule India the Indian way"), the EIC did not rush to impose its own system.
- Muhammad Reza Khan continued to head both the Diwani (on the EIC's behalf) and the Nizamat (on the Nawab's behalf).
- Indian officials remained the effective decision-makers on the ground.
- The EIC was mainly concerned with collecting land revenue.
- Outcome:
    - Revenue collection was poor
    - Law and order deteriorated, made catastrophic by the Great Bengal Famine of 1770, which killed roughly one-third of Bengal's population.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Board outcome row: "Poverty leads to Crimes".
- Hunger pushed people into crime, so law and order failed because of the famine, which a hands-off administration worsened.
- (Dual Government, Diwani versus Nizamat and Reza Khan as the EIC's Diwan: Chapter 10.)

2.4 Direct Government (1772) and the judicial plan of Hastings 73-85

- In 1772 Hastings 73-85 (Governor from 1772, GG of Bengal 1773-1785) ended the Dual Government and took direct administration of both the Diwani and the Nizamat.

- Rationale: EIC administration, based on rule of law and equality before law, would be fairer and more efficient and would firmly establish British authority.
- (The ideology shifts slightly from pure Orientalism to a hybrid: rule more directly, but still use Indian legal frameworks.)

Court	Judge	Law and detail
Diwani (civil) courts at the district	The British DC is the judge, assisted by Pandits and Maulvis	Personal laws continued in marriage and inheritance
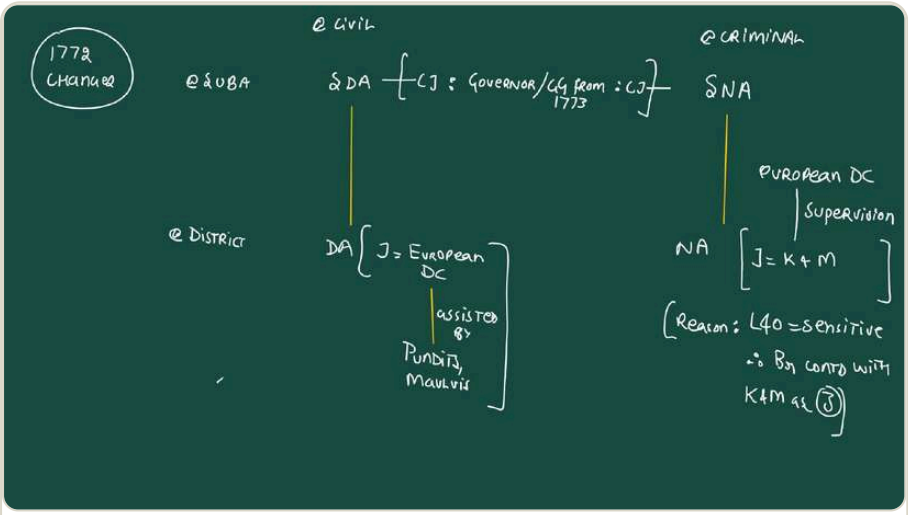
Nizamat (criminal) courts at the district	Kazis and Muftis continue as judges, now supervised by the European DC	The British thought law and order too sensitive to replace fully
Sadar Diwani Adalat and Sadar Nizamat Adalat	Headed by the Governor (from 1773, the GG of Bengal) and his Council members	The top of both ladders passes to the Company



1772 changes: courts under Hastings Lecture 20 slide 13

- Muhammad Reza Khan (Naib Nazim) was imprisoned without trial from 1772 to 1774, accused of corruption and poor law-and-order maintenance.
- Conditions did not improve, so he was released in 1774 and reinstated as head of the Sadar Nizamat Adalat.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why Kazis and Muftis stayed in criminal courts: "Law and order (L and O) = sensitive, therefore the British continue with K and M as J." Civil: the DC sits as judge.
- Criminal: the DC only supervises (taking over was too risky).

2.4.1 The changes of 1773

- Two further adjustments:
- 1. A proper attempt at separation of revenue and judicial powers: an officer serving as DC was not to serve as judge too.
- In practice the overlap remained, but the principle was established.

- 2. To bring justice physically closer to the people, the district-level Diwani Adalats were replaced by 18 Mofussil courts, each headed by a European judge.

1773 Act: Mofussil courts and Supreme Court Lecture 20 slide 15

- (Mofussil = rural areas and countryside districts below the district headquarters.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "PROPER SoP @ DC by CW 86-93." The handout calls 1773 a "proper attempt" at separation
- The real Separation of Powers at the DC level was done by Cornwallis 86-93 in 1793. 1773 only set the principle
- Exam links the DC's loss of judicial power to 1793 and Cornwallis 86-93 (Prelims 2010).

HANDOUT ALERT

1773 versus 1793. 1773 (Hastings 73-85): separation attempted, overlap remained, 18 Mofussil courts. 1793 (Cornwallis 86-93): DC stripped of all judicial powers, the 18 Mofussil courts abolished, district Diwani Adalats back ("Mofussil courts ended, DA back").

2.4.2 The Supreme Court (1774)

- The Regulating Act 1773 led to a Supreme Court in Calcutta in 1774, specifically to hear cases involving British subjects in Bengal, under British law.
- (British people, British judges, British law: a completely separate judicial track.)
- Supreme Courts followed in Madras (1800) and Bombay (1823).
- The Supreme Court was entirely separate from the Indian court hierarchy.

1774: Indian court ladder and the Supreme Court Lecture 20 slide 17

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1774 on one board:
  - SDA headed by the GG
  - SNA headed by Naib Nazim Md Reza Khan (reinstated 1774)
  - Mofussil courts with a European judge assisted by Pandits and Maulvis
  - Nizamat courts with Kazi and Mufti under the European DC's supervision
- The Supreme Court sits outside this ladder, only for Britishers.

2.4.3 Codification of laws

- 1775: a committee of 11 Pandits compiled Hindu law into a single coherent code so courts could interpret it uniformly.
- The English translation was published as the Gentoo Code (1776).
- ("Gentoo" comes from the Portuguese "Gentios," a derogatory term for Hindus, used because Hindus worshipped multiple Gods unlike monotheistic Christians.)
- 1778: a similar effort for Islamic law.
- Because of Mughal rule, Islamic law was already well organised, so the EIC simply translated the most authoritative existing Arabic legal manual, the Al-Hidayah, first into Persian by Indian scholars and then into English as The Hedaya (1791).
- The Code of 1781 made written orders compulsory and prescribed rules for court functioning.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "WRITTEN LAW" answers question 2 (written or discretion?).
- "ENGLISH WRITTEN": the Gentoo Code and the Hedaya are the English written versions of Indian law, usable by British judges.
- Code of 1781 = "in Bengal" only (see Section 2.5.2).

2.5 The Cornwallis 86-93 Code of 1793 (judiciary)

- Cornwallis 86-93 (GG 1786-1793) introduced the most systematic judicial reform of the early period.
- He is rightly called the father of civil services, but his influence on the judiciary was equally significant.

2.5.1 Why did Cornwallis 86-93 reform the judiciary?

- He had just introduced the Permanent Settlement of 1793 (PS1793), creating a new class of large zamindars as private property owners.
- For this to work, zamindars needed secure property rights: courts they could trust, and revenue officials who could not harass them.
- An officer who collected your tax should not also be the judge hearing your appeal against his own actions.
- So Cornwallis 86-93 properly implemented Separation of Powers at the level of the DC: the District Collector was stripped of all judicial powers and confined to revenue collection and administration.

Why Cornwallis separated powers Lecture 20 slide 19

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Imagine": PS1793 has a sunset clause (applied, the zamindar's estate goes up for auction).
- If the DC applies it on a zamindar (Z) and the zamindar files a case in the Diwani Adalat, what if the judge is the same DC?
- Conflict of interest, so security of property falls for the zamindar.
- Hence the DC could no longer be a judge.
- Also: Cornwallis 86-93 = AUTHORITARIAN, therefore he removed Indians from all senior positions (other side of the same reform).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2010 trap (handout, Section 2.5). "By a regulation in 1793, the DC was deprived of his judicial powers and made the collecting agent only. Why?" Correct: (c) absolute power in one person was undesirable (separation of powers; the post-PS1793 zamindar class needed independent courts).
- (a) efficiency of revenue collection is a partial truth, not the principal motivation.
- (b) "judicial power must be European-only, revenue can be Indian" is wrong: Cornwallis 86-93 in fact removed Indians from all senior positions, including revenue.
- (d) "judicial work demanded deep India knowledge" is a partial truth, not the principal motivation.

Cornwallis Code 1793: courts of appeal and circuit Lecture 20 slide 21

2.5.2 In civil matters

- The 18 Mofussil courts were replaced by Diwani Adalats at the district level and City Courts for urban areas.
- Bengal was divided into four divisions: Patna, Murshidabad, Calcutta and Dacca, and a Provincial Court of Appeal was set up in each.

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR DIVISIONS OF THE CODE OF 1793, IN ORDER

Provincial Magistrates Circle Districts

P	Patna	M	Murshidabad	C	Calcutta	D	Dacca

Order kept: the board's order. Each division had one Provincial Court of Appeal and one Court of Circuit, which circles through its districts.

- Appeals: district Diwani Adalats and City Courts, then the Provincial Court of Appeal, then the Sadar Diwani Adalat, shifted from Murshidabad to Calcutta.
- Personal laws of Hindus and Muslims continued in civil matters. PS1793 governed land revenue disputes.
- Per Charter Act 1793, all regulations for governing Bengal were codified, written orders made compulsory and laws printed in the vernaculars so people could know their rights.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Code of 1781 versus Code of 1793: the difference is the ISSUING AUTHORITY.
- The 1781 code (Hastings, Bengal only) was issued by the GG (in Bengal), so a future GG could change it.
- The 1793 Code came through the Charter Act 1793, "By Br (P)": the British Parliament, so it carries more weight.

HANDOUT NOTE

The board writes "HASTINGS 78-85" (last digits, look like 78); typed slides and handout write Hastings 73-85. This notebook keeps 73-85. Check your own notes.

2.5.3 In criminal matters

- Faujdari / Nizamat Adalats at the district level were abolished.
- Four Provincial Courts of Circuit were set up in the four divisions.
- A Court of Circuit is a court that physically moves around its division, hearing cases in different areas in rotation.
- This eliminated the need for a district-level criminal court.
- Appeals from the Courts of Circuit went to the Sadar Nizamat Adalat.
- Islamic law continued in criminal matters, but with British legal modifications. This hybrid was Anglo-Muhammadan law.
- For about 70 years, until the Indian Penal Code 1860, courts applied it.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Court of Circuit = travelling bench:
  - Week 1 in district 1, week 2 in district 2, week 3 in district 3, week 4 in district 4, then back to week 1
  - No district needs its own criminal court
- Stressed: Anglo-Muhammadan law and IPC 1860, with the three codes CPC 1859, IPC 1860, CrPC 1861 (Section 2.7).

2.5.4 Anglo-Muhammadan law in practice: three examples (handout only, no class notes)

HANDOUT NOTE

Handout only. Class notes stop at the name "Anglo-Muhammadan law"; the three examples below come from the handout alone.

Example	Islamic law (strict Hanafi)	British modification by Cornwallis 86-93
A: weapon rule replaced by intent rule	Whether a killing was capital murder depended on the weapon used: a sharp iron instrument (sword) meant murder; strangling, drowning or a heavy stone was often a lesser crime (the instrument was not "designed" to draw blood)	He abolished this loophole: the intent of the accused decides, not the instrument. This matches the modern principle of mens rea
B: the end of "blood money" (Diyat)	Murder was largely a private dispute between families: the victim's heirs could pardon the killer for financial compensation (blood money, Diyat)	Relatives could no longer pardon a murderer. This set the principle that a major crime is an offence against the State, not just a private injury
C: abolition of mutilation	The standard punishment for serious theft or dacoity was amputation of a hand or foot	The EIC completely outlawed mutilation and replaced it with hard labour and rigorous imprisonment, typically 7 to 14 years

MNEMONIC · THREE LOOPHOLES CORNWALLIS 86-93 SHUT IN ISLAMIC CRIMINAL LAW

Cornwallis took the MIDdle path: Islamic law kept, but with British modifications.

M Mutilation outlawed: hard labour of 7 to 14 years instead

I Intent of the accused decides murder, not the weapon

D Diyat (blood money) ended: relatives cannot pardon a murderer

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

2.5.5 Personnel and a new profession: lawyers

- Cornwallis 86-93 was authoritarian. He removed Indians from all senior positions.
- All courts were headed by European officials.
- Kazis and Muftis were retained only as assistants, not judges.

- The office of Naib Nazim was abolished.

Cornwallis 1793: personnel and a new profession Lecture 20 slide 24

- One progressive change: lawyers were now permitted to appear in courts.
- This created a new professional class, the Indian lawyer, and, along with PS1793 (which made land a tradeable commodity), also a class of property dealers.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "[NA ABOLISHED]": the district Nizamat Adalat is gone.
- "Cornwallis 86-93, father of: CS (civil services), property dealers, lawyer." A short word under the fork reads like "SHO" (station house officer, the police Daroga of Section 4.3):.

2.5.6 Why the new system increased litigation (class slide only, not in the handout)

HANDOUT NOTE

- Class slide only
- The handout does not carry this table
- It gives three reasons litigation rose after PS1793.

Reason	What happened
1. Separation of Powers (key reason)	The DC lost all judicial and magisterial powers. Earlier the Collector could resolve revenue disputes swiftly and informally on the spot; after 1793 every such dispute had to be formally filed in the Diwani Adalats
2. Abolition of court fees	Cornwallis 86-93 initially abolished court fees to make justice "accessible," which instantly flooded the courts with genuine and frivolous suits. Fees were reimposed just 2 years later, in 1795
3. A legal profession	Formal recognition of lawyers (Vakils) and a rigid hierarchy of appeals: cases were deliberately prolonged and appealed

2.6 Judicial system in Ryotwari areas

- The Bengal model of separated judicial and revenue functions worked in a zamindari system.
- In Ryotwari areas, where the ryot is recognised as the direct landowner, conditions were very different:
- A very large number of small landowners meant a very large number of land-related disputes.
- District courts were physically distant for poor ryots in villages.

Judicial system in Ryotwari areas Lecture 20 slide 26

- Madras, 1814: the Bengal system was replaced on Munro's advice.
- Separation of judicial and revenue powers was ended.
- The European DC and his subordinates were given judicial powers so disputes could be resolved at the ground level.
- (Less paperwork, less travel, faster justice, at least in theory.)
- This led to greater Indianisation at the lower judiciary, because the DC's subordinates included Indian officials.
- The downside: enormous concentration of power in one official.
- The DC now collected taxes, maintained order and judged disputes, including disputes arising from his own tax collection decisions.
- Bombay, 1819: the same Ryotwari system was applied by Elphinstone, a follower of Munro's philosophy.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why Bengal separated and Madras merged: "WHR (where) the number of landowners is LESS" = zamindari: few big landowners, few disputes, a distant court is workable.
- Ryotwari: many landowners, so courts must come to the village.
- Downside row: "+ his juniors" (the DC's subordinates, including Indians, also gain judicial powers).
- Result of concentrated power: Madras Torture Commission Report 1855, "oppression by Mirasidars revealed." Beside INDIANS: a scale of 300, 200, 100, seemingly pay or rank scales for Indians below a DC above 300.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Madras Torture Commission 1855, two homes. Handout: police section (4.3.2), exposing atrocities of revenue officials after the Daroga system failed in Madras.
- Class: Ryotwari judicial system (a DC with all powers, plus juniors), with Mirasidars (Madras village landholders).
- Learn the fact once, 1855, Madras Torture Commission, oppression exposed, and use it in either answer.

2.7 Charter Act 1833 (judicial impact)

- The Charter Act of 1833 made the GG of India the single central legislative authority for all of British India, and the laws passed were to apply equally to Indians and Britishers alike.
- (A major shift: one law for everyone, regardless of race.)
- One Law Member was added to the GG's Council: Thomas Macaulay was appointed, and a Law Commission (1834) was set up under him to codify all laws systematically.
- Codification was substantially complete by 1837, but full implementation came after 1857:

Code	Year
Civil Procedure Code (CPC)	1859
Indian Penal Code (IPC)	1860
Criminal Procedure Code (CrPC)	1861

- Subordinate judicial positions below the rank of District Judge were opened to Indians.

NUMBER CARD · THE THREE CODES

Three codes, three years in a row.

1859 Civil Procedure Code (CPC)

1860 Indian Penal Code (IPC)
1861 Criminal Procedure Code (CrPC)

- Impact on the common Indian: justice became psychologically distant (new laws were western, complex and unfamiliar), physically distant for rural areas and financially distant (legal fees few could afford).
- The system was more systematic, but it served the educated and propertied far better than the poor.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Personal laws continued in personal matters": despite the IPC, CPC and CrPC, marriage and inheritance stayed under Hindu and Muslim personal law.
- "Indianisation of the lower J": posts below District Judge opened to Indians (follows the 1814 Madras Indianisation, Section 2.6).
- "Western Edu 1835":
  - Western, English-language law goes with western education from 1835 (Chapter 19: Social Reforms, Education Reforms & Print Culture)
  - The English-educated class could use the new courts

2.8 Reforms by Bentinck 28-35 (GG 1828-33; GG of India 1833-35)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Concept versus reality. Concept: polity = three equal organs, L, E, J.
- Reality:
  - E is the top prestige
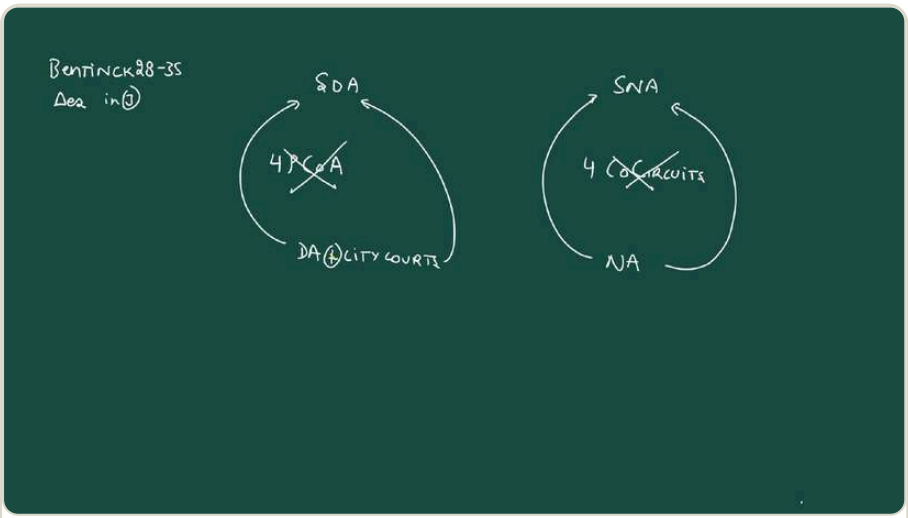
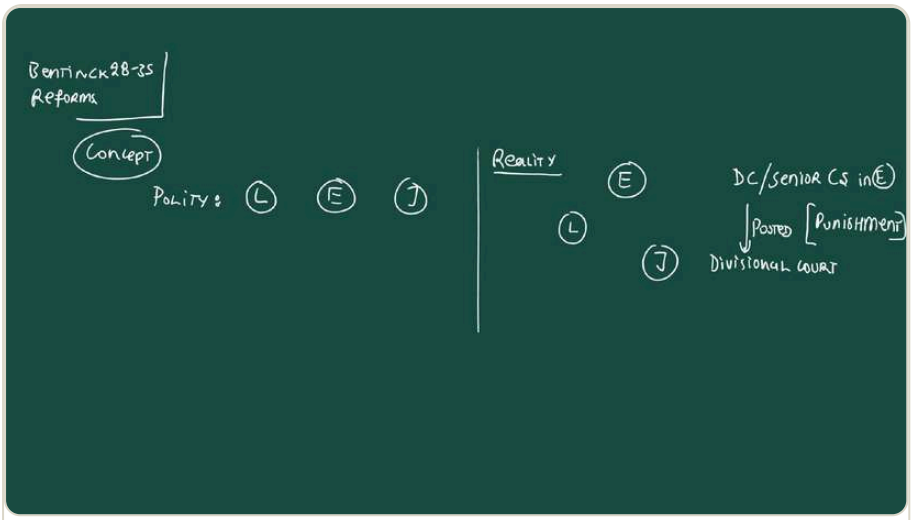
  - DC and senior civil servants want E, and an inefficient officer is posted as a punishment to the Divisional Court.
- J was the dumping ground, hence Bentinck 28-35 abolished those courts.



Bentinck 28-35: shorter court ladders Lecture 20 slide 29



Bentinck 28-35: concept versus reality of L, E, J Lecture 20 slide 28

- Bentinck 28-35 abolished the divisional courts: both the Provincial Courts of Appeal (civil) and the Courts of Circuit (criminal) that Cornwallis 86-93 had created.
- Why: these courts had become parking grounds for inefficient officers (punishment postings for non-performers), which contributed to high pendency.
- High-ranking officers also meant high State expenditure, so the courts were ended as a fiscal-prudence measure.
- Transfer: judicial powers and pending cases went to District Judges.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- After Bentinck 28-35 the ladders are shorter.
- Civil: District Diwani Adalat + City Courts go straight up to the SDA (4 Provincial Courts of Appeal gone).
- Criminal: Nizamat Adalat goes straight up to the SNA (4 Courts of Circuit gone).
- Stressed:
  - "high State expenditure"
  - the courts removed were Cornwallis 86-93's ("86-93" noted beside "Cornwallis")

Reforms by William Bentinck 28-35 Lecture 20 slide 30

- 1835, language of the courts: Persian was replaced: vernaculars in the lower courts and English in the higher courts.
- Legal backing: Act XXIX of 1837.
- The removal caused anxiety among Muslim elites, because Persian education had been an important pathway to administrative careers.
- Courts for the Northwest Provinces: he created a Sadar Diwani Adalat and a Sadar Nizamat Adalat in the Northwest Provinces (the portion of Awadh annexed in 1801, given full province status in 1836), so people from this region did not have to travel to Bengal to file appeals.

TEACHER'S BOARD

NWP circle: 1801 (Awadh portion annexed), then NWP 1836 (full province status); the other oval is the Bengal Presidency; between them: "Distance." Appeals to Calcutta meant a long journey, so the NWP got its own two Sadar courts.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Context on Persian. Persian was introduced under the Delhi Sultanate in the 13th century.
- It got a major boost when Humayun 30-40, to win military support from Persia's Safavid dynasty to reclaim his throne from the Suri Dynasty (1540-55), accepted the condition of promoting Persian.
- Akbar 56-05, with finance minister Todar Mal, made Persian compulsory for all administrative records.

2.9 Indian High Courts Act 1861 and 2.10 the Federal Court (GOI Act 1935)

- The Indian High Courts Act 1861 led to High Courts in Madras, Bombay and Calcutta in 1862.
- The Calcutta High Court was created by merging three existing courts: the Sadar Diwani Adalat, the Sadar Nizamat Adalat and the Supreme Court at Calcutta.
- This finally ended the dual-track system of separate courts for Indians and the British.
- The GOI Act 1935, implemented from 1937, established a Federal Court, the direct ancestor of today's Supreme Court of India.
- It dealt with inter-governmental disputes (Centre versus Province, Province versus Province) and heard appeals from High Courts.
- Today's Supreme Court, set up under the Constitution of India 1950, continues this role with expanded jurisdiction.

The judiciary: from Mughal courts to the Federal Court

- Before 1772:
    - Two ladders (civil: Diwan, Pandits and Maulvis, Zamindar's Kachari; criminal: Naib Nazim, Kazi, Mufti, Faujdar)

    - Personal law in civil, Islamic law in criminal
- Dual Government 1765-72:
    - Reza Khan heads both Diwani and Nizamat
    - Revenue poor
    - Law and order falls
    - Famine 1770
- 1772 (Hastings 73-85):
    - DC as civil judge
    - Kazi and Mufti kept under DC supervision
    - Governor and Council head the two Sadar Adalats
- 1773-74:
    - 18 Mofussil courts
    - Supreme Court at Calcutta (1774), later Madras 1800 and Bombay 1823
    - Gentoo Code 1776, Hedaya 1791, Code of 1781
- 1793 (Cornwallis 86-93):
    - DC loses judicial power
    - Four divisions with Provincial Courts of Appeal and Courts of Circuit
    - Anglo-Muhammadan law
    - Indians out of senior posts
    - Lawyers in
- 1814 and 1819: Madras and Bombay merge the DC's roles in Ryotwari areas
- 1833-37 (Bentinck 28-35 and Macaulay):
    - Divisional courts abolished
    - Persian replaced 1835
    - NWP Adalats
    - Law Commission 1834
- 1859-62:
    - CPC, IPC, CrPC
    - High Courts 1862 end the dual track
- 1937: Federal Court, ancestor of the Supreme Court of India (1950)

3 · Civil services

> STORY LINK
> Because courts and revenue need officers, the question became who gets hired and how. Ask: what separates a service from mere employment, and what did Cornwallis 86-93 NOT introduce?

3.1 Issues in civil services, and what a "service" means

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Seven design questions for any civil service: (1) nomination or examination?
- (2) if exam, a specialised body like the UPSC or not? (3) syllabus: Indian or Western?
- (4) exam location: London, or India and London?
- (5) age limit: low or high?
- (6) organisation of services (today IAS, IPS, IFS, IRS and more): common exam or a separate exam per service?
- (7) training: on the job or in a training institute?
- The chapter reads as the EIC's answers to these seven, in order.

- In any organisation officials may be simply employed, or organised into a service.
- A service means a pre-defined career path, fixed rules for pay, promotion and removal, and a clear structure of seniority and accountability: the difference between being an employee and being a member of a cadre.
- The history of the EIC's civil services is a move from a chaotic, patronage-based system to a structured, merit-based administrative cadre, with an extra tension: how many Indians would be allowed in?

Issues in civil services Lecture 20 slide 33

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Without a service: "No career ladder" = "Total discretion" in employment and promotion.
- The boss alone decides who is hired and promoted
- A service replaces discretion with rules

3.2 Recruitment: from patronage to examination

- Initially EIC officials were recruited by nomination, not merit.
- Posts were either purchased or handed out through patronage.

- EIC Directors actively lobbied British Parliamentarians with offers of jobs for their sons. This bred corruption and incompetence.

3.3 Training

Period	Training
Until 1800	Essentially on the job
1800-1806	Fort William College, Calcutta, set up by Wellesley 98-05 for training in Indian laws, customs and languages
1806-1858	Haileybury College, London (East India College)
1858 onwards	British universities

3.4 Cornwallis 86-93: founder of civil services

- Cornwallis 86-93 brought the first proper structure to the civil services.
- He organised ("ORGanised") EIC employees into two tiers:

Aspect	Covenanted Civil Service (CCS)	Uncovenanted Civil Service (UCS)
Today's parallel	Like today's Group A	Like today's Group B
Who	Senior officers who signed a formal legal contract, a "covenant," with the EIC's Court of Directors in London before sailing to India	Junior officers hired locally in India by the GG or provincial governors
Pay and path	High defined pay, clear career path	Lower pay, less formal
Access	Under Cornwallis 86-93 reserved strictly for Europeans	The space where Indians were allowed to serve: at first very low-level clerical roles, then Deputy Collectors and Deputy Magistrates by the 1830s-40s as the empire grew and needed cheaper local administrators

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "ORGanised employees into..." = what "service" means (Section 3.1): a pool of employees becomes ranked cadres.
- CCS access: Europeans-only = "Authoritarian" (the same Cornwallis 86-93 who removed Indians from senior judicial posts).
- UCS: "Indians + British": not Indians-only, but the space where Indians could enter.

	What	Detail
DID	Two tiers	CCS plus UCS: the first proper structure
DID	Strict seniority for promotions	London bosses could no longer push underqualified relatives over experienced officers (the slide calls it "Merit @ Promotions")

	What	Detail
DID	Massively higher salaries	To reduce the incentive to be corrupt
DID	Curbed private trade by EIC officials	(see the Dastak and private trade story in [[10	Chap ter 10]])
DID	Separation of Powers	DC stripped of judicial powers in 1793
DID NOT	Merit-based selection for entry	Entry stayed patronage-based: nomination by the EIC's Court of Directors in London, right until the Charter Act 1853

- This is why he is called the founder of civil services in India: he converted a corrupt, patronage-ridden set of employees into a structured, professionalised service.

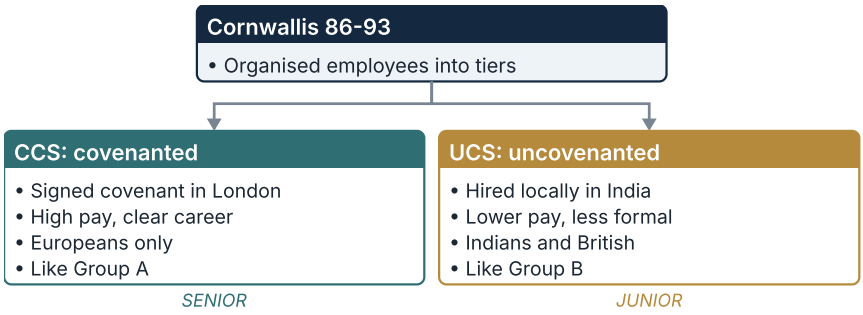
CORNWALLIS 86-93'S TWO TIERS



HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2010 trap (handout, Section 3.4). "Who among the following GGs created the Covenanted Civil Service, which later became the Indian Civil Service?" Correct: (c) Cornwallis 86-93.
- (a) Hastings 73-85 is wrong: first GG of Bengal under the Regulating Act 1773, introduced a judicial plan but not the CCS structure.
- (b) Wellesley 98-05 is wrong: set up Fort William College 1800 for CCS training but did not create the service structure.
- (d) Bentinck 28-35 is wrong: opened the UCS to Indians under the Charter Act 1833 and encouraged some senior Indian recruitment, but did not create the CCS.
- Also: the CCS was later renamed ICS in 1892 by executive order under Lansdowne 88-94, per the Aitchison Commission 1887, NOT by the Indian Councils Act 1892.

3.5 Charter Act 1833 and Bentinck 28-35

- The Charter Act of 1833 opened the Uncovenanted Civil Services to Indians, primarily to reduce administration cost by using cheaper Indian labour in junior roles.

- Bentinck 28-35 went slightly further and encouraged recruitment of Indians to some senior positions.

3.6 Charter Act 1853: the exam opened to Indians

- The Charter Act of 1853 was a landmark: it mandated a Civil Service Examination for the CS and Indians were eligible to appear.
- 1854: a Select Committee of Parliament under Macaulay recommended replacing patronage-based recruitment with exam-based recruitment for a permanent civil service.
- This led to the Civil Services Commission (1854) in London, which held its first examination in 1855.

Eligibility on paper did not mean access in practice:

Barrier	Detail
Age limit	The maximum age ranged from 18 to 23, kept deliberately low. 1859: the Crown cut the maximum entry age to 23. Then 22 in 1860, 21 in 1866, and 19 in 1876 (implemented 1878 so as not to hit aspirants already preparing)
Syllabus	Dominated by English Literature, designed to produce what Macaulay called "Brown Sahibs": Indians educated in English culture and values, culturally loyal to Britain
Venue	Held only in London
For an Indian candidate	Cost of travel to England; inferior preparation compared with British candidates; a syllabus that rewarded English cultural knowledge over Indian
First Indians through	1864: Satyendranath Tagore (brother of Rabindranath Tagore) was the first Indian to clear the CCS exam. 1867: four more Indians cleared it

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Low age, English Literature, London exam: "To prevent entry of Indians into CS." The age ladder is "not imp" (do not memorise every step).
- "Literature = source of values": English Literature carried English values, which is how the Brown Sahib is made.
- The exam tested "culture's knowledge", and western education in Britain was better than in India, so a Briton had the advantage.

3.7 The fight for Indianisation (1860 onwards)

- From 1860 the western-educated Indian middle class (WEMC), the very product of British educational policy, began demanding Indianisation of the civil services. Two core demands: Simultaneous examination in India (not just London). A higher maximum age limit.
- The British response was hostile. Post-1857 British administrators were insecure about Indian assertion and determined to keep Indians out of senior positions.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- WEMC = Western Educated Middle Class [1835+]:
  - The date is the western education of 1835 (see "Western Edu 1835", Section 2.7)
  - The class demanding entry is the one the British made
- Beside the British response: "1st exam in India = 1922" (answer to demand 1, via the GOI Act 1919, Section 3.9).

3.7.1 The Statutory Civil Services Act (Lytton 76-80)

- Parliament had given directions for Indianisation in 1870.
- Instead of holding the exam in India or raising the age limit, Lytton 76-80 (Viceroy 1876-1880) brought lateral entry via nomination through the Statutory Civil Services Act.
- Under it loyal elite Indians could be nominated to posts previously reserved for CCS officers, but only carefully vetted, politically loyal individuals were selected.
- The statutory authority over the rules, regulations, syllabus and age limits for the civil service was vested in the Secretary of State for India after the GOI Act 1858.
- (The handout adds a note: books put responsibility on Lytton 76-80 for reducing the age limit and credit Ripon 80-84 for increasing it, because the SoSforIndia was greatly influenced by the GG's input, but that is not the legal truth.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Links the 1870 directions to the 1858 Proclamation and the Charter 1833, and labels the Statutory Civil Services Act "[unimportant ACT]." Keywords: lateral entry, Statutory CS, only loyalists.
- One line to learn: nomination of loyal elite Indians, instead of an exam in India.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Statutory Civil Services Act: handout versus slide.
- Handout: "Statutory Civil Services Act 1878 (under Lytton 76-80)", "created 1878" (Section 3.7.2).
- Slide: "Statutory CS 1879", "rules framed in 1879 under GOI Act 1870." Read together: Act 1878, rules framed 1879.
- Board: "unimportant act," so memorise only Lytton 76-80, lateral entry, loyalists.

HANDOUT ALERT

"ICS" struck out for "CCS" in the SoSforIndia row on the slide, while the handout says authority over the "Indian Civil Service." The slide's correction is the logical one (the service in 1858 was still the CCS; ICS only from 1892, Section 3.7.2).

Lecture 21 takes over here: Lecture 20 stops at slide 40, so Sections 3.7.2 to 5 are covered by the handout plus Lecture 21

3.7.2 Aitchison Commission (1887)

- Dufferin 84-88 appointed it in 1886
- the report came in 1887.
- It recommended dropping the terms "Covenanted" and "Uncovenanted" and dividing the services into three tiers: Imperial Civil Service (ICS), Provincial Civil Service (PCS) and Subordinate Civil Service.
- Implementation came in 1892 by executive order under Lansdowne 88-94 (NOT a provision of the Indian Councils Act 1892, a classic exam trap; see Chapter 28: Indian Councils Act of 1892 (Lord Cross Act), Section 9).
- CCS became ICS, UCS became PCS, and the Statutory Civil Services (created 1878) were abolished (partly through moderate nationalist pressure).

Aitchison Commission 1887 Lecture 21 slide 1

- The Provincial Civil Services were recruited through exams and selection held in India, to ensure greater Indian participation in administration.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Aitchison came in the Moderate phase. Board context:
  - INM: 1857+
  - INC: 1885
  - "1885-1905: Moderate Politics", leading to "Pressure on Britain".
- Hence the handout's "partly through moderate nationalist pressure": the Statutory CS was dropped and the PCS recruited by exams and selection held in India.
- Also "1920: MG era begins" (read as the Mahatma Gandhi era, when Moderate pressure gives way to a new phase).
- Three tiers:
  - (1) CCS renamed ICS
  - (2) UCS senior posts + Statutory CS = PCS (provincial or state PCS)
  - (3) Subordinate CS = UCS junior posts = clerks etc. Keyword: Lansdowne 88-94 (the 1892 executive order, not ICA 1892, is the exam trap)
- "GOI 1935: Provincial Public Service Commission": the provincial service gets its own commission only in 1935 (Section 3.11).

3.8 Islington Commission (1912)

- Context in the national movement: Swadeshi Movement (1905-11), Delhi Conspiracy Case (1912), Ghadar Movement (1913-15), Home Rule Leagues (1916-18) and British wartime claims of fighting for democracy in WW I (1914-19).
- The Commission was set up in 1912 but published its report only in 1917.
- It recommended 25% Indians in senior positions, via exam and via promotion from the PCS.
- It rejected the nationalist demand for simultaneous examination in India, arguing that educational standards in India were not uniform enough.

Islington Commission 1912 Lecture 21 slide 2

- (The handout's reading of the real reason, unstated: the British feared an exam in India would produce more Indian candidates than they were comfortable with.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "CONTRADICTION": the Commission promised 25% of senior posts to Indians but refused the one reform, an exam in India, that would let Indians win them in numbers.
- The real reason: slow down Indianization of CS.
- The 25% routes:
  - Via exam = DR (Direct Recruit)
  - via promotion from PCS = Promotee officers.
- Context stressed: Swadeshi 1905-11, Ghadar, Home Rule Leagues 1916-18 (the Commission answers pressure).
- Star note: the first time a reservation was recommended (1919 is the first time implemented).

3.9 Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms / GOI Act 1919

- Context: Rowlatt Satyagraha (1919). The GOI Act 1919 mandated: Simultaneous examination in India (first held in 1922). A Public Service Commission for India (established in 1926). A gradual increase to 33% Indians in senior positions.
- The ICS was also restructured. Since the Act divided subjects between the Centre and the Provinces (Dyarchy), the ICS was split into All India Services (AIS) and Central Civil Services.

NUMBER CARD · THE GOI ACT 1919 PROMISES

22 · 26 · 33

An exam in India, a commission, a share of posts.

1922 Simultaneous exam first held in India
1926 Public Service Commission established
33% Gradual rise of Indians in senior positions

- (The AIS and Central Services structure of today is essentially this 1919 structure, continued and modified by the Constitution.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Each GOI Act = "a COI by Bn (P)": a constitution of India given by the British Parliament (COI1950 = today's Constitution; the 1935 Act = the "Last COI by Bn (P)").
- "SoS for India (1858)" (under Montagu:
  - The Secretary of State office dates from 1858)
  - Chelmsford 16-21, the Viceroy
- WW I = "NARRATIVE = DEMOCRACY" (the British war narrative).
- PSC row: "CS Commission 1854 - LONDON exam" contrasts with the 1926 PSC for the exam in India.
- "* Islington 1917: 25% Indians": 25% recommended in 1917, 33% implemented in 1919.
- ICS restructured: AIS [cadre system] and Central CS.

Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms and GOI Act 1919 Lecture 21 slide 3

HANDOUT ALERT

- WW I context: handout versus slide. Handout: wartime claims of fighting for democracy under the Islington context (Section 3.8).
- Slide: WW I (1914-19) with the Rowlatt Satyagraha under the 1919 Act, with "Narrative = Democracy".
- Use the slide: WW I belongs to the 1919 context.

3.10 Lee Commission / Royal Commission on Superior Civil Services (1923)

- Context: Khilafat Movement (1920-24) and Non-Cooperation Movement (1920-22).
- It had equal numbers of British and Indian members. Its report (1924) recommended:

Recommendation	Detail
20% of senior positions	Filled by promotion from the PCS
40%	Indians via exam
40%	Europeans via exam
50:50 ratio	Between Indians and Europeans within 15 years via exam
Public Service Commission	As originally mandated by the GOI Act 1919, should be established
Structure	AIS (ICS, IPS, Indian Forest Service and so on), Central Services (Foreign Affairs, Customs, Railways and so on) and Provincial Services (Health, Education and so on)

NUMBER CARD · LEE COMMISSION (REPORT 1924)

20 · 40 · 40

Together they fill a hundred; then the exam half moves to 50:50.

20% Senior posts by promotion from the PCS
40% Indians via exam
40% Europeans via exam

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three shares and a deadline: 20% Indians by promotion from the PCS, 40% Indians by exam, 40% Europeans by exam (total 100).
- "within 15 years": the target is exactly 50:50 between Indians and Europeans, not more, by the deadline of 15 years.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Slide only (not in the handout): the PSC was finally set up in October 1926 with Ross Barker as its first Chairman.
- Gap: promised by the 1919 Act, repeated by Lee 1923-24, set up in 1926.

3.11 GOI Act 1935

- Context: Hindustan Republican Army (1924), CPI (1925), HSRA (1928), Anti-Simon agitations (1928), Lahore Conspiracy Case (1928), Civil Disobedience Movement (1930-34), Chittagong Armoury Raid (1930-33), the martyrdom of Bhagat Singh, Sukhdev, Rajguru, Bhagwati Charan Vohra and Chandrashekhar Azad (1931).
- The Act made the federal distribution of subjects between Centre and Provinces a formal constitutional structure.
- It mandated a Federal Public Service Commission (set up in 1937, replacing the 1926 PSC, the direct predecessor of today's UPSC) and Provincial Public Service

Commissions for each Province or group of Provinces.

- By 1947 more than 50% of civil service positions had been Indianised.
- On 26 January 1950 the Federal PSC became the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) under Article 378 of the Constitution.

- (Article 378 is a transition provision: it ensures membership of the British-era UPSC and State PSCs continued seamlessly.
- Articles 315 and 316 govern the UPSC and State PSCs.
- Article 312 governs All India Services.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "GOI 1935 = Last COI by Bn (P)": the last of the constitutions given by the British Parliament.
- Context items to know: Hindustan Republican Army, CPI, HSRA, Anti-Simon, Lahore Conspiracy Case, Civil Disobedience, Chittagong Armoury Raid, the 1931 martyrdoms.
- Federal distribution of subjects: "TODAY'S 7th Schedule", i.e. the 1935 Centre-Province division is today's Seventh Schedule of the Constitution (the sources say nothing more about it).

The civil services: from patronage to the UPSC

- Early EIC:
  - Nomination, purchase and patronage
  - Directors lobby Parliamentarians for sons' jobs
- 1793 (Cornwallis 86-93):
  - CCS plus UCS, higher pay, private trade curbed, seniority for promotion
  - Entry still by nomination
- Training:
  - On the job until 1800
  - Fort William College 1800-06
  - Haileybury 1806-58
  - Universities from 1858
- 1833:
  - UCS opened to Indians (cheaper junior labour)

- Bentinck 28-35 encourages some senior posts

- 1853-55:
  - Exam mandated, London-only
  - First exam 1855
  - Satyendranath Tagore 1864
  - Four more 1867
- 1860 onwards:
  - Indians demand a simultaneous exam and a higher age
  - British hostile
  - Lytton 76-80 offers lateral entry (Statutory CS 1878-79)
- 1887-92:
  - Aitchison
  - ICS, PCS, Subordinate by executive order under Lansdowne 88-94
- 1912-17: Islington: 25% Indians, no simultaneous exam
- 1919-26: GOI Act 1919: exam in India 1922, PSC 1926, 33%
- 1923-24: Lee: 20-40-40, 50:50 in 15 years
- 1935-50:
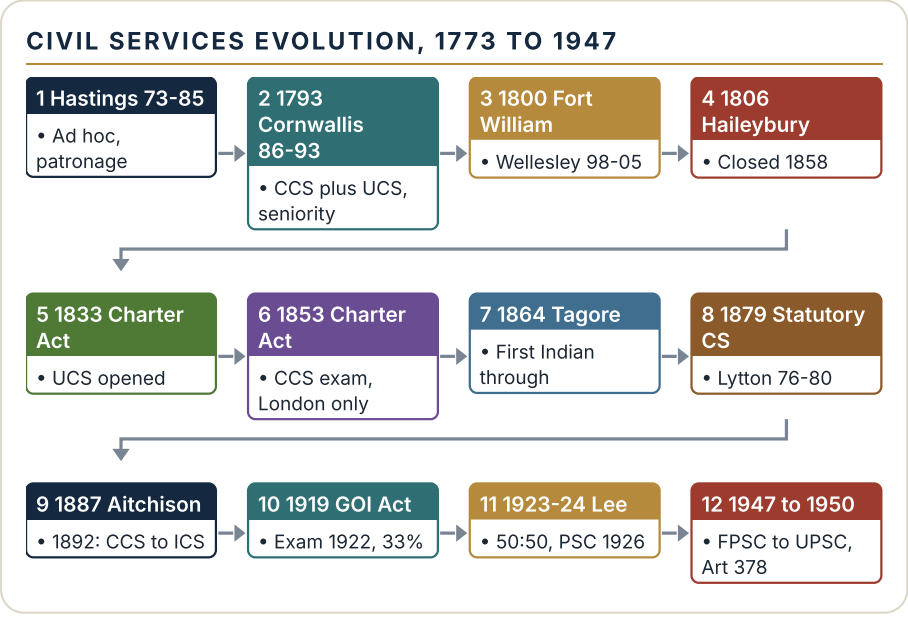
  - Federal PSC 1937
  - Over 50% Indianised by 1947
  - UPSC under Article 378 on 26 January 1950

3.12 The civil services on one board



TEACHER'S BOARD

- Twelve-box chain, board additions:
  - 73-85 over the Hastings era (ad hoc patronage)
  - 86-93 beside Cornwallis
  - "based promotions (= MERIT)" under Cornwallis's seniority: promotion by seniority is the merit he brought, while entry stayed patronage until 1853 ("Merit @ Promotions", Section 3.4)
- Satyendranath over 1864 Tagore (first Indian, not Rabindranath).
- "ISLINGTON 1917: 25% Indians in ICS Report" inserted between the 1887 and 1919 boxes (Section 3.8).
- The board is a snake: the middle row reads right to left (1833, 1853, 1864, 1879), then drops to 1887.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The board agrees with the handout and Lecture 20 on every date except the Statutory CS (1879 on the slide, 1878 in the handout; alert in Section 3.7.1).
- It shows the 1892 order inside the 1887 Aitchison box, so the "1887 report, 1892 order" pairing is on the board itself.

4 · Police (handout and Lecture 21 slides 7 to 18)

STORY LINK

Because the third pillar was the most sensitive, the Mughal chain was kept for the longest time. Ask: why did the Daroga system fail, and why was Napier's Sindh model chosen?

HANDOUT NOTE

- Police and the summary come from Lecture 21 only (Lecture 20 has no police slides).
- The title-slide verdict (few and rare Prelims questions) still applies.

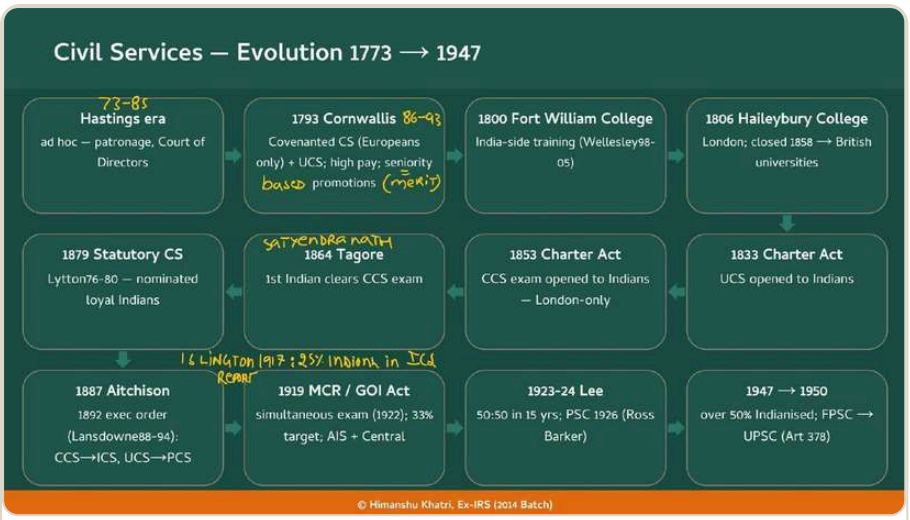
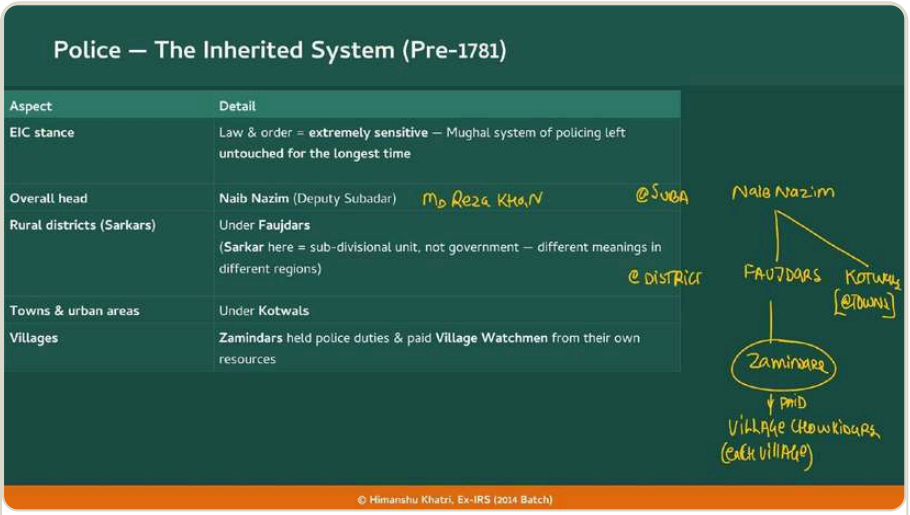
4.1 The inherited system (pre-1781)



Civil services evolution, 1773 to 1947 Lecture 21 slide 6



Police: the inherited system before 1781 Lecture 21 slide 7

- The EIC treated law and order as extremely sensitive, so the Mughal system of policing was left untouched for the longest time. Under it in Bengal:

Level	Police authority
Overall head	Naib Nazim (Deputy Subadar)
Rural districts (Sarkars)	Faujdars (Sarkar here means a sub-divisional unit, not government; the meaning differs by region)
Towns and urban areas	Kotwals
Villages	Zamindars held police duties and paid Village Watchmen from their own resources

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Naib Nazim = Md Reza Khan @ SUBA
- Faujdars @ DISTRICT
- Kotwals @ TOWNS
- Zamindars below, who PAID the Village Chowkidars, one in each village.
- The same Reza Khan who headed the Diwani and the Nizamat (Sections 2.2, 2.3) is police head at the suba.
- Village Watchmen = Village Chowkidars (same post).

4.2 Warren Hastings 73-85's reforms of 1781

- The Great Bengal Famine of 1770 had led to a sharp increase in crime.
- Hastings 73-85 replaced Faujdars with English Magistrates (DC/DM) in rural districts.
- Zamindars kept their police duties under the DM's supervision.
- The problem: very few DMs, and poor supervision of zamindars, who continued to oppress the masses freely.

Warren Hastings 73-85: police reforms of 1781 Lecture 21 slide 8

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 73-85, chain:
  - GG (Be) -&gt
  - DC/DM -&gt
  - Zamindars -&gt
  - VW (village watchmen).
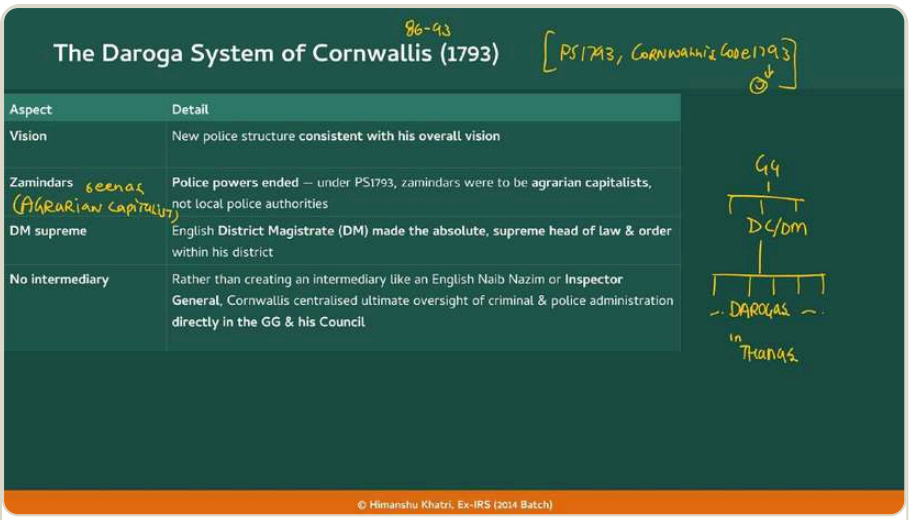
- Against Section 4.1: the Faujdar rung is gone and an English magistrate sits there, but the zamindar is still between the magistrate and the village, hence poor supervision.

4.3 The Daroga system of Cornwallis 86-93 (1793)



Daroga system of Cornwallis 86-93, 1793 Lecture 21 slide 9

Daroga system: chain of command Lecture 21 slide 10

- Ended the police powers of zamindars: under PS1793 zamindars were to be agrarian capitalists, not local police authorities.
- Divided each district into thanas of 30 square miles each.
- Each thana was under a new officer, the Daroga (Indian), appointed and supervised by the DM.
- The English District Magistrate (DM) was made the absolute, supreme head of law and order within his district.
- Rather than an intermediary like an English Naib Nazim or an Inspector General, Cornwallis 86-93 centralised ultimate oversight of criminal and police administration in the GG and his Council.
- Chain of command: Darogas, then DM, then the central government.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "[PS1793, Cornwallis Code 1793]": the Daroga system belongs with the Permanent Settlement and the Cornwallis 86-93 Code, one package (Sections 2.5.1, 2.5.2).
- "(AGRARIAN capitalist)": under PS1793 the zamindar is a landowning businessman, so he cannot also be the local police.
- Structure:
  - Many DC/DMs under one GG
  - Many Darogas in thanas under each DM
  - No IG or Naib Nazim in between ("No intermediary"). 1 mile = 1.6 km, so a thana of 30 square miles is about 30 x 2.56 = 77 sq km (arithmetic from this conversion)

4.3.1 DC and DM: two roles, usually one person

- In most of British India (and in India today) the District Collector and District Magistrate are the same person holding two roles.
- Cornwallis 86-93 separated the judicial function from this officer (the DC/DM lost the power to be a judge), but the revenue and law-and-order functions stayed combined:

Hat	Role	Mughal ancestor
DC (revenue)	Collects land revenue, manages government land, maintains land records, collects various taxes	The Mughal Diwani / Amalguzar function
DM (law and order)	Heads the district's criminal administration; coordinates with the SP to keep peace, prevent riots and issue executive orders such as Section 144 of the CrPC	The Mughal Nizamat / Faujdari function

TEACHER'S BOARD

- DC hat: land revenue, government land, land records, taxes. DM hat: criminal administration, Faujdari.
- Stressing Faujdari (not Nizamat) makes the DM heir of the Mughal Faujdari function (district law and order) and the DC heir of the Diwani / Amalguzar function: the Section 2.2 ladder carried into today's district.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Faujdar = SP, or DM = heir of Faujdari?
- Lecture 20 says "Faujdar = like SP at DISTRICT" (Section 2.2)
- Lecture 21 says the DM descends from the Nizamat / Faujdari function.
- Reading: the function (district law and order) passes to the DM as head, while the SP is the Faujdar's day-to-day counterpart.
- Answer:
  - "the DM inherits the Faujdari function
  - The Faujdar was like today's SP"
  - Do not claim the DM is the Faujdar

4.3.2 Result: the Daroga-Zamindar nexus

- A Daroga-Zamindar nexus quickly developed: zamindars bribed Darogas and kept private armed men (lathiyals).
- The nexus became the primary instrument of oppression of the rural poor in the early 1800s.
- The British blamed "Indian corruption" rather than the structural weaknesses of the system.
- 1799: Wellesley 98-05 restored police powers to zamindars, in effect admitting the Daroga system had not worked.

1799 Wellesley 98-05 restored police powers to zamindars

1802 Daroga system extended to Madras, later abolished there

1855 Madras Torture Commission report exposed the atrocities

- 1802: the Daroga system was extended to Madras but was later abolished there too because of its failures.
- The resulting atrocities of revenue officials were exposed by the Madras Torture Commission report of 1855, which led to corrective measures.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Next: Gave Police Powers To DC's Juniors in MADRAS" (between the 1802 and 1855 rows): the Daroga system was dropped in Madras, police powers went to the DC's juniors (revenue officials), and the atrocities of revenue officials were exposed in 1855 by the Madras Torture Commission.
- Same "DC + his juniors" pattern as the Ryotwari judiciary (Section 2.6): in Madras the Collector's office held revenue, police and judicial power at once.

4.4 The Police Act 1861

- The Daroga system had failed. The British looked for a proven alternative and found it in the Irish Constabulary model: a centralised, hierarchical, quasi-military police force, effective in Ireland since 1787, designed as much for suppressing political agitation as for preventing ordinary crime.
- (The British were not primarily building a crime-prevention force; they were building a political control mechanism.)

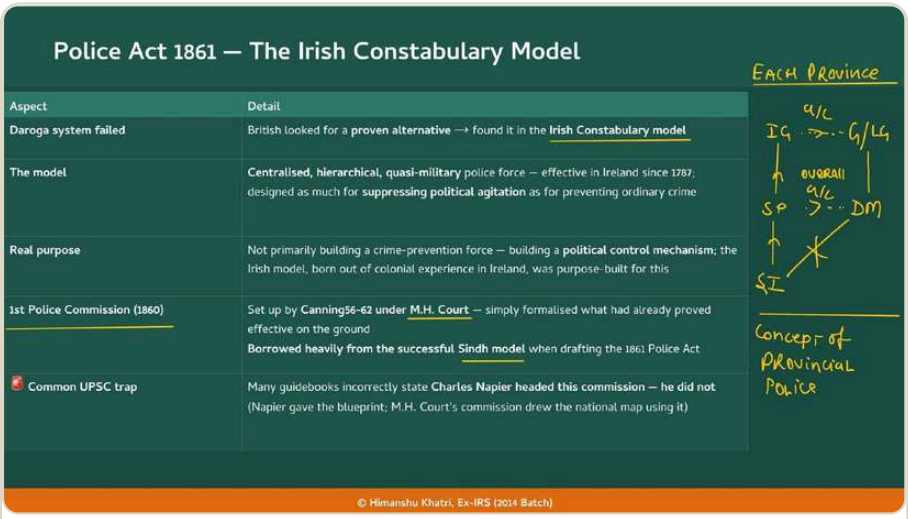
4.4.1 Province-by-province road-test (pre-1861)



Police Act 1861 and the Irish Constabulary model Lecture 21 slide 13

Province	Year	Detail
Sindh	1843 (annexed)	Charles Napier, the military general who conquered Sindh, set up the Sindh Police on the Irish Constabulary model immediately after conquest
Punjab	1849	Post-annexation
Bombay	1853
Madras	1859

- The 1st Police Commission (1860) was set up by Canning 56-62 under M.H. Court.

- S Sindh 1843: Charles Napier, right after conquest
- P Punjab 1849
- B Bombay 1853
- M Madras 1859

Order kept: the years climb 43, 49, 53, 59. The 1860 commission under M.H. Court borrowed from Sindh; Napier did NOT head it.

- It simply formalised what had already proved effective on the ground and borrowed heavily from the Sindh model when drafting the 1861 Police Act.

HANDOUT ALERT

- A common UPSC trap: Charles Napier did NOT head the 1860 commission (many guidebooks wrongly say he did).
- Napier gave the blueprint (Sindh)
- M.H.
- Court's commission drew the national map using it.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "EACH Province" = "Concept of Provincial Police": the Act's novelty is a police force for every province.
- Chart:
  - IG answerable (a/c, dotted) to the Governor / LG
  - SP to the DM
  - dotted arrows = political accountability to civilian authority ("overall a/c")
- Solid arrows SI -&gt

- IG = operational chain.
- The line SI to DM is crossed out: the Sub-Inspector no longer reports to the DC / DM as the Daroga did.
- Exam points: Irish Constabulary model, 1st Police Commission (1860), M.H.
- Court, Sindh model (Napier trap in the alert above).

4.4.2 The Police Act 1861

- The Police Act, 1861 was passed in March 1861 by the GG's Council (as last restructured by the Charter Act 1853).
- (The Indian Councils Act 1861 came in August 1861 and created the Imperial Legislative Council (ILC); do not mix them.) It created the provincial police structure across all provinces: each Province to have its own police organisation, with a clear hierarchy:

Post	In charge of	Reports to
Inspector General (IG)	The provincial police	The Governor / Lieutenant Governor (LG)
Superintendent of Police (SP)	The district police	The DC / DM
Sub-Inspector (SI)	The thana	The SP (not to the DC as earlier)

Police Act 1861: provisions and hierarchy Lecture 21 slide 15

- Operational accountability ran upward through the police chain: SI, SP, IG.
- Political accountability ran to civilian authority: SP to DC/DM, IG to LG / Governor.
- This was only the organisational chart. In 1861 the British simply posted military officers or nominated European men into the senior posts: no formal cadre, no competitive exam, no unified service, just employees of provincial governments.
- The posts existed
- The service did not yet.
- From 1857 onwards a "Police Raj" was created: Indians were excluded from all senior positions, and the emphasis was on effective policing, intelligence collection and political surveillance.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "(not BY Bn P)": the Police Act 1861 was passed by the GG's Council, not the British Parliament (contrast with the Charter Act 1793, the 1919 Act and the 1935 Act).
- "Own" police organisation = own Resources and HR.
- "Specialist":
  - Before 1861 police work was done by non-specialists, the zamindar and the DC
  - now a specialist ladder (IG, SP, SI).
- "(not to DC as earlier)": the SI reports to the SP.
- Bracket "e.g. Financial Control" by the Accountability row (reading: an example of civilian political control;).
- "(IPS not created yet)": the missing cadre is the future IPS (Section 4.4.3).
- "Police Raj" = "overuse of police"
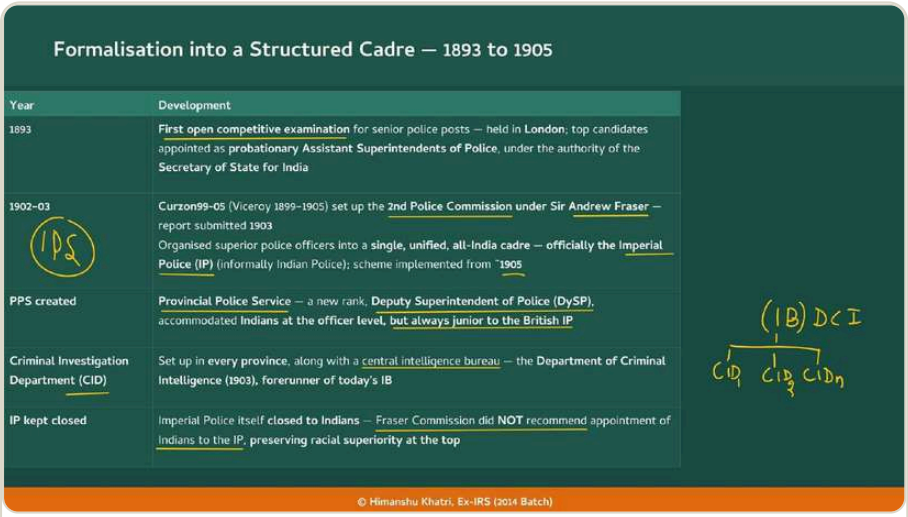
- emphasis: "ensure no repeat of 1857" (intelligence and surveillance meant to stop another revolt)

4.4.3 Formalisation into a structured cadre



Formalisation into a cadre, 1893 to 1905 Lecture 21 slide 17

Year	Step
1893	First open competitive exam for senior police posts, held in London; top candidates became probationary Assistant Superintendents of Police under the Secretary of State for India
1902-03	Curzon 99-05 set up the 2nd Police Commission under Sir Andrew Fraser; report 1903. It organised superior police officers into one unified all-India cadre, the Imperial Police (IP) (informally the Indian Police); scheme implemented from about 1905
(Fraser's package)	Provincial Police Service (PPS) created, with a new rank Deputy Superintendent of Police (DySP) that accommodated Indians at officer level, always junior to the British IP. CID set up in every province, plus a central intelligence bureau, the Department of Criminal Intelligence (1903), forerunner of today's IB. But the IP itself stayed closed to Indians: Fraser did NOT recommend appointing Indians to it

Year	Step
1920	Direct entry into the IP officially opened to Indians (simultaneous exams in England and India from 1921), largely a result of the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms (GOI Act 1919)
By 1931	Only 20% of SPs were Indians
From 1939	More Indians posted as SP because British candidates were unavailable (recruited for World War II, 1939-45)
1948	The IP was administratively replaced by the Indian Police Service (IPS) by a Home Ministry resolution; statutory backing came from the All India Services Act, 1951

- 1861 built the structure, 1902-03 built the service, 1948-51 built the IPS.

5 · The three-pillar administrative legacy (handout and Lecture 21 slides 19 to 21)

STORY LINK

Because each pillar moved only when pushed, the handout ends with one pattern. Ask: which two triggers drove reform, and what three legacies were left?

- The EIC's administrative evolution across judiciary, civil services and police shows a consistent pattern: structural improvement followed political convenience, not principle.
- Each major reform was triggered by a crisis (the Great Bengal Famine 1770, the 1857 revolt) or was a concession wrested by the Indian National Movement after sustained pressure.
- The British never voluntarily Indianised their administration beyond what was economically necessary (to reduce costs) or politically unavoidable (to manage nationalist pressure).
- They left behind, however inadvertently, a set of institutions that independent India would inherit, adapt and build upon: codified law, an organised civil service, a hierarchical police.

Pillar	Inherited (Mughal)	Foundational reform	Mid-19th century consolidation	Modern legacy
Judiciary	Diwani Adalats (civil;	Hastings 73-85's 1772 plan; 1774	Charter Act 1833 (Macaulay, Law Commission 1834)	GOI Act 1935: Federal Court (1937), then

Civil services	Mansabdari nobility under Mughal patronage	Cornwallis 86-93 (1793): founder of CCS plus UCS; salaries raised; seniority for promotion	Charter 1853: exam mandated, Indians eligible (London only); ICS renamed by executive order 1892 (Lansdowne 88-94, per Aitchison 1887, NOT by ICA 1892)	Lee Commission 1923 leading to PSC 1926; GOI 1935 Federal PSC (1937) then UPSC 1950 (Article 378); AIS under Article 312
Police	Naib Nazim to Faujdars (rural) and Kotwals (towns), plus Zamindars (villages)	Hastings 73-85's 1781 reforms; Cornwallis 86-93's Daroga System 1793 (failed through the Daroga-Zamindar nexus)	Irish Constabulary road-test (Sindh 1843 Napier, Punjab 1849, Bombay 1853, Madras 1859); 1st Police Commission 1860 (M.H. Court) leading to the Police Act 1861 (March 1861)	2nd Police Commission 1902-03 (Fraser) leading to the Imperial Police (IP) cadre; 1948 Home Ministry resolution leading to the IPS; AIS Act 1951 plus Article 312

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's summary table is scrambled in the PDF (words split across cells)
- The table above is rebuilt from the readable pieces
- The judiciary "modern legacy" cell reads "CPC/IPC/CrPC replaced 2024 by BNS/BNSS/BS" and is cut off after "BS" in the handout
- The class matrix prints BNS/BNSS/BSA, so the table uses BSA
- The 2024 replacement appears only in this table and the class matrix.

HANDOUT NOTE

The class summary slides carry the typed pattern (reform followed political convenience, never voluntary Indianisation beyond cost or politics, the inherited institutions) and the matrix above in clean form, to check the scrambled handout table against.

6 · The class PYQs and the Governor-General board

STORY LINK

Because the teacher then tested the chapter on real papers, the answers sit on the slides. Ask: why is Banerji the only one dismissed, why is Cornwallis 86-93 wrong for Ryotwari, and where do the reign-year codes come from?

HANDOUT NOTE

Four PYQs, each with a question slide and typed answer slides, then a board of Governor-General and Viceroy tenures.

6.1 Prelims 2010: why the DC lost his judicial powers

- The answer is (c), exactly as in the alert in Section 2.5.1.
- Hook:
  - "Tax-man can't be judge of his own tax: PS1793 zamindars needed clean courts, so Cornwallis split the hat," and why the others fail: (a) revenue efficiency was a side-benefit, not the principal motive
  - (b) wrong on facts, because Cornwallis 86-93 removed Indians from all senior positions
  - (d) "the DC lacked law training" is at best a partial truth, because the trigger was the conflict of interest after PS1793.

6.2 Prelims 2010: who created the CCS

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "1892" beside the question:
  - The CCS was renamed ICS in 1892 by executive order under Lansdowne 88-94 (Aitchison 1887), not ICA 1892
  - it was created in 1793 by Cornwallis 86-93.
- Keep the two dates apart and the options sort themselves.
- Reasons:
  - (a) Hastings 73-85 ended the Dual Government and built the judicial plan of 1772-74 but did not create the CCS
  - (b) Wellesley 98-05 set up Fort William College (1800-1806) for training, and "the cadre structure pre-dated him by 7 years" (1793 to 1800)
  - (d) Bentinck 28-35 opened the UCS to Indians under the Charter Act 1833, 40 years after Cornwallis 86-93
- Hook: "Cornwallis = Covenant: sign the contract in London, sail to India, draw senior pay."

6.3 Prelims 1999: the Indian leader dismissed from the ICS

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Answer (b) Surendranath Banerji
- Tagore, Dutt and Bose false
- Tagore (1864, first Indian to clear the exam, Section 3.6) had a full ICS career. R.C.
- Dutt (cleared 1869) retired honourably as a Divisional Commissioner. S.C.
- Bose cleared in 1920 and resigned in 1921 in protest
- Resignation is not dismissal.
- Banerji was among the four who cleared in 1867 and was dismissed in 1874 on a technical, age-related ground, a politically motivated removal that made him one of the earliest militant Moderates.
- Wider context (post-1857 insecurity, Indians kept out of senior posts): Section 3.7.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Class only (not in the handout): the handout says only "1867: four more Indians cleared it".
- Banerji, Dutt and Bose, with 1874, 1869, 1920 and 1921, come from the class slides alone
- Use them for this question and do not mix them with the handout's table

6.4 Prelims 2017: who introduced Ryotwari

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three tags on three names. Cornwallis "86-93" = the Permanent Settlement 1793 in Bengal, the opposite (zamindari) system, so every option containing 1 is wrong.
- Alexander Read "1792 - Baramahal" = the early experiment.
- Munro "G (Ma) 1820-27" (read as Governor of Madras) = delivered the mature Ryotwari from 1820.
- Answer (c) 2 and 3 only.
- Hook: "Ryotwari = Read drafted, Munro delivered: Madras 1820. Cornwallis stayed in Bengal with zamindars."

HANDOUT ALERT

- Munro 1814 versus 1820: two different things.
- In Section 2.6 the Bengal judicial model was replaced in Madras in 1814 on Munro's advice (the DC regained judicial powers), and Bombay followed in 1819 under Elphinstone, "a follower of Munro's philosophy".
- The 1820 on this PYQ is the formal rollout of the Ryotwari revenue settlement in Madras.
- Do not swap them
- The settlement itself belongs to Chapter 16: Land Revenue Systems

6.5 The Governor-General and Viceroy board

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Source of the reign-year codes used in this notebook: the board has no chapter content, only the list below.
- Every code the chapter uses for a Governor-General or Viceroy matches it: Hastings 73-85, Cornwallis 86-93, Wellesley 98-05, Bentinck 28-35, Canning 56-62, Dufferin 84-88, Lansdowne 88-94, Curzon 99-05, Chelmsford 16-21.
- (Lytton 76-80 and Ripon 80-84 are not on the board.)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Two Hastings, one code each. W. HASTINGS 73-85 (Warren, the Hastings of this chapter) and F. HASTINGS 13-23 (Francis).
- Never put 73-85 on the other.
- Oddities on the board:
  - Cornwallis 86-93 appears a second time with "(months)" after Wellesley 98-05 (as written;)
  - MAYO 69-72 is joined to Canning's row by a line though he comes after Canning 56-62
  - The right column spells WELLINGDON (31-36) and abbreviates Mountbatten as MTB 1947-48.

Reform met a religious society: reason plus scripture won laws but not the masses, and the educated few turned reason on the Raj itself.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Reason met a religious society: reformers who joined reason to scripture (Roy, Vidyasagar) won laws but not the masses, because reform was elite, top-down and gradual. The colonial school and press that carried the Doctrine of Reason made the educated 8% who finally turned it on British rule itself.

1. Europe's rebirth, Bengal's mirror. The Renaissance was Western Europe's 14th-century rebirth, driven by reason and aimed at human welfare, and it set off the Reformation, the end of feudalism, capitalism, the Enlightenment and the Industrial Revolution. 19th-century Bengal looked similar: an oppressive priestly establishment, no modern education, birth-based privilege and poverty. The response was the same too: reach back to the scriptures for what was great and use reason to remove what was not.

   → But why did reform begin in the 19th century, and in Bengal?

2. The Raj opens the door. After 1813 the British moved from Orientalism to Liberals, Utilitarians and Evangelists, who backed Western education and reform, while Evangelist conversion frightened Indians into reforming from within. The British called ancient India a myth, and cultural nationalism was the reply. Western education (1835) gave the Doctrine of Reason, and Bengal led because the Governor General sat there.

   → Now, who would use that reason, and how?

3. Logic alone, or logic plus scripture? In India religion determined social practice, and the masses were deeply religious, so a reformer had to reform or reinterpret religion. Derozio's Young Bengal used only logic, ate beef and drank wine, and won a great controversy but poor mass politics. The socio-religious reformers used the Ctrl+F method: find the logic in the scripture and show it to the people.

   → One man did this best: Roy.

4. Roy, the bridge. Roy, the Father of Modern India, held universalism and found monotheism in the Upanishads; he used the Doctrine of Reason against other-worldliness, Karma and Incarnation. He opposed the Sanskrit College of 1824, wanted Western sciences, and worked with Bentinck 28-35, Macaulay and David Hare. His political demands, shared with Young Bengal, were Separation of Powers, a free Press, Indianisation and Trial by jury.

   → His first great test was Sati.

5. Sati: the first law. By the 19th century Sati was driven by property, burden, honour and glory, and lower castes in Bengal had begun to copy it through Sanskritisation. Bentinck 28-35 demanded scriptural proof, so in 1828 the Brahmo Samaj beat Radhakanta Deb in debate, and in 1829 Regulation XVII made Sati culpable homicide. Radhakanta Deb's Dharma Sabha appealed to the Privy Council in 1830 and lost.

→ Roy now had a law, and needed a body to carry the work on.

6 The Brahmo Samaj splits. The Brahmo Samaj (1828) took the low-hanging fruits first and stayed an upper-caste, urban body; after Roy's death in 1833 Debendranath Tagore, the organisation man, held it together. Keshab Chandra Sen wanted a mass, all-India movement and a new religion, so 1866 gave the Brahmo Samaj of India and the Adi Brahmo Samaj; he also drove the Brahmo Marriages Act 1872. In 1878 he married off his minor daughter and the Sadharan Brahmo Samaj split away.

7 Maharashtra and the voice from below. The Paramhansa Mandali (1849) copied Young Bengal and failed the same way; the Prarthana Samaj (1867) of Atmaram Pandurang, Ranade, Bhandarkar and Telang was Brahmoism for Maharashtra, with Keshab's help. Ranade also built the Poona Sarvajanik Sabha and the National Social Conference (1887). Phule opened a girls' school in Pune (1848), wrote Gulamgiri and founded the Satyashodhak Samaj (1873): he spoke for the oppressed and organised them.

→ But the hardest customs lay inside the home.

8 The home front: marriage, age, infants. Child marriage had religious sanction in the Garbhadhan ceremony, so the IPC 1860 set only age 10 and the Rakhmabai case (1884) split opinion. After the death of 11-year-old Phulmoni, Lansdowne 88-94 raised the age to 12 in 1891; Tilak said reform must come from society, Bhandarkar showed the Dharmashastras allow marriage after puberty, and census data showed the practice went on. The Female Infanticide Act 1870 could not reach dowry and hypergamy, nor the nutritional neglect of girls.

→ Vidyasagar took on the widow.

9 Vidyasagar's war on widowhood. Vidyasagar changed Sanskrit College from within, opened 25 girls' schools in 1857-58, and sent a petition with 1,000 signatures; the Hindu Widow Remarriage Act came on 26 July 1856 and he married his own son to a widow. But a widow lost her husband's property on remarriage, orthodox Hindus won the scripture debate after 1857, and Maharashtra saw only 38 widow remarriages by 1900. Early reform failed because it was elite, top-down, gradual and silent on caste.

→ So a second wave tried the masses, and the faiths answered each in their own way.

10 Pride, revival and other answers. Dayanand's Arya Samaj (1875) said the Vedas were infallible, rejected idols and rose in Punjab, while Ramakrishna and Vivekananda offered spiritual pride and Vivekananda accepted idols and won the masses. Revivalism had a positive face and a negative one (aggressive Shuddhi, cow protection and communal tension). Sir Syed built Aligarh (1875) on modernisation without surrender of faith, and Narayana Guru consecrated an Ezhava's Shiva at Aruvippuram in 1888.

→ All of this stood on a schoolroom built by British policy.

11 Schools: from Orientalism to Sargent. Orientalists (Warren Hastings 73-85, Jones, Wellesley 98-05) governed the Indian way until Macaulay's Minute settled the debate in 1835 for a Western syllabus in English, making Brown Sahibs and a downward filtration that never reached the masses. Wood's Despatch 1854 gave the vernacular-to-English ladder, grants-in-aid and three universities (1857), then came Hunter 1882, Curzon's Act 1904, Sadler, Hartog, Wardha 1937 and the unfunded Sargent Plan 1944. By 1921 only about 8% were Western educated and 92% were illiterate.

→ Those few read, and wrote, in the press.

12 The press and the educated eight per cent. The press began in 1780 with Hicky's Bengal Gazette, shut down in 1782 by Warren Hastings 73-85, and then ran a cycle of repression (1799, 1823, 1878, 1908-10) and concession (Metcalfe 1835, Ripon 80-84's repeal in 1882). Indian-run papers carried reform and then nationalism, and the WEMC's method from 1857 to 1905 was pen and press. The Doctrine of Reason that was meant to make Brown Sahibs ended by making the leaders of the Indian National Movement.

In simple words

- The British shift after 1813 (Liberals, Utilitarians, Evangelists), the sting of their criticism (cultural nationalism) and Western education gave Indians the Doctrine of Reason.
- Because religion determined social practice, the winners were socio-religious reformers who used logic plus scripture (Roy, Vidyasagar)

- Young Bengal used only logic and failed
- Laws worked where an act could be seen and proved (Sati 1829, a disabling law) and stalled where society had to change (widow remarriage 1856, child marriage, infanticide).
- Early reform was elite, upper-caste, top-down and gradual
- After 1857 came radicals and revivalists (Dayanand, Vivekananda), plus Phule, Sir Syed and Narayana Guru
- Education moved from Orientalism to Macaulay 1835 (Brown Sahibs), Wood 1854, Hunter, Curzon, Sadler, Hartog, Wardha and Sargent
- The educated 8% (WEMC) led the INM
- The press grew from Hicky 1780 through a cycle of repression and concession (Gagging Act 1878, repeal 1882) and carried reform and nationalism.

Key term	In plain words
Doctrine of Reason	No practice, however old or sacred-seeming, is beyond rational scrutiny
WEMC	Western Educated Middle Class: led social reform and then the Indian National Movement
Socio-religious reformer	Uses Logic AND Religion (scripture); a pure social reformer uses only Logic
Cultural nationalism	The pride answer to British criticism: clean up what went wrong, recover what was great
Sanskritisation	When the lower caste copies the behaviour of the upper caste, a tool for upward social mobility
Enabling / Disabling law	Permits something (HWRA 1856, people decide) / criminalises something (Sati 1829, administration decides)
Brown Sahibs	Indians brown in colour but British in taste, opinions and values, loyal to British rule
Downward Filtration	Educate only the urban elite, who pass it down to the masses at no extra State cost
Grants-in-aid	Non-returnable State funding for private education (Wood's Despatch 1854; Bethune School)
Shuddhi	Bringing back those converted to Islam or Christianity (Arya Samaj)
Quam	Sir Syed's word: India as a summation of Quams, the Hindu and Muslim Quams being separate
Lex Loci Act 1850	Converts keep their ancestral property: conversion no longer means forfeiture

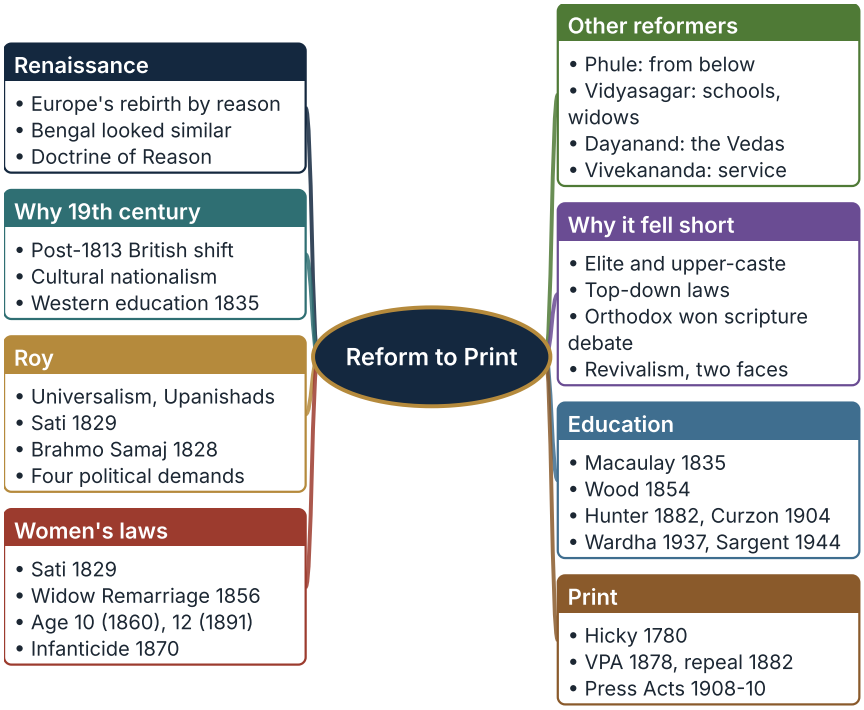
MEMORY MAP: REFORM, EDUCATION AND PRINT



REMEMBER IT AS Reason plus scripture won laws but not the masses; the school and the press then taught the educated 8% to turn reason on the Raj.

PYQs on this topic

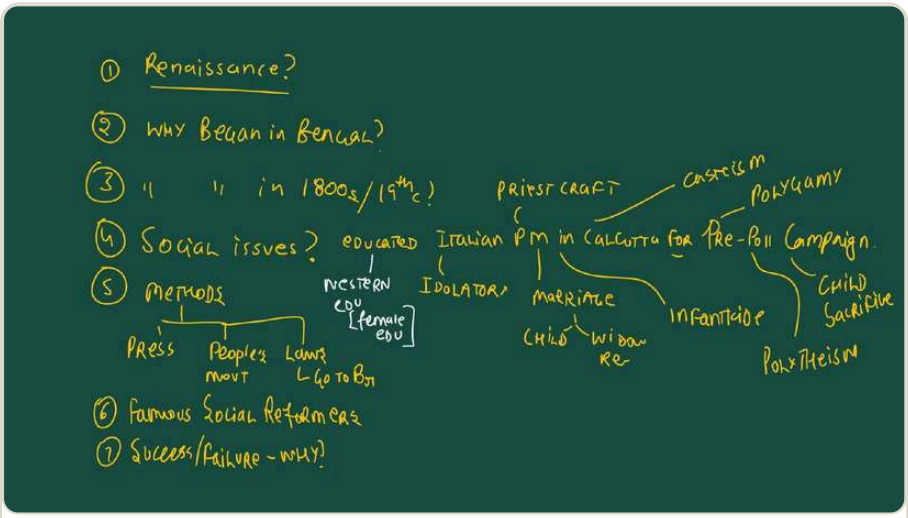
Mains PYQ	Skeleton
2025, 15 marks, 250 words: Phule's writings and efforts of social reform touched issues of almost all subaltern classes. Discuss	Intro: Phule was the first reformer to attack caste, gender, class and economic exploitation together. Body: education (girls' school Pune 1848 with Savitribai; Hunter Commission 1882 memorandum); women (widow remarriage, against child marriage, infanticide prevention centre 1863); Dalits (Gulamgiri 1873, Satyashodhak Samaj 1873, Din Bandhu 1877); peasants (Cultivator's Whipcord 1881, night schools); workers (Bombay Millhands Association 1890 with Narayan Lokhande). Close: he spoke for the oppressed and organised them, bottom-up, unlike top-down upper-caste reformers
2021, 10 marks, 150 words: Trace the rise and growth of socio-religious reform movements with special reference to Young Bengal and Brahmo Samaj	Intro: the shift from Orientalism after 1813, cultural nationalism and the Doctrine of Reason. Body: Young Bengal (Derozio, pure rationality, Society for Acquisition of General Knowledge 1838, failed for lack of faith engagement); Brahmo Samaj 1828 (monotheism, anti-Sati 1829, splits 1866 and 1878). Close: both stayed elite and urban; reason plus scripture worked better than reason alone
2019, 10 marks, 150 words: Examine the linkages between the 19th century "Indian Renaissance" and the emergence of national identity	Intro: Europe's Renaissance chain and Bengal's parallel. Body: cultural nationalism (mild before 1857, strong after), the Doctrine of Reason turned on social practice and then on British rule, the Western Educated Middle Class. Close: from that class came the leaders of the Indian National Movement; Netaji called Vivekananda the spiritual father of the movement in Bengal

Mains PYQ	Skeleton
2017, 15 marks, 250 words: The women's question as part of 19th-century social reform: major issues and debates	Intro: the British used women's status as the yardstick of civilisation, so reformers worked on women's issues. Body: Sati 1829, child marriage (IPC 1860, Age of Consent 1891, Rakhmabai), widows (1856 Act and its catch), infanticide (1870), polygamy, female education (Bethune 1849, Phule 1848, Vidyasagar's schools); debates: scripture versus logic, Tilak against Bhandarkar. Close: laws were top-down and the problem lay in society, so most reforms failed at scale

0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Story so far: the whole chapter is seven questions, from Renaissance to success and failure. Ask: where does each later section answer one of the seven?



Chapter outline: seven questions on reform Lecture 21 slide 34

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Seven questions. (1) Was there a Renaissance? (2) Why Bengal? (3) Why the 19th century?
- (4) What were the social issues?
- (5) Methods: Press, People's movement, Laws (for laws, reformers "went to the British"). (6) The famous reformers.
- (7) Success or failure, and why? The chapter follows this order.

1 · The "Renaissance" framing

STORY LINK

Because Europe's rebirth by reason changed religion, society, economy and polity, the Bengal reformers borrowed the same method. Ask: what did the reformers take from the past, and what did they use to fix it?

- The word Renaissance first named Western Europe's 14th-century intellectual rebirth: a conscious recovery of ancient learning, driven by reason and aimed at human welfare.

19th-century Bengal looked strikingly similar:

- the same problems:
    - An oppressive priestly establishment misusing social power, no modern education, birth-based privilege and deep poverty
- the same response: reformers reached back into ancient Indian scriptures to restore what was great, and used reason and rationality to remove what was not.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The chain of consequences. The European Renaissance triggered a cascade: Reformation in religion, end of Feudalism in society, Capitalism in economy, Enlightenment in polity, and the Scientific and Industrial Revolutions.
- The Bengal Renaissance had a similar cascading effect: it fed a modern Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC), and from that class came the leaders of the Indian National Movement.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Renaissance = re-birth of society
- Mother of Capitalism, Enlightenment and the Humanities.
- Before it, Europe in the Dark Ages:
    - Education was theology
    - the Church taught "we are born to suffer", no happiness on earth
    - wealth concentrated, no scope of being rich
    - no democracy
- Then Venice and Genoa earned cash from trade, new towns in port areas grew, and cash became a source of power (against land).
- The theme turned to "Happiness of the Human", changing each field: art (portrait painting), economy (capitalism: security of property, equality of opportunity, "right to be rich"), society (inter-personal relations, rights and obligations in marriage, hence social reforms), polity (fundamental rights, democracy, Enlightenment 17th-18th c), technology (medicine, machines, Industrial Revolution 1750-1850, voyages of discovery 16th c) and psychology/philosophy.
- The "method of R" = reason.

Method of the Renaissance: learn from the past, then reason Lecture 21 slide 38

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Renaissance method, "like a UPSC aspirant". Step 1: go back to the golden past (ancient Greek and Roman scriptures), copy-paste it to today's times, realise it will not work. Step 2: reason, logic, rationality.
- So: learn from the past, then new solutions via the Doctrine of Logic/Reason/Rationality (DoL/R/R).
- Link: Constitution 1950: Scientific Temperament = Fundamental Duty.

- Why "socio-religious reform" and not simply "social reform"?
- In India religion did not merely coexist with social practice, it determined it.
- Sati, child marriage, caste hierarchy, widow remarriage and polygamy were all justified by selective interpretations of religious texts.
- You could not touch the social practice without confronting the religious sanction behind it.

Socio-religious reform versus social reform Lecture 21 slide 41

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Socio-religious reformers use Logic AND Religion
- Pure social reformers use only Logic. The masses are deeply religious, so a practice rooted in religion changes only by reforming or re-interpreting the religion.
- Derozians = social reformers, not socio-religious: only logic to convince people and Government. Hence their failure (Section 7).

2 · The social issues

STORY LINK

Because reformers had a method, they listed the evils it must tackle. Ask: which of these were never evil in themselves, only distorted?

- Reformers identified these major social ills: education, idolatry, priestcraft, child marriage, widow remarriage, female infanticide, polygamy, polytheism and casteism.

HANDOUT ALERT

A small mismatch. The handout lists nine ills; the board draws ten, adding child sacrifice (Sagar Island 1803, Section 6). Learn ten.

- Not every item is evil in itself.
- Idol worship helps a worshipper concentrate spiritual energy
- Not all priests are negative: Ramakrishna Paramhansa himself was a temple priest.
- Polytheism is inherently pluralistic and so secular in character.
- Social ills arise when there is no genuine spirituality, when social power is misused, and when society is fragmented by divisions.
- The problem was never the practice itself but its distortion.

3 · Why social reform began in the 19th century, and why in Bengal

STORY LINK

Because the evils were old, something new must have started the reform. Ask: what did the British (Liberals, Evangelists, cultural nationalism) and Western education add?

3.1 The role of the British

- After 1813 the British moved away from Orientalism (which treated Indian culture and learning as worthy of respect and study) towards a new coalition of Liberals, Utilitarians and Evangelists, who actively supported Western education and social reform.
- The Evangelists also promoted conversion to Christianity, which created fear among Indians for the survival of their religion and pressure to reform from within.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Why the government mattered: it has L (legislative) and E (executive) power, finance and military resources (MR); so if the Government wants, social reform becomes possible. 1813: British criticism of Indian civilisation (Chapter 15), answered by cultural nationalism. 1857: British ideology = "Dogs and Indians not allowed".

3.2 Cultural nationalism as a response

- As the British moved away from Orientalism they argued that the greatness of ancient India was a myth.
- Indian reformers pushed back with cultural pride: "we will prove you wrong by cleaning up what has gone wrong and recovering what was great." This cultural nationalism ran through all 19th-century reform: mild before 1857, far stronger after.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Colonialism has three faces:
  - Political, economic, cultural
  - each calls up a nationalism
- Cultural nationalism:
  - "by studying scripture we will prove that our ancient civilisation [Vedas, Shastras] does not support social ills and supports reason"
  - The ancient past was great
  - In the present, social reform makes Indian society great.

Socio-religious reformers: searching for modernity in scriptures Lecture 21 slide 42

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The "Ctrl+F" method. Step 1: identify the logical, ideal practice.
- Step 2: open the scriptures (like a PDF), Ctrl+F "LOGIC", get "50 results".
- Step 3: go to the people with those 50 results.
- The target population is deeply religious, so this has better chances than a pure social reformer.
- Same for Roy on Sati: "choose logic, then Ctrl+F logic in scripture".

3.3 Western education (1835 onwards)

- Reformers educated in Western thought met the Doctrine of Reason: no practice, however old or sacred-seeming, is beyond rational scrutiny.
- It became their primary tool against irrational and inhumane practices.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Logic chain (board: "UPSC syllabus minus anything which glorifies India"): Orientalism → Liberalism (1813+), so the government took up social reform for the White Man's Burden (WMB).
- Western education (1835) → a WEMC motivated by Reason (R) → social reform was the first step → the WEMC became the leaders of social reform.

3.4 Why in Bengal

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why Bengal? It was the political headquarters (the Governor General sat here), so Western education progressed most here.
- Education growth of the three presidency cities: Section 24.

4 · Who led the reforms, over time

STORY LINK

Because the government held the legislative and executive power, the early reformers asked for its help. Ask: why did British interest fall after 1857?

Period	Leaders	The British
First half of the 19th century (pre-1857)	Western-educated men from upper castes, willing to seek the colonial government's help to pass reform laws	Willing to assist: it fitted the White Man's Burden (WMB), the colonial belief that it was the "civilised" Englishman's

		duty to uplift "backward" peoples
Second half (post-1857)	More culturally nationalistic leaders, some without Western education at all (the teacher's examples: Dayanand and Vivekananda, who focused on the masses)	Far less interested in reform and far more overtly racist about Indian civilisation. The 1857 Revolt shook British confidence and bred contempt

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Pre-1857 reformers: WEMC, gradualists, wanted British support (L and E), tool = press, no mass movement, top-down reforms, at first neglected sensitive issues (women, caste).
- Post-1857: British ideology = "very up racism and authoritarianism".

Why British interest in social reform fell after 1857 Lecture 22 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why British interest fell after 1857. The EIC's business function ended in 1833, leaving only the State's (territory, T) motive.
- Social reform = secondary motive
- Primary motive = empire + Drain (political and economic colonialism), not sacrificed for a secondary one
- The Revolt came from fear for religion and customs, so the British gave up the secondary motive.
- Ideology after 1857: more racism and authoritarianism, "Indians are beyond reform".

5 · Classifying the reformers

STORY LINK

Because the reformers differed, the teacher sorts them by method, belief and goal. Ask: where does each man sit on the gradual or radical line?

- Three axes: method, beliefs, goals. (Add the first teacher cut: social versus socio-religious reformers, Section 1.)

Classifying the reformers: method and beliefs, with dates Lecture 22 slide 11

5.1 By method

- No mass movement attempted: Ram Mohan Roy (the teacher: he spoke complex Sanskritised Bangla prose, so he did not even try).
- Built mass movements: Keshab Chandra Sen (1860s), Swami Dayanand Saraswati (1870s), Swami Vivekananda (1880s).
- Pure rationality: Derozio and Young Bengal. They failed to create a mass movement because their target people were religious and pure reason without faith did not move them.
- Rationality plus scripture was more successful: Roy, Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar, Dayanand, Vivekananda.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Mass-movement builders use the press AND go to the people (they change hearts, values, attitudes)
- Usually radical.
- Press-only elite workers are "armchair intellectuals", usually gradualist.
- Separate axis: who wants British help (L and E authority) and who does not.

5.2 By beliefs

- Logic and rationality are the final authority (if reason and scripture conflict, choose reason): pre-1857 reformers, Roy and his contemporaries, with milder cultural nationalism and ease with Western frameworks.

- The Vedas are infallible: Dayanand, Ramakrishna, Vivekananda, the post-1857 camp, with stronger cultural nationalism.
- Their answer was to recover the pure original Vedic teaching.

> "Upanishads = main" (Ramakrishna); "Rig = main Veda"; "Vedas have test of rational thought" (Dayanand's claim that the Vedas stand the test of reason).

5.3 By goals

- Gradual reform: Roy, Debendranath Tagore, the Brahmo Samaj, the Prarthana Samaj.
- They avoided sensitive issues such as caste and marriage practices for fear of alienating the masses they wanted to uplift.
- Radical, immediate reform: Derozio's Young Bengal, Keshab Chandra Sen, Dayanand, Vivekananda, Vidyasagar, who took up even the most sensitive issues and wanted fast change.

> - Gradualists do "holey-holey" (slow) reform, are not full-time reformers, do "easy first, tough reform later", and argue "society is not ready yet".
> - Radicals work in mission mode, can be full-time reformers, and do "all together, tough first".

Types of reformers: gradualists versus radicals Lecture 21 slide 43

HANDOUT ALERT

- Overlaps are normal. The same man sits in several boxes:
  - Roy is no-mass-movement, rationality-plus-scripture, reason-as-final-authority and gradualist
  - Keshab is a radical mass-movement builder
  - Vidyasagar is radical and rationality-plus-scripture but not a mass-movement builder
- Build the table yourself from the teacher's rule "10 basic Qs on XYZ".

6 · Child sacrifice at Sagar Island (1803)

STORY LINK

Because the State held executive power, it could ban one cruel practice early. Ask: was this a social reform or an early executive act?

- In 1803, Wellesley 98-05 banned child sacrifice at Sagar Island (Sagar Dwip, where the Ganga meets the Bay of Bengal, a major Hindu pilgrimage site) in Bengal.
- An early sign that the colonial government would use executive power against specific social practices.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Concept for the next section (Derozio was a Eurasian).
- Before the 1911 census:
  - Mixed parentage = "Eurasian"
  - a European living in India = "Anglo-Indian" (Anglo living in India)
- From the 1911 census:
  - Mixed parentage = Anglo-Indian
  - Europeans = "Europeans in India".

7 · Henry Vivian Derozio and Young Bengal (late 1820s to 1831)

STORY LINK

Because logic alone was the first experiment, Young Bengal tried it. Ask: why did total faith in reason, with no religion, fail with a religious people?

7.1 Derozio

- Henry Vivian Derozio was a Eurasian teacher at Hindu College, Calcutta.
- He died suddenly in December 1831.
- In his active years (late 1820s to 1831) his followers were not called "Young Bengal": they were "Derozians", "Ultra-Reformers" or "the radicals". "Young Bengal" came later.
- (The label echoes Mazzini's "Young Italy", educated youth breaking from a tradition-bound older generation.)
- His method was "question everything": he pushed students to challenge orthodoxy (blind following of old practice) with reason, Western sciences and sometimes outright atheism.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Formula: only logic + negating religion + radical reform = "viral" and "infamous".
- Derozio's death is linked to David Hare (educational reformer).

7.2 What the Derozians did, and why they failed

- 1838: Young Bengal set up the Society for Acquisition of General Knowledge: Tarachand Chakravarty (President), Ramgopal Ghosh (Vice President).
- A forum to debate Western sciences and social reforms.
- No mass movement, no engagement with religious feeling.
- Why they failed: total faith in Western rationality plus complete disregard for religion created a gap with a religious people.
- They ate beef and drank wine, a public scandal: "great controversy but poor mass politics".
- Political demands (shared with Roy), ahead of their time: Separation of Powers, Freedom of the Press, Indianisation of the Civil Services, Trial by Jury (guilt decided by citizens, not one judge).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- These demands come from Western education, "modern polity".
- Services:
    - Uncovenanted Civil Services open to Indians: 1833
    - Covenanted Civil Services: 1853.

Separation of Powers: Cornwallis, Charters of 1833 and 1853 Lecture 22 slide 17

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Separation of powers: which powers, at what level.
- Cornwallis 86-93 separated J (judicial) and E (executive) powers at District Collector (DC) level.
- Charter 1833: 1 legal member added to the Governor General's council, "a grain of SoP".
- Charter 1853: 6 more, "introduction of SoP" (separating legislative from executive work).
- At Governor General level:
  - No separation
  - he was boss of both L and E. (Chapters 17 and 18.)

8 · Raja Ram Mohan Roy

STORY LINK

Because Young Bengal failed, Roy joined reason to scripture. Ask: how did he use universalism, the Upanishads and the State together?

8.1 Who Roy was

- Roy is called the Father of Modern India.
- He was the first major figure to see that social reform could not be separated from religious reform, and the first to attempt a real synthesis of Indian tradition and Western modernity.
- The board tags him "[From Indian Society] [Initiator]".
- He was a scholar of the Vedas, Sanskrit, Persian literature and Christian scripture.

- He challenged the British claim of Christian superiority by engaging Christianity seriously.
- His position was universalism: all religions lead to the same God.
- For Hindus the Vedas were the supreme path, but he did not argue for conversion and did not treat Hinduism as the only road. He believed in cultural synthesis.
- (Rabindranath Tagore would later hold the same position.) He founded the Calcutta Unitarian Committee (1821) (with William Adam and Dwarkanath Tagore, as Section 23.5 and PYQ 18 note).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Roy's synthesis:
  - "Western culture, Western education without giving up Vedantic traditions"
  - a way of countering the Evangelists, proof of cultural nationalism, and peaceful coexistence of Hinduism and Christianity.
- Cultural synthesis is "in line with" logic.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Universalism = monotheism applied BETWEEN religions (all religions lead to God; all Gods are God).
- Monotheism WITHIN a religion (Hinduism): God is one God and all Gods are one God: the Upanishads.
- Roy used both: universalism for Christianity and Hinduism, Upanishadic monotheism for Hinduism.

TEACHER'S BOARD

The RRR picture: an Indian scientist in Western dress, no religious symbol, who still prays to his God before leaving home = Roy's synthesis: modern outside, Vedantic inside.

8.2 Roy's beliefs

- His main concern was polytheism. From the Upanishads he argued that authentic Hinduism is monotheistic. He translated the Upanishads into Bengali to prove it.
- Brahmoism is defined by this monotheism.
- He also condemned idolatry, priestcraft, child marriage, the poor condition of widows, infanticide, casteism and polygamy.
- He used the Doctrine of Reason against three religious ideas: other-worldliness (heaven and hell as real places), the doctrine of Karma (present state fixed by a past life) and the doctrine of Incarnation (gods taking human birth).
- On Sati he argued that Sati is murder as per every Shastra.
- It was a scriptural argument because only that would move the British and orthodox Hindus.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Brahmoism = "[within Hinduism]", "[not a new religion outside Hindu]".
- Beside the list of evils:
  - "[= GG &amp
  - BUT optional = polytheism]"
- Roy's method in a line: "(1) choose logic, (2) Ctrl+F logic in scripture."

8.3 Roy on education

- For Roy rationality was supreme and the Vedas were not infallible (unlike Dayanand and Vivekananda after 1857).
- He wanted public money spent on Western education and Western sciences, not Indian classical learning.
- When the government proposed a Sanskrit College in Calcutta in 1824, he actively opposed it.

	Benaras Sanskrit College	Sanskrit College, Calcutta
Year	1791	1824
Set up by	Jonathan Duncan, under Cornwallis 86-93	Under Amherst 23-28, on the advice of the Orientalist faction of the General Committee of Public Instruction
Purpose	Train Pandits to administer Hindu law: a purely administrative need	Better understanding of Hindu laws
Later	Not abolished by the English Education Act 1835	Roy opposed it. Vidyasagar became Principal in 1851, opened it to non-Brahmins and added Western sciences

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Roy "wants the West like the Industrial Revolution for GDP growth". 1813 Charter: Rs 1 lakh on education.
- Roy's advocacy of English education influenced Macaulay's Minute 1835 (Roy died 1833), which led to the English Education Act 1835.

8.4 Roy's method: use the State

- Roy was willing, strategically, to use British legislative and executive power.
- He worked with Bentinck 28-35, Thomas Macaulay and the philanthropist David Hare.
- This cooperation lay behind legislation for education and the Sati Abolition Act 1829.

8.5 Roy's administrative demands

MNEMONIC · ROY'S AND YOUNG BENGAL'S FOUR POLITICAL DEMANDS

T I P S

Roy and Young Bengal gave the rulers TIPS on how to govern.

T Trial by jury: guilt decided by citizens, not one judge
I Indianisation of the Civil Services
P Freedom of the Press
S Separation of Powers

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- Beyond social reform Roy demanded Separation of Powers, Freedom of the Press, Indianisation of the Civil Services and Trial by Jury.
- Young Bengal made exactly the same demands: the emerging consensus of the WEMC.

9 · Sati

STORY LINK

Because Roy had a method, Sati became its great test. Ask: why did this law succeed when others stalled?

9.1 Sati defined, and its origin

- Sati was the practice by which a widow self-immolated on her husband's funeral pyre.
- The earliest firm epigraphic evidence is the Eran Pillar Inscription of Bhanugupta (510 CE) at Eran, in Sagar district, Madhya Pradesh: it records the wife of a chieftain named Goparaja performing the act after his death in battle (the handout says out of love and devotion).
- In Vedic times there was no Sati.
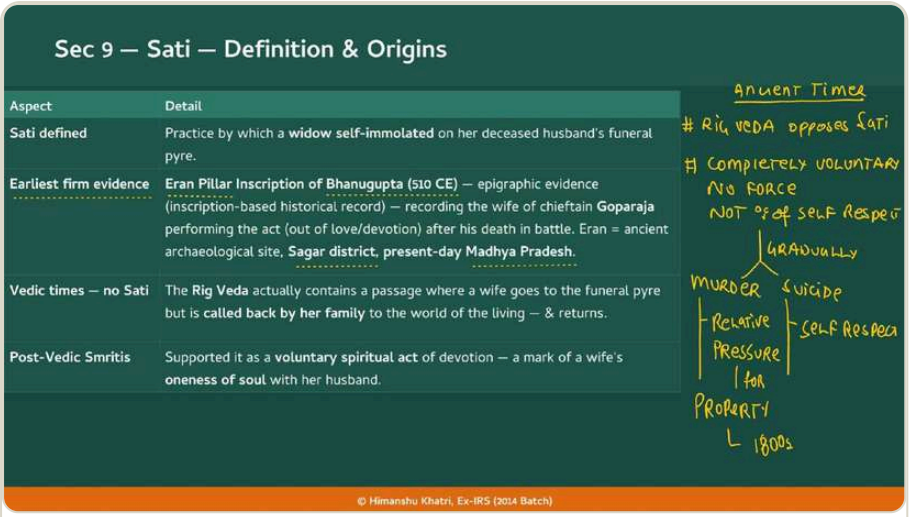
- The Rig Veda has a passage where a wife goes to the pyre but is called back by her family to the world of the living, and returns.



Sati: definition and origins Lecture 22 slide 24

- The post-Vedic Smritis supported it as a voluntary spiritual act, a sign of the wife's oneness of soul with her husband.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Ancient times:
  - Rig Veda opposes Sati
  - the act was completely voluntary, no force.
- "Gradually" it split into Murder (relatives pressing for property, dated 1800s) and Suicide (self-respect).
- Key words:
  - Epigraphic evidence
  - Sagar district, Madhya Pradesh (Eran)

9.2 Why Sati persisted into the 19th century

- By the 19th century the original spiritual rationale had largely collapsed.
- What drove it was social pressure, greed and patriarchy:
- Relatives did not want to share property with a childless widow
- A widow was seen as an economic and social burden
- Sati removed any perceived risk to caste "purity" or family honour from a widow's future conduct;
- society glorified the act as spiritual salvation, a powerful social pressure.
- So by the 19th century a "voluntary spiritual act" had become, in most cases, coerced suicide or outright murder, driven by inheritance greed and patriarchal control.

9.3 The scale of the problem

- Sati was never a pan-India phenomenon. It existed mainly in Bengal among upper castes, and historically in Vijayanagara (1336-1646) and Rajputana, where the related

Jauhar (mass self-immolation by women to avoid capture and dishonour by victorious armies) had different origins in warrior-clan honour.

- What made the 19th century alarming: lower castes in Bengal began practising Sati as part of Sanskritisation.

Sanskritisation: lower caste emulating upper caste Lecture 22 slide 25

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Sanskritisation = the lower caste (LC) copies the behaviour of the upper caste (UC). Why?
- A sub-group seen as having true knowledge of religion and its rituals, and practising them, gets higher status
- imitating the UC is a tool for upward social mobility.
- UC at the top, LC below: lower castes were climbing up by copying Sati.

9.4 How Sati was abolished (1829)

TWO KINDS OF LAW: WHO DECIDES?

Law and reform
- Can the State force it?

@ Enabling law
- Permits something
- e.g. Widow Remarriage 1856
- Ultimate authority: the people

PEOPLE decide: partial role of law, so it stalled

@ Disabling law
- Criminalises something
- e.g. Sati Abolition 1829
- Ultimate authority: administration

POLICE decide: L and E act, so it worked

- Christian missionaries opposed Sati from 1813 but achieved nothing. The decisive campaign was Roy's.
- Bentinck 28-35 set a firm pre-condition: it had to be proven from Indian scriptures that Sati was not religiously sanctioned.
- (His Orientalist instinct: he would not override Indian tradition without Indian scriptural authority.)

- A formal scriptural debate followed: the Brahmo Samaj versus Radhakanta Deb, a prominent orthodox Hindu leader and, otherwise, an education reformer.
- The teacher dates the debate 1828.
- Roy won: Sati is murder as per the Shastras.
- 1829: the Bengal Sati Regulation (Regulation XVII), the 17th law of the year, made Sati punishable as culpable homicide.
- Radhakanta Deb founded the Dharma Sabha (1830) to oppose abolition and petitioned the Privy Council in London (the Crown's advisory body, here acting as the highest court of appeal for India). The petition was rejected.

MNEMONIC · HOW THE SATI BAN CAME, 1828 TO 1830

Debate Launches Abolition

D 1828 Debate: Brahmo Samaj versus Radhakanta Deb; Roy wins on scripture

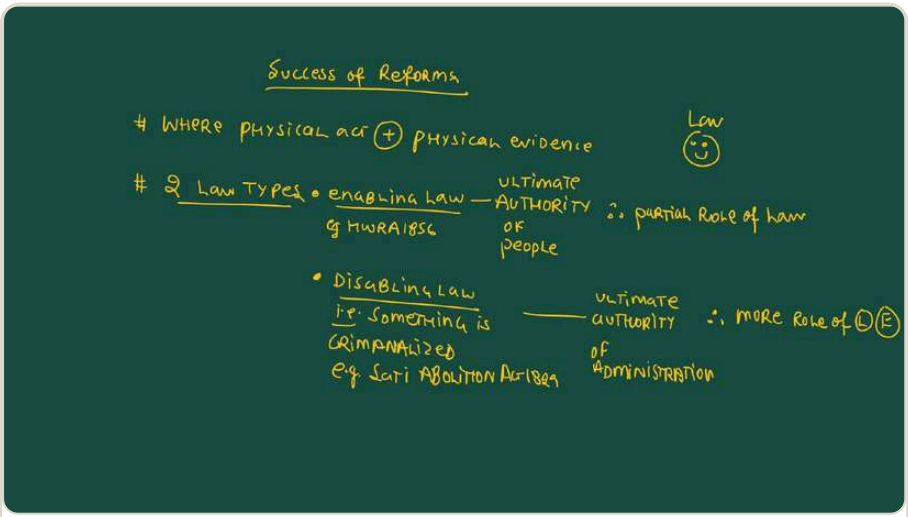
L 1829 Law: Bengal Sati Regulation XVII under Bentinck 28-35, culpable homicide

A 1830 Appeal: Radhakanta Deb's Dharma Sabha petitions the Privy Council; rejected

Order kept: three consecutive years, debate, then law, then appeal.

HANDOUT NOTE

The Dharma Sabha's appeal to London is one of the earliest uses of the metropolitan legal system as a battleground for Indian policy; the same route was used in far bigger ways in the constitutional debates of the 20th century.



Success of reforms: enabling versus disabling law Lecture 22 slide 28

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A law can succeed where there is a physical act plus physical evidence (a burning widow can be seen and proved).
- Enabling law (permits, e.g. Hindu Widow Remarriage Act 1856): ultimate authority = the people, so law plays only a partial role.
- Disabling law (criminalises, e.g. Sati 1829): ultimate authority = the administration, so the L and E role is bigger.
- Hence Sati ended and widow remarriage stalled.

10 · The Brahmo Samaj (1828)

STORY LINK

Because Roy needed an organisation, the Brahmo Samaj of 1828 was born. Ask: who held it together, and who split it?

- Roy founded the Brahmo Samaj in 1828 as the organisational vehicle for his agenda.

10.1 What it stood for

- It worked against idolatry, priestcraft, polytheism and Sati.
- It did not at first focus on women's issues beyond Sati, or on caste: too sensitive
- A strong stand risked losing members
- On Karma and transmigration of the soul (past life, present life, next life) the Brahmo Samaj, unlike Roy personally, took no definitive stand, leaving it to members.
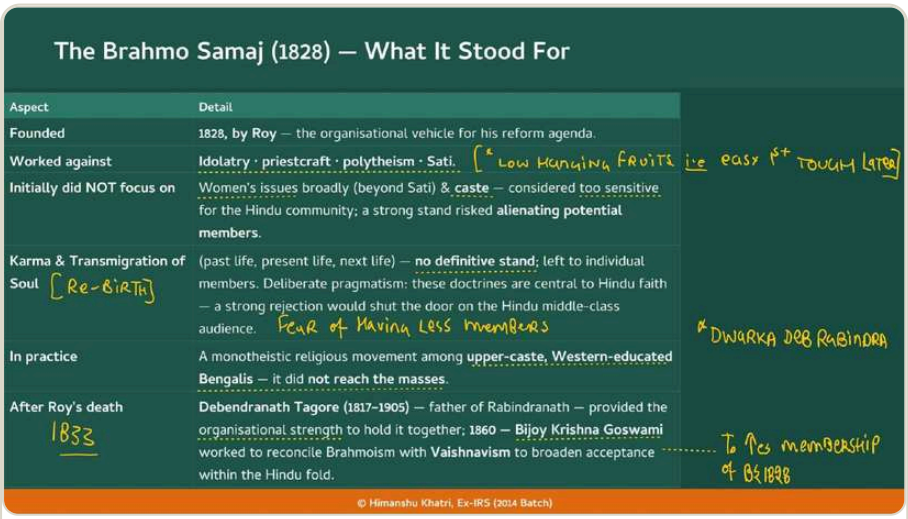
- Strong rejection would have closed the door on its Hindu middle-class audience.



Brahmo Samaj 1828: what it stood for Lecture 22 slide 30

- In practice it became a monotheistic religious movement of upper-caste, Western-educated Bengalis
- it did not reach the masses.

- After Roy's death (1833), Debendranath Tagore (1817-1905), father of Rabindranath Tagore, gave it the organisational strength to survive.
- In 1860, Bijoy Krishna Goswami tried to reconcile Brahmoism with Vaishnavism to broaden its acceptance among Hindus.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Low-hanging fruits": easy reforms first, tough later.
- Karma = "[Re-Birth]" (transmigration = rebirth)
- Silence from "fear of having fewer members".
- The Tagore line: Dwarkanath, Debendranath, Rabindranath.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Roy was the "Steve Jobs", the idea man (RRR)
- Debendranath was the "Tim Cook", the organisational man (DBT).
- That is why Debendranath held the Brahmo Samaj together after 1833.

10.2 The Keshab Chandra Sen crisis and the splits of 1866 and 1878

- The fault line was always gradualism versus radicalism, and it broke open with Keshab Chandra Sen (KCS) in the 1860s.
- Keshab was a radical
- Debendranath a gradualist.

Issue	Keshab Chandra Sen (radical)	Debendranath Tagore (gradualist)
Women	Strong for women's rights, female education, widow remarriage, against child marriage	Too sensitive to push publicly
Caste	Attacked the upper-caste character of the Brahmo Samaj, supported inter-caste marriage, challenged caste at its root	Avoided it entirely
Mass outreach	Wanted to go beyond Calcutta's educated elite, to common Bengalis and beyond Bengal; launched missionary activity to make Brahmoism an alternative religion to Hinduism	Did not want a break from Hinduism

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Keshab: mass movement, all-India movement, head-on on sensitive issues.
- Debendranath (DBT): fear of alienating Hindus.
- Keshab: "Let's start a new religion" → split of 1866.

- 1866, the rupture:
    - Keshab and followers wanted to distinguish themselves from Hinduism

    - Debendranath and followers wanted to stay within it.
- Keshab formed the Brahmo Samaj of India (1866).
- Debendranath formed the Adi Brahmo Samaj (1866): Adi = original, a statement that Roy's original vision was gradualist.
- Keshab's energy produced a legal result, the Brahmo Marriages Act 1872.
- The major drafting was done under Mayo 69-72 (Mayo was assassinated in February 1872 before it was formally passed).
- It gave legal validity to inter-caste marriages and widow remarriages, but only if the bride and groom first formally left Hinduism (a condition that limited its impact).
- Keshab also founded the Tabernacle of New Dispensation (Nababidhan), a syncretic body bringing together the truths of all major religions, and the Indian Reform Association (for women's education, temperance and wider social reform).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Brahmo Marriages Act: "Mayo 69-72". Nababidhan: "[Goal = Brahmoism = better than other religions]".
- Indian Reform Association: "1870, for social reform".
- "BSoI 1866: for religion-related reforms [socio-religious reforms]" while the Reform Association is for social ones.

- 1878, the second split, inside Keshab's own Brahmo Samaj of India: Keshab married off his minor daughter, directly contradicting everything he had said on child marriage.
- His following fractured, and the Sadharan Brahmo Samaj (1878) was formed.

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 2016 trap. The Calcutta Unitarian Committee (1821) is Roy's (key: Roy, Dwarkanath Tagore, William Adam).
- Keshab = Tabernacle of New Dispensation + Indian Reform Association (key: Tabernacle foundation stone 24 January 1868; IRA 29 October 1870, Keshab President).
- PYQ 2012:
    - The Brahmo Samaj opposed idolatry and the need for a priestly class
    - It did not teach Vedic infallibility (key: Debendranath treated the Upanishads as infallible and published parts as "Brahmo Dharma")

10.3 Why the Brahmo Samaj failed

1866 Splits: Brahmo Samaj of India (Keshab) and Adi Brahmo Samaj (Debendranath)

1878 Sadharan Brahmo Samaj, after Keshab married off his minor daughter

- The reasons were internal:
  - Ideological and organisational differences (gradualism versus radicalism, inside versus outside Hinduism)
  - Multiple splits that divided energy, membership and credibility
  - And an upper-caste, urban character with no mass reach
- The teacher's one word for it: factionalism.

10.4 Akshay Kumar Dutt

- Akshay Kumar Dutt (the handout prints 1820-1866; the slide title prints 1820-1886) was a Brahmo Samajist who cited medical opinion against child marriage, an early use of science as a tool.
- He advocated courtship before marriage, equality and partnership within marriage, and the right to divorce by law and custom.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Only Logic": Akshay Kumar Dutt used science (medical opinion), not scripture, so he is a pure social reformer, like the Derozians.

HANDOUT ALERT

11 · Maharashtra

STORY LINK

Because Bengal's reform had reached the whole country, Maharashtra built its own bodies. Ask: how did the Prarthana Samaj copy the Brahmo Samaj?

11.1 The Paramhansa Mandali (1849)

- Maharashtra's first organised attempt was the Paramhansa Mandali (1849).
- It followed Young Bengal's path (reason, rejecting religious authority) and failed for the same reason: a religious society cannot be moved by reason alone.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Link to Bengal-centrism: the English Education Act 1835 applied all-India (it implemented Macaulay's Minute) because of the Charter Act 1833, which made the Governor General of Bengal the Governor General of India.
- So a Bengal-based policy reached Maharashtra. (Chapter 17.)

11.2 The Prarthana Samaj (1867)

- The lasting effort of 1867 was the Prarthana Samaj, set up by Atmaram Pandurang with the active help of Keshab Chandra Sen, who wanted Brahmoism beyond Bengal.
- It is Brahmoism transplanted to Maharashtra.
- Members: Western-educated Marathi Brahmins, Gujarati merchants and Parsis (the same elite character that limited the 1828 Brahmo Samaj).
- Chief figure M.G. Ranade, assisted by R.G. Bhandarkar and K.T. Telang.
- Goals (teacher: "like KCS"): women's issues and caste, plus anti-idolatry, monotheism and opposition to priestly domination.
- Methods (teacher: "like DBT"): gradual, no break from Hinduism, slow reform from within: more acceptable to Hindu society, but it led to gradual irrelevance.
- When Dayanand's Arya Samaj arrived in 1875 (religious, radical, self-assertive, culturally nationalist) it drew away many who found the Prarthana Samaj too slow.
- The Prarthana Samaj opened branches in Gujarat, Karachi (the teacher adds: Sindh) and Madras.
- In Telugu-speaking areas of the Madras Presidency, Kandukuri Veeresalingam Pantulu set up a society for widow remarriage.
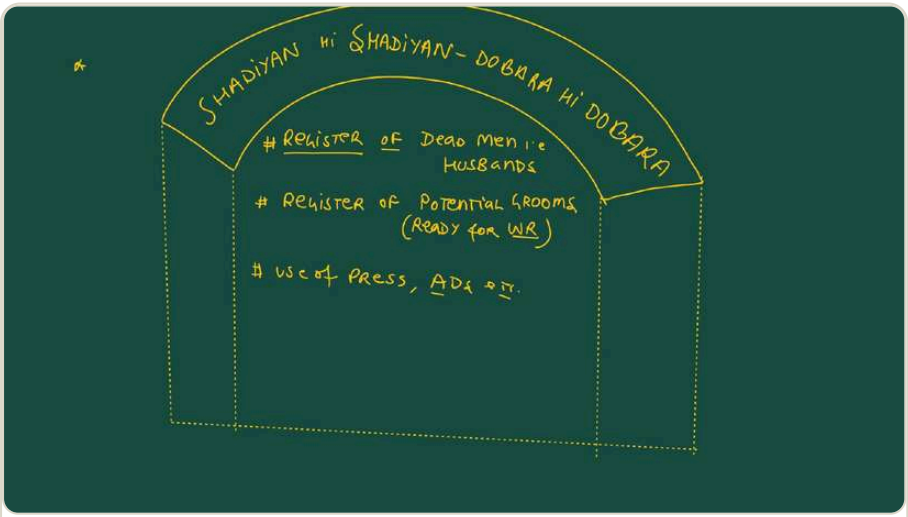
- Reform in Madras was slow: Western education spread unevenly and casteism ran deep.



Widow-remarriage society: registers of widows and grooms Lecture 22 slide 40

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A joke-picture of a widow-remarriage society (after Veeresalingam): a hoarding "Shadiyan hi Shadiyan, Dobara hi Dobara" (weddings, only second weddings), a register of widows ("Register of Dead Men i.e. Husbands"), a register of potential grooms ready for widow remarriage (WR), and press and advertisements to match them.
- Message: such societies were matchmaking bodies using the press.

11.3 M.G. Ranade (1842-1901)

- Mahadev Govind Ranade was the central intellectual force of organised social reform in Maharashtra.
- A student of Elphinstone College, Bombay, he became a judge of the Bombay High Court and a member of the Bombay Legislative Council.
- He edited Indu Prakash (an Anglo-Marathi weekly) with Bhandarkar.
- He is the Father of Indian Economics, a critic of British economic policy (the teacher links it to the Drain Theory), and one of the first to argue that the colonial State should promote industrialisation and welfare.
- His Essays on Indian Economics (1898) was the first systematic Indian analysis of the Indian economy.
- The British gave him the Companion of the Order of the Indian Empire (for his work on a committee on fiscal stability).
- He wrote Rise of Maratha Power, worked for female education, widow remarriage, against child marriage, and co-founded the Maharashtra Girls Education Society with Bhandarkar.
- (Indian High Courts Act 1861: the court he sat on dates from it.)

Organisations Ranade built:

- Poona Sarvajanik Sabha (1870):
  - One of the earliest regional political bodies in India, on the rights of peasants in the Bombay Presidency
  - a precursor of the INC.
- Members: Bal Gangadhar Tilak, Gopal Hari Deshmukh (prominent names: P.M. Mehta and G.K. Gokhale).
- The teacher calls it the first regional political party of WEMC Indians.
- Indian National Social Conference: first session held alongside the INC's Madras session in 1887.
- No scriptural debates: social reform argued on the Doctrine of Logic. The teacher calls it the all-India organisation for social reforms, where religion is not discussed.

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 1996 and PYQ 2012. The passage in PYQ 1996 (social and religious reform, "relied on legislation", Indian National Social Conference alongside the Congress) = Ranade, not Malabari or Vidyasagar.
- PYQ 2012:
  - The Conference was formed because the Congress platform was for political topics only, so a separate social body was needed
  - It was all-India, not "Bengal groups" (the teacher: "not politics", "all India", "ORG for Reforms")
- The slide key credits Ranade assisted by R.
- Raghunath Rao
- The handout names Ranade alone: both agree on Ranade and 1887.

11.4 Gopal Hari Deshmukh, "Lokhitavadi" (1823-1892)

- Gopal Hari Deshmukh, pen name Lokhitavadi ("one who speaks for the welfare of the people"), held the most radical Maharashtra position: social reform is the first priority, above religion
- If the scriptures conflict with social reform, change the religion, because religion is made by man, not the other way round.
- Roy used scripture for reform and Dayanand held the Vedas infallible
- Lokhitavadi stood at the other end: human welfare beats religious authority.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Logic+ (logic over scripture)"; "like RRR [Logic versus Scriptures]": Lokhitavadi sits in the logic-first camp.

12 · Jyotirao Phule (1827-1890)

STORY LINK

Because most reformers spoke about the oppressed, Phule spoke for them. Ask: how many groups did he organise at once?

- If most reformers spoke about the oppressed, Phule spoke for them and organised them.
- He is the first major reformer whose work addressed caste, gender, class and economic exploitation all at once.

Area	What Phule did
Education	Memorandum to the Hunter Education Commission 1882: universal, practical primary education, State funded and run, targeted at lower castes and girls, with trained non-Brahmin teachers, mother-tongue instruction, nominal fees or scholarships, tighter inspection. In 1848 he

	opened India's first girls' school in Pune, with wife Savitribai Phule as the first female teacher (stones and dung were thrown at her on the way to school)
Women	Widow remarriage; against child marriage. 1863: an infanticide prevention centre: anonymous deliveries for pregnant widows, shelter for survivors of sexual assault, an orphanage
Dalit rights	1873: Gulamgiri (Slavery) in Marathi: equates Shudras and Ati-Shudras with African American slaves, blames the priestly class, dedicated to the American abolitionists. In 1873 he founded the Satyashodhak Samaj (Truth-Seekers' Society) to challenge orthodoxy and caste; Din Bandhu newspaper (1877)
Peasants	Cultivator's Whipcord (1881): religion, bureaucracy and economic exploitation (moneylenders, high land revenue, ritual expenses) together grind down Shudra cultivators; festivals and rituals as instruments of economic extraction; he advocated self-reliance, land reforms, use of military labour for rural development; ran night schools for peasants
Workers	Night schools for labourers; co-founded the Bombay Millhands Association (1890) with Narayan Lokhande (main founder): an early effort for industrial workers' rights, not a formal trade union (no membership fees, rules or funds)

1877 Din Bandhu newspaper
1881 Cultivator's Whipcord
1882 Memorandum to the Hunter Commission
1890 Bombay Millhands Association, with Narayan Lokhande

HANDOUT NOTE

Phule's parallel: both Shudras/Ati-Shudras under caste and African Americans under slavery were born into bondage with no exit, and in both the oppressor hid behind tradition and divine sanction.

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 1996 and 2016. Satya Shodhak Samaj = Jyotirao Phule, Pune, 1873, an anti-caste movement in Maharashtra (to improve the status of Shudra and untouchable castes, and the key adds: no priest needed to reach God).
- Not Tilak (1996) and not tribals in Bihar, temple entry in Gujarat or Punjab peasants (2016).

13 · Child marriage

STORY LINK

Because religion itself backed child marriage, it was harder than Sati. Ask: why did the age ladder (10, then 12) change so little on the ground?

13.1 Why child marriage was so hard to uproot

- Child marriage had explicit religious backing. The Garbhadhan ceremony prescribed marriage before puberty and consummation at puberty.
- So here reformers were arguing against a practice scripture itself sanctioned, not a distortion.
- Orthodox opposition was stronger, more principled and harder to beat than on Sati.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Harder than Sati, therefore religious sanction."

13.2 Legislative attempts

- Vidyasagar's efforts contributed to the Indian Penal Code 1860 under Canning 56-62: the minimum age of consummation = 10 years (Section 375 IPC 1860, the definition of statutory rape): a modest beginning.
- Akshay Kumar Dutt added the medical dimension.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- IPC 1860 at age 10 = "not a reform but a law to prevent violation of customary Hindu law".
- Garbhadhan put consummation at puberty, so an age-10 floor only stopped violation of the customary rule
- it did not raise the marriage age
- Laws split into Civil and Criminal
- Civil into Personal and Non-personal
- inheritance is personal law ("the State can make a law but, by default, personal law operates")
- Three laws at the border: Sati Abolition Act 1829, IPC 1860 [age of consent 10], Age of Consent 1891 [12].

13.3 The Rakhmabai case (1884-1888)

- Rakhmabai was married as an infant and lived apart from her husband for years.
- At 22, when he took her to court for denial of conjugal rights, she argued the marriage was invalid.
- The Rakhmabai Defence Committee, led by reformer Malabari (whose 1884 note on child marriage and enforced widowhood had already caused a storm), supported her
- Orthodox Hindus supported the husband.
- She lost (post-1857 orthodox opinion was strong enough to win in court).
- Then Queen Victoria herself overruled the decision and dissolved the marriage.
- Her husband Dadaji Bhikaji
- Rakhmabai later qualified in medicine in England (1894) and was among the earliest practising female doctors, with Anandibai Joshi and Kadambini Ganguly.

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 2020 (Prelims). The Rakhmabai Case of 1884 is about (a) the Age of Consent debate and (b) the doctrine of Restitution of Conjugal Rights.
- It is not a case about women's right to education. Answer (b) 2 and 3.

13.4 The Age of Consent Act 1891

- In 1890 the death of 11-year-old Phulmoni from sexual abuse by her husband forced the issue.
- Lansdowne 88-94 introduced the Age of Consent Bill 1891: minimum age of consummation 12.
- Passed in March 1891 as Act X (10) of 1891.
- Tilak:
    - The British had no right to interfere in Indian custom and religion
    - reform must come from social movement, not colonial legislation.
- R.G. Bhandarkar of Poona Deccan College and the Prarthana Samaj: research showing the Dharmashastras permit marriage after puberty.

- Result:
    - The reform failed on the ground
    - census data from the 1900s (the census ran every ten years from 1881) showed child marriage continued across all castes.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- British: "not interested in initiating reform, but may act if pressure": after the 11-year-old Phulmoni case they did the minimum (age 12).
- Bhandarkar's reply:
    - "Logic + Religion" (logic plus the Dharmashastras)
    - The scripture-based debate dominated socio-religious reform.
- Failure rule:
    - No mass movement, therefore most reforms were failures
    - This is the "character" of the Bengal/Indian Renaissance.
- Applied to the UCC (Uniform Civil Code): "best-case scenario = demand from among the minorities" (reform not demanded from within fails).

14 · Female infanticide, and the Lex Loci Act 1850

STORY LINK

Because law could stop killing but not hunger, infanticide split into two problems. Ask: where does the State end and society begin?

- Female infanticide in north and west India continued largely unabated.
- The reasons were structural:
    - Landowning high-caste men practised hypogamy (handout: "hypogamy"; board: "hypergamy": marrying women from lower castes, often several), which made finding grooms for the daughters of such marriages extremely hard
    - high dowry made it worse
- Mayo 69-72 passed the Female Infanticide Act 1870, but law could not reach the root.
- Census data still showed high girl-child mortality: not direct infanticide but nutritional neglect (girls fed and cared for less, allowed to die), which could not be legislated away.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Cause = dowry + polygamy: husband = upper caste (UC), wife = lower caste (LC).
- Brahmo Marriages Act 1872 sits beside the 1870 Act (both Mayo 69-72).
- Rule:
  - Until society changes, social reform will not succeed
  - The State (L and E) has limitations.

Female infanticide versus girl child mortality Lecture 22 slide 29

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two problems, two answers. Female infanticide (infant girls killed): more role for L and E.
- Girl child mortality, 1 to 5 years (malnutrition): more role for society, less for L and E: "you cannot station a Havaldar in every home".

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout:
  - "hypogamy"
  - Board: "hypergamy" (same idea: higher-caste men marrying lower-caste women)
- Learn the meaning, not the spelling.

The Lex Loci Act 1850

- The Lex Loci Act 1850 (also the Caste Disabilities Removal Act 1850, and the handout's timeline also lists a Religious Disabilities Act 1850) protected the property and inheritance rights of converts.
- Before it, a Hindu who converted to Christianity (or any religion) forfeited ancestral property under traditional Hindu law.
- The Act overrode that: conversion no longer caused forfeiture.

- The State now stood for individual choice, not ancestral religious sanction.
- Two readings:
    - It was called "the legal foundation of religious freedom in colonial India", but this is contested: orthodox Hindus and the WEMC saw a State tilt towards conversion (the strongest deterrent was gone)
    - Christian missionaries saw a long-overdue protection of converts from predatory disinheritance.
- Both have evidence: the Act did weaken the orthodox hold on individual choice and made conversion materially safer.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board links for the Lex Loci Act: "1857 Revolt", "Ideology = evangelicalism", "disability = loss of inheritance on conversion", "fear of religion".
- The Act is tied to the fear of religion behind the 1857 Revolt
- orthodox Hindus and WEMC "opposed" it

15 · Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar (1820-1891)

STORY LINK

Because the home was the hardest ground, Vidyasagar fought on every front there. Ask: which of his battles succeeded and which did not?

- Born Ishwar Chandra Bandyopadhyay on 26 September 1820 in Bengal, he was a prodigy.
- He studied Sanskrit literature for years, moved to Calcutta young (a widow became his caregiver, which may have shaped his lifelong commitment to widows), passed the Hindu Law Committee examination and earned the title Vidyasagar ("ocean of knowledge") in 1839.
- He mastered English, Sanskrit and Bengali and used academic prize money to set up a school and print rare Sanskrit texts.
- His ideology: reason and rationalism are supreme.
- He said "I have no time to think about God": his energy went to social reform. He rejected other-worldliness.

15.1 The educator

- As Additional Secretary and then Principal of Sanskrit College (Calcutta, 1824), he threatened resignation if lower-caste students were not admitted and introduced Western sciences alongside Sanskrit.
- (The college Roy had opposed; Vidyasagar changed it from inside.) He wanted Western education and culture delivered in the vernacular, not only English, so that knowledge went beyond the elite.

- As Inspector of Schools in Bengal he set up 20 Model Schools and ended physical punishment.
- (Inspector = district level; the provincial head was the Director of Education, like SP and DGP in the police.)

Vidyasagar the educator: Sanskrit College, schools, girls' education
Lecture 23 slide 11

- Female education is "the only true route to uplifting society".
- Between November 1857 and May 1858, in the middle of the Revolt, he opened 25 schools for girls with 1,300 girls enrolled at a time
- attendance, books and transport free
- He improved Sanskrit literature and made it accessible through Bengali.
- Tagore said his greatest contribution was to the Bengali language: the Father of Modern Bengali Prose.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Approach: Utilitarianism, "achieve maximum good or efficiency".
- "Champion of women's issues": education, widow remarriage, child marriage, female infanticide.
- "Father of modern Bangla prose": said RBT (Rabindranath Tagore).
- Free for the girls: books and transport ("attendance" struck out).

15.2 Widow remarriage

- His most celebrated battle: in 1855 he wrote a book on the miseries of widowhood and sent the government a petition with 1,000 signatures for a law allowing widow remarriage.
- Result:
  - The Hindu Widow Remarriage Act of 26 July 1856
  - the first remarriage under it on 7 December 1856.
- He married his own son to a widow.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Dalhousie 48-56 or Canning 56-62? The handout and typed slide say the Act came "under Dalhousie 48-56".
- The board says "Passed during Canning 56-62" and "Post in 1854 @ Charter 1853, by Dalhousie 48-56" (probably: the process followed the 1853 Charter and was set going under Dalhousie 48-56; not fully clear).
- So:
  - Act passed 26 July 1856, Canning 56-62's year
  - Idea and groundwork Dalhousie 48-56's.
- For a Prelims code match, handout/typed key = Dalhousie 48-56
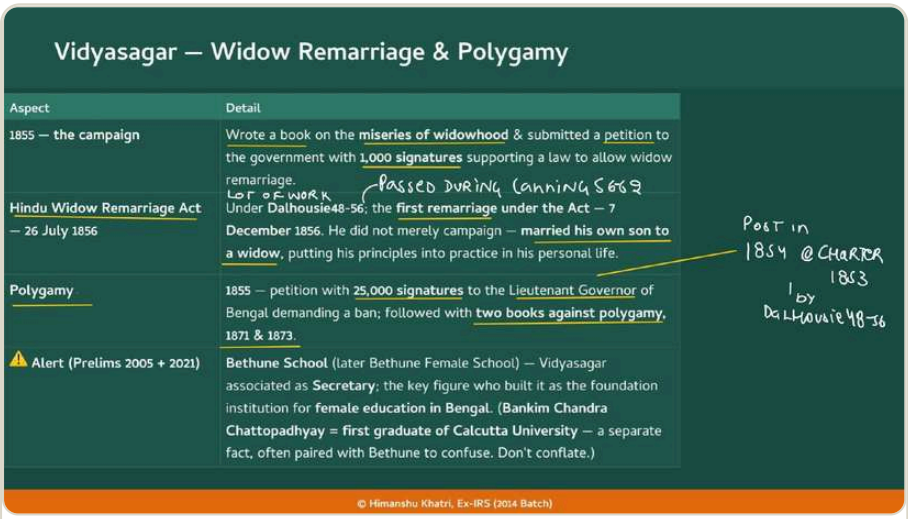
- Canning 56-62 is safe only if the question says "passed"
- Bank item "under Lord Dalhousie" follows the handout.



Vidyasagar: widow remarriage and polygamy Lecture 23 slide 12

15.3 Polygamy and the Bethune alert

- In 1855 he also petitioned the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal with 25,000 signatures for a ban on polygamy, and wrote two books against polygamy in 1871 and 1873.

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 2005 and 2021: Bethune School. The school (later Bethune Female School) was set up in 1849 by J.E.
- Drinkwater Bethune (Law Member of Dalhousie's Council and President of the Council of Education) under grants-in-aid.
- Vidyasagar was its Secretary (appointed by Bethune, December 1850, as the key to PYQ 2021 says), the key figure who built it.
- Bankim Chandra being the first graduate of Calcutta University is a separate fact often paired with Bethune.
- So PYQ 2005 statement 1 ("Vidyasagar founded" the Bethune School) is false on strict facts and the board marks it F ("DRINKWATER"), yet UPSC's key (b) counts it true
- PYQ 2021 asks for the Secretary = Vidyasagar

16 · Widow remarriage after the Act: why it failed

STORY LINK

Because an enabling law leaves the choice to society, the 1856 Act stalled. Ask: what did the widow lose, and who won the scripture debate?

- The Hindu Widow Remarriage Act 1856 was a landmark that did not solve the problem.
- The catch: on remarriage a widow lost her right to her deceased husband's property, enough to keep the law largely ineffective.
- Reform was scattered and always met organised orthodox resistance:
- Maharashtra:
    - Vishnu Shastri Pandit formed a widow-remarriage society in 1866
    - orthodox rivals at once set up a counter-organisation.
- Phule worked among lower castes in Maharashtra for widow remarriage but failed.
- Madras: Veeresalingam Pantulu set up a society.
- Pandita Ramabai was a rare exception:
    - A Brahmin woman who stayed unmarried long, finally married a man of a lower caste
    - after his death she went to England to study medicine, converted to Christianity (criticised even by reformers), and in the USA raised money for a widow home in Bombay.
- She opposed the new role model of the "educated but obedient wife".
- The result was failure. Post-1857 orthodox Hindus had stronger social support and won the scripture-based debate, proving "to most people's satisfaction" that Hinduism did not allow widow remarriage.

- The damage spread downward: even lower castes, who had traditionally allowed widow remarriage, stopped it to align with upper-caste norms (the handout: "Sanskritisation working in reverse", adopting upper-caste restrictions, not only customs).
- By 1900, only 38 widow remarriages had taken place in Maharashtra.
- The reform worked only in Haryana, where it was already accepted.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Pre-1857 reformers never went to the masses, therefore leadership of the masses was taken by the orthodox." That is the vacuum the second-wave reformers found.

The women's reform Acts at a glance (1829 to 1929)

Year	Law	Who and what
1829	Sati abolition (Regulation XVII)	Bentinck 28-35, via Roy; Sati = culpable homicide
1850	Lex Loci Act (and a Religious Disabilities Act 1850)	Converts keep ancestral property
1856	Hindu Widow Remarriage Act (26 July)	Dalhousie 48-56 (handout) / passed in Canning 56-62's year (teacher); via Vidyasagar; the widow lost the husband's property
1860	IPC: age of consent 10 (the figure calls it "Age of Consent Act 1860")	Canning 56-62; via Vidyasagar
1870	Female Infanticide Act	Mayo 69-72
1872	Native (Brahmo) Marriages Act	Mayo 69-72; inter-caste and widow marriage if the couple leaves Hinduism
1891	Age of Consent Act (Act X)	Lansdowne 88-94; age 12
1929	Sharda Act (Child Marriage Restraint)	Age 14 for girls, 18 for boys; Harbilas Sarda (handout figure only; no class slide)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Order trap. The handout's one-line arc runs "...Age of Consent 1860, Female Infanticide 1870, Native Marriages 1872, Age of Consent 1891, Sharda 1929", but the arrows in the handout's flow chart run 1872 before 1870.
- Use the dates: 1870, then 1872.

17 · Character and failures of early 19th-century reform

STORY LINK

Because the same pattern repeated, the chapter now states the character of early reform. Ask: which failures were about people and which about method?

17.1 What defined these movements

- Led by Western-educated upper castes: anti-priest in orientation but upper-caste in composition.
- The primary focus was women, partly from conviction and partly because the British had begun using the status of women as the benchmark of a civilisation.
- Scriptures were central to every argument: reformers used them, orthodox Hindus used them, and even the British insisted on scriptural justification before acting (recall Bentinck 28-35's pre-condition).
- Cultural nationalism throughout: reformers sought modernity within Indian traditions rather than adopt British culture as superior.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why women, and why men reformers:
  - Before the 1800s the criterion of civilisation was language and literature
  - In the 1800s it was the status of women.
- "That's why" the issues were women's issues and most reformers were men.

17.2 Why they failed

Why early reform failed: Hindu revivalism, positive and negative Lecture 23 slide 19

Cause	Detail
No mass movement	Western-educated reformers did not try. Roy wrote complex Sanskritised Bengali prose the common person could not follow. The Prarthana Samaj had only 72 members. Small bodies, elite language
Top-down, not bottom-up	Reform came by British legislative and executive authority, not demand from below. The teacher's triangle: reform the UC and the LC will follow
British involvement bred distrust	Using British authority frightened people that their religion was under threat, pushing them to orthodox leaders
Gradualism	Slowed everything, letting orthodox resistance consolidate
No women in leadership	Women-centred reforms, yet no major reform body was led by a woman. The teacher: "agent of change should be from the group you want to change"
Upper-caste leadership only	Lower castes did not associate with movements led by those who gained from caste
Silence on caste	The central structural issue of Indian society was largely avoided
Post-1857 shift	When second-wave reformers tried to build mass movements, orthodox sections had already captured the masses' leadership
Rival orthodox bodies out-mobilised	Dharma Sabha against the Brahmo Samaj on Sati; the counter-society against Vishnu Shastri Pandit on widow remarriage
Orthodox won the scripture debate	On widow remarriage; even lower castes followed
Post-1875 Hindu Revivalism	A positive face (assertion of Indian traditions, radical reform from within) and a negative face (communal tension, Hindu supremacy over other religions)

TEACHER'S BOARD

Hindu revivalism "by default" had two faces. +ve: social reforms, cultural nationalism, no communalism; examples SDS and SV (Swami Dayanand Saraswati, Swami Vivekananda). -ve: "only the Hindu God is the true God", aggressive reconversion (Shuddhi), aggressive cow protection movement → communal tensions.

HANDOUT NOTE

Reformer organisations at a glance. See the handout grid in Section 19 (after Arya Samaj), which lists the Brahmo Samaj 1828, Young Bengal, Paramhansa Mandali 1849, Prarthana Samaj 1867, Deoband 1867, Satya Shodhak Samaj 1873, Arya Samaj 1875, Theosophical Society 1875, Aligarh 1875, Ahmadiya 1889, Ramakrishna Mission 1897 and SNDP 1903, plus the later Self-Respect Movement 1925.

18 · The Arya Samaj (1875)

> STORY LINK
> Because the early reformers did not reach the masses, a second wave came after 1857. Ask: how is the Arya Samaj different from the Brahmo Samaj?

18.1 Swami Dayanand Saraswati

- His original name was Mool Shankar, from Gujarat. He never married.
- He left home and spent 20 years travelling in search of spiritual truth.
- His journey ended in Mathura, where Swami Virajananda directed him to learn directly from the Vedas.
- Virajananda gave him a task, to spread Vedic knowledge, and a new name: Rishi Dayanand (later Maharishi).

18.2 His beliefs and Satyarth Prakash

- His foundation:
  - The Vedas are the ultimate, infallible source of all true knowledge
  - everything after (rituals, idol worship, caste hierarchy, priestly domination) was corruption
- The answer was Back to the Vedas, not Western modernity.
- He wrote it out in Satyarth Prakash (The Light of Meaning of Truth, 1875), deliberately in Hindi, not Sanskrit, to reach the masses.
- It is the foundational text of the Arya Samaj.
- It attacks idol worship, polytheism, animal sacrifice, untouchability, child marriage and birth-based caste
- it also critically examines Christianity, Islam, Jainism and Buddhism, arguing that Vedic Hinduism is superior to all.
- He stressed the Doctrine of Reason, with the claim that the Vedas alone contain scientific truths, so Hinduism is not backward, it is ahead.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - "ARYA Samaj 1875". On "Vedic Hinduism is superior to all": "[BUT on ground, no communalism)" (on the ground the Arya Samaj did not begin as communal).
> - Contrast "vs SDS" (Dayanand) with Vivekananda: Hinduism = superior, idols and rituals rejected.

18.3 Founded 10 April 1875, Bombay

- The Arya Samaj ("Society of the Nobles") was founded on 10 April 1875 in Bombay.
- Motto: "Krinvanto Vishvam Aryam", "Make this world noble." Its ten tenets cover God, the Vedas, dharma, truth, righteous conduct, physical and social good, love and justice, knowledge over ignorance, collective welfare and individual freedom within social rules.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> "Not imp" for the ten tenets.

18.4 What the Arya Samaj did

- Attacked ills from within the Vedic framework:
  - Idolatry, polytheism, priestcraft, rituals, birth-based caste, child marriage
  - Supported widow remarriage, inter-caste marriage and female education.
- Caste:
  - Discarded birth-based caste and denounced untouchability
  - upheld the Varnashram system by profession, not birth: Brahmans scholars, Kshatriyas protectors, Vaishyas traders, Shudras in service, changeable with profession, not hereditary, not hierarchical.
- (Dayanand proposed a meritocratic alternative, not a defence of caste.)
- Women:
  - "an educated man needs an educated wife"
  - Widow-remarriage programmes in the 1880s.
- Shuddhi: bringing back those converted (voluntarily or not) to Islam or Christianity.
- Under Dayanand it was for those who came forward, not a forced reconversion.
- Gurukuls to teach Vedic knowledge and train spreaders.
- Projected Hinduism as a "religion of the book" like Islam and Christianity: the Vedas as Shruti (that which is heard) and Apaurusheya (not of human origin, eternal cosmic truths).
- Swarajya: a country free of foreign influence, an aggressive, self-assertive answer to British criticism.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Swarajya = "CULTURE": freedom from foreign influence is cultural (not yet political).

18.5 Successes and failures

- The Arya Samaj failed in east and west India (the teacher: competition from the Brahmo Samaj of India 1866 in Bengal and the Prarthana Samaj 1867 in Maharashtra) but succeeded most in Punjab and the North-West Provinces, especially after Dayanand's death in 1883, when it became both more popular and more aggressive.
- Why Punjab: late-19th-century Punjab was a region of intense religious competition (Hinduism, Sikhism, Islam, Christian missionaries), and the Samaj's assertive, organised, scriptural approach suited it.
- After his death the disciples set up the Dayanand Anglo-Vedic (DAV) College Trust and Management Society: the first DAV High School at Lahore on 1 June 1886,

Lala Hans Raj headmaster (Shaheed Bhagat Singh studied at DAV School, Lahore).

- The teacher: the DAV is Western education plus the Vedas.
- Though never directly in the independence struggle, Dayanand's teachings influenced Lala Lajpat Rai, V.D. Savarkar, Madam Cama, Ram Prasad Bismil, M.G. Ranade, Madan Lal Dhingra and Subhas Chandra Bose (the handout's list).

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 2001 (Prelims). (i) Arya Samaj was founded in 1875, not 1835.
- (ii) Lala Lajpat Rai followed the Arya Samaj
- He did not oppose its Vedic appeal. (iii) Under K.
- Hedgewar, the RSS (1925) was partly inspired by the Arya Samaj's organisational model
- Be careful with the chain of influence
- With statement 3 (Keshab's Brahmo Samaj for women's education) and 4 (Vinoba's Sarvodaya Samaj for refugees) true, the answer is (d).

19 · Revivalism: positive and negative

STORY LINK

Because pride can turn aggressive, revivalism had two faces. Ask: which reactions did the negative face provoke?

- Post-1857, reform and revivalism split into two streams.
- Positive revivalism: a more confident assertion of Indian traditions against British criticism: Dayanand, Ramakrishna, Vivekananda attacked social ills from within the tradition.
- Negative revivalism (intensified after Dayanand's death in 1883): under leaders like Pandit Lekh Ram and Pandit Guru Dutt the Arya Samaj became militant: Vedas preached with missionary zeal and an aggressive Shuddhi to reconvert from Islam, Sikhism and Christianity.
- In response the Singh Sabha movement among Sikhs intensified and Muslims launched Tanzim and Tabligh.
- The Cow Protection Movement led to the Cow Killing Riots of 1893.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Singh Sabha: "1873" (date of the Sikh body).
- The same +ve and -ve boards appear in Section 17.2.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Deoband, the Theosophical Society, the Ahmadiya and the Self-Respect Movement appear only in the handout grid
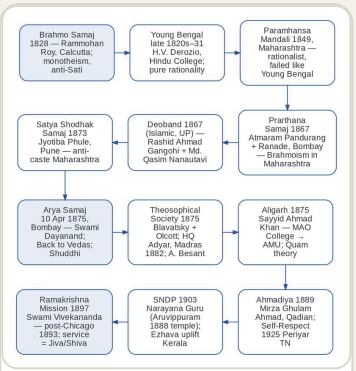
- they are not taught in the class slides of this chapter
- Adyar (Madras) is the Theosophical Society's headquarters from 1882 (see the Madanapalle trap in Section 21).



Handout grid of 19th-century reform organisations, 1828 to 1903 handout figure

20 · Ramakrishna, Vivekananda and Sister Nivedita

STORY LINK

Because the educated found their jobs hollow, Ramakrishna offered undiluted tradition. Ask: why did Vivekananda win more mass acceptance than Dayanand?

20.1 Ramakrishna Paramhansa

- A temple priest, not a Western-educated reformer, writer or debater.
- He believed in meditation, renunciation and monotheism
- Western ideas and education left him untouched.
- He did not criticise colonial rule, but his pure focus on Hinduism was an implicit rejection of Western values and culture.
- His appeal to educated Bengalis is revealing.
- They held clerical jobs under British administration, which he called Chakri (the grinding routine of office work), and found them spiritually hollow.
- Reformism by the 1870s felt like an admission that Indians were uncivilised.
- Ramakrishna offered not reform, not self-criticism, but the spiritual richness of their own tradition, undiluted.
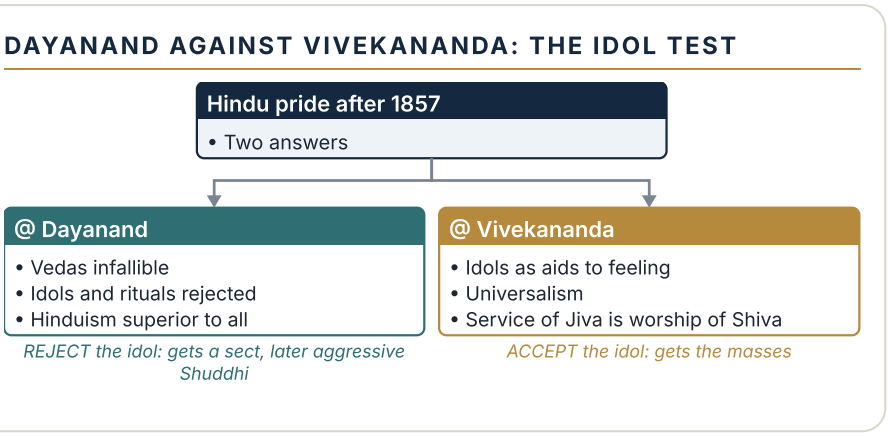
- He argued that Chakri left no time for spiritualism, and that this absence was the real source of the educated middle class's dissatisfaction.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Chakri row: "1833: UCS open to Indian" = jobs in the Uncovenanted Civil Services opened to Indians in 1833 produced the clerks who found Chakri hollow.

20.2 Swami Vivekananda



- Ramakrishna's most famous disciple, a different kind of figure: intellectual, activist, globally engaged.
- Universalism, genuine: a Christian could become a better Christian by studying Vedanta.
- No conversion, no aggression: spread the values, not the label.
- The teacher:
    - Vs SDS (Dayanand): Dayanand held that Hinduism was superior
    - Vivekananda believed in the superiority of Hindu philosophy but not as a negative revivalist
- On the Upanishads: "Spirit = curiosity = Q and A": the Doctrine of Reason.
- He had faith in the glory of Hindu civilisation but admitted degeneration in recent times, without blaming a particular religion.
- "Service of Jiva is worship of Shiva":
    - Social service is spiritual
    - He popularised Daridra Narayan (God in the poor)
    - He thought existing reform too elitist
    - Real work meant going to the masses through service
- Ramakrishna Mission (1897):
    - Two aims: spread Vedanta and undertake social service
    - An army of followers carrying the message of Vedanta, the Upanishads, Buddha and Jesus.
- Also akhadas and gymnasiums:
    - Indian masculinity of physical strength and mental spirituality is superior to the Western
    - Indians were not "feminine", differently strong.
- Idols and rituals: he accepted them as legitimate aids to religious feeling (the teacher again: vs SDS), which gave him far greater mass acceptance.
- 1893:
    - Parliament of Religions, Chicago: Western materialism and Indian spiritualism must come together
    - He became internationally famous
- No political message, nationalism purely cultural

- Netaji Bose called him the spiritual father of the Indian National Movement in Bengal.
- After his death (1902) revivalists selectively used him: Vedic supremacy, some rituals, Hindu glory, and recast "recent degeneration" as degeneration under Muslim and Christian rule.
- Today the Mission runs schools, dispensaries, hospitals and relief work.
- Sister Nivedita (Margaret Noble), Vivekananda's Irish disciple: nurtured cultural nationalism
- Worked for women's education (the Nivedita School at Calcutta, 1898)
- Saw independence as a spiritual necessity
- gave secret support and guidance to revolutionary groups in Bengal, especially the Anushilan Samiti, bridging spiritual revival and militancy
- Wrote The Master as I Saw Him (1910)
- lived in India until her death in 1911.

21 · Bankim Chandra Chatterjee (1838-1894)

> STORY LINK
> Because culture needed symbols, Bankim gave India Bharat Mata and Bande Mataram. Ask: how is Anandmath different from Jana Gana Mana?

- He held that without religious revival there could be no revival of India, yet his was a Hindu secular outlook: religion as a cultural and nationalist force, not a communal one.
- He portrayed Krishna as a modern politician and nation-builder and promoted rational Hinduism, not orthodox Hinduism.
- (Board: "religious revival" → "Do Logic"; "rational Hinduism" → "values".)
- His novel Anandamath (1882) gave India Bharat Mata (Mother India as a goddess) and Bande Mataram, the anthem of the National Movement.
- He was the first graduate of Calcutta University (founded 1857; handout sections 24.8 and 24.9 add that Joddu Nath Bose was the other of the first two graduates in 1858).
- A related note on the National Anthem:
    - Rabindranath Tagore composed Jana Gana Mana in Bengali and himself translated it into English at Madanapalle (Andhra Pradesh) in 1919, where it was also set to music. Bande Mataram is from Anandmath (1882)
    - the two have distinct origins.

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 2021 (Prelims): Madanapalle = Tagore translated Jana Gana Mana into English (1919), not the Theosophical Society headquarters, which is at Adyar (Madras) from 1882.
- (The slide key adds that Margaret Cousins composed the tune; the answer is (c).)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Dates of novels and arts (handout flow chart, Section 25).
- Durgesh Nandini 1865 (Bankim, the first Bengali novel; PYQ 1996 answer (b)) comes after Neel Darpan 1860 (Dinabandhu Mitra, indigo planters' tyranny), so Neeldarpan is earliest in PYQ 2018 against Arya Samaj 1875, Anandmath 1882 and Satyendranath Tagore in the ICS (the teacher's ink 1864, the key 1863).

22 · Sir Syed Ahmed Khan (1817-1898)

STORY LINK

Because Muslims had their own questions, Sir Syed chose modern education without surrender of faith. Ask: where did his social and political positions diverge?

- The most significant Muslim social reformer of the 19th century.
- On social questions he was modern:
    - Supported widow remarriage
    - opposed triple talaq, polygamy, purdah and child marriage
    - wanted Western and female education, all without abandoning the core beliefs of Islam: "modernisation without surrender of faith"
- The teacher notes "(* like RRR)", the same synthesis as Roy.
- But his political theory divided. India was not one nation but a summation of Quams.
- The Hindu Quam and the Muslim Quam were separate: he wanted unity between Quams but insisted on separateness.
- The Muslim Quam, as the community that had ruled India before the British, deserved special status, and Western education was essential to win it.
- The teacher's label: "Father of the 2-nation theory".

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout traces the logic "planted in the 1870s and 1880s" through the Muslim League (1906) to Partition in 1947.

- 1875: Muhammadan Anglo-Oriental College, Aligarh (later Aligarh Muslim University): the heart of the Aligarh Movement, unity and educational strength within the Muslim Quam.

- The teacher: Western education without giving up the core of Islam.
- 1886: the Mohammadan Educational Congress, set up as a rival to the INC, which he viewed as a Hindu organisation.
- Jamia Millia Islamia (1920): set up at Aligarh by a breakaway faction at AMU.
- When Gandhi called, in the Non-Cooperation Movement (1920-22), for students to leave British-supported institutions, AMU stayed pro-British
- the breakaway group founded Jamia: anti-colonial Islamic activism, pro-independence, led by Western-educated radical nationalists
- Founding leaders: Abdul Majid Khwaja, Maulana Mehmud Hasan, Maulana Md Ali, Hakim Ajmal Khan and Dr Mukhtar Ahmed Ansari (who later headed the All-Party Conference that produced the Nehru Report in August 1928).

23 · Narayana Guru (1856-1928)

> STORY LINK
> Because Kerala's caste was the most severe, a lower-caste ascetic built parallel institutions. Ask: why was this method different from petitions and debates?

- Born 1856 in Travancore (Kerala) into the Ezhava community, a lower caste in one of the most casteist societies in India.
- Ezhavas were denied temple entry, barred from public roads near upper-caste homes, and from many kinds of education and employment.
- He became a wandering ascetic, studied Sanskrit, Tamil and Malayalam and Advaita Vedanta (all existence as one consciousness), and from it drew his social vision: caste is philosophically incoherent.
- Slogan: "One Religion, One Caste, One God for Mankind."
- Work and method: institutional, like Phule more than Roy or Vivekananda.
- He built and consecrated temples open to all castes.
- The first:
    - Aruvippuram, 1888, a Shiva idol
    - to upper-caste critics: "This is not a Brahmin's Shiva. This is an Ezhava's Shiva." (All without leaving Hinduism, converting, or legislation.) He set up temples, schools and ashrams open to all, and founded the Shri Narayana Dharma Paripalana Yogam (SNDP) in 1903 for the upliftment of Ezhavas and lower castes
- Gandhi:
    - Visited him at Sivagiri in 1925 and called him one of the greatest men he had met
    - Both opposed untouchability but by different methods (Gandhi inside the Congress framework, the Guru from within the community, in Kerala where the problem was acutest)

HANDOUT NOTE

Three responses to caste failure: Gandhi's assimilationist approach, Narayana Guru's reformist-institutionalist work inside Advaita Vedanta, and Ambedkar's exit through conversion to Buddhism.

- Significance:
  - (1) reform reaching south India seriously, led by a lower-caste ascetic, not Western-educated upper-caste men
  - (2) a new method: parallel institutions instead of petitions or debates: "creating facts on the ground"
  - (3) an argument orthodox Hinduism could not dismiss: he held it to its own highest standard.

24 · Education reforms

STORY LINK

Because reform needed readers and thinkers, the government's school policy shaped everything above. Ask: for whom was each education policy designed?

HANDOUT NOTE

Order of this section (lecture and handout alike): Orientalism and Macaulay, then Adam, Wood, the universities, and the commissions to 1944.

24.1 Why Western education came so late

- Western education reforms did not arrive until after 1813, because of Orientalism: the dominant British view in the late 18th and early 19th century was that Indians should be governed the Indian way, working within Indian literature, languages and laws
- "reform could wait." In England, Edmund Burke (1729-1797), whose critique of the EIC led to Pitt's India Act of 1784, believed Indians were not ready for Western-style reforms or education
- In India the two leading Orientalists were William Jones and Warren Hastings 73-85.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "1835" under the title (the date Western education became policy).
- Stressed: the dominant Orientalism and Edmund Burke.

24.2 The key Orientalists

- William Jones (judge at the Calcutta Supreme Court, 1783-94), a scholar of ancient Greek, Roman and Persian literature, was mesmerised by Sanskrit.

- He argued that Sanskrit epics and poetry were of greater literary stature than anything in Greek, Roman or English literature, a claim that raised the prestige of Indian civilisation abroad more than almost any other act of the era.
- With Warren Hastings 73-85 he began the codification of Hindu and Islamic laws into English, in 1775 and 1778 (handout).
- He founded the Asiatic Society of Bengal (1784) for Oriental research.
- (Dwarkanath Tagore, grandfather of Rabindranath and father of Debendranath, was a member.)
- Warren Hastings 73-85 set up the Calcutta Madrasa (1781) for Arabic, Persian and Islamic law, to understand Indian legal systems and train Indians to help the EIC rule "the Indian way." The Sanskrit College, Calcutta (1824) followed for Hindu law (the one Roy opposed, Vidyasagar transformed).
- Wellesley 98-05 set up Fort William College, Calcutta (1800) to train newly arrived British civil servants in Indian languages, laws and customs.
- (William Carey taught Bengali and Sanskrit there.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

"not imp" for the heading and the Jones row.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Slide versus handout on Jones's codification. The handout dates the codification to 1775 (Hindu) and 1778 (Islamic).
- The typed slide says Jones proposed it to Cornwallis 86-93 in 1788 to remove reliance on Pandits and Maulvis, and lists Halhed's Gentoo Laws (1776, via Persian) replaced by the Manusmriti (1794, from Sanskrit) and Al-Sirajiyyah (1792) supplementing The Hedaya (1791).
- The teacher marked the slide "not imp".
- Learn the institutions (below), not these dates.

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 2018 and 2021: whose college? Benaras Sanskrit College (1791): Jonathan Duncan, not William Jones.
- Calcutta Madrasa (1781): Warren Hastings 73-85 (code 73-85).
- Fort William College (1800): Richard Wellesley 98-05 the Governor General, not Arthur Wellesley.
- PYQ 2021: Wellesley 98-05 set it up to train British civilians (the answer slide notes William Carey was a teacher, not the reason).
- The board's "1800-06" beside Fort William College is unexplained
- The handout gives 1800

24.3 Who pushed for Western education

- David Hare (a Calcutta watchmaker) was a remarkable reformer:

- Championed Western education in English with Roy and Radhakanta Deb.
- Co-founded the Calcutta School Book Society (1817) with Radhakanta Deb (elementary schools, textbooks in English and Bengali).
- Co-founded Hindu College, Calcutta (1817) with Sir Edward Hyde East (Chief Justice, Calcutta Supreme Court) and Roy (later Presidency College, where Derozio taught).
- Founded Hare School (1818). He visited Hindu College daily.
- Died of cholera in 1842
- Christian missionaries refused him a burial site as a "non-believer." Thousands joined his funeral procession.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "# Books, # Schools-Colleges, # Teachers" = what the pushers built.
- "not imp" for the "Who Pushed" heading and for Charles Grant. Metcalfe: "Liberator of the Press".

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout versus slide on Hindu College and Hare's burial.
- The handout says Roy co-founded Hindu College and that Hare was buried within the grounds of Presidency College.
- The slide says Roy backed the initiative but withdrew before it opened, and that Hare was buried at College Square near Hare School.
- The slide also adds that the college's higher section became Presidency College in 1855 and its school section Hindu School.
- For PYQ 2009 use: Hindu College, 1817: Edward Hyde East, David Hare, Raja Ram Mohan Roy (answer (d)).
- Distractors:
    - Derozio taught there (not a founder)
    - Vidyasagar was Principal of Sanskrit College
    - Keshab had no role
    - Alexander Duff came in 1830 and founded the General Assembly's Institution (later Scottish Church College)

- John Malcolm (Governor of Bombay 1827-30) favoured radical reform and Western education and sciences, driven by the Doctrine of Reason and Humanism.
- A cohort of liberal administrators:
    - Thomas Munro (Governor of Madras 1820-27)
    - Elphinstone (Governor of Bombay 1819-27, twice refused the Governor General's post to finish his book)
    - Charles Metcalfe (GG 1835-36), whose liberation of the press brought conflict with the Court of Directors and resignation in 1838.
- (The slide groups these four as "conservatives/paternalists" who preferred gradual change; it names James Mill and Bentinck 28-35 as the radicals.)

- Charles Grant, an evangelist, was both a Member of Parliament and a director of the EIC: he presided over the Charter Act 1813, which legalised missionary entry and set Rs 1 lakh a year on education (the slide: from surplus revenues, for literature, learned Indians and scientific knowledge, with the medium left open; it adds that he campaigned with William Wilberforce).
- He wanted English-medium Western education so Indians would know the laws against EIC official corruption, and believed spreading Christianity would create political stability through a common religion.

24.4 Macaulay's Minute (1835): the decision and the reasons

- The Anglicist-Orientalist debate was settled by Macaulay's Minute on Indian Education (1835), implemented through the English Education Act 1835.
- It chose Western education in English and was the main policy framework until Wood's Despatch 1854.
- It was the product of Roy's advocacy (he died in 1833), Bentinck 28-35's support and Macaulay's drafting.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The debate (1813-35) was settled on two questions: Syllabus (Indian or Western: Western) and Medium (Vernacular or English: English).
- Western syllabus → Western values, glorification of the British → Brown Sahibs (brown in skin colour, British from inside: taste, values) → political stability.
- "imp" for the Decision and Reasons.

Macaulay's Minute and the English Education Act 1835 Lecture 23 slide 45

- Macaulay's famous line: "a single shelf of a good European library was worth the whole native literature of India and Arabia."

	Reasons
Official	Fulfil the White Man's Burden by giving Western sciences and humanities; empower Indians against corruption of EIC officials

	Reasons
Real	Cut the cost of administration (Macaulay's Law Commission 1834 was framing Western-style laws, and needed Western-educated Indians in the lower bureaucracy); create Brown Sahibs: Indians "Indian in blood and colour, but English in taste, in opinions, in morals and intellect", loyal, glorifying British culture, and a domestic market for British goods

Reasons for Macaulay's Minute Lecture 23 slide 46

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Macaulay's six reasons:
  - (1) Political stability: Western education is costly, so only the rich (city-living, upper-caste, landed class, the traditional leaders of the masses, who moved to cities after the Permanent Settlement 1793) can afford it
  - They become pro-British leaders while the poor followers are not led by anyone else
- (2) Administration: the Charter Act 1833 brought Western-like laws (Law Commission 1834 under Macaulay) and Uncovenanted Civil Services open to Indians, which lowers fiscal expenditure (Indians in lower posts), so Western education was needed.
- (3) Ideological: Liberals (Macaulay) "give the best to India, and the best is the West", for the WMB.
- (4) Personalities: Roy + Bentinck 28-35 + Macaulay.
- (5) Administration (again): Western education to reduce corruption through an understanding of rights in Western-like laws.
- (6) Economy: create a market for British exports through the Western values and taste of Brown Sahibs.

- Why elite Indians supported it:
  - Access to government jobs, legal practice, medical practice, teaching and journalism
  - and a genuine belief that Western sciences could modernise and industrialise India.

MNEMONIC · MACAULAY'S SIX REASONS

P O L I C Y

The Minute went 'to Policy' on the teacher's board: six reasons made English education the POLICY.

P Personalities: Roy, Bentinck 28-35 and Macaulay

O Administration: Charter Act 1833 brought Western-like laws and UCS open to Indians, a cheaper staff

L Political stability: the rich, city-living, upper-caste landed class became pro-British leaders

I Ideological: Liberals, 'give the best to India, and the best is the West' (WMB)

C Corruption: cut it by an understanding of rights in Western-like laws

Y Economy: a market for British exports

Order is free here. Some letters sit inside a key word: O in administratiOn, L in poLitical, Y in economY.

- Downward Filtration Theory: the British would not build mass education infrastructure.
- They would educate only the urban elite, who would pass education downward to the masses at no extra State cost.
- High fees blocked the urban poor
- rural areas got nothing (an urban-rural divide)

TEACHER'S BOARD

Beside "genuine belief": "cute Brown Sahib believes in WMB" (the educated elite are "cute Brown Sahibs", believers in the White Man's Burden themselves); "we will educate elites in cities who then [do the] mass education", with a "Gap" under "mass education suffered".

24.5 William Adam's reports on vernacular education (1835-38)

HANDOUT NOTE

Adam's three reports are the most critical documentary evidence of indigenous education before Macaulay's Minute 1835 and Wood's Despatch 1854 dismantled it.

- Context. Bentinck 28-35 appointed William Adam (a Scottish missionary who had co-founded the Calcutta Unitarian Committee with Roy in 1821) to survey indigenous education in Bengal and Bihar.

- The three reports (1835-38) fall in the same window in which Macaulay's Minute settled the debate
- They describe the system that policy then bypassed.

Findings.

- Massive scale: over 1,00,000 pathshalas in Bengal and Bihar alone, almost every village.
- It contradicts the colonial claim that "India was illiterate before the British."
- Caste inclusivity:
    - Children of all castes (except the lowest or untouchables) often sat together
    - Poor agrarian families could attend
- Trap: "Adam concluded the indigenous system was rigid and excluded lower castes" is false.
- Extreme flexibility (most often tested):
    - No fixed fee (paid in kind, rice or grain, or cash by ability)
    - No printed books or fixed syllabus (oral instruction, slate practice, local texts)
    - No separate buildings (banyan trees, temples, mosques, the teacher's home)
    - No annual exams or timetables (continuous personal assessment)
    - Suspended during harvest.
- Curriculum: strictly functional: basic literacy, arithmetic, accounts for daily agrarian and commercial life, exactly what Macaulay dismissed as "useless".
- Impact. India had no "education vacuum" waiting to be filled
- A functioning mass-scale vernacular system existed, starved of funds and destroyed by the shift to English-medium administrative education
- (Wood's Despatch later proposed "vernacular primary schools" as a State innovation, which is hollow against Adam; its real innovation was grants-in-aid and an inspectorate.)

24.6 The English Education Act 1835: key features

- Goal: promote European literature and science among Indians (the slide: among urban elite Indians).
- Medium: all education funds to be used for English education alone.
- Cut-off:
    - No more government money for printing Oriental works
    - no new stipends for students entering Oriental institutions
- Existing institutions (Calcutta Madrasa 1781, Benaras Sanskrit College 1791) were not abolished.
- (The teacher wrote 1781 and 1791 under them.)

24.7 Subsequent milestones (1844 to 1856)

Year	What happened
1844	English compulsory for government jobs: a serious blow to vernacular languages
1847	Roorkee Engineering College (university in 1949; IIT Roorkee in 2001)
1849	Bethune School for Women by J.E. Drinkwater Bethune (Law Member of Dalhousie's Council, President of the Council of Education): female education under grants-in-aid (non-returnable State funding); Vidyasagar was closely associated and served as its Secretary
1851	Vidyasagar Principal of Sanskrit College, Calcutta under Dalhousie 48-56: opened to non-Brahmins, added mathematics and English literature
1856	Vidyasagar Inspector of Schools (Bengal) under Dalhousie 48-56; same year the Hindu Widow Remarriage Act

TEACHER'S BOARD

"PVT sector = ABSENT; Govt job = MAJOR attraction" (English became the ticket to work). Legal Members: 1833-53: 1; 1853-56: 6 (digits after "6 Legal" unclear: check your notebook). Repeats Section 7.2's separation-of-powers board.

24.8 Wood's Despatch (1854)

TEACHER'S BOARD

Why Wood's Despatch? "British India = large (even Punjab annexed 1849), therefore administration" needs a pyramid with a "huge number of lower staff": an ARMY OF CLERKS (the UCS gives "semi-senior" clerks), so mass basic education was needed.

- The Wood's Despatch of 1854, called the "Magna Carta of English Education in India", was a set of directions sent from London by Charles Wood, President of the Board of Control (1784), to Dalhousie 48-56.
- It was the most comprehensive education policy the British had issued and a shift from Macaulay's Downward Filtration.

What it directed:

- Language ladder:
  - Western education for the masses in vernaculars at the elementary level
  - vernaculars plus English at high school (classes 9 and 10)
  - English at college.
- (Today: elementary = classes 1-8; secondary = 9-10; senior secondary = 11-12.)
- Education Departments in provincial governments, closer to the field.
- Teacher Training programmes.
- Continued support for female education.
- Universities in Madras, Bombay and Calcutta (departments for law, engineering, Sanskrit, Persian, Arabic).
- Grants-in-aid (in the PYQ lists)

- A Director of Education in each province and an Inspector of Schools at district level

Real goals:

Front	Goal
Admin	A cheap supply of clerks to cut administrative cost
Culture	Spread Western culture among the masses, plus "moral development and intellectual growth" (Prelims 2002: this was the despatch's stated aim)
Economy	Enlarge the market for British goods
Polity	Glorify British rule among the masses for political stability

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "WESTERN syllabus" over the ladder (content is Western even when the medium is vernacular).
- Beside "moral development":
  - "ethics: Western values &gt
  - &gt
  - &gt
  - Indian values."

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 2002 (aim) and PYQ 2018 (three statements).
- Aim as stated = (b) spread of Western culture (board:
  - T)
  - Employment was the "real reason" (board bracket on (a))
  - (c) is F because the ladder starts in vernaculars
  - (d) "scientific research in traditional education" is F (board: "ended in 1835"; the stem says "traditional")
- PYQ 2018: grants-in-aid T, universities T, English at all levels F: answer (a) 1 and 2.

Impact:

- Dalhousie 48-56 supported it and laid the groundwork
- The three universities (Madras, Bombay, Calcutta) were officially established in 1857 under Canning 56-62 (Dalhousie left in 1856)
- Two more followed: Panjab University, Lahore (1882) and Allahabad University (1887), taking the total to five by the close of the 19th century.
- Bankim Chandra Chatterjee and Joddu Nath Bose were the first two graduates of Calcutta University in 1858.
- Result: failure: female education neglected, high fees blocked the masses, mass infrastructure never built.

- 1870: the subject of Education was transferred to the Provinces.
- Dalhousie 48-56's vernacular push: more elementary schools in Bengal and Bihar, and backing for technical education (efficient labour, good consumers, cheaper administration).

24.9 Universities and the education architecture

- Wood's Despatch laid the groundwork for the three Presidency universities
- Dalhousie left India in 1856, and they opened in 1857 under Canning 56-62.
- Roorkee (1847) gained standing in Dalhousie 48-56's time (later Thomason College, then a university in 1949, then IIT Roorkee in 2001).
- The Despatch also set the spine of governance: a Director of Education at each provincial level and an Inspector of Schools at the district level, a structure that survived into independent India.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Education growth profile": the cities in the order their Western education grew: (1) Calcutta, (2) Bombay, (3) Madras, with years 1699, 1687, 1639 (the last possibly 1632; check your notebook).

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 1996 (order of landmarks) and PYQ 1996 (education policy).
- Hindu College 1817 → Adam's reports 1835-38 → Wood's Despatch 1854 → University of Calcutta 1857: answer (a) 1, 3, 4, 2 (the board beside Hindu College reads "David Hare (1830s)", which clashes with the 1817 in the handout and the key; both put it first).
- Macaulay's Minute 1835 → Wood's Despatch 1854 → Hunter 1882 → Sargent 1944: (a) 2 1 4 3.
- The handout adds the full order: Macaulay → Wood → Hunter → Sargent.

24.10 Why the British pulled back from higher education after 1870

- In 1870 the State cut funding for higher education in Bengal, officially to fund mass vernacular education.
- The real reasons: WEMC Indians were writing increasingly nationalist articles in the press, and the Anglo-Indian press called college-educated Indians seditious.
- Brown Sahibness had begun to wane within 35 years of the English Education Act: the Doctrine of Reason was turned against British rule.
- By 1904 Curzon 99-05 called universities "factories of sedition." The White Man's Burden was looking farcical.
- 1882:
    - Under Ripon 80-84, education became a free enterprise: private institutions could open schools and colleges with State aid and less control
    - Higher education grew rapidly, but only richer sections benefited.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Peak of Brown Sahib = 35 years [1835-70]".
- Western education has three results:
  - Polity → desire for democracy, including Indians' participation in government and administration
  - Economy → desire for the Industrial Revolution
  - Society → social reforms
- Short term: Brown Sahibness, hence British political stability.
- Long term: an ever-growing, stronger INM.
- INM method 1857-1905:
  - "Pen / Press" (the nationalist press)
  - Activities that destabilise the colonial State are "sedition" before 1947, which is nationalism (but not after 1947)
- WEMC = three branches:
  - Youth, Capitalists (merchants, manufacturers) and Professionals (government jobs, lawyers, doctors, engineers, press)
  - the INM was led by the WEMC

24.11 The Hunter Commission (1882-83)

- Set up by Ripon 80-84 to assess progress since Wood's Despatch, the Hunter / Indian Education Commission found primary and secondary education in serious trouble, worsened by the 1870 transfer to cash-strapped Provinces. Recommendations:
- Transfer education to Municipalities (urban) and District Boards (rural), both just empowered by Ripon 80-84's Local Self Government Resolution of 1882.
- Focus on mass education in vernaculars.
- Strengthen female education, especially outside Madras, Bombay and Calcutta.
- Divide secondary education (classes 9 and 10) into literary and vocational streams.
- A special fund for mass education for Backward communities (rejected).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- District Boards = "(* District Panchayat)"
- vernacular item = "[Primary]"
- literary and vocational streams → "IIT" and "ITI" (their later forms)
- Control of education: Provinces 1870, Local Bodies 1882, Provinces 1919.
- Phule's Hunter memorandum (1882) is in Section 12.

24.12 Curzon's attack on the universities

- Curzon 99-05: "universities are factories of sedition." Based on the Raleigh Commission Report (1902) he passed the Indian Universities Act 1904:
- Universities under direct government control (it could veto or amend Senate regulations).
- Fewer fellows, shorter tenures, most fellows government nominees.

- Stricter affiliation of private colleges (a direct attack on nationalist and Swadeshi institutions).
- Rs 5 lakh a year for education.
- He also set up the Indian Agricultural Research Institute at Pusa, Bihar (1905), funded by Henry Phipps, a family friend.

24.13 The Sadler Commission (1917-19), and Gokhale's compulsory education Bill

- Named after Dr Michael Sadler:
- College entry after class 12 instead of class 10.
- Strengthen secondary education (classes 9 and 10).
- Universities to be residential, autonomous and unitary, not scattered affiliated colleges (Sadler is credited with the concept of the modern university campus system).
- Under Chelmsford 16-21, seven new universities were set up, including Osmania University in the princely State of Hyderabad.
- The Government of India Act 1919 formally gave education to the Provinces.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"not imp"; "Campus system". "1861 to 1919" = the Imperial Legislative Council (it existed from 1861 to 1919, Chapter 25).

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 1998 (Assertion-Reason). Gokhale introduced the Compulsory Primary Education Bill in the Imperial Legislative Council on 16 March 1911
- It was debated and rejected in March 1912.
- So A ("rejected in 1911") is false (the teacher struck 1911 and wrote 1912), and R is true (British fear that education would raise political consciousness; the slide adds that the reason was political, cost was secondary). Answer (d).
- The handout notes that most PYQ compilations key (a) and that no official UPSC key exists for the 1998 paper
- The handout, the slide key and the teacher all give (d).
- The Question bank's (a) key conflicts: use (d).

24.14 The Hartog Committee (1929)

- Rapid growth of schools and colleges had come at the cost of quality.
- At the end of class 8 students should choose between vocational and academic education
- Only deserving students go to class 9
- Strengthen primary education (classes 1 to 8) as the foundation.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"not imp" for the Hartog Committee.

24.15 The Wardha Scheme (1937)

- When the INC formed governments in several provinces in 1937 it proposed its own vision, the Wardha Scheme of National Education, shaped by Gandhian philosophy and developed by the Zakir Hussain Committee:
- Learning by doing: activity-based learning through field work, creating school-community contact.
- English only after class 8.
- Handicraft skilling in the regular curriculum.
- Free and compulsory education in vernaculars for 7 years, ages 7 to 14 (slide key).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source conflict on the age. The handout prints "Free and compulsory education in vernaculars until 7 years of age"
- The typed slide (and the board) reads "for 7 years (ages 7-14)." Use the slide: seven years of schooling, ages 7 to 14
- The handout's phrase is a slip.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "imp"
- Question: "What was the view of INC/MG (Mahatma Gandhi) on education?" Context: GoI Act 1935, implemented in 1937 (INC governments in the Provinces)
- Education was a provincial subject.
- "[Primary]" beside the access row
- Beside "school-community contact": "motivation to the poor to pursue education (+) creates empathy among WEMC kids/youth."

HANDOUT NOTE

Macaulay versus Wardha. 1835 Macaulay: English-medium, elite-focused, top-down, designed to create Brown Sahibs for colonial stability. 1937 Wardha: vernacular, activity-based, community-rooted, to create citizens, designed for self-governance.

24.16 The Sargent Plan (1944)

- The last major educational despatch of the British era, officially the Report of the Central Advisory Board of Education on Post-War Educational Development in India: the most comprehensive but unimplemented blueprint.

- Goal: bring Indian education up to contemporary England's standard, in a phased plan of 40 years for 100% literacy.
- Structure (John Sargent, the GoI's Educational Advisor):
    - Pre-primary 3-6
    - basic elementary, universal and free, 6-14 (junior basic 6-11, senior basic 11-14; inspired by Gandhi's Wardha Scheme of Basic Education)
    - High school 11-17, selected students only, in academic and technical-vocational streams
    - University degree standardised to 3 years.
- Adult illiteracy to be liquidated in 20 years
- one of the first British reports to provide for the differently-abled
- a big expansion of teacher training, physical education and compulsory medical inspection.
- Criticism:
    - Indian leaders furiously rejected the 40-year timeline (waiting till 1984 for basic literacy was an insult)
    - And no funds were allocated

>
> "not imp" for the Sargent Plan.

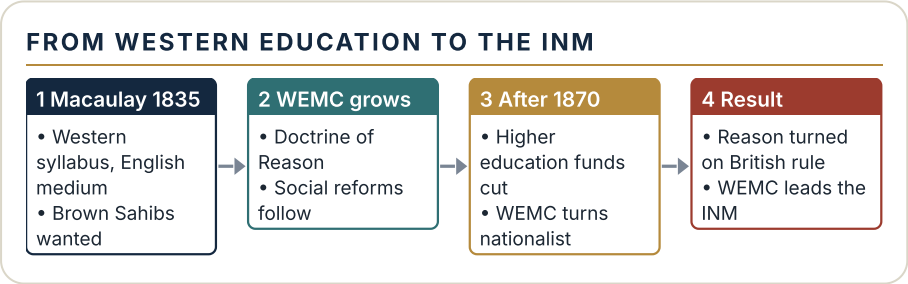
24.17 The overall impact of Western education



By 1921: 92% illiteracy, and only 2% of women literate.

- Failures:
    - No mass infrastructure ever built
    - Education stayed costly
    - vernacular education suffered after English became compulsory for jobs (1844)
    - An upper-caste and British officials nexus worked against education for backward communities
    - Female education neglected outside the three presidency towns

Unintended consequences:

- The Doctrine of Reason led Indians to assess their own practices critically, which drove the social reform movements.

- A culture of public debate through the press created civil society.
- A passion for Western sciences among educated Indians (Roy and others saw it as the only route to modernisation).
- Most consequential: the WEMC turned the tools of Western political thought (liberty, rights, representation, nationalism) against British rule itself.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> "Unintended consequences ... by Br" (they came from British policy though not intended); civil society = "when civilians begin public discussion of issues of governance, politics, society"; the WEMC leads to "INM".

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Disparity board. Costly education + societal issues → disparity in Western education, along caste (LC = poor), gender (women's education), class (the poor), regional (presidency towns happy, the rest not) and religion. So the INM was dominated until 1920 by upper-caste Hindu, male, rich people (the last label, like "M,D,C", is unclear: check your notebook). 1921 census circle: 8% WEMC, 92% non-Western-educated; "from here we got leaders": social reform and the INM.

24.18 The Archaeological Survey of India (1861)

- Colonial scholarship ran on two tracks: language and texts (Orientalism, Chapter 15) and field archaeology (the ASI).
- Alexander Cunningham founded the ASI in 1861
- it became a permanent department in 1871.
- It documented, excavated and preserved India's pre-Islamic and Indo-Islamic heritage.
- The first-generation field antiquarians in the Madras Presidency, Deccan and South India: Alexander Rea, A.H.
- Longhurst, Robert Sewell, James Burgess, Walter Elliot.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> "not imp" for the ASI slide.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2023 trap. The five names were associated with archaeological excavations, not the English press, churches in princely States or railways.
- (The handout says Cunningham was the first Director-General in 1861 and the department was reorganised in 1871; the slide says he began as Archaeological Surveyor and became the first Director-General when it was reorganised in 1871. Both give 1861 and 1871.)

STORY LINK

Because the educated few needed a voice, the press carried reform and then nationalism. Ask: how did repression and concession alternate?

HANDOUT NOTE

- Overlap. The class recap repeats handout Section 27 and is cited only where it differs.
- Board cues:
  - "Rote Learning"
  - Newspaper-to-founder matching ("Newspaper - Lang - Founder", Match)

25.1 How the press began (1556 to 1799)

- 1556: the printing press reached India: brought by the Portuguese to Goa, operated by Joao de Bustamante, at first for religious texts.
- It became a tool of political and social debate only two centuries later.
- 1780:
  - Bengal Gazette (English), Calcutta, by James Augustus Hicky: India's first newspaper
  - shut down in 1782 by Warren Hastings 73-85 for criticising the British
- 1784: Calcutta Gazette, Francis Gladwin, with EIC patronage: semi-official.
- 1789: Bombay Herald, William Ashburner: the first Bombay paper (renamed Bombay Gazette, 1791).
- 1790:
  - Bombay Courier, Luke Ashburner (William's brother)

    - Later merged with The Times of India.
- 1799: Censorship Press Act by Wellesley 98-05 (wartime pre-censorship).

> "Rote Learning": Portuguese to Goa, religious texts, Bengal Gazette, James Augustus Hicky, "India's 1st newspaper", "Shut down in 1782", Censorship Press Act.

> - Handout alert on the 1799 Act (Assertion-Reason, tagged Prelims 1998).
> - The handout's reading:
>   - A true (Wellesley 98-05 did impose the Press Regulation / Censorship Act in 1799)
>   - R false (the 1799 measure was wartime censorship against French sympathisers' print, not a reaction to the Indian Renaissance or nationalism, which were not yet political in 1799)
> - Match the motive to the date and the Indian-press cause fails.

25.2 Roy and the early vernacular press (1800 to 1857)

Year	Event
1821	Sambad Kaumudi (Bengali), Roy: social reform
1822	Mirat-ul-Akhbar (Persian), Roy: liberal ideas
1823	Licensing Regulations by Acting GG John Adam(s): licences needed; forced Roy's Mirat-ul-Akhbar to close
1826	Udant Martand: India's first Hindi newspaper (weekly), Pandit Jugal Kishore Shukla
1835	Metcalfe Act (Press Liberation Act): licensing revoked; Charles Metcalfe (GG 1835-36), "Liberator of the Indian Press"
1854	Samachar Sudha Varshan: first Hindi daily, Shyam Sundar Sen
1857	The Revolt: the British blamed the vernacular press; stricter rules followed

> Beside 1835: "Forced to Resign by CoD" (Metcalfe was forced out by the Court of Directors; resignation 1838, Section 24.3).

> HANDOUT ALERT
> - Spelling of the Acting GG. The handout writes John Adams
> - the typed slide writes John Adam.
> - The Acting Governor General of 1823 is John Adam (the same man as in the Roy chapters)
> - The handout carries no reign code for him

25.3 Repression and the nationalist press (1858 to 1900)

1878 was the pivotal year of repression and of nationalist press growth.

- Vernacular Press Act (Gagging Act, 1878) by Lytton 76-80: aimed only at regional-language papers (e.g. Som Prakash, Dacca Prakash, Samachar).
- Repealed in 1882 by Ripon 80-84.
- (Board: "Future class" for the Act.)
- The Hindu (English), Madras, 1878: G. Subramania Iyer and M.
- Veeraraghavachariar
- weekly at first, daily from 1889.
- Amrita Bazar Patrika (1868, Sisir Kumar Ghosh) turned overnight from Bengali to English in 1878 to escape the Act.

Year	Paper	Language	Founder / editor
1861-62	Indian Mirror	English	Manomohan Ghosh; money from Debendranath Tagore; Keshab Chandra Sen active
1862	Bengalee	English	Girish Chandra Ghosh; Surendranath Banerjee bought it in 1879
1868	Amrita Bazar Patrika	Bengali (English from 1878)	Sisir Kumar Ghosh
1881	Kesari / Mahratta	Marathi / English	Bal Gangadhar Tilak
1882	Swadesa mitran	Tamil	G. Subramania Iyer
1887 or 1888	Sudharak	Marathi (and English)	Gokhale edited (handout); Gopal Ganesh Agarkar founder, Gokhale the English section (slide)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source conflicts in the press table. (1) Sudharak:
  - The handout says 1887, edited by Gokhale
  - the slide says 1888, founded by Agarkar, Gokhale on the English section.
- Use "Agarkar (founder), Gokhale (English), 1887/88" and avoid the year in an option.
- (2) Som Prakash:
  - The handout table says "mid-1860s"
  - The typed slide says 1858
  - the teacher's PYQ ink and the bank use another gloss
- Founder is certain: Vidyasagar (PYQ 2007).
- (3) The handout's closing newspaper timeline also lists Voice of India 1883, Hindustan 1885, The Advocate 1888, Hindustan Times 1924, Hindustan Dainik 1936
- the board stresses "Hindustan Times 1924" only (founders are not given)

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ 2005 and 2007. Who repealed the VPA?
- Ripon 80-84 (b)
- the distractors are Dufferin 84-88, Curzon 99-05, Hardinge 10-16 (all later). Who started Som Prakash?
- Vidyasagar (b), not Dayananda, Roy or Surendranath Banerjee.

25.4 The twentieth century: resistance and regulation (1900 to 1947)

Year	Act	Governor General
1908	Newspaper (Incitement of Offences) Act: seizure of presses inciting violence	Minto 05-10 (Swadeshi Movement 1905-11)
1910	Indian Press Act: security deposits, fines, confiscation of presses; repealed 1921 on the Tej Bahadur Sapru Committee	Minto 05-10
1931	Indian Press (Emergency Powers) Act: suppressed coverage of the Civil Disobedience Movement (1930-34); the INC was banned	Irwin 26-31 (handout) or Willingdon 31-36 (slide)
1932	Foreign Relations Act: no criticism of foreign governments allied with Britain
1942	Wartime censorship: the handout says "Press Regulating Act"; the slide says press curbs under Rule 41 of the Defence of India Rules (Defence of India Act 1939)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Who signed the 1931 Act: Irwin 26-31 or Willingdon 31-36?
- The handout writes Irwin 26-31
- the typed slide writes Willingdon 31-36.
- Gandhi-Irwin Pact was March 1931, and Willingdon took over in April 1931, so both are defensible
- A UPSC option is unlikely to test it
- For the 1942 curb use the slide's wording (Rule 41, Defence of India Rules)
- The handout's "Press Regulating Act" is looser

Cinema and the print arc.

- 7 July 1896: The Times of India carried the Lumiere Brothers' advertisement ("the marvel of the century, the wonder of the world living photographic pictures in life-sized reproductions") for the first screening at Watson's Hotel, Bombay. 1913: Raja Harishchandra by Dadasaheb Phalke, India's first feature film.
- Print-to-cinema arc (the handout's box):
    - Neel Darpan 1860 → Durgesh Nandini 1865 (Bankim; the first Bengali novel in the handout's wording) → Anandamath 1882 (Bankim; Bharat Mata and Bande Mataram) → Gitanjali 1913 → Godan 1936
    - cinema 1896 → Phalke 1913
- Al-Hilal (1912): Urdu journal of Maulana Abul Kalam Azad (PYQ 2008: not Comrade, by Muhammad Ali Jauhar; not The Indian Sociologist, by Shyamji Krishna Varma; not Zamindar, by Zafar Ali Khan).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Date of the Lumiere advertisement. The handout and slide give 7 July 1896 (PYQ 1996: option (d) 1896).
- Several external sources give 7 August 1896 for the Times of India notice
- The sources here say July, so use 1896 and Bombay in an option and do not rely on the month

HANDOUT ALERT

- Novels:
    - PYQ 1996 and PYQ 2018. PYQ 1996 asks for an important historical novel of the later 19th century: Durgesh Nandini (b) (Bankim, 1865)
    - Rast Goftar, Maharatta and Nibandhamala are periodicals
- PYQ 2018 "happened earliest": Dinabandhu Mitra's Neel Darpan (1860) (b) precedes Durgesh Nandini (1865), the Arya Samaj (1875) and Satyendranath Tagore's ICS entry (the key's 1863-64 conflicts with the board: see Chapter 18). See also Section 21.

- L 1823 Licensing Regulations: John Adam, closed Roy's Mirat-ul-Akhbar
- V 1878 Vernacular Press Act: Lytton 76-80, regional-language papers only

Order kept. The two concessions between them, Metcalfe 1835 and Ripon's repeal 1882, are the breaks in the cycle.

25.6 Mains answer: the press in the making of political consciousness

- Frame (15 marks): the first paper was already adversarial (Hicky 1780, closed by Warren Hastings 73-85) → a cycle of repression and concession (1799 censorship, 1823 licensing, 1835 Metcalfe, 1878 Gagging Act, 1882 repeal, 1908-10 Acts, 1931, 1942) → Indian-run vernacular papers carried reform and nationalism (Roy 1821; Som Prakash; Amrita Bazar Patrika's 1878 switch; Kesari / Mahratta 1881; Hindu 1878; Al-Hilal 1912) → the WEMC's "pen and press" method (1857-1905) and the idea that "sedition" before 1947 is nationalism (Section 24.10) → cinema and the novel widen the public sphere.
- ---

From Orientalism to the Sargent Plan

- Orientalism to 1835: govern the Indian way (Jones, Warren Hastings 73-85, Wellesley 98-05)
- Charter Act 1813:
  - Rs 1 lakh a year
  - Missionaries allowed
- Macaulay 1835:
  - English medium, Western syllabus
  - Brown Sahibs
  - downward filtration
- Wood 1854:
  - Vernacular to English ladder
  - Grants-in-aid
  - Three universities (1857)

- 1870:
    - State cuts higher education as the WEMC turns nationalist
    - Education to the Provinces
- Hunter 1882, Curzon 1904: local bodies and vernaculars, then control over universities

MODERN INDIAN HISTORY · CHAPTER 20

Pre-1857 Peasant and Tribal Revolts and Post-1857 Tribal Uprisings

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 222-231 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 1998, 2006, 2018, 2020

Mains PYQs: "1857 Revolt was the culmination of small and big rebellions in the first 100 years of British rule" (teacher's board; year not written on the slide)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- 1998 chronology: Santhal 1855, Mutiny 1857, Indigo 1859, Deccan Riot 1875 (answer d, 2-4-1-3); the traps are putting the Mutiny first or reversing Indigo and Deccan
- 2006: Anandamath = Sanyasi rebellion (d); the wrong options (Bhil, Rangpur, Bishnupur and Birbhum) are other revolts of this chapter
- 2018: after the Santhal rising, Santhal Parganas created and land transfer to non-Santhals made illegal (c, both)
- 2020: Ulgulan = Birsa Munda's Revolt 1899-1900 (d); the trap options are 1857, Mappila 1921 and Indigo 1859-60
- Hooks: who led which revolt; whether it was elite-led, peasant-led, religion-led or tribal; the three forest categories of 1878; Abkari; the Santhal Parganas

MAINS HOOKS

- 1857 as the culmination of small and big rebellions in the first 100 years of British rule, on the teacher's three heads: grievances, methods, leadership
- Why peasants and tribals revolted first; how tribal grievances differ from peasant grievances
- The role of religion as grievance and as organiser
- Were the pre-1857 revolts modern nationalism (No), and why are they the pre-history of modern nationalism (political, public, anti-colonial)

The teacher's board reads Less Imp overall but with some PYQs in both papers; four Prelims PYQs map, so know the PYQ-linked revolts cold. Closing idea: not 100% modern, but anti-colonial.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Peasants and tribals lose their security (land revenue, forests, religion), so they rise first, led by elites, peasants, sects or chiefs. The revolts are local, uncoordinated and not democratic, yet political and public, so they are the pre-history of modern nationalism and the culmination of a hundred years before 1857.

1. The bottom of the order moves first. The Western Educated Middle Class believes in the benevolence of British rule and answers it with socio-religious reform. Peasants and tribals, at the very bottom of the new colonial order, answer with defiance and often violence. The teacher's one-line logic: the common man wants security, economic, physical and socio-cultural.

   → But what exactly did the peasant lose?

2. The peasant's squeeze. The Farming System of 1772 auctions land revenue to a revenue farmer (ijaradar). PS1793 makes the zamindar owner, with high rents, illegal abwabs and no occupancy right. The Rent Act 1859 promises occupancy after over twelve years but is ineffective in Bengal. In Ryotwari and Mahalwari areas the road is auction, moneylender, then landlessness.

   → And in Bengal and Bihar a planter adds a second trap.

3. The indigo trap. The European planter gives a loan at the start, sells inputs to the ryot and buys the indigo back at a price below market. The ryot cannot pay rent and loan, the soil is exhausted, and he must borrow and grow indigo again, or face eviction. The teacher's two systems: Bengal Ryoti (a quadrant of the plot, Indigo Revolt 1859) and Bihar Tinkathia (3/20th, Champaran Satyagraha 1917).

   → Then fear for faith adds fuel.

4. Religion adds fuel. As a grievance: temple and mosque lands are taxed, revenue-free tenures end, missionaries may enter after 1813, and Sati 1829, Lex Loci 1850 and Widow Remarriage 1856 are seen as interference. As an organiser: with no parties or newspapers, a sect already has a leader, a philosophy and unity.

   → Meanwhile the tribals, in their forests, lose even more.

5. The tribal's world turned upside down. Tribals lived by cultivation, hunting and gathering, under their own tribal law and chief. The British pushed land revenue in through four routes (zamindars as owners, revenue farmers, the chief made a zamindar, ryots made individual owners), demanded cash, and banned Jhum and hunting because they wanted settled peasants paying LR regularly.

   → Then the law takes the forest itself.

6. The forest is fenced (1878). Under Lytton 76-80 the Indian Forests Act 1878 splits forests into Reserved, Protected and Village, driven by the railway need for timber (about 2,000 sleepers a mile). Customary rights become privileges, and millions become trespassers on ancestral land. The Abkari system adds an auctioned liquor monopoly, second only to land revenue.

   → Now the elites, too, have lost something.

7. The elites rise: civil uprisings. Raja Chait Singh of Benaras (1778-81) loses his estates for unpaid LR. Wazir Ali 97-98, the Poligars, the Bundelas and Veluthampi (1809) each lose status, land or autonomy to British rule or its Resident. The Paikas of Odisha (1817) draw multi-class support and are debated as a candidate for the true First War of Independence.

   → Peasants, meanwhile, begin to lead themselves.

8. Peasants lead: Rangpur and Mysore. In 1783 the Rangpur peasants, hurt by the Farming System and the 1770 famine, loot the grain stores of Debi Singh and Gobinda Singh, free prisoners, attack courts and run their own government. In Mysore (1830-31) peasants rise against the Wodeyars and British agents because the SA 1799 subsidy forced high LR.

→ Elsewhere the leader comes from religion.

9 Religion leads. Dasnami Sanyasis and Madari Fakirs (1760-1850s, peak about 1800 with 50,000) inspire Anandamath. Karim and Tipu Shah lead the Pagal Panthis. Titu Mir builds a bamboo fort, the Faraizi (Dudu Mian) say land belongs to God, and the Moplahs lose rights because the British recognise only the Janmies.

→ In the hills and forests, the tribals rise in a chain.

10 The tribals rise, ending in the Hool. Pahariya 1778, Bhil 1818-31, Ramosi 1822, Khasi 1829-33, Kol 1831-32 and Kandh 1837-56 each rise against loss of land, forest rights or religion. The Santhals (1855-56) give a public prior warning, rise with bows and arrows against the unholy trinity of British, zamindars and moneylenders, and about 50,000 are killed. The Santhal Parganas follow, with a bar on land transfer to non-Santhals.

→ Two more risings come after 1857.

11 After 1857: Birsa and Rampa. Birsa Munda's Ulugulan (1899-1900) begins on Christmas 1899, with a belief that British bullets turn to water. The Rampa revolt, led first by Muttadars and crushed by 1880, merges into the NCM in 1920. After 1922 Alluri Sitarama Raju restarts the Fituri and is executed in 1924.

→ So what do all these revolts add up to?

12 The verdict. They were not all-India, not coordinated, with local leaders, no plan and no democratic goal, so not modern nationalism. But they had ideology, organisation, programme, awareness and symbolism, and crimes hide while politics shows. Hence the pre-history of modern nationalism, and the culmination of a hundred years before 1857.

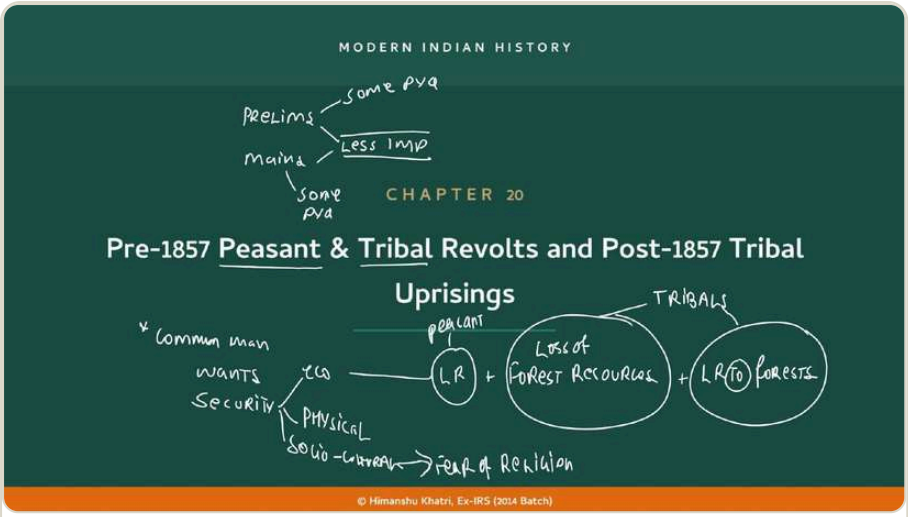
0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Story so far: nothing yet. Start with the teacher's one board: the common man wants security. Ask: what did the peasant lose, and what more did the tribal lose?



Chapter 20 on one board: priority and security logic Lecture 24 slide 87

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Whole chapter in one diagram. The common man wants security in three kinds: economic, physical, socio-cultural.
- Economic loss: land revenue (LR) for the peasant.
- Tribals have two more losses on top of LR: loss of forest resources and LR (extended) to the forests.
- Socio-cultural threat = fear of religion (Christian missionaries, reform laws; Section 2.2). Peasant revolt = LR.
- Tribal revolt = LR + loss of forest resources + LR to forests.

Mains PYQ: 1857 as culmination of small and big rebellions Lecture 24 slide 88

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The whole chapter is the phrase "small and big rebellions in the first 100 years of British rule." For every revolt ask the three similarity questions: GRievances, methods, LEADERSHIP.
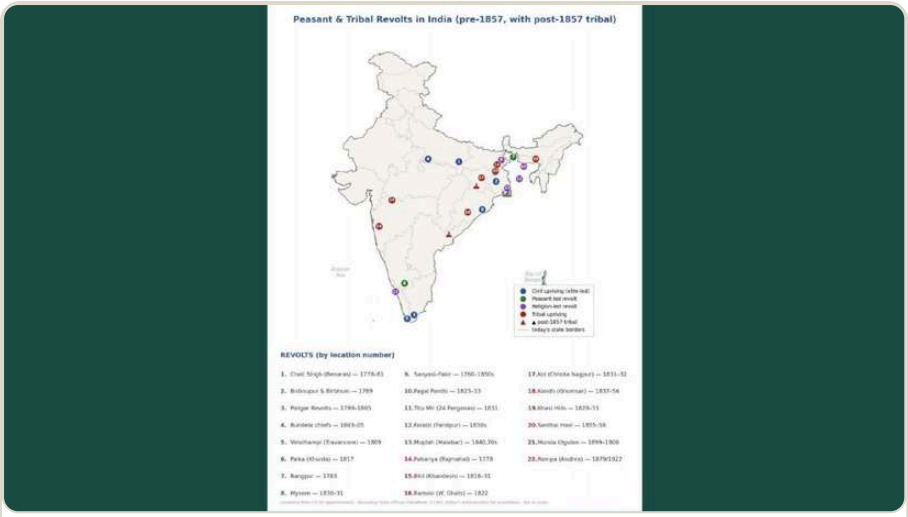
- This is also the answer frame for the Mains PYQ in the Exam lens.



Map: peasant and tribal revolts in India, pre-1857 and post-1857 Lecture 25 slide 25

HANDOUT NOTE

- The map is the chapter's index card: 22 revolts sorted by colour, in the order of Sections 5 to 8 and 10.
- Locations are approximate ("not to scale").
- Blue 1-6 civil uprising (elite-led): 1 Chait Singh (Benaras) 1778-81, 2 Bishnupur and Birbhum 1789, 3 Poligar 1799-1805, 4 Bundela chiefs 1803-05, 5 Veluthampi (Travancore) 1809, 6 Paika (Khurda) 1817.
- Green 7-8 peasant-led: 7 Rangpur 1783, 8 Mysore 1830-31.
- Purple 9-13 religion-led: 9 Sanyasi-Fakir 1760-1850s, 10 Pagal Panthi 1823-33, 11 Titu Mir 1831, 12 Faraizi 1830s, 13 Moplah 1840, 70s.
- Red 14-20 tribal, pre-1857: 14 Pahariya 1778, 15 Bhil 1818-31, 16 Ramosi 1822, 17 Kol 1831-32, 18 Kandh 1837-56, 19 Khasi Hills 1829-33, 20 Santhal Hool 1855-56.

1 · Setting the stage

STORY LINK

Because the WEMC chose reform, the bottom of the order spoke first, in defiance. Ask: why are these revolts called the pre-history of modern nationalism?

- The Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC) responded to British rule largely through socio-religious reform movements.
- They believed in the benevolence of British rule, that the British would modernise India, and many benefited from the new economy and jobs British rule created.

- But peasants and tribals, the people at the very bottom of the new colonial order, responded first: not with petitions but with defiance, often with violence.
- INM leaders later called these pre-1857 revolts the "pre-history of modern nationalism." That does not mean they were failures: they were the first draft of a political resistance that would, over a century, become the Indian National Movement.
- The 1857 revolt was in many ways the culmination of a hundred years of such small and big rebellions.
- To understand 1857, first understand what drove peasants and tribals to revolt again and again.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Western = Medicine, Law, Admin. The WEMC got its jobs from these new professions.
- Pre-British jobs they replaced: Mansabdars, Faujdars, Amalguzars, Amils, Pundits, Maulvis, Kazis, Muftis (military and revenue officers, religious-legal class).
- The old job-holders lost positions while the Western-educated gained, so the old elite had its own grievance.
- "Pre-history" = "unwritten history" (revolts the standard nationalist history did not write).
- Verdict: "NOT 100% MODERN BUT anti-colonial."

Definitions: peasant, tribal and traditional tribal autonomy Lecture 24 slide 90

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Peasant:
  - A cultivator who farms for food security is poor = ryot/peasant
  - one who farms for profit is rich = farmer.
- The word rests on OCCUPATION (cultivation).
- Tribal: lives away from the mainstream in hills, forests, deserts or islands, not in the majority plains population.
- Tribals traditionally enjoyed autonomy: political (tribal chief), economic (forest resources), socio-cultural (own way of life).
- Indian kings did not apply the plains' land revenue systems to these areas
- The British changed that

2 · Drivers of the peasant revolt

STORY LINK

Because the peasant's security was land revenue, every British system squeezed him in its own way. Ask: which system, which villain, which loss?

2.1 Why did the ryot have so many grievances?

- The British introduced not one but several land revenue (LR) systems, and each squeezed the peasant in its own way.

System and period	How it squeezed the ryot
Farming System of 1772 (Bengal)	LR collection was auctioned to the highest bidder, a revenue farmer (the teacher: ijaradar). He extracted as much rent as he could, with the support of British officials, since collection happened under the District Collector's supervision. The peasant had no protection
Permanent Settlement 1793 (PS1793)	Replaced the revenue farmer with the zamindar as permanent owner. For the ryot it was not an improvement: the zamindar charged high rents, imposed illegal extra cesses called abwabs, and evicted at will. The ryot had no occupancy rights (no security of tenure), and British law was on the zamindar's side since all legal rights in land were vested in him
Rent Act of 1859	Meant to correct this: a ryot who cultivated the same plot continuously for over twelve years earned occupancy right (not to be arbitrarily evicted). But its implementation in Bengal was ineffective and the exploitation continued
Ryotwari and Mahalwari areas	The oppression came directly from the British government through high LR demands. If the ryot could not pay, his land was auctioned; this drove him to the moneylender; high interest led to deeper indebtedness; default meant losing land to the moneylender. The peasant went from cultivator with land to labourer on someone else's field

Peasant revolts: land revenue and rent pressure by period Lecture 24 slide 93

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Any revolt in Bengal: read it by period.
- Before 1772:
  - High LR. 1772-1793: higher LR + revenue farmer (ijaradar, FS1772), British government pro-revenue-farmer: "legal right to collect LR." 1793-1859: higher rents + illegal abwabs + lack of occupancy rights + zamindar + British government
  - The PS1793 Act gave all rights to the zamindar and, practically, none to the tenant ryots. 1859-85: higher rents + illegal abwabs + lack of occupancy rights, because of the loophole in the Rent Act 1859
- Revolt in "SCAM-B" (post 1801): higher LR + higher-interest loans: British government [LR] + moneylender [loan] + landlessness.
- Mahalwari "C, U, P": zamindari-like issues (A) plus ryotwari-like issues (B).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Unreadable shorthand:
  - "SCAM-B" (post 1801) and "C, U, P" (Mahalwari) are region initials the slide does not spell out
  - .
- The handout says only "Ryotwari and Mahalwari areas".
- Z = zamindar, RF = revenue farmer.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Cornwallis 86-93 experimented with different LR systems before finalising PS1793
- this is why the Farming System of 1772 is called a "precursor" of the Permanent Settlement
- The class question "WHY 1786?" has no answer on the slide
- .
- Full story: Chapter 16: Land Revenue Systems.

2.2 Contract farming: the indigo system

- European indigo planters forced ryots to cultivate indigo on a portion of their land.
- The handout dates it in Bengal until 1860, and later in Bihar until 1918.
- The ryot was made to take a loan from the planter at the outset, then sold the indigo back to the planter at a price far below market rate. He was perpetually in debt.
- Indigo exhausted the soil, reducing the productivity of the land he used for food crops.

Contract farming: indigo cultivation in Bengal and Bihar Lecture 25 slide 1

- If he refused, the planter's Indian agents, local British officials and courts came down on him. There was no escape.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Date conflict: indigo in Bengal. Handout: Bengal until 1860, Bihar until 1918.
- Teacher's board:
  - "Bengal, Bihar: Till 1863, then 1863-1918"
  - the Prelims 1998 answer slide says 1859-63.
- Use 1863 for the end of the Bengal phase (1860 as a note)
- For Prelims hold 1859 (Indigo Revolt)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Ordinary system: State gets LR from the zamindar (Z, landowner), who takes rent from the ryot (tenant).
- Indigo model: zamindar still pays LR to the State, but the European planter takes the land on lease (lease amount to the zamindar) and collects rent from the ryots (middle landlord).
- In addition a contract between planter and ryot: indigo on a part (one quadrant) of the plot.
- So the ryot faces both rent and contract.

Indigo debt trap for the ryot Lecture 25 slide 2

The indigo debt trap (the teacher's board)

- Planter gives a loan (the board says low-interest) to the ryot at the start
- Ryot buys equipment and indigo seeds from the planter
- Ryot sells the indigo to the planter and gets a price that is not remunerative
- Inability to pay: the rent and the loan
- Soil productivity falls (indigo exhausts the soil; the quadrant turns Banjar, fallow land)
- Debt trap: the ryot is forced to grow indigo by taking more loan, else eviction, plus oppression by the planter's Indian agents

NUMBER CARD · TWO INDIGO SYSTEMS IN NUMBERS

1 / 4 · 3 / 20

A quarter of the plot in Bengal, three-twentieths in Bihar.

1/4 Bengal Ryoti system: one quadrant of the plot; Indigo Revolt 1859

3/20 Bihar Tinkathia system: 3/20th of the plot; Champaran Satyagraha 1917

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Debt trap by design. The planter gives a low-interest loan, which binds the ryot to him for inputs (equipment, indigo seeds) and for sale.
- The price paid is not remunerative, so the ryot cannot pay rent and loan and must borrow again from the planter, else eviction.
- Soil productivity falls (plot turns Banjar, barren).
- Plus oppression by Indian agents of the planter.
- Handout: "the same structural logic as modern-day bonded labour."

HANDOUT NOTE

The low-interest loan is on the board only; the handout stresses the below-market price and the debt. Both agree on the trap.

Two indigo systems: Ryoti in Bengal, Tinkathia in Bihar Lecture 25 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Bengal = Ryoti system: indigo on one quadrant (a quarter) of the plot, leading to the Indigo Revolt 1859.
- Bihar = Tinkathia system: indigo on 3/20th of the plot, leading to Mahatma Gandhi's Champaran Satyagraha 1917.
- (Fractions are from the board; the handout says "a portion of their land.") Bengal revolt: Chapter 22
- Champaran: Chapter 37

2.3 What role did religion play?

- Religion played a dual role: grievance and organiser.
- As a grievance:
  - (1) Christian missionaries were converting people
  - (2) the British ended revenue-free and rent-free land tenures held by temples, mosques and religious institutions

- (3) social reform laws were seen as interference in religion: the Sati Abolition Act 1829, the Lex Loci Act 1850 (inheritance even after conversion to another religion) and the Hindu Widow Remarriages Act 1856.

MNEMONIC · FOUR RELIGIOUS GRIEVANCES

S E C T

A religious SECT rose first, because its faith and its land were both under attack.

S Social reforms: Sati 1829, Lex Loci 1850, Widow Remarriage 1856

E Ending revenue-free and rent-free tenures of sects, temples, mosques

C Christian missionaries could enter after 1813

T Taxation on the lands of temples and mosques

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- As an organiser: pre-1857 India had no political parties, no newspapers with mass reach, no formal organisations.
- (The handout's parallel: the INC, BJP and RSS do today the work that religion did then: leadership, coordination, unity.) A revolting religious sect already had a leader, a philosophy, a sense of community and the habit of collective action. Religion filled the organisational vacuum.

Role of religion in pre-1857 revolts Lecture 25 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Grievance, four points:
  - (1) taxation on lands of temples and mosques
  - (2) ending revenue-free or rent-free tenures of religious sects, temples and mosques
  - (3) 1813+: Christian missionaries could enter for conversion (1813 Charter, Section 3)
  - (4) social reforms created fear of religion.
- Organiser:
  - Unity among followers comes from religion
  - the leader comes from the religious class and defines the Goal, Plan, Programme and Voice/slogans.
- With economic grievances of followers, a social leader, i.e. a religious one, takes up the political role.

3 · Drivers of the tribal revolt

STORY LINK

Because the tribal also lived by forest and chief, the British reach into the forest hurt him doubly. Ask: how did LR enter the forest, and what did the Act of 1878 take?

3.1 What was different about the tribal experience?

- Tribals lived in forests and hills, away from the plains.
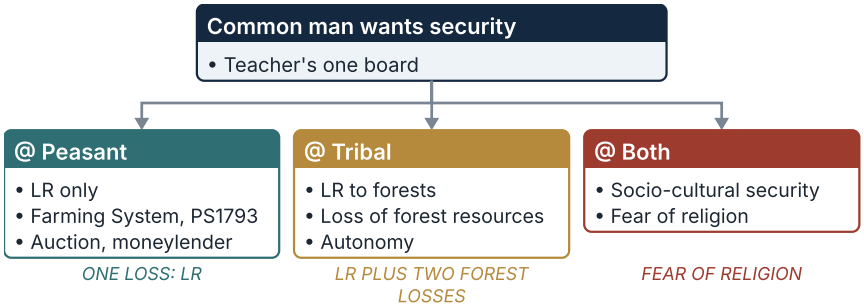
- Two things gave their life its shape: tribal autonomy (in civil and criminal matters they governed themselves by their own customary law) and their relationship with the forest (home, livelihood, identity). British rule destroyed both.

PEASANT VERSUS TRIBAL: WHAT WAS LOST



TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tribal livelihood = three lives: cultivation (tribal as ryot/peasant), hunting (hunters), gathering forest produce (gatherers) with barter trade with plains people.
- Today:
  - Major forest produce = timber
  - minor = bamboo, tendu patta, sal, honey etc. Law = tribal law
  - L, E, J (legislative, executive, judicial) = the tribal chief: all three powers sat with him = political autonomy.
- "Don't get confused if 'Peasant Revolt' is used for a tribal revolt": many tribals cultivated, so some books call a tribal revolt a peasant revolt
- Keep them apart by leader and grievance (forest and autonomy for tribals)

- How the British pushed LR into the forests: four routes (the primary British concern was extraction of land revenue):

Tribals: autonomy, livelihood and forest produce Lecture 25 slide 10

- 1. Zamindars from the plains were made legal owners of tribal land.
- 2. Tribal lands were farmed out to revenue farmers.
- 3. In some cases the tribal chief was recognised as a zamindar, with the same exploitative powers.
- 4. In others tribal ryots were made individual landowners, breaking up the collective, community-based relationship with their land.
- High LR demands and the British insistence on cash payment (instead of produce) brought in moneylenders: indebtedness, then loss of land.
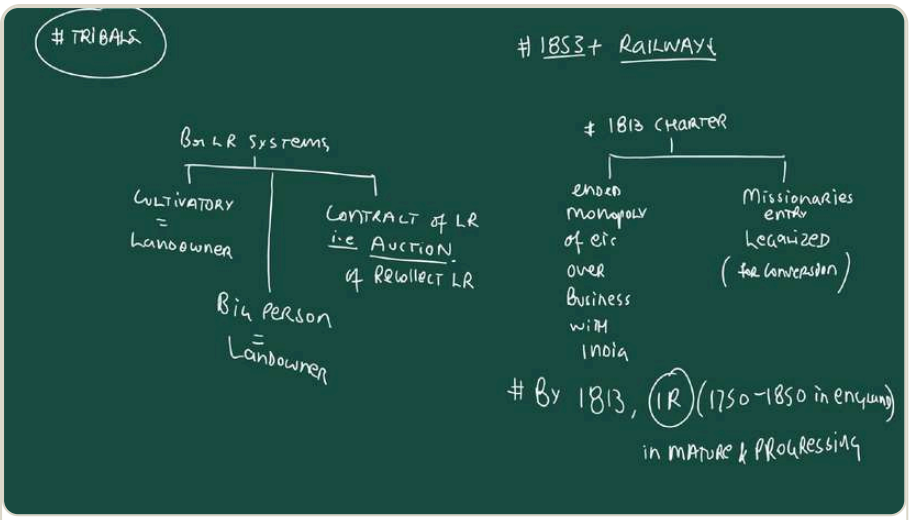
- (The handout's explanation: a subsistence farmer who grows grain but must pay in rupees has to sell in the market first, exposing him to price swings and middlemen at every step.)



Tribals: LR systems, 1853 Railways, 1813 Charter Lecture 25 slide 11

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The British used both LR systems on tribal land:
  - The ryotwari idea (cultivator = landowner), the zamindari idea (big person = landowner) and the contract of LR, i.e. auction of the right to collect LR (revenue farmer)
  - This matches the handout's four routes
- Two dates:
  - 1853+ Railways (through forests, Section 3.2)
  - 1813 Charter = ended the EIC's monopoly over business with India and legalised missionaries' entry (for conversion).
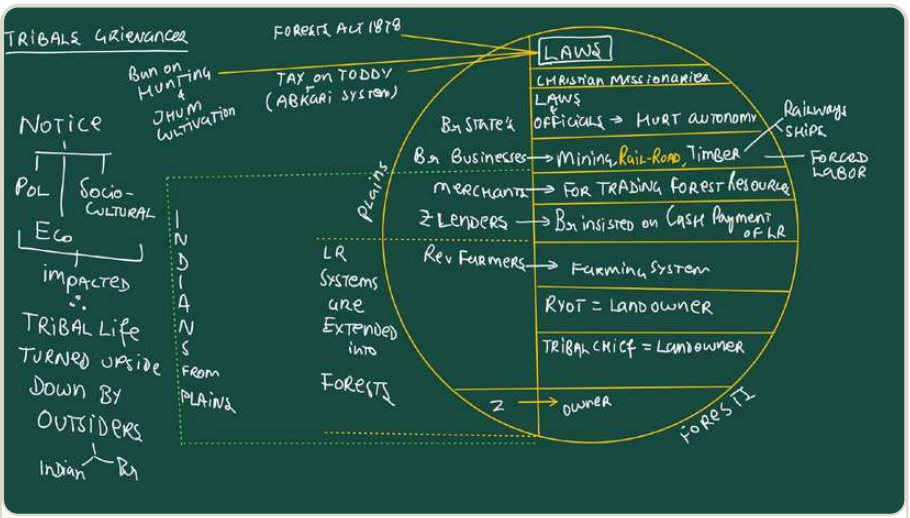
- By 1813 the Industrial Revolution (1750-1850 in England) was mature and progressing, hence the pressure to open India to British business.



Tribal grievances: outsiders and laws hurting autonomy Lecture 25 slide 13

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tribal life was "turned upside down by outsiders," Indian (from the plains) and British, hit in the political, socio-cultural and economic ways.
- Layers of outsiders:
    - Laws (Forests Act 1878, ban on hunting and Jhum, tax on toddy under the Abkari system)
    - Christian missionaries
    - British state's laws and officials (hurt autonomy)
    - British businesses (mining, rail-road, timber; railways, ships, forced labour)
    - Merchants (trading forest resources)
    - Zamindars and lenders (British insisted on cash payment of LR)
    - Revenue farmers (Farming System)
    - Ryot = landowner and tribal chief = landowner (ownership changes)
    - Zamindar = owner.
- Indians from the plains: LR systems extended into the forests.

3.2 The ban on Jhum and hunting

- The British banned Jhum cultivation (slash-and-burn or shifting cultivation) because they wanted settled peasant communities paying land revenue regularly.
- For hill tribals Jhum was their way of life.
- The ban on Jhum and on hunting criminalised their way of existing.
- The Chenchus of Hyderabad were pushed to the edge of extinction.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why ban Jhum, Podu (Andhra word), shifting or slash-and-burn cultivation, and hunting?
- The British wanted settled peasant communities paying LR regularly, for ease of LR collection.
- A shifting cultivator or hunter has no fixed field to tax.

3.3 The Indian Forests Act 1878

- The Indian Forests Act 1878, passed under Lytton 76-80, divided all forests into three categories.
- The British called it "scientific forestry
- " in practice it was legal dispossession.
- Why they needed it:
    - The railway boom of the 1870s needed enormous supplies of durable timber (teak, sal, deodar)
    - Each mile of track needed roughly 2,000 wooden sleepers.
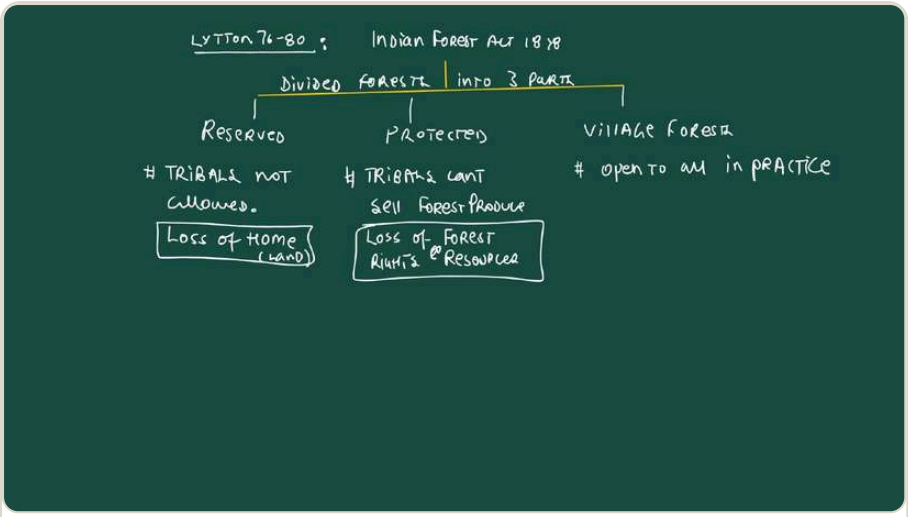
- The state wanted absolute control over the best forests.



Indian Forest Act 1878: three categories of forest Lecture 25 slide 15

Category	Rule	Effect on tribals (teacher)
Reserved Forests	Everything prohibited unless specifically permitted. The most commercially valuable forests. All traditional rights legally extinguished: no grazing, no firewood, no Jhum. Purpose: unhindered commercial timber extraction by the government and contractors	"Tribals not allowed": loss of home (land)
Protected Forests	Everything permitted unless specifically prohibited. Commercial potential but too much local use to close at once. The state could declare tree species state property and close sections at any time. A transitional category: many were later upgraded to Reserved	"Tribals can't sell forest produce": loss of forest rights and resources
Village Forests	Assigned to specific village communities. Very few were created. Strict colonial rules on cattle, wood and species; access could be revoked. The British never left any forest truly in local hands	"Open to all in practice" (the teacher's gloss)

THE FORESTS ACT 1878: THREE CATEGORIES

- The legal masterstroke: before the British, forests were common property resources managed by the communities.
- The 1878 Act turned customary rights into privileges granted by the mercy of the colonial state
- a privilege can be taxed, restricted or revoked

- Overnight, gathering firewood, grazing a cow or clearing a small patch made millions of forest dwellers trespassers on their own ancestral land.
- Beyond the Act: land acquisition for railway and road construction and commercial timber displaced tribals from their homes, and they were often forced into unpaid labour on the very projects that dispossessed them.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Lytton 76-80, Indian Forest Act 1878: forests divided into 3 parts.
- Reserved (tribals not allowed) = loss of home (land).
- Protected (tribals can't sell forest produce) = loss of forest rights and resources.
- Village Forests = "open to all in practice." The handout says Village Forests were few and tightly controlled
- "open to all in practice" is the teacher's shorthand (see alert)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Village Forests:
  - Handout = very few, heavily controlled by the state (access revocable)
  - teacher = "open to all in practice." Reconcile as: assigned to villages on paper but not truly local (handout) versus usable in practice (teacher)
  - **.
- For Prelims remember the order and rule of each category (Reserved: all prohibited unless permitted; Protected: all permitted unless prohibited).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Today: the Forest Rights Act 2006 gives the right to forest lands and forest resources to STs and other traditional forest dwellers in 5th Scheduled areas (Central and East India).
- The 6th Schedule gives autonomy in North East tribal areas.
- MFP = Minor Forest Produce = non-timber.
- (Handout: the FRA 2006 "attempts to begin correcting what this Act did.")

3.4 The Abkari system

TEACHER'S BOARD

Abkari keywords: "Abkari (Excise) Administration," "auctioned," "criminalised," "2nd only to LR," and "Christian missionaries." (Words are in the table below.)

- Before British rule, brewing local liquor from palm sap (toddy) or mahua flowers was a customary right, lightly regulated or untaxed.
- These drinks were tied to religious rituals, festivals and daily nutrition.

- The colonial state, through the Abkari (Excise) Administration, claimed a monopoly over the manufacture and sale of all intoxicating liquors and drugs.
- It auctioned the right to tap palm trees and sell liquor to the highest-bidding contractors
- the contractors raised prices steeply to recover their investment
- Brewing without a licence was criminalised, so tribals had to buy back their own drinks at inflated prices.

MNEMONIC · THREE STEPS OF THE ABKARI SQUEEZE

Alcohol Revenue Climbed

- A Auctioned: the right to tap and sell went to the highest bidder
- R Raised prices: contractors recovered their investment
- C Criminalised brewing without a licence

Order kept: auction, then raised prices, then criminalised; excise became second only to land revenue.

- Excise duties became one of the largest sources of provincial revenue: second only to land revenue in many areas.
- Note: this grievance later fed the temperance and anti-liquor strand of the INM: Gandhi's call to picket liquor shops in the NCM and CDM.
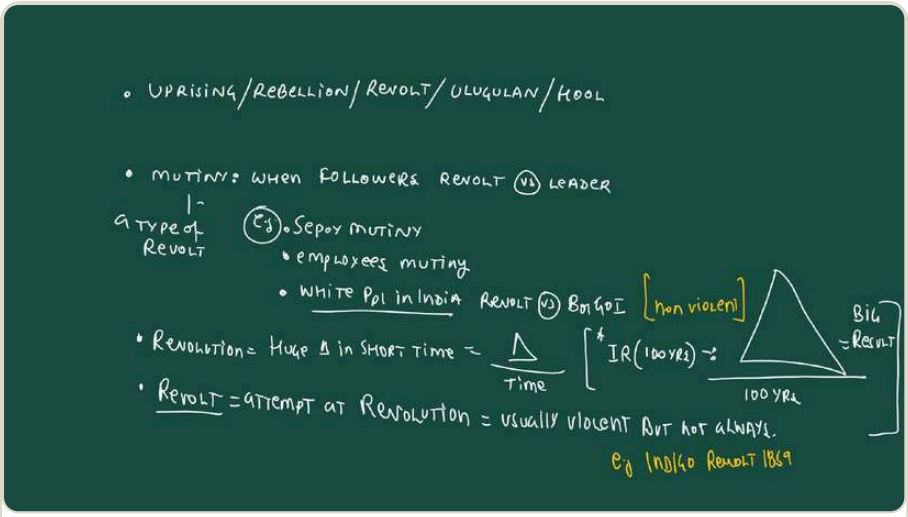
- After 1813, the entry of Christian missionaries added a religious grievance to the economic and cultural one.

4 · Two kinds of uprisings

STORY LINK

Because the grievances differed by class, the revolts differ by who led them. Ask: elite or peasant at the head?



Terms: uprising, rebellion, revolt, mutiny, revolution Lecture 25 slide 22

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Uprising, rebellion, revolt, Ulugulan (Munda), Hool (Santhal) all mean a rising.
- Mutiny = followers revolt against their leader (a type of revolt): the Sepoy Mutiny, employees' mutiny, white (British) political groups in India revolting non-violently against their own government.
- Revolution = a huge change in a short time
- the Industrial Revolution (100 years) is a big result over a long base
- Revolt = an attempt at revolution = usually violent but not always: e.g. the Indigo Revolt 1859.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Revolutions (French Revolution 1789 and another written "ARGS-83") were quick.
- The Indian National Movement was not:
  - Reason = Purna Swaraj (complete independence)
  - Span 1857-1947 = 90 years.
- The INM was gradual, step by step:
  - Goals became more radical
  - method went from pen, to protests, to guns.

Two kinds of uprisings: civil uprisings and peasant revolts Lecture 25 slide 24

- There were two distinct kinds:
- 4.1 Civil Uprisings: led by the elite (a Raja, a zamindar, a mansabdar).
- Peasants participated, but the leadership and cause were primarily those of the dispossessed elite.
- The 1857 revolt is the biggest example of this kind.
- 4.2 Peasant Revolts: led by the peasants themselves.

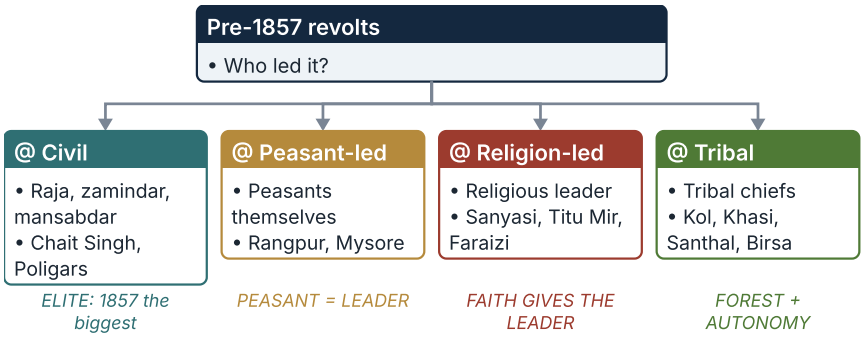
FOUR KINDS OF REVOLT: WHO LED



TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Peasant Revolts" is the umbrella term for everything in the chapter
- Under it: Civil Uprising and Peasant Revolts (peasant-led).
- "TRADITIONAL" against "Who led it": civil uprisings are led by traditional elites (the Chapter 21 title board says the same for 1857: "common ppl led by TRADITIONAL elites").

5 · Civil uprisings (elite-led)

STORY LINK

Because the elite lost status, land or autonomy, they rose first, and peasants joined. Ask: what exactly did each lose?

5.1 to 5.6: Chait Singh, Bishnupur and Birbhum, Wazir Ali, Poligars, Bundelas, Veluthampi

No.	Revolt	Story
5.1	1778-81: Raja Chait Singh of Benaras	Benaras was annexed by the EIC through the Treaty of Faizabad 1775. Chait Singh was a big zamindar with the title of Raja and the loyalty of his people, with his own military and fort. His estates were seized for non-payment of land revenue and he revolted. (PS1793 later formally brought Benaras into the Bengal-BOB-North Madras-Benaras settlement)
5.2	1789: Bishnupur and Birbhum, Bengal	Local zamindars and their ryots oppressed by the LR demands (the handout: of the Permanent Settlement's precursors) rose against the EIC's revenue machinery. Minor in scale but frequent UPSC distractors: know the name and date (the PYQ 2006 wrong option C)
5.3	1799: Nawab Wazir Ali 97-98	The deposed Nawab of Awadh (ruled only 1797-98) revolted with peasant support. The slide adds: he was deposed by John Shore 93-98 in return for a promise of a Rs 76 lakh annual subsidy by his uncle Sadat Ali Khan II (under ToA 1765); the peasants joined because of high LR oppression
5.4	1799-1805: Poligar Revolts	Poligars = traditionally autonomous local chiefs in South India. British Rule of Law and equality before law hurt their elevated social status (the same grievance as the taluqdars in 1857: loss of privilege backed by customary law). The Ryotwari settlement took away their lands; high LR on peasants brought popular participation. Revolted and crushed
5.5	Post-2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05): Bundela chiefs	The Subordinate (Subsidiary) Alliance imposed a British Resident on the Maratha states. Bundela chiefs, suffering Resident interference, revolted with peasant support
5.6	1809: Dewan Veluthampi of Travancore	After the Subsidiary Alliance of 1805, the British Resident interfered in Travancore's internal affairs. Veluthampi, the Dewan, revolted with Nair troops and peasants. Crushed

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Poligar = local chief
- Autonomous traditionally
- Private army and forts
- Landed magnate = what Poligars lost (status, privilege) when British Rule of Law came
- "Bundelas" replaces the struck-out "Maratha states": the Resident was imposed on the Bundela chiefs' area.
- Key point for the section:
  - Civil uprisings are driven by loss of the elite's privilege
  - peasants join because LR also hurts them.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Wazir Ali, slide versus handout:
  - Handout says only "revolted with peasant support"
  - Slide adds the Rs 76 lakh subsidy, John Shore 93-98, uncle Sadat Ali Khan II, and dates Wazir Ali 97-98. Additions, not contradictions
- Exam fact: 1799, deposed Nawab of Awadh, peasant support.

5.7 The Paika Rebellion (1817)

- Who: the Paikas were the traditional landed militia of Odisha, a warrior class rooted in the feudal order.
- Leaders and goal: feudal aristocrats, chiefly Bakshi Jagabandhu (military commander of the Raja of Khurda) and marginalised zamindars.
- The goal was to restore lost hereditary privileges, authority and rent-free estates.
- Multi-class support: despite elite leadership, massive grassroots support from ordinary peasants, salt makers and the tribal Kondhs of Ghumusar: a true multi-class uprising.
- EIC provocations (after conquering Odisha, 1803):
  - Stripped the Paikas of their rent-free land tenures (jagirs)
  - imposed extortionate short-term settlements demanding revenue strictly in silver (Sicca) rather than the traditional cowrie shells
  - banned local sea-salt production to create a monopoly that sent prices soaring
  - And dethroned the revered Raja of Khurda, uniting elite loyalists and the masses.
- Course: rebels destroyed British symbols of authority (police stations, courts, salt monopoly offices), briefly captured Puri, forced the EIC forces to retreat and proclaimed the Raja of Khurda as sovereign.
- Crushed: the British declared martial law and crushed the core uprising with overwhelming force by 1818.
- Bakshi Jagabandhu led a jungle guerrilla war until he surrendered on negotiated terms in 1825.

- Verdict:
    - One of the most formidable pre-1857 armed uprisings
    - Because of its scale and multi-class participation, it is debated in modern historiography as a candidate for India's true "First War of Independence."

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Paikas = a warrior class "(Like Rajputs)" (hereditary soldiers on rent-free land).
- "First War of Independence" [instead of the 1857 Revolt]: the Paika Rebellion is a candidate for the title books give to 1857.
- Keywords: Bakshi Jagabandhu, marginalised zamindars, salt makers, banned sea-salt, dethroned Raja.

6 · Peasant revolts led by peasants

STORY LINK

Because the peasants led themselves here, their targets were exact: revenue farmer, grain, prison, court. Ask: whom did they hit, and why?

6.1 The 1783 Rangpur Rebellion, North Bengal

- Grievance:
    - The Farming System of 1772 unleashed revenue farmers on the peasantry
    - Debi Singh and Gobinda Singh were particularly oppressive and British officials colluded.
- This came on top of the Great Bengal Famine of 1770, which had broken the economic spine of the peasantry.
- Action: they looted the grain stores of Debi Singh and Gobinda Singh, attacked prisons and freed imprisoned ryots, and attacked local courts.
- They were not blindly violent: they hit the revenue farmer, his grain stores, the prison and the court.
- Own government: for a time they ran their own government, funded by self-imposed taxes.
- Result: crushed by the EIC.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Peasant = Leader Revolt": Rangpur is the textbook peasant-led revolt (civil uprisings are led by elites, Section 4).

6.2 Mysore 1830-31

- Background: the Wodeyar dynasty was restored to Mysore in 1799 after the Fourth Anglo-Mysore War.
- But the Subsidiary Alliance of 1799 required a heavy annual subsidy to the British, so the Wodeyar government imposed high land revenue demands.
- Revolt: the peasants revolted against both the Wodeyar administration and British agents.
- Result: the EIC crushed it, as was its obligation under the SA 1799, which required the British to protect the ruler.

7 · Religion-led revolts

STORY LINK

Because religion supplies leader and unity, an economic grievance became a faith movement. Ask: who is the leader, and what is the slogan or symbol?

7.1 The Sanyasi and Fakir Rebellion (1760-1850s)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Gomastas, 1757+: earlier, ryot and artisan sold to the domestic (Indian) trader.
- After 1757 they were routed through Gomastas (Indian agents) straight to EIC officers, so the domestic trader lost his trade.
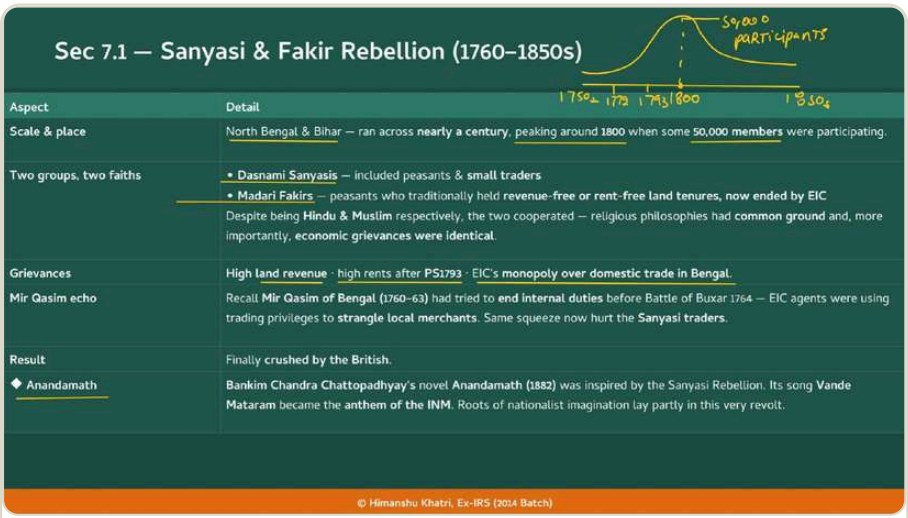
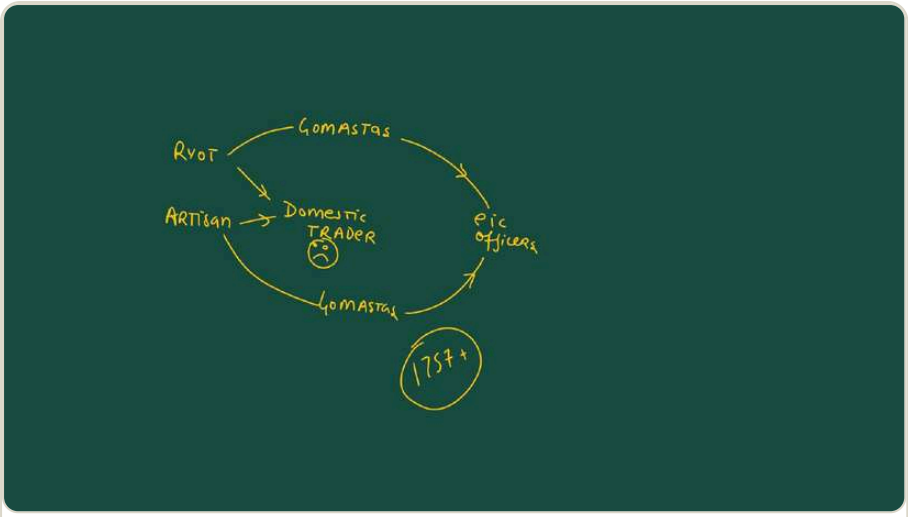
- This is the "EIC monopoly over domestic trade" in the Sanyasi grievance list
- Links to Chapter 10 (Gomastas and private domestic trade after Plassey)



Sanyasi and Fakir Rebellion 1760-1850s Lecture 25 slide 33



Gomastas after 1757: domestic trade squeezed Lecture 25 slide 32

- Place and scale:
  - North Bengal and Bihar
  - ran across nearly a century (1760 to the 1850s), peaking around 1800 with about 50,000 members.

NUMBER CARD · TWO 50,000S

50,000 · 50,000

Same number, two different stories.

50,000 Sanyasi-Fakir members at the peak, about 1800

50,000 Santhals killed in the British retaliation, 1855-56

- Two groups, two faiths: the Dasnami Sanyasis (peasants and small traders) and the Madari Fakirs (peasants who held revenue-free or rent-free land tenures, now ended by the EIC).
- Hindu and Muslim respectively, they cooperated: common ground in their religious philosophies and, more importantly, identical economic grievances.
- Grievances:
  - High land revenue
  - high rents after PS1793
  - the EIC's monopoly over domestic trade in Bengal.
- (Echo: Mir Qasim 60-63 tried to end internal duties before Buxar 1764 because EIC agents were strangling local merchants: the same squeeze now hurt the Sanyasi traders.)
- Result: finally crushed by the British.
- Anandamath:
  - Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay's novel Anandamath (1882) was inspired by this revolt
  - Its song Vande Mataram became the anthem of the INM. (Prelims 2006.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Curve: the revolt starts around the 1750s (1760), rises through 1772 and 1793, peaks at about 1800 with 50,000 participants, falls away by the 1850s.
- Peak at 1793/1800, right after PS1793 raised rents.
- Dasnami Sanyasis and Madari Fakirs are the two faiths.

7.2 The Pagal Panthi Revolt (1823-33), East Bengal

- Leaders: Karim Shah, and after him Tipu Shah.
- Grievance: against zamindars: high rents, illegal abwabs, denial of occupancy rights.
- Action: Tipu Shah promised lower rents once the zamindars and the British were defeated: a political programme delivered through religious leadership.
- Result: crushed by the EIC.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "(Religion providing leader)": religion provided the leader (Section 2.3).
- Keywords: East Bengal, Karim Shah, Tipu Shah, zamindars.

7.3 Titu Mir of 24 Parganas (1831)

- Who: Titu Mir belonged to the Wahabi sect and taught the reformist philosophy of Shah Waliullah of Delhi.
- His followers were poor peasants who adopted a distinct physical identity (a unique beard and dress), itself a marker of resistance.
- Grievance:
  - A tax on beards levied by the local zamindar
  - Oppression by indigo planters, zamindars and British officials.
- Action: the followers set up their own government with self-imposed taxes and built the famous bamboo fort at Narkelberia village.

Titu Mir of 24 Parganas, 1831 Lecture 25 slide 35

- Result: crushed by the EIC army.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Followers' land lay under zamindars (Z) of two kinds: one who has not leased lands to planters (only zamindar's rent and beard tax hurt), and one who leased lands to the planter (indigo planter hurt as well).
- Either way the poor peasant followers were squeezed.

HANDOUT ALERT

- The board letter read as "Z" (zamindar) could also be a fraction ("half").
- Zamindar fits the table's grievance row (zamindars plus indigo planters)

7.4 The Faraizi Movement (1830s, revived 1870s), Bengal

- Leaders: father-son line: Haji Shariatullah (1830s), Dudu Mian (mid-century), Naya Mian (1870s).
- Belief:
  - The Quran is the only true source of Islamic law
  - purge Islam of un-Islamic beliefs and practices: a return to the faith in its original form
- Grievance: oppression by indigo planters, zamindars and British officials.
- Slogan (Dudu Mian): "land belongs to God, therefore any rent or tax on land is ungodly." Fighting a sin is a far more powerful mobilising argument than fighting an economic injustice.

Faraizi Movement: Haji Shariatullah, Dudu Mian Lecture 25 slide 36

- Parallel state: their own government, courts, and taxes.
- Result: crushed by the British.
- W.W. Hunter, The Indian Musalmans: argued British neglect of Muslims had contributed to the Faraizi movement and that the British should favour Muslims for the sake of political stability
- a discontented community is dangerous

- This had long-term consequences for British policy on Hindu-Muslim relations.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "*voice" beside "The slogan": the slogan is the movement's voice (the "voice" point of modern politics, Section 9).
- Keywords:
  - Hunter's argument that the British should favour Muslims for political stability
  - "DnR" (see alert)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Unreadable:
  - The "DnR" is not explained on the slide (maybe the leaders Dudu and Naya, but R matches no name)
  - **.
- Leaders: Haji Shariatullah, Dudu Mian, Naya Mian.

7.5 Moplah / Mopilla revolts in Malabar (1840, 1870s, 1921)

- Three groups, one land: Moplahs (Muslim ryots of the Malabar coast), Janmies (members of Brahmin princely families, historically big landlords) and supervisors who collected LR for the Janmies.
- The land's earnings were shared among all three, each with a customary right.
- How British rule broke this: Malabar was annexed after the Third Anglo-Mysore War (1789-92).
- The British LR system recognised only the Janmies as legal owners.
- The Moplahs lost all customary rights overnight and became exploited tenants, while the Janmies were backed by British law.
- (British Orientalists gave ideological cover: Lord Parshuram had gifted all the land to the Janmies.)
- Character: violent, and communal in colour because oppressor and oppressed had different religious identities.
- The same dynamic returns in 1921 during the Non-Cooperation Movement (see Chapter 38 and the NCM chapters).
- Result: crushed by the EIC army.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Moplah keywords: "(1840, 1870s, 1921)," "Moplahs = Muslim ryots" and "Janmies." Not a PYQ slide, but PYQ 2020 option (b) "Mappila Rebellion 1921" is a trap for the Ulgulan question (Section 10.1).

HANDOUT ALERT

The handout Prelims 2006 alert sits under the Moplah row, but the question is about Anandamath = Sanyasi rebellion (Section 7.1); the slide order puts the PYQ after Moplah.

8 · Tribal uprisings, pre-1857

STORY LINK

Because forest and autonomy were taken, the tribals rose in a chain, ending in the Santhal Hool. Ask: what triggered each, and how did the British answer?

8.1 to 8.3: Pahariya, Bhil, Ramosi

- 8.1 Pahariya Revolt (1778), Rajmahal Hills: the Pahariyas were among the earliest tribals to resist.
- When the EIC extended revenue collection and administration into the Rajmahal Hills, these hunter-gatherers and shifting cultivators revolted against the destruction of their autonomy and livelihood.
- The British used military force and a policy of containment, pushing them further into the hills.
- 8.2 Bhil Revolts (1818-31), Western India: the Bhils of the Khandesh and Rajputana hills revolted repeatedly.
- Annexation of Maratha territories after the Third Anglo-Maratha War (1818) brought their homelands under direct EIC control
- New LR demands, plains-based moneylenders and curtailed forest rights provoked the risings
- Suppressed militarily, but the British also raised the Bhil Corps (a locally recruited force) as a pacification strategy.
- 8.3 Ramosi Uprising (1822), Western Ghats near Pune: the Ramosis had been watchmen and guards under the Maratha state and lost their customary occupations and status after the British takeover.
- A localised but violent rising, put down by force.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Keywords: "hunter-gatherers and shifting cultivators," "further into the hills," "new LR demands," "plains-based moneylenders," "curtailment of traditional forest rights," "Bhil Corps ... pacification strategy" and "Ramosi Uprising (1822)," "watchmen and guards," "under the Maratha state," "lost their customary occupations and status." So: Pahariya = containment; Bhil = recruit them (Bhil Corps); Ramosi = job lost with the Maratha state.

8.4 to 8.6: Kol, Kandh, Khasi

Uprising	What happened
8.4 Kol Uprising 1831-32, Chhota Nagpur and Singhbhum	The Kols' tribal autonomy was destroyed. The Raja of Chhotanagpur farmed out tribal lands to merchants and moneylenders, outsiders called Suds. The Kols lost customary land rights. Action: they targeted the property of the Suds, not their lives: again, the tribals knew their oppressors. Crushed by the army
8.5 Kandh Uprising 1837-56, Odisha (Ghumsar/Kalahandi)	Leader: Chakra Bisoi. The British banned human sacrifice, tied to the Kandhs' religious ritual of Meriah. To the British a humanitarian intervention; to the Kandhs an attack on their religion and autonomy. Prolonged resistance, eventually crushed
8.6 Khasi Uprising 1829-33	Leader: U Tirot Sing. The British built the Brahmaputra Valley-Sylhet Road, bringing an influx of outsiders (British businesses, their Indian agents, British officials) into Khasi territory: loss of Khasi land and disruption of their way of life. Crushed

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "in Bangladesh": Sylhet (end of the Brahmaputra Valley-Sylhet Road) is in Bangladesh today, so do not look for it inside India on the map.
- Keywords:
  - The Kol's "action" (property, not lives)
  - Khasi leader U Tirot Sing
  - Suds
  - Meriah.

8.7 The Santhal Hool (1855-56)

- Homeland: the Santhals called it Damini-i-koh, "the skirts of the hills" (Rajmahal Hills, Jharkhand).
- The British opened it up for settlement, bringing non-Santhal zamindars and moneylenders, whom the Santhals called Dikus (outsiders).
- Railway and road construction further devoured Santhal land.
- Leaders: the brothers Sido Murmu and Kanhu Murmu.

Santhal Hool 1855-56: cause, course, outcome Lecture 25 slide 41

- Action:
  - (1) in 1855 the Santhals gave the British a formal prior warning, a public declaration of revolt: political action, not mere violence
  - (2) they rose with bows and arrows against the "unholy trinity": the British, the zamindars and the moneylenders, to win back their fatherland from the Dikus
  - (3) British authority in the region collapsed
  - (4) the British retaliated with organised military force, burning villages and killing about 50,000 Santhals.
- Result: crushed with extreme ferocity, but with a real political impact: a separate administrative unit, the Santhal Parganas, was created with protections for tribal culture and identity, and restrictions on transfer of Santhal land to non-tribals were imposed there: an early protective land law acknowledging the Diku problem. (Prelims 2018.)

- Cross-reference:
  - Bankim's Bharat Mata idea in Anandamath (1882) drew on the same emotional idea of a fatherland to be reclaimed
  - the Santhals had said it in their own idiom three decades earlier.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Land Loss (Acquisition): land acquisition for railways and roads is the economic cause.
- Keywords: 1855 prior warning (political action), bows and arrows, the brothers' names, the unholy trinity, about 50,000 killed.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1998 answer (d) 2, 4, 1, 3.
- Santhal (1855) then Mutiny (1857) then Indigo (1859) then Deccan Riot (1875).
- The two traps: putting the Mutiny first (the Santhal rising came before it) and reversing Indigo and Deccan.
- Prelims 2018 answer (c) Both 1 and 2: Santhal Parganas created, and land transfer to non-Santhals restricted.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout figure spells the leaders "Sidhu and Kanho" (as does the PYQ answer slide) and says the Santhal Parganas were carved from "Bhagalpur, Bihar to Orissa," a semi-autonomous unit.
- That geography is not in the handout text or class slides: a figure-only detail.
- Text and teacher write Sido and Kanhu Murmu.

Handout figure: Santhal Hool cause, warning, retaliation, outcome handout figure

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout figure versus handout text:
  - The figure lists "Chhotanagpur Tenancy Act 1908
  - Beth Begari banned" as the outcome of Birsa's revolt and the Kol Revolt as "1831" (text and slide: 1831-32)
- The Tenancy Act and Beth Begari appear nowhere in the handout text or class slides
- Check your notebook
- The figure also puts Khasi after Kandh
- The class chain has Khasi 1829-33 before Kol. Use dates, not box order.

9 · Understanding the character of pre-1857 revolts

STORY LINK

Because the revolts were many and scattered, the question is what they add up to. Ask: modern nationalism, or its pre-history?

9.1 Were these revolts modern nationalism?

- No. Modern nationalism rests on a specific idea of the Nation and a specific idea of Politics.
- The handout's model is the French Revolution's Liberty, Equality, Fraternity: a modern nation is one where citizens feel united as one people (Fraternity/Unity), equal before the law (Equality), and collectively supreme (the national interest, not that of any king, caste or class, is paramount: Liberty/Sovereignty).

- Modern politics needs:
  - A united leadership
  - a clear ideology and goal
  - a plan (long-term) and a programme (short-term)
  - a mouthpiece (newspaper, website) to articulate ideology and justify actions
  - And an organisational structure through which directions reach every follower

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Modern INM has two halves: the idea (modern nation = ideology) and the method (modern politics).
- Nation = sum of people: one (fraternity), equal (equality), supreme (liberty) = the modern meaning given by the French Revolution 1789.
- Consequences:
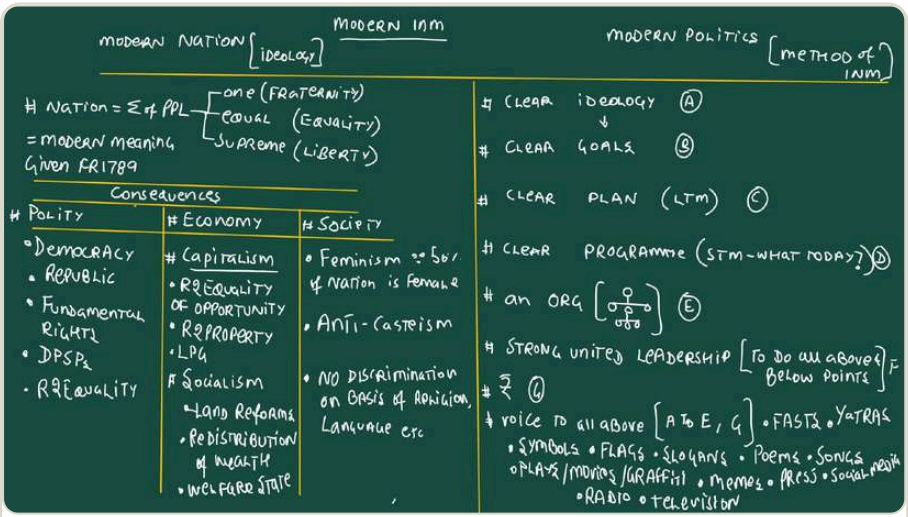
  - Polity (democracy, republic, fundamental rights, DPSPs, right to equality)
  - Economy (capitalism: equality of opportunity, right to property, LPG; socialism: land reforms, redistribution of wealth, welfare state)
  - Society (feminism as 50% of the nation is female; anti-casteism; no discrimination on religion or language)
- Modern politics: A ideology, B goals, C plan (long-term), D programme (short-term: "what today?"), E organisation, strong united leadership, G money (rupee sign), and "voice" to carry A to E and G (fasts, yatras, symbols, flags, slogans, poems, songs, plays and films, graffiti, memes, press, social media, radio, television).



Modern nation and modern politics: the INM method Lecture 24 slide 91

HANDOUT NOTE

- The board has A, B, C, D, E and G
- no letter F (leadership sits between E and G)
- "mmp" beside the title most likely means "modern nation, modern politics"

Where the pre-1857 revolts fell short:

- 1. Not all-India movements: no unity across regions.
- 2. No coordination with each other.
- 3. Only local leaders: nobody thought of India first and their region second.
- 4. Lacked proper planning.
- 5. Their goal was not democracy in any modern sense.

MNEMONIC · WHY THE REVOLTS WERE NOT MODERN NATIONALISM

L O C A L

The pre-1857 revolts stayed LOCAL, so they fell short of modern nationalism.

L Local leaders only: nobody put India first
O Their gOal was not democracy in any modern sense
C Coordination missing: none with each other
A All-India unity missing: not all-India movements
L Lacked proper planning

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word that names the failing.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Calling Hitler an "extreme" nationalist brings a bad name to nationalism
- the teacher asks "Why not" call him a "pseudo-nationalist" instead (fragment "100%.")
- Real nationalism is the fraternity-equality-liberty idea above
- A leader who denies equality is not a nationalist at all. for his wording around "100%"

9.2 Then why "pre-history of modern nationalism"?

- Because they were unmistakably political: not apolitical, not merely criminal, not merely religious. They had:

- Ideology: they wanted to restore the moral order British rule had disturbed.
- Their vocabulary was not rights, democracy, colonialism or "No Taxation Without Representation," but immoral rule implies oppression, which implies denial of economic, cultural and political rights: different language, same moral architecture.
- Organisation: religion provided unity, leadership and the habit of collective action, especially when a whole sect revolted.
- Many set up their own governments, courts and taxes: a functioning parallel state, however temporary.
- Programme: meetings were held, plans were made.
- Political awareness:
    - The Rangpur peasants hit grain stores, prison and courts
    - the Kols targeted property, not lives
    - the Santhals said "We have always hunted game in these forests. Now we hunt our oppressors." They knew exactly what instrument oppressed them
- Political symbolism:
    - Public marches and meetings (not secret)
    - the Santhal warning of 1855
    - Birsa Munda's uprising timed for Christmas 1899
    - the Santhal idea of the fatherland that must be reclaimed

> KEY TAKEAWAY
>
> - Crimes are committed secretly. Politics is done in public. These revolts were public: that is why INM leaders called them the pre-history of modern nationalism.
> - (Teacher: not 100% modern but anti-colonial.)

10 · Post-1857 tribal uprisings

> Because the old grievances lived on after 1857, two more tribal risings follow. Ask: where does religion, and where does Gandhi, enter?

10.1 Munda Ulugulan (1899-1900), Chhota Nagpur

- Leader: Birsa Munda.
- Grievances:
    - Loss of lands to outsiders
    - oppression by British officials
    - missionary activities of Christian missionaries in tribal areas
- Role of religion: people believed Birsa had supernatural healing powers and that British bullets would turn to water when fired at him.

- (A recurring feature where people face a vastly stronger enemy: it makes resistance feel possible; religion gave courage where reason might have said surrender.)
- Political symbolism: he chose Christmas of 1899 to launch the Ulugulan: a deliberate rising against British power on the most sacred day of the religion the missionaries were using to erode Munda identity.
- Result: crushed by the British. (Prelims 2020: 'Ulgulan' = the Great Tumult = Birsa Munda's revolt 1899-1900.)

MNEMONIC · THE TRIBAL ARC, 1778 TO 1900

Plains Brought Ruin Khasis Kols Kandhs Struck Back

P	Pahariya 1778, Rajmahal Hills
B	Bhil 1818-31, Khandesh and Rajputana
R	Ramosi 1822, Western Ghats
K	Khasi 1829-33, U Tirot Sing
K	Kol 1831-32, Chhota Nagpur and Singhbhum
K	Kandh 1837-56, Chakra Bisoi
S	Santhal Hool 1855-56, Sido and Kanhu Murmu
B	Birsa Munda 1899-1900, Ulugulan

Order kept (the class-slide order, by start date): outsiders from the plains brought ruin, and the tribals struck back.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "POST 1857": the last tribal revolt in the chapter comes after the Revolt of 1857, hence the title split Pre-1857 and Post-1857.
- Keywords:
  - Loss of lands to outsiders
  - Missionary activities.
- Words for rising: Ulugulan = Munda word, Hool = Santhal word.

10.2 The Rampa Rebellion / Fituri, Andhra

Grievances (Rampa Hills of Andhra):

- 1. Commercial exploitation of forests.
- 2. Land acquisition for road construction.
- 3. Loss of lands to moneylenders and merchants.
- 4. Prohibition of Podu cultivation (shifting cultivation, the Jhum equivalent).

- 5. Restriction on use of forest resources.
- 6. Tax on toddy (the Abkari system at work).
- Leadership: the Muttadars, local estate holders, roughly poligars or taluqdars: the same pattern as civil uprisings: elite leaders with popular participation.
- First phase: crushed by 1880 (the 1870s start).
- Second phase (Gandhian overlap):
    - In 1920 the Rampa tribals' movement merged into the Non-Cooperation Movement
    - their civil disobedience was violation of forest laws, in Andhra under Alluri Sitarama Raju.
- After NCM withdrawal (1922): Raju concluded India could be liberated only by force and re-initiated the Fituri (the violent rebellion). Captured and executed in 1924.
- The intersection: a pure tribal economic revolt in the 1870s, merges with Gandhi's mass movement in 1920, then after Gandhi's withdrawal produces a leader who draws the opposite lesson.
- Raju becomes a revolutionary martyr in the Andhra tradition.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Keywords: Muttadars and Civil Uprisings: Rampa is a tribal revolt with elite (muttadar) leadership, blending two kinds from Section 4.
- Also:
    - 1920 merger
    - "violation of forest laws" as civil disobedience
    - "after NCM withdrawal (1922)"
    - "re-initiated the Fituri"
    - "captured and executed in 1924."

HANDOUT ALERT

- Rampa dates:
    - Handout = started 1870s, first phase crushed by 1880
    - map = "Rampa (Andhra) 1879/1922." Consistent: 1879 first year, 1922 Fituri restart after NCM
- For Prelims:
    - 1870s start, crushed by 1880
    - 1920 merger
    - 1922 Fituri
    - 1924 execution.

MODERN INDIAN HISTORY · CHAPTER 21

The Revolt of 1857

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 232-239 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 1998, 2000, 2005 (two), 2006 (two)

Mains PYQs: two Mains PYQs (year not on the slides): 1857 as the culmination of recurrent rebellions; 1857 as a watershed in British policy

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- The six PYQs, all single-fact answers: WEMC opposed the revolt (1998); Aitchison's remark = Revolt of 1857 (2000); Kunwar Singh = Bihar, Jagdishpur (2005); Chittor not affected (2005); Tantia Tope betrayed by Man Singh (2006); Governor-General = Canning 56-62 (2006)
- Opening shots dates (29 March, 8 April, 22 April, 10 May, 11 May, 20 September 1857); the 1856 allowance cut and Awadh annexation; Brown Bess versus Enfield; Lex Loci Act 1850; leader-and-centre pairs
- GOI Act 1858 and the 1 November 1858 Proclamation; Police Act 1861 chain (IG, SP, SI); Statutory Civil Service (handout 1870 and 1878, Lytton 76-80)
- Peel Commission: July 1858, March 1859, European Forces (India) Act 1860, ratios 1:2 and 1:3, artillery barred, martial races

MAINS HOOKS

- Sepoy mutiny plus civil rebellion; the sepoy as a peasant in uniform (the culmination-of-rebellions question)
- The War of Independence debate: three positions, arguments against (Scam B, Punjab, Bengal, WEMC, loyal princes) and for (Hindu-Muslim unity, Aitchison, federal vision)
- Why the British won: no money or command, the Delhi mistake, localised revolt, half the army loyal
- The watershed (teacher's 'Please tell impact of 1857 revolt'): polity, ideology, policing, civil services, army, society

1857 was the hinge: the Company's improvised rule ended, the Crown built a coup-proof army, a Police Raj and a shut door, and that shut door seeded modern nationalism.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Pressed on every side (pay, caste, Awadh, land, religion), the Bengal Army and the dispossessed villages rose together; they lost for lack of money, command and unity; and the Crown that replaced the Company rebuilt the army, police and services to prevent a repeat, shutting the very door that created modern nationalism.

1 A village in uniform. The Bengal Army is the largest of the three armies, filled with upper-caste sepoys from Awadh and some from Bihar, and Indians far outnumber the British in it. The sepoy is a peasant in uniform: he is paid less than a European, is called Suar, and cannot rise beyond Subedar at 60 to 70 rupees a month.

→ But the British were about to press on every sore at once.

2 1856: four blows. To offset war costs the British cut sepoy pay and abolish the allowance for serving outside the home region, a loss of money and of caste. Awadh, the biggest recruiting ground, is annexed on grounds of maladministration and feels like personal betrayal. The Hindu Widows' Remarriage Act is passed, and Canning 56-62 announces that the Mughals will be only 'Princes'.

→ All that was missing was a spark.

3 The fat on the cartridge. The new Enfield rifle replaces the Brown Bess, and its cartridge, greased with cow and pig fat, must be bitten before loading. With rumours of cow and pig bone dust in flour, and missionaries in cantonments since the Charter Act 1813, sepoys fear a plot against Hindu and Muslim identity. The teacher is clear: the cartridge was only the trigger.

→ And the first sepoy fired.

4 Barrackpur to Delhi. On 29 March 1857 Mangal Pandey of the 34th BNI fires at European officers; he is hanged on 8 April and Jemadar Ishwari Prasad on 22 April, and the 34th BNI is disbanded. On 10 May Meerut mutinies and on 11 May the sepoys reach Delhi and proclaim Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57 Emperor of Hindustan. Delhi is held until 20 September, and for the first time in a century the British monopoly of organised violence is broken.

→ Now the villages were waiting.

5 The village joins. Annexation and the Doctrine of Lapse have stripped rulers and their courts; Mahalwari, disbanded forts and equality before law have stripped the taluqdars of estates, arms and status; high land revenue, moneylenders and courts that side with lenders have ruined the peasants. Cheaper British goods ruin the artisans. Above all, the whole countryside fears for its religion: missionaries 1813, Sati 1829, Lex Loci 1850, Widows 1856.

→ Each region found its leader in the dispossessed.

6 Lamps in eight hands. Nana Sahib rises at Kanpur, Hazrat Mahal at Lucknow, Khan Bahadur Khan at Bareilly, Lakshmi Bai at Jhansi, Maulvi Ahmadullah Shah at Faizabad, Kunwar Singh at Jagdishpur in Bihar and Zafar at Delhi, with Tantia Tope as the great guerrilla. Lakshmi Bai dies at Gwalior in June 1858; Tantia Tope is betrayed by Man Singh and hanged in April 1859; Zafar is exiled to Rangoon and dies in 1862.

→ Yet eight lamps are not one flame.

7 Why the flame went out. The rebels have no money, weapons or training, and no central command. The teacher's board shows the mistake: all the sepoys go to Delhi, so the fall of Delhi is the fall of the sepoy mutiny and of the revolt. The revolts are local, with no control of the telegraph; Bombay and Madras stay quiet and Punjabis and Gurkhas help the British.

→ Whatever it was, what do we call it?

8 Mutiny, war or more? The colonial view says sepoy mutiny; Savarkar (1909) and Marx say war of independence; mainstream historians say far more than a mutiny but without modern nationalism. Against the war: Scam B areas, Punjab, Bengal, the WEMC, loyal princes (Kota the exception), no manifesto, an old-order goal.

For more than a mutiny: a common enemy, Hindu-Muslim unity (Aitchison), a federal vision, a mass movement.

→ Whatever the name, Britain could not go back to the Company.

9 The Crown takes over. The GOI Act 1858 ends the EIC: Queen Victoria is sovereign and a Cabinet-rank Secretary of State replaces the President of the Board of Control. The Proclamation of 1 November 1858 promises tolerance and shelves social reform; the teacher adds no more annexations, with British India holding 63% of the territory. Britain now sees Indians as racially inferior and more authoritarian rule follows.

→ And the state itself was rebuilt: police, services, army.

10 A Police Raj and a shut door. Canning 56-62's 1st Police Commission of 1860 leads to the Police Act of March 1861: Inspector General, Superintendent of Police, Sub-Inspector, with Indians excluded from important posts. The civil services exam is no longer held simultaneously in India, the age cap is 19 to 23, and the Statutory Civil Service of Lytton 76-80 admits only hand-picked elites: co-option, not inclusion.

→ But the deepest reform was the army.

11 The coup-proof army. The Peel Commission (appointed July 1858, report March 1859) leads to the European Forces (India) Act 1860, ratios of 1:2 in Bengal and 1:3 in Madras and Bombay, and an Indian ban on artillery. Regiments mix castes and religions, recruitment favours martial races, loyalty to the salt is taught, and the army is kept in barracks and used against peasant revolts and the INM.

→ Yet the shut door had made a new class.

12 The door that made its own key. The WEMC, schooled in British liberalism, had wanted a share in governance and was locked out. That frustration became the seed of the modern nationalism-based INM, and by 1929 its demands would escalate into Purna Swaraj. 1857 was the hinge: more efficient and more repressive reforms that planted what would later demand independence.

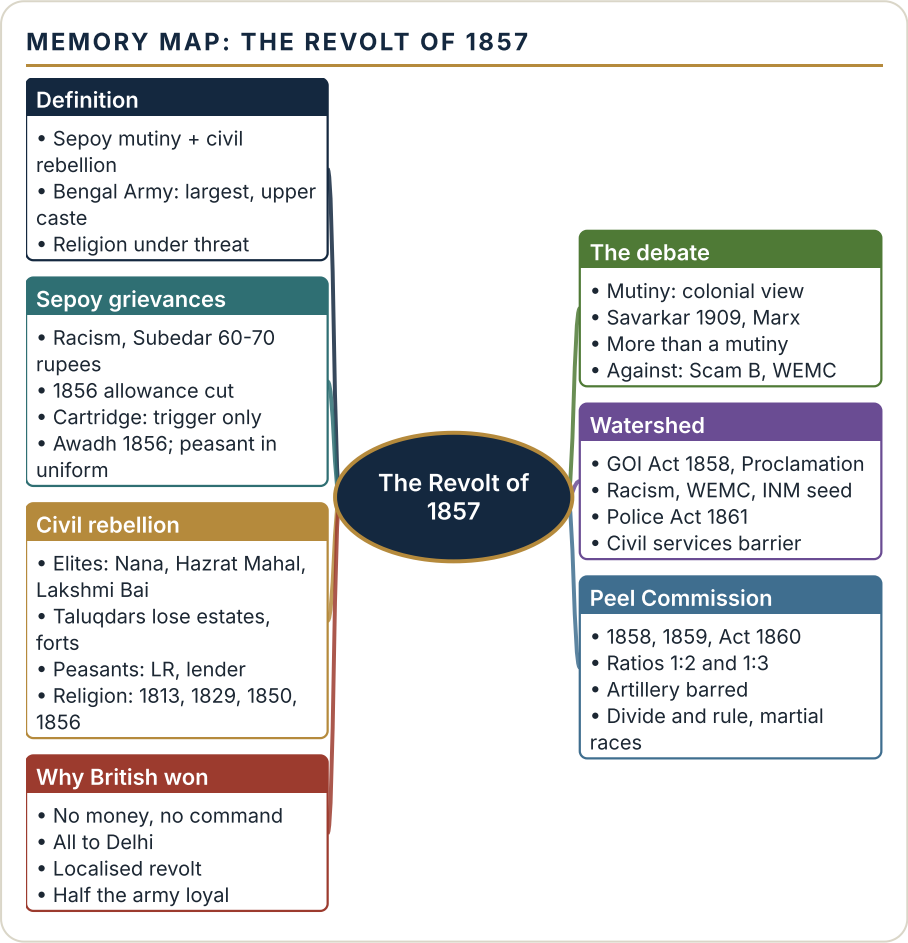
Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS 1857 = sepoy mutiny + civil rebellion; it failed, but it ended the Company and, by shutting the door on the WEMC, began modern nationalism.

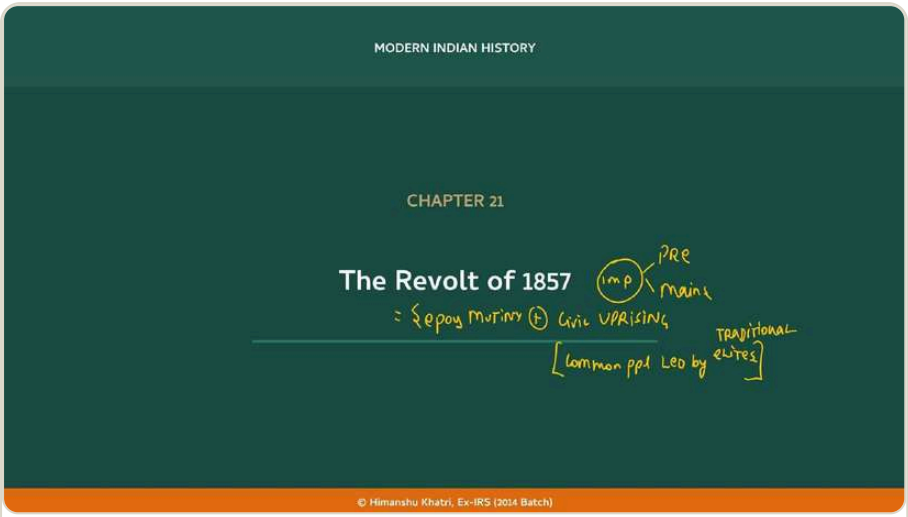
0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Story so far: the Company State of the last chapters is about to be shaken. Hold the formula: sepoy mutiny plus civil rebellion, led by traditional elites.



Chapter 21 title: The Revolt of 1857 as Sepoy Mutiny plus Civil Uprising
Lecture 25 slide 63

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1857 = Sepoy Mutiny (+) Civil Uprising
- the civil part was common people led by traditional elites (dispossessed rajas, Mansabdars, taluqdars)
- Imp for both PRE and Mains.

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout page ends with the index of the next chapter (What Changed After 1857, Indigo Revolt 1859-63, Pabna Agrarian Leagues 1873, Maharashtra, Punjab), which belongs to Chapter 22: Peasant Revolts After 1857.

1 · Defining the Revolt of 1857

STORY LINK

Because the revolt had two streams, the story must too: one begins in the barracks of the Bengal Army, the other in the villages. Ask: why the Bengal Army and not Bombay or Madras?

TEACHER'S BOARD

Two-stream definition. The Revolt of 1857 was not simply a military mutiny: it was a sepoy mutiny combined with a civil rebellion, two streams that flowed together.

Defining the Revolt of 1857: sepoy mutiny plus civil rebellion Lecture 25 slide 64

Stream	Who	Fact to hold
Sepoy Mutiny	Sepoys of the Bengal Army	The largest of the three armies (Bengal, with Bombay and Madras smaller)
Civil Rebellion	Dispossessed elites, taluqdars, peasants	All believed that religion was under threat, even those who did not take part
Formula	1857 Revolt = Sepoy Mutiny + Civil Rebellion	Teacher ticks this

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why the Bengal Army and not the others?
- It was the largest army (Bombay and Madras smaller)
- The ratio of Indians to British was very high (handout: British-to-Indian ratio lowest there)
- Most sepoys were upper caste (UC), so caste homogeneity, so caste unity
- and commonality of grievances with their home villages
- Even non-participants agreed that religion was under threat.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Two PYQ alerts sit under this heading in the handout (Prelims 1998: WEMC opposed the revolt; Prelims 2005: Chittor not affected).
- The slides use them under "Arguments Against It Being a War of Independence," so they are worked in Section 6.2.

2 · The opening shots

STORY LINK

Because the grievances had piled up, one rebel's shot was enough. Follow the dates: Barrackpur, Meerut, Delhi.

The opening shots: Barrackpur to Delhi, 29 March to 20 September 1857
Lecture 25 slide 65

The opening shots of 1857

- 29 March 1857:
  - Mangal Pandey, sepoy of the 34th Bengal Native Infantry (BNI), Barrackpur near Calcutta, fires at European officers
  - His fellow sepoys refuse to arrest him
- 8 April 1857: Mangal Pandey hanged
- 22 April 1857:
  - Jemadar Ishwari Prasad (who refused to restrain Pandey) hanged
  - The 34th BNI disbanded as collective punishment
- 10 May 1857: sepoys at Meerut mutiny
- 11 May 1857: they march to Delhi and proclaim Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57 (1837-1857, last Mughal emperor) Emperor of Hindustan
- By end of May:
  - The revolt spreads across the North-West Provinces and Awadh
  - the civil population joins in
- 11 May to 20 September 1857 in Delhi, and broadly until spring 1858: British rule collapses across a large swathe of north and central India

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Banner: for the first time in a century, the British monopoly over organised violence in India was broken.
- Violence on both sides was enormous.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout and slide print the emperor as "Zafar3757" and the province as "NWP1836" (PDF artefacts).
- Read Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57 (the teacher's code) and NWP 1836.

3 · Why the sepoys mutinied

STORY LINK

Because the sepoy was a peasant in uniform, every wound of pay, caste, Awadh and land was his own. Ask: which was the cause and which only the trigger?

3.1 Service-related grievances

- Racism. Indian sepoys earned far less than European soldiers, got smaller pensions, and faced routine slurs: they were called "Suar" (pigs).
- The highest rank an Indian could reach was Subedar, worth only 60 to 70 rupees a month.
- Economic. To offset high war expenditure, the British cut sepoy salaries and abolished the allowance for serving outside one's home region in 1856.
- That allowance mattered doubly: losing it was an economic blow and, for many upper-caste men, a religious insult, since serving far from home or crossing water was seen as causing loss of caste.

3.2 Socio-religious grievances

- Early on, the British recruited upper castes and respected caste customs: ruling the Indian army the Indian way.
- This was the ideology of Orientalism: to govern India, work within Indian traditions, at least initially.
- As the empire expanded and the army became more heterogeneous, respecting caste customs became inconvenient.
- The British now wanted a uniform army culture where loyalty ran to the employer, not to caste or religion.
- i) Caste privileges were reduced: food restrictions, religious symbols, and the right to refuse service in polluting regions were curtailed.
- Ii) Sepoys were forced to serve in Burma, Sindh or Afghanistan, risking loss of caste
- Those who refused were dismissed or punished.

- iii) Christian missionaries in cantonments since the Charter Act 1813 created anxiety about forced conversion.
- Iv) The rumours. Cow and pig bone dust in flour
- And the new Enfield rifle cartridges (which replaced the Brown Bess musket) were greased with cow and pig fat and had to be bitten before loading.
- Whether true or not, the rumours landed on fertile ground: the fear that the British were engineering a loss of Hindu and Muslim identity to make conversion easier.

> The whole chain is examinable: Orientalism, expansion, recruitment from other castes, uniform military culture, forced service abroad, loss of caste, punishment, missionaries, Charter Act 1813, cartridge rumours.

3.3 Political grievance: Awadh

- The single largest source of recruits for the Bengal Army was Awadh.
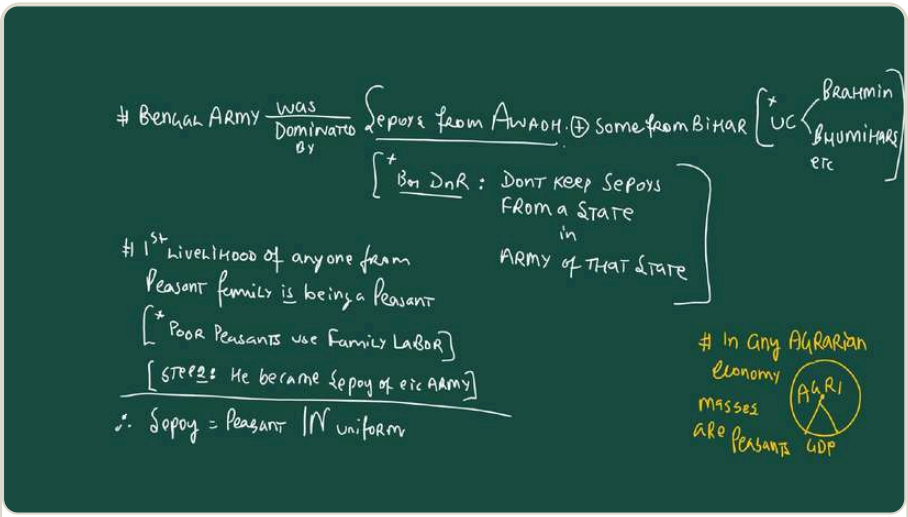
- Nearly every family there had a member in the British Indian Army.
- The annexation of Awadh in 1856 felt like a personal betrayal: their loyalty had cost them their homeland.



Bengal Army: Awadh sepoys, upper castes, peasant in uniform Lecture 26 slide 1

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The Bengal Army was dominated by sepoys from Awadh, plus some from Bihar
- upper castes among them: Brahmins, Bhumihars, etc. Starred rule "Bor DnR": do not keep sepoys from a State in the army of that State.
- Peasant logic:
    - The first livelihood of anyone from a peasant family is being a peasant
    - poor peasants use family labour
    - step 2 he became a sepoy of the EIC army. Sepoy = peasant IN uniform.
- In any agrarian economy the masses are peasants (AGRI triangle inside the GDP circle).

Undivided Awadh: 1801 and 1856, land revenue and names Lecture 26 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Undivided Awadh was taken in two bites. 1801: the Doab, Gorakhpur and Rohilkhand. 1856: the rest.
- Land revenue:
    - Mahalwari 1822 in the 1801 half
    - Summary Settlement (no detailed field survey) in the half annexed in 1856
- Names:
    - 1801 land = Ceded Districts, renamed NWP 1836
    - then 1877 "NWP and Oudh"
    - 1902 "UP of Agra and Oudh"
    - 1937 = United Provinces.

3.4 Agrarian grievances

- i) Summary settlements in Awadh fixed LR without proper field surveys, so demands were unreasonable.
- ii) Peasants unable to pay: lands auctioned by the government, or lost to moneylenders through debt.
- iii) New British courts backed moneylenders, completing the dispossession.
- iv) The sepoy was a peasant in uniform: these wounds were his family's wounds.

3.5 The trigger versus the cause

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR HEADS OF SEPOY GRIEVANCE

P A S S

The greased cartridge was the last straw: these four loads were on the sepoy's back, and his patience would not PASS.

P Political: Awadh annexed 1856, the largest recruiting ground

A Agrarian: summary settlement, debt, auctions, courts for lenders

S Service: racism, pay cut and allowance abolished 1856

S Socio-religious: caste privileges cut, missionaries, cartridge rumours

Order is free here, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The greased cartridge was merely the trigger.
- The revolt began in the Bengal Army because upper-caste identity had been most carefully preserved there, and the ratio of British to Indian soldiers was lowest in that army.
- Bombay and Madras armies were heterogeneous, so there was less caste-based unity.

Why the sepoys mutinied, contd.: annexation, peasant again, trigger
Lecture 26 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three board notes. (1) The Awadh annexation of 1856 was on the ground of MALADMINISTRATION (on top of the grievances above).
- (2) "Now he removed his [uniform] to be peasant again": the sepoy went back to being a peasant.
- (3) Fyi: the rumour of cartridges having cow and pig fat was just a TRIGGER and there were MULTIPLE reasons for the 1857 Revolt.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Trap: Awadh was NOT annexed under the Doctrine of Lapse.
- Board: 1856: maladministration (Jhansi went by the Doctrine of Lapse: Section 4.1).
- A Question bank item says Awadh was annexed "under the Doctrine of Lapse": teacher and handout win
- The bank wording is wrong.
- Another practice statement says the Bengal Army had the "highest ratio of British to Indian soldiers": the handout says lowest.

4 · Why the civil population rebelled

STORY LINK

Because the same policies ruined the elites, the taluqdars and the peasants, they found leaders in the dispossessed. Ask: who lost what, and who led from where?

4.1 Feudal elites and dispossessed rulers

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Civil rebellion = North and Central India, split into LEADERS and FOLLOWERS.
- Leaders = ex-rajas and Mansabdars, who lost status through annexation and Doctrine of Lapse: political
- Economic (no jagirs, no Khalisa land)
- Social (British rule of law, equality before law).
- Zamindars (Taluqdars) lost status too: economic (Mahalwari: lost milkiyat, ownership), social (equality before law), political (private army and forts, disbanded). Followers = peasants and artisans.
- Peasants:
  - Already done (agrarian grievances): higher LR, the Rs lender, loss of lands
  - the lender is the "villain of 1857," with the British beside him
- Artisans:
  - The Industrial Revolution (1750-1850) in Britain
  - Indian economy exposed to industrialising Britain through the Charter Act 1813.

Civil rebellion: leaders and followers, causes of lost status Lecture 26 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- British manufactured goods were cheaper in rupees (MRP) and later better in quality too, against Indian handicrafts.
- Hence the destruction of Indian industry that rebels also complain about (Section 6.3).

- Annexations under the Doctrine of Lapse and other policies stripped ruling families of power, and with each fallen ruler the entire dependent court aristocracy fell too.
- These displaced elites had both motive and, often, remaining private resources to lead a rebellion.

Leader	Centre	What to hold
Nana Sahib	Kanpur	Adopted son of Baji Rao II 96-18 (1796-1818), denied pension after annexation. Teacher: Baji Rao II 96-18 went to Bithur (Kanpur) with a pension after the 3rd Anglo-Maratha War 1817-19. Tantia Tope was his deputy
Begum Hazrat Mahal	Lucknow	Led the revolt at Lucknow. Wife of the deposed Nawab Wajid Ali Shah (Awadh annexed on grounds of maladministration)
Khan Bahadur Khan Rohilla	Bareilly	Rohilla leader; Rohilkhand annexed when half of Awadh was annexed (1801)
Rani Lakshmi Bai	Jhansi	Jhansi annexed on grounds of Doctrine of Lapse (the teacher writes 1854 beside it). Fought fiercely; died in battle at Gwalior on 17-18 June 1858; one of the most celebrated symbols of the revolt
Maulvi Ahmadullah Shah	Faizabad	Fiery religious leader who rallied both Hindu and Muslim support; one of the most formidable rebel commanders in Awadh
Kunwar Singh	Jagdishpur,	Zamindar who lost lands under the sunset clause of the Permanent Settlement Act 1793 (forfeiture of zamindari rights on non-payment of LR by a fixed deadline: a harsh, inflexible

Leader	Centre	What to hold
	Bihar	rule that destroyed many old landed families). Brother Amar Singh also active. Guerrilla warfare (slide)
Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57	Delhi	Canning 56-62 announced in 1856 that Mughals would be called only "Princes" and would vacate the Red Fort. After Delhi fell he was captured, tried, exiled to Rangoon (Burma), and died in 1862: the last Mughal emperor, a prisoner far from the empire his ancestors had built
Tantia Tope	central India	Nana Sahib's ablest commander, the revolt's greatest guerrilla fighter. After Kanpur and Jhansi fell he refused to surrender, waged a long guerrilla campaign across central India, was betrayed by his associate Man Singh, captured and hanged in April 1859

MNEMONIC · THE LEADERS OF THE CIVIL REBELLION, IN THE HANDOUT'S ORDER

Nobody Has Killed Light; Many Kept Blazing Torches

- N Nana Sahib: Kanpur; adopted son of Baji Rao II 96-18
- H Hazrat Mahal (Begum): Lucknow; wife of Wajid Ali Shah
- K Khan Bahadur Khan Rohilla: Bareilly
- L Lakshmi Bai (Rani): Jhansi; died at Gwalior June 1858
- M Maulvi Ahmadullah Shah: Faizabad
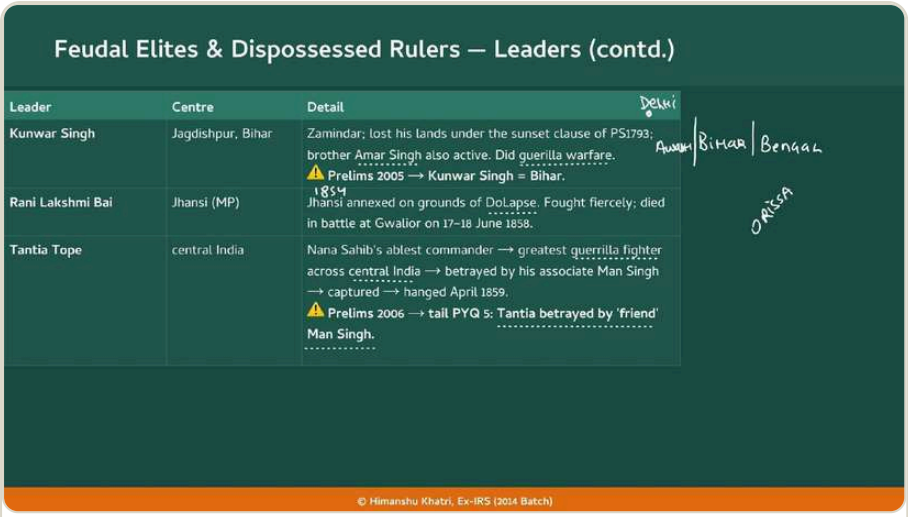
- K Kunwar Singh: Jagdishpur, Bihar (PS 1793 sunset clause)
- B Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57: Delhi; exiled to Rangoon
- T Tantia Tope: central India; betrayed by Man Singh

Order kept: eight leaders as the handout lists them, with their centres.



Civil rebellion: feudal elites and dispossessed rulers, part 2 Lecture 26 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Exam words: Amar Singh, guerrilla warfare, Doctrine of Lapse, guerrilla fighter, central India, "betrayed by friend," Man Singh.
- Location aid beside Kunwar Singh: strip "Awadh | Bihar | Bengal" with Orissa below and Delhi at the corner.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2005 and 2006 are on this slide.
- Kunwar Singh = Bihar (Jagdishpur), not UP or MP.
- Tantia Tope = the one betrayed by a "friend" (Man Singh) and hanged April 1859
- Not Nana Sahib, Kunwar Singh or Khan Bahadur Khan
- Slide answer note:
  - Nana Sahib escaped to Nepal
  - Kunwar Singh died of wounds in April 1858 (slide only, not handout text)

Centres of the Revolt of 1857 and leaders by centre Lecture 26 slide 8

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Map = the one picture tying every leader to a centre.
- Main revolt zone: NWP and Awadh.
- Kota in Rajputana is the exception inside loyal Rajputana (Section 6.2).
- Use it for the "which place was not affected" Prelims trap (Chittor is not on the map).

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout flowchart adds four names the handout text does not: Azimullah Khan (with Nana Sahib and Tantia Tope at Kanpur), Bakht Khan (Delhi), Birjis Qadr (with Begum Hazrat Mahal at Lucknow), and the dates 20 September 1857 (Delhi recaptured) and April 1858 (Jhansi falls). Figure-only facts.

Handout flowchart: course of the revolt, Barrackpore to Tantia Tope 1859 handout figure

4.2 Taluqdars and big landowners

- The Mahalwari settlement in the North-West Provinces (half of Awadh had been under SA since 1801) and in Awadh (annexed 1856) transferred land rights to actual cultivators in many cases, stripping Taluqdars of their personal estates.
- The British also disbanded private forts and armies.
- Then rule of law, equality before the law, removed their social superiority.
- Having lost economically, militarily and socially, Taluqdars threw their lot in with the peasants.

4.3 Peasants

- High LR led to debt to moneylenders, then loss of land through government auctions and moneylender takeovers.
- Traditional occupancy rights were gone. British courts sided with moneylenders.
- So peasant anger in 1857 was directed both at the British government and at the moneylenders: both were seen as oppressors.

4.4 Religion: a fear shared across society

- The whole rural society shared a fear that its religion was under threat. The fear was not invented:
- i) Since 1813, Christian missionaries had operated in India, at times under police protection.

- Ii) Socio-religious reforms, however well-intentioned, escalated anxiety: a) Sati Abolition Act, 1829
- B) Hindu Widows' Remarriage Act, 1856
- C) Removal of Caste and Religious Disabilities Act, 1850, also called the Lex Loci Act (Latin for "law of the place"): it gave inheritance rights to those who converted to another religion, so it incentivised conversion to Christianity.

MNEMONIC · THE FEARS FOR RELIGION, IN DATE ORDER

Many Sparks Lit Wildfire

- M Missionaries since Charter Act 1813
- S Sati Abolition Act 1829
- L Lex Loci Act 1850: converts keep inheritance
- W Widows' Remarriage Act 1856

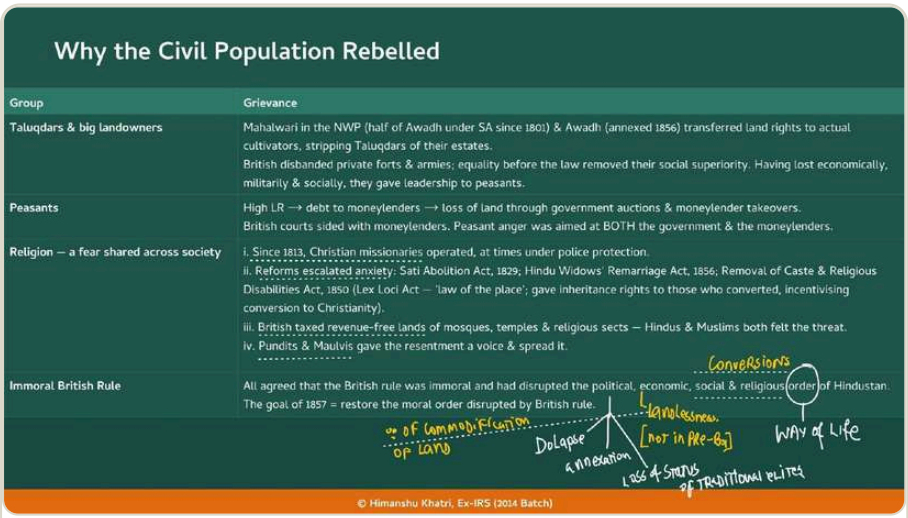
Order kept: four dated sparks, 1813, 1829, 1850, 1856.

- iii) The British had started taxing revenue-free lands of mosques, temples and religious sects: Hindus and Muslims both felt the threat.



Why the civil population rebelled: taluqdars, peasants, religion Lecture 26 slide 9

- iv) Pundits and Maulvis gave the resentment a voice and spread it among the people.
- A shared moral conviction across communities: British rule had disrupted the right political, economic, social and religious order.
- The goal of 1857 was to restore what had been lost.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three board lines. (1) Conversions threaten the "order" = WAY of Life.
- (2) Commodification of land leads to landlessness, which did NOT exist in pre-British times.
- (3) Doctrine of Lapse and annexation lead to loss of status of traditional elites.
- So the "disrupted order" is religious/way of life, economic (land as a commodity), political (elites).

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout cause flowchart is wider than its text.
- From the figure only: the General Service Enlistment Act 1856 (foreign-service rule behind the sepoys' loss-of-caste fear), the rifle label Enfield P-53, the Mughal "Princes" demotion and the Charter Act 1853 exam bar as causes.

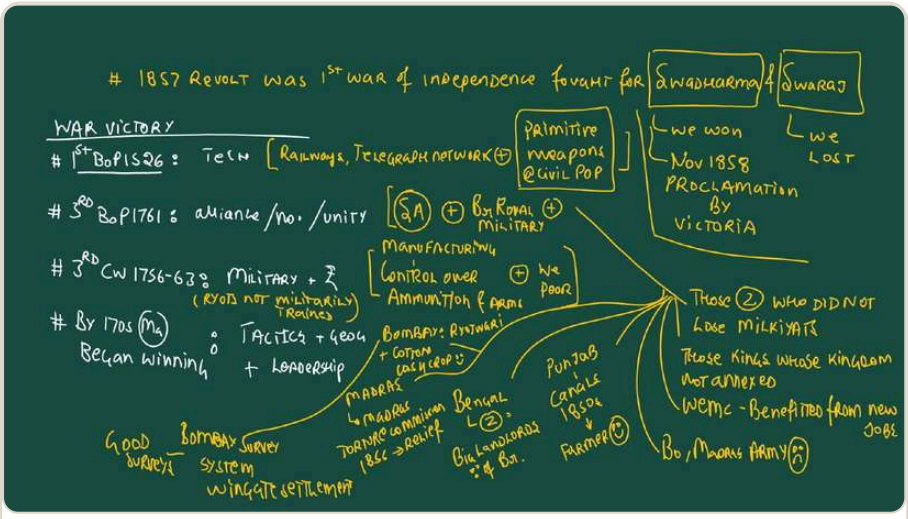
5 · Why the British won

STORY LINK

Because the rebels had no money, no command and went all to Delhi, the flame went out. Ask: which reasons are about resources, which about organisation, which about unity?



War victory formula: why 1857 was lost, who stayed out Lecture 26 slide 10

TEACHER'S BOARD

- War-victory formula (what decided past wars). 1st Battle of Panipat 1526: TECHNOLOGY.
- For 1857:
  - Railways and the telegraph network (+) against primitive weapons in the hands of the civil population. 3rd Battle of Panipat 1761: alliance, numbers, unity (SA (+) British Royal military (+)). 3rd Carnatic War 1756-63: military + rupees (ryots not militarily trained)
  - Manufacturing: control over ammunition and arms (+) we were poor.
- By the 1770s the Marathas (Ma) began winning: tactics + geography + leadership.
- Factors: tech, unity, military + money, tactics + geography + leadership.

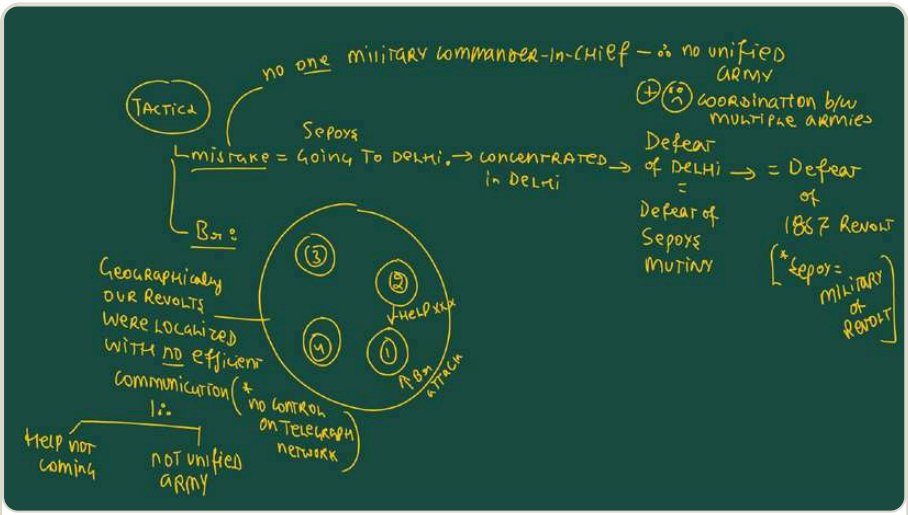
TEACHER'S BOARD

"Who stayed out" list (feeds Section 6.2): those who did not lose milkiyat; kings whose kingdoms were not annexed; WEMC who benefited from new jobs; Bombay and Madras armies; Punjab (canals of the 1850s, farmers happy); Bengal (zamindars were the big landlords of the British); Madras; Bombay (Ryotwari + cotton as a cash crop; good surveys: Bombay Survey System, Wingate settlement). Top line: on Swadharma we won (Nov 1858 Proclamation); on Swaraj we lost.



Tactics: no unified command, Delhi concentration, local revolts Lecture 26 slide 11

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tactics, three points. (1) No single military commander-in-chief, so no unified army and no coordination between multiple armies.
- (2) Mistake: sepoys going to Delhi.
- Energy was concentrated in Delhi
- defeat of Delhi = defeat of the sepoy mutiny = defeat of the 1857 Revolt, since sepoy = the military of the revolt.
- (3) Revolts were geographically localised with no efficient communication and no control of the telegraph network: when the British attacked one centre, help from another did not come.

- The handout lists eight reasons:
- 5.1 Rebels had no financial resources.
- 5.2 Peasant fighters lacked modern weapons and training.
- 5.3 The British had superior leadership, a centralised bureaucracy, a professional army, and a functioning telegraph and communication network.
- 5.4 No effective central command on the Indian side: multiple regional leaders, no coordination.
- 5.5 A tactical error: rebel energy concentrated on Delhi.
- When Delhi fell, the symbolic heart of the revolt fell with it.
- 5.6 The uprising was fragmented and localised: the British defeated rebel groups one at a time.
- 5.7 The whole Indian Army did not revolt.
- Bombay and Madras regiments stayed quiet
- Punjabi and Gurkha soldiers actively helped the British.
- (The Bengal Army was the largest, so roughly half the Indian army mutinied, but the other half held, and that was enough.)
- 5.8 Civil rebellion was confined to north and central India
- minor participation elsewhere

MNEMONIC · WHY THE BRITISH WON, IN THE HANDOUT'S ORDER

Most Warriors Lacked Command, Delhi Fell, Armies Narrow

M Money: rebels had no financial resources

W Weapons and training: peasants lacked both

L Leadership, bureaucracy, army and telegraph: British side

C Command: no central command, no coordination

D Delhi: the tactical error of concentrating there

F Fragmented and localised: beaten one at a time

A Army: the whole army did not revolt

N North and central India only: minor participation elsewhere

Order kept: the eight reasons 5.1 to 5.8.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Reasons by theme:
  - Money
  - Tech and Army
  - Leadership, Org and Army
  - Org
  - Tactics
  - Org
  - Army and Lack of Unity
  - Lack of Unity.
- Three themes carry the answer: resources, organisation, unity.

6 · War of Independence: the debate

STORY LINK

Because the revolt was this large, historians argue over its name. Ask: is it a mutiny, a war of independence, or more than a mutiny without modern nationalism?

- This is the most contested question about 1857, and it has no simple answer.

War of Independence: three positions and the modern-nationalism test
Lecture 26 slide 13

6.1 Three positions

View	Position
Colonial view	Primarily a sepoy mutiny. The civil rebellion was just lawless elements exploiting disorder
V.D. Savarkar (1909 book) and Karl Marx	Savarkar's book The Indian War of Independence: fought for Swadharma and Swaraj. Karl Marx also saw it as a nationalist revolt (the slide words it "anti-colonial revolt")
Mainstream historical view	Far more than a mutiny, but modern nationalism was absent, so it cannot be called a proper war of independence in the modern sense

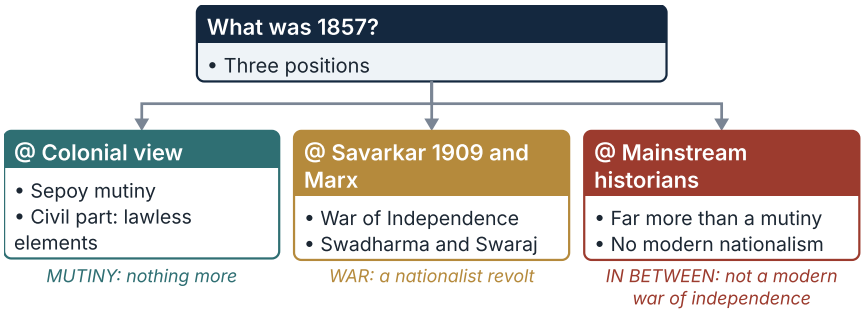
THREE VIEWS OF 1857



HANDOUT NOTE

- Marx's wording differs. Handout:
  - Marx saw 1857 as a nationalist revolt
  - the slide: an anti-colonial revolt.
- Both mean Marx sided with the rebels.
- Use the handout's wording in exams (the Question bank also uses "nationalist uprising").

- Modern nationalism requires:
  - The nation as the sum of equal people who feel a common identity
  - power vested in the people (democracy and republic, not monarchy)
  - Liberty, Equality, Fraternity.
- By this standard, 1857 falls short.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Line of positions:
  - Colonial at one end, 100% Nationalist at the other
  - "OUR POSITION" = 1, a little nearer the nationalist end. Independence of whom?
- Of the people = the nation
- So independence to the Nation
- the nation is supreme
- the goal is democracy.
- Random link: Hind Swaraj (1909), the same year as Savarkar's book.
- Under "1857 falls short": "modern political methods?" with the cross modern Nation | modern politics, and "70% marks to 1857 revolt" (meaning ; reads as how much of the modern tests 1857 meets).

6.2 Arguments against it being a war of independence

- i) Whole India did not participate: only north and central India was mainly active. a) Ryotwari areas (Sindh, Coorg, Assam, Madras, Bombay: "Scam B"): ryots had become landowners under British rule. b) Punjab: middle-class peasants benefited from canal construction. c) Bengal: Zamindars had benefited from the Permanent Settlement of 1793.
- ii) Those who benefited from British rule stayed out. a) WEMC believed in British rule as a force for modernisation and had gained jobs and status under it. b) Princes whose territories were not annexed largely stayed loyal, and some actively aided the British, for example Rajput Kings.
- However, Rajputana did witness upheaval: sepoy mutinies and mass revolt, the most famous being Kota, led by Lala Jaidayal and Mehrab Khan.
- The rebels completely took over the city and held their own King hostage in his palace for six months.
- They killed the British Political Agent Major Charles Burton.
- The British could reconquer the city only in 1858.
- iii) Taluqdars who had retained their land stayed out.
- iv) The whole Indian Army did not revolt.
- v) The revolt was spontaneous: no planning, no manifesto, no coordination.
- (Modern political movements need organised planning and coordination, which itself embodies Fraternity.)
- Vi) The goal was not a modern republic or democracy
- it was to restore the old order, the rule of monarchs and feudal lords

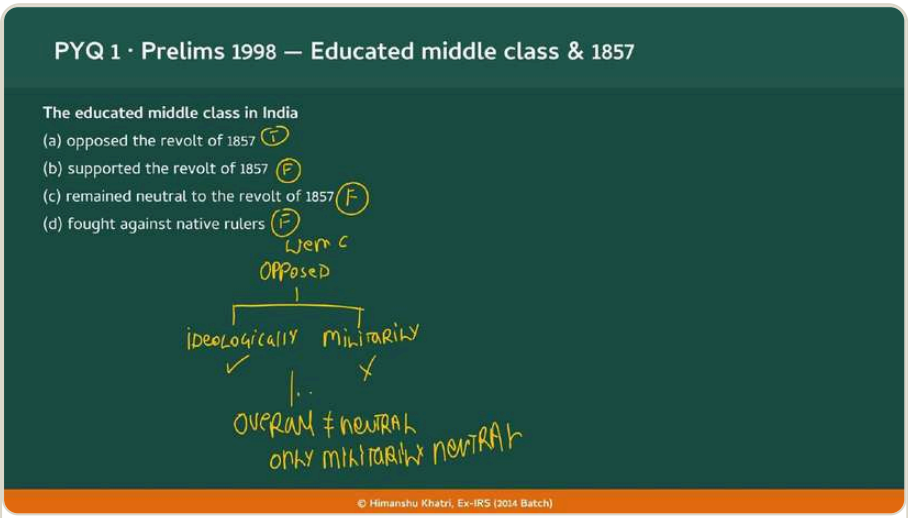
TEACHER'S BOARD

- The board's "who stayed out" list (Section 5) is this list: those who did not lose milkiyat, kings not annexed, WEMC with new jobs, Bombay and Madras armies, Punjab canals, Bengal landlords, Madras, Bombay.
- Learn the reason each region stayed out: Ryotwari (ryots became owners), canals, the 1793 Permanent Settlement, jobs.



PYQ Prelims 1998: the educated middle class and the revolt Lecture 26 slide 26

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prelims 1998 (WEMC). The WEMC opposed the revolt: ideologically yes (opposed in thought), militarily no (did not fight against it).
- So overall not neutral, only militarily neutral.
- Hence (c) neutral is wrong and (a) opposed is right.

PYQ Prelims 2000: Aitchison and playing off Muslims against Hindus Lecture 26 slide 28

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prelims 2000 (Aitchison). (a) 1857 is the answer.
- (b) NA
- (d) F ("QIM 1942-45," first letters ; points to the 1942 movement)
- (c) Khilafat and NCM is T (also showed Hindu-Muslim unity) but a mismatch with Aitchison.
- Random link: the Aitchison "Report," which divided services into AIS, PCS and SUB CS (All-India, Provincial and Subordinate civil services; expansions as read from his letters).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1998 and Prelims 2005 (Chittor). WEMC = opposed (not supported, not neutral).
- Chittor = Rajputana = loyal princes = NOT affected.
- Jhansi, Jagdishpur and Lucknow are major theatres.
- Kota is the exception inside Rajputana (do not confuse it with Chittor).

6.3 Arguments that it was much more than a mutiny

- Modern nationalism was absent, yes. But something more than narrow self-interest was present:
- i) Common enemy and common hatred: against annexations, high LR, loss of land, oppression by moneylenders and EIC officials, destruction of Indian industry.
- ii) The sepoys' own declarations went far beyond personal grievances: high LR, increased Chowkidari tax, rising unemployment of artisans and learned men, toll taxes on public roads, and the declining status of the Indian ruling class.
- They were, in effect, speaking for all Indians.
- iii) Hindu-Muslim unity: a shared belief that Hindustan belonged to Hindus and Muslims alike.
- Aitchison: "In this instance we could not play off the Mohammedans against the Hindus." This unity is why divide and rule became central to post-1857 policy.
- iv) The rebels wanted the British out of all of Hindustan, not just their own area.
- (Fighting for your village is self-interest; fighting to free the whole country is fraternity, an embryonic national consciousness.)
- v) Regional leaders did communicate with each other, however imperfectly.
- vi) The rebels did not seek a return to 17th-century centralised Mughal rule.
- They envisioned the 18th-century decentralised setup: real power at the provincial level, the Mughal emperor a symbolic weak centre (an early instinct towards federalism).
- A movement of the masses, not just elites: vii) In many cases elites were pushed into leadership: Bahadur Shah Zafar 37-57, Nana Sahib and the Rani of Jhansi took up roles partly because circumstances compelled them. viii) Peasants and artisans in many regions continued fighting after their Taluqdar leaders had surrendered. ix)

The sepoy was a peasant in uniform: when he removed that uniform, the initiative returned to where it had always come from: the common people.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2000: "could not play off the Mohammedans against the Hindus" = the Revolt of 1857 (Hindu-Muslim unity of purpose), not Champaran 1917, Khilafat and NCM 1919-22 or the 1942 movement.
- The slide's reasoning:
  - Khilafat and NCM showed unity about 60 years later
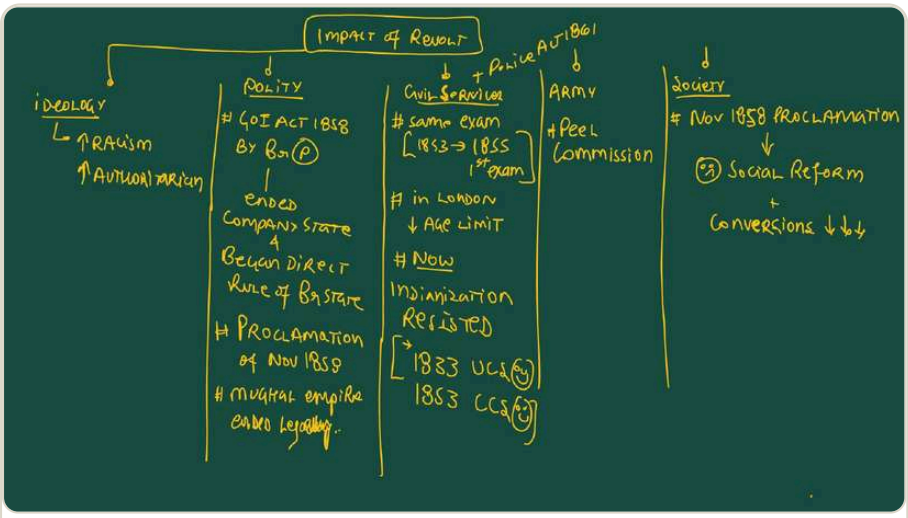
  - 1942 about 90 years after

7 · Why 1857 is a watershed

STORY LINK

Because the Company had failed, the Crown took over and rebuilt the state. Ask: which door did it close, and who knocked loudest afterwards?



Impact of the Revolt: ideology, polity, civil services, army, society Lecture 26 slide 17

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Five-branch board for the Mains question "impact of the revolt." Ideology: racism up, authoritarianism up.
- Polity:
  - GOI Act 1858 ended the Company State and began direct rule of the British State
  - Proclamation of Nov 1858
  - Mughal empire ended legally.
- Civil Services:
  - Same exam (1853 Act), first held in 1855, now in London with a lower age limit
  - Indianisation resisted now
  - also UCS 1833 (sad face) and CCS 1853 (smiley). Police Act 1861. Army: Peel Commission.
- Society: Nov 1858 Proclamation shelved social reform and cut conversions.

7.1 Political impact: end of the EIC

MNEMONIC · THE TEACHER'S FIVE BRANCHES OF IMPACT

Indian Policy Changed: All Shifted

- I Ideology: racism and authoritarianism up
- P Polity: GOI Act 1858, Proclamation, Mughal empire ended
- C Civil services (and police): London exam, age limit, Police Act 1861
- A Army: Peel Commission
- S Society: social reform and conversions shelved

Order kept: the board's five branches left to right.

- The EIC was blamed in Britain for mismanaging Indian affairs.
- Pressure mounted to end a peculiar arrangement of absentee sovereignty: real sovereign power was British, but Britain was absent as the actual ruler and governed through an agent, the EIC, creating a dangerous gap between real authority and day-to-day governance.
- The Government of India Act, 1858 (Act for Better Government of India, 1858) ended EIC rule: i) Queen Victoria declared sovereign of India: direct Crown rule over British India, paramountcy over Indian princes. (The title Kaiser-i-Hind, Empress of India, came later through the Royal Titles Act, 1876 and was proclaimed at the Delhi Durbar of 1877. Victoria had used it informally since 1858.)

- Ii) A Secretary of State for India, a full Cabinet member, replaced the President of the Board of Control as the top authority in Britain on Indian affairs. iii) On 1 November 1858 Queen Victoria issued a proclamation promising religious tolerance and governance in accordance with India's own traditions and customs. Socio-religious reforms and the promotion of Christianity were shelved.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Proclamation row: "No more annexations." British India = 63% of the territory of India (same as in Chapter 10).
- The Proclamation is the Swadharma victory: "we won."

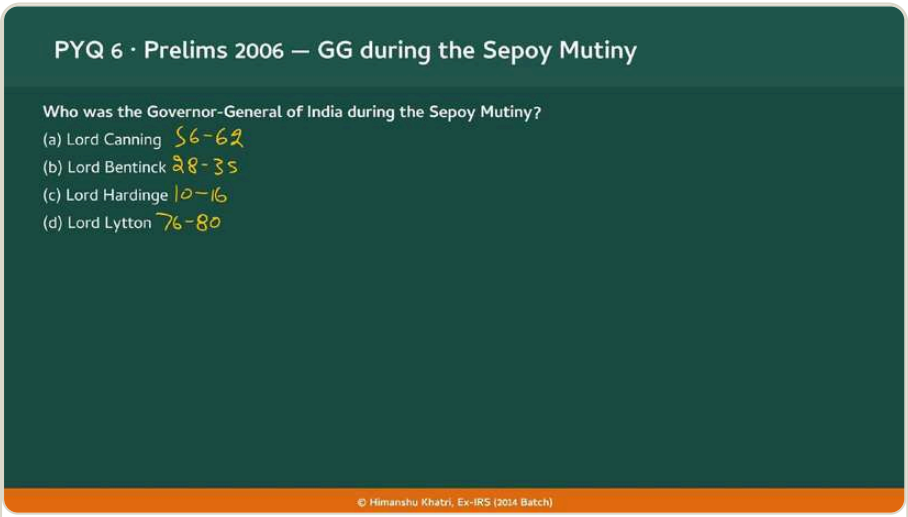
Watershed, political: end of the EIC, Proclamation row Lecture 26 slide 18



PYQ Prelims 2006: Governor-General during the Sepoy Mutiny Lecture 26 slide 36

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PYQ 6 (Prelims 2006). Reign-years beside each option show by dates alone that only Canning 56-62 covers 1857.
- Bentinck 28-35 is two decades earlier
- Lytton 76-80 two decades later
- (Hardinge 10-16 is his code: see the alert in the Exam lens.)

7.2 Ideological impact: racism, authoritarianism and the unintended birth of modern nationalism

- Post-1857, British attitudes hardened: Indians were now seen as racially inferior, incapable of self-governance and beyond reform.
- The British became more autocratic and unwilling to give Indians any senior role in bureaucracy, police or military.
- This backfired. The Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC), educated in British institutions and believing in British liberalism, had wanted a share in governance. They were shut out.
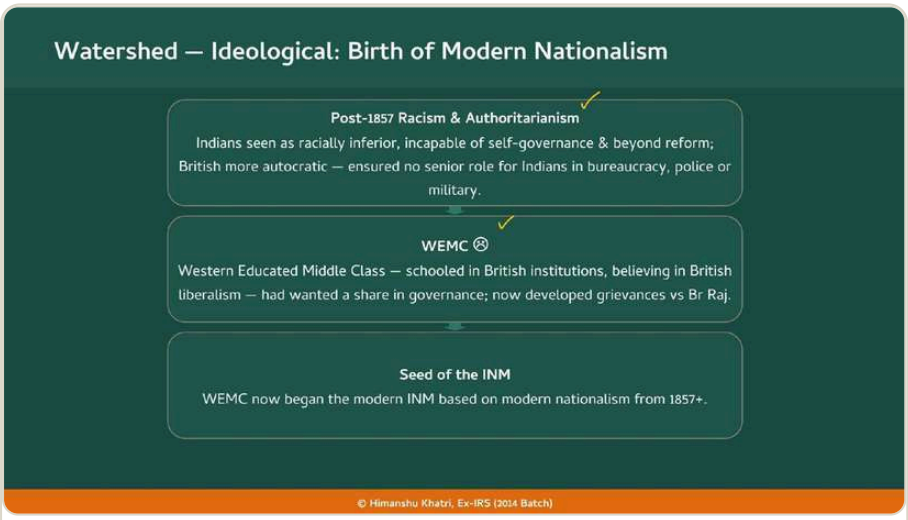
- That frustration became the seed of the modern nationalism-based INM that began developing in the second half of the 19th century.



Watershed, ideological: birth of modern nationalism Lecture 26 slide 19

- (The British, in trying to lock the door, inadvertently created the very class that would eventually break it down.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Key boxes: Racism and Authoritarianism and the WEMC (sad face).
- The point: a class that stood with the British in 1857 (Prelims 1998) was shut out afterwards and turned to modern nationalism.

7.3 Administrative impact: policing

- 1857 made clear how vulnerable the British were without effective policing and intelligence.

- The 1st Police Commission (1860), set up by Canning 56-62 under M.H.
- Court, led to the Police Act, 1861, passed in March 1861.
- It created a proper provincial police structure with a clear chain of command, for the first time: Inspector General (reporting to the Governor/LG) to Superintendent of Police (district level) to Sub-Inspector (the thana).

Watershed, policing: chain of command and Police Act 1861 Lecture 26 slide 20

- From 1857 onward a "Police Raj" was effectively created, with Indians excluded from all positions of importance.

The police chain of command (Police Act 1861)

- Governor / Lieutenant Governor (LG/G) the provincial head (the teacher's tag)
- Inspector General reports to the Governor/LG
- Superintendent of Police district level (the teacher's tag: DC/DM)
- Sub-Inspector at the thana

>
> Chain tags: LG/G beside the Inspector General (reports to the Governor/Lieutenant Governor); DC/DM beside the Superintendent of Police (district officers: Collector and Magistrate); then the Sub-Inspector.

7.4 Administrative impact: civil services

- i) The exam was introduced under Charter Act 1853, but now it would not be held simultaneously in India.
- ii) Maximum age of eligibility deliberately set at 19 to 23, low enough that most Indian candidates would be too old before they were ready.
- (Indian students typically finished their education later than British ones: a quiet but effective barrier.)
- iii) Statutory Civil Service (1870, implemented 1878 by Lytton 76-80): Indians could be nominated to certain posts reserved for Covenanted Civil Service (CCS) officers, but only loyal, hand-picked elites. Co-option, not inclusion.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Date conflict on the Statutory Civil Service.
- Handout:
  - 1870 (Act), implemented 1878 by Lytton 76-80
  - Typed slide: rules of 1879 under the GOI Act 1870.
- Handout wins:
  - 1870 and 1878
  - note 1879 if a question uses it
- The handout flowchart (page 238) attaches the civil-service age cap to Lytton 76-80, whereas the handout text and slide tie the age cap to post-1857 policy
- Treat Lytton 76-80 as the Statutory Civil Service man

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout aftermath flowchart adds the Indian Councils Act 1861 beside the Police Act 1861 (see Chapter 25: Indian Councils Act 1861); the Proclamation kept Princely States preserved and no more Lapse (matching "no more annexations"); and it ends with divide and rule intensified, communal policies, economic exploitation deepens. Handout-figure facts.

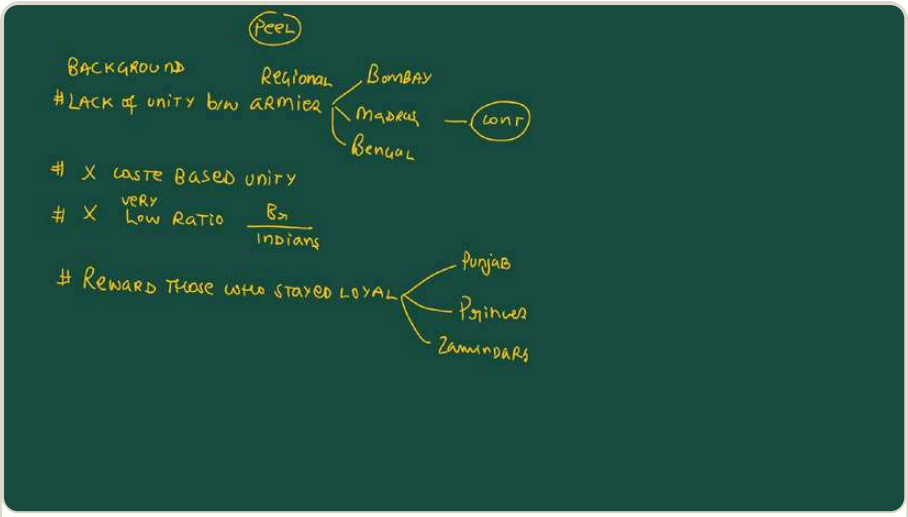
8 · Changes in the army: the Peel Commission

STORY LINK

Because the revolt was at its core a military mutiny, the last and deepest reform was the army: a coup-proof design.



Peel Commission background: regional armies, loyalty rewards Lecture 26 slide 22

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Peel Commission background. (1) Lack of unity between armies: three regional armies (Bombay, Madras, Bengal).
- (2) No caste-based unity in the new army.
- (3) No very low ratio of British to Indians.
- (4) Reward those who stayed loyal: Punjab, the princes, the zamindars.
- (The "cont" from Madras is **.)

- The British understood that 1857 was, at its core, a military mutiny.
- Preventing another one required a complete restructuring of the army, not minor adjustments.
- The Crown appointed the Royal Commission on the Reorganisation of the Indian Army in July 1858.
- It submitted its report in March 1859.
- It is popularly known as the Peel Commission, after its head Major-General Jonathan Peel, who also served as Secretary of State for War (1858-59) in the British Cabinet.
- (Jonathan Peel was the younger brother of Sir Robert Peel, the British Prime Minister who created the modern London police force.
- The Peel family had a hand in restructuring both Indian policing and the Indian army after 1857.)
- The Commission's goal: a "coup-proof" colonial army, one in which no future Bengal Army-style mutiny would ever be possible.
- Its recommendations were implemented through a combination of legislation and executive military orders over the following years.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Answer words: Royal Commission, Jonathan Peel, goal (prevent a repeat of 1857), European Forces (India) Act 1860 (year stressed), abolishing the EIC's European army, ratios 1:2 and 1:3, Indians barred from artillery, deliberate mix of castes, religions and ethnicities.
- The money mark beside "without a bounty" points to the money cause of the White Mutiny.

How the recommendations were implemented

- 8.1 European Forces (India) Act, 1860. The major legislative outcome.

NUMBER CARD · THE PEEL COMMISSION IN THREE DATES

Appointed, reported, enacted: three consecutive years.

July 1858 Royal Commission appointed (Major-General Jonathan Peel)

March 1859 The Commission submits its report

1860 European Forces (India) Act: the EIC's European army merged into the Crown Army

- It abolished the EIC's separate European army and formally merged those soldiers into the regular British Crown Army.
- This triggered a brief "White Mutiny" among EIC European soldiers, who resisted the transfer without a financial bounty.
- 8.2 Fixed ratios of British to Indian soldiers, through executive War Office directives: Bengal Army (where the mutiny had been worst) 1 British for every 2 Indian (1:2)
- Madras and Bombay Armies 1:3.
- 8.3 Indian artillery monopoly broken. The British took complete and exclusive control of the artillery
- Indians were barred from artillery units and heavy weapons.
- (Control of artillery = control of the most decisive firepower; no Indian artillery meant no Indian capacity for a conventional offensive war.)
- 8.4 "Divide and rule" regiments. Deliberate mix of castes, religions and ethnicities in each regiment
- No single group could dominate or form a bloc
- Inter-regional interaction between army units discouraged (pan-India unity among regiments had been the British nightmare in 1857)

MNEMONIC · THE PEEL COMMISSION'S STRUCTURAL MEASURES, 8.1 TO 8.4

Armies Reorganised And Divided

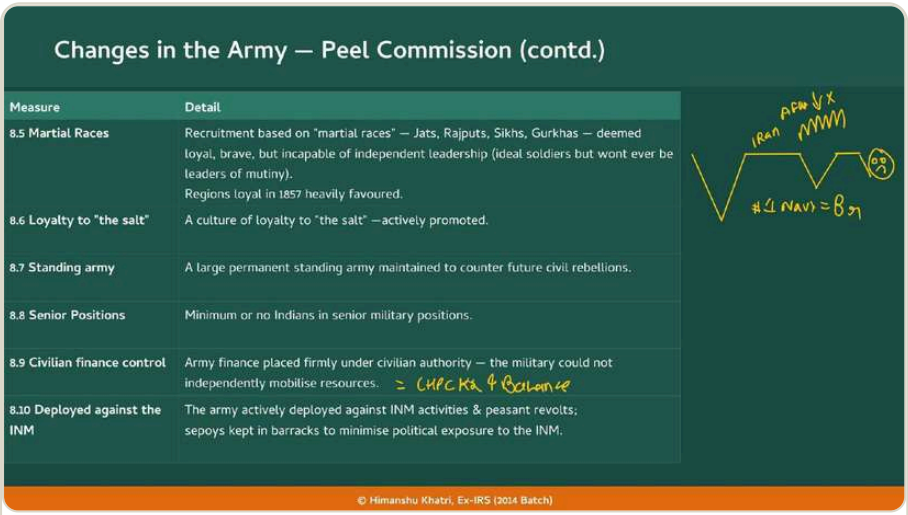
A Act 1860: European Forces (India) Act, White Mutiny

R Ratios: Bengal 1:2, Madras and Bombay 1:3

A Artillery: Indians barred from artillery and heavy weapons

D Divide-and-rule regiments: castes, religions, ethnicities mixed

Order kept: the handout's first four measures. The remaining six (martial races to deployment against the INM) follow.



Changes in the army, contd.: Martial Races to INM deployment Lecture 26 slide 24

- 8.5 Martial Races. Recruitment based on the idea of "martial races": Jats, Rajputs, Sikhs, Gurkhas and others described as naturally loyal, courageous, good fighters, but, in the British framing, incapable of independent leadership (ideal soldiers, never officers; a theory as much about control as capability).
- Regions that stayed loyal in 1857 were heavily favoured.
- 8.6 A culture of loyalty to "the salt" (namak ka haq) and to one's community's honour, actively promoted.
- 8.7 A large permanent standing army maintained to counter future revolts.
- 8.8 Minimum or no Indians in senior military positions.
- 8.9 Financial control of the army under civilian authority: the military could not independently mobilise resources.
- 8.10 The army was actively deployed against INM activities and peasant revolts
- sepoys kept in barracks to minimise political exposure to the growing INM

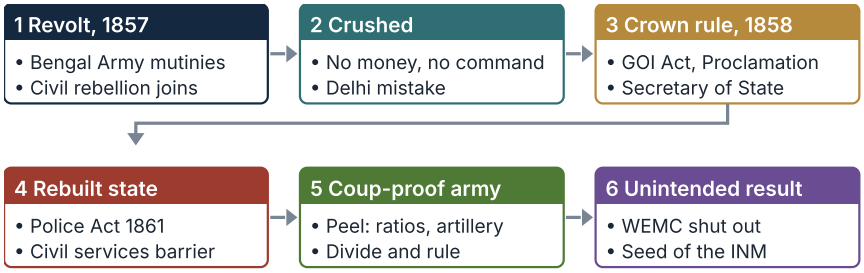
FROM THE CARTRIDGE TO THE CROWN



TEACHER'S BOARD

- 8.9 = "checks and balance" (civilian finance control over the military).
- A sketch with the words "#1 Navy = Br" is
- it appears to say the Navy stayed a British preserve, but is not legible enough to take as fact

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The hinge. 1857 was the hinge. The EIC's improvised governance ended
- the Crown took direct charge with a restructured army, new police and redesigned civil services, all built to prevent recurrence
- The reforms were more efficient and more repressive, planting the WEMC that would later demand independence.
- Summary:
  - Company State replaced by Crown Rule
  - Indians excluded from senior civil services in practice
  - High racism and authoritarianism prompted the WEMC to begin the modern INM, demanding rights and a constitutional regime
  - By 1929 these demands escalate into Purna Swaraj.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Indigo: 1788 and the ten European planters; Nij against Ryoti; the three Ryoti conditions (25% of land, low-interest loans plus seeds and seed drills, planter buys the crop); the grievances and the two triggers; the four ryot actions and the Rent Act 1859; Indigo Commission 1860; Tinkathia (3/20th); BASF 1897 as the cause of decline (Prelims 2020); Champaran 1917 and the Act of 1918
- The WEMC in Indigo: Neel Darpan 1860 (DeenBandhu Mitra), Datta's translation, James Long (libel, Rs 1,000 paid by Kaliprasanna Sinha, one month in jail), Hindu Patriot, Somprakash, British Indian Association 1851
- Pabna 1873: Rent Act 1859 violated, Abwabs, Ishan Chandra Roy, which papers backed whom (Bengalee under SNB for the ryots); Anglo-Indian against Eurasian before and after the 1911 Census; Bengal Tenancy Act 1885 (more than twelve years, Ripon 80-84's Rent Commission 1880)
- Maharashtra and Punjab: Limitation Law 1859, Poona Sarvajanik Sabha 1870 (17,000 signatures), burning of debt bonds, Deccan Agriculturists Relief Act 1879, the two no-tax campaigns (1873-74, 1896-97); Kuka Revolt (Namdharis, Baba Ram Singh, Burma 1872); the Canal Colony bill of 1907, the three bodies, and why it was withdrawn
- The teacher's own cues: 'Recall Modern Politics' (stars on slides 40, 45, 47), 'Contract = legal' and the circled Rent ACT 1859, '1st Regional Pol Party of WEMC' for the Poona Sarvajanik Sabha,

MAINS HOOKS

- The peasant revolts after 1857 as a rehearsal for non-cooperation, no-tax, boycott and legal challenge (practice question, no Mains PYQ on the slides)
- The WEMC's role in peasant causes: the Indigo voices and the Pabna split by class (practice question)
- How post-1857 revolts differed: use of British law and organisation, with the teacher's modern method ladder (court, protest, revolution)
- Why the British withdrew the 1907 Punjab bill: the Army and the fear of a 1857 repeat

'fear of 1857 Repeat'; 'nor imp' (not imp)
for the Kuka Revolt

After 1857 the peasant learnt to use the master's law and the educated gave him a voice: the revolts were the rehearsal, the soil in which the national movement grew.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The peasant now used the master's law and the educated gave him a voice, so each revolt (Indigo, Pabna, Deccan, Punjab) ended in a legal relief and left behind organisation and voice: the rehearsal, and the soil, for the national movement.

1. 1857 changes the way of resisting. After 1857 the peasants did not just pick up weapons: they filed court cases and organised themselves, using the colonial legal system against colonial rule. The Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC) began to speak for the ryot in newspapers, courts and associations. The teacher's ladder says modern politics tries non-violent methods first: courts, press, peaceful protest.
   → So the first great test came in Bengal, over a blue dye.

2. 1788: a trap that looked like a contract. The EIC began promoting indigo in Bengal in 1788 with loans to ten European planters, preferring them to zamindars. Nij farming (the planter buys land) was costly, so planters moved to the Ryoti system: lease land from zamindars, then contract with ryots to grow indigo on at least 25% of their land, with low-interest loans, seeds and seed drills, and the planter buying the crop.
   → But the contract turned into a noose.

3. The squeeze. Indigo ruined the soil, the price was not remunerative, and the ryot borrowed one loan to repay another, tied by force of finance. A Stock Exchange crisis then cut global indigo prices, and a sympathetic Lieutenant Governor of Bengal told Collectors to side with ryots against forced cultivation.
   → So the ryots finally had room to act.

4. The ryots go to court. They refused new loans and indigo, boycotted the planters' Indian agents, and began a no-rent campaign when planters sued (the teacher: the contract was legal). When planters tried eviction, the ryots organised and went to court under the Rent Act of 1859. This was Non-Cooperation decades before Gandhi.
   → Then the educated took up their pens.

5. The educated join. DeenBandhu Mitra's play Neel Darpan (1860) shocked the public; Michael Madhusudhan Datta translated it and James Long published it, and for that Long was convicted of libel, fined Rs 1,000 (paid by Kaliprasanna Sinha) and jailed a month. Hindu Patriot and Somprakash ran editorials, and the British Indian Association (1851) of educated zamindars backed the ryots, partly from self-interest.
   → Now the system had to give way, but not all at once.

6. Indigo ends slowly. The Indigo Commission (1860) said honour old contracts, refuse new ones. By 1863 indigo moved to Bihar as Tinkathia (3/20th of land). The long-term death blow was BASF's synthetic indigo in 1897 (Prelims 2020), with a short WWI revival, and Champaran (1917) and the Act of 1918 ended Tinkathia.

→ Meanwhile in Bengal another villain appeared: not a European, but an Indian zamindar.

7 Pabna, 1873: a league and a split. Zamindars violated the occupancy rights of the Rent Act 1859, raised rents illegally and collected Abwabs. The ryots formed Agrarian Leagues, pooled money for court, and Ishan Chandra Roy spread them. The WEMC split: Hindu Patriot and Amrita Bazar Patrika for the zamindars, Bengalee (SNB) and the Anglo-Indian press for the ryots. Ripon 80-84's Rent Commission (1880) led to the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885: occupancy rights after more than twelve years.

→ Now across to the Deccan, where the villain was the moneylender.

8 The Deccan's bond trap. No-tax came in 1873-74 against a Land Revenue hike. The Limitation Law 1859 allowed interest for three years only, so moneylenders made a fresh bond with the interest added to the principal. The Poona Sarvajanik Sabha (1870) gathered 17,000 signatures; moneylenders refused loans; in 1875 the ryots burned debt bonds, not lives. The Relief Act came in 1879, and a second no-tax campaign in 1896-97 over refused remission.

→ Then to Punjab, where religion and canals shaped the revolt.

9 Punjab: a sect and a canal bill. The Namdhari (Kuka) sect under Baba Ram Singh turned from violence against cow slaughterers and priests to violence against the British, and he was exiled to Burma in 1872 (the teacher: not imp). In 1907 a bill to control inheritance and raise water rates in the canal colonies brought the Lahore Indian Association, the Arya Samaj and the Singh Sabha into a no-tax campaign. The British repressed, then quietly withdrew it, fearing the Army, recruited heavily from Punjab, might follow.

→ Put the pieces together and a pattern shows.

10 The rehearsal. Across Bengal, Maharashtra and Punjab, peasants organised, used the colonial legal system and found the WEMC lending its voice. It was not yet the national movement but the soil in which it would grow: non-cooperation, no-tax, boycott and legal challenge were all rehearsed here before Champaran (1917) and Non-Cooperation (1920).

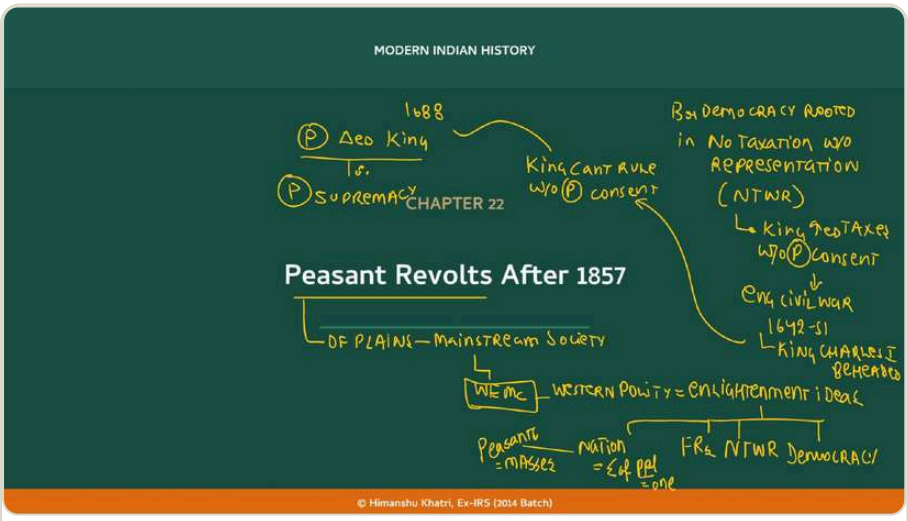
STORY LINK

Story so far: the English once beheaded a king for taxing without consent, and the educated Indian carries that idea to the peasant. Keep the teacher's frame: mainstream society, WEMC, FRs, NTWR, Democracy.



Chapter 22 frame: plains revolts, WEMC, Western polity and NTWR Lecture 26 slide 38

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Frame: revolts of the plains and mainstream society (as against the tribal uprisings of Chapter 20; exact words slightly unclear).
- The new actor is the WEMC, carrying Western polity = Enlightenment ideas: Fundamental Rights (FRs), NTWR (No Taxation Without Representation) and Democracy.
- English history behind it: 1688, the King cannot rule without the consent of (P) (read as Parliament), against the King's own supremacy.
- Democracy is rooted in NTWR: Charles I levied taxes without consent, the English Civil War 1642-51 followed and he was beheaded.
- India link: "Peasants = Masses" and "Nation = sum of people = one": a nation is the sum of all its people, so the peasants have to be inside it.

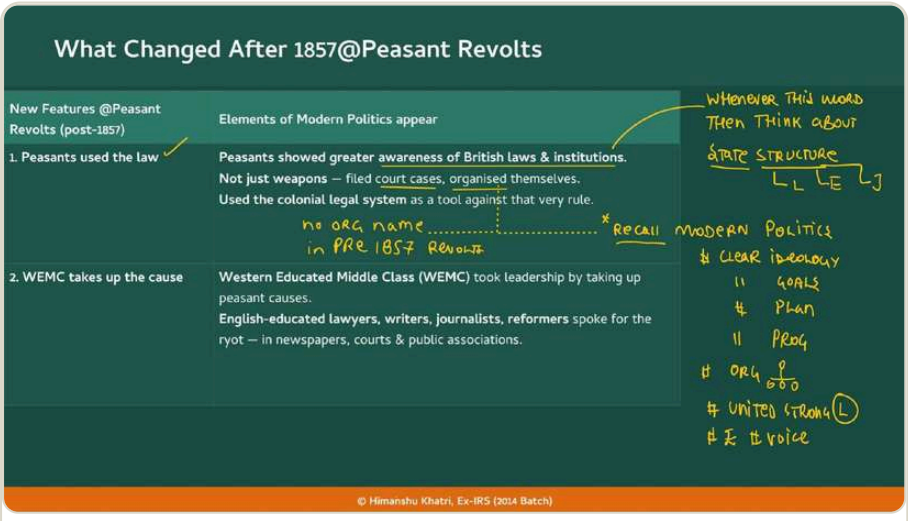
HANDOUT ALERT

Illegible ink. The word beside the first P, the verb before "Taxes" and the first words of "OF PLAINS" are unclear. P is read as Parliament from the Civil War chain. Check your notebook.

1 · What changed after 1857

STORY LINK

Because 1857 failed as a war, resistance changed its tools. Ask: what do the peasants now use (law, organisation) and who joins them (the WEMC)?



New features of post-1857 peasant revolts: law and WEMC Lecture 26 slide 40

- The Revolt of 1857 was a turning point not just in British policy but also in the character of Indian resistance.

- The peasant revolts after 1857 differed from earlier uprisings in two ways:
- First, peasants now had a greater awareness of British laws and institutions.
- They did not just pick up weapons: they filed court cases and they organised themselves.
- They used the legal system that colonial rule had imposed on them as a tool against that very rule.
- Second, the Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC) began to take up peasant causes.
- English-educated lawyers, writers, journalists and reformers spoke for the ryot in English newspapers, in courts and in public associations.
- The peasant was no longer alone.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Whenever this word, then think about State structure" (beside "awareness of British laws and institutions"; L-L, L-E, L-J = law-making, law-executing, law-judging organs, Chapter 8; letters slightly unclear): British laws and institutions = the courts and legal order the peasant learnt to use.
- "No ORG name in PRE 1857 revolts": after 1857 named bodies appear (Pabna Agrarian Leagues, Poona Sarvajanik Sabha, Lahore Indian Association).
- "Recall Modern Politics" (starred): pre-1857 revolts had no clear ideology (goals), no plan (programme), no organisation, no united strength, no voice of the whole people.
- Post-1857: "Elements of Modern Politics appear."

Modern method of protest; 1857 rebels as feudal elements Lecture 26 slide 39

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Modern method = a ladder
- Violence is not step 1.
- (1) Exhaust non-violent (NV) methods: courts (by the Government of India's own law), press, peaceful protests. (2) Violent protests.
- (3) Revolutionary methods, with "Bhagat Singh = Modern Nationalist" (a revolutionary can be modern if arms came after the first steps). 1857 revolts: not "modern nationalists"?
- They "wanted Monarchy = feudal elements." Hence post-1857 peasants, who went to court first, mark the start of modern politics.

HANDOUT ALERT

- "Modern" is not "non-violent". The point is the order (non-violent methods exhausted first) and the goal (rights, representation, democracy, a nation of all people).
- The 1857 rebels wanted to restore monarchy (feudal elements), so they are not modern nationalists.

2 · The Indigo Revolt (1859-63)

STORY LINK

Because the new tools needed a first test, Bengal's indigo ryots go first. Follow the chain: contract, trap, squeeze, court, voice, end.

2.1 Context: how did indigo cultivation begin?

- In 1788 the East India Company (EIC) began promoting Indigo cultivation in Bengal by giving loans to ten European planters.
- The EIC could have given the same loans to local zamindars but chose European planters: preferential treatment from day one.
- The teacher dates this under Cornwallis 86-93 (his board: "CW 86-93" under "Origin 1788"): 1788 falls inside those years.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Nij:
  - The planter buys land and cultivates indigo himself
  - expensive and complicated (large tracts, labour, bullocks, ploughs)
- A note beside Nij is unclear.
- Ryoti (Bengal): the planter leases land from zamindars and contracts with ryots.
- Money chain:
  - Ryot pays rent to the European planter
  - Planter pays a lease amount to the zamindar (Z = zamindar throughout this chapter)
  - Zamindar pays Land Revenue (LR) to the State.
- Indigo on one quarter of the land = the 25% condition.

Indigo Revolt: origin 1788, Nij and Ryoti systems Lecture 26 slide 41

- The planters moved from Nij to Ryoti because Nij was costly and complicated.
- After the Permanent Settlement of 1793 zamindars were large landowners and land had become a commodity that could be sold, rented, leased or mortgaged, so a planter could simply lease land from a zamindar.
- Under the Ryoti system the planter signed contracts with tenant ryots with three key conditions:
- (i) The ryot had to grow indigo on at least 25% of the land he occupied.
- (ii) The planter gave loans at low interest and also sold indigo seeds and seed drills to the ryot.
- (iii) The planter then purchased the cultivated indigo from the ryot.
- On paper this looked like a commercial arrangement.

THE RYOTI MONEY CHAIN

- In practice, it was a trap.

	Nij System	Ryoti System
Who farms	The planter himself	Tenant ryots under contract
Land	Bought directly by the planter	Leased from zamindars
Problem or condition	Costly and complicated: large tracts, labour, bullocks, ploughs	25% of occupied land under indigo; low-interest loans, seeds and seed drills; planter buys the crop
Where	(the shift away from it is why Ryoti spread)	Bengal (teacher's note)

2.2 What were the grievances of the ryots?

- The ryots had real and compounding grievances:
- Indigo destroyed soil fertility. Once a plot was used for indigo, its productivity for food crops fell sharply, hurting the ryot's overall income.
- The price the planter paid was not remunerative.
- Low fertility plus low prices meant the ryot was perpetually in debt, even though the loan rates were low.
- To pay back one loan, the ryot took another.
- Since he could not repay, the planter had grounds to remove him from his occupied land (during the lease, the planter was effectively the de-facto zamindar for that ryot).
- The cycle of debt kept the ryot tied to indigo "not by force of arms, but by force of finance."
- Then came two triggers:
- An international trigger: indigo prices on global markets fell, partly due to a financial crisis on the Stock Exchange (a crisis in financial markets caused a general slowdown in the British economy: people lost money, their buying power fell and demand for goods, including indigo, dropped).
- Planters then offered the ryots even less. The squeeze became unbearable.
- An administrative trigger: a sympathetic Lieutenant Governor of Bengal directed District Collectors to take the side of ryots in disputes, on the ground that forced cultivation was against the spirit of capitalism and free-market economics.
- (The post of Lieutenant Governor of Bengal was created in 1854 to reduce the Governor-General's workload, a change made possible by the Charter Act of 1853.)

2.3 What did the ryots do?

- The ryots responded with a sophisticated, multi-pronged campaign:
- (i) They refused to accept new loans and refused to cultivate indigo.
- (ii) They organised a social boycott of the Indian agents of the planters.
- This was effectively Non-Cooperation, decades before Mahatma Gandhi.

Indigo: the ryots' actions and the Rent Act 1859 Lecture 26 slide 43

- (iii) When planters went to court to enforce contracts, ryots began a no-rent campaign. (Again, Non-Cooperation before Gandhi's era.)
- (iv) When planters attempted eviction, ryots went to court to enforce their occupancy rights under the Rent Act of 1859.

MNEMONIC · THE RYOTS' FOUR MOVES, IN ORDER

Ryots Boycott Non-payment, Courts

R	Refused new loans and refused to grow indigo
B	Boycott: social boycott of the planters' Indian agents
N	No-rent campaign when planters went to court
C	Court: Rent Act 1859 occupancy rights when evicted

Order kept: refuse, boycott, no-rent, then court. The first three are Non-Cooperation before Gandhi.

- (After the Permanent Settlement of 1793 the ryot was a tenant, and the Rent Act gave him certain legal protections.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Sequence on the board. (1) Ryots refuse to grow indigo.
- (2) Planter files court cases against ryots: "Contract = legal" (starred) = the planter's cases were legally sound, so court alone did not save the ryots.
- (3) Ryots reply with a No Rent Campaign. (4) Planter tries eviction.
- (5) Ryots get ORGANIZED and file COURT cases using the Rent ACT 1859.
- Both sides used the law
- Ryots gained ground only when organised and armed with a law that protected tenants.
- The social boycott is in the handout's list, not on the board.

2.4 The role of the Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC)

HANDOUT NOTE

Handout: "The spirit of Fraternity at work here: a key element of Modern Nationalism." The educated class standing up for the oppressed peasant was new in Indian public life.

- The WEMC played a decisive role in amplifying the ryots' cause:
- 1860: Neel Darpan (Blue Mirror). The playwright DeenBandhu Mitra wrote this powerful play depicting the oppression of ryots by indigo planters. It created enormous public awareness.
- The Bengali poet Michael Madhusudhan Datta translated Neel Darpan into English, and the Christian missionary James Long published it, bringing the issue to the attention of audiences in England.

Indigo: the WEMC steps in (spirit of Fraternity) Lecture 26 slide 45

- The planters filed a case of libel (maan-haani) against Long.
- He was convicted, fined Rs 1,000 (paid by Kaliprasanna Sinha) and sentenced to one month's imprisonment.

- Hindu Patriot (English) and Somprakash (Bengali) published strong editorials in favour of the ryots.
- Even the British Indian Association (1851), an organisation of educated zamindars, supported the ryots.
- Their motivation was partly self-interest: they resented the dominance of European planters over the rural economy.

T Translation into English by Michael Madhusudhan Datta

E Editorials: Hindu Patriot (English) and Somprakash (Bengali)

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Voice. "Recall Modern Politics:
  - E -&gt
  - Voice" (education brings voice): the WEMC gave peasants the voice that pre-1857 revolts lacked
- Tip:
  - "use the name to guess the language of the newspaper": Hindu Patriot = English
  - Somprakash = Bengali
- British Indian Association 1851 -&gt
- ORG of educated zamindars (Z). Libel = maan-haani (Hindi, defamation)

2.5 Result

- The Indigo Commission (1860) was set up.
- It ruled that ryots must honour existing contracts but were free to refuse future ones.
- By 1863 indigo cultivation had largely shifted from Bengal to Bihar, where it operated as the Tinkathia System: essentially the same as the Ryoti System, but here the ryot was forced to grow indigo on 3/20th (three-twentieths) of the land he occupied.

- The long-term death blow to natural indigo came not from peasant resistance but from chemistry.

Indigo Revolt result: Commission, Tinkathia, BASF, Champaran Lecture 26 slide 46

- In 1897 the German company BASF developed synthetic indigo, cheaper and more consistent than the natural product.
- As synthetic indigo flooded global markets, demand for natural indigo collapsed, destroying whatever economic logic remained in the plantation system. (Prelims 2020.)
- The Bihar chapter closed only in 1917, when Mahatma Gandhi (MG) launched the Champaran Satyagraha, leading to the Champaran Agrarian Act of 1918, which brought the Tinkathia System to its end.

NUMBER CARD · HOW INDIGO ENDED, IN YEARS

1860 · 1863 · 1897 · 1917 · 1918

Honour, move, kill, end: four verbs in order.

1860 Indigo Commission: honour existing contracts, free to refuse future ones

1863 Indigo moves to Bihar as Tinkathia (3/20th of land)

1897 BASF synthetic indigo: the death blow (Prelims 2020)

1917 Champaran Satyagraha (Mahatma Gandhi)

1918 Champaran Agrarian Act ends the Tinkathia System

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Indigo moved "From" Bengal -&gt
- Bihar by 1863
- Tinkathia = 3/20th of occupied land.
- WWI (1914-19) value addition:
    - Germany versus Britain, German (synthetic) dye not available, so demand for natural indigo went up: a "short window to earn Rs for Planter." The war gave natural indigo a brief revival
    - BASF 1897 remains the long-term cause

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2020 answer: (b) unprofitability in the world market because of new inventions. Trap: (a) peasant resistance.
- The revolt ended forced cultivation in Bengal and shifted indigo to Bihar, but the early-20th-century decline was BASF's synthetic indigo of 1897.
- (c) belongs to Champaran 1917-18
- (d) the Indigo Commission 1860 settled only contract terms.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Tinkathia (3/20th) against Ryoti (25%). 25% is 5/20, so Bihar's 3/20th is a smaller share of the ryot's land than Bengal's quarter, though both were forced.
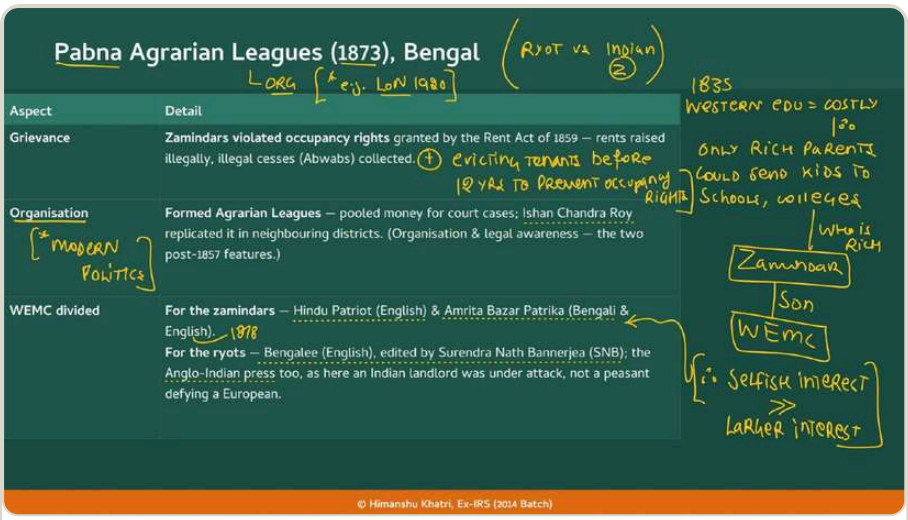
- The handout calls Tinkathia "essentially the same as the Ryoti System".

3 · Pabna Agrarian Leagues (1873), Bengal

STORY LINK

Because the Rent Act 1859 gave rights that zamindars then broke, a new villain appears. Ask: why does the WEMC split here but not in indigo?



Pabna Agrarian Leagues 1873: grievance, organisation, divided WEMC
Lecture 26 slide 47

- The ryots of Pabna district in Bengal had a different grievance.
- The Rent Act of 1859 had granted them occupancy rights, the right not to be arbitrarily evicted.
- But zamindars were routinely violating these rights.
- On top of that, rents were being raised illegally, and illegal extra cesses called Abwabs were being collected.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Ryot vs Indian Z":
  - In Indigo the enemy was a European planter
  - in Pabna it is an Indian zamindar.
- (+) Zamindars evicted tenants before 12 years to prevent the occupancy right (hence the twelve years in the Bengal Tenancy Act of 1885, below).
- "L ORG [e.g. LoN 1920]": a League is an organisation (example: League of Nations 1920; reading slightly unclear).

- The ryots organised themselves into Agrarian Leagues, a formal structure of collective action.
- They pooled money to fight their cases in court.
- A leader called Ishan Chandra Roy then replicated the movement in neighbouring districts.
- (Organisation and legal awareness: the two new features of post-1857 revolts, clearly on display here.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Modern Politics": an organisation with a name (the Agrarian League) is what pre-1857 revolts lacked. Key name: Ishan Chandra Roy.

- The WEMC was divided on this issue:

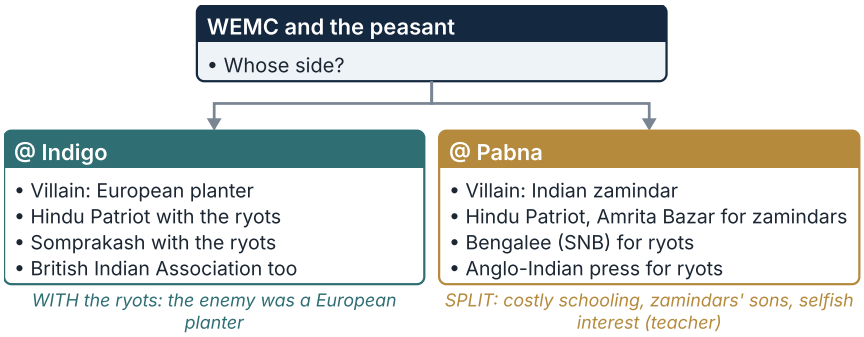
WHO IS THE VILLAIN DECIDES WHO THE PRESS BACKS



WITH the ryots: the enemy was a European planter

SPLIT: costly schooling, zamindars' sons, selfish interest (teacher)

Side	Papers
For the zamindars	Hindu Patriot (English) and Amrita Bazar Patrika (Bengali and English)
For the ryots	Bengalee (English), edited by Surendra Nath Bannerjea (SNB); and the Anglo-Indian press

- The Anglo-Indian press also sided with the ryots because here it was an Indian landlord under attack, not a peasant defying a European.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why the WEMC split:
  - Follow the money. 1835: Western education = costly
  - only rich parents could send kids to schools and colleges. Who is rich? The zamindar. Zamindar -&gt
  - Son -&gt
  - WEMC.
- Therefore:
  - Selfish interest &gt
  - &gt
  - Larger interest.
- So WEMC members who were zamindars' sons backed the zamindars (Hindu Patriot, Amrita Bazar Patrika)
- SNB's Bengalee backed the ryots
- Amrita Bazar Patrika 1878: the year it turned to English (Chapter 19).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Hindu Patriot changed sides. Indigo (section 2.4): for the ryots. Pabna: for the zamindars.
- Reason:
  - "selfish interest &gt
  - &gt
  - Larger interest." In Indigo the enemy was a European planter (even the zamindars' British Indian Association resented the planters)
  - In Pabna an Indian landlord (the class many WEMC members came from)

HANDOUT NOTE

- Anglo-Indian against Eurasian (terminology trap): before the 1911 Census "Anglo-Indian" meant a European living in India and "Eurasian" meant a person of mixed British-Indian descent.
- The 1911 Census flipped this: "Anglo-Indian" came to mean a person of mixed descent, and "Eurasian" fell out of use.
- In the Pabna passage the "Anglo-Indian press" is therefore the European-run press in India (as it was in the 1870s).

3.1 Result: the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885

- Governor-General Ripon 80-84 (the handout writes "Ripon (1880-84)") set up a Rent Commission in 1880, which led to the Bengal Tenancy Act of 1885.
- This Act gave occupancy rights to ryots who had cultivated different plots of land in the same village continuously for more than twelve years.
- The Act was properly implemented and finally brought genuine relief to Bengal's ryots.

From Pabna to the Bengal Tenancy Act

- Rent Act 1859: gives tenants occupancy rights (no arbitrary eviction)
- Zamindars violate them: illegal rent rises, Abwabs, evictions before 12 years
- 1873:
  - Agrarian Leagues in Pabna pool money for court cases
  - Ishan Chandra Roy spreads it
- WEMC divided:
  - Hindu Patriot and Amrita Bazar Patrika for zamindars
  - Bengalee (SNB) and the Anglo-Indian press for ryots
- 1880: Ripon 80-84 sets up a Rent Commission
- 1885:
  - Bengal Tenancy Act: occupancy rights after more than 12 years in the same village
  - Properly implemented, real relief

HANDOUT ALERT

- Code for Ripon. The handout writes "Governor-General Ripon (1880-84)" with no code.
- The teacher's code Ripon 80-84 (from Chapter 14) is used here and agrees with the handout's years.

4 · Maharashtra

STORY LINK

Because land revenue and debt weigh on the Deccan, the revolt there is about bonds. Ask: what do the ryots burn, and why?

4.1 1873-74: the no-tax campaign

- In 1873-74 ryots in Maharashtra launched a no-tax campaign against a hike in Land Revenue (LR).
- This was direct, organised resistance to colonial fiscal policy.

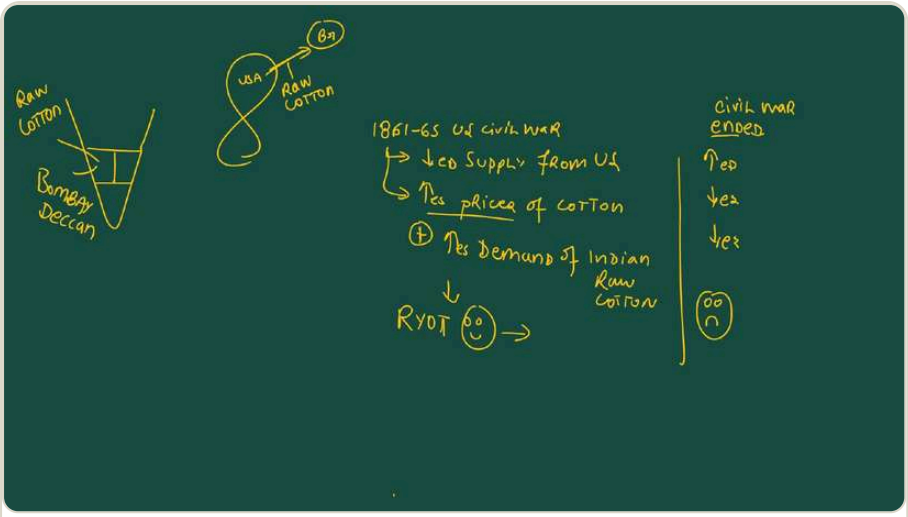
TEACHER'S BOARD

Why the hike? Land Revenue goes up after 30 years in the Ryotwari system in Bombay: periodic revision is the source of the 1873-74 hike (bracket wording slightly unclear).

4.2 Bombay Deccan Riots (1875)

Maharashtra: the two no-tax campaigns, 1873-74 and 1896-97 Lecture 26 slide 53



Cotton, the US Civil War and the Bombay Deccan Lecture 26 slide 51

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Cotton boom and bust behind the riots (not in the handout). 1861-65 US Civil War: supply of raw cotton from the US fell (the US supplied Britain) -&gt
- Price of cotton rose -&gt
- Demand for Indian raw cotton rose -&gt
- The ryot was happy.
- After the war ended:
  - US supply up -&gt
  - Price down -&gt
  - Demand for Indian cotton down -&gt
  - The ryot was sad.
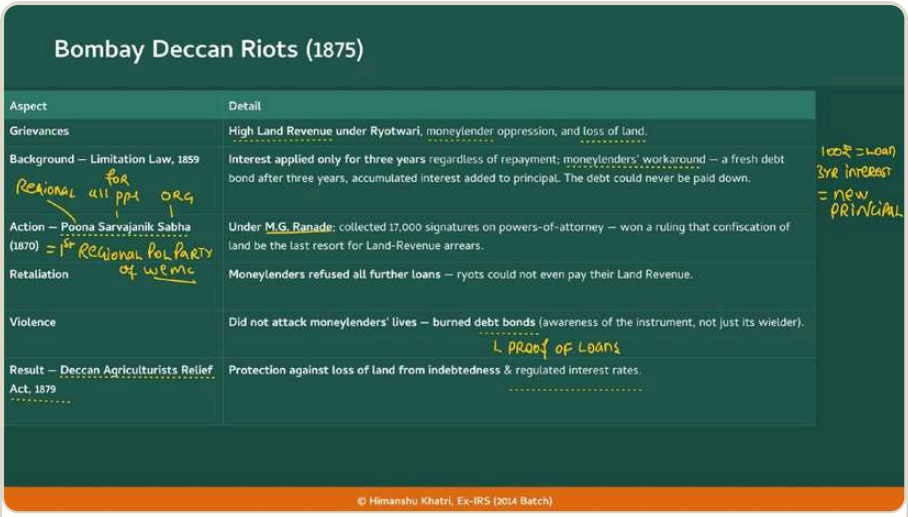
- The Bombay Deccan is the raw-cotton region feeding Britain.
- Boom borrowing followed by bust set up the debt that exploded in 1875.

HANDOUT ALERT

Partly unlabelled. The three small arrows after "Civil war ended" and the funnel are not labelled in full. The reading above (US supply up, price down, demand for Indian cotton down) is the natural reverse of the boom column. Check your notebook.



Bombay Deccan Riots 1875: Limitation Law, Sabha, Relief Act Lecture 26 slide 52

- The grievances: high Land Revenue under the Ryotwari system, oppression by moneylenders, and loss of land.
- Background: the Limitation Law of 1859 in Bombay.
- It ruled that interest on a loan could be applied only for three years, regardless of when the ryot repaid.
- Moneylenders found a workaround: they made the ryot sign a fresh debt bond after three years, with the accumulated interest now added to the principal.
- The debt could never truly be paid down.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Arithmetic:
  - Rs 100 = loan
  - 3 years' interest = new principal.
- Each fresh bond starts from a bigger sum, so the debt grows even though interest is limited to three years.

- Action: the Poona Sarvajanik Sabha (1870), associated with Ranade (M.G.), collected 17,000 signatures on powers-of-attorney to represent ryots.
- It successfully convinced the government to declare that confiscation of land should be the last resort in recovering Land Revenue arrears.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Regional / for all ppl / ORG" and "= 1st Regional Pol Party of WEMC": the Poona Sarvajanik Sabha was a regional organisation for all the people ("Sarvajanik") and the first regional political party of the WEMC.
- Compare the Lahore Indian Association (section 5.2), also a "Regional Pol Party of WEMC".

- Retaliation: moneylenders refused to extend any further loans, leaving ryots unable even to pay their Land Revenue.

- Violence broke out. The ryots did not attack moneylenders' lives. They burned debt bonds.
- (An awareness of the instrument of oppression, not just its wielder.)

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> "L Proof of Loans": the debt bond is the proof of the loan, so burning it destroys the moneylender's claim.

- Result: the Deccan Agriculturists Relief Act of 1879 was passed.
- It gave protection against loss of land due to indebtedness and regulated interest rates.

From the cotton boom to the Relief Act

- 1861-65:
  - US Civil War
  - Cotton price and demand for Indian cotton rise
  - The ryot is happy (teacher's board)
- After the war:
  - Prices and demand fall
  - High Land Revenue under Ryotwari and the Limitation Law 1859 workaround trap the ryot in debt
- 1870:
  - Poona Sarvajanik Sabha (Ranade): 17,000 signatures
  - Land confiscation to be the last resort
- Moneylenders refuse loans
- ryots cannot pay Land Revenue
- 1875: Bombay Deccan Riots: ryots burn debt bonds, not lives
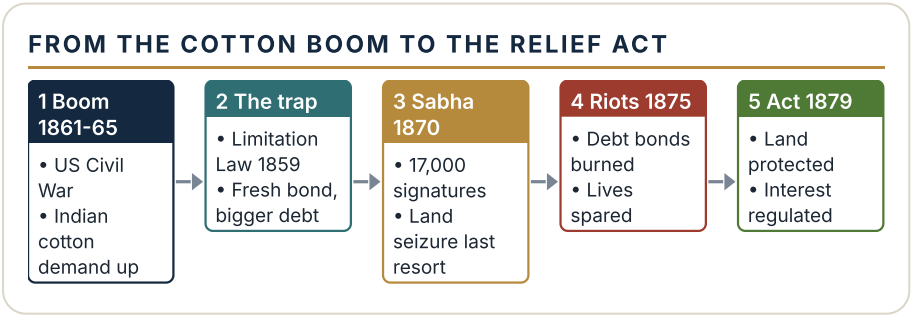
- 1879: Deccan Agriculturists Relief Act: protection against land loss, regulated interest



4.3 1896-97: the second no-tax campaign

- In 1896-97 another no-tax campaign broke out because the government refused to grant any remission (a one-time reduction) in Land Revenue despite widespread crop failure.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"In Ryotwari, lower LR if bad harvest." A bad harvest should bring lower Land Revenue (remission), so the refusal in 1896-97 broke the logic of the system.

5 · Punjab

STORY LINK

Because Punjab sent soldiers to the Army, even a canal bill carries 1857 in its shadow. Ask: what made the British withdraw?

5.1 Kuka Revolt (1871-72)

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Not imp" (Kuka Revolt). Learn lightly: who (Baba Ram Singh, Namdhari), what (reformist sect, cow protection, no rituals), end (exile to Burma, 1872).

- Leader: Baba Ram Singh, head of the Namdhari Sect.
- The Namdharis were a reformist Sikh sect with a distinct identity.
- They sought to purify Sikhism through social reform.
- They believed in a living Guru and in the Guru Granth Sahib as the holy book.
- They upheld strict equality of status for women.
- They rejected rituals, relying only on the chanting of mantras, hence the name "Kuka" (reciter).
- They were anti-priestly and strongly pro-cow protection.

MNEMONIC · WHAT THE NAMDHARIS STOOD FOR

G R A C E

The Kukas sought the GRACE of the Guru alone, with no priest in between.

- G Guru: a living Guru and the Guru Granth Sahib
- R Rituals rejected: mantras only, hence Kuka (reciter)
- A Anti-priestly
- C Cow protection, strongly
- E Equality of status for women

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- The revolt began as violence against cow slaughterers and priests, and then turned against the British.
- Baba Ram Singh was exiled to Burma in 1872.

5.2 Punjab Canal Colony agitations (1907)

- In west Punjab, from 1885 to 1940, the British built canals in semi-desert areas to convert them into fertile lands for land revenue income.
- These areas were called Canal Colonies, and lands were allocated to farmers from other parts of Punjab at no or nominal cost, on the condition that they bring the land under cultivation and pay water rates and land revenue.
- Some lands were given as reward for civil and military service, while some large plots were sold to large investors.
- In 1907 the British government introduced a bill that would allow the government to:

Canal colonies: water rates and leadership Lecture 26 slide 55

- Control inheritance of land in the canal colonies, and
- Increase water rates and fines for violations of canal colony regulations.
- Three organisations mobilised the peasantry: the Lahore Indian Association (1877), the Arya Samaj (1875) and the Singh Sabha (1873).
- A no-tax campaign began, which later escalated into riots.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Leadership:
  - Religion and politics. Singh Sabha (1873) and Arya Samaj (1875) = "Role of Religion"
  - Lahore Indian Association = "Regional Pol Party of WEMC" (same label as the Poona Sarvajanik Sabha)
- So leadership was both religious bodies and a WEMC political body.
- Colonists' fields depend on the canal, so "Water rates [up]" hits every farmer.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Lahore Indian Association: handout 1877, teacher 1878.
- The handout and typed slide say 1877
- the teacher's board says 1878.

- The British response was twofold: repression, and then quiet withdrawal of the bill.
- The reason: post-1857 the Indian Army was heavily recruited from Punjab, particularly from the Sikh community.
- Disaffection among Punjab's peasantry could spread to the army, the way it did in the 1857 revolt.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Fear of 1857 Repeat." The British gave way in 1907 out of fear that peasant anger would reach the Army, recruited heavily from Punjab and Sikhs after 1857 (key line: "Post-1857 the Indian Army was heavily recruited from Punjab"). Prelims-style "why" question.

Punjab: Mahalwari and the meaning of zamindar Lecture 26 slide 48

TEACHER'S BOARD

- In Punjab a "zamindar" is not rich.
- Mahalwari, therefore most landowners = ryots, not super rich.
- Z (zamindar) = landowner = ryot here.
- Zamin = land, Dar = holder ("owner in the British era").
- Post 1947:
  - Land redistribution from rich to poor, so "landowner or Z = not rich." Opening joke: "Baap Z, from where do I take a car?" Hence Punjab canal-colony farmers appear as peasants though they own land
  - Zamindar = large landlord in Bengal (Permanent Settlement) but landowning peasant in Punjab (Mahalwari)
- A small economy-structure note (agriculture to services) is not fully legible.

HANDOUT ALERT

Illegible ink. The bracket beside "eco", the opening joke and the small Agri/Service/Industrial circles are only partly readable. The Mahalwari point (landowners = ryots, not super rich; Z = landowner here) is clear. Check your notebook.

6 · A thread running through all these revolts

STORY LINK

Because every region ticked the same boxes, the chapter closes on the pattern. Remember ROLE: rehearsal, organised, law, educated.

- Look across Bengal, Maharashtra and Punjab and a pattern emerges. In each case:
- Peasants were not reacting with blind rage.
- They were organising: forming leagues, pooling resources, filing cases.
- They were using the tools of the colonial legal system against colonial exploitation.
- Sections of the WEMC (journalists, lawyers, reformers) were lending their voice.
- This is not yet the Indian National Movement.

- But it is the soil in which that movement would grow.

MNEMONIC · FOUR MARKS OF THE REHEARSAL

R O L E

The peasants played the ROLE of rehearsal for the national movement.

R Rehearsal: not yet the INM, but its soil

O Organised: leagues, sabhas, pooled money, not blind rage

L Law: the colonial legal system turned against colonial exploitation

E Educated: the WEMC lent its voice

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Think of these revolts as the rehearsal.
- The INM later perfected the methods (non-cooperation, no-tax, boycott, legal challenge) that peasants were discovering through trial and error in these decades.

INM method	Where the peasants used it first
Non-cooperation	Indigo: refusing loans and cultivation; social boycott of the planters' Indian agents (decades before Gandhi)
No-tax (no-rent)	Indigo: no-rent campaign; Maharashtra 1873-74 and 1896-97; Punjab 1907 no-tax campaign
Boycott	Indigo: social boycott of the planters' agents
Legal challenge	Rent Act 1859 in court (Indigo); Agrarian Leagues pooling money for cases (Pabna); 17,000 powers-of-attorney (Poona Sarvajanik Sabha)

- The skeletons use only this chapter's facts.

- Q1. "The peasant revolts after 1857 were the rehearsal for the methods the Indian National Movement later perfected." Examine (15 marks, 250 words).
- Intro: after 1857 resistance changed: peasants used British law and organised, and the WEMC took up their cause.
- These revolts are the soil in which the INM would grow, not yet the INM.
- Body:
    - Non-cooperation (Indigo ryots refused loans and cultivation and boycotted the planters' agents, before Gandhi)
    - No-tax (no-rent in Indigo; Maharashtra 1873-74 and 1896-97; Punjab 1907)
    - Boycott (Indigo social boycott)
    - Legal challenge (Rent Act 1859 occupancy rights; Pabna leagues pooling money; Poona Sarvajanik Sabha's 17,000 powers-of-attorney)
    - Relief laws (Commission 1860, Deccan Act 1879, Tenancy Act 1885)
- Closing:
    - The INM did not invent these methods
    - It scaled them (Champaran 1917, Non-Cooperation 1920 on the chapter-end timeline)
- Add the teacher's modern method ladder (court, then protest, then revolution) and the note that they were regional (the Sabha and the Lahore Association are "regional political parties of the WEMC").
- Q2. "The WEMC's entry into peasant causes was a new phenomenon." Examine its role and limits (15 marks, 250 words).
- Intro:
    - Fraternity at work: the educated class stood up for the oppressed peasant
    - The teacher's "voice."
- Body: Indigo: Neel Darpan 1860 (Mitra), Datta's translation, Long's libel conviction (Rs 1,000, one month), Hindu Patriot and Somprakash editorials, British Indian Association 1851.
- Pabna: the WEMC split (Hindu Patriot and Amrita Bazar Patrika for zamindars; Bengalee under SNB and the Anglo-Indian press for ryots) because education was costly, so WEMC members were zamindars' sons (selfish interest >> larger interest).

- Deccan: the Poona Sarvajanik Sabha (Ranade, 17,000 signatures), the first regional political party of the WEMC.
- Closing:
    - The WEMC gave the peasants voice and organisation, but its class interests limited it
    - Both help explain why the movement later needed a mass base

Chapter 20: Pre-1857 Peasant & Tribal Revolts and Post-1857 Tribal Uprisings

The teacher's "plains, mainstream society" frame sets these revolts apart from the tribal uprisings; pre-1857 revolts had no named organisation, which is the contrast this chapter draws.

Chapter 21: The Revolt of 1857

The turning point: 1857 rebels wanted monarchy (feudal elements) in the teacher's board, while post-1857 peasants used courts first.

Chapter 16: Land Revenue Systems (1765-1885)

The Permanent Settlement 1793 made zamindars large landowners; Ryotwari and Mahalwari explain Maharashtra's hikes and Punjab's non-rich "zamindars".

Chapter 19: Social Reforms, Education Reforms & Print Culture

Neel Darpan 1860, Amrita Bazar Patrika's 1878 switch to English and the costly Western education of 1835 explain the WEMC and its voice.

Chapter 14: Dalhousie (1848-56): Peak of Expansion

Ripon 80-84's code is the one written on the teacher's slide in that chapter's Prelims 2004 pair (Ilbert Bill: Ripon).

Chapter 23: Pre-INC Organisations and the Early Indian National Movement

The next step: associations of the WEMC, which this chapter's Poona Sarvajanik Sabha and Lahore Indian Association foreshadow.

Chapter 37: Champaran, Ahmedabad, Kheda, Rowlatt Satyagraha and Gandhian Era (1920+)

Champaran 1917 closes the Tinkathia story; the INM later perfects the methods rehearsed here.

Mains PYQs: one Mains PYQ for 1857-85 (wording not on the slides): likely factors behind the rise of the INM

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- BrIA 1851 (Calcutta, Radhakanta Deb) as the first all-Indian organisation (no Briton in it) against the first all India INC 1885; the 1851-52 bodies and the Charter Act 1853 trigger; Chetty with the Madras Native Association, not the Madras Mahajan Sabha 1884 (2017)
- The 'un-British' argument; Downward Filtration 1835; Census 1921 (8% and 2%); Persian background (Golconda 1686, Bijapur 1687); 400+ newspapers and 1.5 lakh readers by 1875
- Black Acts and Lex Loci Act 1850; Income Tax 1860 and 1868; Great Madras Famine 1876-78; every Lytton 76-80 measure against every Ripon 80-84 measure; Factories Act 1881 = Ripon 80-84 (2007)
- The Ilbert Bill: its aim, the mixed jury, and why it is not the press or arms law (2003, 2013)
- The four WEMC associations and their founders; the 1875 petition (2002); the 1883 National Conference match (1996); SNB dismissed from the ICS, Tagore first, Dutt retired, Bose resigned (1999)

MAINS HOOKS

- Factors behind the rise of the INM: a product of colonial policy, good tools and a bad villain ('stronger the villain, stronger the hero')
- Why Western education made the INM uneven; how the press, railways and telegraphs made regional leaders national
- British racism as the accelerant: the Black Acts to Lytton 76-80 to the Ilbert Bill; Lytton against Ripon 80-84
- Why organised WEMC associations replaced landed-class bodies and what they did (peasants, famine relief, labour, councils)

The landed class petitioned for itself; the Raj's own tools and insults built a class that organised for everyone, and five roots met in the INC of 1885.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Petition, then provoke, then organise, then converge: the landed class petitioned for itself and got nothing; the Raj's own tools (education, press, rails) built the WEMC and its racism provoked it; the WEMC organised for everyone from 1870; and five roots converged in the INC of 1885.

1. The landlords petition (1851-52). The first organised political voice is not the middle class but the educated landed class. The British Indian Association (BrIA 1851) is set up in Calcutta with Radhakanta Deb as first president; the Bombay Association and the Madras Native Association follow in 1852. All three petition because Parliament is discussing the Charter Act of 1853, and they send three separate petitions, not one. They never oppose British rule: they call exploitation 'un-British'.

   → But nothing is granted.

2. Nothing is granted. These conservatives have too much to lose: land revenue systems like the Permanent Settlement of 1793 created the landed class, the police protect them, and their status and security depend on the British. The teacher's board puts it as Of, By, For: their bodies were of, by and for the landed class, not for the people.

   → So a different class will have to carry the movement.

3. The Raj builds a class (after 1857). Higher Western education after 1857 creates a politically conscious Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC), meant to be loyal Brown Sahibs. When it sees no real intent to share power, admiration turns into criticism and then a demand for Indian rights. But education is uneven (the Downward Filtration Theory of 1835 favoured Presidency Town elites; 1921 literacy is only 8%, female 2%), so the movement starts in Calcutta, Bombay and Madras.

   → Now this class needs tools.

4. The tools: press, rails, wires. By 1875 India has over 400 newspapers and more than 1.5 lakh readers; the press turns regional leaders into national ones. From the 1850s railways and the telegraph let leaders from Bombay, Bengal, Madras and Punjab meet and coordinate. The infrastructure of empire becomes the infrastructure of anti-colonial politics.

   → But the Raj keeps handing out reasons for anger.

5. The villain does its work. The 1850 Black Acts try to put Europeans in the mofussil under Indian judges and are suspended after a 'white rebellion'. The Lex Loci Act 1850 protects converts' inheritance over Indian opposition. Income Tax (1860, withdrawn, 1868) arrives during famines and draws 'No Taxation Without Representation'. In 1870 Bengal's higher-education budget is cut while military spending continues.

   → And then Lytton arrives.

6. Lytton antagonises everyone (76-80). Lytton 76-80 cuts the ICS age from 21 to 19 (1876, exam only in London), holds the Delhi Durbar (1877) during the Great Madras Famine, passes the Vernacular Press Act and the Arms Act (1878), creates the nomination-based Statutory Civil Service, and fights the Second Afghan War (1878-80). The Amrita Bazar Patrika turns English overnight to escape the press law.

   → Then a liberal Viceroy is sent.

7 Ripon, the liberal contrast (80-84). Gladstone's Liberals win in 1880 and send Ripon 80-84. The Rent Commission (1880) leads to the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885; the Factories Act 1881 bans labour under 7; the Vernacular Press Act is repealed and the Arms Act amended (1882); the ICS age goes back to 21. His key reform is Local Self-Government 1882: elected District Boards and municipalities with two-thirds elected. But Europeans in India oppose the simultaneous exam and it fails.

→ How far will Europeans let reform go?

8 The Ilbert Bill (1883-84). Law Member C.P. Ilbert proposes that Indian district judges may try Britons in the mofussil. Europeans organise, lobby and protest, and the bill is withdrawn and amended to need a mixed jury. For the WEMC the last doubt is gone: the British will not treat Indians as equals. Its press campaigns are the biggest use of the press before 1885.

→ The WEMC decides to organise on its own.

9 The WEMC organises (1870 onwards). The Poona Sarvajanik Sabha (1870, Ranade) petitions the House of Commons in 1875 for direct Indian representation. Surendranath Banerjee, who lost his ICS career over an age dispute, founds the Indian Association (1876); the Lahore Indian Association follows in 1877 and the Madras Mahajan Sabha in 1884. These bodies are of and by the WEMC but for all the people.

→ And they do real work.

10 More than talking shops. The new associations lead peasants (Indigo Revolt 1859-63, Bombay Deccan Riots 1875, Punjab Canal Colony 1907), run famine relief and arbitration courts, protest the Plantation Labour Act of 1859 (serfdom), and demand Council seats, separation of powers, lower Home Charges and an extended Permanent Settlement. After the Indian Councils Act of 1892 they use the Councils themselves.

→ Now the roots meet.

11 Five roots, one Congress (1885). Western education, a free press, racial provocation, organised WEMC associations, and railways and telegraphs all converge on the Indian National Congress at Bombay in 1885: the first all-India political party and the all-India culmination of the regional bodies.

In simple words

- The first organised political voice (1851-52) came from landed-class associations in Calcutta, Bombay and Madras. They sent three separate petitions, called exploitation 'un-British' and got nothing.
- After 1857 the Raj built the tools of a movement: Western higher education (the WEMC), the press, railways and telegraphs. Then its racism and authoritarianism (Black Acts 1850, Income Tax, Lytton 76-80, the Ilbert Bill) supplied the anger: 'stronger the villain, stronger the hero'.
- Lytton 76-80 antagonised everyone (ICS age cut, Durbar in a famine, Vernacular Press Act, Arms Act, Second Afghan War)
- Ripon 80-84 was the liberal contrast (Local Self-Government 1882) but Europeans fought him, above all on the Ilbert Bill 1883-84
- From 1870 the WEMC built its own organised bodies: Poona 1870, Indian Association 1876, Lahore 1877, Madras Mahajan Sabha 1884. They were of and by the WEMC, but for all the people.
- They led peasants, ran famine relief, fought for labour and used the Councils. Western education, the press, racial provocation, organised associations and railways all converged on the INC at Bombay, 1885.

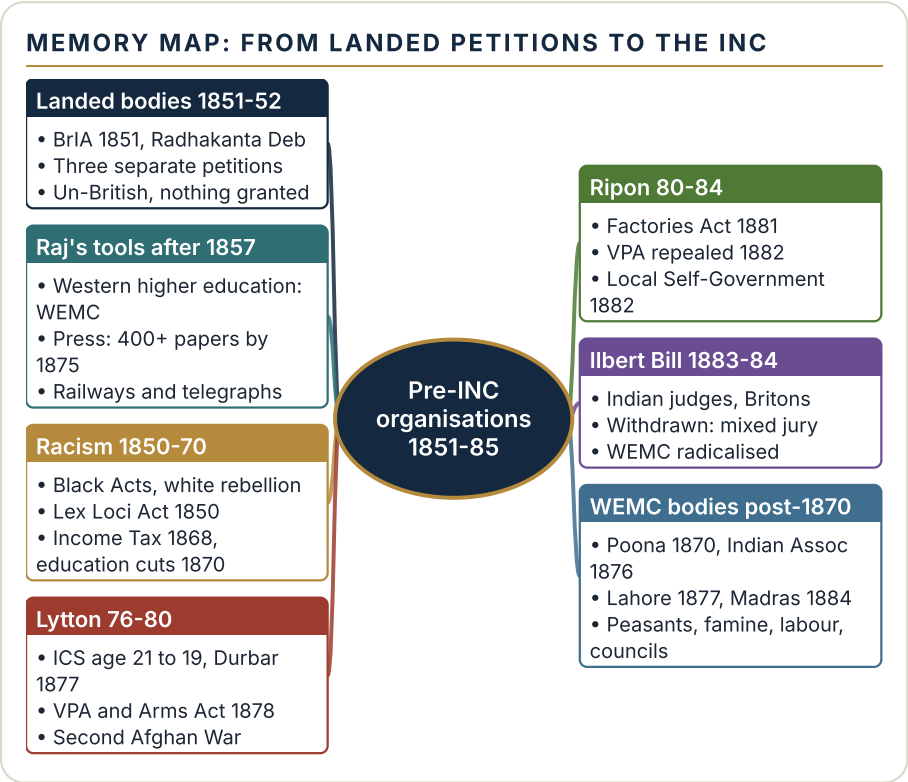
Key term	In plain words
WEMC	Western Educated Middle Class: the educated class that led the mature INM
Landed class	Educated landlords who formed the first associations (1851-52): the conservatives
Un-British	The argument that exploitation departs from just British rule, not that British rule is wrong
Brown Sahib	An Indian meant to be loyal to British rule because of Western education
3P	Press, Petitions, Prayers: the Moderates' method (the teacher)
Downward Filtration	The 1835 policy that focused education on Presidency Town elites; mass education was neglected
Mofussil	Rural areas outside the Presidency Towns
Statutory Civil Service	Lytton's service entered by nomination, not examination: only loyalists

Key term	In plain words
Local Self-Government	Ripon's 1882 elected District Boards and municipalities (train Indians in self-government)
Mixed jury	The Ilbert Bill's compromise: a mixed jury in any case involving a Briton
Anglo-Indian (before 1911)	A European settled in India, not a person of mixed parentage

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS Landlords petitioned for themselves; the Raj's own tools and insults built a class that organised for everyone, and five roots met in the INC of 1885.

Chapter 23: INC decoded, regional bodies before 1885, State motives
Lecture 27 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- INC decoded:
  - I = Indian
  - N = Nation = Pol (polity; written with "one" and a partly unclear "equal supreme")
  - C = ORG (organisation).
- A political party = an ORG whose motive is power over the State
- here the State is the colonial State.
- So the INC = the Indian people's ORG = a political party, the first all-India political party, 1885.
- "Early" = what came before: not all India, but regional political bodies: Bombay (1870), Calcutta (1876), Punjab (1877), Madras (1884).
- "1857-85" is the span of the chapter.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two motives for a State. Colonial State: "motive: Loot, Dominate colony." Nation State: "welfare of nation." State structure of Chapter 1 (power, State and sovereignty; a political party's motive = power over the State): a symbolic sovereign ("Sym Sov") over L, E, J (legislative, executive, judicial), and ministers working through CS and MS (civil servants and military servants, as in Chapter 1).
- The "Recall" table (Modern Nation: eco, Pol, Social; Modern Politics: a row of short labels ending in ORG, L, Z, voice) is beyond ORG.

Priority board; ORG of the landed class versus ORG of the WEMC Lecture 27 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Of, By, For. Landed-class associations were OF, BY and FOR the landed class.
- Since Western education was costly, "of" and "by" the educated landed class is understandable, BUT "for" the landed class and not for the people = Sad.
- Regional WEMC organisations (post-1870) were of and by the WEMC class, but FOR the people: people = landed + WEMC + peasants + workers = the masses.
- Beyond that comes the all-India INC of 1885 (next chapter).
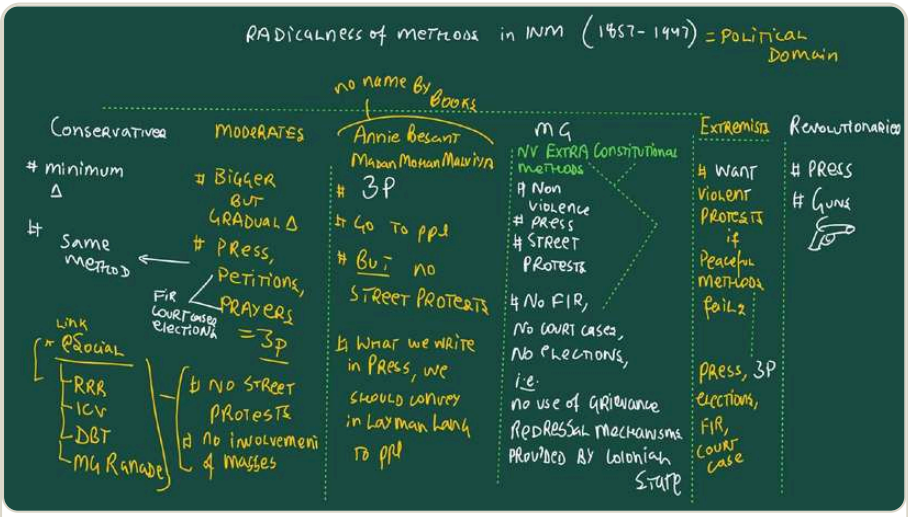
- "Link ideology of modern Nationalism" (the people-for-all idea is the modern nation concept).

The ladder of methods (the teacher's "radicalness" board)



Radicalness of methods in the INM, 1857-1947: six groups Lecture 27 slide 4

Group (teacher's order of radicalness)	Change wanted	Method	What it avoids
Conservatives	Minimum change	Same method as the moderates (press, petitions, prayers); the teacher links them to the social reformers (his initials RRR, ICV, DBT, MG Ranade)	No street protests; no involvement of the masses
Moderates	Bigger but gradual change	Press, Petitions, Prayers = 3P; they also use FIR, court cases, elections	Street protest
Annie Besant and Madan Mohan Malviya (the teacher: "no name by books")	Gradual	3P; go to the people; what is written in the press is told in layman's language	No street protests
MG	Larger	Non-violent, extra-constitutional: press and street protests	No FIR, no court cases, no elections: no use of the grievance redressal mechanisms of the colonial State

MNEMONIC · THE LADDER OF CHANGE

Change Moves Ever Rapidly

- C Conservatives: very little change
- M Moderates: gradual reform (3P)
- E Extremists: faster change
- R Revolutionaries: immediate, fundamental change

Order kept: the speed of change rises along the list.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout (Section 3) gives the same ladder in one line:
  - Conservatives want very little change
  - Moderates gradual reform
  - Extremists faster change
  - Revolutionaries immediate and fundamental transformation.
- The teacher's board adds the middle group the books do not name (Annie Besant and Madan Mohan Malviya) and MG (his shorthand for Mahatma Gandhi) as the group that left the colonial redressal channels.
- RRR and DBT are the teacher's shorthand for Roy and Debendranath Tagore in Chapter 19
- ICV is initials only on this slide

Conservatives = landed class; 1921 Census: 8% = WEMC Lecture 27 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Conservatives = Landed class. Moderates, Extremists, MG and Revolutionaries are grouped together, with "Moderates = WEMC" first.
- Indian population in the 1921 census: the 8% segment = WEMC, the educated sliver that led the movement (the handout's 1921 figure is 8% overall literacy, Section 5).

1 · How the Indian National Movement began

STORY LINK

Because the INC came late, the story opens before it: who spoke first? Ask: why was the first voice not the educated middle class?

- The Indian National Movement (INM) was, in its mature form, led by the Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC).
- But the first organised political voice in modern India was not theirs.
- It belonged to a different group: the educated landed class.
- Their regional associations were the earliest formal platforms for putting Indian political demands.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Who led the INM and where did it begin? Mature INM = WEMC.
- First organised voice = educated landed class, through regional associations (Section 2).

2 · The first associations (1851-52)

STORY LINK

Because the educated landed class had voice and money, it formed the first bodies (1851-52). Ask: what trigger sent three bodies to petition at once, and what does 'all-Indian' mean?

- The first major voluntary organisation in India was the British Indian Association [BrIA 1851], set up in Calcutta in 1851.
- Radhakanta Deb was its first president. Its members came from educated men of the landed class.
- It was also the first all-Indian organisation in character, unlike Dwarkanath Tagore's Landholders' Society (1838), which had included many non-official Anglo-Indians.
- (Before 1911, "Anglo-Indian" meant a European settled in India, not a person of mixed parentage.)
- The same period saw the Bombay Association (1852) and the Madras Native Association (1852).
- All three were educated, landed and conservative.
- The immediate reason for all three: the British Parliament was deliberating on the Charter Act of 1853 and Indian elites wanted to put their demands before it.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "All-Indian" is not "all India." BrIA 1851 = "[only Bengal]" and "all-Indian" = "[no Br Person in it]": all-Indian in membership (no Briton), unlike the Landholders' Society (1838), tagged "L ORG" (read as a landed ORG), which had non-official Anglo-Indians.
- "imp": "1st all-Indian" versus "1st all India [INC 1885]": BrIA = first all-Indian ORG (Indians only), INC = first all-India ORG (whole territory).
- Bombay row: "Dadabhai Naoroji in BoA 1852" (the same man appears in the 1876 revival, Section 13).

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's flow chart (shown in Section 13) adds that BrIA 1851 had Debendranath Tagore as secretary and the Hindu Patriot (Harish Ch.
- Mukherjee) as its voice
- The Madras Native Association (1852) was Gazulu Lakshminarasu Chetty's body, the first political body in Madras

Prelims 2017: associations and founders (PYQ 7) Lecture 27 slide 37

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2017: answer (b) 1 and 3 only.
- Pair 1 is correct:
  - Radhakanta Deb was the first president of the British Indian Association (1851)
  - the board adds "Dharma Sabha 1830" beside it (the digits of the year are)
- Pair 3 is correct: Surendranath Banerjee founded the Indian Association (1876).
- Pair 2 is the trap: the Madras Mahajana Sabha (1884) was founded by M. Veeraraghavachariar, G. Subramania Iyer and P.
- Anandacharlu, not by Gazulu Lakshminarasu Chetty, who is linked to the Madras Native Association (1852).

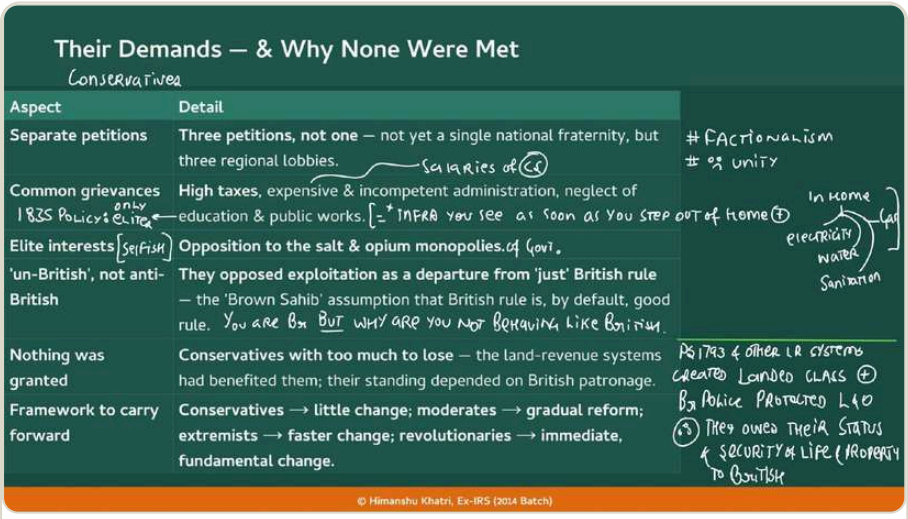
3 · Their demands

STORY LINK

Because they were landlords, they asked politely and for themselves. Ask: why did three petitions, called 'un-British', get nothing?



Conservatives: separate petitions, grievances, why nothing was granted
Lecture 27 slide 7

- The three associations sent separate petitions, not a joint one.
- They were not yet a single national fraternity, but three regional lobbies.
- Their grievances fell into two kinds: Common grievances: high taxes, expensive and incompetent administration, neglect of education and public works. Elite personal interests: opposition to the salt and opium monopolies.
- They did not oppose British rule itself.

- They opposed what they called "un-British" rule: British governance was, by definition, just and fair, and exploitation was a departure from that standard.
- This is "Brown Sahib" thinking: the phrase "un-British" assumes British rule is good by default.
- They were not calling colonialism wrong
- They were calling exploitation un-British
- No demands were met. These conservatives had too much to lose: the colonial land revenue systems had directly benefited them, and their social standing depended on British patronage.
- Framework to carry forward:
    - Conservatives want very little change
    - Moderates gradual reform
    - Extremists faster change
    - Revolutionaries immediate and fundamental transformation (the teacher's ladder, Section 0)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why the petitions failed. "Factionalism," "no unity" (three separate petitions).
- Regional lobbies link to "Salaries of (CS)" (read as civil servants' salaries: the costly administration;).
- "1835 Policy: only elite" = neglect of education (Downward Filtration, Section 5).
- Public works: "INFRA you see as soon as you step out of home (7)" against "In Home: electricity, water, sanitation, gas." Elite interests = "[Selfish]" (salt and opium monopolies "of Govt.").
- On un-British:
    - "You are Br BUT WHY are you not behaving like British." Also: "PS 1793 and other LR systems created Landed class (+)
    - Br Police protected LLO
    - (-ve) they owed their status and security of life and property to British."

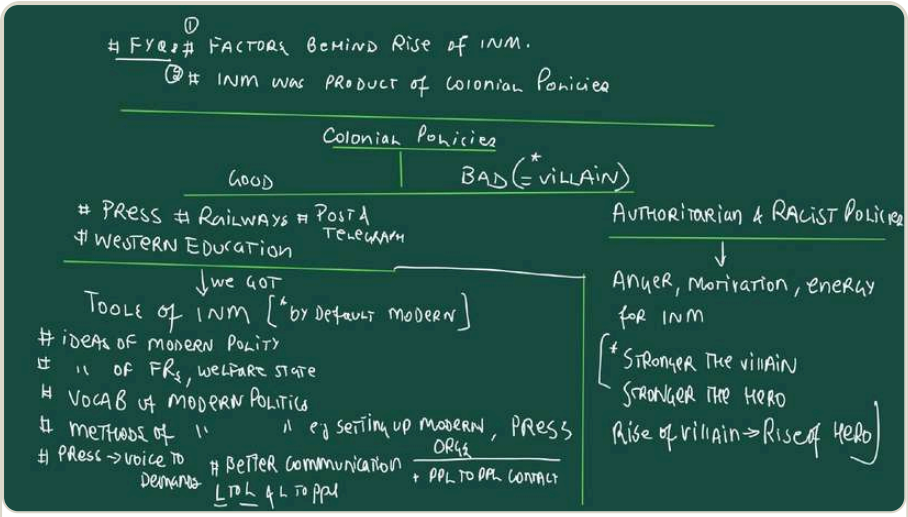
4 · The INM after 1857: a product of colonial policy

STORY LINK

Because the landlords failed, the movement needed a new class and new tools, and the Raj itself supplied both. Ask: which colonial policies were the tools and which the villain?



Factors behind the rise of the INM: good tools and bad villain Lecture 27 slide 8

- A deep irony: the British built many of the very tools that would later be used against them.
- The growth of the INM after 1857 was in large part a consequence of colonial policies themselves.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "FYQs:
  - Factors behind rise of INM"
  - "INM was a product of colonial policies." Policies were GOOD or BAD (= the villain).
- GOOD = Press, Railways, Post and Telegraph, Western Education: "we got" the tools of the INM, modern by default: ideas of modern polity (fundamental rights, welfare State), vocabulary of modern politics, methods of modern politics (modern press, organisations), the press as a voice to demands, better communication (leader to leader, leader to people, people to people).
- BAD = authoritarian and racist policies = anger, motivation, energy for the INM.
- Rule:
  - "Stronger the villain, stronger the hero
  - Rise of villain = rise of hero."

What makes a class: numbers, consciousness, organisation Lecture 27 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A class exists "when" three things hold, joined by AND:
  - (1) the number of members rises
  - (2) consciousness among members of common problems and solutions
  - (3) the members are organised (a small hierarchy)
- So the WEMC became a class only when numerous, aware of common problems and solutions, and organised (Sections 5 and 13).

5 · Factor 1: Western education

STORY LINK

Because the Raj taught the educated, it created its own critics. Ask: why was the movement uneven, and who was left out?

Factor 1: Western education, a new class and uneven spread Lecture 27 slide 10

- The rapid expansion of Western higher education after 1857 created a new group: a politically conscious WEMC.
- (It is specifically higher education that matters: colleges and universities are where people develop political ideology and a sense of public affairs; primary schooling alone does not produce political movements.)
- The British meant this class to be loyal "Brown Sahibs." But as the WEMC realised the British had no genuine intention of sharing power, admiration turned to criticism, and criticism turned into a demand for Indian rights.
- Western education did not spread evenly, so the INM grew unevenly.
- The Downward Filtration Theory (1835) had focused education only on the elites of the Presidency Towns.
- Mass education stayed neglected, shown by the Census of 1921: only 8% overall literacy and 2% female literacy, despite Wood's Dispatch (1854) and the Hunter Commission (1882-83) both calling for wider expansion.

NUMBER CARD · LITERACY IN THE CENSUS OF 1921

8 % · 2 %

Eight overall, two for women, even after Wood 1854 and Hunter 1882-83.

8% overall literacy (the teacher labels the 8% WEMC)
2% female literacy

- So early INM leadership was dominated by upper-caste (UC) Marathis, Tamilians and Bengalis of the Presidency Towns.
- Muslims were comparatively under-represented in early Western-educated politics: partly from a wish to preserve Persian literary culture, partly from the conservative influence of the Ulamas.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "It's in college that the first exposure to politics happens" (i.e. higher education).
- Admiration "of Br Rule" turned to demand "for Indian rights." "1857: 3 universities {M, B, C}" (Madras, Bombay, Calcutta)
- "Post 1857: rising authoritarianism, racism" (why admiration soured)
- Starred pair: 1882 Hunter Education Commission and 1921 census, 8%.
- Muslims: "insecurity @ Persian literary culture + getting HURT" (the signs between them are).

Level of Western education and of the INM: Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, rest
Lecture 27 slide 11

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Bar chart: level of Western education (and so of modern INM): Calcutta city highest, then Bombay city, Madras city, rest of British India lowest.
- Profile of INM leaders till 1920:
  - From M, B, C
  - Rich
  - Upper-caste Hindus
  - Bangla, Marathi, Tamil speakers.
- Uneven growth of Western education leads to uneven growth of the INM.

Why Persian was embedded in Muslim culture Lecture 27 slide 12

- Persian was not just a language: it was a cultural identity.
- The Mughal court used Persian as its official language.
- (The teacher adds: the Delhi Sultanate (1206-1526) also promoted Persian.)
- Humayun 30-40 took help from the Safavid Dynasty of Persia (Shia) to reclaim power from the Suri Dynasty (1540-55).

- The Nawabs of Awadh were Shia. Golconda and Bijapur were Shia-ruled until Aurangzeb 58-07 annexed them in 1686 and 1687 respectively.
- For many educated Muslims, abandoning Persian meant abandoning something precious.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Sadat Khan 22-39, Nawab of Awadh of the Chapter 3 successor states (Awadh line).
- Insert: Delhi Sultanate (1206-1526) promoted Persian.

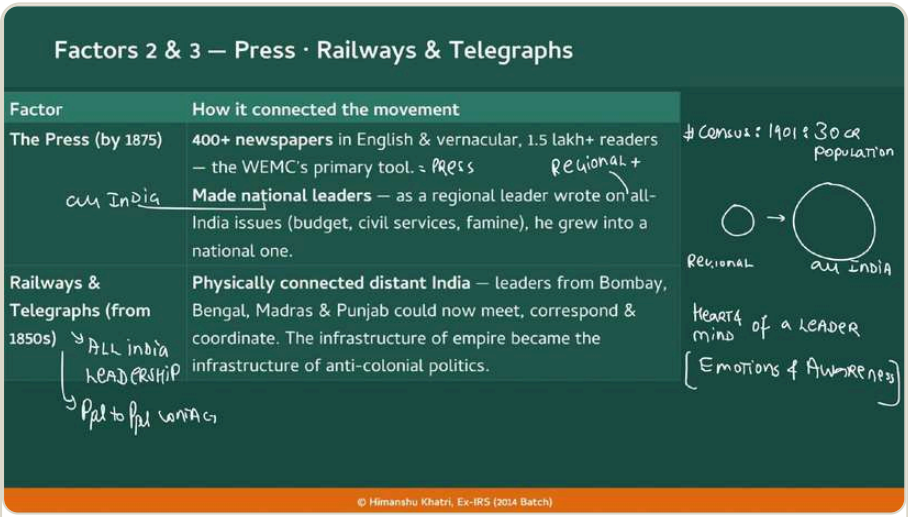
6 · Factor 2: the press

STORY LINK

Because the WEMC now had readers, the press carried its voice. Ask: how does a regional leader become a national one?



Factors 2 and 3: the press, railways and telegraphs Lecture 27 slide 13

- By 1875, India had over 400 newspapers in English and vernacular languages, with a combined readership of more than 1.5 lakh.
- The press was the primary tool of the WEMC.
- It built inter-regional awareness, spread nationalist ideas, and helped regional leaders grow into national ones.
- When a regional leader begins writing and speaking on all-India issues (the budget, civil services, famine), he gradually becomes a national leader.
- The press was the engine of that change.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Regional + all India": the press turns a regional leader into an all-India leader.
- "Census: 1901: 30 cr population" (scale of all India; the point made with it is not written).
- "Hearts mind of a leader [Emotions and Awareness]": read as the press shaping a leader's emotions and awareness.

7 · Factor 3: railways and telegraphs

STORY LINK

Because distances shrank, leaders could meet. Ask: what did railways and the telegraph add to the press?

- From the 1850s, railways and the electric telegraph physically and communicatively connected distant parts of India.
- Leaders from Bombay, Bengal, Madras and Punjab could now meet, correspond and coordinate.
- The infrastructure of empire became, unintentionally, the infrastructure of anti-colonial politics.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Railways: "ALL india LEADERSHIP" and "Ppl to Ppl contact."

8 · Factor 4: British racism and authoritarianism

STORY LINK

Because the Raj kept insulting the educated, anger grew. Ask: which provocations are dated and which is a result?

KEY TAKEAWAY

- "If Western education was the slow fire that built the INM, British racism was the accelerant." Every act of racial discrimination reminded Indians of their subordinate status and added recruits to the movement.
- It is the biggest single contributor to the movement's growth.
- (Like a film villain, it gives the hero a reason to rise.)

Factor 4: Black Acts 1850 and Lex Loci Act 1850 Lecture 27 slide 14

8.1 1850: the Black Acts (Bethune's Bills)

- Before 1850, a European charged with a crime in the mofussil (rural areas outside the Presidency Towns) could be tried only by the Supreme Court in a Presidency Town (Calcutta, Bombay or Madras).
- That bypassed the local Company courts where Indian judges (Sadr Amins, Munsifs) sat.
- This made justice for ordinary Indians nearly impossible: witnesses and complainants had to travel to a Presidency Town at great cost.
- The Black Acts ended this privilege and brought Europeans in the mofussil under the criminal jurisdiction of the ordinary district courts, where Indians served as judges.
- Europeans protested so fiercely in the press that it is called the "white rebellion," and the Acts had to be suspended.
- Recall: the Charter Act of 1833 had promised racial equality.
- The Black Acts tried to act on that promise.
- The same principle returned in the Ilbert Bill of 1883 (Section 12).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The "white rebellion" was by the Anglo-Indian (European) press.
- Lower judiciary (J) opened to Indians in 1833 links to the Sadr Amins and Munsifs ("State's" over the courts; first letters "UCs").
- "This hurts Brown Sahib mentality and the WMB narrative" (WMB read as White Man's Burden:).
- "Br negated opinion, petition of WEMC [= Authoritarian]": the British overrode WEMC opinion and petitions.

8.2 1850: the Lex Loci Act

- The Lex Loci Act (Removal of Religious/Caste Disabilities Act) gave the right of inheritance to converts from any religion to any other.

- It was passed despite Indian opposition and was widely seen as a tool to promote conversion to Christianity.

8.3 1868: Income Tax

- First introduced in 1860, then withdrawn under press pressure, then re-introduced in 1868, even as famines swept different parts of India through the 1860s and 70s.
- The WEMC answered with a sharp slogan: "No Taxation Without Representation."
- The worst famine of the period was the Great Madras Famine of 1876-78, caused by two consecutive years of drought. About one crore Indians died.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Slogan raised "in Press," in the 1860s-70s.
- Famine: "[Cannibalism also Reported]." Income Tax lesson: "Got to know Govt's priorities in India" (tax during famine showed what the Government put first).

8.4 1870: education cuts in Bengal

- The Anglo-Indian press had been calling the WEMC "seditious."
- The colonial response was not to engage with the criticism, but to cut higher-education spending in Bengal, while military spending and high taxes continued as before.

8.5 Cultural nationalism hardens into political nationalism

MNEMONIC · RACIST PROVOCATIONS, IN ORDER

British Laws Irritate Educated

B	Black Acts 1850 (white rebellion, suspended)
L	Lex Loci Act 1850 (converts keep inheritance)
I	Income Tax 1868: No Taxation Without Representation
E	Education cuts in Bengal 1870

Order kept: 1850, 1850, 1868, 1870. Cultural nationalism (8.5) is the result, not an act.

- British racism also deepened cultural nationalism. The extremist leaders Lala Lajpat Rai, Bal Gangadhar Tilak, Bipin Chandra Pal (Lal-Bal-Pal) and Aurobindo later used it to strengthen political nationalism.
- Recall the cultural nationalism of the period: Arya Samaj 1875, Swami Vivekananda, Bankim Chandra Chatterjee (Chapter 19).

TEACHER'S BOARD

"All are post 1857. Why? Because of rising racism post 1857."

9 · The Lytton years (1876-80)

STORY LINK

Because Lytton 76-80 antagonised every section in four years, the educated turned bitter. Ask: which of his six measures hit the press, the services and the treasury?

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Viceroy Lytton 76-80 managed to antagonise practically every section of educated Indian opinion in just four years.
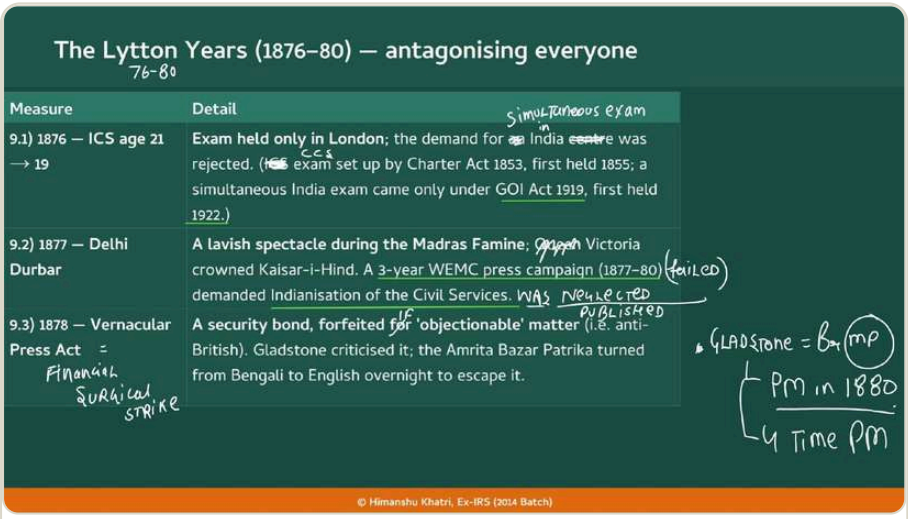
- (Slide order differs from the handout; this chapter follows the handout's numbering and notes the slide's year where it differs.)



The Lytton years 1876-80: ICS age, Durbar, Vernacular Press Act Lecture 27 slide 16

9.1 1876: ICS age cut from 21 to 19

- Since the examination was held only in London, lowering the age made it near-impossible for Indians to compete.
- The demand for an examination centre in India was rejected outright.
- (The ICS exam was set up by the Charter Act 1853 and first held in 1855.
- A simultaneous exam in India was accepted only under the GOI Act 1919, and the first India-based exam was held in 1922.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "simultaneous exam in India" (corrected wording)
- CCS for "ICS" (the slide's own abbreviation in the Statutory Civil Service row)
- GOI Act 1919, first held 1922. "76-80" = Lytton's term.

9.2 1878: the Statutory Civil Services Act

- A new service category was created, but entry was by nomination, not examination. Only loyalists were nominated.
- Think of it as colonial "lateral entry": designed to look inclusive while making sure loyalists got in.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Date conflict. Handout: 1878 (Statutory Civil Services Act).
- Slide table:
  - 1879, "Lytton 76-80's rules under the GOI Act 1870": provincial governments nominated Indians to CCS-reserved posts, subject to approval by the Government of India and the Secretary of State
  - Nomination, not the exam held in England
  - A service distinct from the CCS.
- For Prelims remember 1878-79 and the method (nomination)
- The question bank uses 1878
- Board:
  - "ONLY LOYALISTS were chosen
  - 1%
  - WEMC opposed it."

9.3 1877: the Delhi Durbar

- An enormous and expensive imperial spectacle, held while the Great Madras Famine was killing people across south India.
- Queen Victoria was crowned Kaisar-i-Hind (Empress of Hindustan). The WEMC press was scathing.
- There was also a three-year press campaign, 1877-80, by the WEMC demanding Indianisation of the Civil Services
- the Durbar added fuel to it

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Press campaign marked "(failed)" and "WAS neglected": the demand for Indianisation was neglected.
- ("Queen" is overwritten on the slide:.)

9.4 1878: the Vernacular Press Act

- It targeted the vernacular press, which had grown sharply critical of British policy.
- Printers and publishers had to deposit a security bond, forfeited if they published anything "objectionable" (in practice, anything anti-British).
- The British Liberal MP Gladstone criticised the Act publicly from London.
- The most dramatic response came from the Amrita Bazar Patrika, which converted itself overnight from a Bengali newspaper to an English one, placing itself outside the Act's reach.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Vernacular Press Act = Financial Surgical STRIKE" (a strike on the press through a money bond).
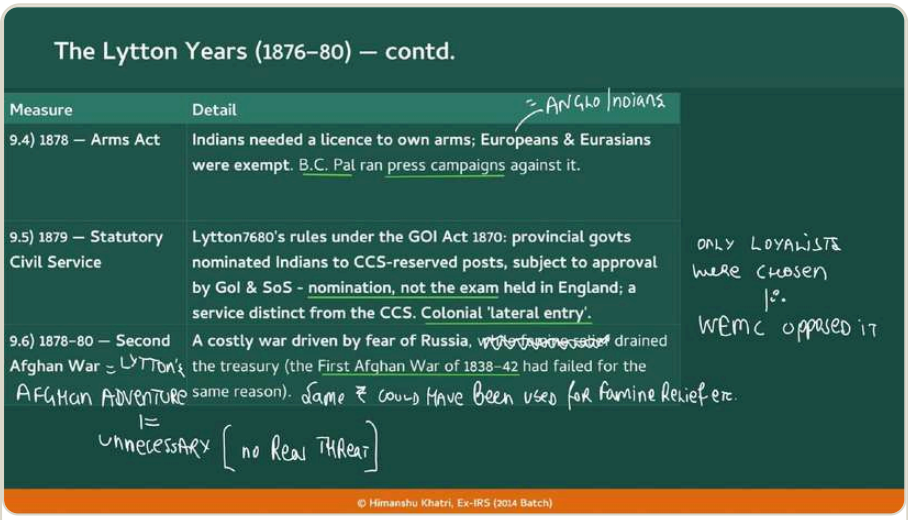
- Gladstone: "Br (MP)," "PM in 1880," "4 Time PM" (only an MP in 1878, Prime Minister from 1880: see Ripon, Section 10).



Lytton years contd.: Arms Act, Statutory Civil Service, Second Afghan War
Lecture 27 slide 17

9.5 1878: the Arms Act

- Indians required a licence to own arms
- Europeans and Eurasians were exempt.
- B.C. Pal launched press campaigns against this openly discriminatory law.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Europeans & Eurasians = Anglo Indians" (the exempt group; matches the handout's note on the old meaning of "Anglo-Indian").

9.6 1878-80: the Second Afghan War

MNEMONIC · LYTTON 76-80'S SIX PROVOCATIONS

D A N G E R

Lytton 76-80 put the Raj in DANGER by antagonising every section of educated opinion.

D Delhi Durbar 1877: a feast in the Madras famine

A Arms Act 1878: licence for Indians, Europeans exempt

N Nomination: Statutory Civil Service, only loyalists

G Gagging Act: the Vernacular Press Act 1878

E Exam age cut: ICS 21 to 19 in 1876

R Russia-fear war: Second Afghan War 1878-80

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- Lytton fought a costly campaign in Afghanistan, driven by fear of Russian influence, when the Indian treasury was already stretched by famine relief.
- The treaty that ended the war shaped the modern borders of Afghanistan.
- The First Afghan War of 1838-42 was fought for exactly the same reason (fear of Russian expansion) and was an expensive disaster. The British learned very little.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Lytton's Afghan Adventure = Unnecessary [no real threat]." "The same rupees could have been used for famine relief." A scribble over "while famine relief" is; the handout says famine relief costs had already stretched the treasury.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's chart adds facts not in the handout text or the slides: the Royal Titles Act of 1876 (before the Durbar), the name "Gagging Act" for the Vernacular Press Act (as in Chapter 19), the Factory Act cap of 9 hours for under-12s, and the "White Mutiny" for the European agitation.
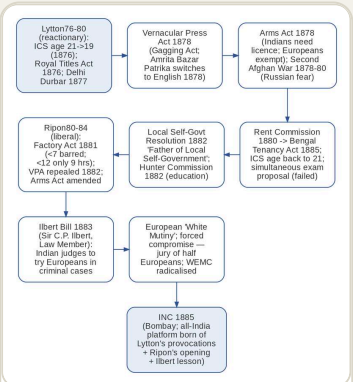
- Slide numbering (9.4 Arms Act, 9.5 Statutory Civil Service) differs from the handout (9.5 Arms Act, 9.2 Statutory Civil Services)
- The content is the same

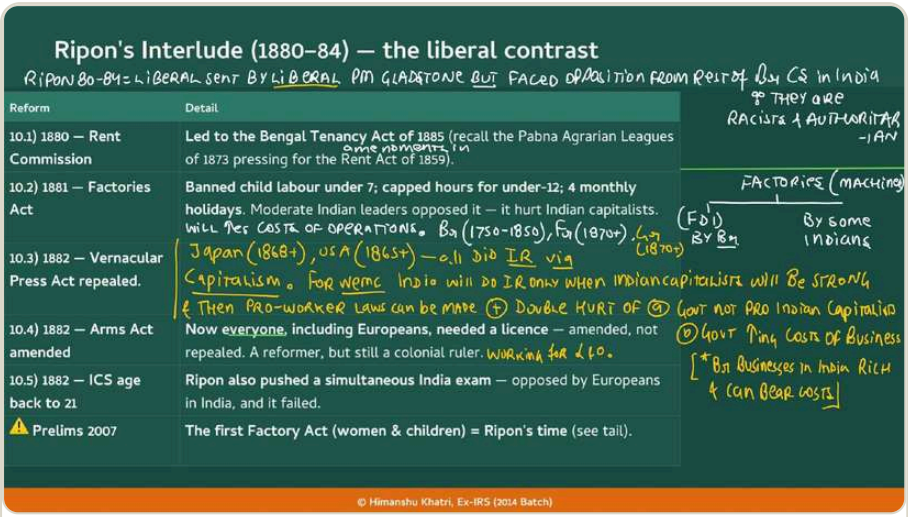


Handout chart: Lytton, Ripon, the Ilbert Bill and the INC 1885 handout figure

10 · Ripon's interlude (1880-84)

STORY LINK

Because Gladstone's Liberals won in 1880, a liberal Viceroy followed Lytton. Ask: which Lytton measure did Ripon undo, and which did he only amend?



Ripon's interlude 1880-84: Rent Commission, Factories Act, VPA, Arms Act, ICS Lecture 27 slide 18

- When Gladstone's Liberal Party won the 1880 British elections, he sent a reformist Viceroy, Lord Ripon 80-84.
- The contrast with Lytton 76-80 was stark.

THE RAJ'S TWO FACES: LYTTON 76-80 AGAINST RIPON 80-84

The Raj's two faces
- Same Raj, two Viceroys

Lytton 76-80
- ICS age 21 to 19 (1876)
- VPA and Arms Act (1878)
- Second Afghan War 1878-80

Antagonised every section

Ripon 80-84
- Factories Act 1881
- VPA repealed, Arms Act amended (1882)
- Local Self-Government 1882

Liberal, but Europeans fought him

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Ripon 80-84 = Liberal, sent by Liberal PM Gladstone, BUT faced opposition from the rest of the British civil service in India: they are racists and authoritarian." (Opposition from Europeans in India recurs in 10.5 and the Ilbert Bill, Section 12.)

10.1 1880: the Rent Commission

- Set up by Ripon 80-84, it eventually led to the Bengal Tenancy Act of 1885.
- Recall the pressure of the Pabna Agrarian Leagues of 1873 for fair implementation of the Rent Act of 1859 in Bengal.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"amendments in" the Rent Act of 1859: the 1885 Act amends it.

10.2 1881: the Factories Act

- Child labour was banned for children under 7.
- Working hours were capped for children under 12. Four monthly holidays were mandated.
- Moderate Indian leaders opposed this Act: it would hurt Indian capitalists, who were already struggling against competition from cheaper British manufactured goods.
- (A reminder that "Indian interests" were not one unified position.)
- Prelims 2007: the first Factory Act (women and children) = Ripon's time.
- The slide's answer note:
    - Under-7s barred
    - Under-12s capped at 9 hours.

HANDOUT ALERT

Prelims 2007: answer (c) Ripon 80-84. Method: write 1881 over the question and the reign years beside each option. 1881 falls only inside Ripon 80-84: Lytton 76-80 ended in 1880; Bentinck 28-35 and Canning 56-62 were earlier.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why moderates opposed the Factories Act: it "will raise costs of operations." Industrial Revolution (IR) came by capitalism: Britain (1750-1850), France (1870+), Germany (1870+) (with FDI by Britain, beside Germany), Japan (1868+), USA (1865+).
- "For WEMC, India will do IR only when Indian capitalists are STRONG, and then pro-worker laws can be made." Double hurt: (a) the Government is not pro Indian capitalist
- (b) the Government is raising business costs (British businesses in India are rich and can bear them)
- FACTORIES (machines) came by FDI by Britain and by some Indians.
- The exact wording of the "IR" lines is.

- 1882: Vernacular Press Act repealed.
- 1882: Arms Act amended. Now everyone, including Europeans, needed a licence.
- A liberal gesture, but Ripon amended, not repealed, the Act: a reformer, but still a colonial ruler (the teacher: "working for LLO").
- 1882: ICS age limit raised back to 21.
- Ripon also pushed for a simultaneous exam in India
- Europeans in India strongly opposed it and the proposal failed.

11 · Local Self-Government (1882)

STORY LINK

Because Ripon wanted to train Indians in self-government, local bodies were elected. Ask: what did the government still control?

Local Self-Government 1882: Boards, municipalities, Hunter Commission
Lecture 27 slide 19

- Ripon's most significant reform was the Local Self-Government Resolution/Act of 1882.
- The stated goal was to train Indians in the practice of self-government.
- Rural: elected District Boards across British India.
- Members were to be elected by land revenue payers and rent payers, not nominated by officials.
- Urban: municipalities were strengthened: at least two-thirds of members elected, and the chairperson a non-official member.
- Charge: local bodies were given health, education, sanitation, roads and communications, with autonomy in day-to-day functioning.
- The government kept the power to inspect and dissolve a local body (regulation, not total control).
- The Hunter Education Commission (1882-83) followed: it recommended transfer of education to local bodies and a focus on mass education in vernacular languages, especially female education. Implementation remained poor.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Ripon 80-84 = Father of L&amp
- G" (Local Self-Government)
- "Students should recognise Local Government versus Local SELF-Government. Key word = 'Self'." "Now" elected: land-revenue payers = landowners
- Rent payers = tenants.
- Ladder:
    - Centre, Provinces, Local Bodies = LSG = democracy at the third level, via power to local bodies: economic: funds
    - Political: autonomy in decisions.

- Compare with today: Local Self-Government is now a constitutional right under Part IX (Panchayati Raj) and Part IX-A (Municipalities), inserted by the 73rd and 74th Constitutional Amendments of 1992.
- Ripon's 1882 Act was the colonial seedling
- The 1992 amendments made it a constitutional tree.

12 · The Ilbert Bill controversy (1883-84)

STORY LINK

Because Europeans would not accept Indian judges over Britons, the bill was watered down. Ask: why did this episode radicalise the WEMC most?

KEY TAKEAWAY

The single episode that most sharply exposed British racial attitudes and most decisively radicalised the WEMC was the Ilbert Bill controversy of 1883-84.

Ilbert Bill controversy 1883-84: the bill, backlash and lesson Lecture 27 slide 21

- Drafted by Law Member C.P. Ilbert, the bill proposed to extend the jurisdiction of Indian district judges to try cases involving Britons in the mofussil (rural) areas.
- It would end an existing privilege: a Briton in rural India could not be tried before an Indian judge.
- The European community's reaction was immediate and furious: they organised, lobbied and protested, and the bill had to be withdrawn and amended.
- The final version required a mixed jury in any case involving a Briton.
- For the WEMC this settled any remaining doubt: the British would not treat Indians as equals in courts, in civil services or in political life.
- The controversy triggered massive press campaigns across the country and is rightly called a major milestone in the growth of Indian political consciousness.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Europeans protested "in Press"; the WEMC campaigned "in favour of the Ilbert Bill ... (use of Press)." Exam line: "Where was the maximum use of the press by the WEMC before 1885? Ans: Here (the Ilbert Bill)." Also "Indian HC Act 1861: HCs in 1862 {M, B, C}" (High Courts at Madras, Bombay, Calcutta); why it is placed here is not written.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2003: answer (a): to bring Indians and Europeans on par in the criminal jurisdiction of courts.
- The distractors are the other Lytton-era laws:
  - (b) the Vernacular Press Act (1878)
  - (c) the rejected ICS-in-India demand
  - (d) the Arms Act (1878).

Prelims 2013: the Ilbert Bill controversy (PYQ 6) Lecture 27 slide 35

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2013: answer (c): removal of the disqualifications imposed on Indian magistrates with regard to the trial of Europeans.
- (a) arms restrictions = the Arms Act 1878
- (b) restrictions on Indian-language newspapers = the Vernacular Press Act, 1878
- (d) a cotton cloth duty has nothing to do with it
- Board: "WWI 1914-19."

13 · The rise of WEMC-led associations (post-1870)

STORY LINK

Because the landlords had failed and the WEMC was angry, a new kind of body appeared from 1870. Ask: which four bodies, which founders, and which year for the Commons petition?

KEY TAKEAWAY

- From 1870 a new kind of Indian political organisation appeared: led not by conservative landlords but by young, politically minded professionals of the WEMC.
- They challenged the older landed-class bodies and gradually replaced them as the principal voice of Indian opinion.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's chart adds names the handout text does not give: Bengal British India Society 1843, East India Association 1866 (London, Dadabhai Naoroji), the Bombay Presidency Association 1885 (Pherozeshah Mehta, K.T. Telang, Badruddin Tyabji), Ananda Mohan Bose with SNB, and that the Indian Association was originally the Bharat Sabha.
- Use them as extra detail
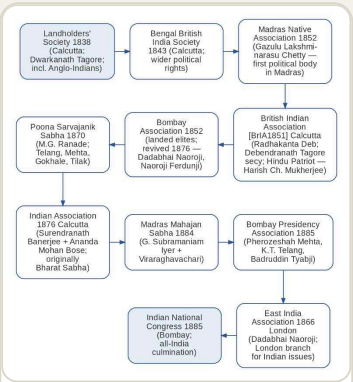
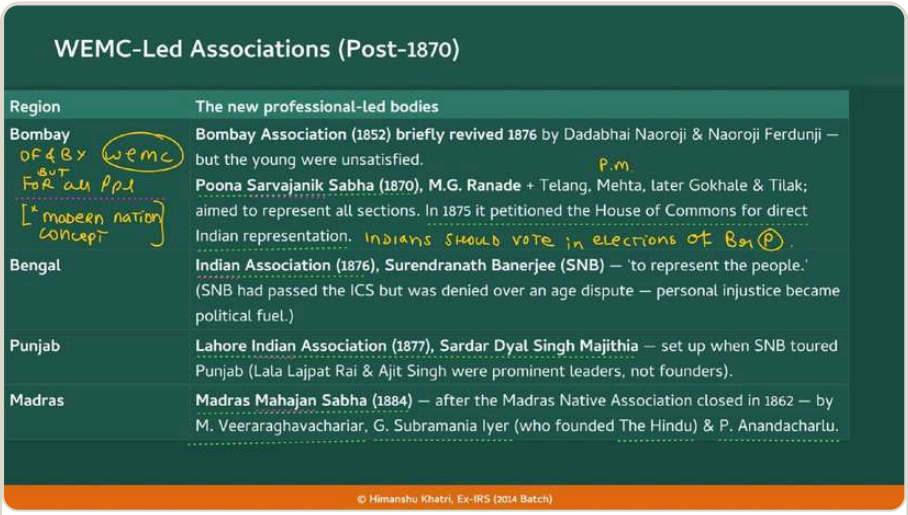
- The Prelims questions in this chapter need the four bodies below



Handout chart: associations from 1838 to the INC 1885 handout figure



WEMC-led associations after 1870: Bombay, Bengal, Punjab, Madras Lecture 27 slide 22

13.1 Bombay

- The old Bombay Association of 1852 was briefly revived in 1876 when Dadabhai Naoroji and Naoroji Ferdunji returned from London.
- But the younger generation was not satisfied with its conservative outlook.
- The Poona Sarvajanik Sabha (1870) was set up by M.G. Ranade.
- It brought together Telang (K.T.) and Mehta (P.M.), and later Gokhale (G.K.) and Bal Gangadhar Tilak.

- Its aim was to represent all sections of society: a significant departure from the landlord focus of the earlier bodies.
- In 1875 the Sabha sent a petition to the British House of Commons demanding direct Indian representation: one of the earliest such demands addressed to the Imperial Parliament itself.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Of and By WEMC, BUT For all people [* the modern nation concept]" (the Of-By-For idea of Section 0).
- "P.M." above the Poona line (the handout's P.M. Mehta).
- After the 1875 petition: "Indians should vote in elections of Br (P)" (P = Parliament): direct representation meant Indians voting in British elections.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2002: answer (d) The Poona Sarvajanik Sabha.
- Founding years of the options:
  - The Indian Association was founded only in 1876 (SNB) and the Madras Mahajan Sabha in 1884, so neither could petition in 1875
  - Only the Poona Sarvajanik Sabha (1870, M.G. Ranade) existed
- (a) a "Deccan Association" petition is not recorded in the chapter.

13.2 Bengal

- Surendranath Banerjee (SNB) founded the Indian Association (1876) with the explicit goal of "representing the people."
- SNB had actually passed the ICS examination but was not selected, because of an age dispute (a difference between the English calendar and the Hindu calendar). Personal injustice became political fuel.

HANDOUT ALERT

- "Not selected" or "dismissed"? The handout (13.2) and the slide say SNB passed the ICS but was denied over an age dispute
- the handout's Prelims 1999 alert and the slide answer say he was dismissed from the ICS (slide: entered the ICS in 1869 and dismissed in 1874 over a minor procedural lapse)
- The PYQ-slide note is "(Age) Dismiss." For the exam, use "dismissed" (answer (b)).
- In a Mains line: "an age and calendar dispute cost him the service, and that injustice became political fuel."

Prelims 1999: the leader dismissed from the ICS (PYQ 2) Lecture 27 slide 27

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1999:
  - Answer (b) Surendranath Banerji. Board: the exit of all four: Satyendranath Tagore = 1864, the first (never dismissed)
  - Banerji = (age) dismissed (the slide: entered 1869, dismissed 1874; he went on to found the Indian Association, 1876)
  - R.C.
- Dutt = retired (Drain Theory)
- S.C.
- Bose = resigned (AIR 4, first attempt, six months' preparation; the slide: 1921, to join the movement).

13.3 Punjab

- The Lahore Indian Association (1877) was set up by Sardar Dyal Singh Majithia when SNB toured Punjab.
- Lala Lajpat Rai and Ajit Singh were prominent leaders there, not founders.

13.4 Madras

- After the Madras Native Association closed in 1862, political activity in Madras went into a lull, before the Madras Mahajan Sabha (1884) revived it.
- Its founders were M. Veeraraghavachariar, G. Subramania Iyer (the legendary nationalist journalist who also founded The Hindu) and P. Anandacharlu.

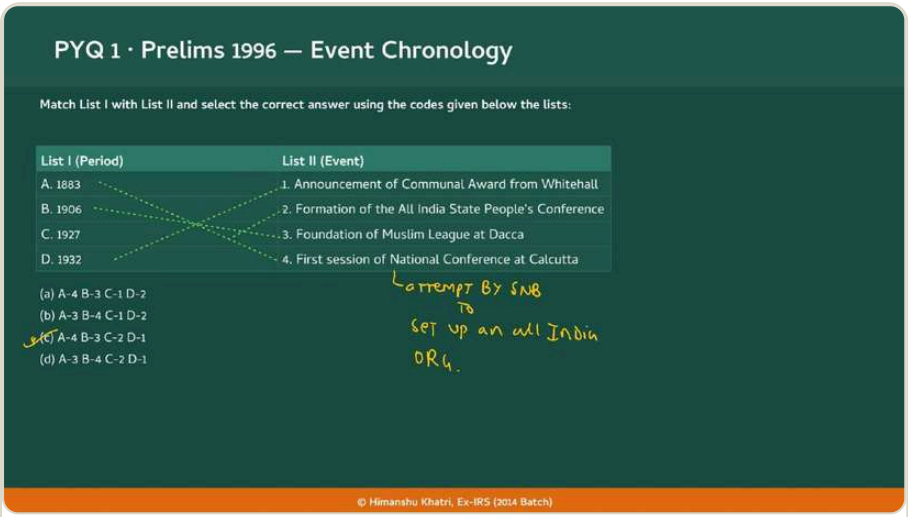
Order kept: this is a chronology (70, 76, 77, 84).



Prelims 1996: event chronology match (PYQ 1) Lecture 27 slide 25

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1996:
  - Answer (c) A-4, B-3, C-2, D-1. 1883 = first session of the National Conference at Calcutta (the Indian Association; the teacher: "1st attempt by SNB to set up an all India ORG")
  - 1906 = Muslim League founded at Dacca
  - 1927 = All India States People's Conference
  - 1932 = Communal Award announced from Whitehall (August)
- The wrong options swap A and B or C and D.

HANDOUT NOTE

- By 1870 an organised INM under WEMC leadership had begun.
- Pre-1870: WEMC was politically active but without formal organisation. Post-1870: active and organised.
- The shift matters: organised movements are qualitatively different from individual opinion-making.
- Through the 1870s-90s there was a phase of coexistence and gradual transition as WEMC bodies steadily replaced the older conservative associations of the landed class.

14 · What these new associations did

STORY LINK

Because these bodies were organised, they acted. Ask: what did they do beyond talking?

What the new associations did: peasants, famine, labour, political demands
Lecture 27 slide 23

KEY TAKEAWAY

The WEMC associations were not merely talking shops. They took on concrete roles.

- 14.1 Leadership of peasants: for example the Indigo Revolt (1859-63), the Bombay Deccan Riots (1875) and the Punjab Canal Colony Agitations (1907).
- 14.2 Famine relief: the Poona Sarvajanik Sabha organised relief during the famines of the 1870s and held arbitration courts for cheaper dispute resolution, since fighting cases in colonial courts was prohibitive for ordinary people.
- 14.3 Labour rights: they protested the Plantation Labour and Inland Emigration Act (1859), which gave planters the power to arrest workers who tried to leave their contracts: effectively serfdom.
- 14.4 Political demands:
  - Representation in Legislative Councils (set up by the Indian Councils Act of 1861)
  - Separation of powers between Legislature, Executive and Judiciary
  - Reduction in Home Charges
  - extension of the Permanent Settlement of 1793 (PS 1793) to other areas
- Later, they also used British institutions, especially the Legislative Councils, after the Indian Councils Act of 1892 let more Indians in, as platforms for criticising British policy from within.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Breaching" (the offence was breaching the contract).
- "# 17000 signs on Power of Attorney" is linked to the table header
- Context
- On the PS 1793 demand: "[Selfish: Landowner = (2) in PS 1793 + believed in Capitalism (* Cornwallis 86-93, "CW86-93")]" ("2").
- Read: asking for PS 1793 to be extended was a selfish demand, since landowners benefited from it, in the capitalist logic of Cornwallis 86-93.

15 · The roots of the INC (1885)

MNEMONIC · THE FIVE ROOTS OF THE INC

P A P E R

The Moderates' tools were press, petitions and prayers: the INC grew out of PAPER.

- P Press: 400+ papers by 1875
- A Associations: organised WEMC bodies after 1870
- P Provocation: racism and authoritarianism
- E Education: Western higher education
- R Railways and telegraphs

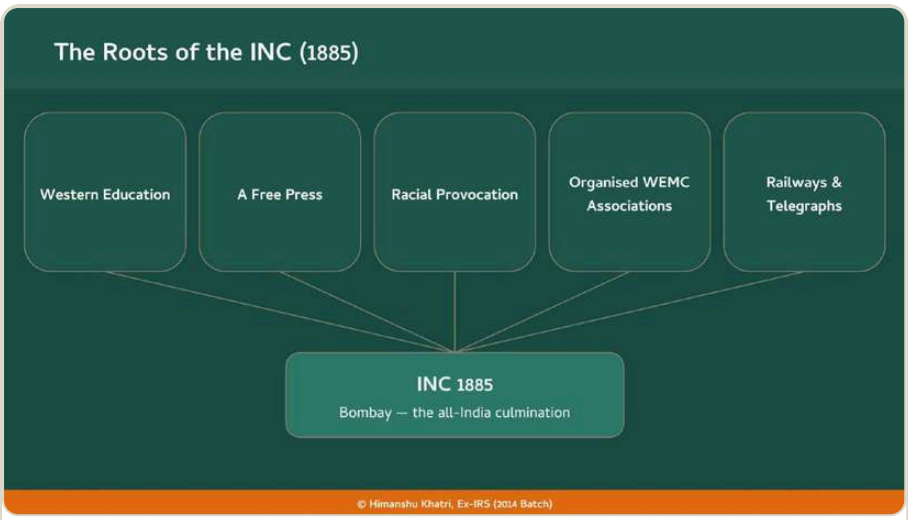
Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

STORY LINK

Because all five roots were now in place, one body could unite them. Ask: which five roots, and what is the next chapter's INC?



The roots of the INC 1885: five roots, one culmination Lecture 27 slide 24

KEY TAKEAWAY

- This was the foundation. Out of this soil, Western education, a free press, racial provocation, organised WEMC associations, railways and telegraphs, the Indian National Congress would emerge in 1885.
- The handout page then ends with the index of the next chapter (the INC 1885 and the English political reformers: Chapter 24).

Chapter 19: Social Reforms, Education Reforms & Print Culture

Wood's Dispatch, Downward Filtration, the Vernacular Press Act (Gagging Act 1878, repeal 1882), Lex Loci Act 1850, cultural nationalism (Arya Samaj, Vivekananda) and the educated 8% (WEMC) all return here.

Chapter 24: INC 1885 & English Political Reformers

The all-India culmination of these roots: the first all-India political party; the Of-By-For board ends at its dotted line.

Chapter 26: Moderates in INC: Ideology, Demands, Negatives

The Moderates' 3P (press, petitions, prayers) and the "un-British" logic begin with the 1851-52 landed-class bodies.

Chapter 25: Indian Councils Act, 1861

The Legislative Councils the WEMC associations asked to enter, and the Indian Councils Act of 1892 that let more Indians in.

Chapter 16: Land Revenue Systems (1765-1885)

The PS 1793 and other land revenue systems created the landed class that formed the conservative associations; the Rent Commission 1880 and the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885.

Chapter 18: EIC Administration: Judiciary, Civil Services, Police

The ICS exam (1853, 1855), Sadr Amins and Munsifs, the mofussil courts behind the Black Acts and the Ilbert Bill.

Chapter 22: Peasant Revolts After 1857

The Deccan Riots 1875 and Pabna 1873 appear as the peasant causes the WEMC bodies took up.

Chapter 1: The Advent of the Mughals

Its opening section on power, State and sovereignty: the teacher's State structure (symbolic sovereign over L, E, J; ministers through civil and military servants) and the party-as-ORG idea on the title board.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Presidents and Firsts: Bonnerjee 1885 (1st President, Bombay), Naoroji 1886 (Calcutta), Tyabji 1887 (1st Muslim, Madras), Yule 1888 (1st non-Indian, Allahabad), Wedderburn 1889 and 1910, Webb 1894, Besant 1917 (1st woman), Das 1922 (from prison, Gaya), Naidu 1925 (2nd woman); Hume never President (1998, 2000, 2015)
- First session: Bombay, December 1885, not Calcutta; the 2nd session was Calcutta 1886 under Naoroji; INC and League at Lucknow 1916 (2004, 2008)
- Curzon 99-05's 'peaceful demise' remark, not Dufferin 84-88 or Lytton 76-80 (1998)
- The 1998 pairs: Beck with Aligarh, Ilbert Bill with Ripon 80-84, Mehta with the INC are right; Tyabji with the Muslim League is wrong (died August 1906, League December 1906)
- Wedderburn and W.S. Caine set up the Indian Parliamentary Committee in 1893 to press Indian reforms in the House of Commons (2011)
- The teacher's cues: 'Mains - No Q' and a circled tick on PRELIMS; Safety Valve 'never in exam, always on YouTube'; green underlines on the firsts

MAINS HOOKS

- No Mains PYQ has come from this chapter (the teacher writes 'Mains - No Q'); for any answer on the founding of the INC, use the Safety Valve against the Lightning Conductor reading and the earlier all-India efforts

The INC was not a British invention: decades of regional campaigns and all-India attempts came first, and Hume was the bridge and the umbrella, not the architect.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Decades of regional campaigns and attempts at all-India bodies prepared the ground; Hume, a Liberal retired civil servant, bridged Bombay, Calcutta and Madras and gave the INC protective cover, so the British 'Safety Valve' story is a friend's legend while the 'Lightning Conductor' reading is the sound one.

1 Small bodies, big complaints. Long before 1885 regional associations protested the Lex Loci Act 1850 and the Income Tax of 1868, campaigned for Indianisation of the Civil Services (1877), against the Afghan War and the Vernacular Press Act (1878), for the Ilbert Bill (1883-84), and demanded the right to join the Volunteer Corps. None of their demands was met.

→ So the next logical step was a body that spoke for all of India.

2 The first attempts. The British India Association (1851) tried branches in Bombay and Madras for a joint petition on the Charter renewal of 1853; journalists at the Imperial Darbar formed the Native Press Association (1877) with Banerjea as President; the Indian Association (1876) launched the Indian National Conference (1883); Madras hosted the Theosophical Society convention (1884); a National Fund followed in 1885.

→ But the regional bodies competed for leadership, and someone had to bring them to one table.

3 The retired civil servant. A.O. Hume, a Liberal retired British civil servant, had worked under Mayo 69-72 (1871), was dismissed for opposing Lytton 76-80's Afghan War spending, and backed Ripon 80-84's reforms. He wanted the INC to be 'His Majesty's Opposition': a strong opposition party so that the government is accountable, with good governance and a responsive government.

→ And so in December 1885 the delegates met.

4 Bombay, December 1885. The INC was founded in Bombay in December 1885 with W.C. Bonnerjee as 1st President. The teacher calls it the 1st all India ORG but not an all Indian one, since its founder was a Briton; and the President is not from the region of the session. Hume served as General Secretary, never as President.

→ The sessions then moved city to city, and the Presidents became the exam's favourite list.

5 Presidents and Firsts. Naoroji 1886 (Calcutta), Tyabji 1887 (1st Muslim, Madras), Yule 1888 (1st non-Indian, Allahabad), Wedderburn 1889 and 1910, Webb 1894, Besant 1917 (1st woman), Das 1922 (from prison, Gaya), Naidu 1925 (2nd woman). Calcutta hosted the 2nd session, not the 1st; Tyabji died in August 1906, before the League of December 1906.

→ But why did this British friend help at all? One story says the British planned it.

6 The Safety Valve story. Wedderburn's 1913 biography says Hume received seven volumes of secret reports in 1878 describing a conspiracy of the masses, met Dufferin 84-88, and together they founded the INC as a safety valve; R.P. Dutt agreed. The teacher draws a pressure cooker: Indians as steam, oppression as flame, the INC as the whistle.

→ But the story does not survive a check.

7 Why the story fails. The seven volumes were never found in any archive; the only source is a friend's book written nearly four decades later. Dufferin 84-88 called the Moderates a 'microscopic minority of Babus working for self-interest', and quietly told the Governor of Bombay to be alert, fearing an Irish Home Rule League. The teacher: never in exam, always on YouTube.

→ So what was Hume really good for?

8 The bridge and the umbrella. Wedderburn wrote to make his friend Hume a patriot. Hume's real usefulness was practical: a mediator who got Bombay, Calcutta and Madras to sit together, and, as Gokhale put it in 1913, a British founder gave protective cover because the British would never allow an all-India body under an Indian leader. If the British used the INC as a safety valve, Indians used Hume as a lightning conductor.

→ Hume had friends, and the handout names them.

9 The English friends. Wedderburn (co-founder, 2nd non-Indian President 1889 and 1910, MP, with W.S. Caine set up the Indian Parliamentary Committee in 1893 for reforms in the Commons); Jardine (Judge, MP 1906-1918); Yule (1st non-Indian President, Andrew Yule and Company, an Agency House, 400 tigers); Webb (Irish MP, Madras 1894, invited by Naoroji, against racism and the opium trade).

→ One last check of how the exam turned the pieces into questions.

10 What UPSC asked. Curzon 99-05 made the 'peaceful demise' remark (1998); the 1998 pairs trap is Tyabji and the Muslim League; 2000 asked Naidu, Das, Hume, Webb; 2004 and 2008 asked the first session (Bombay); 2011 the Wedderburn and Caine committee; 2015 the first woman and first Muslim Presidents. The teacher writes Mains - No Q, PRELIMS ticked.

In simple words

- The INC was founded in Bombay in December 1885 with W.C. Bonnerjee as 1st President
- A.O. Hume, a retired British civil servant and Liberal, was its Founder and General Secretary, never President
- The Safety Valve Theory (from Wedderburn's 1913 biography of Hume) says the INC was a British device to prevent a revolt, but the seven volumes were never found, and Dufferin 84-88 mocked the Moderates and watched the INC.
- Before 1885 regional bodies already ran seven campaigns (Lex Loci 1850 to the 1885 appeal to British voters) and tried all-India bodies (BIA 1851, Native Press Association 1877, Conference 1883, National Fund 1885).
- So Hume's real use was mediator between Bombay, Calcutta and Madras and a protective cover (Gokhale 1913): Indians used Hume as a lightning conductor.
- The English friends are Hume, Wedderburn (2nd non-Indian President, Indian Parliamentary Committee 1893), Jardine, Yule (1st non-Indian President, Agency House) and Webb (Irish, Madras 1894).
- The exam asks Presidents and Firsts, the first session, Curzon 99-05's remark and the 1893 committee
- The teacher says the Safety Valve is never in exam

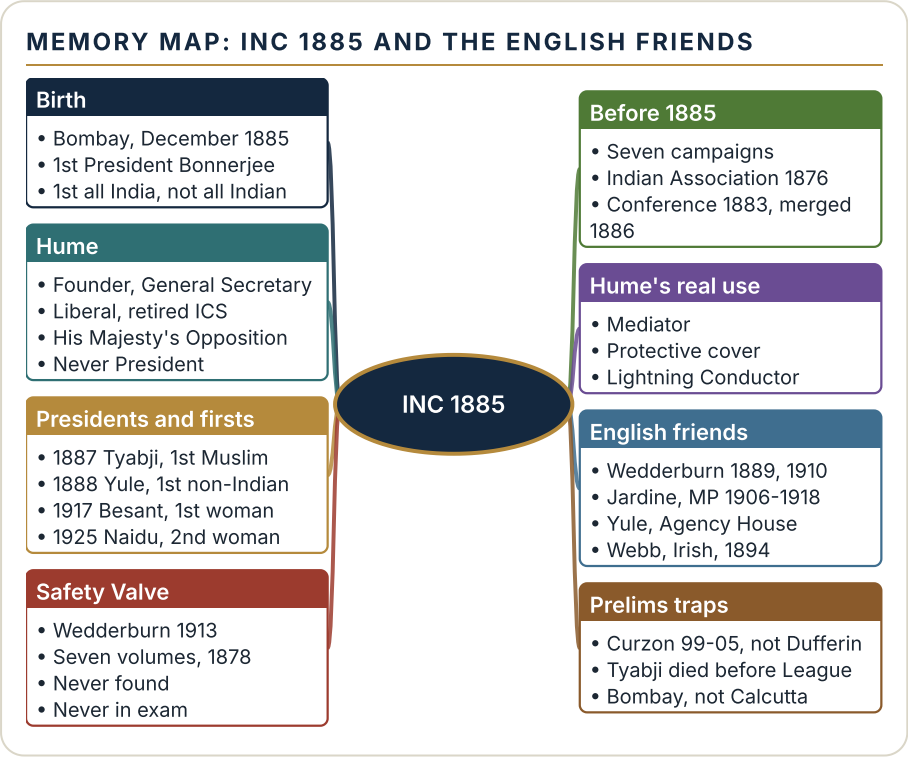
Key term	In plain words
INC	Indian National Congress: founded Bombay, December 1885; the 1st all India ORG, but not an all Indian one (the teacher)
Safety Valve Theory	The claim that Hume founded the INC so that educated Indians could vent grievances and prevent a mass revolt
Lightning Conductor	The better reading: Indians used Hume to channel organisation past the British reflex to shut it down (Gokhale 1913)
WEMC	Western Educated Middle Class: the educated Indians who formed the early INC
Indian Association (1876)	Surendranath Banerjea's permanent body; launched the Indian National Conference 1883; the teacher: a regional political party
Indian National Conference	1883 and 1885 meetings at Calcutta; the teacher calls it an attempt at an all-India organisation; merged into the INC in 1886
Native Press Association	1877 all-India body of journalists at the Imperial Darbar, Banerjea President; the teacher: not a political party
His Majesty's Opposition	Hume's wish for the INC: a legitimate channel of dissent, like an opposition party in a democracy
Liberal	The British tradition of Hume, Wedderburn and Jardine: belief in representative governance
Indian Parliamentary	1893, set up by Wedderburn and W.S. Caine: British MPs pressing Indian reforms in the House of Commons

Key term	In plain words
Committee
Agency House	British trading and financial firm (NBFC plus private equity plus holding company); Andrew Yule and Company; managing agency system abolished 1970
Babus	Dufferin 84-88's insult: a 'microscopic minority of Babus working for self-interest'

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS A British friend was the bridge and the umbrella; the INC itself grew from decades of Indian campaigns and all-India attempts.

0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Story so far: the whole chapter is one question, who really founded the INC and why. Ask: where do the Presidents, the debate and the English friends each answer it?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The chapter on one line. The INC was founded in Bombay in December 1885
- its founder was A.O. Hume, a retired civil servant and Liberal
- the Safety Valve Theory says the British used it to let off steam, but the evidence is thin
- the better reading is that earlier all-India efforts already existed and Indians used Hume as a Lightning Conductor.
- The English friends (Hume, Wedderburn, Jardine, Yule, Webb) are the people-list UPSC asks.

Handout flow chart: Hume, Dufferin 84-88, Bombay 1885, Bonnerjee, objectives, Safety Valve and Lightning Conductor handout figure

HANDOUT NOTE

Handout-figure extras (not in the handout text): Hume as an ex-ICS Scottish ornithologist and General Secretary till 1892; the venue Gokuldas Tejpal Sanskrit College, Bombay on 28 December 1885 with 72 delegates; Bonnerjee as a Bengali lawyer; and the INC's four objectives (close ties among workers, dissolve race, creed and province barriers, record conclusions, a programme for the next year).

HANDOUT NOTE

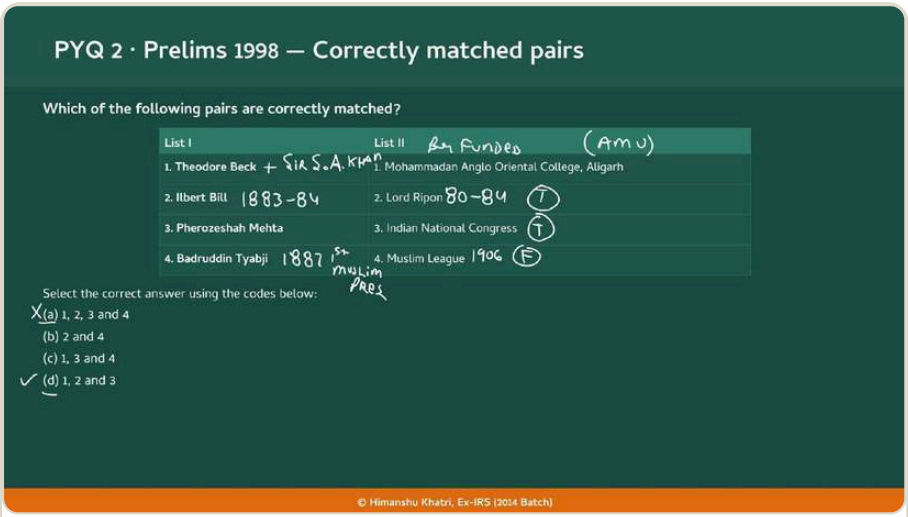
The handout page for this chapter ends with the index of the next chapter (the Indian Councils Act 1861); that belongs to Chapter 25.

1 · The foundation of the INC: what the handout flags (Sec. 1)

STORY LINK

Because UPSC tests the founding facts first, the handout opens with two alerts. Ask: what is the Tyabji trap and who was the first woman President?

- Section 1 of the handout is two alerts, both PYQs.
- They are worked fully here because they are the most-asked facts of the chapter.



PYQ Prelims 1998: Beck, Ilbert Bill, Mehta, Tyabji pairs Lecture 27 slide 51

Pair	Verdict	Why
1. Theodore Beck - MAO College, Aligarh	Correct	Beck was the 1st Principal of the MAO College, Aligarh. Board: "+ Sir S.A. Khan", "Br funded (AMU)"
2. Ilbert Bill - Lord Ripon	Correct	The Ilbert Bill (1883-84) came in Ripon 80-84's viceroyalty
3. Pherozeshah Mehta - INC	Correct	Mehta was an INC founder-member
4. Badruddin Tyabji - Muslim League	Wrong	Tyabji was the 1st Muslim President of the INC (Madras 1887) and died in August 1906, before the Muslim League was founded (December 1906, Dacca)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1998: answer (d) 1, 2 and 3.
- The commonly picked wrong options include the false pair 4:
  - (a) 1, 2, 3 and 4
  - (b) 2 and 4 (drops the correct pairs 1 and 3)
  - (c) 1, 3 and 4
- Trap: Tyabji is the INC's man, not the League's.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2015:
  - Answer (b) Only 2. Statement 1 is false: Annie Besant was the 1st woman President (Calcutta 1917)
  - Sarojini Naidu was the 2nd (Kanpur 1925).
- Statement 2 is true: Tyabji, Madras 1887.
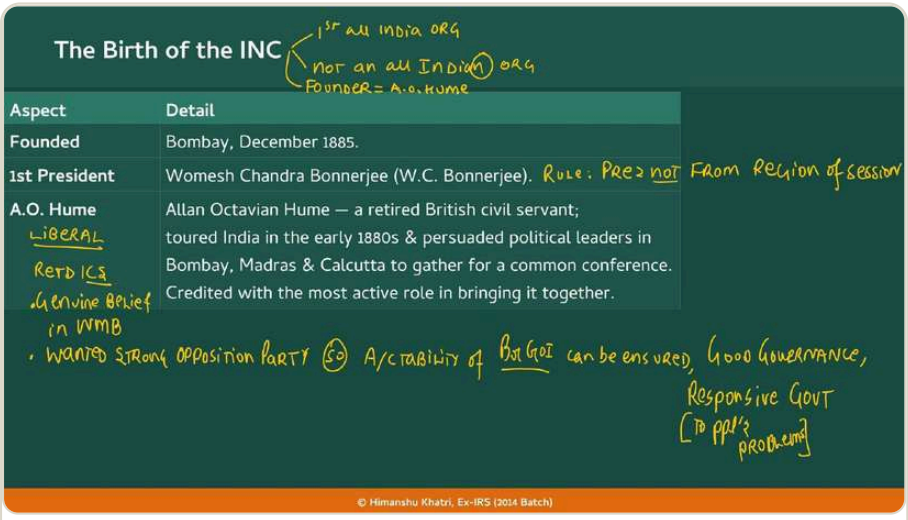
- Wrong options:
  - (a) Only 1
  - (c) Both
  - (d) Neither

2 · The birth of the INC

STORY LINK

Because the founding raises the question of who did it, Hume enters. Ask: what makes the INC the 1st all India ORG but not an all Indian one?

2.1 Founding facts and the founder



The Birth of the INC: founding facts and Hume Lecture 27 slide 40

Aspect	Detail
Founded	Bombay, December 1885
1st President	Womesh Chandra Bonnerjee (W.C. Bonnerjee)
A.O. Hume	Allan Octavian Hume, a retired British civil servant who toured India in the early 1880s and persuaded political leaders in Bombay, Madras and Calcutta to gather for a common conference. Credited with the most active role in bringing it together

- The man most active in bringing the leaders of the three Presidencies together was A.O. Hume.
- The next question is the famous one: what motivated Hume?
- That is the Safety Valve Theory (Section 3).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The INC = the 1st all-India organisation, but not an "all-Indian" one: "1st all India ORG", "not an all Indian ORG".
- It covered all of India but was not made of Indians alone: "Founder = A.O. Hume".
- The earlier bodies in Section 4 were only attempts at an all-India organisation.
- Rule:
  - The President is not from the region of the session: Bonnerjee, a Bengali lawyer, presided at Bombay
  - Yule 1888, whose Agency House was in Calcutta, presided at Allahabad
- Hume = LIBERAL, Retd ICS, genuine belief in WMB.
- Liberal = belief in representative governance
- Retd ICS (handout: retired British civil servant; figure: ex-ICS)
- He wanted a strong opposition party so that the accountability of the British Government of India is ensured, giving good governance and a responsive government (responsive to the people's problems).
- "WMB" is not expanded on the slide
- The teacher uses it for the White Man's Burden (see Chapter 15)

2.2 Presidents and Firsts

- The wrong options are (a) Ahmedabad, (c) Calcutta, (d) Delhi.
- Calcutta is the classic trap: it hosted the 2nd session (1886, Naoroji).

2.4 Curzon's "peaceful demise" remark (Prelims 1998)

MNEMONIC · THREE VICEROYS AND THE INC, IN ORDER

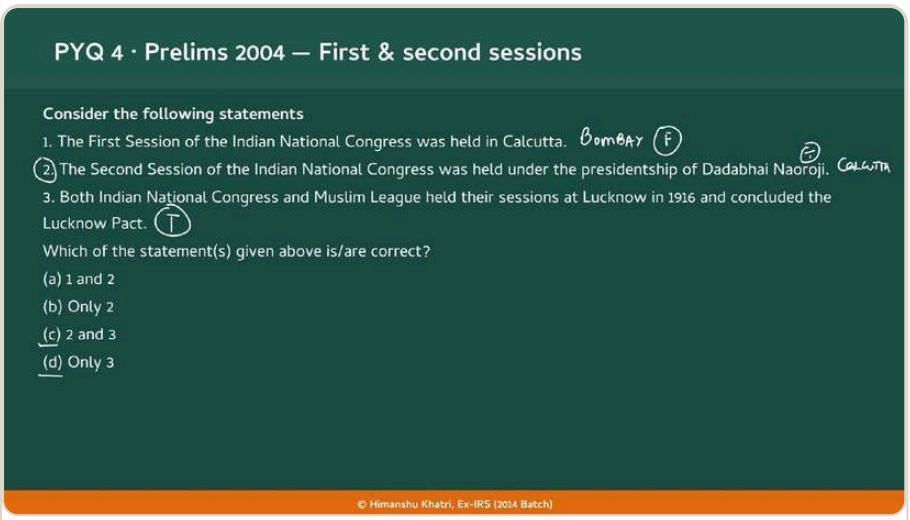
Left Doubted Cursed

L Lytton 76-80 left in 1880, five years before the INC was born

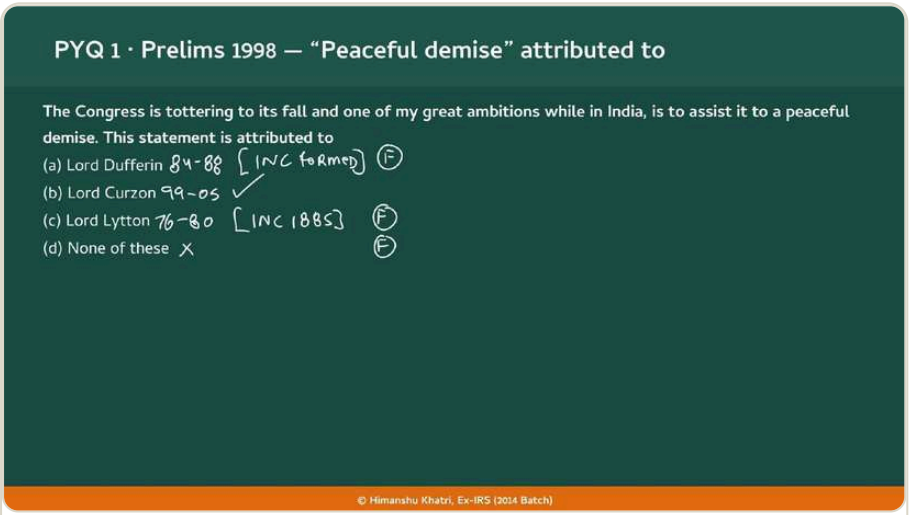
D Dufferin 84-88 doubted: feared an Irish Home Rule League and watched the INC

C Curzon 99-05 cursed: the 'peaceful demise' remark (Prelims 1998)

Order kept: three Viceroys by term. The answer to Prelims 1998 is the last one.



PYQ Prelims 2004: first and second sessions, Lucknow Pact Lecture 27 slide 56



PYQ Prelims 1998: who predicted the Congress's peaceful demise Lecture 27 slide 49

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Test each option by dates. Dufferin 84-88 "[INC formed]": viceroy of the founding era, not the author of the "demise" prophecy.
- Lytton 76-80 "[INC 1885]": his term ended before the INC was born in 1885.
- Curzon 99-05: the typed answer calls him the hostile Viceroy of 1899-1905, well after the INC was born.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1998: answer (b) Lord Curzon 99-05.
- The statement is Curzon 99-05's, from his viceroyalty
- He saw the Congress as "tottering to its fall" and hoped to assist its "peaceful demise," a prediction the INC's later history proved wrong
- (a) Dufferin 84-88 belongs to the founding story (Section 3)
- (c) Lytton 76-80 left India in 1880, five years before the INC was born
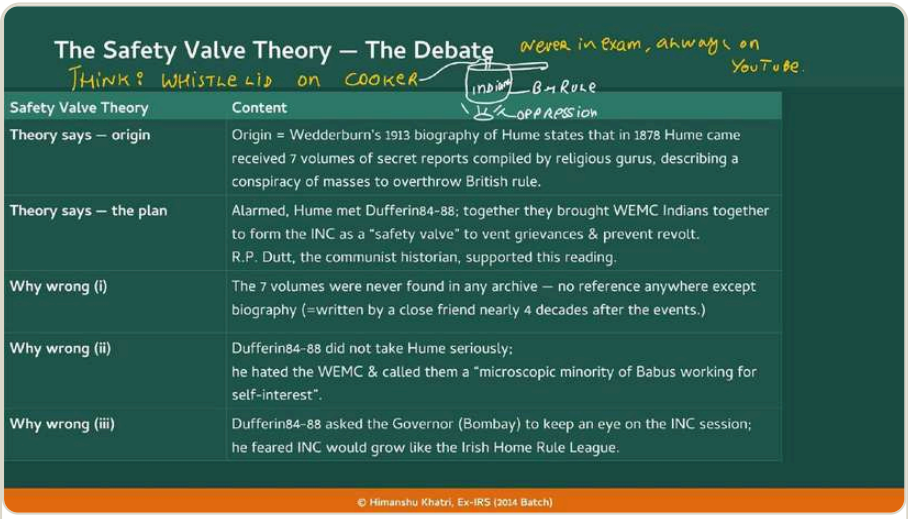
- (d) is wrong because the attribution is settled
- Wrong options commonly picked: (a) Dufferin 84-88, (c) Lytton 76-80, (d) None of these.

3 · The INC as a British "Safety Valve": the debate

STORY LINK

Because Hume was British, a story says the British planned it. Ask: what are the three flaws (Babus, Archive, Home Rule)?



The Safety Valve Theory: the debate Lecture 27 slide 42

3.1 What does the Safety Valve Theory say?

- The theory says Hume founded the INC not out of genuine sympathy for Indians but as a deliberate British strategy: a platform where the educated Indian elite could air grievances peacefully, so preventing a violent mass uprising against British rule.
- Origin: a biography of Hume written by William Wedderburn in 1913.
- Per Wedderburn, in 1878 Hume came across seven volumes of secret reports compiled by religious gurus.
- They allegedly described a conspiracy by the lower classes to overthrow British rule.

- Alarmed, Hume met Viceroy Dufferin 84-88 (Lord Dufferin, Viceroy 1884-1888).
- Together they brought educated Indians together to form the INC as a "safety valve" to vent grievances and prevent revolt.
- R.P. Dutt, the noted (communist) historian, also supported this reading.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Think:
  - Whistle, lid, cooker." Indians = the steam inside a pressure cooker
  - the burner is British oppression (labels "By Rule" and "OPPRESSION")
  - The whistle (safety valve) lets the steam out so the lid does not blow
- That is the theory's logic: the INC = the whistle on the British cooker.
- Exam verdict: "never in exam, always on YouTube."

HANDOUT ALERT

- A date puzzle in the handout. The handout says Hume found the seven volumes in 1878 and then met Dufferin 84-88, who became Viceroy only in 1884.
- The meeting therefore came years after the reports
- The PYQ answer places the meeting in 1885.
- Use: reports 1878, meeting with Dufferin 84-88 (1884-88 term), INC December 1885.

3.2 Why is the Safety Valve Theory wrong?

- The theory does not hold up, for three reasons:
- (i) The seven volumes were never found in any archive.
- There is no reference anywhere except in Wedderburn's biography, written by a close personal friend of Hume, nearly four decades after the events.
- (ii) Dufferin 84-88 did not take Hume seriously.
- Far from being a co-conspirator, he hated the Moderates and did not see them as leaders of the Indian masses.
- He called them a "microscopic minority of Babus working for self-interest," hardly the language of a man who thought they could prevent a mass revolt.
- (iii) Dufferin 84-88 did not welcome the INC.
- He quietly asked the Governor of Bombay to be alert about it.
- He feared it would grow into something like the Irish Home Rule League.
- (The Irish Home Rule League, led by figures like Charles Parnell in the 1870s-80s, demanded Irish self-governance within the British Empire.
- It became a powerful political force that consistently embarrassed and pressured the British government.
- Dufferin 84-88's comparison was a warning, not a compliment.)
- So the man the theory names as co-designer actually viewed the INC with suspicion.
- The entire theory rests on a single unverifiable source, written by a friend, about events he did not witness.

MNEMONIC · THREE FLAWS OF THE SAFETY VALVE THEORY

B A H

A scornful 'Bah!' is how you dismiss a theory with no evidence.

B Babus: Dufferin 84-88's 'microscopic minority of Babus working for self-interest'

A Archive: the seven volumes were never found in any archive

H Home Rule: Dufferin 84-88 feared an Irish Home Rule League and asked the Bombay Governor to watch the INC

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The teacher's own marker for the exam is "never in exam"
- The question bank still holds practice questions on the theory (they are handout-built, not real PYQs)
- Learn the three flaws in one pass and move on.

4 · Would the INC have formed even without Hume? The debate

STORY LINK

Because the safety valve fails, the real history is the earlier effort. Ask: which bodies already existed before 1885, and what was Hume's real use?

- Yes, and this is the more important point.
- Political activity among Indians was rising steadily before 1885, across all three Presidencies and beyond.
- The pre-1885 regional associations had pushed issue after issue and none of their demands had been met.
- The logical next step was an all-India organisation.

4.1 What were the pre-1885 associations doing?

Pre-1885 campaigns and protests Lecture 27 slide 43

Campaign or protest	Against, and year
Lex Loci Act	Protests against the Lex Loci Act of 1850
Income Tax 1868	Nationwide protests against the Income Tax of 1868
Civil Services 1877-80	A campaign (1877) for Indianisation of the Civil Services
Afghan War and VPA 1878	Campaigns against the Afghan War (1878-80) and the Vernacular Press Act (VPA 1878)
Ilbert Bill controversy	Active support for the Ilbert Bill (1883-84)
Volunteer Corps	A demand for the right to join units that were restricted to Europeans only
Appeal to British voters	In 1885, an appeal to British voters to vote for pro-Indian candidates (the teacher: led by Dadabhai Naoroji)

MNEMONIC · SEVEN PRE-1885 CAMPAIGNS, IN ORDER

Liberty Is Coming As Indians Voice Appeals

- L Lex Loci Act 1850: protests
- I Income Tax 1868: nationwide protests
- C Civil Services 1877: Indianisation campaign
- A Afghan War (1878-80) and Vernacular Press Act 1878
- I Ilbert Bill 1883-84: active support
- V Volunteer Corps: the right to join, restricted to Europeans
- A Appeal to British voters 1885 (led by Naoroji, the teacher)

Order kept: the handout's order, which is also the year order (Volunteer Corps has no year).

- The lead actor in many of these agitations was the Indian Association (1876) of Surendranath Banerjea, editor of Bengalee and one of the most prominent political voices of the era.
- The Indian Association was a permanent organisational body.
- Banerjea used it to launch the Indian National Conference (1883), a periodic gathering bringing delegates from across British India.
- The Conference met in 1883 and 1885, then merged into the INC in 1886.
- The Indian Association itself continued as a separate body.
- But Banerjea was not alone: associations in other parts of India were equally active.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Indian Association = "Regional Political Party":
  - A permanent, regional (Bengal) political organisation, unlike the Conference, labelled "ATTEMPT all India ORG." So: Indian Association 1876 = regional party
  - Indian National Conference 1883 = attempt at an all-India body
  - INC 1885 = the 1st all-India ORG that lasted.
- The 1885 appeal to British voters was "LED BY Dadabhai Naoroji."

4.2 Were efforts for an all-India body already underway?

All-India efforts already underway before 1885 Lecture 27 slide 44

Effort	Year and what it did
British India Association	1851: tried to open branches in Bombay and Madras to submit a joint petition to London during the Charter renewal of 1853
Native Press Association	1877: journalists invited to the Imperial Darbar formed it, an all-India body; they elected Surendranath Banerjea President and resolved to meet annually

Effort	Year and what it did
National Conference	1883: the Indian Association held it at Calcutta; another was scheduled for 1885. It ran on nearly identical tracks to the INC, so the 1886 merger was natural, not forced
Theosophical Society	1884: delegates from across India gathered at its annual convention in Madras
National Fund	1885: established for political campaigns, both inside India and in London
Verdict	The machinery was already being built. The 1885 conference was the natural culmination of decades of organised political work, not a sudden British invention

MNEMONIC · FIVE ALL-INDIA EFFORTS BEFORE 1885, IN ORDER

Brave Newsmen Nudged The Nation

- B British India Association 1851: joint petition, Charter renewal 1853
- N Native Press Association 1877: Banerjea President
- N National Conference 1883: Calcutta, by the Indian Association
- T Theosophical Society convention 1884: Madras
- N National Fund 1885: campaigns in India and London

Order kept: 1851, 1877, 1883, 1884, 1885.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Native Press Association is not a political party" ("not-equal POL PARTY"): an all-India body of journalists.
- Surendranath Banerjea was its President and the man behind the Indian Association.
- National Fund: "we went to Britain and appealed to British voters to vote for pro-[Democracy in India] candidates" (it paid for political campaigns in India and in London, which fits the 1885 appeal).

4.3 Then why did Wedderburn write what he wrote?

- Wedderburn was Hume's close friend. He wanted to portray Hume, a Briton working for Indian political rights, as a patriot: a man who sacrificed his career to save the British Empire from its own folly.
- The Safety Valve narrative made Hume look prescient and heroic. But it was a story written for a friend's legacy, not as history.

4.4 So what was Hume's real usefulness?

- His actual contribution was more practical than mythological.
- Mediator: he helped bridge differences among the regional organisations that were competing for leadership of a future national body.
- Getting Bombay, Calcutta and Madras to sit together was not simple
- Hume helped make it happen.
- Protective cover: Gokhale put it plainly in 1913: the British would never have allowed an all-India organisation to be formed under the leadership of an Indian.
- A British founder gave the INC protective cover in its early years.
- The two readings: if the British thought they were using the INC as a safety valve, Indians were using Hume as a lightning conductor, to channel the energy of political organisation past the British reflex to shut it down.

SAFETY VALVE AGAINST LIGHTNING CONDUCTOR: WHO IS PROTECTED?

	Safety Valve (British view)	Lightning Conductor (Indian use)
Who uses whom	The British use the INC	Indians use Hume
Purpose	Vent grievances and prevent revolt	Channel the energy of political organisation past the British reflex to shut it down

5 · Key English figures behind the INC

STORY LINK

Because Hume was not alone, the handout names his English friends. Ask: who was the first non-Indian President, and who set up the 1893 committee?

5.1 A.O. Hume: the founder

- Hume's motivations were reformist, even if the Safety Valve story distorts them.
- As Secretary of the Department of Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce in 1871, he worked under Viceroy Mayo 69-72 (Lord Mayo, 1869-1872) to improve agricultural yields.
- He opposed Viceroy Lytton 76-80's heavy expenditure on the Afghan War (1878-80) and was dismissed from his post for it.
- He supported Ripon 80-84's reforms, especially the Local Self-Government Resolution of 1882.

MNEMONIC · HUME'S CAREER WITH THREE VICEROYS, IN ORDER

Hired Fired Admired

H Mayo 69-72 hired him: Secretary, Revenue, Agriculture and Commerce, 1871

F Lytton 76-80 fired him: he opposed the Afghan War (1878-80) spending

A Ripon 80-84 admired: Hume backed his reforms, the Local Self-Government Resolution 1882

Order kept: Mayo 69-72, Lytton 76-80, Ripon 80-84.

- He was a Liberal in the British political tradition, someone who believed in representative governance.
- He wanted the INC to function like "His Majesty's Opposition": a formal, legitimate channel of political dissent, the way an opposition party functions in a democracy.
- In 1885 he also published a direct appeal to British voters to elect pro-Indian candidates to Parliament.
- He served as the General Secretary of the INC (the handout figure: till 1892): not its President, but arguably its most active organiser in the early years.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Hume = LIBERAL, Retd ICS. Liberal explains why he backed Ripon 80-84 and wanted an opposition party
- Retd ICS explains why a retired civil servant could get the leaders of the three Presidencies together.
- The 1885 appeal to British voters was led by Dadabhai Naoroji and linked to the National Fund (Section 4.2).

5.2 William Wedderburn: the co-founder who became a biographer

- William Wedderburn, a retired civil servant who had been ex-Secretary to the Bombay Government, was a co-founder of the INC in 1885.

- He became the 2nd non-Indian President of the INC, serving in 1889 and again in 1910.
- Like Hume, he supported Ripon 80-84's reforms.
- He favoured Cooperative Banks to provide cheap loans to farmers.
- His pro-Indian positions cost him: he was denied a judgeship at the Bombay High Court.
- (High Courts were established under the Indian High Courts Act of 1861 and began functioning from 1862.)
- Later, as a Member of Parliament in Britain, he supported INC demands through the 1890s, in close partnership with Gopal Krishna Gokhale.
- With W.S. Caine he set up the Indian Parliamentary Committee in 1893 (Prelims 2011).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2011: answer (a) To agitate for Indian political reforms in the House of Commons.
- The Indian Parliamentary Committee (Wedderburn and Caine, 1893) was a pressure group of sympathetic British MPs that raised and pressed Indian political reforms in the Commons.
- (b) the judiciary was never its brief (Wedderburn's own record cost him a Bombay High Court judgeship)
- (c) in 1893 the language was reform within British rule, not independence
- (d) it was a group of sympathetic MPs, not a vehicle for sending Indians into Parliament
- Wrong options commonly picked: (b), (c), (d).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Exam keywords: William Wedderburn, WS Caine, Indian Parliamentary Committee in 1893, and in the answer Indian political reforms, House of Commons.
- Wedderburn = "Retd ICS", "Hume's follower" (retired, same Liberal line, backed Ripon 80-84).

5.3 Justice John Jardine: the Liberal lawyer

- John Jardine was also a co-founder of the INC in 1885.
- He had served as Chief Secretary of Bombay and as a Judge of the Bombay High Court.
- He later became an MP (1906-1918) and was a Liberal.

5.4 George Yule: the merchant President

- George Yule was the 1st non-Indian President of the INC, presiding over the Allahabad Session in 1888.

MNEMONIC · THE THREE NON-INDIAN PRESIDENTS, IN ORDER

Yes We Won

- Y Yule 1888: 1st non-Indian President (Allahabad)
- W Wedderburn 1889 and 1910: 2nd
- W Webb 1894: 3rd (Madras)

Order kept: 1888, 1889, 1894. The first Britisher was Yule, not Hume (Prelims 2000).

- He was a merchant and businessman: founder of the Agency House "Andrew Yule and Company" in Calcutta.
- He also served as President of the Indian Chamber of Commerce.
- The fact that a man of his economic standing was willing to preside over the INC in 1888 was itself politically significant.
- He also had the distinction of having killed 400 tigers, which says something about the social world of such colonial figures.

Aspect	Detail
What it was	A British trading and financial firm in colonial India: a cross between a private bank, an investment firm and a business management company
What it did	Raised capital, extended credit and financed trade (bank-like, though not banks in the formal sense); and acted as agents running enterprises: tea plantations, jute mills, coal mines, shipping companies
Today's words	NBFC + private equity firm + holding company
Managing agency system	One firm controlling and managing many businesses for a fee or a share of profits; a dominant feature of the colonial economy
Examples	Andrew Yule and Company, Jardine Henderson, Bird and Company
End	Abolished in independent India in 1970: it concentrated enormous economic power in a few, mostly British, hands and was seen as a vehicle of economic drain and monopoly

5.5 Alfred Webb: the Irish friend

- Alfred Webb was an Irish politician who served as an MP in the 1890s and was the 3rd non-Indian President of the INC, presiding over the Madras Session of 1894.
- He was invited personally by Dadabhai Naoroji, with whom he shared a close friendship.
- He was strongly opposed to racism (he supported Britain's first anti-racist journal) and opposed the opium trade into China.
- His Irish background (Ireland had been under British control for centuries and was still fighting for Home Rule while Webb presided in 1894) likely shaped his sympathy for people under imperial rule.

    - Regional associations campaign on Lex Loci 1850, Income Tax 1868, Civil Services, Afghan War and VPA 1878, Ilbert Bill 1883-84, Volunteer Corps
    - none of their demands is met
- Attempts at an all-India body: BIA 1851, Native Press Association 1877, Indian National Conference 1883, Theosophical convention 1884, National Fund 1885
- Regional rivalry: Bombay, Calcutta and Madras compete for leadership of a future national body
- Hume the mediator: a Liberal retired civil servant helps the three Presidencies sit together
- December 1885, Bombay:
    - The INC is founded
    - Bonnerjee is President
- 1886:
    - The Indian National Conference merges into the INC

Chapter 23: Pre-INC Organisations and the Early Indian National Movement

The Indian Association 1876, the British India Association 1851 and the other regional bodies in Section 4 are the precursors that Chapter 23 studies in full.

Chapter 26: Moderates in INC: Ideology, Demands, Negatives

The WEMC that Dufferin 84-88 mocked as a "microscopic minority of Babus" are the early Moderates; Wedderburn and Hume worked with them.

Chapter 19: Social Reforms, Education Reforms & Print Culture

The Vernacular Press Act 1878 and the Lex Loci Act 1850 that regional bodies protested, and the WEMC itself, come from the reform and education story.

Chapter 31: Rise of Organised Muslim Politics and Morley-Minto Reforms

The Muslim League (December 1906, Dacca) is the foil of the Prelims 1998 Tyabji trap; Tyabji died in August 1906.

Chapter 33: Home Rule League Movement (1916-18) & Lucknow Pact (1916)

Lucknow 1916 (INC and Muslim League sessions, the Lucknow Pact) is statement 3 of Prelims 2004; Annie Besant, 1st woman President in 1917, is the Home Rule leader of that chapter.

Chapter 25: Indian Councils Act, 1861

The handout page for this chapter ends with the index of Chapter 25; the Indian High Courts Act 1861 (High Courts from 1862) is also mentioned for Wedderburn.

Chapter 15: British Imperial Ideology

The teacher's shorthand WMB (on Hume's slide) comes from the imperial ideology story, and Liberals are one of the British schools there.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Portfolio System: introduced by Canning56-62 in 1859, legally recognised by ICA 1861 (Prelims 2002: not GOI 1858, ICA 1892 or ICA 1909)
- VEC after 1861 = GG + 5 ordinary members (Home, Revenue, Finance, Law, Military) + C-I-C (extraordinary); the 5th member Finance 1861 (James Wilson, income tax 1860); the 6th member Public Works 1874
- ILC = VEC + 6 to 12 additional members, half non-officials, all nominated; official majority guaranteed; first 3 Indians 1862 (Raja of Banaras, Maharaja of Patiala, Dinkar Rao of Gwalior)
- ILC powers: no questions, no resolutions, no budget discussion or vote; discussion and bills only with prior approval; Viceroy's absolute veto and 6-month ordinance
- Provinces: Bombay and Madras legislative powers restored (taken 1833); PLCs Bengal 1862, NWP 1886, Punjab 1897 (teacher: not imp); Viceroy's five powers and the Acts that ended them (1892, 1919, 1935)

MAINS HOOKS

- ICA 1861 as the Constitution of British India: a structure with no democracy (despotism controlled from home)
- One council, two hats: the rigged official majority and the co-option of loyal elites (reward those loyal in 1857)
- The long arc: centralisation 1773, peak 1833, decentralisation 1861, Provincial Autonomy 1935; the Act as giving with one hand and taking with the other
- No Mains PYQ is on the slides or in the bank; these are the teacher's own mains hooks

ICA 1861 built a State structure but shared no power: a despotism controlled from home, wearing a legislative costume.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The British restructured the State in 1861 to look consultative while staying a despotism controlled from home: one council wore two hats, a nominated and rigged legislative ring was added, some provincial law-making was handed back, and the Viceroy kept every real power.

1. The despot at home. After 1857 and the Crown takeover of 1858, the Secretary of State for India sits at the top of the chain in London. Charles Wood calls the Government of India a 'despotism controlled from home', and this stays the operating principle until 1947. The teacher: the Constitution of British India runs from the Regulating Act 1773 to the GOI Act 1935, and it is not a democracy.

   → So how was the machinery rebuilt in 1861?

2. Two laws, one year. In 1861 the State is overhauled: the ICA 1861 restructures the Legislature and the Executive (L and E), and the Indian High Courts Act 1861 reorganises the Judiciary (J). Out of the Governor-General's Council come the VEC for executive work and the ILC for law-making.

   → But these are not really two bodies.

3. One room, two hats. The VEC expands by adding 6 to 12 additional members for law-making: the VEC opens the doors of its room and the additional members join, and the room becomes the ILC. Every VEC member sits in the ILC, so the executive keeps an official majority. The same pattern appears in the provinces as PLCs and GECs.

   → Who sat in the executive room?

4. The cabinet takes shape. Canning56-62 starts the Portfolio System in 1859 (departments allotted to individual members, decisions final subject to the Viceroy's veto) and the ICA 1861 makes it law. The 1857 debt brings a 5th ordinary member for Finance (James Wilson, income tax 1860, he dies 1860; the tax returns in 1868), so the VEC is GG + 5 + C-I-C. The C-I-C stays extraordinary so that one man does not hold both the office and the battlefield; a 6th member for Public Works comes in 1874.

   → Now, the legislative ring.

5. A grain of representation. Of the 6 to 12 additional members the Viceroy nominates, half must be non-officials: for the first time non-officers can be lawmakers, and in 1862 three Indians join (the Raja of Banaras, the Maharaja of Patiala and Dinkar Rao of Gwalior). The goal is to reward those loyal in 1857 and co-opt the elites. Only 45 Indians are nominated until 1892.

   → But the arithmetic is rigged.

6. Seven beats six. The VEC alone (GG + 5 + C-I-C = 7) matches or outnumbers the most non-officials possible (6). In the teacher's case of 6 additional members, officials are 10 (7 + 3) against 3 non-officials. The majority of officers is guaranteed, and 'official' means bureaucrat, PRO-British.

   → So what could the ILC actually do?

7. A legislature at the bottom of the ladder. Of the ladder of legislative powers (discussion, questions, resolutions, bills, budget, create the Executive, dismiss it, amend the Constitution) the ILC has almost none: discussion and introducing bills only with the Viceroy's prior approval, no questions, no resolutions, no budget vote. The Viceroy holds an absolute veto and a 6-month ordinance. It is 'not a modern Parliament', all nominated, no elections.

   → And the provinces?

8. The first small step back. The Charter Act 1833 had taken the law-making of Bombay and Madras to the Centre. The ICA 1861 restores it and proposes PLCs for Bengal, Punjab and the NWP (Bengal 1862, NWP 1886, Punjab 1897, the delays due to raw 1857 memories and a frontier province). On the teacher's board the Centre's share falls only from 100% (1833) to 90% (1861).

→ Yet the Viceroy keeps the keys.

9 BRASS: the Viceroy keeps the keys. The Viceroy needs to sanction the Governor's nominations (ended by ICA 1892), frames the rules for all councils (ended only by GOI 1935), must approve certain bills before introduction (relaxed 1919 and 1935), keeps a single budget for all of British India (ended by GOI 1919) and can create provinces and appoint Lt Governors (to the Crown under GOI 1935). Giving with one hand and taking with the other.

→ So where does the story go next?

10 The long road to democracy. The arc runs: centralisation began 1773, peaked 1833, decentralisation began 1861, Provincial Autonomy in 1935. The ladder of elections runs 1861 non-officers, 1909 first proper indirect election, 1919 first direct elections and elected majority. The expanded-council model lasts until GOI 1919 (CoS and CLA). The teacher's test of responsible government is that every minister is an MP or MLA first; the ICA 1861 fails it, and the Moderates ask for an ideal Constitution.

In simple words

- Charles Wood called the Government of India a "despotism controlled from home"
- The Secretary of State in London was the top boss, and the ICA 1861 is the Constitution of British India that was not a democracy

- The Act made one council wear two hats: the Viceroy's Executive Council (VEC) for executive work and the Imperial Legislative Council (ILC) = VEC + 6 to 12 additional members for law-making, with the provinces getting PLCs and GECs.
- It gave legal form to the Portfolio System (Canning56-62, 1859), added a Finance Member (1861) and later Public Works (1874), so the VEC = GG + 5 + C-I-C.
- Half the additional members were non-officials (the first 3 Indians, 1862), but the official majority was rigged, and the ILC could not ask questions, pass resolutions or vote the budget
- The Viceroy held the veto and a 6-month ordinance
- Bombay and Madras got their law-making back and new PLCs followed (Bengal 1862, NWP 1886, Punjab 1897), but the Viceroy kept Budget, Rules, Approval, Sanction and States: decentralisation began, federalism did not.

Key term	In plain words
VEC	Viceroy's Executive Council: GG + 5 ordinary members + C-I-C; the cabinet at the Centre
ILC	Imperial Legislative Council: the VEC plus 6 to 12 additional members, meeting to make laws
PLC / GEC	Provincial Legislative Council / Governor's Executive Council: the same pair in a province
Portfolio System	Departments (ministries) allotted to individual VEC members; decisions final subject to the Viceroy's veto
Additional members	Nominated outsiders who joined the VEC for law-making only; half had to be non-officials
Non-official	Someone who is not a bureaucrat or soldier; not the same as an Indian
C-I-C (extraordinary member)	Commander-in-Chief, appointed by the Secretary of State; sits in the VEC but is not an ordinary member
Ordinance	Law made by the Executive, bypassing the Legislature; valid for 6 months under ICA 1861
Veto	The Viceroy's absolute power over all bills
Decentralisation	Handing some powers back to the provinces; began in 1861 after the 1833 peak of centralisation
Despotism controlled from home	Charles Wood's phrase: a dictatorship whose dictator, the Secretary of State, sits in London
Responsible government	Every minister has to be an MP or MLA first (teacher's test); absent under ICA 1861

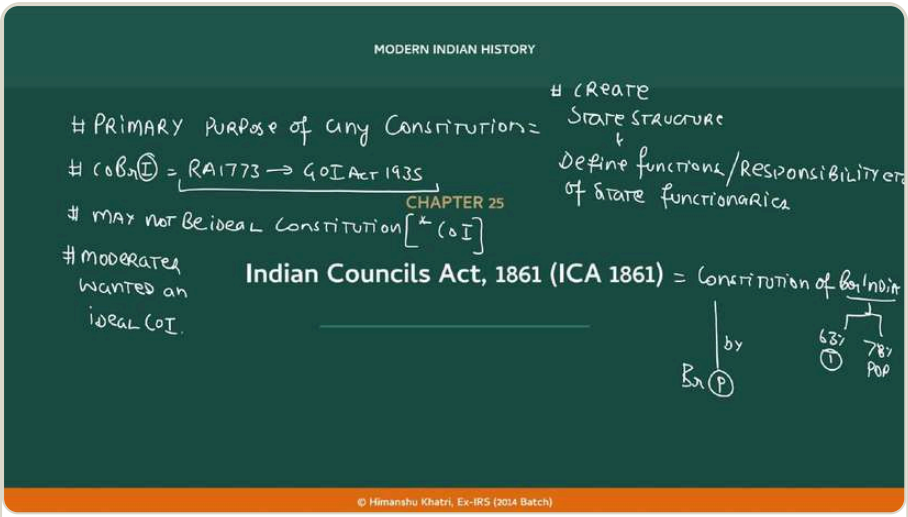
STORY LINK

Story so far: ICA 1861 is the working Constitution of British India, and the teacher's first verdict is 'not a democracy'. Ask: who is the Top Boss?



Chapter 25 title: ICA 1861 = Constitution of British India Lecture 28 slide 1

TEACHER'S BOARD

- ICA 1861 is the working Constitution of British India (CoBrI).
- A Constitution's primary purpose is to create the State structure and define the functions and responsibilities of State functionaries.
- CoBrI runs from the Regulating Act 1773 to the GOI Act 1935
- ICA 1861 is its centrepiece
- It "may not be an ideal Constitution [* CoI = our Constitution of India]" and "the Moderates wanted an ideal CoI" (see Chapter 26).
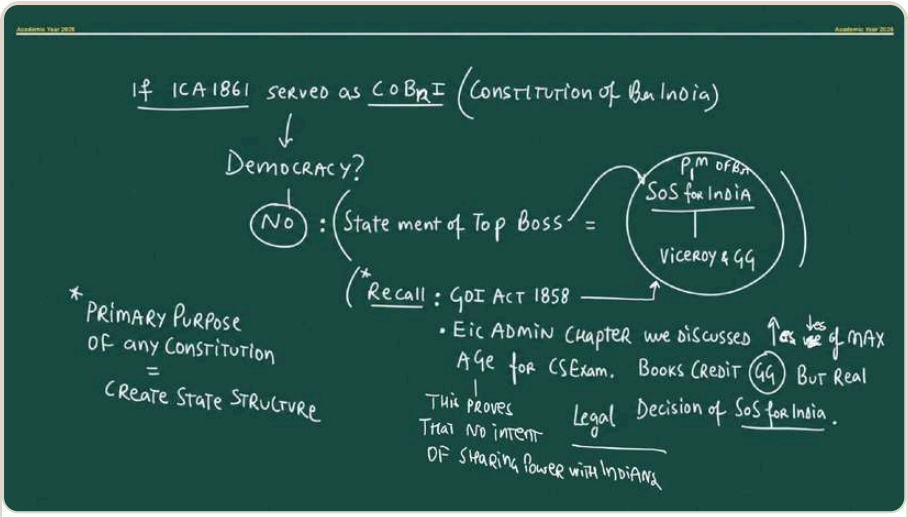
- Made "by Br (P)" for British India, which held 63% of the territory and 78% of the population (as on the Chapter 10 board).

1 · Core philosophy: despotism controlled from home

STORY LINK

Because the top boss sits in London, the Government of India is a despotism controlled from home. Ask: which two laws rebuilt the State in 1861, and which arms did each cover?



Core philosophy: is ICA 1861 a democracy? The Top Boss chain Lecture 28 slide 2

- Charles Wood, the Secretary of State for India, said the Government of India must be a "despotism controlled from home."
- Despotism is simply a dictatorship. "Home" meant Britain.
- The dictator at the top of the chain was the Secretary of State for India himself, sitting in London.
- This one line captures the fundamental feature of British Indian governance, and it remained the operating principle right until 1947.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Is ICA 1861 a democracy? No. Statement of Top Boss: PM of Britain, then SoS for India, then Viceroy and GG.
- "Recall: GOI Act 1858" made the SoS the top boss (see Chapter 17).
- On EIC administration: books credit the GG, but the real legal decision was the SoS for India's (see Chapter 18).
- Conclusion: "This proves that no intent of sharing power with Indians."

Core philosophy: despotism controlled from home; two laws, one year Lecture 28 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "L = Br": the legislature (L) is British.
- Top boss line: President of the Board of Control (1784) → GOI Act 1858 → SoS for India = Top Boss.
- The head of the chain was a British minister, not someone answerable to Indians.

- The ICA 1861 was, at its core, a comprehensive restructuring of the British Indian State.
- The British thought in terms of three arms of the State: Legislature and Executive: restructured by the ICA 1861. Judiciary: reorganised at the same time by the Indian High Courts Act 1861.
- Two laws, one year: the whole State machinery overhauled in 1861.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three arms by letters:
  - ICA 1861 = L and E
  - Indian High Courts Act 1861 = J.
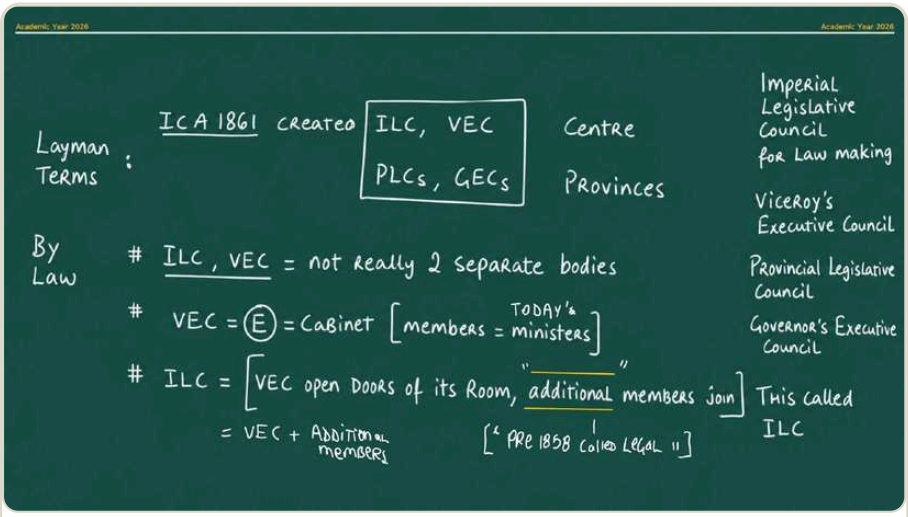
- The same L, E, J letters are used for "rule" in Chapter 8 and Chapter 10.

2 · What the Act did to the Legislature and the Executive

STORY LINK

Because the British wanted a law-making body without sharing power, they made the executive wear a second hat. Ask: why are the ILC and the VEC 'not really two bodies'?



ICA 1861 created ILC, VEC (Centre) and PLCs, GECs (Provinces) Lecture 28 slide 4

- Out of the Governor-General's Council, the ICA 1861 effectively created two bodies: the Viceroy's Executive Council (VEC) for day-to-day executive functions, and
- The Imperial Legislative Council (ILC) for law-making.
- Both operated under the authority of the Viceroy/Governor-General.
- At the province level, a parallel structure: Provincial Legislative Councils (PLCs) and Governor's Executive Councils (GECs).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- In layman terms ICA 1861 created four bodies:
  - ILC (law making) and VEC at the Centre
  - PLCs and GECs in the Provinces.
- "By law," ILC and VEC are not really two separate bodies.
- VEC = E = Cabinet
- its members are today's ministers
- ILC = VEC + additional members (the VEC opens the doors of its room and the additional members join).
- Pre-1858 additional members were the legal members of 1833 and 1853 (Section 3).

- However, be precise: the ICA 1861 did not create two separate, independent institutions.
- It was simpler and cleverer: the VEC was expanded by adding "additional members" for law-making sessions.
- These additional members (other British officials and a handful of nominated non-officials) formed an outer ring, brought in only when laws were being made.
- So the same council wore two hats: 2.1) Day-to-day executive work: it was the VEC. 2.2) Making laws: it became the ILC (= VEC + Additional Members).

ONE COUNCIL, TWO HATS

- Every VEC member was automatically part of the ILC.
- The design guaranteed the British executive a built-in official majority in every legislative vote.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Official" = Bureaucrat [PRO Br]. Bureaucrats are pro-British, so a council with an official majority can never go against the Raj.

The expanded-council model, 1861 to 1919

- ICA 1861:
  - VEC (executive) and ILC = VEC + Additional Members
  - official majority ensured
- ICA 1909 (Morley-Minto): the outer ring grows and gains marginal new powers for non-officials
- GOI Act 1919 (Montagu-Chelmsford): the VEC-ILC model is abolished and replaced by a bicameral Central Legislature: the Council of State (CoS) and the Central Legislative Assembly (CLA), structurally distinct from the VEC

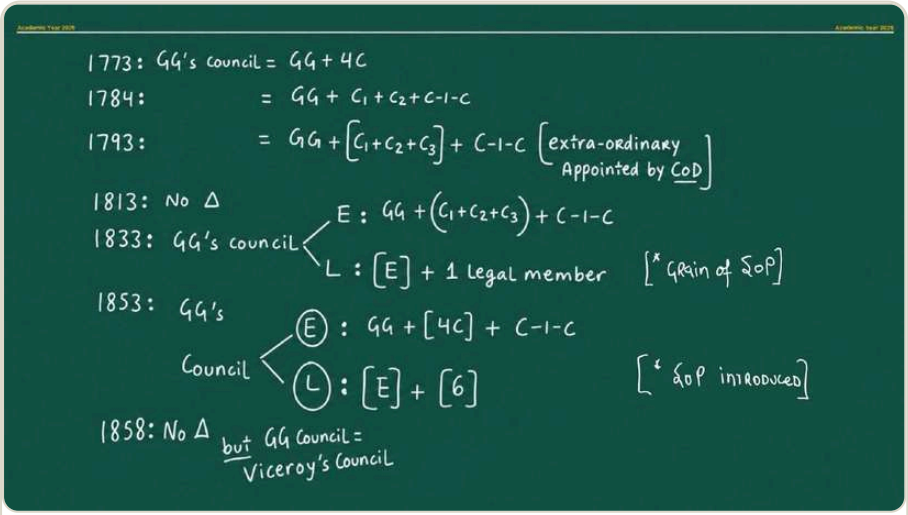
3 · The Viceroy's Executive Council (VEC): its evolution and the 1861 changes

STORY LINK

Because an executive council needs working departments, the Portfolio System was made law and the council grew. Ask: why a Finance Member in 1861 and Public Works in 1874?



Evolution of the Governor-General's Council, 1773 to 1858 Lecture 28 slide 5

- Understanding the VEC means tracing it backward before seeing what 1861 changed.
- 1833: the composition shifted from the 1793 status (GG + 3 Councillors + C-I-C, the extraordinary member) because a Law Member was added for law-making. 3.1) 1833 Executive meetings of the GG's Council = GG + 3 + C-I-C (extraordinary member appointed by the Court of Directors, CoD). 3.2) 1833 Legislative meetings = VEC + 1 legal member.
- 1853: the composition shifted further: the Law Member was elevated to ordinary executive member and 6 legal members were added for law-making. 3.3) 1853 Executive meetings = GG + 3 + C-I-C (extraordinary, appointed by the CoD) + the 1 Legal Member of 1833 elevated to Executive Member. 3.4) 1853 Legislative meetings = VEC + 6 legal members.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The council in formulas:
  - 1773 = GG + 4C
  - 1784 = GG + C1 + C2 + C-I-C
  - 1793 = GG + (C1 + C2 + C3) + C-I-C, the C-I-C "extra-ordinary, appointed by CoD"
  - 1813 = no change
  - 1833 = split into an E meeting and an L meeting (L = E + 1 legal member), "grain of SoP"
  - 1853 = E: GG + 4C + C-I-C, L: E + 6, "SoP introduced"
  - 1858 = no change, but the GG's Council = the Viceroy's Council.
- SoP (read as Separation of Powers): 1833 gave the grain, 1853 introduced it by splitting the executive meeting from the legislative one.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout and board count the same council differently
- They agree.
- Handout 1853:
  - GG + 3 + C-I-C + 1 Legal Member elevated
  - Board: GG + [4C] + C-I-C (3 + the elevated law member = 4)
- Handout 1833 "GG + 3 + CIC" = board "GG + (C1 + C2 + C3) + C-I-C". Use either.

- The ICA 1861 gave legal recognition to the Portfolio System, introduced by Canning56-62 in 1859: allocating specific departments (what we call ministries today) to individual VEC members, whose decisions on their portfolios were final, subject to the Viceroy's veto.
- This formalised cabinet-style administration at the centre.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Portfolio System = Ministry System. In those times a ministry was called a Department, e.g. "SVP was minister of States Dept" in 1947.
- It was introduced by Canning56-62 in 1859 and gave cabinet-style administration at the centre.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2002 trap: introduced 1859, recognised 1861.
- The 1859 practice was in-house
- The ICA 1861 is the Act that wrote it into law
- Do not pick 1858 (Crown takeover), 1892 or 1909 (legislative ring).

- A 5th Ordinary Member was added constitutionally in 1861 to handle Finance, effectively a Finance Minister.
- This was a direct result of the 1857 revolt, which left the British Indian economy heavily in debt.
- The Act formally expanded the Executive Council to 5 members, institutionalising the Finance Member (a practice begun in 1859 with James Wilson, who died in 1860, before the Act was passed).
- The post came in 1859
- constitutional backing came in 1861.
- James Wilson introduced income tax in 1860.
- Later income tax was withdrawn under pressure from the western-educated middle class (WEMC), and re-introduced in 1868.
- So the VEC was now: GG + 5 ordinary/regular members + C-I-C (extraordinary member, appointed by the Secretary of State for India).
- The 5 ordinary members each ran one portfolio: Home, Revenue, Finance, Law, and Military.

MNEMONIC · HARD REVENUE FUNDS LARGE MILITARIES

Hard Revenue Funds Large Militaries

H Home
R Revenue
F Finance (the new 5th member, 1861)
L Law
M Military (the ordinary administrative member, not the C-I-C)

Order kept as the handout lists the five ordinary members' portfolios. Public Works became the 6th in 1874.

- (The Military Member here is the ordinary administrative Military Member, not the C-I-C.)
- Why the C-I-C is not an ordinary member, or even an automatic ex-officio member: the Crown wanted deliberate checks and balances over the armed forces. Administrative Military Member (ordinary, in the VEC): handled paperwork, that is logistics, the defence budget, administrative orders for the Military Department. Operational C-I-C (extraordinary): supreme field command over the actual army, "the man giving battle orders".
- The picture: the Military Member ran the office, the C-I-C ran the battlefield.
- The Crown did not want one man wearing both hats, because that would concentrate too much power in one office.
- By the 1870s, massive investment in railways, canals and infrastructure needed its own dedicated portfolio, so a 6th Ordinary Member was added in 1874 for Public Works.
- Updated cabinet: 6 Ordinary Members (Home, Revenue, Finance, Law, Military and Public Works).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Today's terms:
  - Ordinary Military Member = Defence Minister
  - C-I-C = CDS.
- Formulas: VEC = GG + C-I-C + (C1 to C6) and ILC = VEC + 6 to 12 additional members.
- Cabinet of 5 members in 1861
- 6th member "1874: C6".

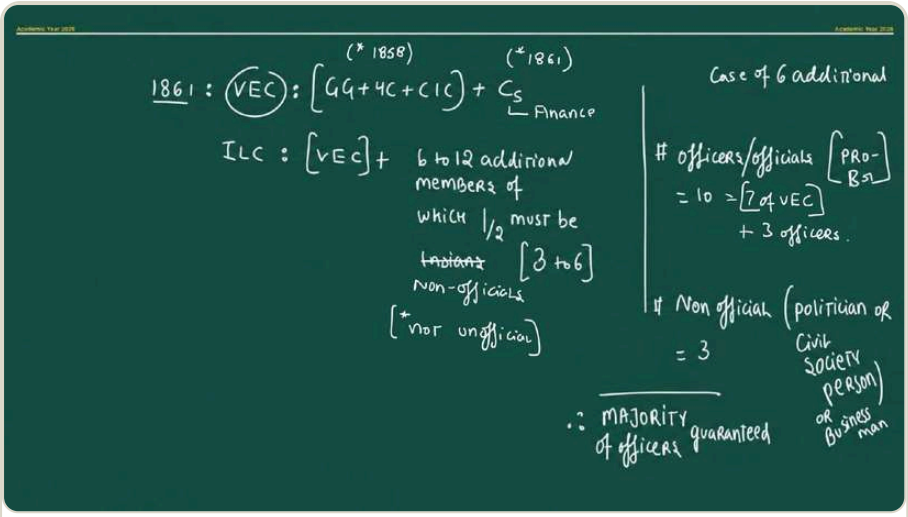
4 · The Legislature (now called ILC)

STORY LINK

Because the ring of additional members was nominated, the British could afford half non-officials. Ask: how does 7 beat 6, and why did the elites get the seats?

KEY TAKEAWAY

Whenever a question mentions the Indian Councils Acts (1861, 1892, 1909), split the government into two boxes in your mind: the Executive Council (VEC) and the Legislative Council (ILC) = VEC plus the "additional members" (a mix of officials and non-officials).



VEC and ILC composition in 1861: officials guaranteed a majority Lecture 28 slide 6

- Under the ICA 1861, 6 to 12 additional law members could be nominated by the Viceroy for the ILC, of which half must be non-officers.
- So ILC = VEC + 6 to 12 = (GG + 4 + 1 finance member added in 1861) + 6 to 12. Earlier, all were officers.
- This introduced "a grain of representation in governance": a non-officer lawmaker could be an Indian, a tiny element of popular and representative governance, because law-making is an integral part of governance.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Arithmetic: VEC in 1861 = [GG + 4C + CIC] (as in 1858) + C5 Finance (added 1861).
- ILC = VEC + 6 to 12 additional members, of which half must be non-officials (3 to 6): "Non-officials, not unofficial" (not "Indians").
- Case of 6 additional: officials = 10 (7 of the VEC + 3 officers), non-officials = 3 (a politician, a civil-society person or a businessman).
- Therefore a majority of officers is guaranteed.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Non-official is not the same as Indian.
- The board corrects "Indians" to "non-officials" (and "not unofficial").
- The handout says a non-officer lawmaker could be an Indian
- The non-officers who joined were Anglo-Indian and Indian
- Do not write "half the members were Indians" in an answer.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "1861:
  - 1st time non-officers can be lawmakers"
  - "no elections
  - Elections 1st time in ICA 1909".
- So 1861 = first non-officers (all nominated)
- 1909 = first elections (see Chapter 31)

- Why was this safe for the British? The official majority was guaranteed.
- The VEC alone (GG + 5 + CIC = 7) already outnumbered or matched even the maximum possible non-officials (6 out of 12 additional members).

NUMBER CARD · SEVEN BEATS SIX

7 · 6 · 10 : 3

The VEC's lucky seven always sits above the six.

7 VEC = GG + 5 + C-I-C

6 most non-officials possible (half of 12 additional)

10 : 3 teacher's case of 6 additional: officials 10 (7 + 3) against non-officials 3

- The British could afford the gesture because the math was rigged.
- In 1862, 3 Indians were nominated to the ILC: the Raja of Banaras, the Maharaja of Patiala, and Dinkar Rao of Gwalior (knighted in 1877 as Sir Dinkar Rao).
- All were elites, some from Princely States.
- The British logic: since the elite Indians had stayed loyal during 1857, their cooperation should be rewarded and secured.
- By having elite cooperation in law-making, they could do Divide and Rule, the same logic as the Permanent Settlement of 1793 and the 'Brown Sahib' policy of 1835: co-opt the elites, exploit the masses.
- Until ICA 1892, only 45 Indians were nominated in total, mainly Zamindars and moneylenders from the British Indian Association (BrIA, 1851), British businessmen and some Rulers of Princely States. A deliberate selection of loyalists.

The Legislature (ILC) contd.: loyal elites and Indian nominees Lecture 28 slide 13

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Goal = reward those loyal in 1857"
- "co-opt the elites" (same as the Permanent Settlement 1793 and the Brown Sahib policy 1835)
- India = British India (ruled by the British) + 565 Princely States (PS, ruled by Indian princes)
- nominees came from both
- Non-officer = not a bureaucrat or soldier = a non-State actor
- those now joining the ILC were Anglo-Indian and Indian.
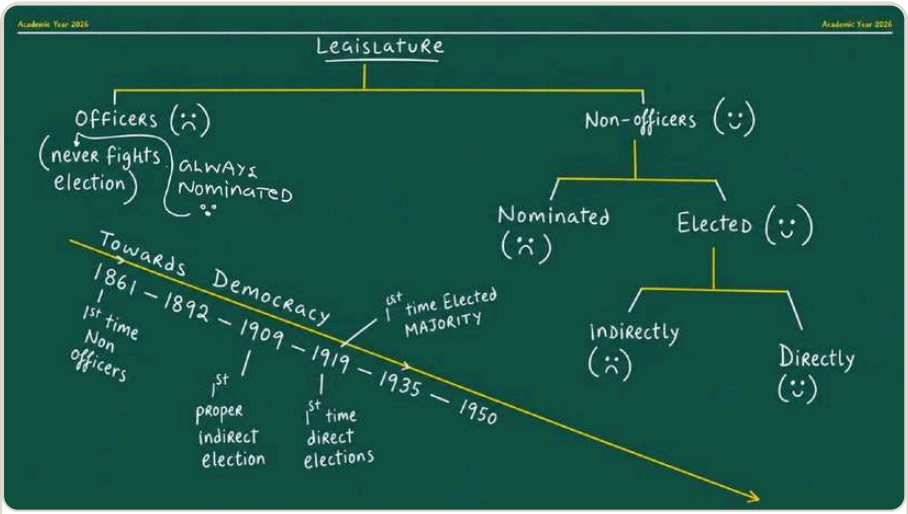
- "[31 yrs]" = the gap from 1861 to "Until ICA 1892".
- "Notice: Nationalistic WEMC missing": the Western Educated Middle Class, the nationalist voice, was not among those chosen (see Chapter 23).



The Legislature tree and the ladder Towards Democracy, 1861 to 1950 Lecture 28 slide 14

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Legislature tree:
  - Officers never fight elections and are always nominated
  - Non-officers can be nominated (weaker) or elected (stronger)
  - Elected can be indirect (weaker) or direct (stronger)
- "Towards Democracy": 1861 (1st time non-officers) → 1892 → 1909 (1st proper indirect election) → 1919 (1st time direct elections, and 1st time an elected MAJORITY) → 1935 → 1950.
- ICA 1861 is the first rung.
- Compare: Chapter 28, Chapter 31, Chapter 34.

The teacher's "Towards Democracy" ladder

- 1861 (ICA 1861): first time non-officers in the legislature (all nominated)
- 1892: the next step (see Chapter 28)
- 1909 (Morley-Minto): first proper indirect election
- 1919 (GOI Act):
  - First direct elections
  - First time an elected majority

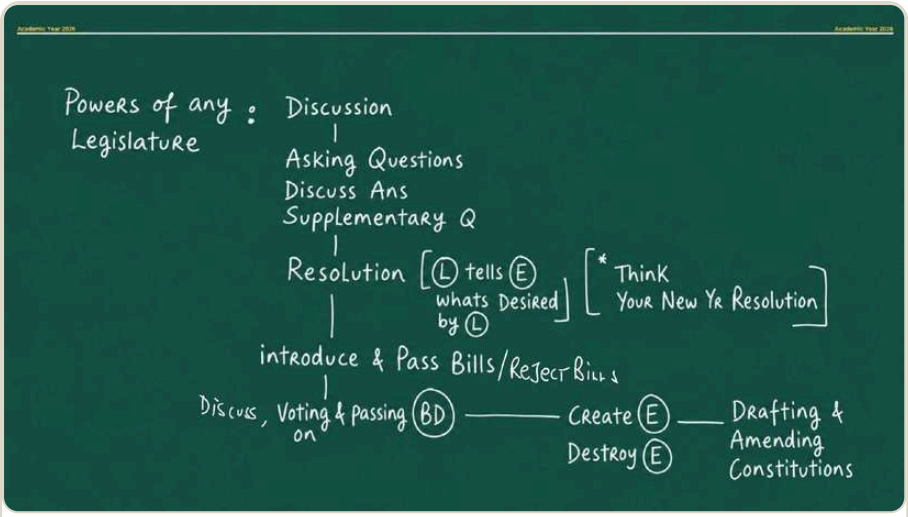
5 · Powers of the ILC

STORY LINK

Because the ILC was only a consultative add-on, it stood at the bottom of the ladder of powers. Ask: which rungs needed 'Viceroy, may I?' and which were barred?



Powers of any Legislature, from discussion to amending the Constitution
Lecture 28 slide 15

- The powers of any Legislature, in increasing order of significance: discussion, then questions + discuss answers + ask supplementary questions, then pass resolutions, then passing bills, then discussing and passing the Budget (voting on individual items and on the Budget as a whole), then creating the Executive, then dismissing the Executive, then amending and drafting the Constitution.
- The ILC's status was at the very bottom of this ladder.

5.6) Veto	The Viceroy held absolute veto over all bills	(his power)
5.7) Ordinance power	The Viceroy could make law by executive order, valid for 6 months, bypassing the Legislature	(his power)

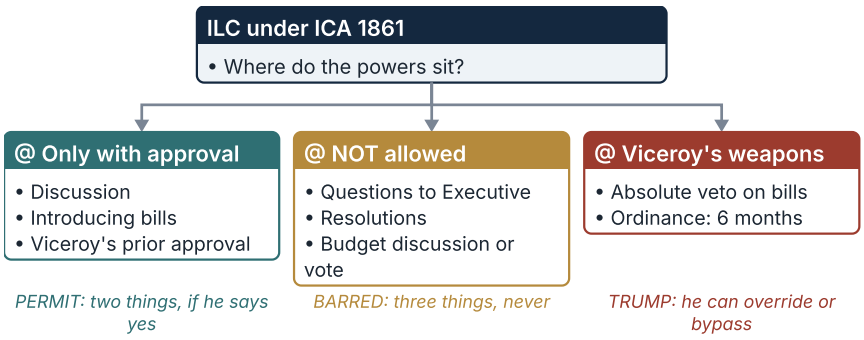
WHAT THE ILC COULD AND COULD NOT DO



TEACHER'S BOARD

"ILC is not equal to a modern P (Parliament)." Discussion and Introduce Bills needed the Viceroy's prior approval; everything above them was NOT allowed.

- The ILC was not a modern Parliament in any meaningful sense: small membership, entirely nominated (no elections), and no control whatsoever over the Executive.
- It was a consultative add-on to the Viceroy's own council: useful to the British because it looked like participation while delivering none.
- Ordinance = law made by the Executive, bypassing the Legislature.

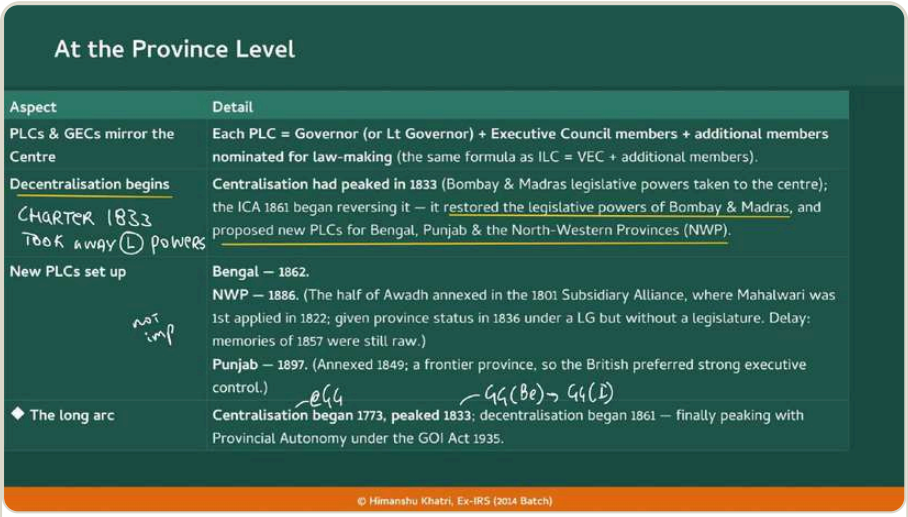
6 · At the province level

STORY LINK

Because the 1833 centralisation had gone too far, 1861 gave some law-making back. Ask: why did NWP and Punjab wait?



At the province level: decentralisation begins, new PLCs Lecture 28 slide 17

- The provincial provisions mirrored the arrangement at the Centre. PLCs and GECs were created.
- Under the ICA 1861, each PLC = Governor (or Lt Governor) + Executive Council members + additional members nominated for law-making (the same formula as ILC = VEC + additional members).
- The bigger change was in the relationship between the Centre and the provinces.
- Centralisation had peaked in 1833, when the legislative powers of Bombay and Madras were taken away and concentrated at the centre. ICA 1861 began reversing that: it restored the legislative powers of Bombay and Madras, and
- It proposed new PLCs for Bengal, Punjab and the North-Western Provinces (NWP).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Charter 1833 took away (L) powers" (legislative powers of Bombay and Madras): the Charter Act of 1833 was the peak of centralisation (see Chapter 17).
- ICA 1861 restores them: "Decentralisation begins." Centralisation example: "GG(Be) to GG(I)": the Governor General of Bengal became the Governor General of India (1833).

HANDOUT NOTE

- Why Bengal needed a fresh PLC (handout only, no slide).
- The handout adds why Bengal needed a fresh PLC: Bengal's provincial council had evolved into the GG(India)'s Council by 1833, became the Viceroy's/GG's Council in 1858, and was rebranded as ILC and VEC in 1861.
- So the old Bengal body had moved up to the Centre, and Bengal needed a new one of its own.

- The long arc: centralisation began 1773, peaked 1833, and decentralisation began 1861, finally peaking with Provincial Autonomy under the GOI Act 1935.

NUMBER CARD · THE LONG ARC OF CENTRALISATION

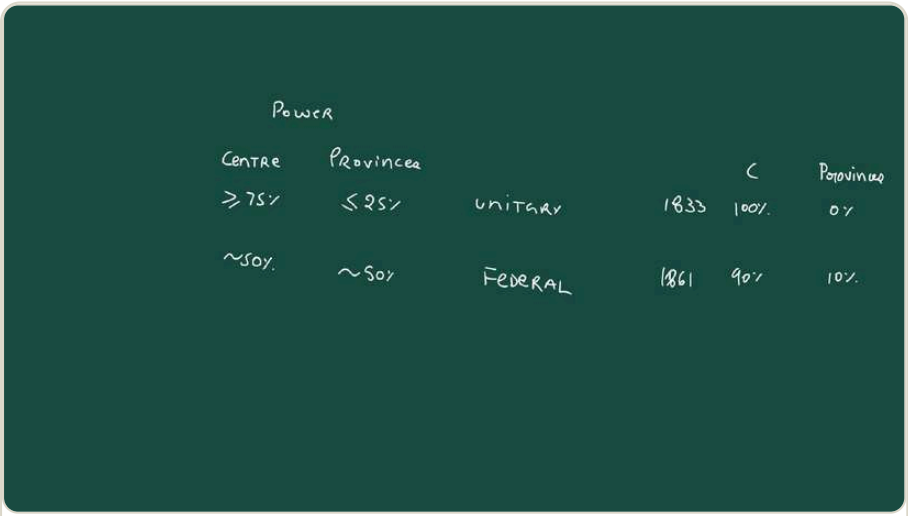
Up to 33, down from 61, bottom at 35.

1773 Regulating Act: centralisation begins

1833 Charter Act: peak; Bombay and Madras lose law-making; Centre 100% (teacher)

1861 ICA 1861: decentralisation begins; Centre 90%, Provinces 10% (teacher)

1935 GOI Act 1935: Provincial Autonomy



Power split between Centre and Provinces: unitary against federal Lecture 28 slide 18

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Unitary = Centre at least 75%, Provinces at most 25%. Federal = about 50% each.
- British India: 1833: Centre 100%, Provinces 0%. 1861: Centre 90%, Provinces 10%.
- So 1861 moved only 10 points from the Centre and by this definition is still unitary.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Do not read 1833 as "Unitary" and 1861 as "Federal" from the board.
- "Unitary" and "Federal" are definitions (at least 75% against about 50%)
- The dated figures are 100/0 (1833) and 90/10 (1861), nowhere near 50/50
- The handout summary (8.11) says "Not federal." Use: ICA 1861 = decentralisation, but not federal.

- New PLCs were set up in: 6.1) Bengal: 1862. 6.2) NWP: 1886. (NWP was the half of Awadh annexed in the 1801 Subsidiary Alliance as permanent payment of subsidy, where Mahalwari was first applied in 1822; given province status in 1836 but without a legislature and under a Lt Governor.) Why the delay? Memories of 1857 were still raw, and the British were cautious about loosening their executive grip. 6.3) Punjab: 1897. (Annexed in 1849.) Why the delay? A frontier province: the British preferred strong executive control to the slower deliberation of a legislative body.

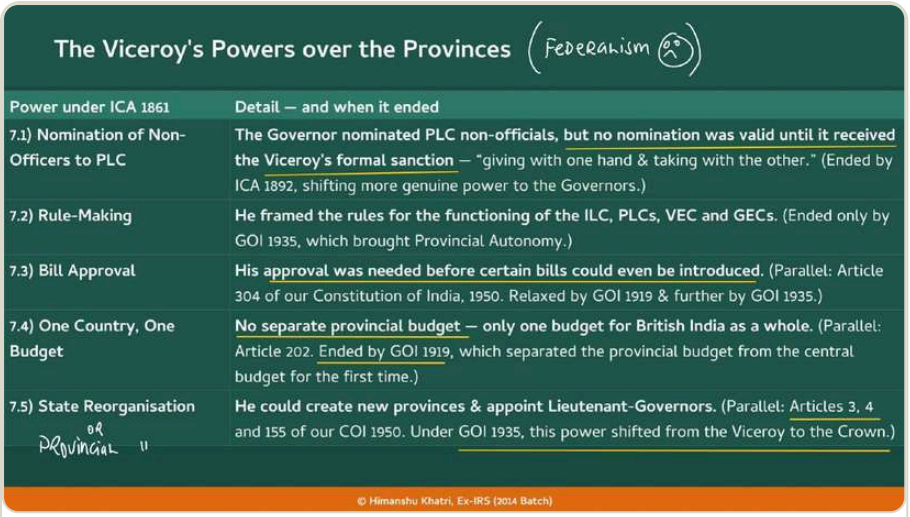
7 · True federalism: just a small beginning

STORY LINK

Because the Viceroy kept five keys, decentralisation was not federalism. Ask: which Act ended each key, and what is the parallel in the Constitution of India?



The Viceroy's powers over the provinces: no true federalism Lecture 28 slide 19

- Even as some power was decentralised, executive control stayed tightly centralised.
- The Viceroy's powers over provinces under ICA 1861:

Viceroy's power over provinces	What the Viceroy held	When and how it ended	Constitution of India parallel
7.1) Nomination of non-officers to the PLC	The Governor nominated PLC non-officials, but no nomination was valid until the Viceroy formally sanctioned it: "giving with one hand and taking with the other"	Ended by ICA 1892, shifting more real power to the Governors	none given
7.2) Rule-making	He framed the rules for the functioning of the ILC, PLCs, VEC and GECs	Ended only by GOI 1935 (Provincial Autonomy)	none given
7.3) Bill approval	His approval was needed before certain bills could even be introduced	Relaxed by GOI 1919, and further by GOI 1935 (subjects divided between Centre and Provinces)	Article 304: the President's recommendation for certain State bills
7.4) One country, one budget	No separate provincial budget: only one budget for British India	Ended by GOI 1919, which separated the provincial budget from the central budget for the first time	Article 202: every State Legislature has its own State budget
7.5) State reorganisation	He could create new provinces and appoint Lieutenant-Governors	Under GOI 1935 the power shifted from the Viceroy to the Crown (effectively the British PM)	Articles 3, 4 and 155 of the COI 1950

MNEMONIC · THE VICEROY'S FIVE POWERS OVER THE PROVINCES

B R A S S

The Viceroy was the top BRASS and kept every key.

B Budget: only one budget for British India (ended by GOI 1919)

R Rules for ILC, PLCs, VEC and GECs (ended only by GOI 1935)

A Approval before certain bills could be introduced (relaxed 1919 and 1935)

S Sanction of PLC nominations (ended by ICA 1892)

S States: create provinces, appoint Lt Governors (to the Crown, GOI 1935)

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. End dates in year order: Sanction 1892, Budget 1919, Approval 1919 and 1935, Rules and States 1935.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Federalism: negative (the Viceroy keeps control). Stressed: no nomination valid until the Viceroy sanctions (7.1), approval before certain bills can be introduced (7.3), no separate provincial budget and "Ended by GOI 1919" (7.4), Articles 3, 4 and the shift "from the Viceroy to the Crown" under GOI 1935 (7.5).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2002 (UPSC tested this). The question and answer are in the Exam lens: (A) Indian Councils Act, 1861 is correct.
- (B) GOI Act 1858 ×, (C) ICA 1892 ×, (D) ICA 1909 ×.
- The students who err are those who confuse the topic.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Fully Resp Govt: every minister has to be MP/MLA first." Applied here (reading of the handout facts): VEC members were appointed, the ILC was nominated and could not question or dismiss them, so ICA 1861 fails the test (compare rungs 6 and 7 of the ladder in Section 5).

Chapter 17: Constitutional History of EIC's British India (1773-1858)

The council's evolution 1773, 1784, 1793, 1833, 1853 and the GOI Act 1858 that made the SoS the Top Boss all lead directly into ICA 1861; the Charter Act 1833 is the peak of centralisation.

Chapter 18: EIC Administration: Judiciary, Civil Services, Police

The teacher's "books credit the GG, but the real legal decision was the SoS's" ties back to the EIC administration chapter; the Indian High Courts Act 1861 is the judiciary side of the same restructuring.

Chapter 21: The Revolt of 1857

The 1857 debt created the Finance Member; the loyalty of princes in 1857 is the reason for the three nominees of 1862 and the "reward the loyal" goal.

Chapter 23: Pre-INC Organisations and the Early Indian National Movement

The British Indian Association (BrIA, 1851) supplied many of the 45 nominated Indians; the teacher's note "Nationalistic WEMC missing".

Chapter 26: Moderates in INC: Ideology, Demands, Negatives

The Moderates wanted an ideal Constitution against the ICA 1861 despotism; the same chapter begins on the handout page that follows this chapter.

Chapter 28: Indian Councils Act of 1892 (Lord Cross Act)

Ends the Viceroy's sanction on provincial nominations (7.1) and grows the outer ring further.

Chapter 31: Rise of Organised Muslim Politics and Morley-Minto Reforms

ICA 1909: the first proper indirect election and the outer ring's marginal new powers.

Chapter 34: Government of India Act, 1919

Abolishes the VEC-ILC model (CoS + CLA), separates the provincial budget, first direct elections.

Chapter 42: Government of India Act, 1935 & Congress Ministries

Provincial Autonomy ends the Viceroy's rule-making; State reorganisation power passes to the Crown.

Moderates in INC: Ideology, Demands, Negatives

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 262-266 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 2000 (Assertion-Reason on the narrow social base; answer c)

Mains PYQs: Why the Moderates failed to carry conviction with the nation about their ideology and political goals by the end of the nineteenth century (10 marks, 150 words; the bank gives no year)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Ideology: Utilitarianism and Liberalism; Constitutionalism = Responsible Government, rights, Rule of Law; constitutional methods (FIR, Court, RTI, CPGRAMS, NOTA, elections, Citizen Charter); Providence of British Rule; Limited Self-Government; 'Un-British Rule' (Banerjea) and Naoroji's 1901 book; Bonnerjee's 'loyal and well-wishers' line
- The 11 demands and that none was met: India Council (15 members), 50% indirectly elected, age limit 23, Boxer Rebellion 1899-1901, Arms Act 1878, Salt Tax, PS 1793, Assam tea indentured labour
- Who was in the INC: 72 delegates in 1885 (Bombay 38, Madras 21, Punjab and NWP and Oudh 10, Bengal-Bihar-Orissa-Assam 3); Tyabji, first Muslim President, Madras 1887; Hindus 90% and Muslims 6.5% against 20% in the census; 20% landlords, 40% lawyers, 15% traders
- The 1886 rule (Calcutta session, Naoroji): social questions shelved until 1907; cow-killing riots 1893; Punjab Land Alienation Bill 1900; Prelims 2000 Assertion-Reason (narrow social base): A true, R false = (c)
- The teacher's cues: 'imp' for the Factories Act 1881 (Ripon 80-84); 'not imp' for the 1891 Act (Lansdowne 88-94) and the Mines Act 1901 (Curzon 99-05); 'GUESSED' for the economic demands; 3P; Gokhale 1913

MAINS HOOKS

- Why did the Moderates fail to carry conviction with the nation about their proclaimed ideology and political goals by the end of the nineteenth century? (10 marks, 150 words; year not given in the bank)

A movement that neither represented the people nor threatened to unleash them could be ignored, yet it built the culture of politics (Gokhale 1913).

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The Moderates, shaped by Utilitarian and Liberal faith in laws and constitutions, asked the British for Limited Self-Government by petition and prayer. Because they were a narrow, elite, part-time body that distrusted the masses, their demands carried no pressure and none was met; yet they were building the culture of politics.

1. Limit the State, by law. In the West the monarchy was limited step by step (Britain without a written Constitution, France with one). In India the opponent was a foreign power, so Step 1 for the Moderates was to limit the colonial State, with a good Constitution as the instrument. They drew on Utilitarianism (the greatest good of the greatest number, through laws) and Liberalism (rights, rule of law, a constitution).

   → So they chose methods that stay inside the State's own rules.

2. Only the State's own doors. Constitutionalism meant Responsible Government, protected rights and Rule of Law. Constitutional methods meant using only the channels the State provides: elections, the Legislature, the Judiciary, RTI, CPGRAMS, Citizen Charters and petitions (the teacher adds FIR, Court case and NOTA). Gandhi's Non-Cooperation and Civil Disobedience sit outside, as extra-constitutional mass struggle.

   → But did they want the British gone?

3. Critics, not rebels. The Moderates knew British rule was exploitative, yet they believed in its Providence: if pressurised, the British could modernise India. Their goal was Limited Self-Government within British rule, because the masses were not yet ready; the long vision was Canada or Australia with British citizenship. Banerjea wanted an end to Un-British Rule, and Bonnerjee called the INC loyal to the British and their well-wishers.

   → What, then, did they actually ask for?

4. Eleven asks, no answers. Four were political: abolish the 15-member India Council, expand the ILC and PLCs with at least 50% indirectly elected members, give genuine powers, and Indianise the services (exam in India and Britain, age 23). Seven were economic: cut military spending (the Boxer Rebellion 1899-1901), a volunteer army, trial by jury, repeal of the Arms Act 1878, lower land revenue and no Salt Tax, PS 1793 extended, and an end to Assam tea indenture. None was met.

   → Who was asking, and for whom?

5. Who was in the room. At the first session in 1885, 72 delegates came: Bombay 38, Madras 21, Punjab and NWP and Oudh 10, and only 3 from Bengal-Bihar-Orissa-Assam (the handout says Bengal about 5). They were upper-caste Western-educated professionals; Hindus were 90% and Muslims about 6.5% of the INC against 20% in the census. Tyabji, the first Muslim President (Madras 1887), was the exception.

→ Even that thin unity was guarded by a rule.

6 The 1886 rule. At the Calcutta session of 1886, under Dadabhai Naoroji, the INC decided to avoid social questions (Hindu-Muslim, upper-lower caste, women, class) until 1907, so that it would not look pro-one-group or split. It would pick only fights where the opponent was a foreigner. In 1893 it stayed silent over the cow-killing riots, and Muslim participation fell.

7 Landlords' politics. In 1892-1905 about 20% of members were landlords, 40% lawyers and 15% traders, and the leaders were part-time politicians in a three-day annual conference. So there was no anti-Zamindar stand (they wanted PS 1793 extended), they opposed the Punjab Land Alienation Bill of 1900, and they backed Indian capital over labour (Assam tea only because the owners were European).

→ The same lens shaped their view of the factory laws.

8 The Lancashire game. British textile makers in Lancashire lobbied for Indian factory rules to raise Indian costs; the Moderates replied that infant industries needed room or India would stay a raw-material supplier. The Acts were the Factories Act 1881 (Ripon 80-84; imp), the Factories Act 1891 (Lansdowne 88-94) and the Indian Mines Act 1901 (Curzon 99-05). The verdict is complex: the lobby's motive was real, but Indian workers, children included, suffered longer.

→ Whatever their reasons, their method was always the same.

9 Prayer, petition, protest in print. They sent prayers and petitions, passed resolutions at annual sessions, used the press and debates, and avoided all mass action, as firm believers in the Rule of Law. The teacher's 3P is Prayer, Petitions, Protests in the press; critics, later the Extremists, called it the Strategy of Mendicancy.

→ Why did that bring no result?

10 A sliver with no lever. Two problems reinforced each other: they did not represent the masses (about 90% Hindu, lawyers and landlords) and they distrusted the masses and would not mobilise them. A movement that neither represented the people nor threatened to unleash them could be ignored. The teacher's four power factors: claim, masses, demands, methods.

→ Yet it was not the end of the story.

11 A beginning, not the end. Gokhale said in 1913 that without these methods the British would not have allowed the INC to function, and that the culture of direct confrontation had not yet developed. The goal itself moved on: Limited Self-Government 1885-1906, Self-Government within the empire 1906, Dominion Status 1916 and 1928, Purna Swaraj 1929.

In simple words

- The Moderates drew on Utilitarianism (good laws) and Liberalism (rights), so they trusted constitutional methods and wanted Limited Self-Government within British rule: an end to Un-British Rule, not to British rule.
- They held the Providence of British Rule: if pressurised, the British could modernise India, and the masses were not yet ready for self-rule.
- They made 11 demands (India Council out, bigger councils with 50% indirectly elected, Indianisation with age 23, army cost cut, jury, Arms Act 1878, land revenue and salt tax, PS 1793, Assam labour) and none was met.
- The INC was elite and uneven: 72 delegates in 1885 (Bombay 38), Muslims about 6.5%, and from 1886 it kept social questions off the agenda until 1907.
- Its leaders were part-time, mostly landlords, lawyers and traders, so it backed PS 1793, opposed the Punjab Land Alienation Bill 1900, and opposed the factory laws (the Lancashire Lobby argument).
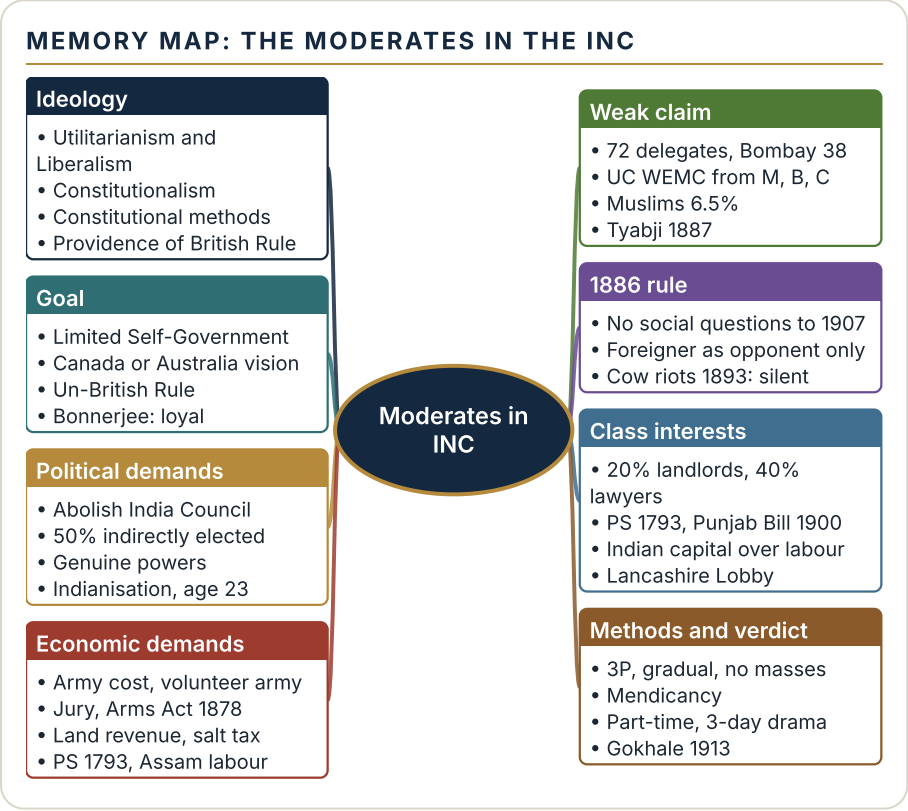
- Their methods were 3P (Prayer, Petitions, Protests in the press) with no mass action: critics called it Mendicancy, but Gokhale 1913 said they were building the culture of politics.

Key term	In plain words
Utilitarianism	Right action gives the greatest good to the greatest number; faith in laws and good governance
Liberalism	Individual rights, rule of law and constitutional government (the teacher: anti-colonialism)
Constitutionalism	A State that gives Responsible Government, protects rights and works under Rule of Law (the teacher: limits the State's power)
Constitutional methods	Using only the grievance-redress channels the State provides: FIR, Court, RTI, CPGRAMS, NOTA, elections
Responsible Government	The Executive is accountable to Parliament, which can remove it by a no-confidence motion
Providence of British Rule	The faith that, if pressurised, the British could be made to modernise India
Un-British Rule	Banerjea's phrase for the gap between Britain's liberal values and its conduct in India

Key term	In plain words
Limited Self-Government	A greater Indian share in governance within British rule; domestic power shared so:so
UC WEMC	Upper-caste Western-educated middle class from Madras, Bombay and Calcutta: the INC's base
The 1886 rule	The INC's decision to avoid social questions (caste, religion, social reform) until 1907
Lancashire Lobby	British textile makers who pushed for Indian factory laws to raise Indian costs
Strategy of Mendicancy	The critics' label (begging) for the Moderates' petitions and prayers

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS Polite politicians: laws and petitions, a narrow elite base and no mass pressure, so none of the 11 demands was met.

	the early nationalist movement lay in its narrow social base. Reason (R): it fought for the narrow interests of the social groups which joined it. Options: (a) both true, R explains A (b) both true, R does not explain A (c) A true, R false (d) A false, R true	exclusion of non-elites is the early INC's most serious structural weakness. R is false: its members were elites, but its demands went well beyond elite interests (lower Land Revenue, end of the Salt Tax, repeal of the Arms Act 1878, trial by jury). Board solution: A = T; R = False ("narrow interests"). Reason: the INC did not take up inter-religious issues (neither for H nor for M); 1886 RULE: Indian vs Indian issues won't pick up, Indian vs British issues picked up	(the 1886 rule) and Section 2 (what the demands were)
Mains (the year is not given in the bank)	Why did the Moderates fail to carry conviction with the nation about their proclaimed ideology and political goals by the end of the nineteenth century? (10 marks, 150 words)	Cause-chain, "Reasons for Failures = weakness": weak claim of representing Indians, no trust in the masses, weak demands, weak methods (3P, gradual, part-time politicians). Skeleton below	Section 3 (the whole of it) and Section 4

Mains PYQ skeleton: why the Moderates failed to carry conviction (from the notes only)

- Intro: the Moderates (Utilitarian and Liberal, firm believers in Rule of Law) wanted Limited Self-Government within British rule by petitions, resolutions, the press and debate, and by 1900 their programme had produced none of its 11 demands.
- Body (the teacher's four power factors):
  - (1) Weak claim to represent Indians: upper-caste Western-educated middle class from Madras, Bombay and Calcutta
  - Hindus 90%, Muslims about 6.5% (census: 20%)
  - Bombay alone about half the members
  - Peasants, workers, women and lower castes absent
  - So less pressure on the British.
- (2) No trust in the masses:
  - They were not Western-educated and would not understand modern politics
  - Involvement would raise the chance of violence
  - So no mass base.
- (3) Weak demands: limited self-government, and class-coloured demands (no anti-Zamindar stand, PS 1793, Punjab Land Alienation Bill 1900 opposed, Indian capitalists over labour).
- (4) Weak methods:
  - 3P (Prayer, Petitions, Protests in the press), gradual, part-time politicians, a 3-day annual drama
  - called the "Strategy of Mendicancy."

- Closing:
  - A movement that neither represented the people nor threatened to unleash them carried no real pressure
  - The British could ignore a few hundred professionals
- Fair verdict (Gokhale 1913): they were building the institutions and culture of politics for a country with no national organisation.

1 · Moderates' ideology: the intellectual foundation

STORY LINK

Because the opponent was a foreign State, the Moderates wanted to limit its power with laws and a constitution. Ask: which two Western traditions and which kind of methods followed from that?

1.1 Why the Moderates wanted to limit the State: the class board

TEACHER'S BOARD

- West: the State was an indigenous monarchy, so democracy grew gradually: power of the Monarch down, power of Parliament up.
- Nature of State = monarchy, so limiting the monarchy = limiting the State.
- How:
  - Britain without a Constitution, France with a Constitution
  - both ended with a limited State.
- India (and USA): the opponent was the imperialism of a foreign power.
- Step 1 for the Moderates = limit the power of the colonial State
- instrument = a Good Constitution, so constitutional development.
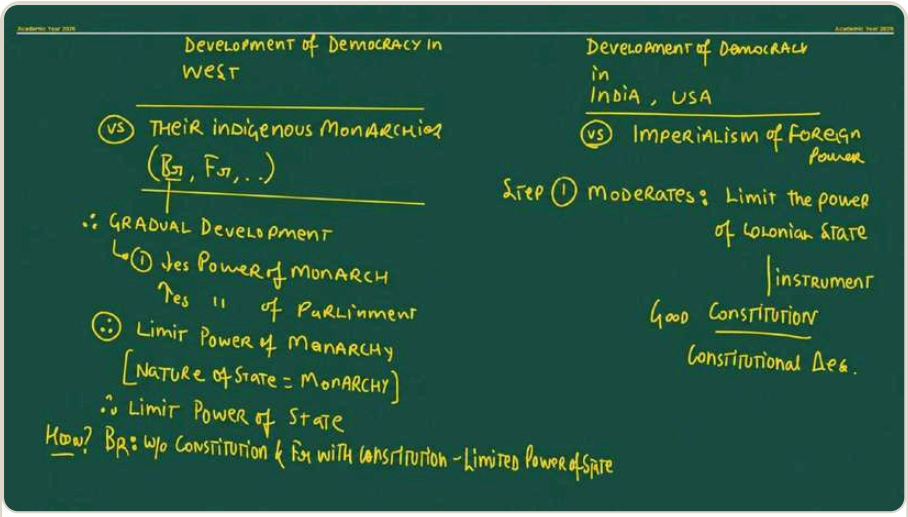
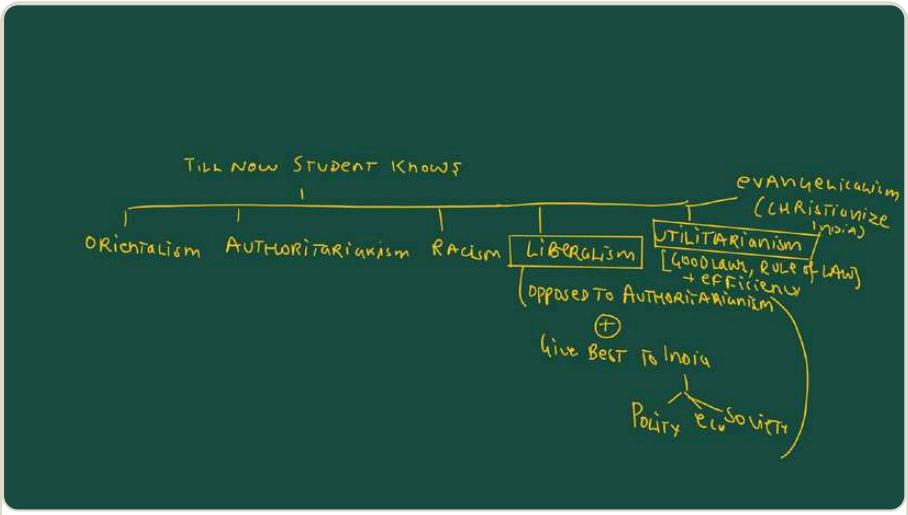
- The Moderates' ideology centres on constitutions, laws and rights.

1.2 Two Western traditions: Utilitarianism and Liberalism



Democracy in the West versus India: limiting the State Lecture 28 slide 25



Isms: Utilitarianism and Liberalism as the Moderates' two Lecture 28 slide 26

- The Moderates were shaped by two Western philosophical traditions:

Tradition	What it holds	What it gave the Moderates
Utilitarianism	The right action is the one that produces the greatest good for the greatest number; belief in laws and good governance as the mechanism for change	Faith in laws as the tool of reform
Liberalism	Stresses individual rights, rule of law and constitutional governance	Faith in constitutional government and rights
Together		The conviction that gradual constitutional reform is the right way to reform

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Isms the student already knows from Chapter 15: Orientalism, Authoritarianism, Racism, Liberalism, Utilitarianism, and evangelicalism (Christianise India).
- Only Liberalism and Utilitarianism are the Moderates' two.
- Utilitarianism = Good Laws, Rule of Law + efficiency.
- Liberalism = opposed to Authoritarianism
- "Give Best To India" in Polity, Eco(nomy) and Society.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Ideology tree: Utilitarianism = "Good Laws / Rule of Law / Law = Agent of Good Change [delta sign]"; Liberalism = [anti-Colonialism]. Utilitarianism is "linked" to Constitutionalism.

1.3 Constitutionalism

- From the isms grew the Moderates' belief in Constitutionalism: a legitimate State should
- provide Responsible Government,
- protect the rights of citizens, and
- operate under the Rule of Law.

Ideology tree: Constitutionalism and constitutional methods Lecture 28 slide 27

- (Think of Constitutionalism as the values reflected in our Preamble, the Basic Structure doctrine and the Directive Principles of State Policy.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Constitutionalism = limiting the power of the State via a Constitution.
- Personal reading:
  - When the "primary" purpose of the COI is said to be limiting the power of the (Nation) State, "for me: this shows distrust." India after COI 1950: distinguish Nation and Nation State
  - Constitutionalism = Ideal Democracy with Rule of Law, limiting State power is automatically covered
- Values: Preamble + FRs + Basic Structure + DPSP.
- Also on the Ideology tree:
  - Secularism and National Unity
  - Constitutional methods.

1.4 Two terms the teacher defines: Responsible Government and Constitutional methods

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Responsible Government = part of Constitutionalism = accountability of the Executive (E).
- Operationalised as E responsible to the Legislature (L) / Parliament.
- Test:
  - A Minister has to be an MP or MLA first
  - If yes, Parliament (P) is the mother of the Executive (E).
- A child is always accountable to its mother, including elimination (no-confidence motion).
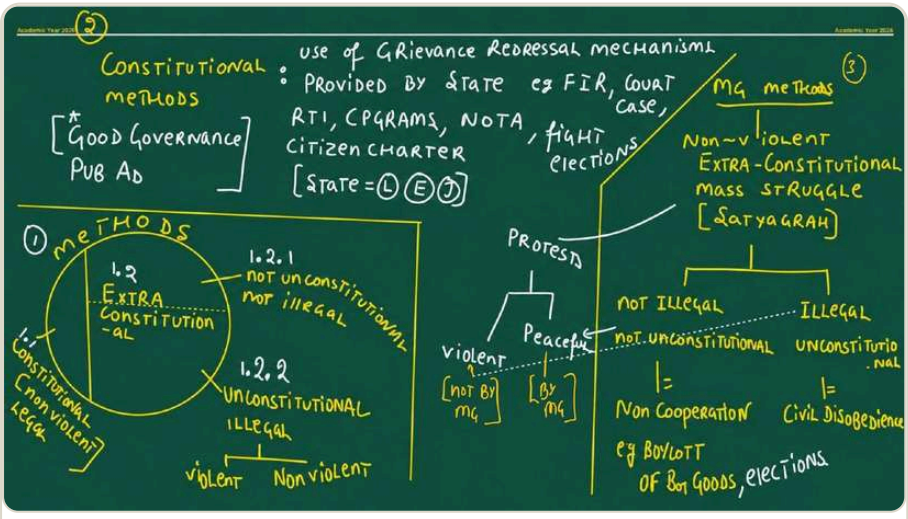
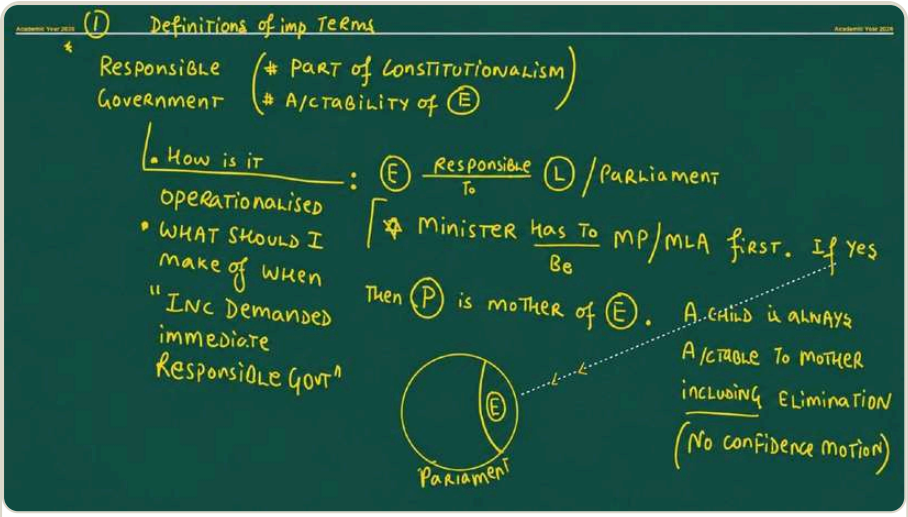
- Open question on the board: "what should I make of it when the INC demanded immediate Responsible Government?" (no answer given; check your notebook).



Constitutional methods, extra-constitutional methods and MG methods
Lecture 28 slide 29



Definitions: Responsible Government Lecture 28 slide 28

- The Moderates believed in Constitutional Methods: they would use only the institutions and mechanisms that the State itself provided to redress grievances. Today's equivalents:
- Fighting elections, using the Legislature, approaching the Judiciary
- Filing RTI applications, using CPGRAMS, writing to Citizen Charters
- sending petitions to the government.

TWO WAYS OF PRESSING THE STATE: MODERATE AGAINST GANDHI

Methods
• Inside or outside the State's rules?

@ Constitutional (Moderates)	@ Extra-constitutional (MG)
• Use the State's own channels • FIR, Court, RTI, CPGRAMS, NOTA • Non-violent and legal	• Non-Cooperation: not illegal • Civil Disobedience: illegal • Satyagraha, a mass struggle
STAY inside the law: petitions, votes, courts	STEP outside the State's channels

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Constitutional methods = use of grievance-redressal mechanisms provided by the State (State = L, E, J): FIR, Court case, RTI, CPGRAMS, NOTA, fight elections, Citizen Charter. Topic: Good Governance (Public Administration).
- Methods map: (1) Constitutional [non-violent, legal].
- (1.2) Extra-constitutional:
  - 1.2.1 not unconstitutional, not illegal
  - 1.2.2 unconstitutional, illegal (violent or non-violent)
- (2) Protests: violent ones were not by Mahatma Gandhi, peaceful ones were.
- (3) MG methods = non-violent extra-constitutional mass struggle [Satyagraha]: Non-Cooperation (not illegal, not unconstitutional: boycott of British goods, elections) and Civil Disobedience (illegal, unconstitutional).

Protests for a civil servant; pre-1947 and post-1947 heroes Lecture 28 slide 30

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Civil-servant lens:
  - Genuine protests = shame and failure of the civil servant (incompetency?)
  - protests that are not genuine and cause law-and-order problems = strict action.
- Heroes flip:
  - Pre-1947 heroes = Revolutionaries, Extremists, Mahatma Gandhi (MG) (against the colonial State)
  - Post-1947 heroes = Moderates, therefore the Nation State.

1.5 Did the Moderates oppose British rule?

- The Moderates knew British rule was exploitative: they were not naive.
- But they believed in the Providence of British Rule: if sufficiently pressurised, the British could be made to modernise India.

- Their goal was therefore not independence but Limited Self-Government: a greater Indian share in governance within British rule.
- Why so limited? Because they believed the masses, without widespread Western education, were not yet ready for full self-rule.
- Their ultimate long-term vision (rarely stated loudly): Self-Government like Canada or Australia, with full British citizenship.
- They sought not the removal of British rule but the removal of "Un-British Rule" (Surendranath Banerjea): the gap between Britain's own stated liberal values and its actual conduct in India.
- The first President of the INC, W.C.
- Bonnerjee, declared that the INC was "loyal to the British and well-wishers of the British."

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Keywords:
  - "Providence of British Rule"
  - "if" "pressurised" "the British could be made to modernise India" (the whole faith rests on the if)
  - The Canada or Australia vision
  - The "loyal and well-wishers" line
  - National unity, Capitalism and Industrialisation on British lines.
- [Dadabhai Naoroji's book = Poverty and Un-British Rule in India (1901)] sits beside "Un-British Rule".

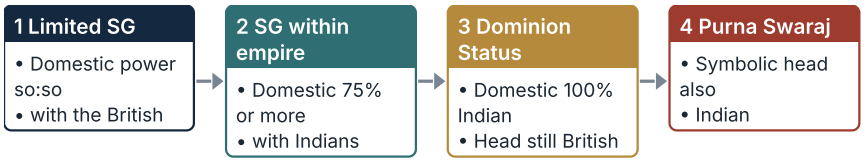
1.6 What "Limited Self-Government" means: Sovereignty and Swaraj boards

THE SWARAJ STAIRCASE (TEACHER'S BOARD)



TEACHER'S BOARD

- Sovereignty has three parts:
  - (A) symbolic sovereignty (powerless)
  - power to do L, E, J on (B) external sovereign functions [D, C, FA] and (C) domestic sovereign functions [Home, Finance etc].
- "ChatGPT sovereignty = B + C" (reads as: the popular definition counts only the real powers B and C, not the symbolic A).
- D, C, FA = Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs (Chapter 1).

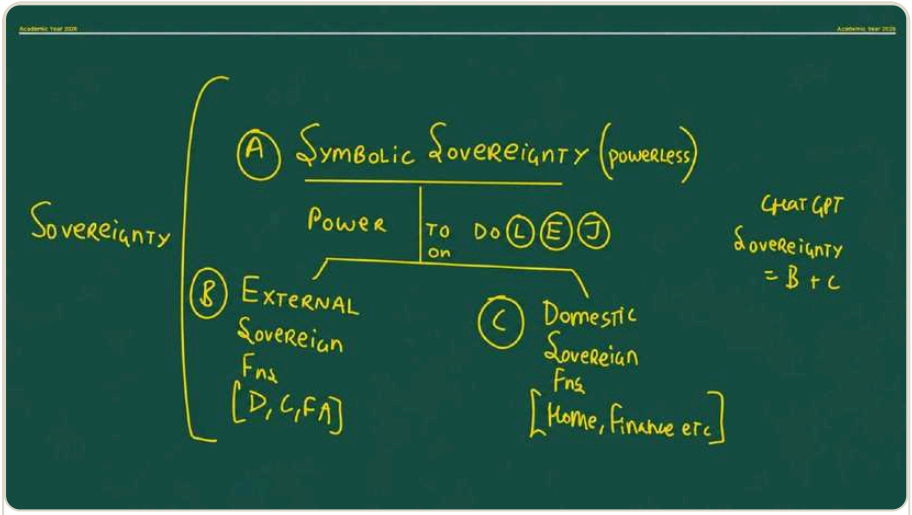
Swaraj: four meanings of self-government Lecture 28 slide 32



Sovereignty: symbolic, external and domestic Lecture 28 slide 31

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Swaraj = Swa (People) + Raj (Government) = Self-Government, with four meanings.
- (3) Limited Self-Government (Moderates): symbolic sovereign British, external British, domestic = partnership between Indians and British, "so:so" (about half and half).
- (2) Swaraj / SG within the British empire:
  - (a) symbolic sovereign British, external British, domestic significantly with Indians (75% or more)
  - (b) Dominion Status = domestic 100% with Indians.
- (1) Purna Swaraj: symbolic sovereign Indian, external Indian, domestic Indian.
- (4) Philosophical:
  - Bhagat Singh = end of class oppression
  - MG's Swaraj = self-rule of each individual, no L, E, J, stateless society = enlightened anarchism.

Dominion Status 1947 and 1950: who holds sovereignty Lecture 28 slide 33

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 15 August 1947 = "Special Dominion Status":
  - Symbolic sovereign still British
  - external and domestic Indian.
- "Books simply say:
  - Dominion Status on 15 Aug 1947." 26 January 1950: symbolic sovereign also Indian
  - external and domestic Indian

1.7 Secular, pro-industry, pro-capitalism

- The Moderates were secular in orientation and actively promoted national unity.
- They believed in Capitalism and Industrialisation on British lines as the path to Indian prosperity.

Why the Moderates believed in capitalism Lecture 28 slide 38

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why capitalism? Before 1929, all examples of IR (industrial revolution) came via capitalists (the private sector).
- Japan from 1868 went through IR as "State aided Capitalism."

2 · Moderates' demands

STORY LINK

Because they believed in pressing the State by constitutional means, they made concrete demands. Ask: how many were political, how many economic, and how many were met?

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout says "Not a single one was met. The result of two decades of petitions and prayers was, in practice, zero." The slide splits the demands into POL (political) and economic.

2.1 Governance and legislative reform (the political demands)

MNEMONIC · THE MODERATES' POLITICAL DEMANDS

S E A T

The Moderates wanted a SEAT at the table of government.

S Secretary of State: abolish the 15-member India Council, so only one man to lobby

E Expand the ILC and PLCs, at least 50% indirectly elected

A Authority: genuine legislative powers, not advisory

T indianisaTion of the civil and military services (exam in India and Britain, age 23)

Order is free (demands 2.1 to 2.4), so the initials were rearranged; letters sit inside key words (aboliSh, Expand, Authority, indianisaTion).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Limited Self-Government in practice. Symbolic sovereign and external functions stay British
- domestic field = partnership.
- L (legislature): the Moderates wanted indirect elections, an elected majority and a powerful L.
- E (executive) = British ministers, split into CS (civil services) and Ms (ministers): the books focus on these.
- J (judiciary): books are quiet, but Indianisation can be considered a demand.
- Legislature tree:
  - Officers + non-officers
  - non-officers nominated or elected
  - elected indirectly or directly.
- The Moderates' demand lies in the elected, indirect end.

No.	Demand	Detail
2.1	Abolish the India Council	The 15-member advisory body sitting in London around the Secretary of State. Logic: lobbying one Secretary of State is easier than lobbying fifteen members of a Council
2.2	Expand the Imperial Legislative Council (ILC) and the Provincial Legislative Councils (PLCs)	With at least 50% indirectly elected members
2.3	Greater powers to the ILC and PLCs	Meaningful legislative authority, not just advisory roles
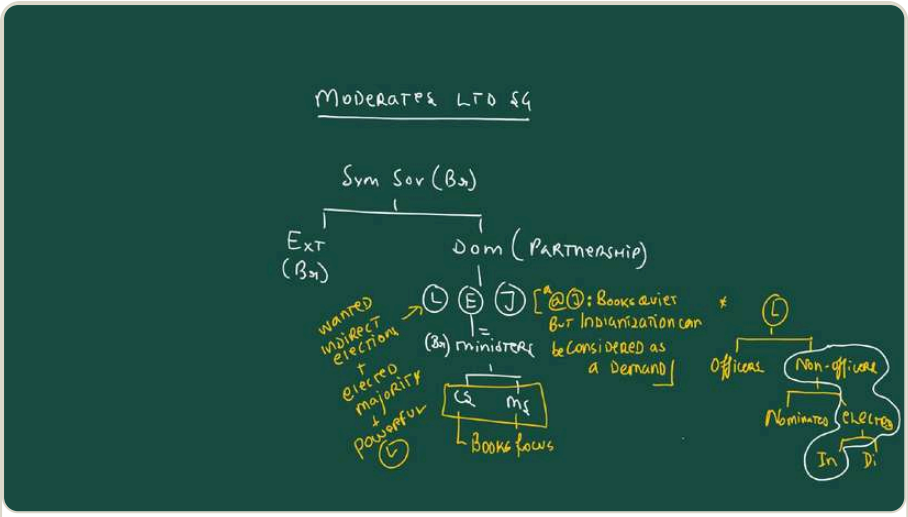
2.4	Indianisation of the Civil and Military Services	Hold the Civil Services examination simultaneously in India and Britain and raise the age limit to 23. This would make administration more responsive, less expensive and less racist. The demand for Indians at officer rank in the military was similarly rejected (the British could not imagine taking orders from Indians)



Limited Self-Government in practice: L, E and J Lecture 29 slide 1

HANDOUT NOTE

- Military aside (handout and slide): only after the 1st Round Table Conference of 1931 did Indian officer appointments begin in the military services, which led to the Indian Military Academy at Dehradun in 1932, though the British were careful in selection.
- Indian officers were recruited in real numbers only during World War 2, in response to INM demands.

Governance and legislative reform: India Council, councils, Indianisation Lecture 29 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- (1) India Council: stands where the BoC 1784 stood, from 1858, with members of a SoS for India (Chapter 17).
- (2.2) "at least 50% indirectly elected members".
- (2.3) read as genuine legislative authority.
- "1877-80: Press campaign on Indianization of CS" (last letters cut off).
- (2.4) simultaneous exam in India and Britain, age limit 23
- "officer-rank" refers to the MILITARY.
- Starting point, ICA 1861: ILC = Viceroy's Executive Council + 6 to 12 additional members, of whom half must be non-officials, who can be Indian or Anglo-Indian (Chapter 25).

London: SoS for India and India Council; legislature tree Lecture 29 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- London:
  - The SoS for India with the India Council of 15 members above the Viceroy and GG in India
  - star: President of the BoC 1784 (reads as the post the SoS stands in for, Chapter 17)
- Legislature:
  - Officers versus non-officers
  - Non-officers nominated or elected
  - Elected indirect or direct.
- The Moderates' demand (at least 50% indirectly elected) sits with non-officers, elected and nominated, "Indirect"
- Direct is outside it

2.2 Economic and social demands

MNEMONIC · THE ECONOMIC DEMANDS, ANSWERED BY PRAYERS

P R A Y E R S

Seven economic demands, and two decades of petitions and PRAYERS got zero.

- P PS 1793 extended outside Bengal
- R tRial by jury
- A Arms Act 1878 repealed (right to bear arms)
- Y Volunteer arm(Y): open to all, not the Martial Races
- E military expEnditure cut and shared (Boxer Rebellion)
- R indentuRed labour in Assam tea ended
- S Salt Tax ended and land revenue cut

Order is free (demands 2.5 to 2.11), so the initials were rearranged; every demand is used once.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "GUESSED:
  - Demands from previous chapters" (guessable from earlier chapters): IR of India (industrial revolution, Chapter 27's theme)
  - Government support for the private sector of India [capitalists]
  - tariffs that raise Indian exports of finished goods [machine-made] and lower British exports to India
  - lower taxes [Land Revenue + Income Tax (1860, 1868)]
  - lower expenditure on the large standing army
  - end of government monopoly on salt and opium
  - extend PS 1793
  - spread of Western education to the masses
  - better public works.
- "@BD" is noted beside the taxes line (not expanded; check your notebook).

No.	Demand	Detail
2.5	Decrease and share Military Expenditure	The Indian Army was used for British imperial adventures that had nothing to do with India, like the Boxer Rebellion (1899-1901) in China. Partially met, but no significant change
2.6	A Volunteer Army	Recruitment open to all, not restricted by the "Martial Races" doctrine. (Today India has a volunteer army: anyone can apply.) The British rejected it, fearing disaffection, especially if Marathas and Bengalis joined in large numbers

No.	Demand	Detail
2.7	Trial by Jury	The right to be judged by a jury of peers rather than by colonial officers
2.8	Repeal of the Arms Act 1878	It had disarmed ordinary Indians. Framed as a Right to Bear Arms for self-defence, not as a call to violence
2.9	Decrease Land Revenue and end the Salt Tax	The Salt Tax is the same tax Gandhi attacked in the Salt March 1930; a grievance for decades
2.10	Extend the Permanent Settlement of 1793 (PS 1793) outside Bengal	So that Land Revenue could not be arbitrarily increased. Partly a principled demand, partly self-interested (see Section 3.4)
2.11	End the exploitation of Indentured Labourers in Assam Tea Plantations	Workers bound to plantations under harsh contracts
	Outcome	No demands were met

Moderate economic demands: "Demands from previous chapters" Lecture 29 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

2.5: Boxer Rebellion (1899-1901) in China. 2.6: Martial Races doctrine is "of Peel Commission" (notes give no more; check your notebook). 2.7: [*RRR + Derozians]: trial by jury was raised earlier by RRR and the Derozians (Chapter 19 gives the demand to Roy and Young Bengal, so "RRR" reads as Roy; check your notebook). 2.8: "Right to Bear Arms for self-defence." 2.9: [GST] under the salt tax (analogy not spelt out on the slide). 2.11: Indentured Labourers = CONTRACT; Assam Tea Plantations; contracts. Outcome: "petitions and prayers."

HANDOUT ALERT

"Not a single demand was met" versus 2.5 "partially met." The handout says no demands were met (outcome) yet it also says the military-expenditure demand was "partially met but no significant change occurred." Learn it as: none met in any real sense; the military-expenditure one was only nominally touched.

3 · Weaknesses of the Moderates and the INC

STORY LINK

Because none of the demands was met, the chapter turns to why. Ask: who was in the INC, who was left out, and whose interests shaped its politics?

3.0 The teacher's frame: why they failed

MNEMONIC · WHY MODERATE POLITICS FAILED: THE TEACHER'S FOUR POWER FACTORS

Can Moderates Deliver Much

- C Claim to represent Indians: weak (UC WEMC from M, B, C)
- M Masses: no trust in them, no mass base
- D Demands: weak and class-coloured
- M Methods: weak (3P, gradual, part-time, a 3-day drama)

Order kept: the order of the teacher's board (Lecture 29, slide 6).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Moderates = politicians," so judge them on power factors.
- (1) Weak claim that the INC represents Indians: UC WEMC (upper-caste Western-educated middle class) from M, B, C (Madras, Bombay, Calcutta) = less pressure on the British. (2) Masses' support?
- No trust in the masses:
  - Not Western-educated, so they would not understand modern polity demands
  - Involvement would raise the chance of violence
- (3) Weak demands, shown by a bargaining story:
  - A mother negotiating with a shopkeeper (Rs 500 and Rs 2000, settlement Rs 1000)
  - Reads as: if your opening demand is small, the settlement is small (lesson not spelt out; check your notebook)
- (4) Weak methods:
  - 3P = Prayer, Petitions, Protests in the press
  - gradual
  - part-time politicians, starred "3 DAY annual DRAMA."

3.1 Uneven representation and the exclusion of non-elites

- The most serious structural weakness of the early INC was uneven representation and the total exclusion of non-elites.
- It was dominated by Western-educated professionals: lawyers, doctors, merchants and bankers, journalists, teachers, social reformers and landowners.
- Most members came from the three Presidencies (Bombay, Madras, Calcutta)
- the rest of India was hugely underrepresented.
- Even within the Presidencies, Bombay was over-represented, contributing roughly half the members, followed by Madras.

Reasons for failure: the four power factors Lecture 29 slide 6

- Bengal, despite having its own active political organisation (the Indian Association, 1876), sent only about 5 members to the first INC session, and only after being informed at the last moment.
- Until 1905, most INC members were high-caste Hindus: about 40% Brahmins and the rest from other upper castes.
- Impact: the INC's claim to represent the whole nation was weak, and a weak claim of representativeness hurt the success of every INC programme.

MNEMONIC · WHO WAS LEFT OUT OF THE INC

E L I T E

The INC was an ELITE club, and these five stood outside it.

- E Women (non-WEMC)
- L Lower castes (LC)
- I Muslims: a low share (6.5%)
- T Peasants
- E Workers

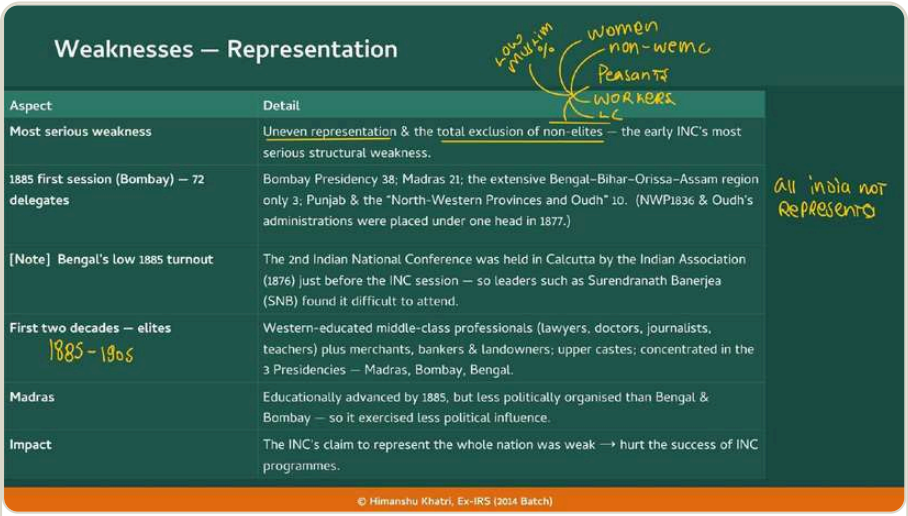
Order is free, so the initials were rearranged: the teacher's fan lists Low Muslim %, women, peasants, workers and LC. Letters sit inside the key words (wEmen, Low, MusIlms, peasanTs, workErs).



Weaknesses: uneven representation and the 1885 delegates Lecture 29 slide 7

Region at the 1885 session (Bombay)	Delegates (slide)
Bombay Presidency	38
Madras	21

Region at the 1885 session (Bombay)	Delegates (slide)
Punjab and the "North-Western Provinces and Oudh"	10 (NWP 1836 and Oudh's administrations were placed under one head in 1877)
Bengal-Bihar-Orissa-Assam (the extensive region)	only 3
Total	72

NUMBER CARD · THE FIRST SESSION: 72 DELEGATES

3 8 · 2 1 · 1 0 · 3

Big, medium, north, east: the numbers fall in steps and the East, home of the Indian Association, is smallest.

38 Bombay Presidency
21 Madras
10 Punjab and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh
3 Bengal-Bihar-Orissa-Assam (the handout says Bengal about 5)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Who is missing? Low Muslim %, women (non-WEMC), peasants, workers and LC (lower castes).
- "All India not represented" (last letters cut off) beside the 1885 row. First two decades, elites: 1885-1905.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Why Bengal's turnout was low (slide). The 2nd Indian National Conference was held in Calcutta by the Indian Association (1876) just before the INC session, so leaders such as Surendranath Banerjea (SNB) found it difficult to attend.
- The handout's reason is that Bengal was informed at the last moment.
- Both can be true
- Learn both
- Madras (slide): educationally advanced by 1885 but less politically organised than Bengal and Bombay, so it had less political influence.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout versus slide on Bengal's numbers at the first session:
  - The handout says Bengal sent "only about 5 members"
  - the slide's table counts the Bengal-Bihar-Orissa-Assam region as only 3 (the slide's region is wider than the handout's "Bengal")
- Treat it as "very few (3 or about 5)" and do not give a single exact number in the exam unless the question quotes one.
- Bombay 38 + Madras 21 + 10 + 3 = 72 is the slide's own sum.

HANDOUT ALERT

- The period of the composition figures differs.
- The handout says 1892-1905 (Hindus 90%, Muslims about 6.5%; 20% landlords, 40% lawyers, 15% traders) and "until 1905" for high-caste dominance.
- The slides print 1892-1909 for the same figures.
- The board gives 1885-1905 for the elite row.
- Quote the figures (90%, 6.5%, 40%, 20%, 15%) and write the period as "1892 to the early 1900s" if unsure.

3.2 Low Muslim participation

- Very few Muslims participated in the early INC.
- Badruddin Tyabji of Bombay became the first Muslim President of the INC at the Madras session of 1887: a notable exception.
- In the period 1892-1905, Hindus were 90% of members and Muslims only about 6.5%.
- Within the Hindu membership, Brahmins alone were roughly 40%.
- (The slide: the remainder were non-Brahmin Hindus, many upper caste, plus Muslims, Parsis and Christians.)
- Muslim participation dropped dramatically after the 1890s, and the INC made no concerted effort to reach out to the Muslim community.
- There was arrogance in this: a belief that the absence of a strong Muslim political party until 1906 meant no urgent effort was needed.
- When cow-killing riots broke out in 1893, the INC stayed silent and did not condemn the violence.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tyabji: Madras session (1887). The 1886 rule: Calcutta session, President = Dadabhai Naoroji.
- Census: Muslim population = 20%, against the INC's 6.5%: one-fifth of the people but about one-fifteenth of the INC.

3.3 The 1886 rule: avoiding social questions

STORY LINK

Because the INC wanted unity above all, it chose its fights carefully. Ask: why did it pick only Indian-versus-British issues, and what did that cost?

- To maintain unity, the INC took the pragmatic but damaging decision to avoid all social questions (caste, religion, social reform) until 1907. This was deliberate.
- Formal political resolutions (governance, civil services, economic demands) were the arena of the Congress.
- Communally sensitive social reform questions (caste, religion, personal law) were kept off the agenda because they risked splitting the fragile Hindu-Muslim-Parsi coalition before it had properly formed.
- The logic:
  - National political unity had to be built first
  - raising caste or religious reform in the INC would invite the very divisions the British hoped to exploit.

THE 1886 RULE: WHICH FIGHTS THE INC PICKED

Issues the INC could take up
- Whose side is the opponent on?

@ Indian against British	@ Indian against Indian
• Governance, civil services • Economic demands • Builds national unity	• Hindu-Muslim, upper-lower caste • Women, class issues • Would split the coalition
PICKED UP: the foreigner is the opponent	WON'T PICK UP: social questions shelved to 1907

The 1886 rule: social questions and why they were avoided Lecture 29 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Social issues = H-M (Hindu-Muslim), UC-LC (upper versus lower caste), Women, and CLASS issues: working class versus capitalist class
- Peasants versus the landed class. Why the 1886 rule?
- (1) to prevent the perception that the INC is pro-"xyz" group and not for all Indians
- (2) to prevent disunity among Indians
- (3) pick only issues where the opponent is a foreigner, so it is Indians versus Foreigner, which builds national unity
- therefore won't pick social issues.
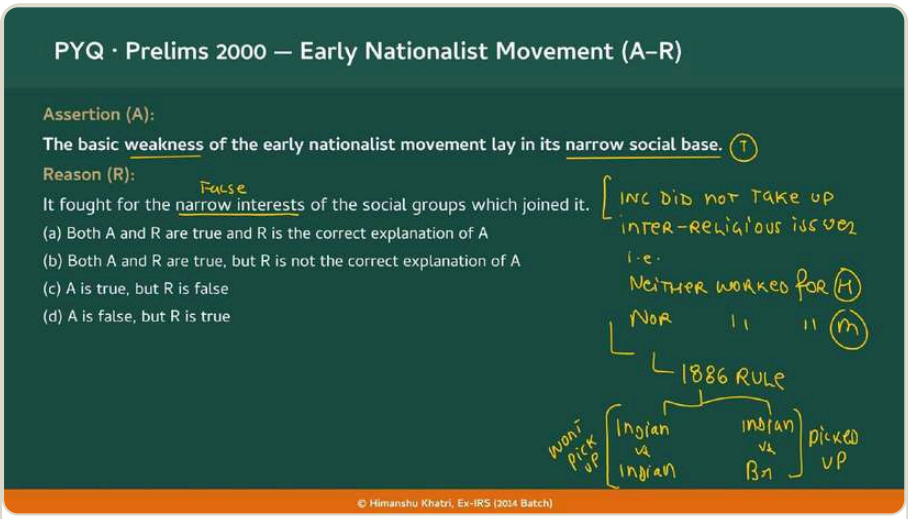
- A wordless triangle beside two stacks (UC, L, C and Landed/Capitalists, WEMC, Peasants, WC) reads as the class pyramid
- Check your notebook



PYQ Prelims 2000: Early Nationalist Movement, Assertion-Reason Lecture 29 slide 16

HANDOUT ALERT

Prelims 2000: A = T, R = False means (c); the bank key and the next slide agree. No conflict.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PYQ solution:
  - A ("weakness", "narrow social base") = T
  - R ("narrow interests") = False.
- Reason:
  - The INC did not take up inter-religious issues (neither for Hindus nor for Muslims as such)
  - under the 1886 rule Indian vs Indian issues were not picked up
  - Indian vs British issues were.
- So the movement had a narrow base of members but did not fight only for their narrow interests.

3.4 Commitment and social background

- Were the Moderates committed politicians? The commitment problem was real.
- Moderate leaders were mostly part-time politicians, with lucrative legal practices and other professional commitments.
- The INC was organisationally weak: it functioned more like an annual conference lasting three days than a genuine political party.
- (Handout analogy: the INC was the trade fair, not a company with a permanent office, year-round staff and a strategic plan.)
- Did their social background affect their politics? Yes.
- In 1892-1905 the INC membership was about 20% landlords, 40% lawyers and 15% traders, most from landed families. This shaped their positions:
- 1. No anti-Zamindar stand. They wanted PS 1793 extended outside Bengal, which was partly a fig leaf for protecting Zamindar interests: PS 1793 prevented the State from raising Land Revenue and so protected Zamindars from higher taxation.
- 2. They opposed the Punjab Land Alienation Bill of 1900, designed to stop indebted peasants from losing their land to moneylenders.
- It would have constrained land transfers, inconvenient for their class.
- 3. They did not champion working-class interests against Indian capitalists.
- Their stated position: only Indian Capitalism would remove poverty.
- They actively supported the workers of Assam Tea Gardens, but only because the plantation owners there were European.
- For labour reforms that would help Indian workers at the cost of Indian capitalists, they opposed them consistently.

Weaknesses: commitment and social background Lecture 29 slide 10

TEACHER'S BOARD

Keywords: "3-day annual conference" (the earlier board calls it a "3 DAY annual DRAMA") and "but favoured Indian capitalists over the working class." A wordless organisation tree (one head, a few leaders, a row below) is drawn: check your notebook for what was said about a real party's structure.

3.5 The Lancashire Lobby and the Factory and Mines Acts

STORY LINK

Because leaders were landlords, lawyers and traders, their class interest met a British trade interest. Ask: was the opposition to the factory laws wrong, or only complex?

- The Lancashire Lobby argument. The British were not passing these labour laws out of sympathy for Indian workers.
- British textile manufacturers in Lancashire were heavily lobbying for factory regulations in India, because stricter rules would raise Indian production costs and reduce the competitiveness of Indian textiles against British goods in global markets. The Moderates understood this game.
- They argued that India's infant industries needed room to grow, and that heavy regulation imposed prematurely would crush indigenous industrialisation before it had begun, keeping India permanently a supplier of raw materials (and an export market for British manufactured goods) rather than a manufacturing economy.

NUMBER CARD · THE THREE ACTS THEY OPPOSED

1881 · 1891 · 1901

One Act a decade, three Viceroys in order; only the first is 'imp'.

1881 Factories Act, Ripon 80-84: 100 workers; under 7 banned; 7-12 nine hours; fencing (imp)

1891 Factories Act, Lansdowne 88-94: 50 workers; ages 7 to 9 and 12 to 14; women 11 hours (not imp)

1901 Indian Mines Act, Curzon 99-05: first mining law (not imp)

TEACHER'S BOARD

Addition: competitiveness of Indian textiles against British goods in global markets "as well as Indian market." The Lancashire lobby hurt Indian textiles in the home market too, not only abroad.

Tariff example: who wins with a 50% duty Lecture 29 slide 12

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tariff example. British manufactured goods entering India: British manufacturers lobbied for down or zero tariffs.
- A British good of Rs 100 with 50% import duty sells at Rs 150, against an Indian good at Rs 130, so the Indian good wins ("if India has been independent", i.e. able to set its own duty).
- Britain: an Indian good at 100 pounds with 50% import duty becomes 150 pounds, against a British good at 130 pounds: the British good wins at home. Tariffs protect whoever sets them.

Act	Viceroy	Provisions	Teacher's mark
Factories Act 1881	Ripon 80-84	Applied to factories with 100 or more workers. Banned employment of children under 7. Restricted working hours for children aged 7-12 to 9 hours per day. Mandated fencing of hazardous machinery	"Famous, therefore imp"; board adds "+ 4 monthly holidays"

Act	Viceroy	Provisions	Teacher's mark
Factories Act 1891	Lansdowne 88-94	Extended coverage to factories with 50 or more workers. Raised the minimum working age from 7 to 9, and the upper child-labour age (definition of child) from 12 to 14. Capped women's working hours at 11 hours per day with a 1.5-hour rest interval	"not imp"
Indian Mines Act 1901	Curzon 99-05	The first major regulation of mining conditions. Set a minimum age for child labour in mines and improved working conditions for women and children underground	"not imp"

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The 1881 Act is the one to know ("famous, so important"): 100 workers, under 7 banned, 7-12 limited to 9 hours, machinery fenced, plus 4 holidays a month.
- The 1891 and 1901 Acts are not imp: know them only as the expansion (50 workers; ages 9 and 14; women 11 hours) and the first Mines Act.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's closing remark on these Acts (the slide prints it as a box): whether the Moderates were right or wrong to oppose them is a complex question.
- The Lancashire Lobby motive was real, the British were not philanthropists, but the consequence of Moderate opposition was that Indian workers, including children, continued to labour under harsh conditions for longer than necessary.

3.6 Why Moderate politics failed: the two structural problems

- The failure came from two structural problems that reinforced each other:

Structural problem	Detail
1. They did not represent the masses	Roughly 90% Hindu, overwhelmingly drawn from the lawyer and landlord classes: not a cross-section of India, but a sliver
2. They distrusted the masses	They refused to mobilise them, fearing that popular agitation would turn violent and become an uncontrolled mass movement
Consequence	A movement that neither represented the people nor threatened to unleash them carried no real pressure. The government could easily ignore petitions from a few hundred educated professionals with no mass base. Without the threat of popular disruption, the British could easily ignore the Moderates

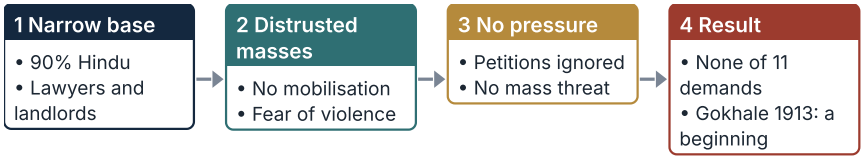
WHY THE MODERATES WERE IGNORED



4 · Goals and methods

STORY LINK

Because the Moderates were gradual, the chapter closes on their goal, their methods and the verdict. Ask: why were they called mendicants, and what did Gokhale say in their defence?

- Goals. Their goal was limited: Self-Government within British rule.

MNEMONIC · GOAL LADDER OF THE INC, IN ORDER

Little Steps Deliver Dominion, Purna

- L Limited Self-Government, 1885-1906 (the Moderates)
- S Self-Government within the empire, 1906 (Home Rule, Canada and Australia lines, Swaraj)
- D Dominion Status in spirit, 1916 (the words not used)
- D Dominion Status named, 1928
- P Purna Swaraj, 1929

Order kept: five rungs, dated 1885, 1906, 1916, 1928, 1929.

- They wanted only the removal of the undesirable aspects of British rule, not British rule itself
- as Surendranath Banerjea put it, to end "Un-British Rule." Their ultimate vision was Self-Government like Canada or Australia: dominion status, not independence.

Goal of the INC: the ladder from Limited SG to Purna Swaraj Lecture 28 slide 34

TEACHER'S BOARD

- INM was a movement of GRADUALISM, e.g. in its GOALS.
- Goal ladder:
  - Limited Self-Government (1885-1906)
  - Self-Government within the Empire (1906) = "SG / Home Rule / SG on lines of Australia and Canada / Swaraj"
  - Dominion Status (1916), but the words "Dominion Status" were not used (goal: "equal status with other self-governing dominions of the empire")
  - 1928: Dominion Status named
  - Purna Swaraj (1929).
- The Moderates belong to the first rung (1885-1906).

- Methods. Prayers and petitions to the government
- Resolutions at annual sessions
- The press to express opinions
- A rich culture of debates. No mass action. No agitation on the streets. Their approach was Gradualism.

Adoption: how the Moderates came to their methods Lecture 28 slide 37

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three stages of "ADOPTION." Stage 1: the Brown Sahib (educated Indians who copied the British) faces discrimination ("You vs white, children Biological"; reads as an adopted child set against the white family's biological children; check your notebook). Stage 2: petitions and requests.
- Stage 3: protesting letters (articles), like WhatsApp messages, and long debates.
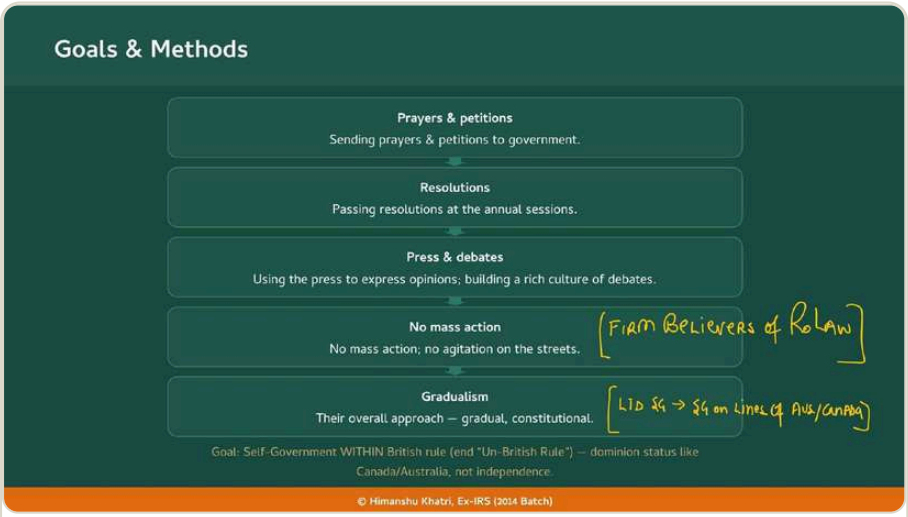
- Stages 2 and 3 are "for legitimate demands." Memory image: "Think like a one-sided love story's lover": keep asking, writing and waiting for a reply that does not come.



Goals and methods: five boxes Lecture 28 slide 39

TEACHER'S BOARD

- No mass action [FIRM BELIEVERS of Ro Law]: they refused the street because they believed in the Rule of Law.
- Gradualism [LTD SG to SG on lines of Australia / Canada]: the gradual path runs from Limited Self-Government to self-government like Australia and Canada.

4.1 The label: "Strategy of Mendicancy"

TEACHER'S BOARD

Critics, and later the Extremists, called the Moderate methods the "Strategy of Mendicancy," that is, begging: the methods created little pressure on the British.

4.2 Defence of the Moderates (Gokhale, 1913)

- To be fair to them, Gokhale noted in 1913 that had the Moderates not followed these methods, the British would not have allowed the formation of the INC at all.
- And the culture of direct confrontation with the colonial government had not yet developed.
- A movement that begins with petition and prayer is not necessarily weak: it is building the institutions and culture of politics for a country that had never had a national political organisation.
- The INC of 1885 was the beginning of something, not the end.

Chapter 27: Moderates: Positives & Drain Theory

The other half of the Moderates: nation building, a culture of parliamentary politics, support for Indian capitalists and the Drain Theory (the handout's index for the next chapter).

Chapter 24: INC 1885 & English Political Reformers

The first session (Bombay, 72 delegates) and Bonnerjee as the first President are the starting point for the Moderates' composition and politics.

Chapter 25: Indian Councils Act, 1861

The teacher's margin note ICA 1861 (ILC = Executive Council + 6 to 12 additional members, half non-officials) is the baseline for demands 2.2 and 2.3.

Chapter 28: Indian Councils Act of 1892 (Lord Cross Act)

Demands 2.2 and 2.3 (expand the councils, indirect election, genuine powers) are what the next Act is read against.

Chapter 29: The Extremists and the Swadeshi Movement (1905-11)

The Extremists coined "Strategy of Mendicancy"; mass methods answer the Moderates' distrust of the masses.

Chapter 31: Rise of Organised Muslim Politics and Morley-Minto Reforms

The handout says the absence of a strong Muslim political party until 1906 made the INC complacent about outreach.

Chapter 16: Land Revenue Systems (1765-1885)

PS 1793, which the Moderates wanted extended outside Bengal, and why it protected Zamindars.

Chapter 17: Constitutional History of EIC's British India (1773-1858)

The India Council of 1858 and the Board of Control of 1784 (the teacher's arrow on demand 2.1).

Chapter 19: Social Reforms, Education Reforms & Print Culture

The WEMC, the trial-by-jury demand (RRR and the Derozians) and the social questions the INC shelved in 1886.

Chapter 15: British Imperial Ideology

The isms the teacher lists (Orientalism, Authoritarianism, Racism, Liberalism, Utilitarianism, evangelicalism); the Moderates took only Liberalism and Utilitarianism.

Chapter 1: The Advent of the Mughals

The sovereignty board (symbolic sovereignty, external functions D, C, FA, domestic functions) used to define Limited Self-Government.

Chapter 36: Mahatma Gandhi's Ideology

The teacher's board on MG's methods (Satyagraha, Non-Cooperation, Civil Disobedience) and MG's philosophical Swaraj.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Nation building: the first goal in 1885 (building national unity); Naoroji's 1886 rule (political questions only); the 1888 veto; the 1889 Minority Clause (the INC, not the Muslim League, first demanded minority seats); rotating sessions with a non-host President
- The Drain Theory and its people: Naoroji's Poverty & Un-British Rule in India (1901), Dutt's two volumes (1902, 1904), Ranade as father of Indian economics; 'Un-british' = Naoroji; Sir Syed as the one who did not believe in the theory (1996, 2008, 2013, 2015)
- British industrialisation: commercialisation of agriculture as the 19th-century economic result, handicrafts ruined, no heavy industries (1999, 2018, 2020); Suez Canal 1859-69 and 4,500 miles; steam engine 1769
- Components of the drain (the teacher wrote PRELIMS on both slides): Dastak misuse, Plassey plunder 1757-65, LR from 1765; no protective tariffs until World War I (1914-19), exchange rate, Council Bills (post-1833), EIC forex
- Home Charges ('imp for Prelims'): Home = Britain, the eight heads (seven on the slides), army abroad = drain but not an HC, the 2011 key (d) 1, 2 and 3 (the teacher's ink would mark (b) 1 and 2: 'I would have marked this even if Ans Key in market say (d)'); people PYQs: Gokhale (1997, 2008) and the AINLF jurists Setalvad, Rau, Alladi (1997)

MAINS HOOKS

- To what extent did the role of Moderates prepare a base for the wider freedom movement? (year not given in the bank)
- The teacher's frame 'positives of the Moderates': nation building and parliamentary culture, plus the Drain Theory beating the White Man's Burden narrative
- How are Drain and Swaraj connected? Britain misused control of our sovereign functions because we lacked SG, the power of L, E, J
- If a question is on the Drain of wealth: pre-1813 (Plassey Plunder, LR) against post-1813; for the Moderates' Drain Theory write the post-1813 drain
- Did British rule modernise India? Railways (5% guarantee, FDI became FD), canals (25% irrigated), 'drain only 2%' and Naoroji's compounding reply (the teacher writes 'mmp' beside the whole debate)

The Moderates built a nation before they asked for rights, then proved with data that British political control was a machine for moving India's wealth to Britain.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Because India in 1885 had no single political community, the Moderates built unity and a parliamentary habit, backed Indian capitalists, and then proved with the Drain Theory that Britain used its political control to move India's wealth away. The drain ran through plunder, tariffs, exchange rates, Council Bills and Home Charges, so the economic critique became a demand for Swaraj.

1. A land with no single people. In 1885 the first INC session at Bombay declared its goal as building national unity. India was a land of regions, languages, castes and religions with no pre-existing single political community, so the Moderates decided that building one came before demanding rights from the British.

   → So how do you build a nation inside a Congress?

2. One versus only. In 1886 Naoroji laid down the informal rule that the INC takes only political questions, not social or class ones, so the fight is Indians against British and not Hindu against Muslim, upper against lower caste, men against women, worker against capitalist or ryot against landlord. In 1888 the INC added a veto (no resolution if the majority of Hindu or Muslim members disagree) and in 1889 the Minority Clause, the INC's own demand for reserved seats in the ILC and PLCs.

   → Rules alone do not make leaders, so the structure had to help.

3. The host never presides. Each session was held in a different part of the country and the President was never from the host region. A Marathi leader presiding in Calcutta and speaking to Bengali concerns builds an all-India leadership and inter-regional bonds, nation building by simple design.

   → Those sessions also taught India a new habit.

4. A parliament before a parliament. The President functioned like a Speaker and members spoke, debated and voted on resolutions, which was new for India. Today's Lok Sabha procedures have their roots in the culture of INC sessions, so the modern political era began with the INC.

   → But a nation also needs an economy, and the Moderates had a view on that.

5. Why back the capitalists? The Moderates were not anti-poor, they were pro-industrialisation: every industrialised country had risen on its capitalist class, communist industrialisation was born only in 1917 and showed results after 1929, and Indian capitalists were struggling against British imports and British firms in India.

   → Yet their sharpest weapon was an idea about wealth leaving India.

6. The Drain Theory. After the disappointment with the Indian Councils Act of 1892 the Moderates built the Drain Theory: an evidence-based argument that Britain used its political control over the Indian State for its own economic benefit, so the White Man's Burden was false. Naoroji (Poverty & Un-British Rule in India, 1901), R.C. Dutt (1902 and 1904) and Ranade (father of Indian economics) made it, spread by press, speeches and books.

→ The teacher first separates rupees from wealth, then asks how the machine worked.

7 How British factories rebuilt India. Before British industrialisation India was a net exporter of finished goods. Afterwards it was a raw-material source and an export market: farms grew cotton, indigo, jute and opium for British mills, handicrafts were destroyed, and artisans with no Indian factories to join were forced into an overburdened agriculture.

→ Then steam made the pump faster.

8 Steam, rail and the Suez shortcut. The steam engine (1769) later brought machines, ships and railways, and the Suez Canal (1859-69) cut the sea distance by 4,500 miles. The teacher's board shows the rail-road-port loop carrying raw materials out and finished goods in, with railways built under Dalhousie 48-56 for the army, and he writes that the loot escalated.

→ Now, how exactly did the money leave?

9 Plunder first, policy later. Before 1813 the drain was Dastak misuse, the Plassey plunder of 1757-65 and land revenue from 1765. After 1813 it was policy: no protective tariff until World War I, a managed exchange rate that favoured British business, and Council Bills in which the importer's forex stayed in London and the GOI paid rupees from taxpayers.

→ And then the bills were sent in the name of Britain's services.

10 The cafe bill and the double drain. Home Charges are what India paid Britain for goods and services Britain said it gave, Home meaning Britain; the teacher says to think like a British nationalist, since the bill reads as services (governance and security of the territory), goods (stores), stability (War Office) and development (FDI interest). The eight heads include salaries and pensions, EIC dividends, loan and foreign-debt interest, India Office costs, stores, War Office payments and FDI interest. The army abroad is a drain but not an HC, because India gave that service. India sold more than it bought in rupees (Ex > Im) yet lost the forex it earned, a trade surplus but a wealth deficit, the double drain.

→ The British had answers, and the notes have replies.

11 Railways, canals and only 2 per cent. The teacher marks this whole debate 'mmp'. The British pointed to railways (but with a guaranteed 5% in London, army purpose, 78% coverage by 1947; on his board FDI became FD: free land on a 99-year lease, buy-back, losses on the Indian taxpayer), canals (but only 25% irrigated, outside Permanent Settlement areas, water not free) and said the drain was only 2%. Naoroji replied that 2% was surplus capital that would have compounded, and the chapter closes that the critique was inseparable from the demand for Swaraj.

In simple words

- The Moderates saw that India had no single political community in 1885, so the INC's first goal was building national unity: political questions only (1886), a communal veto (1888), the Minority Clause (1889) and rotating sessions.
- INC sessions copied parliament (President like a Speaker; speak, debate, vote), and the Moderates backed Indian capitalists because they wanted industrialisation and no communist model existed yet.
- Their great idea was the Drain Theory:
    - Britain used political control over the Indian State to take economic benefit, so the White Man's Burden was false
    - Naoroji, Dutt and Ranade built it with books, press and speeches
- British industrialisation made India a raw-material source and export market: cash crops, ruined handicrafts, artisans pushed into overburdened agriculture
- Steam transport and the Suez Canal made the loot faster
- The drain ran through Dastaks, the Plassey plunder and LR before 1813, then no protective tariffs, a managed exchange rate, Council Bills and Home Charges, and India lost both raw material and forex.
- The British replied with railways, canals and 'only 2%' (all marked 'mmp')
- The notes answer each (the army, the 5% guarantee that made FDI become FD, 25% irrigated, Naoroji's compounding) and tie the drain to the demand for Swaraj

Key term	In plain words
Drain Theory	The evidence-based argument that Britain used political control over the Indian State for its own economic benefit

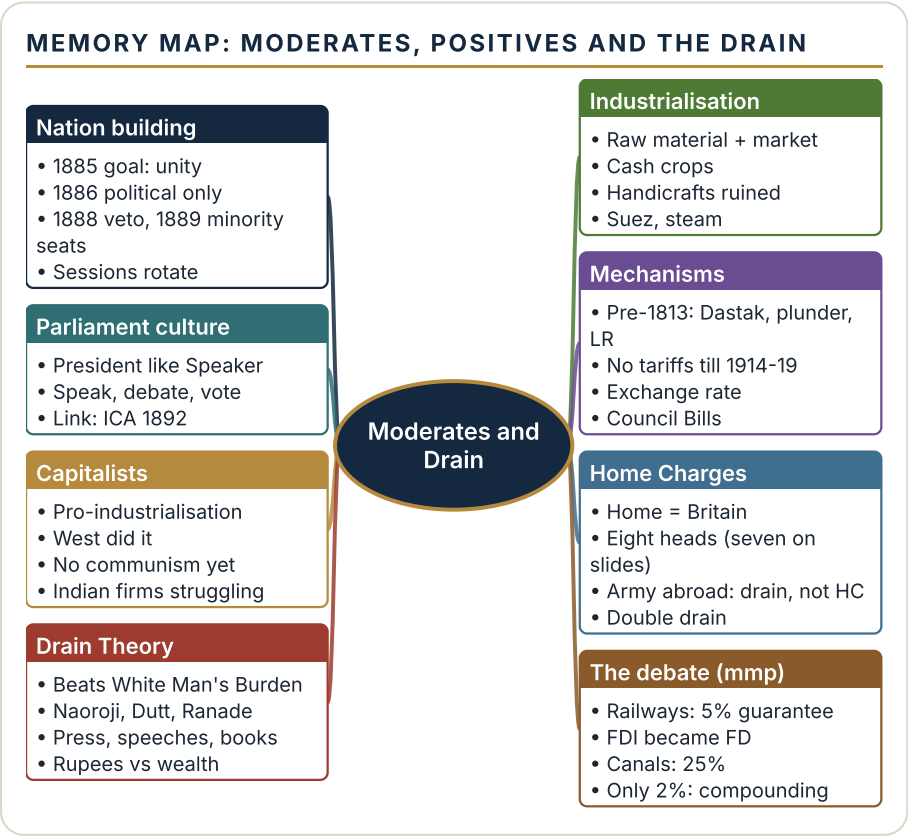
Disguised unemployment	Too many people on too little land, each far less productive, after artisans were forced into agriculture
Protective tariff	An import duty that makes foreign goods dearer than home goods; absent until World War I (1914-19)
Council Bills (CBs)	Notes issued by the India Council in London; importers' forex stayed in London and the GOI paid rupees from taxes
Home Charges	Charges India paid Britain for goods and services Britain said it gave (governance and security of the territory, stores, stability, development); Home means Britain; the army abroad is a drain but not an HC
Double drain	Raw material shipped out and the export earnings (forex) drained too (CBs, Home Charges, FDI interest): Ex(Rs) > Im(Rs), a trade surplus but a wealth deficit
Economic frontier	The border where customs duties are collected (the teacher: IRS Customs under the Ministry of Finance)
AINLF	All India National Liberal Federation, 1918: the Moderate splinter from the INC (Setalvad, Rau, Alladi)

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS The Moderates built unity first, then proved with data that British control moved India's wealth to Britain, which tied the economic critique to Swaraj.

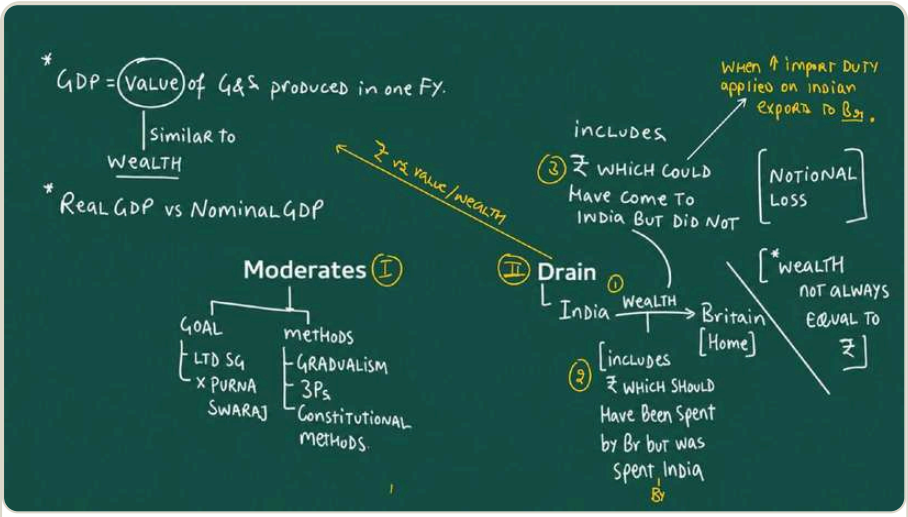
0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Story so far: the chapter has two halves, the Moderates' positives and the Drain.

Ask: which of the three positives on the board comes first?



The chapter on one board: Moderates and Drain Lecture 29 slide 19

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two halves: (I) the Moderates, (II) the Drain. (I) Moderates.
- GOAL = LTD SG, not Purna Swaraj (limited self-government; "x" over Purna Swaraj; SG = the power to do L, E, J on our sovereign functions).
- Methods = Gradualism, "3Ps," Constitutional methods.
- (II) Drain = wealth moving from India to Britain ("Home").
- Starred warning: "wealth is not always equal to rupees."

Answer frame: positives of the Moderates Lecture 29 slide 23

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Answer frame for "positives of the Moderates": (1) Non-Drain Theory: the project of national building and the culture of parliamentary politics (INC session functioned like a Lok Sabha / Rajya Sabha session), linked to ICA 1892 (Chapter 28; the reason is not written: check your notebook).
- (2) Drain Theory: the WEMC (Western Educated Middle Class) Moderates defeated the narrative of WMB (the White Man's Burden) through press, speeches and books.
- The rest of the chapter follows this structure.

1 · Nation building

STORY LINK

Because India had no single political community, unity came before rights. Ask: how did the 1886 rule, the 1888 veto and the 1889 clause each serve unity?

What was the first goal the INC declared?

- At the very first INC session in 1885 in Bombay, the Congress declared its goal as "building national unity."
- This was not an accident. India in 1885 was a land of regions, languages, castes and religions, with no pre-existing sense of a single Indian political community.
- The Moderates understood that building such a community was the first task, even before demanding rights from the British.
- So they made a deliberate choice to focus only on issues common to all Indians.
- In 1886, Dadabhai Naoroji laid down an informal INC rule: the Congress would take up only political questions, not social or class questions, because social issues could divide Indians against each other.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Key phrases: "building national unity" and "common to all Indians." Naoroji's rule (1886) is the method that delivers the goal.
- Also: "only political questions, not social or class questions" and "Congress = a platform against colonial rule."

- The handout's bracket explains the rule: only issues where it was Indians against the British, and not

Divide the Congress avoided	Pair
Religion	Hindu vs Muslim
Caste	Upper Caste vs Lower Caste
Gender	Men vs Women

Divide the Congress avoided	Pair
Class	Working Class vs Capitalist Class
Land	Ryots vs Landlords

- The Congress was to be a platform against colonial rule, not a forum for internal Indian disputes.
- For Hindu-Muslim unity the INC took two concrete steps:
- 1888 INC decision (the communal veto): no resolution would be passed by the INC if the majority of Hindu or Muslim members disagreed with it.
- 1889 Minority Clause: the INC demanded that the British government reserve seats in the Imperial Legislative Council (ILC) and the Provincial Legislative Councils (PLCs) for religious minorities, in proportion to their share of the population.

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR UNITY STEPS, IN ORDER

United People Value Minorities

U 1885: unity as the first goal (Bombay)

P 1886: political questions only (Naoroji)

V 1888: veto, no resolution if the majority of Hindu or Muslim members disagree

M 1889: Minority Clause, reserved seats in the ILC and PLCs

Order kept: the four steps follow the years 1885, 1886, 1888, 1889.

- Both show the Moderates tried to build a Congress that worked for all Indians.
- The 1889 clause is notable: it was the INC itself, not the Muslim League, that first formally demanded minority representation in legislative councils.

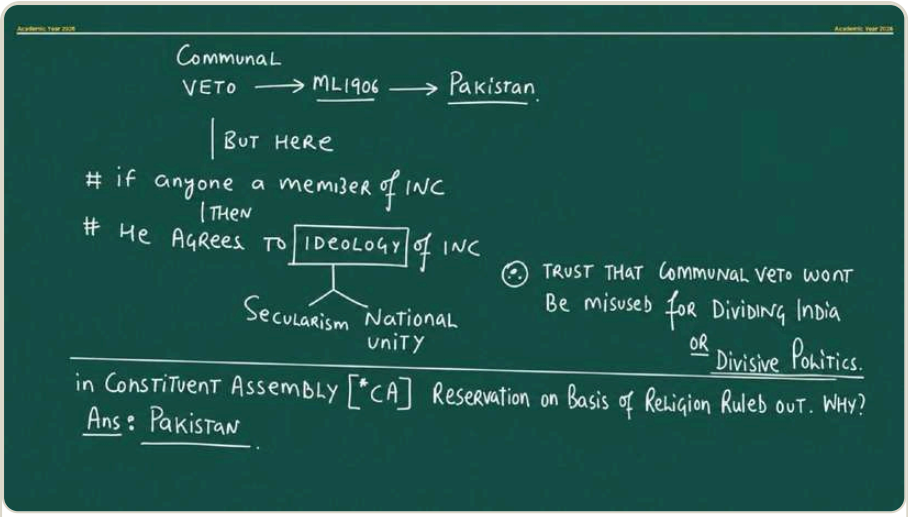
TEACHER'S BOARD

"No INC resolution would pass" (the veto). Margin: "Br have ML1906 veto power on constitutional progress -> Partition of India = appeasement." [Cramped; read as: the British gave the Muslim League (1906) a veto over constitutional progress, which led to the Partition of India, called appeasement. Check your notebook.]



Communal veto and trust in the INC Lecture 29 slide 26

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A communal veto normally leads to trouble:
  - "Communal VETO -&gt
  - ML 1906 -&gt
  - Pakistan." The INC's veto was different: anyone who is a member of the INC has agreed to its ideology, Secularism and National Unity.
- So there was trust that the veto would not be misused for dividing India or for divisive politics.
- Linked point: in the Constituent Assembly, reservation on the basis of religion was ruled out. Why? Answer: Pakistan.

Rotating sessions, non-host President

- Each session was held in a different part of the country, and the President was specifically not from the host region.
- The logic: a Bengali leader presiding in Calcutta builds nothing new.
- A Marathi leader presiding in Calcutta, speaking to Bengali concerns, builds an all-India leadership and creates inter-regional bonds that would not exist otherwise.
- The handout's picture:
  - A Bengali delegate or newspaper reader sees a Marathi president describe the problems of Bengal's peasants, and begins to see him as his national leader too
  - the Marathi leader, by visiting Bengal, becomes aware of Bengal's issues.
- This is nation building through simple structural design.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2013, the Naoroji trap. Statement 3 ("stressed the need for eradication of all social evils before anything else") is false: Naoroji's 1886 rule kept social questions out of the INC.
- Only statement 1 (exposed the economic exploitation of India) is right: answer (a).
- (The same PYQ is tagged again in section 3.2.)

2 · Building a culture of parliamentary politics

STORY LINK

Because unity needed a shared habit, INC sessions copied parliament. Ask: which parts of a Lok Sabha sitting did a session reproduce?

How did INC sessions contribute beyond passing resolutions?

- The INC sessions were consciously modelled on parliamentary practice.
- A President functioned like a Speaker.
- Members spoke, debated and voted on resolutions. For India, this was new.
- Watch a Lok Sabha session today: the procedures, the order of speaking, the formal adoption of resolutions all have roots in the culture built by INC sessions from 1885 onwards.
- That is why it can be said that the modern political era in India, in a true sense, began with the INC.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"In a true sense, India's modern political era began with the INC." Same idea as "INC session functioned like LS/RS session," linked to ICA 1892 (Chapter 28).

3.1 · The case for supporting Indian capitalists

STORY LINK

Because the Moderates wanted a modern economy, they backed capitalists. Ask: why was this pro-industrialisation and not anti-poor?

Why did the Moderates support Indian businessmen?

- The question causes confusion: supporting capitalists sounds against workers and the poor.
- But the Moderates' position was not anti-poor: it was pro-industrialisation.

Reason	The argument
Industrialise like the West	India needs to industrialise like the West. 19th-century industrialisation ran on capitalism. Every major industrialised country (Britain, the US, Germany, Japan) industrialised on the backs of its capitalist class
No communist model yet	Communist-led industrialisation (Soviet Russia) was born only in 1917 and showed results only after 1929. In the 1880s and 1890s that model did not exist. The Moderates worked with the tools available
Indian capitalists were struggling	They were not powerful monopolists. They were under severe competitive pressure from British imports flooding Indian markets and from British businesses operating inside India with the government's backing. An Indian capitalist in 1890 needed support, not criticism

MNEMONIC · WHY THE MODERATES BACKED CAPITALISTS

R I S E

The Moderates backed capitalists so that India could RISE.

R Russia's communist model came only in 1917, with results after 1929

I Industrialisation was the aim: pro-industrialisation, not anti-poor

S Struggling Indian capitalists faced British imports and British firms

E Every major industrialised country (Britain, US, Germany, Japan) rose on its capitalists

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word; R is the Russia item, E is 'Every' country.

3.2 · Drain Theory

STORY LINK

Because the ICA 1892 disappointed them, the Moderates built their sharpest idea.

Ask: why is wealth not always equal to rupees?

What is the most important intellectual contribution of the Moderates?

- Without question it is the Drain Theory: the systematic, evidence-based argument that British rule was economically exploiting India, not developing it, and that the entire claim of the White Man's Burden (WMB) was false.
- The theory gained particular prominence after the bitter disappointment with the Indian Councils Act of 1892 (ICA 1892), which failed to deliver any meaningful reform (see Chapter 28).
- Core idea: the British were using their political control over the Indian State to extract economic benefits for Britain.
- This was not charity or development: it was exploitation.
- The Moderates proved it with data and argument, building an economic critique of colonialism that was sharp, factual and difficult to counter.
- Ahead of its time: Lenin and Lala Lajpat Rai would later argue along similar lines, that colonialism is the product of British capitalism needing new markets and raw materials.
- The Moderates reached this conclusion through an economic lens well before it became a standard argument in global socialist circles.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Key phrases: "evidence-based," "White Man's Burden was false," "disappointment with the ICA 1892", "Britain used its political control over the Indian State to extract economic benefits for Britain," "colonialism as the product of British capitalism." Drain Theory = "WEMC Moderates defeated the narrative of WMB" through press, speeches and books.

The architects

Architect	Contribution
Romesh Chandra Dutt (R.C. Dutt)	Former ICS officer turned economic historian. Wrote The Economic History of British India (Vol. I, 1902) and India in the Victorian Age (Vol. II, 1904). A data-driven account of how British land revenue policy, trade regulation and fiscal management impoverished India. Gave the theory its historical depth and empirical backbone
Dadabhai Naoroji	Poverty & Un-British Rule in India (1901): the most systematic presentation of the theory and a landmark text in the economic history of colonialism globally
MG Ranade	Often called the father of Indian economics

TEACHER'S BOARD

Book-and-date matches: the two Dutt titles with their years, the Naoroji title with 1901, and "father of Indian economics" (Ranade).

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout figure adds facts not in the running text (a flow chart placed near the Drain Theory material).
- It is the source for the Prelims 2015 match (Naoroji, G. Subramania Iyer, R.C.
- Dutt are all economic critics) and Prelims 1997 (Gokhale).
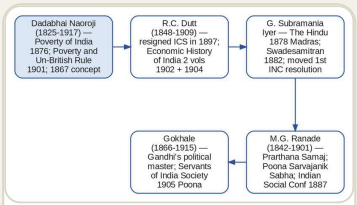
- The flow order is a layout, not a time sequence.



Economic critics and Moderate leaders (handout flow chart)
handout figure

HANDOUT NOTE

This second figure summarises the Moderates' contribution: the Drain Theory is the world's first economic critique of colonialism, "before Hobson, Lenin." (The running text says Lenin and Lajpat Rai argued similarly later.) "British Committee 1889" and "India journal" are not explained in this chapter.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1996 (answer d), Prelims 2008 and Prelims 2013: Sir Syed Ahmed Khan is the one who did not believe in Naoroji's Drain Theory (1996). 'Un-british' (as in Un-British Rule) is Dadabhai Naoroji (2008).
- The most effective contribution of Naoroji is exposing economic exploitation (2013: only statement 1). Prelims 2015: Naoroji, G. Subramaniam Iyer and R.C.
- Dutt were all economic critics: answer (d) 1, 2 and 3.

PYQ Prelims 1996: who did not believe in the Drain Theory Lecture 30 slide 13

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PYQ 1 (Prelims 1996): "did not believe" asks for the odd one out.
- Sorted into camps: Tilak = "extremist," and Dutt and Ranade together as "Drain Theory" (its architects).
- Answer (d) Sir Syed Ahmed Khan, loyal to the British and opposed to the INC's politics of self-rule
- Tilak stood inside the nationalist camp that embraced the economic critique
- [Why Tilak is labelled "extremist" is not written
- Read as a different political camp, not a rejecter of the Drain Theory.]

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PYQ 8 (Prelims 2013):
  - "T" beside statement 1 (exposed the economic exploitation of India), none beside 2 or 3
  - Answer (a) Only 1.
- PYQ 9 (Prelims 2015):
  - "T" beside 1 (Naoroji) and 3 (R.C. Dutt)
  - Nothing beside 2 (G. Subramaniam Iyer).
- The typed answer is (d) 1, 2 and 3, the same as the key.
- [Why 2 is unmarked is not written: check your notebook.]

HANDOUT NOTE

Typed answers add the wrong-option facts. For "Un-british" (Prelims 2008): Anandamohan Bose = Bengal Moderate organiser, Badruddin Tyabji = first Muslim INC President (1887), Pherozeshah Mehta = Bombay INC founder-figure; the phrase is Naoroji's (Poverty & Un-British Rule in India, 1901).

Two concepts the teacher builds before the mechanisms

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Rupees are not wealth. One keyboard sells for Rs 100.
- If the RBI prints Rs 20 more, it sells for Rs 120: inflation, but the value is the same (one keyboard).
- If a country exports minerals, rupees and forex come in, but wealth goes out (e.g. a poor African country selling minerals to the outside world).
- Middle East (crude oil, natural gas): to prevent the ill-effects of this drain, it is trying to use forex for diversifying and developing its economy.
- Hence the first board: "wealth is not always equal to rupees." [The slide's "Rs" is the rupee sign.]

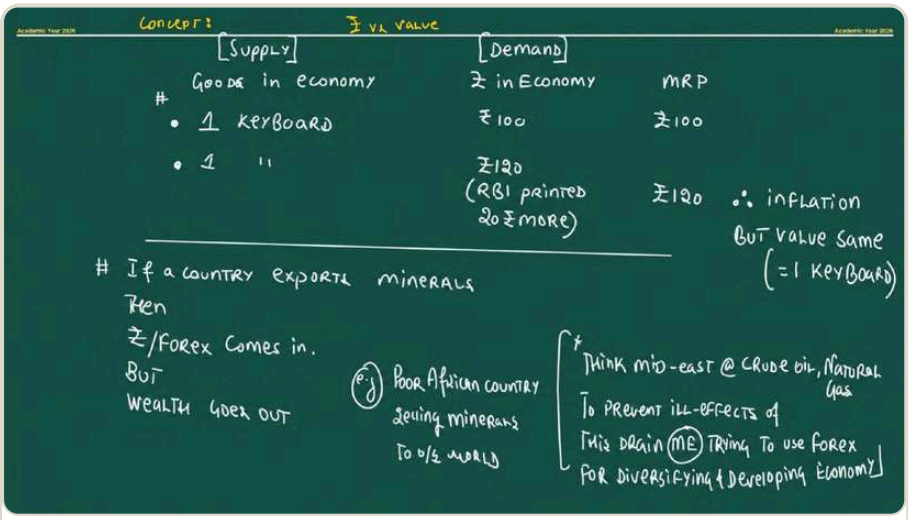
How Drain and Swaraj are connected Lecture 29 slide 21



Concept: rupees versus value Lecture 29 slide 20

TEACHER'S BOARD

- How are Drain and Swaraj connected? Britain misused its control over our sovereignty (sovereign functions) to ensure the drain of wealth from India. Why a drain?
- Because we did not have SG (self-government), the power to do L, E, J (legislative, executive, judicial functions) on our own sovereign functions.
- Same L, E, J shorthand as Chapter 8 and Chapter 10.

KEY TAKEAWAY

Drain Theory in one line: "The misuse of political power over the State of the Colony for the economic benefit of the Colonial Power." Handout's closing note: the economic critique was inseparable from the political demand for Swaraj: without self-rule, the drain could never be stopped.

If a question is on the Drain of wealth Lecture 29 slide 22

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "If a question is on the Drain of wealth": split into Pre-IR in Britain (1757-1813) and Post-IR in Britain (1813-1947).
- Pre-IR: Plassey Plunder (1757-65) and Land Revenue (LR) from 1765. Post-IR: the later mechanisms.
- "If the question is on the Drain THEORY given by the MODERATES, write the post-1813 drain." Why: the Industrial Revolution in Britain ran 1750-1850
- The EIC was a trader
- In 1813 the EIC's monopoly on British business with India ended, and industrialised Britain got access to the Indian economy.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Pre-1800s or pre-1813? The handout and slide title the periods "Pre-19th Century (pre-1800s)" and "19th Century (1813 onwards)"
- the board splits at 1813 (pre-IR 1757-1813, post-IR 1813-1947)
- Use 1757-1813
- "pre-1800s" is the slide's shorthand

3.3 · Impact of British industrialisation on India

STORY LINK

Because Britain industrialised, India was reshaped as raw-material source and market. Ask: where did the artisans go when no factory opened?

What exactly did British industrialisation do to India?

How British industrialisation changed India

- Before British IR: India = net exporter of finished goods (textiles, handicrafts)
- British industrial capitalism: India = (1) a raw-material source + (2) an export market for British factories
- Commercialisation of agriculture: cotton, indigo, jute (and opium) grown for British factories, not for food
- Handicrafts destroyed:
  - Artisans lose domestic and export markets
  - no Indian factories to absorb them
- Forced into agriculture:
  - Disguised unemployment
  - agriculture overburdened
- British industrial capitalism converted India into a source of raw materials and an export market for British factories.
- Before British industrial dominance, India was a net exporter of finished goods (textiles, handicrafts, processed goods).
- After, India became a net exporter of raw materials, while finished goods flooded back in as imports.
- This process is the commercialisation of agriculture: Indian agriculture was reoriented away from food crops and towards cash crops and raw materials for export to British factories.
- The peasants no longer grew what they ate
- They grew what Britain's mills needed: cotton, indigo, jute, opium (Prelims 2018)

- The handout's analogy: an African country that exports crude oil and imports refined products and machinery: the raw material goes out cheap, the finished product comes back expensive.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Br sells FGs (finished goods) to India, therefore India = [an export market] for Britain." Key phrases: "(1) raw-material source," "(2) export market," "Britain commercialised Indian agriculture," "(cotton, indigo, jute)," "Opium," "Handicrafts destroyed."

Crops: food versus cash crops Lecture 29 slide 33

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Crops = Food crops and Cash crops.
- Cash crops (jute, sugar, tea, cotton) are inputs (raw material) for the industrial sector.
- Commercialisation of agriculture (cash crops, "B") pushed out food crops ("A"), leading to FOOD INSECURITY [FAMINES].

Why machine-made goods beat handicrafts Lecture 29 slide 34

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Machine-made British goods beat Indian handicrafts: cheaper and better in quality.
- Cheaper through mass production:
  - The factory setup is a one-time cost (100 crore)
  - The first Bisleri bottle costs 100 crore, but rapid mass production has a low additional cost, so the Nth bottle's average cost is Rs 1.
- Artisan = skill, hands and tools make crafts (goods)
- Worker = physical labour on machines makes manufactured goods

- The Indian handicrafts sector was destroyed. Indian artisans lost both domestic and export markets.
- Since there was no industrialisation of India (no Indian factories came up to replace the handicrafts), the artisans had nowhere to go.
- They could not become factory workers and were forced back onto agriculture.
- The handout's contrast:
  - An artisan uses skill and hands
  - a factory worker uses labour and machines.
- The two are decentralised and rural versus centralised and urban.
- When the artisan is pushed off his trade but no factory exists, he falls back on the land.
- The result is disguised unemployment in agriculture: too many people on too little land, each doing far less productive work than they could.
- This is why the agriculture sector became overburdened.

- The handout: in a modern economy the worker works in machine-based factories and agriculture employs a small fraction. Britain achieved this transition. India was denied it.

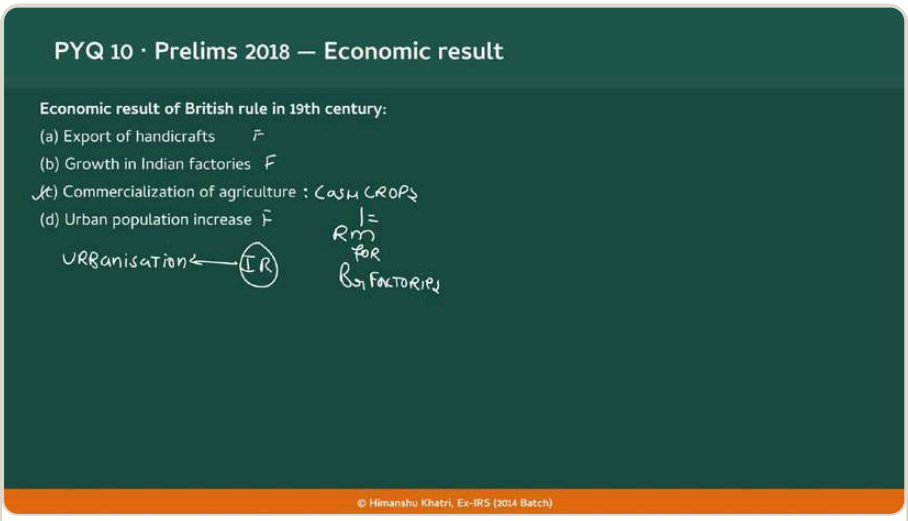
Industrial GDP, agrarian employment Lecture 29 slide 32

TEACHER'S BOARD

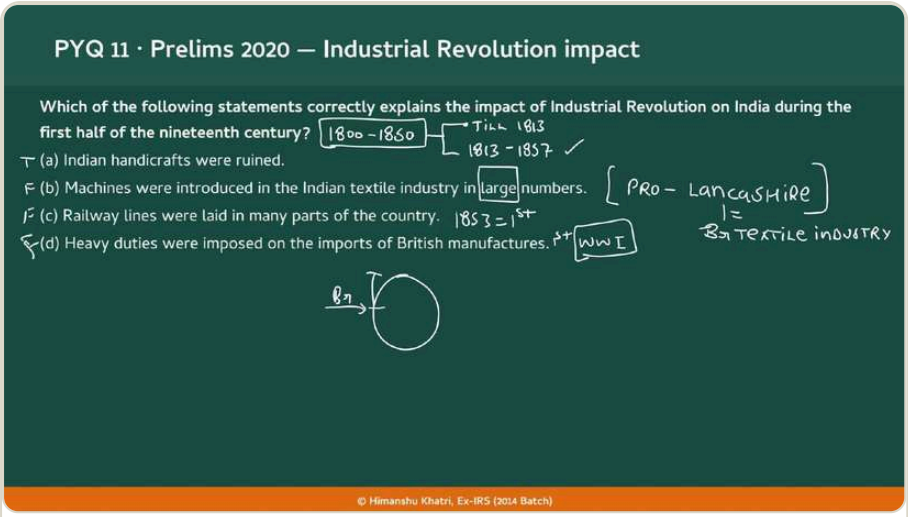
Two circles: in GDP terms the economy can be mostly industrial (agriculture a small wedge), yet in employment terms agriculture can still be the big circle: "Even in an industrialised GDP, agriculture can be over-burdened." (The point behind disguised unemployment.) Bracket: "Link: effect of AI" [no more is written; check your notebook].

HANDOUT ALERT

Prelims 1999, 2018 and 2020 land here. 1999: no independent development of industries because of the absence of heavy industries (a) (not scarcity of capital or resources, not the rich preferring land). 2018: the economic result of British rule in the 19th century was commercialisation of agriculture (c) (not export of handicrafts, not growth of Indian factories, not urban growth). 2020: the first-half-of-19th-century impact of the Industrial Revolution was that Indian handicrafts were ruined (a) (no machines, no railways, no heavy duties on British imports).



PYQ Prelims 2018: economic result of British rule Lecture 30 slide 32



PYQ Prelims 2020: impact of the Industrial Revolution Lecture 30 slide 34

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PYQ 4 (Prelims 1999): "F" beside (b) scarcity of foreign capital and (c) scarcity of natural resources.
- Answer (a) absence of heavy industries.
- Reasoning:
  - The drain shipped India's own surplus out, so capital was not scarce
  - India was the raw-material source, so resources were not scarce
  - The rich drifting back to land was a consequence of having no factories, not the cause

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PYQ 11 (Prelims 2020): "1800-1850" splits into "Till 1813" and "1813-1857" (the post-1813 frame). (a) "T" (handicrafts ruined).
- (b) "F", trap word "large" (no machine age came to India then).
- (c) "F", "1853 = 1st" (the first railway line is 1853, so not "many parts" in the first half).
- (d) "F", "1st WWI": the first protective tariffs came in World War I (section 3.4.2).
- Side note: "PRO-Lancashire = Br Textile industry" (British policy favoured the British textile industry).
- A wordless sketch of an arrow "Br" entering a circle through a gap [read as India an open door for British goods

The transport revolution

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Transport revolution = part of the Industrial Revolution
- It contributed to the Drain.
- Steam engine (1769) later led to (1) machines, (2) ships and boats, (3) railways.
- Suez Canal (1859-69) reduced the distance to the Arabian Sea by 4,500 miles (board note: 9,000 km)
- Route from Britain round Africa against the shorter route via Suez
- Impact on India: "LOOT escalated." Verdict: "Awesome stuff for the colonisers = hell for the people of the colonies."

HANDOUT ALERT

- Miles against kilometres. Handout and slide: Suez cut the India-Britain sea distance by 4,500 miles.
- The board writes "4500 miles (9000 Km)"
- 4,500 miles is nearer 7,200 km, so the 9,000 km does not match. Hold 4,500 miles.

- The revolution in transport made the drain worse, not better.
- Steam-powered railways, steam-fitted ships, paved roads, modern ports and the Suez Canal (built 1859-1869) made it cheaper and faster to extract raw materials from India and ship finished goods back.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Paved roads" = "Pakka roads." "State": an organisation that rules (T) and (ppl): territory and people [T read as territory].
- So "State of the Colony" = the organisation that rules the colony's territory and people, which Britain controlled and misused for its own economic benefit.

Rail-road-port system: raw materials out, goods in Lecture 29 slide 37

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Rail-road-port system = a one-way pump. In India (circle 1):
  - Raw materials (1.1) go by rail and road to the port (1.2)
  - By sea to Britain (1.3), the British port (1.4), then by rail to the factory, e.g. Lancashire (1.5).
- Finished goods (1.6) leave the factory, cross the sea (1.7), return to the Indian port, then by rail and road to the urban areas = the market (1.8).
- Demand comes from the rich with buying power
- Indian factories are at an infant stage (crossed out).
- Legend:
  - "Rail-Road infra in India [1850s] by Dalhousie 48-56 for faster movement of the army." [Code smudged, read as "48-56"

3.4 · Components of the Drain

STORY LINK

Because the drain had to run through some channel, the notes list the mechanisms before and after 1813. Ask: which mechanism needed no army, only a policy?

- How exactly did the money leave India? What were the specific mechanisms? The notes distinguish two periods.

3.4.1 · Pre-19th century (pre-1800s)

Source	Detail
Misuse of the Dastaks	Duty-free trade passes originally granted only for the EIC's own goods, but misused by Company servants for private trade (the teacher: "Loss of TAX revenue for India")
Plassey plunder + Land Revenue (LR)	The Plassey plunder of 1757-65, plus LR extraction from British India beginning 1765. The LR of Bengal, Orissa and Bihar formally began with the Treaty of Allahabad 1765 (see [[10
Result: the gold flow reversed	Earlier, gold flowed into India as payment for Indian goods. After Plassey and the acquisition of LR rights, gold flowed out of India

Cha pter 10]])

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "PRELIMS" above the title
- The period line is marked
- Key phrases: "misused by Company servants for private trade" and "Loss of TAX Revenue for India." (Dastak and Plassey Plunder: Chapter 10.)

3.4.2 · From the 19th century (1813 onwards)

- The modern colonial relationship developed: colony = source of raw materials and export market.

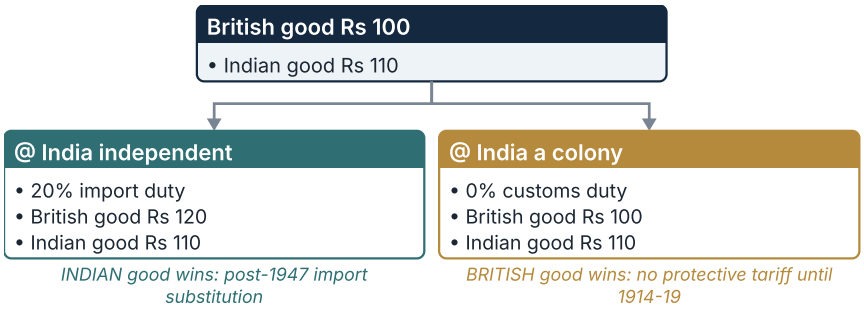
The 19th-century mechanisms, as the teacher numbers them

- (1) The colony's new role: a source of raw materials plus an export market for British factories
- (2) Absence of protective tariffs: no import duty on British goods until World War I (1914-19)

TARIFFS: WHO WINS AT THE FRONTIER?



INDIAN good wins: post-1947 import substitution

BRITISH good wins: no protective tariff until 1914-19

- (3) Exchange rate manipulation: the rupee-to-pound rate managed to benefit British businesses
- (4) Council Bills (post-1833):
  - Tax-financed trade
  - India got no forex for its exports

Components of the Drain: 19th century (1813 onwards) Lecture 29 slide 39

- Also: the EIC's own forex earnings (for example opium exported to China) taken to London

MNEMONIC · THE FIVE 19TH-CENTURY MECHANISMS, IN ORDER

Rulers Took Every Coin Fast

- R Role: the colony as raw-material source and export market
- T Tariffs: no protective duty until World War I (1914-19)
- E Exchange rate managed for British business
- C Council Bills (post-1833)
- F Forex earned by the EIC (opium to China) taken to London

Order kept: the teacher's (1) to (4) with the EIC's own forex last.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"PRELIMS" above the title. Mechanisms numbered (2) tariffs, (3) exchange rate, (4) Council Bills (CBs), with the colony's new role as the first (section 3.3). "World War I (1914-19), when protective tariffs were applied for the first time." Margin: "(1858) Council = India Council; Bill = like (Cheque)" [last word partly unclear: check your notebook].

(2) Absence of protective tariffs

TEACHER'S BOARD

- How a tariff protects. A British finished good costs Rs 100
- An Indian one costs Rs 110.
- (a) India independent: 20% import duty at the economic frontier, so the British good costs Rs 120 against the Indian Rs 110: the Indian good wins.
- (b) India a colony of Britain: 0% customs duty, so Rs 100 against Rs 110: the British good wins.
- The "economic frontier" is guarded by the customs service (IRS Customs under the Ministry of Finance).
- Case (a) = post-1947 import substitution.
- Bottom sketch:
  - Goods go in and out of a country
  - Forex moves the other way.

- No import duty was imposed on British goods entering India to protect Indian manufacturers.
- This policy lasted until World War I (1914-19), when protective tariffs were applied for the first time.
- The result: British goods flooded Indian markets and Indian manufacturers could not compete.

Absence of protective tariffs: the numbers Lecture 29 slide 40

(3) Exchange rate manipulation

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A weak currency boosts exports. An Indian manufacturer exporter, X, sells at $1 in the international market.
- Case A: $1 = Rs 50, X earns Rs 50.
- Case B: $1 = Rs 100 (weaker rupee), X earns Rs 100: Rs 50 extra, which buys one more factory and more workers, so more goods: GDP and exports rise.
- "This was done by China 1978 onwards." Colonial side:
  - "British kept the rupee STRONG, or the pound weaker than ideal" [my reading: Indian exporters were denied this boost and British exports stayed competitive in India
  - The board states only the two lines]

- Exchange rate manipulation: the rupee-to-pound rate was managed in a way that benefitted British businesses (the slide: keeping British exports competitive in India).
- The handout's analogy:
  - China has at times been accused of keeping its currency artificially undervalued to make Chinese exports cheaper
  - the British did something similar in reverse, managing the exchange rate to keep British exports competitive in India.

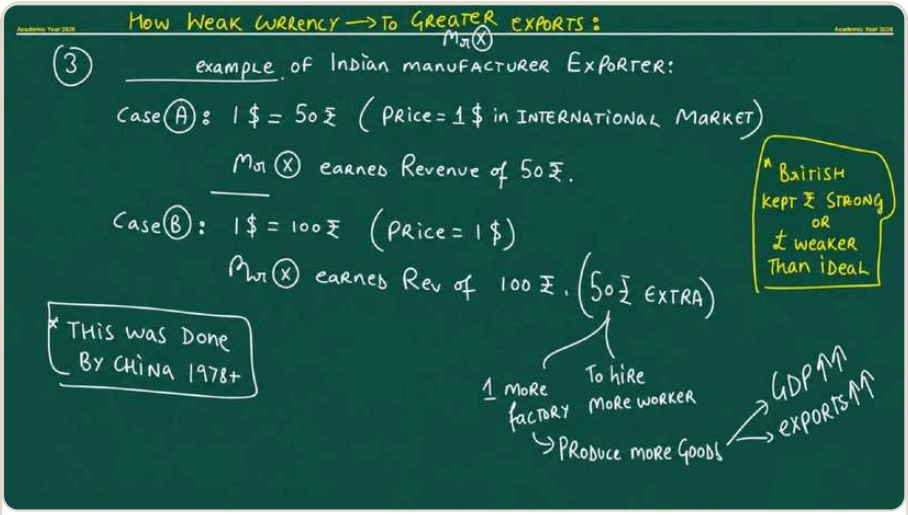
Monetary and fiscal policy interplay Lecture 29 slide 42



Exchange rate manipulation: weak currency, more exports Lecture 29 slide 41

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Interplay of monetary and fiscal policy:
  - The exchange rate is a monetary tool
  - Corporate taxes are a fiscal tool.
- Step 1: a weak rupee raises GDP and makes the industrialist richer.
- Step 2, after some years, corporate taxes are raised: the stimulus is taken back.
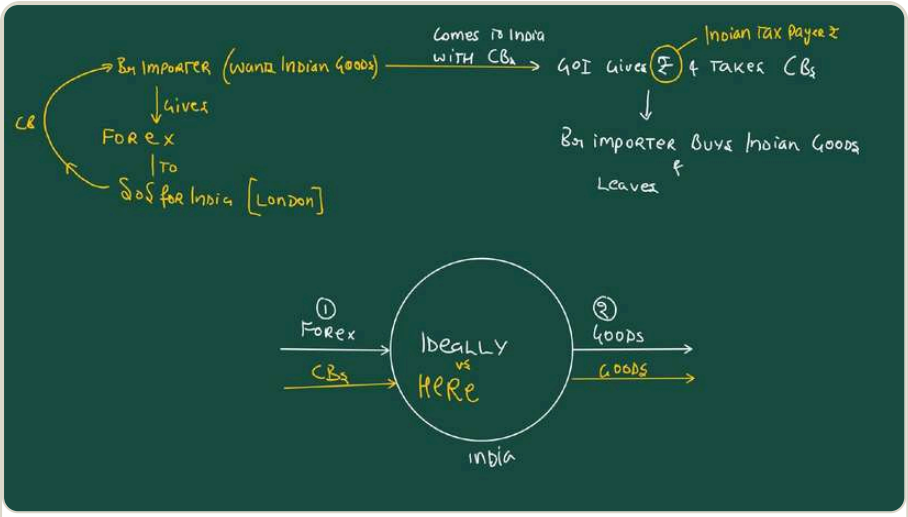
- [A side example of the two policies working together
- Not about the British.]

(4) Council Bills (post-1833): tax-financed trade

TEACHER'S BOARD

Council Bills are the most complex mechanism: "CBs, next slides."



Council Bills mechanism Lecture 29 slide 44

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Council Bill mechanism. A British importer who wants Indian goods gives forex to the Secretary of State (SoS) for India in London and gets a CB (Council Bill).
- He comes to India with the CBs
- The Government of India (GOI) takes them and gives him rupees: "Indian taxpayer rupees." He buys Indian goods and leaves.
- Ideally India gets (1) forex in and sends (2) goods out.
- Here India gets CBs in (not forex) and sends goods out.

Council Bills: tax-financed trade (post-1833)

- A foreign importer wants Indian goods: instead of paying forex to India directly...
- He buys Council Bills in London: pays the India Council in forex, which STAYS in London
- He uses the Bills in India: presents the Council Bills to purchase Indian goods
- The GOI pays him in rupees: from Indian taxpayer money
- Net result:
  - India got NO forex for its exports
  - The Indian taxpayer financed the trade
- The Secretary of State (SoS) for India held India's foreign exchange in London.
- When a foreign importer wanted Indian goods, instead of paying forex directly, he bought Council Bills (CBs), promissory notes issued by the India Council in London.
- He paid for them with his forex, which stayed in London.
- He then used the CBs in India to purchase Indian goods, and the GOI accepted the CBs and gave Indian rupees to the importer.
- The handout's picture:
  - A foreign buyer gives dollars not to India but to a London office and gets a voucher

- he uses the voucher in India to buy goods and gets rupees

- India got rupees (its own currency) but never the forex for its exports.
- And the rupees to pay the importer came from Indian taxpayers.
- So India did not get forex for its exports
- Indian taxpayer money financed this trade.

MNEMONIC · COUNCIL BILLS, STEP BY STEP

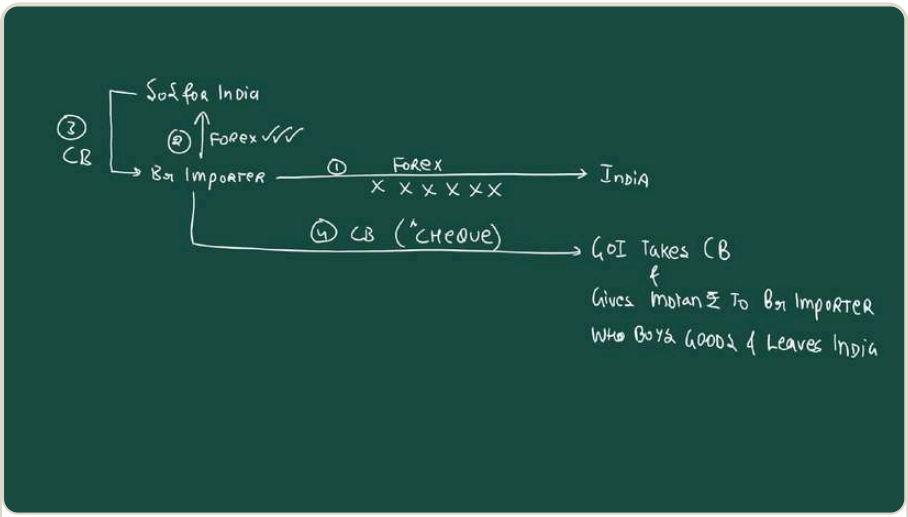
W	The importer wants Indian goods
B	He buys Council Bills in London; the forex stays there
U	He uses the Bills in India
G	The GOI pays him in rupees from taxpayer money
N	No forex for India's exports

Order kept: the five boxes of the teacher's flow. Council Bills are promissory notes.



Council Bills: the four arrows Lecture 30 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Council Bills in four numbers. (1) Forex from the British importer to India: crossed out (X X X X X)
- It never goes to India.
- (2) Forex goes up to the SoS for India (London): ticked.
- (3) The SoS gives the importer a CB.
- (4) The importer takes the CB ("*Cheque") to India
- the GOI takes it and gives Indian rupees to the British importer, who buys goods and leaves.
- The forex stays in London
- The rupees come from India

The EIC's own forex earnings

- The EIC earned forex by exporting Indian goods, for example opium exported to China.
- This forex too was taken to London and did not return to India.

3.4.3 · Home Charges

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "imp for Prelims." The Drain splits into two heads: (1) Home Charges, (2) not Home Charges.
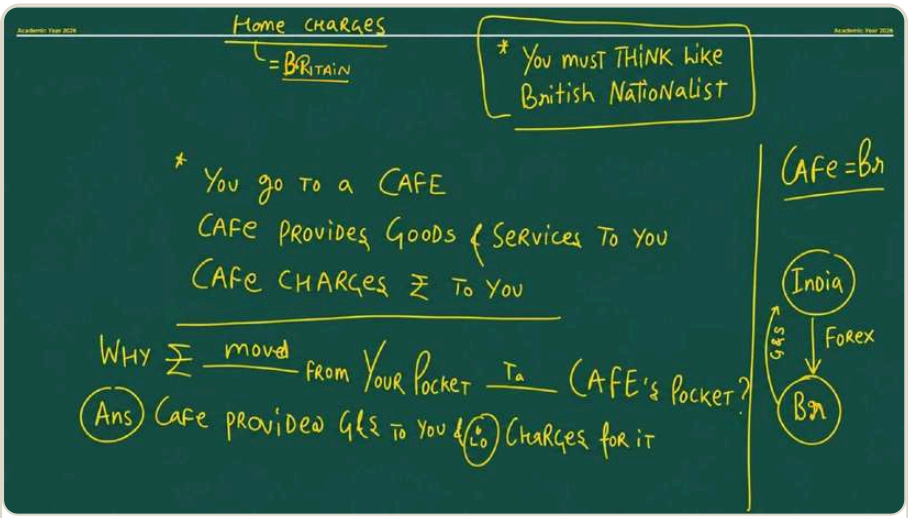
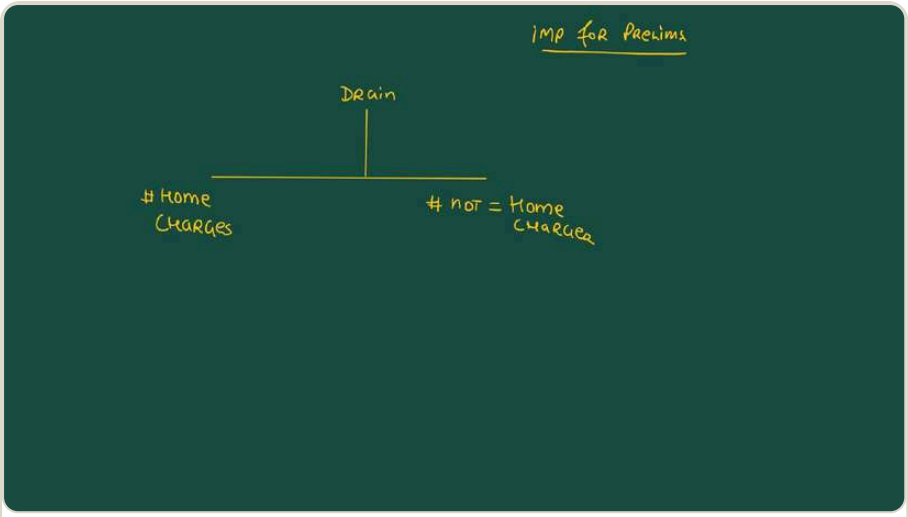
- The next board defines Home Charges.



Home Charges: think like a British nationalist Lecture 29 slide 46



Drain splits into Home Charges and not-HC Lecture 29 slide 45

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Home" in Home Charges means Britain, not India.
- Think like a British nationalist:
  - You go to a cafe
  - The cafe provides goods and services and charges you rupees
  - Money moved from your pocket to the cafe's because the cafe provided goods and services and charged for it.
- Cafe = Britain, you = India: India pays forex to Britain and gets goods and services (G&S) back.
- So Home Charges = what India was made to pay Britain for goods and services Britain claimed to provide.
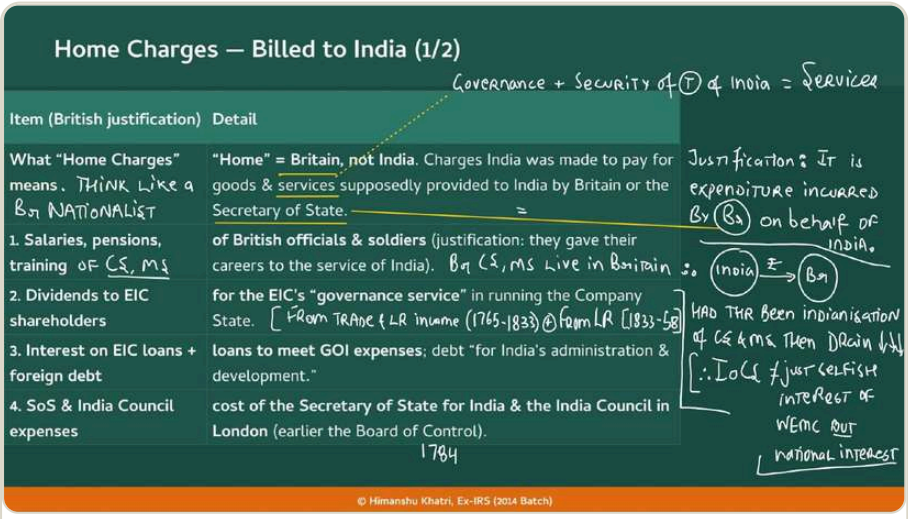
- [The circled word before "Charges for it" is unclear, probably "so".]

- Lecture 30 carries the list. The teacher numbers seven items (interest on EIC loans and on foreign debt share item 3)
- The table below and the mnemonic split it into eight



Home Charges, billed to India (1/2) Lecture 30 slide 1

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Think like a British nationalist." Key phrases: "Britain, not India," "goods and services," and "Secretary of State" = Br (the Secretary of State is Britain).
- Top right: "Governance + Security of (T) of India = Services" (T = territory): the "services" are governing and defending the territory of India.
- Justification: "It is expenditure incurred by Britain on behalf of India" (India -> Rs -> Britain).
- Row 1:
  - "Br CS, MS live in Britain, therefore" the rupees go to Britain [CS, MS read as civil and military services
  - Check your notebook]
- Row 2: dividends were paid from trade and LR income (1765-1833) plus LR alone (1833-58).
- Big bracket:
  - Had the civil and military services been Indianised, the drain would have fallen
  - So the demand for Indianisation was not just the selfish interest of the WEMC but the national interest (Chapter 26)
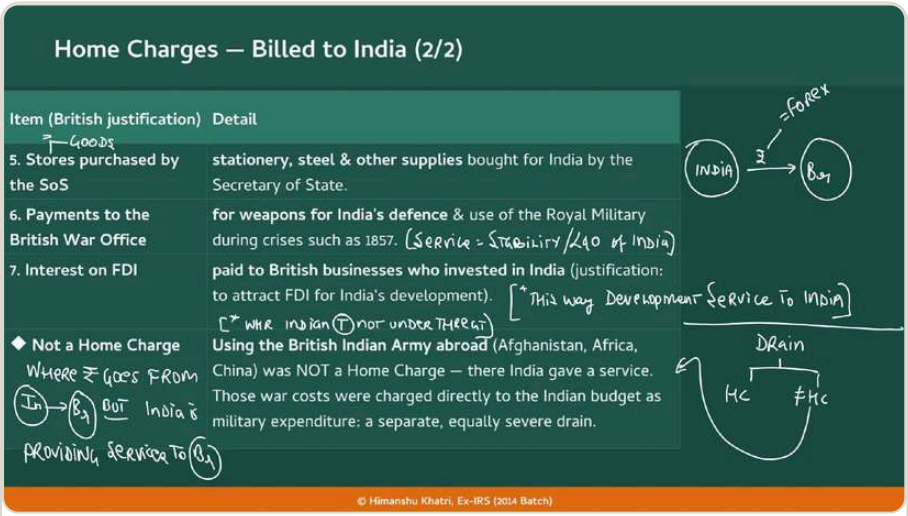
- [The abbreviation "IoCd" and the lone "1784" under the table are unclear.]



Home Charges, billed to India (2/2) Lecture 30 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Each item is dressed as goods or a service.
- Stores = "Goods." War Office = "Service = Stability / Law of India" [last word read as "Law"].
- FDI interest = "this way, a development service to India," and the territory was kept "not under threat" [the word "WHR" is as written].
- Rupees India pays Britain are forex leaving India (Rs -> Britain, "= FOREX").
- Not a Home Charge: "Where Rs goes from India to Britain BUT India is providing service to Britain": rupees leave India in both cases, but for the army abroad India gives the service, so it is a drain but not an HC.
- Tree:
  - Drain = HC + not-HC
  - the army abroad is the not-HC head

SOURCE

- The handout's definition. "Home" here means Britain, not India.
- Home Charges were charges that India was made to pay for goods and services supposedly provided to India by Britain or the Secretary of State.
- Each item carries the British justification of the day.

Home Charge (L30 slides 1-2)	The British justification
Salaries, pensions and training costs of British officials and soldiers	They gave their careers to the service of India
Dividends to EIC shareholders	The EIC gave governance service to India by running the Company State
Interest on loans taken by the EIC	Loans taken to meet expenses of the GOI
Interest on foreign debt	Debt incurred for India's administration and development
Expenses of the Secretary of State for India and the India Council in London (earlier the Board of Control)	(no justification written)
Purchase of stores and goods for India by the SoS (stationery, steel and other supplies)	(no justification written)
Payments to the British War Office for weapons purchased for India's defence, and for use of the Royal Military in crises such as 1857	(no justification written)
Interest on FDI, paid to British businesses that invested in India	To attract FDI for India's development

RUPEES LEAVE INDIA: HOME CHARGE OR NOT?

The drain: rupees to Britain
- Both leave India as forex

@ Home Charge
- Britain claims it gave a service
- Salaries, dividends, interest
- SoS costs, stores, War Office

Drain AND Home Charge

@ Not a Home Charge
- Army abroad: Afghanistan, Africa, China
- India gives the service
- Charged to the Indian budget

Drain but NOT a Home Charge

HANDOUT NOTE

- The army abroad. The handout adds: the use of the British Indian Army abroad (campaigns in Afghanistan, Africa, China) was not technically a Home Charge, because India was not receiving a service: it was giving one to the Empire.
- Those war expenses were charged directly to the Indian budget as military expenditure, a separate and equally egregious drain that falls outside the category of Home Charges.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Seven or eight Home Charges? Lecture 30 slides 1 and 2 number seven items, with "Interest on EIC loans + foreign debt" as one item (3).
- The table above and the FLOW DIPS mnemonic list eight by splitting item 3 into loans interest and foreign-debt interest.
- The content is the same
- Hold the heads, not the count

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2011: the handout contradicts itself on statement 3.
- The PYQ's key is (d) 1, 2 and 3: statement 1 (support for the Indian office in London), statement 2 (salaries and pensions of British personnel engaged in India) and statement 3 (funds for waging wars outside India by the British).
- But the handout's note above says the army's use abroad is technically not a Home Charge.
- For the exam, answer (d), as the key and the handout's own alert say
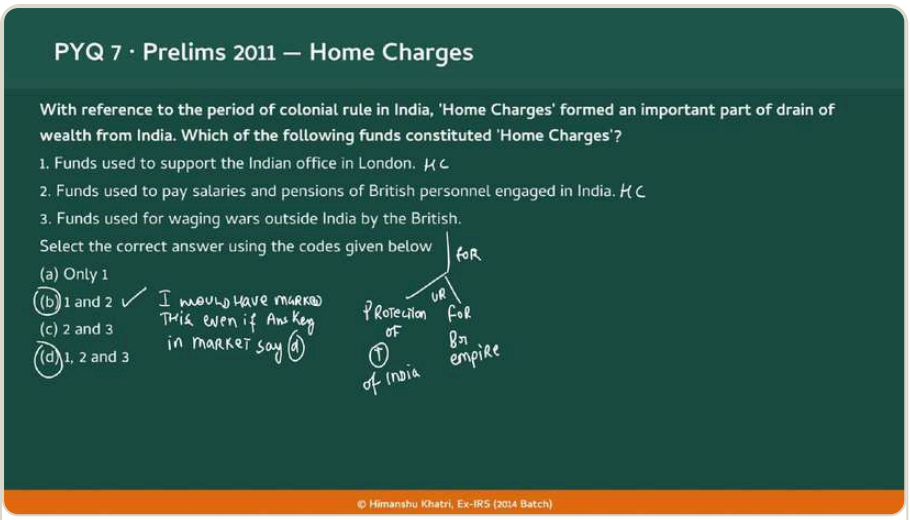
- keep the note as the conceptual distinction (payments for services Britain claimed to give India are Home Charges; imperial campaigns charged to the military budget are a separate drain)
- The Home Charges section has no class notes beyond the "Home = Britain" café board, so the teacher's view on statement 3 comes from Lecture 30 (slides 25 to 27): see the next blocks.



PYQ Prelims 2011: Home Charges Lecture 30 slide 25

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PYQ 7 (Prelims 2011): "HC" beside statements 1 and 2, nothing beside 3.
- (b) 1 and 2 preferred:
  - "I would have marked this even if the answer key in the market says (d)"
  - (d) is circled too, so he knows the key
- Tree: wars are "FOR" either the "protection of the territory (T) of India" or "for the British empire" [branch word "UR" is as written].
- Reasoning:
  - Only what Britain bills India as a service is a Home Charge
  - war for the British empire (statement 3) is the army abroad, not an HC.

PYQ Prelims 2011: typed note on Home Charges Lecture 30 slide 27

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Drain = HC + not-HC. Typed rule:
  - An expense was not a Home Charge merely because it was paid from Indian revenues
  - It also had to be a payment or a liability in Britain.
- Every Home Charge was part of the drain, but not every military expense, and not every expense India paid, was an HC.
- UPSC accepted statement 3 "but it is loosely worded:
  - A war abroad became a Home Charge only for payments made in Britain. Strict academic answer = (b)
  - Answer to mark = (d)"
- For the record: wars waged in defence of India were put under Home Charges, and the suppression of the 1857 Revolt itself was charged to them.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2011: key (d) against the teacher's (b).
- The UPSC key is (d) 1, 2 and 3 (handout alert and typed slide: "answer to mark = (d)").
- His marking is (b) 1 and 2, treating the army abroad as not an HC.
- The slide's own line: (b) is the strict academic answer, (d) the answer to mark against the key.
- [Which to mark in your own test is your decision
- Check your notebook.]

The net effect: double drain through asymmetric trade

- (i) Net exporter of raw materials. India shipped out more raw material (cotton, jute, indigo, tea, opium) than it imported, on paper a "positive" trade balance.
- But the forex India earned was also drained through Council Bills, Home Charges and guaranteed FDI interest.
- So India shipped out wealth (raw material) and its export earnings too: a double drain.
- (ii) Asymmetric trade. India did not receive an equivalent value of finished goods back: British finished goods (cotton textiles, machine-made products) flooded India tariff-favoured, but their total value was less than the raw material India shipped out.

The net effect: double drain through asymmetric trade Lecture 30 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "What we earned in forex goes out in HC." Insertions: "Br Businesses" after "favoured" (tariffs favoured British businesses) and "of imports of India" (finished goods' total value was less than the raw materials shipped out, measured as India's imports).
- Diagrams:
  - India sells to Britain = Ex(Rs)
  - Britain sells to India = Im(Rs), each with a rupee arrow back (payment)
- Ex[Rs] &gt
- Im[Rs], i.e. India = net exporter = TRADE SURPLUS / WEALTH DEFICIT: rupees say surplus, wealth says deficit ("wealth is not always equal to rupees")
- Bottom:
  - A country that primarily earns forex by selling raw materials to the world and not finished goods is "selling Home's land" [read as selling its own land's produce
  - Check your notebook]

HANDOUT NOTE

- "Guaranteed FDI interest" is explained in section 3.5 under Railways (a guaranteed 5% a year in London).
- The handout does not give a separate number for the drain here.

3.5 · Did British rule modernise India? The debate

STORY LINK

Because the British claimed benefits, the Moderates answered each; the teacher marks the whole debate mmp. Ask: what did each answer count that the British claim left out?

- Were there any genuine modernising benefits that justify the drain?
- This debate was structured by the Moderates themselves: the British made certain arguments in their favour, and the Moderates (and later historians) developed counter-arguments.

SOURCE

- A calibration before the debate. A 2022 estimate by Utsa Patnaik puts the total value of the drain at $45 trillion at 2022 prices.
- Whatever modernisation happened, it happened as an unintended by-product.
- No part of it was done for India.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The facts below are the handout's, confirmed against the typed slides (the "central claim" slide is typed).
- The only board marker in the debate is "mmp" (see the exam lens).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "mmp" on the debate title, Railways 1/2, the 5% Guaranteed-Interest Trap and Canals
- "MMP" (capitals) on the "2% Drain" rejoinder
- "mml" as written on Railways 2/2.
- The whole debate is marked, every sub-topic.

Railways

The British argument	The counter-arguments
Railways linked India internally and to the world economy through rail-to-port infrastructure	Purpose: Dalhousie 48-56 introduced railways in 1853 primarily for faster movement of the British army: military control was the original purpose, not economic development
	Direction: railways connected Indian markets and sources of raw materials to ports, and through ports to British manufacturers. They did not connect Indian markets to Indian manufacturers
	Technology: very limited transfer, and only in low-technology areas like bridge-building and tunnelling
	Real goal: to create investment opportunities for British railway companies

The British argument	The counter-arguments
	Guarantee: British capitalists got a guaranteed 5% annual interest on their invested capital, paid in pound sterling in London

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Railways:
  - "mmp" on Railways 1/2 (military first; ports, not Indian mills)
  - "mml" [as written] on Railways 2/2 (little technology transfer; the real byproduct: 78% by 1947, feeder roads, national unity)
  - "mmp" on "The 5% Guaranteed-Interest Trap" (paid from day one; the GOI covers any shortfall; buy-back guarantee; FDI became FD)
- The board explanation of the trap follows.

- The 5% started the moment the FDI was made, so investors earned 5% even in the years the railway was under construction and earning nothing.
- Once the railway ran, if it failed to earn 5% in any year, the GOI made up the deficit.
- At any point, the investors had the right to sell the railway back to the GOI at a price equal to the exact total FDI.
- So if FDI was 100 pounds, they got at least 5 pounds a year from the day of investment, and if they wrapped up before 99 years, they also got 100 pounds back.
- FDI became an FD (fixed deposit with simple interest paid every year).
- That led to wasteful construction: profits were private, losses were public. The same money could have been invested in irrigation for India's food security.

MNEMONIC · FDI BECAME FD: THE BOARD'S THREE STEPS

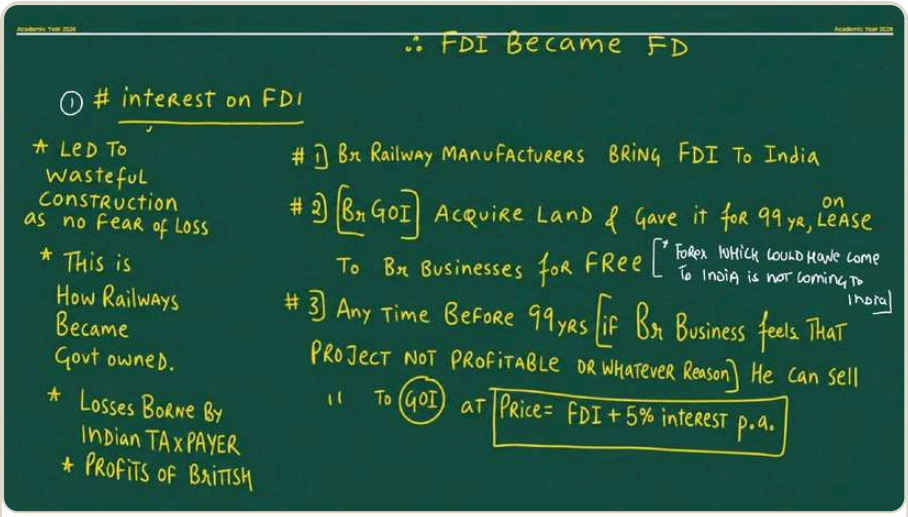
Brits Lease Safely

B British railway manufacturers bring FDI to India

L The GOI acquires land and leases it for 99 years, free, to British businesses

S Any time before 99 years the business can sell to the GOI (board: price = FDI + 5% interest p.a.)

Order kept: the three numbered points of the teacher's board. Losses fall on the Indian taxpayer.



FDI became FD Lecture 30 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "FDI became FD" = number (1) under Home Charges (interest on FDI), explained on the railways.
- (1) British railway manufacturers bring FDI to India.
- (2) The British-run GOI acquires land and gives it on a 99-year lease to British businesses for free
- "forex which could have come to India is not coming to India." (3) Any time before 99 years, if the British business finds the project not profitable "or whatever reason," it can sell to the GOI at the boxed price "FDI + 5% interest p.a." Starred consequences: wasteful construction as there was no fear of loss
- This is how the railways became government owned
- Losses borne by the Indian taxpayer
- Profits of the British [last line cut off]

HANDOUT ALERT

- Buy-back price: board against handout. The handout and typed slide say investors could sell back at a price equal to the exact total FDI, with 5% paid every year.
- The boxed board writes "Price = FDI + 5% interest p.a." Read together: the full FDI back, with the guaranteed 5% a year on top, as a fixed deposit pays.
- Hold:
  - Full FDI back plus 5% a year
  - [if the exact wording is asked, check your notebook]

- The by-product was real: by 1947 railways covered 78% of India.
- Feeder roads from Indian factory hubs to the railway lines let Indian businesses eventually use the network.

- Railways also increased people-to-people contact across regions, strengthening national unity and the inter-regional bonds the Indian National Movement would depend on.

> Railway date. The handout says Dalhousie 48-56 introduced railways in 1853; the board says the rail-road infra came "in India 1850s by Dalhousie 48-56 for faster movement of the army." They agree: 1853 falls in the 1850s, and the purpose is the army. (Chapter 14.)

Canals

The British argument	The counter-arguments
British-built canals became a role model for Asia and helped develop irrigation infrastructure and food security	Quantity: by 1947 only 25% of cultivated area was under public irrigation
	Geography: canals were built only in non-Permanent Settlement 1793 areas (Punjab, western UP, coastal Madras), where land revenue could still be increased. Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, locked under the Permanent Settlement of 1793, saw little canal investment
	Access: canal water was not free; only rich farmers could afford it
	Result: recurring famines in the 1860s and 1870s, and as late as the Bengal Famine of 1943, are proof there was no genuine food security

> Canals: "mmp" on the title.

- The British response to famine was a series of Famine Commissions: the Strachey Commission (1880), the Lyall Commission (1897) and the MacDonnell Commission (1900), but their recommendations were rarely implemented with seriousness.
- The famines kept recurring because the structural problem was never addressed: extractive land revenue, export-oriented agriculture and inadequate irrigation.

The British rejoinder: "the drain was only 2%"

The British argument	The counter-arguments
The drain was only 2% of India's export value in the early 1900s. This small amount paid for real development: it attracted FDI into railways, roadways and irrigation	Quantity: GDP growth was not substantial
	Quality: growth was regionally uneven, and investment in irrigation, health and education

The British argument	The counter-arguments
	remained low
	Neither the quantity nor the quality of development justified what India paid as the drain
	Naoroji's argument: even if 2% sounds small, it was surplus capital. Invested in India instead of drained to Britain, it would have compounded over decades and generated significant GDP growth. It is not the absolute percentage that matters: it is what it could have become

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The "2% drain" rejoinder: "MMP" in capitals, the heaviest marking of the debate.
- Naoroji's clincher: even 2% was surplus capital that would have compounded.

- The handout's savings-account picture: 2% of your income seems small, but invested and compounded over 50 years, it becomes substantial wealth.
- The drain robbed India of that compounding effect, year after year.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Drain Theory's central claim is structural: a colonial power using political control to redirect economic surplus.
- This made the economic critique inseparable from the political demand for Swaraj: without self-rule, the drain could never be stopped.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1997 (answer b). M.C. Setalvad, B.N.
- Rau and Alladi Krishnaswamy Iyer were members of the All India National Liberal Federation (AINLF).
- The handout: the AINLF was founded in 1918, the Moderate splinter from the INC under leaders like Surendranath Banerjea and Tej Bahadur Sapru (the handout words this as "after the Surat Split aftermath when Moderates left INC"; hold the date 1918).
- Setalvad = eminent jurist, later the 1st Attorney General of India
- B.N.
- Rau = Constitutional Adviser to the Constituent Assembly
- Alladi Krishnaswamy Iyer = member of the Constituent Assembly's Drafting Committee.
- The wrong options: Swaraj Party, Madras Labour Union, Servants of India Society.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2008 (answer c). Gokhale is the one who rejected the title of Knighthood and refused a position in the Council of the Secretary of State for India (not Motilal Nehru, Ranade or Tilak).

HANDOUT NOTE

- Prelims 1997 (AINLF), Prelims 2008 ("Un-british") and Prelims 2008 (Knighthood) are typed question and answer pairs
- the answers match the handout: (b), (c), (c)
- What the typed "Why" adds for the AINLF:
    - The post-1918 Moderate splinter (the slide words it "formed after the Surat Split aftermath," with Surendranath Banerjea and Tej Bahadur Sapru; hold 1918)
    - B.N.
- Rau later drafted the initial Constitution and Alladi Krishnaswamy Iyer was a Constituent Assembly member (handout: Rau = Constitutional Adviser to the CA, Alladi = Drafting Committee member; use the handout's titles).
- Wrong options:
    - Swaraj Party (1923) = Council-entry party of C.R. Das and Motilal Nehru
    - Servants of India Society (1905) = Gokhale's order of social workers
    - Madras Labour Union (1918) = a workers' trade union
- Knighthood PYQ:
    - Gokhale declined both, in line with the Servants of India Society ethic
    - Motilal's renunciations belong to 1920-22, Ranade held government office as a judge, Tilak was jailed

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PYQ 3 (Prelims 1997): clue words Sudharak, Sarvajanik Sabha, National Congress, provincial legislator, imperial legislator, "Gandhi himself regarded as his master" point to Gokhale (answer (c)): associate editor of the Sudharak, Secretary of the Sarvajanik Sabha, then Secretary of the INC, Ranade's protege.
- Wrong options:
    - Ranade is the mentor, not the subject
    - Malaviya belonged to the Allahabad school
    - Tilak's path ran through the Kesari and confrontational mass politics

HANDOUT ALERT

Prelims 2011 (answer d) is discussed under Home Charges in section 3.4.

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout page ends with the index of the next chapter (ICA 1892: significance, the "indirect election" that was not called an election, council sizes, the Viceroy's Executive Council, what members could do, federalism, the 1892 summary, a separate administrative reform of the same era, the Moderates' scorecard, what they did next, and the legacy as a catalyst for Extremism). MODERN INDIAN HISTORY · CHAPTER 28

Indian Councils Act of 1892 (Lord Cross Act)

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 275-279 | Low priority

Prelims PYQs: None anchored to this chapter (Prelims 2002 in Chapter 25 uses ICA 1892 as a distractor); 20 handout-based practice MCQs in the bank

Mains PYQs: No UPSC Prelims or Mains PYQ anchors only to this Act (bank note). Prelims 2002 (Chapter 25) uses ICA 1892 as a distractor; the Chapter 26 Mains PYQ on why the Moderates failed (year not in the bank) uses it as evidence; the bank holds 2 practice Mains questions (themes of the chapter, 250 words; significance for the national movement, 150 words)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Key names: Lord Cross (SoS) and Lansdowne 88-94 (Viceroy, 1888-1894); before him Lytton 76-80, Ripon 80-84, Dufferin 84-88 (teacher's board)
- Nomination on the basis of recommendation, not election (the word 'election' avoided); two tiers: Local Bodies to PLC, then non-official PLC members and the Bengal Chamber of Commerce to ILC; the trap 'Municipalities recommended directly to the ILC' is wrong
- ILC additional members 10 to 16 (1861: 6 to 12), at least half non-officials; official majority from 1861 to 1909; first non-officers' and elected majority in GOI Act 1919
- VEC unchanged from 1874: 6 Ordinary Members (Finance added 1861 as C5, Public Works added 1874 as C6)
- Powers: questions (first time, 6 days' notice, no discussion, no supplementaries); Budget (first time discussed, no vote, no amendment); no resolutions; ordinance power unchanged (6 months)
- Federalism: Governor no longer needs the Viceroy's sanction to nominate non-officers to the PLC; Aitchison Commission (CCS to ICS, UCS to PCS) is NOT a provision of the Act; Swaraj at Calcutta 1906

MAINS HOOKS

- Why the Moderates failed to carry conviction by the end of the 19th century: ICA 1892 as proof (Chapter 26 Mains PYQ; year not in the bank)
- Practice: examine the major themes of ICA 1892 (250 words) and its significance for the national movement (150 words)
- Nomination not election; talk without a vote (TWR); the Act as the catalyst for Extremism

The British gave just enough to show they had listened and too little to share power; the hollow Act was the soil in which Extremism grew.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The Moderates asked politely (3P) and got a shortlist, not an election: bigger councils, talk without a vote, an unchanged executive and an official majority, plus one small federal step. The hollow Act proved that petitions could not buy real power, so the Moderates raised their demand to Swaraj and the Drain Theory, and a new generation turned to the street.

1. Seven years of polite asking. From 1885 to 1892 the Moderates used the 3P method (Prayer, Protest in Press, Petitions): carefully reasoned arguments for constitutional reform. The reply was the Indian Councils Act 1892, the Lord Cross Act, passed with Lord Cross as Secretary of State and Lansdowne 88-94 as Viceroy. It was a result of their struggle and proof of its failure.

   → But what did the Act actually give?

2. A shortlist called an election. The most significant feature was indirectly nominated members in the ILC and the PLCs, the first time something like representative membership appeared. But the word 'election' was deliberately left out: the mechanism was nomination on the basis of recommendation. In the teacher's example, if 10 seats were to be filled, names of 50 were asked and the Viceroy or Governor chose 10.

   → So who sent the names, and to whom?

3. Names climb the stairs. Tier 1: District Boards, Municipalities, Universities, Trade Associations and Zamindars sent names to the Governor, who nominated the non-official PLC members. Tier 2: the non-official PLC members and the Bengal Chamber of Commerce sent names to the Viceroy, who nominated the non-official ILC members. Gokhale and Pherozeshah Mehta were among those who served; Municipalities never recommended straight to the ILC.

   → Now, how big was the room?

4. A bigger room, the same majority. The ILC's additional members rose to 10 to 16 (6 to 12 in 1861), and at least half had to be non-officials. But the VEC plus the official additional members always outnumbered the non-officials: like a board where the promoters always hold the vote, the independents may speak but cannot win.

   → And what about the inner cabinet?

5. The inner cabinet stays put. The VEC did not change at all: GG + C-in-C + six Ordinary Members holding Home, Revenue/Agriculture, Law, Military, Finance (added 1861) and Public Works (added 1874). The ILC is the VEC plus the additional members: two boxes, one inside the other.

   → So what could the new members actually do?

6. Ask and browse, never vote. For the first time members could ask questions (6 days' notice, no discussion, no supplementaries) and discuss the Budget (no vote, no amendment): Taxation without Representation, the 1776 slogan, with a faint echo. They could not bring resolutions or demand a vote on a government resolution, the government could legislate over them, the Viceroy could veto any Bill, and the 6-month ordinance power was unchanged.

→ Did the provinces gain anything?

7 One small step for the provinces. The Governor no longer needed the Viceroy's approval to nominate non-officers to the PLC: the first relaxation of the Viceroy's grip since 1861. Rule-making powers, prior approval of certain bills, the single budget and the power to create provinces and appoint Lieutenant-Governors stayed as before.

→ Meanwhile a separate reform was happening in the services.

8 A reform from the same years, but not the Act. On the Aitchison Commission's recommendations (1886-88), in Lansdowne 88-94's time, the Covenanted Civil Services became the ICS, the Uncovenanted Civil Services became the PCS, and the Statutory Civil Services were abolished. These were administrative orders, not provisions of ICA 1892: a classic exam trap.

→ So how did the Moderates do overall?

9 The scorecard: one yes, six no. Indianisation of Civil Services and Military, a non-official majority, an elected majority, proper indirect election, powerful legislatures and constitutionalism were all refused. Only expansion of the ILC and PLCs scored a yes, and a dissatisfied one. The word 'election' did not make it into the text.

→ Disappointed, the Moderates changed the ask.

10 Raising the ceiling. The Moderates began asking for self-government on the lines of Australia (1901) and Canada (1867): the Dominion model. Swaraj, self-government within the Empire (Home Rule), became the INC goal at Calcutta in 1906. They also developed the Drain Theory: the political demand and the economic critique became the twin pillars of their politics.

→ But the method itself was in doubt.

11 The soil for Extremism. If prayers and petitions could produce only this hollow Act (a Budget talk with no vote, questions with no follow-up, no elections, no non-official majority), the method was bankrupt. Belief in British benevolence cracked; street protest and mass politics took root, with the Bengal Partition of 1905 as the catalyst.

In simple words

- ICA 1892 (the Lord Cross Act; Viceroy Lansdowne 88-94) was the Moderates' reward for years of 3P (Prayer, Protest in Press, Petitions): a result of their struggle and proof of its failure.

- The ILC grew to 10 to 16 additional members, but the official majority was guaranteed and the VEC (GG + C-in-C + 6 Ordinary Members) did not change.

- The scorecard reads 1 yes, 6 no.
- The Moderates raised the demand to Dominion-style Swaraj (Calcutta 1906) and the Drain Theory
- the failure of petitions opened the way for Extremism.

> Story so far: the whole chapter is one question. What did the Moderates' politeness buy in 1892? Ask: for each section, is it a gain, a trick or a refusal?

- ICA 1892 = the second of the three Indian Councils Acts (1861, 1892, 1909)
- In each, split the Viceroy's Council in your mind into two boxes (Box A, the Executive Council; Box B, the Legislative Council)
- Secretary of State: Lord Cross. Viceroy: Lansdowne 88-94 (1888 to 1894).
- The Act is therefore also called the Lord Cross Act.
- The Act is about what the councils looked like (size, membership, powers) and the one small federal step. Everything else was unchanged.

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout begins at "Sec. 2" (there is no Sec. 1 in this chapter's handout pages), and the index printed at the end of the handout pages belongs to Chapter 29, not to this chapter.

MNEMONIC · FOUR VICEROYS IN A ROW (TEACHER'S BOARD)

Little Rabbits Dig Lawns

- L Lytton 76-80
- R Ripon 80-84
- D Dufferin 84-88
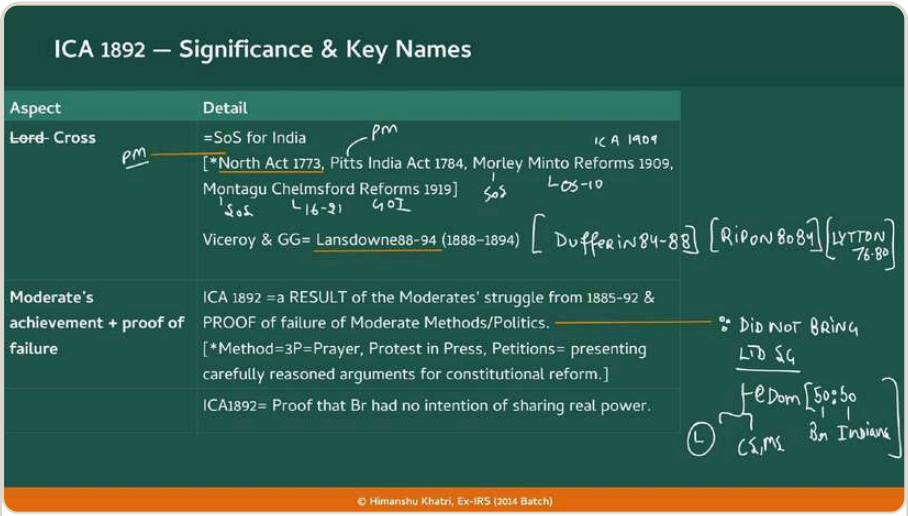
- L Lansdowne 88-94: the Viceroy of ICA 1892

Order kept: each term ends where the next begins (80, 84, 88), then Lansdowne 88-94 to 94.

STORY LINK

Because the Moderates had spent seven years on 3P, 1892 is their moment of truth. Ask: why is the Act both a result and a proof of failure?



ICA 1892: significance and key names Lecture 30 slide 37

- The Indian Councils Act of 1892 was simultaneously a result of the Moderates' struggle and proof of its failure.

- The Moderates (from 1885 to 1892) had spent years petitioning, writing memorials and presenting carefully reasoned arguments for constitutional reform.
- This is the Method = 3P = Prayer, Protest in Press, Petitions.
- What they got was an Act that gave just enough to show the British had listened, and little enough to show they had no intention of actually conceding power.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "3P" = Prayer, Protest in Press, Petitions.
- "PROOF of failure of Moderate Methods/Politics" = "Did NOT bring Ltd SG": the 3P method did not bring even Limited Self-Government.
- Keep for Mains: the Act is evidence that the method failed, and the failure pushes the Moderates to upgrade their demand (Chapter 26: Moderates' demands and weaknesses).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Viceroys before Lansdowne 88-94: Lytton 76-80, Ripon 80-84, Dufferin 84-88.
- Three four-year terms in a row, then Lansdowne 88-94 for six years.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Who named the Act? Prime Minister ("pm"): North Act 1773, Pitts India Act 1784.
- Secretary of State ("SoS"): Cross 1892, Morley Minto Reforms 1909, Montagu Chelmsford Reforms 1919.
- Viceroy beside them:
    - "L 05-10" (Minto 05-10, for 1909) and "L 16-21" (Chelmsford 16-21, for 1919)
    - "GoI" under the 1919 line

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Freedom" splits into "CS, MS" (civil and military services) and "[50:50 Br Indians]" (an equal British-Indian share).

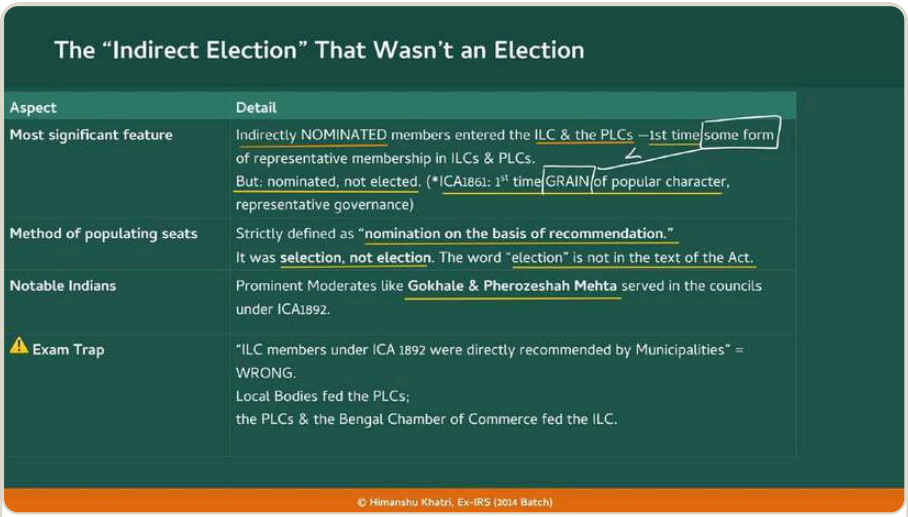
2 · The "indirect election" that was not called an election (handout Sec. 3)

STORY LINK

Because the British wanted to look generous without sharing power, they invented 'nomination on recommendation'. Ask: why is a list from which someone else picks not an election?



The "indirect election" that was not an election Lecture 30 slide 41

- The most significant feature of ICA 1892: indirectly nominated members in the ILC (Imperial Legislative Council) and the PLCs (Provincial Legislative Councils).
- This was the first time something resembling representative membership appeared in these councils.
- But nominated, not elected. The word "election" was deliberately omitted from the Act.
- The legal mechanism was strictly "nomination on the basis of recommendation." It was selection, not election.
- Notable Indians who served under this framework: Gokhale and Pherozeshah Mehta, names that would dominate Moderate politics for the next two decades.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1861: the first GRAIN of popular character. 1892: SOME FORM of representative membership.
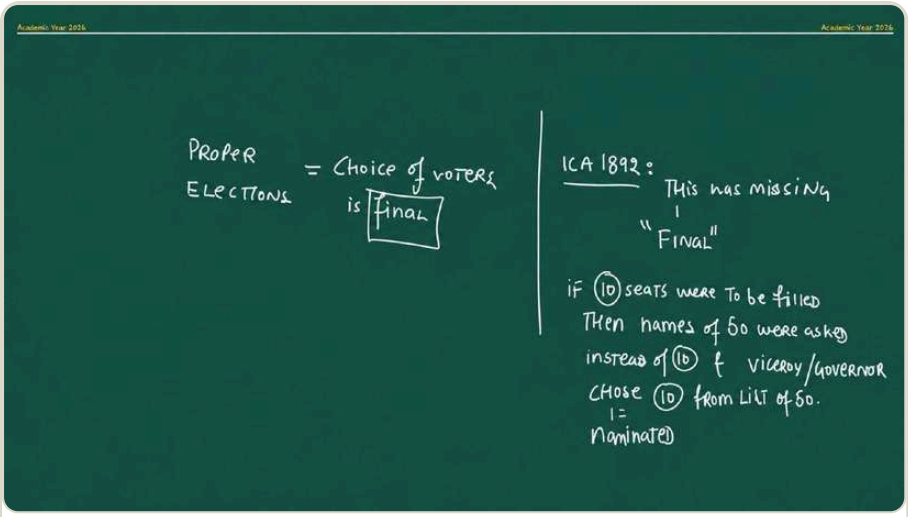
- One step up the ladder (Chapter 25: 1861 non-officers, 1909 proper indirect election, 1919 direct election).



What a proper election means: choice of voters is final Lecture 30 slide 38

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Proper election = the choice of the voters is FINAL.
- In ICA 1892 "Final" was missing.
- Example:
  - 10 seats to fill
  - The bodies send a list of 50 names
  - The Viceroy or Governor picks 10 from the 50 = nominated.

Direct against indirect elections: the 1892 chain Lecture 30 slide 39

- In a 100% proper indirect election the chain would be: people elect local body members, local body members elect the Legislators of the province from among themselves, and the Legislators elect the next level from among themselves.
- In a proper election the choice of voters is final.
- Under ICA 1892 neither condition held: the recommending bodies only sent names, and the final pick was the Viceroy's or Governor's.
- The "election" was really a shortlist.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Proper indirect election = the elected representative is not directly chosen by the people.
- Today's example:
  - People (direct) elect MLAs
  - MLAs elect Rajya Sabha members (indirect).
- The 1892 chain: People, Local Bodies [Direct], PLCs [indirect] (Provinces), ILC [indirect] (Centre), with "elect" at each step.

Local Bodies: four kinds Lecture 30 slide 40

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Local Bodies are four kinds: Urban LBs (Municipalities), Rural LBs (Panchayats), Business Bodies, Others.
- District Boards = the rural local body (Panchayats).
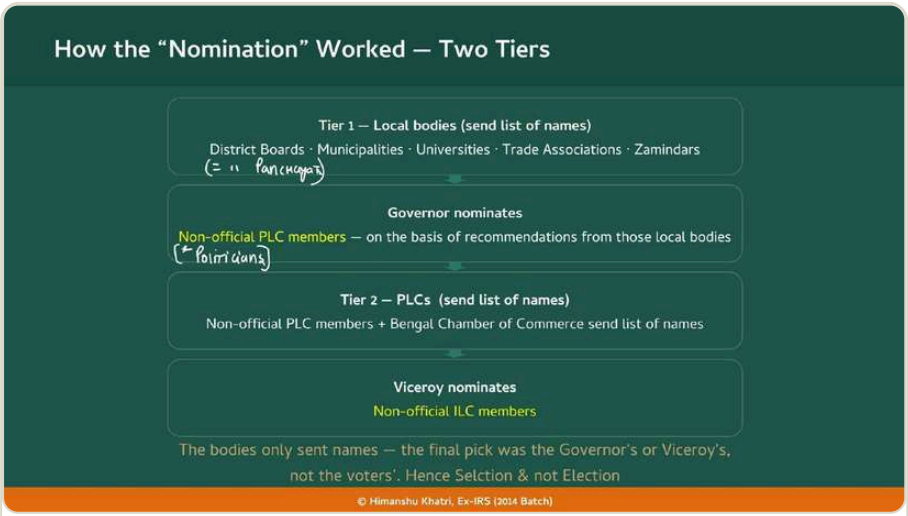
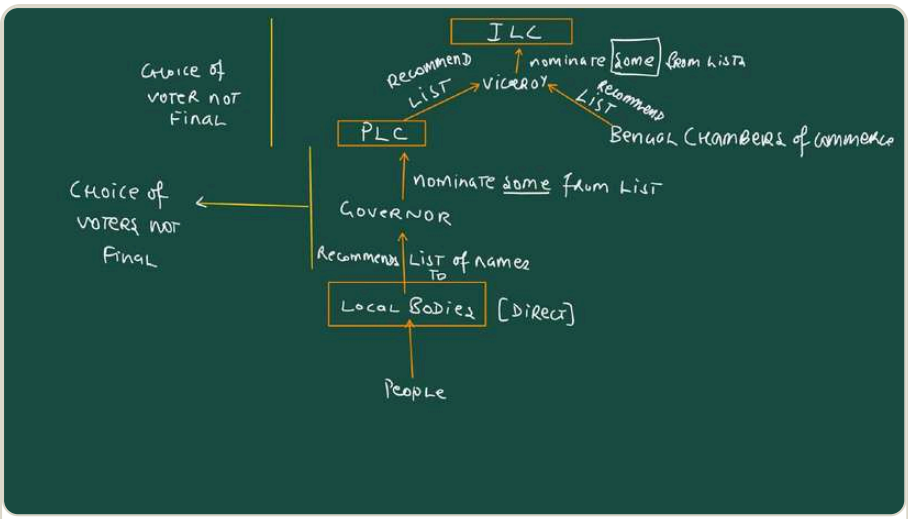
- Business Bodies = Trade Associations and the Bengal Chamber of Commerce.

2.1 How it worked: two levels (handout Sec. 3.1 and 3.2)



How the nomination worked: two tiers Lecture 30 slide 42



Nomination flow from People to ILC Lecture 30 slide 43

- For the PLCs: the Governors nominated non-official members on the recommendation of District Boards, Municipalities, Universities, Trade Associations and Zamindars.
- For the ILC: the Viceroy nominated non-officials on the recommendation of the non-official members of the PLCs and the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, not directly from local bodies.

The two tiers of "nomination on recommendation"

- People elect (directly) the Local Bodies (Panchayats, Municipalities, Business Bodies, Others)
- Tier 1: District Boards, Municipalities, Universities, Trade Associations and Zamindars send a list of names to the Governor
- Governor nominates some from the list: the non-official PLC members
- Tier 2: the non-official PLC members + the Bengal Chamber of Commerce send a list of names to the Viceroy
- Viceroy nominates some from the lists: the non-official ILC members
- Choice of voters not final at both tiers: the lists only recommend

TEACHER'S BOARD

- PLC non-official members = "[* Politicians]" who then recommend the ILC non-officials.
- The Viceroy or Governor nominates only some names from the list: "Choice of voter not Final" (at both PLC and ILC levels).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Exam Trap. "ILC members under ICA 1892 were directly recommended by Municipalities" is WRONG.
- Municipalities fed the PLCs
- The PLCs fed the ILC. Two separate tiers.
- Direct recommendation to the ILC came only from the PLCs (their non-official members) and the Bengal Chamber of Commerce.

3 · Size of the councils (handout Sec. 4)

STORY LINK

Because names now reached the councils, the next question is how many seats there were and who held the majority. Ask: who wins when promoters hold the vote?

- Both the ILC and the PLCs were expanded.
- In the ILC, the total number of additional members was now set at 10 to 16, and at least half could be non-officials.
- Compare 1861: the additional members were 6 to 12, of whom the non-officials were 3 to 6 (half).

NUMBER CARD · ADDITIONAL MEMBERS: PLUS FOUR AT EACH END

6 - 12 → 10 - 16

Both ends rise by four.

6-121861: additional members; non-officials 3 to 6 (half)

10-161892: additional members; at least half non-officials

TEACHER'S BOARD

Key words: "additional members," "10 to 16," "at least half," "non-officials"; 1861: "half of the 6-12 additional," "i.e. 3 to 6."

- But the numbers hide the point: the Viceroy's Executive Council + the official additional members always comfortably outnumbered the non-official Indians.
- The official majority was mathematically guaranteed by the structure of the Act.
- Think of a board meeting where the promoter group always holds the majority regardless of how many independent directors are added: the independents may speak

- They cannot win a vote.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Officials = VEC + the official additional members.
- Additional members are half official, half non-official, so VEC + official additional members is usually more than the non-officials.
- Official majority in the ILC from ICA 1861 to ICA 1909.
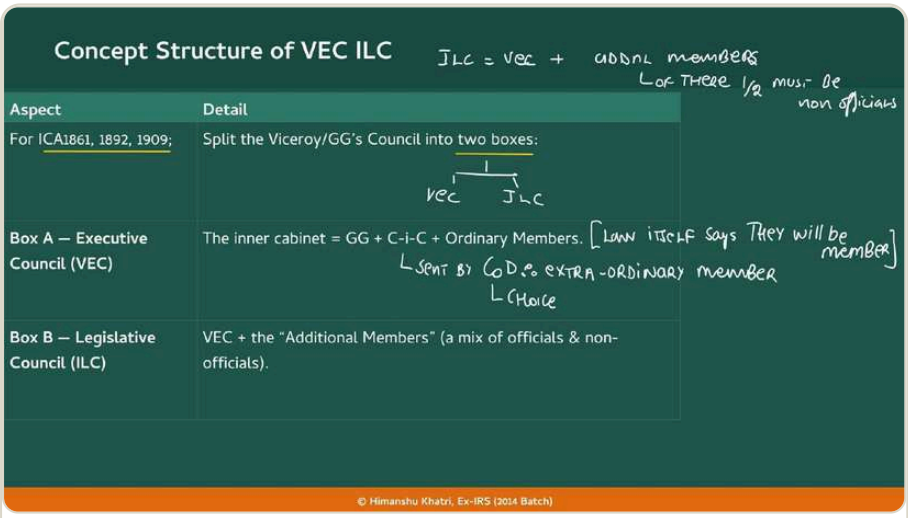
- First non-officers' majority and first elected majority: GOI Act 1919 (Chapter 34).

4 · The Viceroy's Executive Council: no change (handout Sec. 5)

STORY LINK

Because the legislature grew, the executive had to be kept fixed. Ask: which box (VEC or ILC) changed in 1892?



Concept structure of VEC and ILC: two boxes Lecture 30 slide 44

- Whenever a question mentions the Indian Councils Acts (1861, 1892, 1909), split the government into two boxes: Box A, the Executive Council (VEC): the inner cabinet = GG + C-in-C + Ordinary Members. Box B, the Legislative Council (ILC): Box A plus the "Additional Members" (a mix of officials and non-officials).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- ILC = VEC + additional members
- Half of these must be non-officials.
- Box A: "[Law itself says they will be member]" (Ordinary Members are members by law).
- The C-in-C was "sent by CoD" and is the "extra-ordinary member" (Chapter 25: appointed by the Court of Directors).
- The word "choice" beside it is **.

VEC: no change, six portfolios Lecture 30 slide 46

- The VEC did not change at all under ICA 1892 (unchanged from 1874).
- VEC = GG + C-in-C + the Ordinary Members (6).
- The Ordinary Members were the dedicated "ministers" who held specific administrative portfolios.
- In 1892 all were nominated by the British Crown.
- The six portfolios: Home, Revenue/Agriculture, Law, Military (an administrative counterpart to the C-in-C, that is, a Defence Minister), Finance (added 1861) and Public Works (added 1874).

MNEMONIC · THE SIX PORTFOLIOS OF THE ORDINARY MEMBERS

Harsh Rulers Love Money, Fund Projects

- H Home
- R Revenue/Agriculture
- L Law
- M Military (counterpart to the C-in-C, a Defence Minister)
- F Finance, added 1861 (C5)
- P Public Works, added 1874 (C6)

Order kept as in the handout; the last two are the additions.

Period	VEC (his formula)	What was added
Pre 1861	GG + CIC + C1 to C4	Four Ordinary Members
1861	GG + CIC + C1 to C5	Finance is C5
1874	GG + CIC + C1 to C6	Public Works is C6
1892	No change	Still C1 to C6

NUMBER CARD · THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL LADDER: 4, 5, 6

4 · 5 · 6

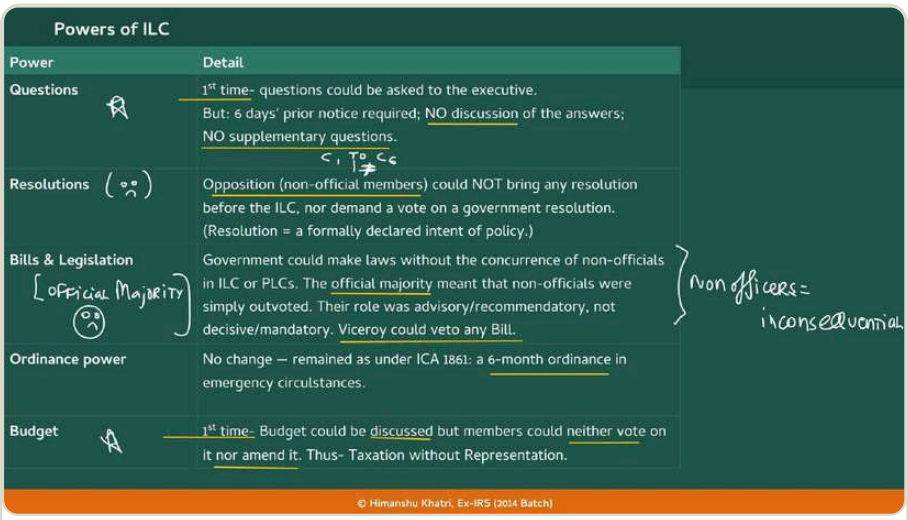
Four, then Finance as the fifth, then Public Works as the sixth; 1892 changes nothing.

4 Pre-1861: GG + CIC + C1 to C4
5 1861: Finance is C5
6 1874: Public Works is C6 (VEC unchanged in 1892)

5 · What the members could do (handout Sec. 6)

STORY LINK

Because the room had new members, ask what they could do with the floor. Ask: which two powers were firsts, and which two were refused?



Powers of the ILC: questions, resolutions, bills, ordinances, Budget Lecture 30 slide 47

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Gained for the first time (starred): Questions and Budget.
- Not gained: Resolutions and Bills ("[Official Majority]"; "Non officers = inconsequential").
- Beside Questions: "C1 to C6" with a "not equal" sign.

5.1 Questions

- For the first time, non-official members could ask questions to the executive (the VEC), a genuine new right.
- But with strict conditions: 6 days' prior notice was required, there could be no discussion of the answers, and no supplementary questions were allowed. You could ask. You could not follow up.

5.2 Resolutions

- Opposition members (the non-official, non-officer members, since the executive under the Viceroy was made up entirely of officers) could not bring any resolution before the council, nor demand a vote on a government resolution.
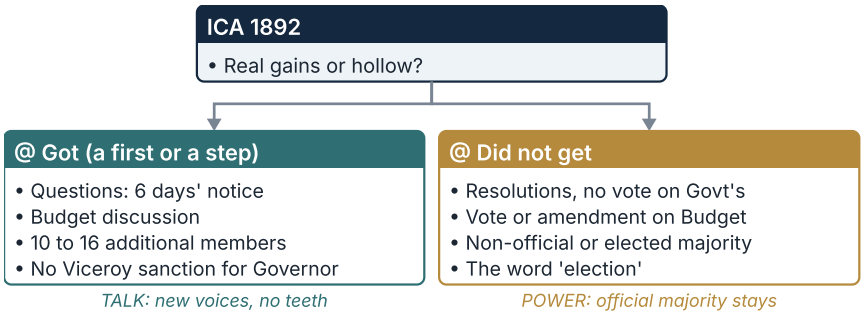
- Resolution = a formally declared intent of policy: a motion that the council endorses a direction.

GOT AND DID NOT GET: ICA 1892



5.3 Bills and legislation

- The government could make laws without the ILC or PLCs.
- The official majority meant that on every bill, Indian non-official members were outvoted.
- Their presence was advisory, not decisive: the legislative function was recommendatory, not mandatory.
- The Viceroy could veto any Bill.
- Ordinance power: no change. It remained as under ICA 1861: a 6-month emergency instrument.
- The council was recommendatory because of the official majority and the Viceroy's absolute veto, not because of any new bypass mechanism.

5.4 Budget

- The Budget could be discussed for the first time, another genuine new right.
- But members could neither vote on it nor amend it.
- "Taxation without Representation" (TWR) was the slogan that sparked the American Revolution (1776).
- Here Indians had a faint echo of representation: they could watch the Budget and speak to it, with zero power to change it.

MNEMONIC · WHAT THE MODERATES' DREAMS DID NOT GET

D R E A M S

The Moderates' DREAMS were not met by the Act.

D Discussion of the answers to questions: not allowed

R Resolutions: the opposition could not bring any

E Election: the word is not in the Act (nomination on recommendation)

A Amendment (or vote) on the Budget: not allowed

M Majority for non-officials: not given (official majority)

S Supplementary questions: not allowed

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word; each letter is a 'no'.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Traps in this section. (1) Supplementary questions: NO.
- (2) Discussion of the answers: NO.
- (3) Vote or amendment on the Budget: NO.
- (4) Resolutions by non-officials: NO, and no vote on a government resolution.
- (5) Ordinance power: unchanged from 1861 (6 months), not enlarged.
- (6) The ILC was not given an elected majority
- the official majority stayed

6 · Federalism: one small step (handout Sec. 7)

STORY LINK

Because the Centre kept every key, the one small change stands out. Ask: which of BRASS's keys was handed back?

- ICA 1892 made one notable change in Centre-Province relations: the Governor no longer needed the Viceroy's approval to nominate Non-Officers to the PLC.
- Until then (ICA 1861), even though Governors recommended names for their own Provincial Councils, the Viceroy's sanction was required. ICA 1892 ended this requirement.
- A small but genuine decentralisation: the first relaxation of the Viceroy's iron grip over provincial council composition since 1861.
- All other controls stayed exactly as under ICA 1861:
  - Rule-making powers
  - Prior approval for certain bills
  - A single unified budget with no separate provincial budget
  - The power to create new provinces and to appoint Lieutenant-Governors.

Unitary, federal and confederal: split of power Lecture 30 slide 49

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A feature is federal if it shifts power from the Centre to the Provinces.
- Scale:
  - Unitary = Centre 80% or more, Provinces 20% or less
  - Federal = about 50:50
  - Confederal = Centre 20% or less, Provinces 80% or more.
- "No mention of ppl in Topic of Federalism":
  - People belong to Democracy
  - federalism is the law about Centre and Province
- So the Governor's freedom from the Viceroy's sanction counts as a small federal step.

7 · ICA 1892 at a glance (handout Sec. 8)

STORY LINK

Because the details are many, one table anchors every provision. Ask: can you fill each row from memory before you look?

Aspect	ICA 1892
Key names	Lord Cross (SoS), Lansdowne 88-94 (Viceroy)
Election principle	Nomination on the basis of recommendation (the word "election" avoided)
ILC size	VEC + 10 to 16 additional members (up from 6 to 12 of 1861); at least half non-officials
Official majority	YES
VEC	Unchanged from 1874
Questions	First: allowed with 6 days' notice; no discussion; no supplementary questions
Budget	First: discussion allowed; no vote
Resolutions	Opposition could not bring resolutions; no vote on a Government resolution
Federalism	Governor did not need the Viceroy's approval to nominate Non-Officers in the PLC
Civil services reform	NOT a provision of the Act: Aitchison Commission: CCS to ICS, UCS to PCS (done separately as an administrative measure)

8 · A separate administrative reform of the same era (handout Sec. 9)

STORY LINK

Because 1892 also saw civil service renaming, the exam sets a trap. Ask: was any of this written in the Councils Act?

HANDOUT ALERT

- Classic exam trap: keep these separate from the Act.
- Under Lansdowne 88-94, on the Aitchison Commission (1886-88) recommendations, these civil-services changes were made as administrative orders, not provisions of ICA 1892.
- If listed under "provisions of ICA 1892": not a provision.

- Covenanted Civil Services (CCS) renamed ICS.

- Uncovenanted Civil Services (UCS) renamed Provincial Civil Services (PCS).
- Statutory Civil Services (created 1878): abolished.
- The "federal logic": Centre and province now had their own civil service cadre (ICS at the Centre, PCS in the Province).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout vs slide, three points. (1) Statutory CS year:
  - Handout says created 1878
  - slide writes 1879 (Chapter 18: Act 1878, rules 1879)
  - Use 1878 for the Act, 1879 for the rules.
- (2) Subordinate CS:
  - Slide adds a third tier and says [UCS + Statutory CS posts] became (PCS + Subordinate CS)
  - handout says only UCS to PCS and Statutory CS abolished.
- Both agree the Statutory CS ended and the PCS was formed.
- (3) Expansion of "ICS":
  - Handout and slide say "Imperial Civil Services"
  - Chapter 18 says Aitchison proposed "Imperial Civil Service" but 1892 kept "Indian Civil Service." Handout and teacher win here: CCS to ICS, UCS to PCS.
- For the spelling-out of ICS, check your notebook and Chapter 18.

9 · Scorecard: what the Moderates won (handout Sec. 10)

STORY LINK

Because the Moderates had asked for much, the scorecard counts what they got. Ask: which single row is a yes, and why 'but dissatisfactory'?

Moderate demand	Won?
Indianisation of Civil Services and Military	No
Non-official majority in the councils	No
Elected majority	No
Proper indirect election	No (only nomination on recommendation)
Expansion of ILC and PLCs	Yes, but dissatisfactory
Powerful Legislatures	No
Constitutionalism (Preamble + Basic Structure)	No

MNEMONIC · THE SCORECARD, IN ORDER

Indian Needs Elected Proper Expanded Powerful Constitutional

- I Indianisation of Civil Services and Military: No
- N Non-official majority: No
- E Elected majority: No
- P Proper indirect election: No
- E Expansion of ILC and PLCs: Yes, but dissatisfactory
- P Powerful legislatures: No
- C Constitutionalism: No

Order kept as in the handout: six no and one yes (the second E).

HANDOUT ALERT

- The word "election" did not even make it into the text of the Act.
- Only the Expansion of the ILC and PLCs scored a yes (and a dissatisfied one): 1 yes, 6 no.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout says "six demands," but the scorecard has seven rows (one yes, six no).
- Read "six" as the six not met plus the one partly met.
- In an answer:
  - "one demand (expansion) was partially met
  - The rest were refused." Moderates' demands: Chapter 26

10 · What the Moderates did next (handout Sec. 11)

STORY LINK

Because the Act disappointed them, the Moderates changed the ask. Ask: how do Dominion status, Swaraj and the Drain Theory fit together?

Impact: Moderates more assertive, Dominion demand and Swaraj Lecture 30 slide 53

- Disappointed by ICA 1892, the Moderates raised their ceiling of demand.
- They began asking for Self-Government on the lines of Australia and Canada: the Dominion model, full self-governance within the British Empire without breaking from it.
- Their argument:
  - Australia got self-government as a Dominion in 1901
  - Canada in 1867. Both were majority white-settler colonies.
- If those colonies could govern themselves, why not a civilisation far older and more complex than either?
- This officially became the goal of the INC at the 1906 Calcutta session, named Swaraj: Self-Government within the Empire, also called Home Rule.
- Alongside, the Moderates developed and propagated the Drain Theory: the economic argument that British rule was systematically extracting India's wealth to Britain.
- Political demand for Swaraj and economic critique through the Drain Theory became the twin pillars of Moderate politics in the years that followed.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The Dominion demand (Australia and Canada) and Swaraj (1906 Calcutta) are the same idea.
- Dominion status = "Self-Government within Br Empire" = Swaraj = Home Rule.
- (Chapter 27: the Drain Theory in detail.)

11 · Legacy: the catalyst for Extremism (handout Sec. 12)

STORY LINK

Because the Moderates had played by every rule and still got a hollow Act, the method broke. Ask: what grew in the soil the Act left?

- ICA 1892 matters not only for what it contained, but for what it proved.
- Six demands, and one partially met.
- The Moderates had played by every British rule, used every permissible channel and mustered every rational argument.
- The Act they received was hollow: expanded councils with no real power, a budget discussion with no vote, questions with no follow-up.
- This was the moment the belief in British benevolence began to crack.
- If "prayers and petitions" could produce only this, the method itself was bankrupt.
- The disillusionment seeded by ICA 1892 was the soil in which Extremism would take root in the decade that followed.

MNEMONIC · AFTER THE HOLLOW ACT: THE MODERATES AND THE ROAD TO EXTREMISM

After 1892, politics SPED up.

S Swaraj: Dominion-style self-government, INC goal at Calcutta 1906

P Petitions: the 3P method judged bankrupt

E Extremism: street protest, Partition 1905 the catalyst

D Drain Theory: the economic twin of Swaraj

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- (The slide adds: the Bengal Partition of 1905 became the catalyst; see Chapter 29.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Failure listed:
  - Budget discussion with no vote
  - Questions with no follow-up
  - No elections
  - No non-official majority
- Method = 3Ps
- consequence = street protests and mass politics under the Extremists.
- Soil (ICA 1892), then Catalyst (Bengal Partition 1905).

From petitions to a hollow Act to Extremism

- 1885 to 1892: the Moderates use 3P (Prayer, Protest in Press, Petitions) for constitutional reform
- 1892: ICA 1892 (Lord Cross, Lansdowne 88-94): bigger councils, nomination on recommendation, Questions and Budget discussion, official majority
- The Act is hollow: no vote on the Budget, no follow-up to questions, no elections, no non-official majority
- The Moderates upgrade the demand: Dominion-style Swaraj (Calcutta 1906) and the Drain Theory
- Faith in "prayers and petitions" breaks
- the method is bankrupt
- Extremism takes root:
    - Street protests and mass politics
    - Bengal Partition 1905 is the catalyst

Feature	ICA 1861	ICA 1892

- Lal-Bal-Pal and Sri Aurobindo with their regions; the goal (Swaraj within the Raj for most, Purna Swaraj for Aurobindo and B.C. Pal); extremist ideology = self-government by aggressive means, not petitions (1998); Aurobindo's 'New Lamps for Old' (2008)
- Curzon 99-05 and the Partition: his three laws with years; announced July 1905, effected 16 October 1905 (2009), annulled 1911 at the Delhi Durbar (2014); the immediate cause of Swadeshi (2010); Viceroy order Curzon 99-05, Hardinge 10-16, Chelmsford 16-21, Irwin 26-31 (2004)
- The movement: the 7 August 1905 Boycott Resolution (Handloom Day, 2023), Swadeshi and Boycott used first against the Partition (2016), Desher Katha (2020), Lajpat Rai's biography clue (2018), the Swadeshi crafts and National Council of Education (2019), Liakat Hussain and national education (2002)
- Why Swadeshi was not a mass movement: Muslims put off by the Hindu past (1998); the Surat Split (2015, 2016), the four Calcutta resolutions and what was not one (2010), pray and petition (1999: the teacher's board and the handout differ)
- The teacher's own cues: no chapter-wide 'imp'; the first mass protest as the 'imp shift in methods'; ticks on Boycott and Swadeshi; 'METHODS' beside the Surat answer; 'i.e. Br imports not impacted'

MAINS HOOKS

- Why the Extremists rose: failure of the Moderates, culture and religion for mass mobilisation, Curzon 99-05 (stronger the villain, stronger the hero)
- The Partition of Bengal: stated against real reasons (Divide and Rule, Bhadralok, EBA as a Muslim-majority province)
- The Swadeshi toolkit (Boycott, Swadeshi, national education, Constructive Work, Samitis, Jatras) and why it did not become a mass movement
- The Surat Split as a split over method, not goal; the toolkit that Gandhi inherited (practice Mains questions only: no real Mains PYQ is quoted)

Curzon 99-05 made the villain and the Partition made the first mass protest; its failures sent the next generation to the Revolutionaries, and its tested toolkit waited for Gandhi.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The Moderates failed, so the Extremists took religion and culture to the masses; Curzon 99-05's laws and the Partition of Bengal gave them a villain and the first mass protest; the Swadeshi toolkit could not reach the poor, the Muslims or the Lower Castes, the INC split at Surat, and the tested toolkit waited for Gandhi.

1. The petitions that went nowhere. The Moderates have led the INC since 1885, and their method is petition, prayer and press. By the early 1900s it has brought no self-governance, no economic relief and no political power. The Extremists read this as proof that gentle methods do not work against a colonial administration.

   → But a new generation has a different recipe.

2. Culture becomes a weapon. Lal-Bal-Pal and Sri Aurobindo lead the Extremist phase: Lajpat Rai in Punjab, Tilak in Maharashtra, Pal and Aurobindo in Bengal. Tilak had already turned the Ganapati Festival (1893) and the Shivaji Festival (1896) into political platforms: culture first, then political energy. Most want Swaraj within the Raj; Aurobindo (1907, in Bande Mataram) and Pal want Purna Swaraj.

   → Then a Viceroy hands them a villain.

3. Curzon 99-05's three orders. In 1899 the Calcutta Municipal Corporation Amendment Act cuts elected members; in 1904 the Indian Universities Act takes the universities under direct control, calling them factories of sedition; and in 1904 the Indian Official Secrets Amendment Act cuts press freedom. Local self-government, education and the press are all hit. The teacher: the stronger the villain, the stronger the hero.

   → And then he cuts a province in two.

4. The Partition of Bengal. The Risley Papers of 1903 reveal the plan. It is announced in July 1905 and takes effect on 16 October 1905: Bengal (West Bengal, Bihar, Orissa) and East Bengal and Assam, a new Muslim-majority province. The stated reason is good governance; the Indian view is Divide and Rule, since Bengalis become a minority in Bengal and Hindus a minority in EBA. Nawab Salimullah welcomes it and the Muslim League follows in 1906.

   → Bengal answers first with the pen.

5. The pen, then the boycott. From 1903 to 1905 Surendranath Bannerjea and C.R. Das run a press campaign and Tagore tries Constructive Swadeshi at Shantiniketan; Deuskar's Desher Katha (1904) uses 'Desh' for all India. After about 1.5 years of the Moderates' three Ps the Partition still comes, and on 7 August 1905 the Moderates themselves pass the Boycott Resolution at Calcutta Town Hall.

   → Now the Extremists take the movement over.

6. The Extremists take over. The Extremists add Swaraj to the goal and Passive Resistance (NC + CD + CW, with violence only if the government uses repression) to the method, and carry the movement out of Bengal: Das and Pal, Tilak, Haidar

Raza, Lajpat Rai and Ajit Singh, and V.O. Chidambaram Pillai. At Barisal in April 1906 the police stop a procession of Bande Mataram badges, and it becomes a big boost to the movement.

→ They need a toolkit to match.

7 The toolkit. Boycott and Swadeshi (two sides of one coin), national education with the Bengal National College under Aurobindo, enterprises such as TISCO (1907) and the Swadeshi Steam Navigation Company (1906), picketing, Samitis, Jatras, religious symbols and workers' strikes. Constructive Work aims at Atmashakti, the individual and then the community.

→ But a toolkit is not yet a mass movement.

8 Why it fell short. Swadeshi goods are costly, so the poor stay out; student volunteers use force and social boycott on Lower Castes and Muslims; institutions are thin; Muslims are put off by Jatras, the Muslim League and the heavy Hindu symbolism; and the Extremists spend energy trying to capture the INC. British imports are not hit.

→ And then the Congress itself breaks.

9 Calcutta, then Surat. At Calcutta (1906) Naoroji presides and the Extremists pass Swaraj, Boycott, Swadeshi and National Education. Morley's 1906 Budget speech hints at council reforms, and the Moderates move the 1907 session from Poona or Nagpur to Surat. A fight over the presidency between L.L. Rai and Rash Behari Ghosh ends with shoes hurled and the Extremists expelled; in 1908 the Allahabad Convention declares loyalty to the Raj.

→ The Extremists are scattered.

10 Leaders scattered, guns appear. Tilak is deported to Mandalay (1908-14), Aurobindo retires, Pal retires for a time, and Rai goes abroad (1914-20). Leaderless, the movement gives way to the Revolutionaries (1908-11). The teacher's chain: when the pen failed people came out, when people failed guns, when guns failed MG.

→ Yet the movement leaves something behind.

11 What was left. Nationalism stays lit, mass politics has begun, the Drain is explained to the poor, Bande Mataram becomes the INM's anthem, and Passive Resistance, Constructive Work, Jatras and Prabhat Pheris are a toolkit Gandhi inherits in 1920. At the Delhi Durbar of December 1911 the Partition is annulled and the capital moves to Delhi; the Muslim League's birth leaves communal politics as the long shadow.

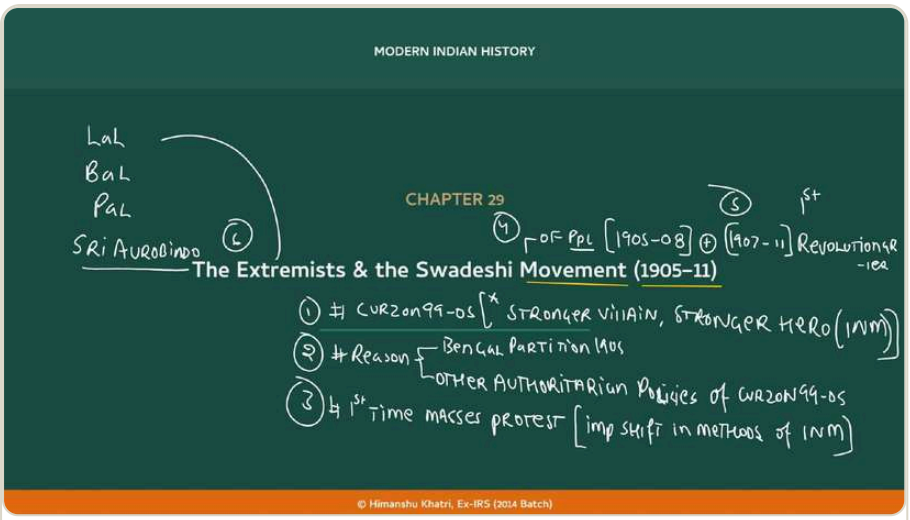
0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Story so far: a villain makes a hero. Keep the six numbered points on the title board in mind: Curzon 99-05, the reasons, the first mass protest, the 1905-08 people's phase, the Revolutionaries, Lal-Bal-Pal and Aurobindo.



Chapter 29 title: Extremists and the Swadeshi Movement, board plan
Lecture 30 slide 55

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Curzon 99-05 is the villain and the villain makes the hero: "Stronger villain, stronger hero (INM)." His reasons: the Bengal Partition 1905 and his other authoritarian policies.
- Result: the first time the masses protest ("imp shift in methods of INM").
- Timeline:
  - [1905-08] the people's phase
  - [1907-11] the Revolutionaries (the ranges overlap by a year; the handout says the Revolutionaries rose 1908-11)
- Heads of the board: Lal, Bal, Pal, Sri Aurobindo (circled 6:).

1 · Drivers of the Extremist rise

STORY LINK

Because the Moderates' petitions had failed, the Extremists look for a new recipe. Ask: which three causes (collapse, culture, Curzon 99-05) turn a failure into a movement?

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Why Rise of the Extremists, Three Drivers": three reasons numbered 1 to 3; a CULTURE tree under the second: Religion, Indian Historical Heroes, etc.

1.1 Leaders and goal

- By 1905 the Moderate phase of the INM ended and the Extremist phase (1905-20) began under Lal-Bal-Pal and Sri Aurobindo: Lala Lajpat Rai (Punjab), Bal

Gangadhar Tilak (Maharashtra), Bipin Chandra Pal and Sri Aurobindo Ghosh (Bengal).

- For most Extremists the goal was Swaraj within the British Raj
- for a few, Sri Aurobindo and B.C Pal, it was Purna Swaraj (complete independence)

INM and INC: who dominated when Lecture 30 slide 56

TEACHER'S BOARD

- INM is the movie, INC is the hero.
- (1) INC dominated by Moderates 1885-1918, ~1920
- (2) INM dominated by Moderates 1857-1905
- (4) Extremists dominated the INM 1905-20
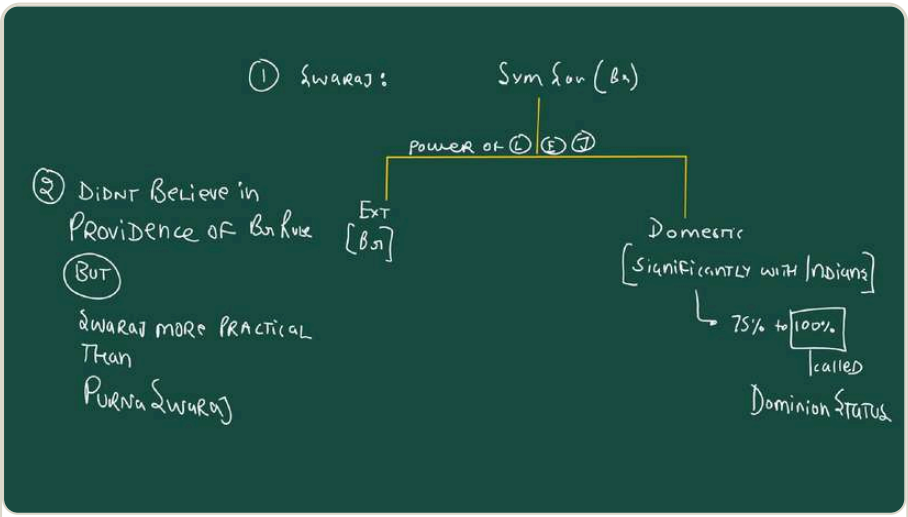
- (5) MG dominated the INM [written like "1990-47": read as 1920-47
- Unclear, check your notebook]
- So the Extremists led the movement but never the organisation, matching the handout's note that INC control passed to Gandhi at the 1920 Nagpur Session (section 8).



Swaraj: meaning and practicality Lecture 30 slide 57

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Swaraj = power of L, E, J (legislative, executive, judicial) split in two: the external part stays with the British
- The domestic part comes "significantly" to Indians, 75% to 100%, called Dominion Status.
- The Extremists did not believe in the Providence of British rule (that it was a blessing).
- BUT Swaraj was more practical than Purna Swaraj, so most Extremists asked for Swaraj within the British Raj (the first word after "Sym for" is).

1.2 Sri Aurobindo and the first Purna Swaraj demand

- Sri Aurobindo studied in Cambridge and qualified for the CSE in 1890 but deliberately skipped the horse-riding test.
- He joined the Baroda Princely State civil service and later served as Vice-Principal of Baroda College.
- He was the first to publicly demand absolute independence in 1907, through his writings in Bande Mataram (not through an INC resolution).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "1st formal Purna Swaraj resolution" = "in INC": the two firsts differ.
- Aurobindo = first public demand (1907, writings)
- Hasrat Mohani = first formal resolution in the INC (1921).

HANDOUT NOTE

- The first formal resolution in the INC for Purna Swaraj was by Hasrat Mohani (with Swami Kumaranand) at the 1921 Ahmedabad Session.
- It was rejected by the INC, mainly on Mahatma Gandhi's opposition: he argued the demand was premature, irresponsible, and that the masses were not yet disciplined or prepared for a completely independent State.

1.3 The three drivers

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Every phase of the INM was, in a sense, born from the failure of the phase before it." Chain: pre-1857 revolts → 1857 Revolt → modern INM → failure of conservative earlier organisations → WEMC-led regional organisations → INC under the Moderates → Moderates' failure → Extremists → Extremists' failure → Revolutionaries → and so on, until Gandhi.
- Each failure raised the temperature of the next response.

- Driver 1: The Moderates had failed. The Moderates led the INC since 1885.
- Their method was petition, prayer and press.

- By the early 1900s it had yielded nothing concrete: no self-governance, no economic relief, no political power.
- The Extremists read this as proof that gentle methods do not work against a colonial administration.
- Driver 2: mass mobilisation through religion and culture.
- The Moderates worked through newspapers, petitions and annual INC sessions, and their base was the Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC).
- The Extremists wanted the religious masses, and so spoke in cultural terms.
- Tilak organised the Ganapati Festival (1893) and the Shivaji Festival (1896) in Maharashtra as platforms for political mobilisation.

Nationalism: cultural, economic, political Lecture 30 slide 59

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Nationalism has three faces: Cultural, Economic (the Drain Theory), Political (power to the people or nation over the State).
- Extremists' recipe:
  - Step 1: use culture to raise passion and emotion among the masses
  - Step 2: convert that cultural energy into political energy.
- Masses to gather: the non-Western-educated, motivated through Religion and Historical Heroes, then directed into the INM.
- "Emotion = energizer of Action." Netaji Bose:
  - "Sv = Spiritual father of the INM in Bengal" = Cultural Nationalist [the slide writes only "Sv", probably Swami Vivekananda (section 3)
  - Check your notebook]

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout: this was not a new idea in world history.
- Across colonised and occupied nations cultural nationalism has often been the first step toward political nationalism, especially when direct political organisation is suppressed.
- Tilak in the 1890s was doing what many European nationalists did in the 1820s and 1830s.

- Driver 3: Curzon 99-05 made mass anger unavoidable.
- Curzon 99-05 governed with an arrogance and authoritarianism that alienated even moderate opinion.
- His laws concentrated power and told educated Indians their opinions did not matter.
- Three reactionary laws (Calcutta Municipal Corporation Amendment Act 1899, Indian Universities Act 1904, Indian Official Secrets Amendment Act 1904) each hit a different pillar, local self-government, education and the press, and together showed that the administration would not reform itself.
- Section 2 gives the laws in detail.

TEACHER'S BOARD

"Stronger the villain, Stronger the Hero." Handout version: Curzon 99-05's authoritarianism made even the Moderates of Bengal rethink their methods; he attacked local self-government, education and the press, and deployed DnR @ Bengal.

PYQ 6, Prelims 2004: Viceroy chronology Lecture 31 slide 40

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2004: "Consider the following Viceroys: 1. Lord Curzon 99-05 2. Lord Chelmsford 3. Lord Hardinge 4. Lord Irwin. Correct chronological order?" Correct: (a) 1, 3, 2, 4 (Curzon 99-05, Hardinge 10-16, Chelmsford 16-21, Irwin 26-31).
- Tempting wrong option: (c) 1, 4, 2, 3 (puts Irwin second).
- (b) and (d) open with Chelmsford.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1998: "Which one of the following defines extremist ideology during the early phase?" Correct: (b) Obtaining self-government by aggressive means in place of petitions and constitutional ways.
- Traps:
  - (a) preferring indigenous goods is Swadeshi, a method
  - (c) national education is one of the four Calcutta methods
  - (d) military coups belong to the Revolutionary stream
- Extremism was about how self-government should be won.

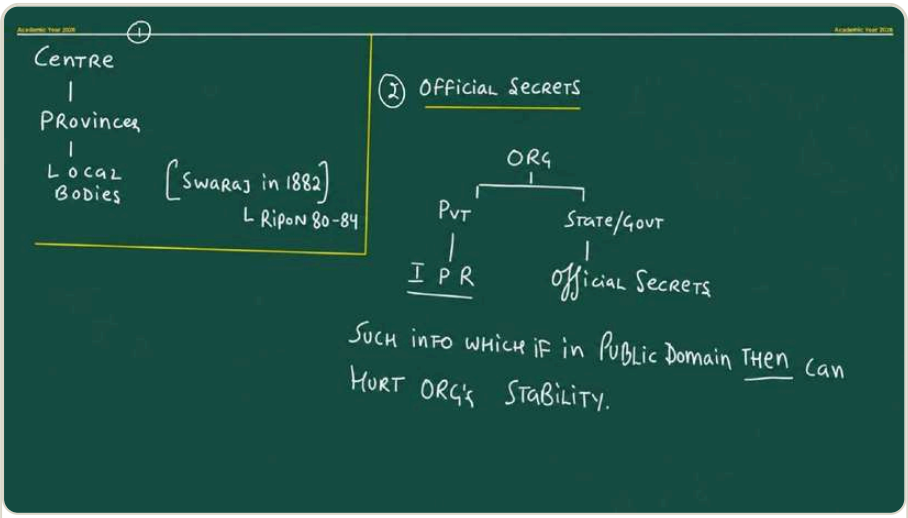
2 · The Swadeshi Movement: Curzon 99-05's measures and the road to 1905

STORY LINK

Because Curzon 99-05 had already hit three pillars of public life, anger was ready before the Partition. Ask: which law attacked local self-government, which education, which the press?

- Before the Swadeshi Movement erupted, Curzon 99-05's own measures set the stage. Three laws built the frustration.



Local bodies (Swaraj in 1882) and Official Secrets Lecture 30 slide 61

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Pyramid:
  - Centre, Provinces, Local Bodies. Local bodies = "Swaraj in 1882" under Ripon 80-84: the Resolution that gave Indians self-government at the lowest level
  - The 1899 Act rolled it back
- Official secrets: an organisation (ORG) has private secrets (IPR, intellectual property rights) and State or Government secrets (Official Secrets): "such info which if in public domain can hurt the ORG's stability." Also: "1870: Bengal Govt expenditure on Higher Edu" (the verb is).

Law	What it did	Pillar hit
Calcutta Municipal Corporation Amendment Act, 1899	Reduced the number of elected members in municipalities, rolling back the limited representative participation Indians had in local governance	Local self-government
Indian Universities Act, 1904	Brought universities under direct government control. Curzon 99-05 thought universities were "factories of sedition" (centres producing politically aware graduates who questioned British authority), so he clamped down	Education
Indian Official Secrets Amendment Act, 1904	Cut press freedom: power to censor and confiscate any publication hurting British interests; made communicating an "official secret" (broadly defined: anything relating to State affairs or specially notified) a criminal offence. In force until the Indian Official Secrets Act, 1923, even stricter	The press

MNEMONIC · CURZON 99-05'S THREE LAWS, IN ORDER

Mighty Unfair Orders

M Municipal Corporation Amendment Act 1899: fewer elected members

U Universities Act 1904: direct government control

O Official Secrets Amendment Act 1904: press freedom cut

Order kept: one law in 1899, then two in 1904; each hit a pillar (local self-government, education, the press).

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout: educated Indians were the ones writing the petitions, editing the newspapers, running the INC and now leading the Swadeshi movement.
- So education policy was always also colonial control policy.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2015: "Which movement contributed to a split in the INC into Moderates and Extremists?" Correct: (a) Swadeshi Movement.
- The others come later: Quit India 1942, Non-Cooperation 1920-22 (when Gandhi united the factions), Civil Disobedience 1930-34.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2019: Swadeshi statements: 1. It contributed to the revival of indigenous artisan crafts and industries. 2.
- The National Council of Education was established as part of the Swadeshi Movement.
- Correct: (c) Both 1 and 2 (see section 5 for the National Council of Education and the Swadeshi enterprises).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2023: Statement-I: 7 August is National Handloom Day.
- Statement-II: the Swadeshi movement was launched on the same day in 1905.
- Correct: (a) Both correct, II explains I.
- The Boycott Resolution at Calcutta Town Hall on 7 August 1905 launched the movement (section 4).

3 · The Partition of Bengal (announced July 1905, effected 16 October 1905)

STORY LINK

Because the anger was ready, one more act lit it. Ask: what did the British say, what did Indians believe, and why does the teacher call it Divide and Rule?

3.1 Bengal's administrative history before the Partition

- The British had redrawn Bengal's boundaries many times, each time for their own administrative or political convenience.

Year	Change
1765	The British obtained the Diwani of Bengal Suba (Bengal, Orissa, Bihar). In 1775 they annexed Benaras and ran it as part of the Bengal Presidency
1801	Half of Awadh ceded in a subordinate alliance treaty (Treaty of Lucknow 1801) and added to the Bengal Presidency as the "Ceded Provinces". Scindia's territory from the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (1803-05) was added: now the "Ceded and Conquered Provinces"
1803	Orissa came under control by defeating the Bhonsle of Nagpur in the 2nd Anglo-Maratha War (the Diwani since 1765 had practically covered only Midnapore)
1826	Assam annexed by the Treaty of Yandabo 1826 after the 1st Anglo-Burma War (1824-26) and added to the Bengal Presidency
1836	North West Provinces (NWP 1836) created: the "Ceded and Conquered Provinces" separated from the Bengal Presidency
1874	Assam carved out as a separate Chief Commissioner (CC) Province (a UT equivalent: directly under central administration, not a full Lieutenant-Governor province)
1874-1905	Bengal Presidency = Bengal + Orissa + Bihar; Assam separate as a CC Province
1905	The Partition created Bengal (= WB + Bihar + Orissa) and the new province of East Bengal & Assam (EBA = EB + Assam)
1911	The Partition annulled: Bengal = WB + EB; Assam and "Bihar & Orissa" became separate
1936	Bihar & Orissa made full, separate provinces

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "SA" beside 1801 (the handout calls 1801 a subordinate alliance treaty with Awadh, Chapter 11)
- A small oval split in two with "1801" in the left half
- On the 1874-1936 map: "1947: [EB + Sylhet from Assam] = EP" (East Pakistan).
- Quotation marks on "Bengal", "Assam" and "Bihar &amp
- Orissa" in the 1911 row = political names, not fixed geography.

Map sketch: Bengal and East Bengal and Assam (EBA) before and after 1905 Lecture 30 slide 65

TEACHER'S BOARD

- What moved in 1905. Before 1905 the Bengal Presidency covered Bihar, West Bengal, Orissa and East Bengal, with Assam beside it.
- The Partition (Oct 1905) cut the east off:
    - East Bengal + Assam = EBA, holding the Assam Tea Gardens, the Assam-Bengal Railways and Chittagong Port
    - Calcutta Port stays in "Bengal." Quotation marks around a name = a political name. 1911 restored the pre-1905 map

Map: Partition of Bengal 1905 Lecture 30 slide 68

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout numbers the administrative history 3.1 to 3.10 and then numbers the three British "benefits" again as 3.10 to 3.12. The slides split them correctly.

3.2 The British justification

- The official rationale was administrative. Undivided Bengal was the most populous province and too large for one administration.
- The British named three benefits:
    - (1) Assam would grow and, as part of a proper Lieutenant-Governor province, get its own civil services cadre
    - (2) the Assam-Bengal Railways would come under the unified administration of EBA
    - (3) Assam's tea gardens would gain a cheaper maritime outlet via Chittagong port.

3.3 The real reason: what Indians believed

- Indians saw the Partition as Divide and Rule, meant to weaken the INM in Bengal.

- If administration were the goal, the logical fix was to reorganise Bengal on linguistic lines, not religious ones.
- Instead two provinces were divided along the Hindu-Muslim demographic fault line: it was communal engineering.
- How it weakened the INM: the movement in Bengal was led by the Bengali Bhadralok, upper-caste (UC) Hindu educated professionals.
- The Partition made Bengalis a minority in West Bengal (diluted by Bihar and Orissa) and Hindus a minority in EBA, so the support base shrank in both provinces at once.
- The second objective was to appease elite Muslims and counter the rising tide of Hindu cultural nationalism.
- EBA was designed as a new Muslim Majority Province (MMP).

THE PARTITION: THE STATED REASON AGAINST THE REAL ONE

Partition 1905

- Why split Bengal?

@ Stated reason

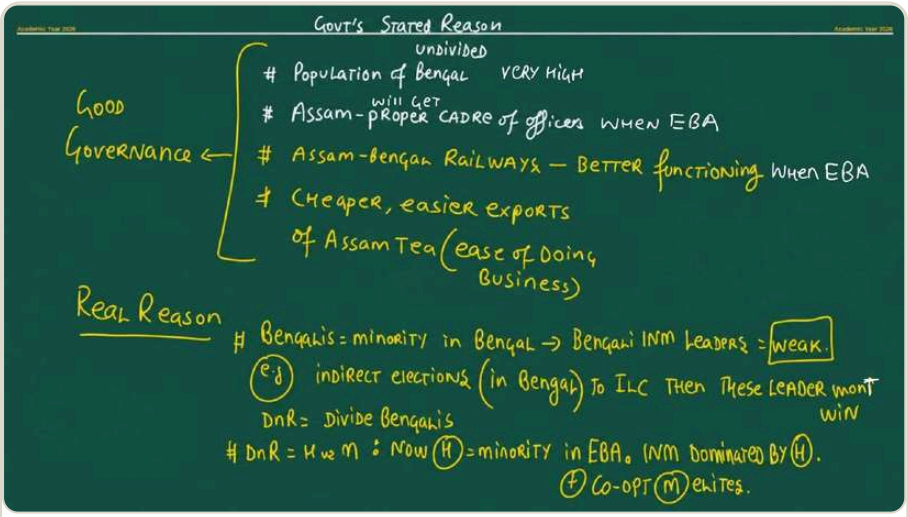
- Population too high
- Assam gets a cadre
- Railways unified
- Tea via Chittagong

GOOD GOVERNANCE: promised only after EBA exists

@ Real reason

- Bengalis a minority in Bengal
- Hindus a minority in EBA
- Co-opt elite Muslims

DIVIDE AND RULE: weaken the INM in Bengal



Stated reason (good governance) and real reason for the Partition Lecture 30 slide 66

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Stated reason = good governance:
  - (1) high population, (2) an officer cadre for Assam, (3) better railways, (4) cheaper tea exports ("ease of doing business")
  - "will get" and "when EBA" = promised only after EBA existed
- Real reason, three parts:
  - (1) Bengalis become a minority in Bengal, so Bengali INM leaders are weak: e.g. under indirect elections to the Imperial Legislative Council they would not win
  - (2) DnR = divide Bengalis, and Hindus against Muslims: Hindus become a minority in EBA, and the INM was dominated by Hindus
  - (3) co-opt Muslim elites.

Language-based partition wanted by INM leaders Lecture 30 slide 67

TEACHER'S BOARD

- INM leaders wanted a language-based partition (cf.
- States Reorganisation Act 1956), best for good governance: Orissa, Bihar, Bengal and Assam as provinces (each a language region), not a split of Bengal along religious lines.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The teacher's board stresses the Bengali Bhadralok and indirect elections as the mechanics of weakness: the base is diluted.
- The handout states the same outcome as "a minority in Bengal (diluted by Bihar & Orissa)".

3.4 Hindu cultural nationalism and the Muslim response

- The British were watching Hindu cultural nationalism rise through the 1880s and 1890s.

- Bankim Chandra Chatterjee's Anandamath (1882) gave the idea of Bharat Mata and composed Bande Mataram.
- Swami Dayanand Saraswati (died 1883) and Swami Vivekananda built it ideologically
- Then came the Ganapati Festival (1893) and the Shivaji Festival (1896).
- Partitioning Bengal to appease elite Muslims was in part a response to this trend.
- Nawab Salimullah of Dacca and the elite Muslim leadership welcomed the Partition.
- The Muslim League (ML1906), formed a year later, actively supported it and worked with the Ulamas, who controlled the Muslim masses, deepening communal lines and reducing the chance of joint Hindu-Muslim resistance.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2009: "16 October 1905 is well-known because...?" Correct: (b) The Partition of Bengal took effect.
- Wrong options:
  - (a) the Boycott Resolution at Calcutta Town Hall = "Aug 1905"
  - (c) Dadabhai Naoroji declaring Swaraj = "Dec 1906"
  - (d) Tilak did not start Swadeshi in Poona: it began in Bengal

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2010: "What was the immediate cause for the launch of the Swadeshi Movement?" Correct: (a) The Partition of Bengal done by Curzon 99-05.
- Traps:
  - (b) Tilak's 18 months' imprisonment
  - (c) arrest and deportation of Lala Lajpat Rai and Ajit Singh with the Punjab Colonisation Bill (two years later)
  - (d) the Chapekar brothers' death sentence (the 1897 Poona episode)

4 · Events during the Swadeshi Movement

STORY LINK

Because the Partition was announced, Bengal answered in steps. Ask: who initiated the movement (Moderates) and who led it (Extremists)?

- The movement did not begin on the day of Partition.
- It built over two years, changed character and spread beyond Bengal.

How the Swadeshi movement unfolded, 1903-1907 Lecture 31 slide 1

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Who initiated the Swadeshi movement? Bengal Moderates" (7 August 1905 Boycott Resolution; 7 Aug 1905 = date of Swadeshi movt).
- "Who led it?" the Extremists ("Extremists take over").
- Opposition to the Risley Papers was "by Mod + Ex" (both groups)
- A second note "By extremists"
- Desher Katha was in Bangla on the Drain Theory
- "early 1900s: books on Drain published." At Barisal the police repression of the procession was a "Big Boost to movt" ["violent" above "SNB &amp
- Aurobindo" is unclear
- Check your notebook]

- 1903: the Risley Papers. The Risley Papers 1903 (H.H Risley was Home Secretary) carried Curzon 99-05's Minute on Territorial Re-distribution with the Partition plan in detail.
- They were published in the Gazette of India to gauge public reaction, so Indians knew the scheme in 1903 itself (the slide gives Risley's letter of 3 Dec 1903 and the Gazette of 12 Dec 1903).
- 1903-05: the Moderate phase, press and Constructive Swadeshi.
- Surendranath Bannerjea (SNB) and C.R. Das ran a press campaign through Bengalee, Sanjibani and Hitabadi.
- Village-level mobilisation was attempted by Constructive Swadeshi, the best example being Rabindranath Tagore's ShantiNiketan Ashram (1901).
- These methods failed to stop the Partition, announced in July 1905 and effected on 16 October 1905.

Partition as proof of the Moderates' failure: 1903-1905 Lecture 31 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Proof of Moderates' Failure": the 1892 ICA (Indian Councils Act 1892) and the Partition of Bengal, which came after "Dec 1903 - July 1905: 1.5 yrs of 3 Ps" (the Moderates' petition, prayer and press).
- Oct 1905: the unit "Bi, WB, EB, Or" + "Assam (UT)" becomes "Bi, WB, Or" + "Assam + EB = MMP" (Muslim Majority Province).
- See Chapter 28 for the 1892 Act.

- Desher Katha (1904). Sakharam Ganesh Deuskar published Desher Katha (1904), documenting the economic exploitation of India under British rule.
- Its significance is that Deuskar used "Desh" for the entire Indian subcontinent, not just Bengal: a conscious attempt to build pan-Indian economic consciousness against the colonial drain.
- It was widely read in Bengal.
- 7 August 1905: the Boycott Resolution. In response to the July announcement, Moderates SNB, K.K Mitra, Anand Mohan Bose and P.C. Ray passed a resolution to boycott British goods and institutions at Calcutta Town Hall.
- The Moderates themselves had crossed a line.
- The Extremists take over. They widened both goal and method:
    - To the demand for annulment of the Partition they added Swaraj
    - to Boycott and Swadeshi they added Passive Resistance (PR): non-cooperation with British institutions, civil disobedience (CD) and the threat of violent agitation if the government used repression
- They also took the movement out of Bengal.

Leaders across the country (the Extremists):

Region	Leader
Bengal	C.R. Das and B.C. Pal
Bombay	Tilak

Region	Leader
Delhi	Syed Haidar Raza
Punjab	Lala Lajpat Rai and Ajit Singh
Madras	V.O. Chidambaram Pillai

- April 1906: Barisal Conference. SNB and Aurobindo Ghosh distributed Bande Mataram badges.
- The police repressed the procession before it began.
- Bande Mataram, composed by Bankim Chandra Chatterjee in Anandamath (1882), had become the anthem of the movement
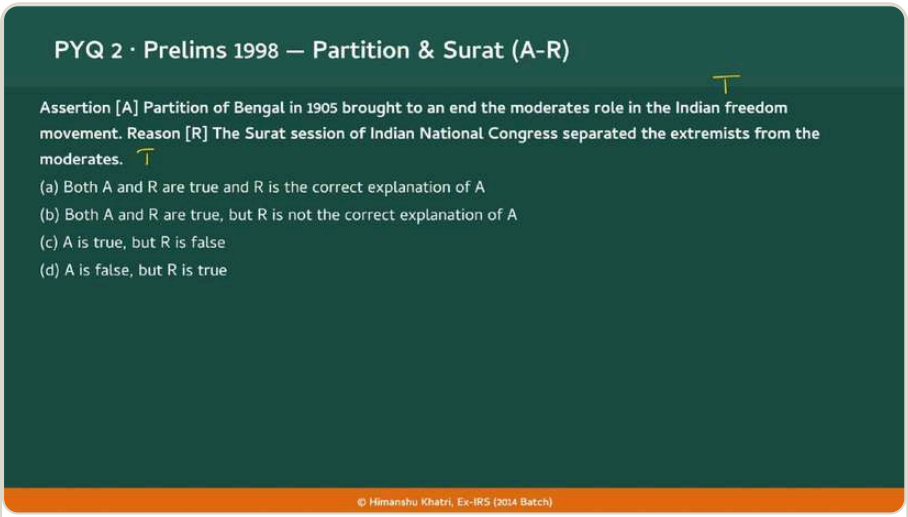
- Its link with Bharat Mata and Hindu religious symbols would later cause tension with Muslim participation



PYQ 2, Prelims 1998: Partition and Surat (Assertion-Reason) Lecture 31 slide 32

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1998: Assertion [A] the Partition of Bengal in 1905 brought to an end the Moderates' role in the freedom movement.
- Reason [R] the Surat session separated the Extremists from the Moderates.
- Handout and bank key: (d) A is false, R is true.
- A is false because the Moderates passed the Boycott Resolution (7 Aug 1905) and stayed in the movement
- R is true (Surat 1907; they reunited only in 1916)
- Conflict: the class slide marks "T" on both A and R.
- Use (d) (handout, bank key and answer slide agree)
- Check your notebook for what the teacher said about A

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2008: "New Lamps for Old" (a systematic critique of the Moderates in a series of articles): (a) Aurobindo Ghosh. The others: R.C.
- Dutt (economic critique, drain), Syed Ahmad Khan (outside Congress politics), Viraraghavachari.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2016: "'Swadeshi' and 'Boycott' were adopted as methods of struggle for the first time during..." Correct: (a) the agitation against the Partition of Bengal (Boycott first at Calcutta Town Hall, 7 Aug 1905).
- Home Rule, Non-Cooperation and the Simon Commission boycott only reused them.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2002: which statement is NOT correct?
- Correct (the false one): (a) Liakat Hussain led the Muslim peasants of Barisal in their agitations.
- True statements:
  - (b) the scheme of national education was formulated by Satish Chandra Mukherjee in 1889
  - (c) the Bengal National College was founded in 1906 with Aurobindo as Principal
  - (d) Tagore preached the cult of Atmasakti, whose main plank was the social and economic regeneration of villages
- See the conflict note in section 5.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2018: biographer of Mazzini, Garibaldi, Shivaji and Shrikrishna, stayed in America, elected to the Central Assembly: (c) Lala Lajpat Rai (not Aurobindo, B.C Pal or Motilal Nehru).
- Prelims 2020, Desher Katha:
  - (a) 1 and 2 only: it warned against the hypnotic conquest of the mind and inspired Swadeshi plays
  - "Desh" was the whole subcontinent.

5 · Methods of the Extremists during Swadeshi 05-11

STORY LINK

Because the Extremists wanted the masses, they built a many-sided toolkit. Ask: which methods are political (NC, CD) and which social (Constructive Work)?

- The Extremists used a wider and more confrontational toolkit than the Moderates.
- The teacher's boards sort it first, then the handout lists nine methods.

NON COOPERATION: ONE COIN, TWO SIDES

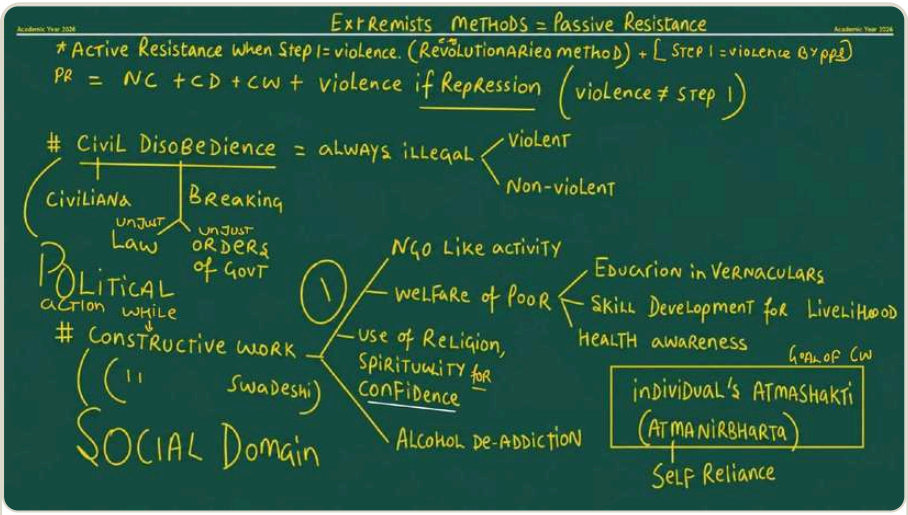
Non Cooperation
- Always legal, always non-violent

@ Boycott
- Legislature, executive, courts
- Titles and Brown Sahib syllabus
- British goods

STOP: refuse what the State and imports offer

@ Swadeshi
- Panchayats, arbitration courts
- National education
- Indian goods and enterprises

START: build the Indian alternative



Extremists' methods: Passive Resistance, Civil Disobedience, Constructive Work Lecture 31 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Passive Resistance = NC + CD + CW + violence if repression.
- Test = Step 1:
  - Active Resistance = Step 1 is violence (the Revolutionaries' method)
  - In Passive Resistance Step 1 is never violence
  - violence comes only if the government answers with repression.
- Civil Disobedience is always illegal (violent or non-violent): civilians breaking an unjust law or unjust orders of the Government.
- Constructive Work (CW) = SOCIAL domain
- the other methods are POLITICAL action
- CW has four strands:
  - NGO-like activity
  - Welfare of the poor (education in vernaculars, skill development for livelihood, health awareness)
  - Use of religion and spirituality for confidence
  - alcohol de-addiction.
- Its goal: the individual's Atmashakti (Atmanirbharta, self-reliance).

Constructive Work: community Atmashakti and unity Lecture 31 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Second goal: Community Atmashakti via Hindu-Muslim unity, Upper Caste-Lower Caste unity and women's empowerment.
- "Unity is Power." Proofs: cooperatives (milk, Amul; banks) and SHGs (Self Help Groups: self + help = self-reliance; the group is the organisation of the community).
- CW "did":
  - "SDS 1875" and "SV (RkMission 1897)"
  - "Service of Jiva = Worship of Shiva (Daridra Narayan)" [initials only
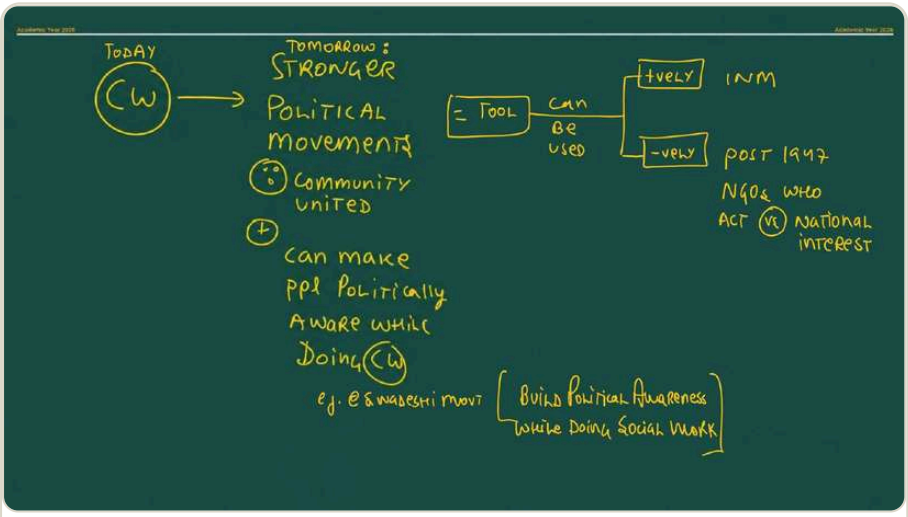
  - They fit Swami Dayanand Saraswati (Arya Samaj 1875) and Swami Vivekananda (Ramakrishna Mission 1897), section 3
  - Check your notebook]
- This is the Atmasakti Tagore preached in the 2002 PYQ (social and economic regeneration of villages).



Constructive Work today, political movements tomorrow Lecture 31 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Today's CW leads to tomorrow's stronger political movements: a united community can be made politically aware while doing social work, as in Swadeshi.
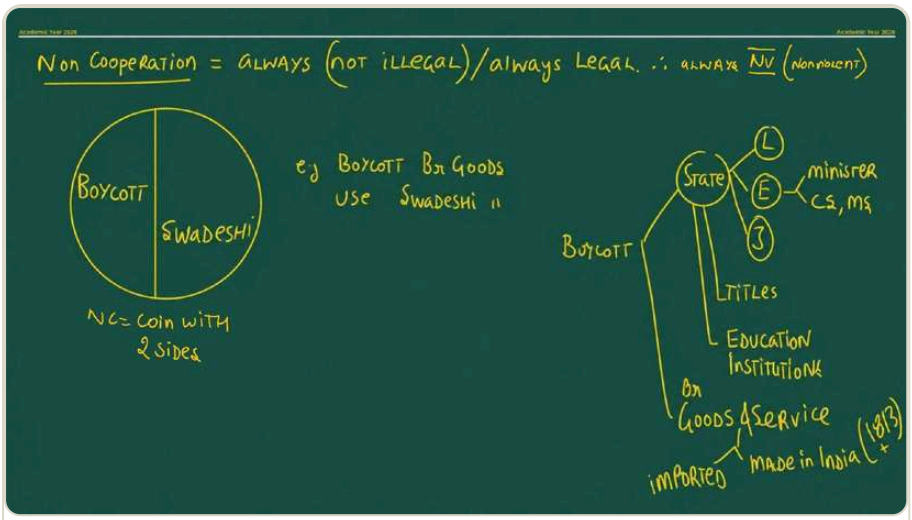
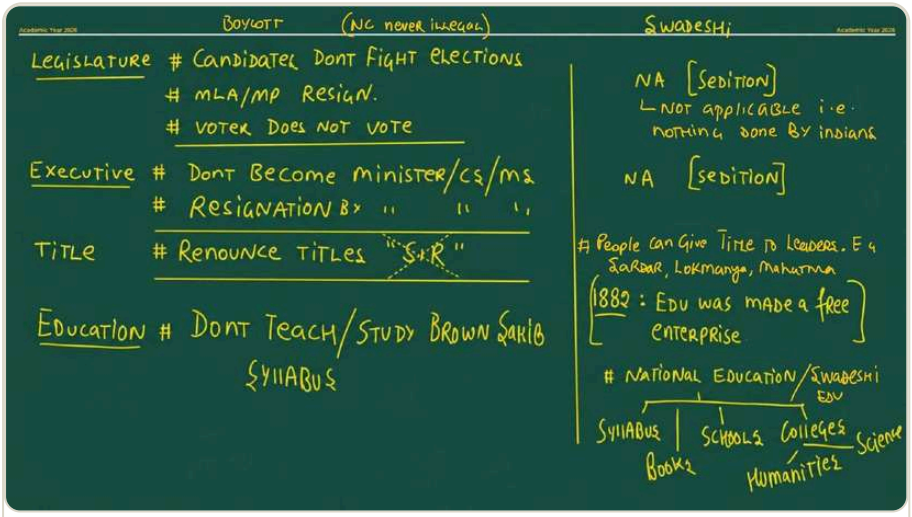
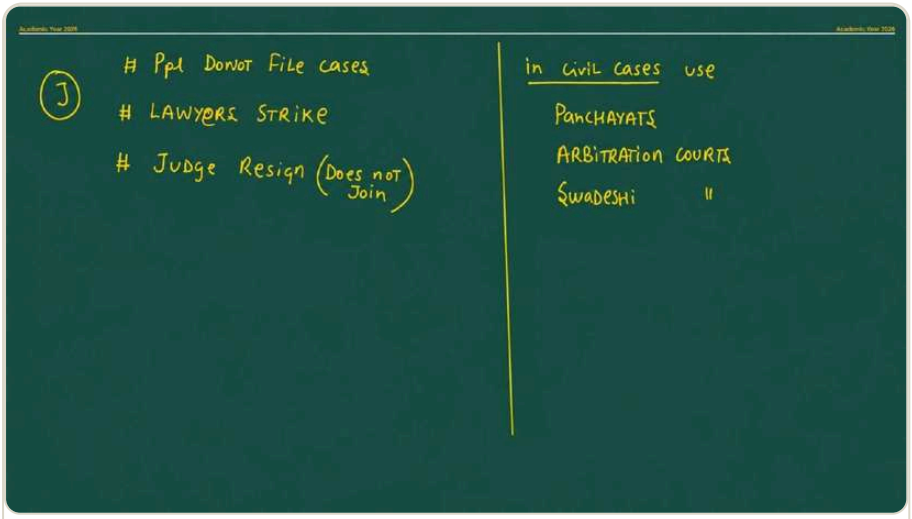
- CW is a tool: used positively in the INM, negatively after 1947 by NGOs that act against the national interest.



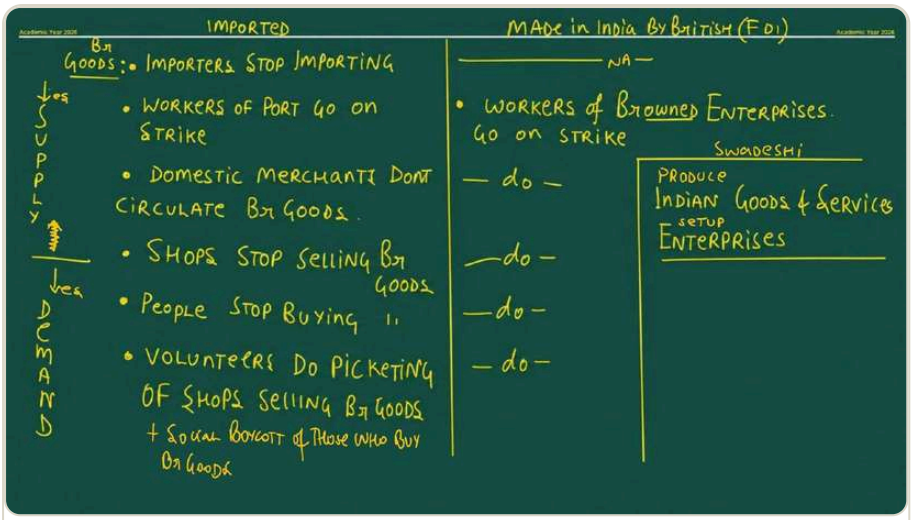
Non Cooperation: Boycott and Swadeshi, two sides of a coin Lecture 31 slide 6



Boycott and Swadeshi: legislature, executive, titles, education Lecture 31 slide 7



Boycott and Swadeshi in the judiciary Lecture 31 slide 8



Boycott of British goods: supply side and demand side Lecture 31 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Non Cooperation is always legal, so always non-violent (NV): NC = a coin with two sides, Boycott and Swadeshi.
- Boycott = do not cooperate with the three organs of the State (Legislature, Executive, Judiciary), plus titles, education institutions and British goods and services.
- Legislature: candidates do not fight elections, MLAs/MPs resign, voters do not vote.
- Executive:
  - Do not become a minister, CS or MS
  - Holders resign.
- Title: renounce titles ("S+R" struck out).
- Education: do not teach or study the Brown Sahib syllabus.
- Judiciary: people do not file cases, lawyers strike, judges resign or do not join.
- Swadeshi is the matching construction:
  - Education = National Education / Swadeshi education (syllabus and books, schools, colleges for humanities and science; "1882: Edu was made a free enterprise")
  - Civil cases = panchayats and arbitration courts.
- For Legislature and Executive:
  - "NA [Sedition]: not applicable, i.e. nothing done by Indians" [link to "Sedition" unclear
  - Check your notebook]
- "People can give time to leaders:
  - Sardar, Lokmanya, Mahatma." Boycott of British goods: imported goods are hit on the supply side (importers, port workers, domestic merchants) and the demand side (shops, people, picketing volunteers, social boycott)
  - Goods made in India by the British (FDI) are hit by strikes of workers in "browned" enterprises.
- Answer to both: Swadeshi: produce Indian goods and services and set up enterprises.

5.1 The nine methods

- i) Non Cooperation (NC), Boycott, Civil Disobedience (CD) and violent agitation.
- A call for NC (boycott of British institutions and goods) with Swadeshi (Indian-made goods), plus CD (deliberately violating unjust laws)
- If the government used police repression, violent agitation was to follow

MNEMONIC · SUPPLY SIDE OF THE BOYCOTT OF IMPORTS

I M P

Cut the supply and the goods never reach the shop: the teacher's own 'imp'.

- I Importers stop importing
- M domestic Merchants do not circulate British goods
- P Port workers go on strike

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. The demand side is shops, people and picketing volunteers, plus social boycott.

- ii) Constructive Work (CW). Continued alongside confrontation for awareness-building and mass mobilisation.

MNEMONIC · CONSTRUCTIVE WORK: WHAT THE TEACHER LISTS

Constructive Work shares with the poor what they lack.

- S Skill development for livelihood
- H Health awareness
- A Alcohol de-addiction
- R Religion and spirituality for confidence
- E Education in vernaculars

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- iii) National Education. In response to the Indian Universities Act 1904, the Extremists set up parallel institutions: the Bengal National College (Aurobindo as principal), the National Council of Education (the teacher: an NCERT equivalent, and on the slide "NCERT + Sciences + Humanities") and the Bengal Technical Institute.

Extremist methods (v-ix): Samitis, Jatras, religion Lecture 31 slide 13

- iv) Swadeshi enterprises, to give Boycott economic teeth, across soap, matches, chemicals, steel, banking and shipping:

Enterprise	Founder and detail
Tata Iron & Steel Company (TISCO)	Conceived by Jamsetji Tata; established by his son Dorabji Tata in 1907
Bengal Chemicals & Pharmaceuticals (BCPL)	By P.C. Ray
Bombay Swadeshi Stores (BSS)	By Tilak and others
Swadeshi Steam Navigation Company (1906)	By V.O. Chidambaram Pillai in Tuticorin, to challenge the British monopoly of coastal shipping (against the British India Steam Navigation Company)
Punjab National Bank (PNB, 1894) and Lakshmi Insurance Company (1906)	PNB by Dyal Singh Majithia and Lala Harkishen Lal, with significant involvement of Lala Lajpat Rai. L.L. Rai also promoted the D.A.V. (Dayanand Anglo-Vedic) movement and, through his Lahore Indian Association (1878), led the Punjab Canal Colony Agitations (1907)

HANDOUT ALERT

- PNB (1894) is older than the Swadeshi Movement.
- The handout and slide date it 1894, yet list it as a Swadeshi-era institution of economic nationalism
- The Lakshmi Insurance Company (1906) is the one dated inside the movement
- Do not date PNB to 1905-11.

- v) Picketing:
  - Physically preventing the sale of British goods at shops and liquor outlets
  - it also drew in women participants, so it mattered socially beyond its economic impact
- vi) Samitis (volunteer corps). The INC under the Moderates had no ground-level structure, and the Samitis filled that gap.

- Example: the Swadesh Bandhab Samiti (1905) of Ashwini Kumar Dutt in Barisal, which did Constructive Work among Muslim ryots and organised the Barisal Conference 1906.
- vii) Jatras (plays and theatre): traditional theatre to raise awareness and nationalist sentiment among audiences who would not read newspapers.
- Viii) High use of religion. Prabhat Pheris (morning-worship processions), Tilaks, religious pledges and Kali worship
- in Maharashtra, Tilak's Ganpati Festival (1893) and Shivaji Festival (1896) were the anchors
- Ix) Workers' strikes. C.R. Das, Liaqat Hussain and B.C Pal led strikes in foreign-owned enterprises
- the logic hit the supply side too, by disrupting production and distribution

MNEMONIC · THE NINE METHODS, IN THE HANDOUT'S ORDER

New Citizens Never Stop Protesting; Some Join Rallies Willingly

- N Non Cooperation, Boycott, CD, violent agitation
- C Constructive Work
- N National Education
- S Swadeshi enterprises
- P Picketing
- S Samitis (volunteer corps)
- J Jatras (plays and theatre)
- R high use of Religion
- W Workers' strikes

Order kept: the nine methods i to ix as the handout lists them.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The INC was only a 3-day annual conference
- PCCs (set up 1886) were dysfunctional on the ground, so Samitis mattered
- Jatras: awareness + emotions leads to mobilization of masses.
- Prabhat Pheris = processions after morning worship.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Conflict on Liaqat Hussain (Prelims 2002). The handout and slide (section 5, method ix) place Liaqat Hussain among those who led workers' strikes in foreign-owned enterprises during Swadeshi (with C.R. Das and B.C Pal).
- The answer slide and the bank, however, explain option (a) as false because the Barisal peasant agitation is "a later salt-breaking agitation of the Civil Disobedience era", a detail that is not in the handout.
- The answer stays (a) "Liakat Hussain led the Muslim peasants of Barisal" is NOT correct
- remember him by the handout: Swadeshi workers' strikes, not Barisal peasants.

6 · Why Swadeshi did not become a proper mass movement

STORY LINK

Because a toolkit is not a movement, the mass base never formed. Ask: which reason is about cost, which about caste, which about religion and which about the INC?

- The Extremists attempted the first real mass movement in the history of the INC and did not fully succeed.

How to judge any movement Lecture 31 slide 14

TEACHER'S BOARD

- How to judge any movement, three columns.
- (1) Goal achieved or not
- The ideology of nationalism.
- (2) Movement of the people (especially INM): level of participation by region (rural, urban; North, South, East, West) and by group (Lower Caste, Upper Caste; Hindu, Muslim; rich, poor; peasants, [Z: unclear, check your notebook], working class, capitalists; men, women).
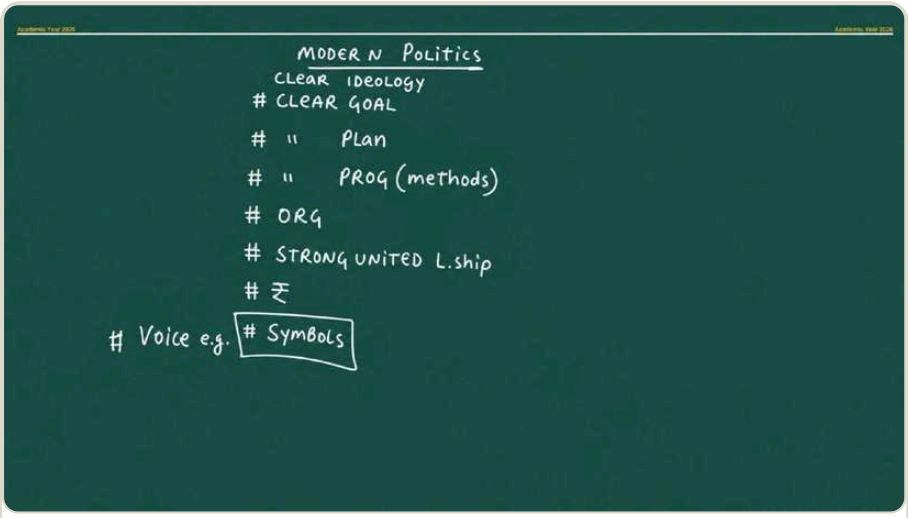
- (3) Modern Politics as criterion: clear ideology, clear goals, a plan or programme (methods), strong united leadership, an organisation (ORG) and a voice.
- The next board adds money to the list.



Modern Politics: criteria, with symbols as voice Lecture 31 slide 26

Reason	Detail
6.1 Costly Swadeshi goods	Too few enterprises to meet demand at affordable prices, so Swadeshi goods were dearer: low participation by the poor (Muslim ryots, Lower Castes (LC), blue-collar workers)
6.2 Force and social boycott	Some student leaders and volunteers used force and social boycott against LC and Muslims who did not join, deepening alienation
6.3 Few Swadeshi institutions	Arbitration courts, educational institutions and enterprises stayed thin relative to the ambition
6.4 Low Muslim participation	(i) Jatras sometimes showed Muslims and the British as collaborators; (ii) the Muslim League (ML1906), led by elite Muslims like Nawab Salimullah of Dacca, backed the Partition and partnered with the Ulamas; (iii) the heavy Hindu symbolism (Bande Mataram, Kali worship) alienated Muslims
6.5 Capturing the INC over the masses	Internal factionalism: the effort to take over the INC organisation distracted energy from ground mobilisation

- The result:
    - Overall mass mobilisation failed

- British goods imports were not significantly impacted
- the boycott failed on its primary economic objective.

MNEMONIC · WHY SWADESHI DID NOT BECOME A MASS MOVEMENT

Cheap Foreign Textiles Mocked Congress

- C Costly Swadeshi goods
- F Force and social boycott against LC and Muslims
- T Thin institutions
- M low Muslim participation (Jatras, ML1906, Hindu symbols)
- C Capturing the INC over the masses

Order kept: reasons 6.1 to 6.5. Cheap foreign textiles kept winning because the movement was costly, forceful, thin, one-sided and busy with the Congress.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "(Costly)" goods: the poor who could not afford them include peasants (ryots) as well as workers.
- "In Bengal ~50% Muslims" (low Muslim participation hurt Bengal most).
- "i.e. British imports not impacted" under the boycott's failure.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout: the recurring problem: Upper Caste (UC) leadership produces low Lower Caste (LC) participation.
- It showed up in the criticism of Social Reformers (Chapter 19), in the limits of the Moderates (Chapter 26) and now in the Extremists' movement.
- It is a structural problem of Indian social hierarchy meeting political organisation.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1998: "The Indian Muslims in general were not attracted to the Extremist movement because of the..." Correct: (d) Extremists' policy of harping on the Hindu past.
- Board key: (a) Sir Syed's influence F, (b) anti-Muslim attitude F, (c) indifference F, (d) T.
- The cause is the heavy Hindu symbolism (Bande Mataram, Kali worship, Ganapati and Shivaji festivals), not personal hostility.

6.1 After Surat: leaders scattered, Revolutionaries rise

- After the Surat Split of 1907 (section 7) the Extremist leadership was repressed and scattered: Tilak was deported to Mandalay, Burma (1908-14)
- Aurobindo retired from active politics
- B.C Pal retired temporarily
- L.L Rai went abroad from 1914 to 1920, to London and then the United States, where he set up the 'Indian Home Rule League of America'.
- With the movement leaderless by 1908, the Revolutionaries rose (1908-11): those who concluded that even the Extremists' passive resistance and mass politics had failed.
- Each failed approach bred a more radical successor. (Chapter 30 begins here.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

"When Pen failed, People came out; when People failed, Guns came out; when Guns failed, MG came out [1920+]." Pen = the Moderates' petitions; People = the Extremists' mass politics; Guns = the Revolutionaries; MG = Mahatma Gandhi, 1920 onwards.

After Surat (1907): leaders scattered, Revolutionaries Lecture 31 slide 22

HANDOUT NOTE

- The class transcription labels slide 22 "Chapter 30", but the handout's section 6 for this chapter carries exactly the same text (Tilak, Aurobindo, Pal, Rai, then the Revolutionaries of 1908-11), so it is placed and cited once, here.
- The detailed Revolutionary story is Chapter 30.

7 · The Surat Split (1907)

STORY LINK

Because the Moderates feared losing the INC, the split came at Surat. Ask: did the two wings differ on goal or on method?

- How did the INC fracture, and why did it matter?
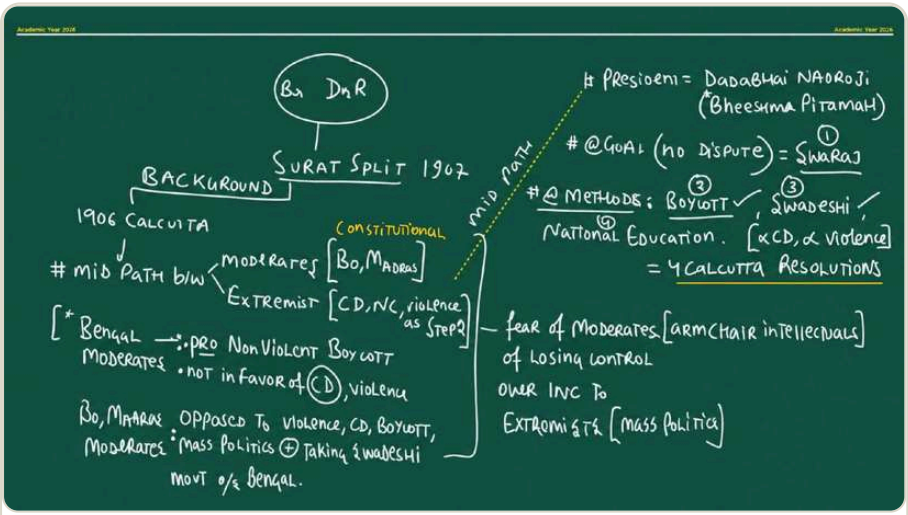
- Tension between Moderates and Extremists had been building since Swadeshi gave the Extremists a platform.
- The Bombay-based Moderates opposed Extremist methods on principle: they feared confrontation would provoke repression and damage the constitutional progress they believed in.



Calcutta 1906: mid path between Moderates and Extremists Lecture 31 slide 18

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Background: Calcutta 1906 was a "mid path" between two camps.
- Bombay and Madras Moderates:
  - Constitutional
  - opposed violence, CD, Boycott and mass politics
  - did not want Swadeshi taken outside Bengal.
- Bengal Moderates: pro non-violent Boycott, not in favour of CD or violence.
- Extremists: CD, NC and violence as Step 2.
- Calcutta 1906:
  - President Dadabhai Naoroji ("Bheeshma Pitamah," the elder statesman respected by both sides)
  - goal (no dispute) = Swaraj
  - methods = Boycott, Swadeshi, National Education, with no CD and no violence = the 4 Calcutta Resolutions (Boycott and Swadeshi ticked)
- Moderates' fear: armchair intellectuals losing control over the INC to the Extremists' mass politics.

- The 1906 INC session was held in Calcutta with Dadabhai Naoroji as President.
- The Extremists got four resolutions passed: (1) Swaraj (the goal), (2) Boycott, (3) Swadeshi, (4) National Education (methods).

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR CALCUTTA RESOLUTIONS OF 1906

Swaraj Boosts Swadeshi Nationally

S Swaraj: the goal	B Boycott: a method
S Swadeshi: a method
N National Education: a method

Order kept: the goal first, then three methods. The annulment of the Partition was condemned separately and is NOT one of the four.

- The Bengal Partition was condemned separately.
- Tilak also set up an Extremist/Nationalist party within the INC to convert it from within into an extremist organisation.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2010: "Which was NOT one of the four resolutions?" Correct: (a) Annulment of the Partition of Bengal (condemned separately).
- The four are one goal (Swaraj) and three methods (Boycott, Swadeshi, National Education).
- The question stem says the retention or rejection of these four split the Congress at Surat.

Surat 1907: failure of the mid path, choice of venue Lecture 31 slide 19

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Surat Split 1907 = failure of the mid path = success of the British DnR." Surat is in Gujarat, in the Bombay Presidency (the President does not come from the host region).
- Nagpur or Poona, both Extremist strongholds, would have given the Extremists, with mass pressure, the upper hand
- So the Moderates chose Surat.
- Regional pattern: "uneven growth of Western education leads to uneven growth of the INM": (Marathi) Bombay and Poona, Madras, Calcutta.

- For 1907 the session was originally planned for Poona or Nagpur, both Extremist strongholds.
- The Moderates shifted the venue to Surat, where they had more control.

Morley's 1906 Budget speech and the Surat Split as DnR Lecture 31 slide 16

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Morley's 1906 Budget speech is the British move behind Surat.
- In 1906 the Secretary of State Morley, in the British Parliament on the Budget of the Government of India, hinted at council reforms: expansion and more powers for the ILC and PLCs by amending the ICA 1892. The Moderates' mouths watered.
- Both the 1906 session and the 1907 Surat Split are DnR: Moderates against Extremists (second bracket "Royal vs Royal":).
- The Moderates wanted no violence, so the reforms would not be derailed, especially in Bombay and Madras. (Reform: Chapter 31.)

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout: Morley's Budget speech of 1906 as Secretary of State hinted at forthcoming council reforms.
- This gave the British the opening for Divide and Rule (DnR): the hint motivated Moderates to show the British that the INC was cooperative and in favour of a truce, while the Extremists wanted nothing to do with such optics.

British empire built and sustained by Divide and Rule Lecture 31 slide 17

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "The British empire was created and sustained via DnR policies." Under the EIC: PoRF (Policy of Ring Fence), SA (Subsidiary Alliance), misuse of succession disputes (Chapter 10, Chapter 11)
- Peel Commissions
- Martial Races + Cantonments.
- From 1857 onward: PS 1793 (Permanent Settlement), Macaulay's minute, the Bengal Partition (PS 1793 and Macaulay's minute are listed under 1857+ though earlier).
- The Bengal Partition divided three ways: Bengalis divided, Hindus against Muslims, Moderates against Extremists.

Surat 1907: the presidential contest and the split Lecture 31 slide 20

- At Surat the immediate flashpoint was a fight over the presidency: L.L Rai (Extremist) against Rash Behari Ghosh (Moderate).
- L.L Rai withdrew to prevent a split, but the Extremists refused any compromise unless the four Calcutta resolutions were re-adopted.

- The session collapsed: shoes were hurled, chairs were broken and the Extremists were expelled from the INC.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Presidency contest: L.L Rai (Extremist) against Rash Behari Ghosh (Moderate), "not Bose" (not Anand Mohan Bose).
- L.L Rai withdrew from fear of an INC split, BUT on the condition that the four Calcutta Resolutions be re-adopted, especially Boycott by the masses.
- The Moderates did not agree:
  - Self-government within the empire was fine for them
  - They opposed mass politics by the INC. Chairs broken, shoes hurled
- Extremists expelled from the INC [Dec 1907 to the Lucknow session of Dec 1916].

Extremists as Lok Sabha MPs, Moderates as Rajya Sabha MPs Lecture 31 slide 21

TEACHER'S BOARD

Analogy: Extremists = Lok Sabha MPs (the people's leaders); Moderates = Rajya Sabha MPs (the intellectuals).

- In 1908 the Allahabad Convention (Mehta Congress), a small meeting of senior INC leaders as distinct from the annual December session, declared "we are loyal to the Raj." The 1908 INC Annual Session was held at Madras with Rash Behari Ghosh as President.
- The INC remained divided until 1920, when Mahatma Gandhi united the Moderates and Extremists.

THE ROAD TO THE SURAT SPLIT

- The Extremists re-entered the INC in 1916 (Lucknow), but re-entry is not agreement on methods.

HANDOUT NOTE

- The Surat Split was the INC's first organisational crisis.
- Both factions wanted Swaraj
- they split over method: Moderates believed in petition, Extremists in confrontation.
- The 1907 split lasted 13 years until 1920, when Gandhi reunified the Congress.

PYQ 4, Prelims 1999: end of pray and petition Lecture 31 slide 36

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1999: "The Congress policy of pray and petition ultimately came to an end under the guidance of: (a) Aurobindo Ghosh (b) Bal Gangadhar Tilak (c) Lala Lajpat Rai (d) Mahatma Gandhi." Conflict: handout and bank key vs the teacher's board.
- The handout and bank key give (b) Tilak (he built the Extremist party within the INC to convert it from within).
- The board gives (d) Gandhi: "ultimately" with "1906 TEMPORARY" (the end of petitions in 1906 was only temporary: the Moderates came back, Surat 1907, Allahabad Convention 1908) and "INC: 1885-1918, ~1920" (Moderate-dominated INC until about 1920).
- Follow the teacher's board:
  - (d) Gandhi
  - keep (b) Tilak in mind [key and board disagree
  - Check your notebook]

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2016: "Main reason for the split at Surat 1907?" Correct: (b) Extremists' lack of faith in the capacity of the Moderates to negotiate with the British Government.
- Board: "METHODS" beside (b): the split was about method, not goal.
- Traps: (a) Minto's communalism (1909 reforms, after Surat), (c) the founding of the Muslim League (separate track), (d) no Aurobindo presidency bid.

8 · Impact of the Swadeshi Movement and the Curzonian administration

STORY LINK

Because the movement failed in its main aim but not in what it taught, its impact is mostly future use. Ask: which impacts are positive and which two are negative?

- The Swadeshi Movement and Curzon 99-05's administration reshaped the INM in ways that outlasted the movement.

Impact	Detail
8.1 A nationalism that never came down	Nationalist consciousness, especially in Bengal and Maharashtra, did not subside even after the movement ended and leaders scattered

Impact	Detail
8.2 The foundation of mass politics	For the first time the attempt was made to involve not just the WEMC but the Working Class (WC), the masses and ordinary people. Incomplete, but the first attempt: the Working Class movement and Revolutionary activities grew from it
8.3 Economic awareness spread	People grasped the Drain of Wealth and the role of British goods in impoverishing Indian industry; Boycott became a major tool of the future INM. To convince the poor to buy costlier Swadeshi goods, Extremists had to explain the Drain in simple language
8.4 Nationalistic symbols	Bande Mataram became the anthem of the INM; Tagore's 'Amar Sonar Bangla' (My Golden Bengal), written in protest against the Partition, later became the national anthem of Bangladesh
8.5 New methods for future use	Passive Resistance (NC and CD), Constructive Work (CW), Jatras and Prabhat Pheris were all later used heavily by Gandhi: he inherited a tested toolkit, not a blank slate
8.6 From petitions to mass action	The INM moved from the Moderates' petition-and-pray model to mass action under Extremist leadership, but the INC itself remained under Moderate control until the 1920 Nagpur Session, when Gandhi took over (not "Extremist control of the INC in 1905")

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "To convince the poor to buy costlier Swadeshi, leaders must explain Drain" (8.3 links back to the cost problem of section 6): the economic education was itself a lasting contribution.
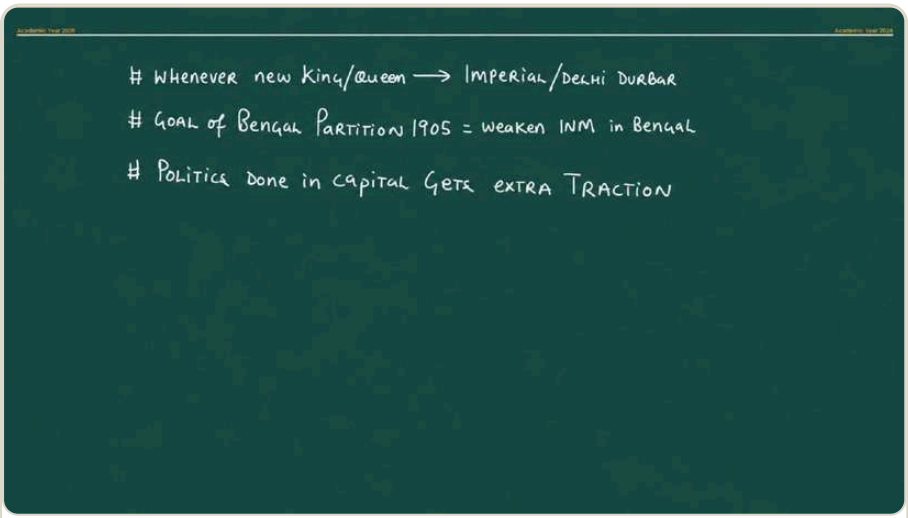
- Beside 8.5: "methods" and "for mass mobilization" (the toolkit was meant for mass mobilization).

HANDOUT NOTE

Handout: recall that political symbols, grand marches, the idea of the fatherland and songs had also played a major role as positives of the peasant revolts of earlier periods (Chapter 22).



Delhi Durbar, capital politics and the Partition's goal Lecture 31 slide 28

- 8.7 Capital shifted to Delhi (1911). It reduced Bengal's dominance in the INM: Curzon 99-05 got his strategic outcome.
- It was announced at the Delhi Durbar, December 1911, during the coronation of King George V and Queen Mary as Emperor and Empress of India.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three linked points. A new King or Queen means an Imperial (Delhi) Durbar.
- The goal of the Bengal Partition 1905 = weaken the INM in Bengal.
- Politics done in the capital gets extra TRACTION: when the capital moved from Calcutta to Delhi in 1911, Bengal lost that extra traction and the INM's centre of gravity shifted, which is how Curzon 99-05 got his strategic outcome.

- 8.8 Birth of the Muslim League (ML1906): it led to the formal, organised beginning of communal politics in India, a long shadow stretching to 1947.

MNEMONIC · WHAT THE SWADESHI FIRE FORGED: THE IMPACTS

M E T A L S

The Swadeshi fire forged the INM's tools like METALS.

M Mass politics founded (8.2)
E Economic awareness: the Drain (8.3)
T Toolkit for the future: NC, CD, CW, Jatras, Prabhat Pheris (8.5)
A Action instead of petitions (8.6)
L Lit: the nationalism that never came down (8.1)
S Symbols: Bande Mataram, Amar Sonar Bangla (8.4)

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2014: "The Partition of Bengal made by Curzon 99-05 in 1905 lasted until...?" Correct: (b) King George V abrogated Curzon 99-05's Act at the Royal Durbar in Delhi, in 1911.
- The teacher's notes on the traps:
  - (a) the I World War is 1914-19 and (c) Gandhi's Civil Disobedience Movement is 1930-34
  - (d) confuses the 1905 Partition with the 1947 Partition of India

From Curzon 99-05 to Gandhi's toolkit

- Moderates fail: petition, prayer, press yield nothing by the early 1900s

- Curzon 99-05:
    - Municipal 1899, Universities 1904, Official Secrets 1904
    - Risley Papers 1903
- Partition of Bengal:
    - Announced July 1905, effected 16 October 1905
    - DnR, EBA as a Muslim-majority province
- 7 Aug 1905:
    - The Moderates' Boycott Resolution
    - Then the Extremists add Swaraj and Passive Resistance
- Swadeshi methods: boycott, Swadeshi, national education, enterprises, Samitis, Jatras, religion, strikes
- Not a mass movement: costly goods, force, thin institutions, low Muslim participation, INC capture
- Surat Split 1907:
    - Leaders scattered
    - Revolutionaries 1908-11
    - Delhi Durbar 1911 annuls the Partition
- 1920: Gandhi inherits the tested toolkit

Feature	Moderates	Extremists
Goal	Self-government within the empire	Swaraj within the Raj (most); Purna Swaraj (Aurobindo, Pal)

Prelims PYQs: 1995, 1996, 1999 (two), 2000 (two)

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Organisations and their founders: Anushilan Samiti 1902 (P. Mitra), Jugantar 1906 (Barindra Ghosh, Bhupendranath Datta, Abinash Bhattacharya), Dacca Anushilan 1906 (Pulin Behari Das), Mitra Mela 1899 and Abhinav Bharat 1904 (Savarkar brothers), IHRS 1905 (Shyamji Krishna Varma). Match-the-following pegs: Abhinav Bharat = Savarkar, Ghadar = Hardayal, Swaraj Party = C.R. Das, Chittagong = Kalpana Dutt, Kuka = Guru Ram Singh (1996, 2000 twice with the Anushilan = Aurobindo key)
- Places and people: the Barrah Dacoity 1908 = East Bengal, the Dacca Anushilan under Pulin Behari Das (1995); Abhinava Bharat organised by V.D. Savarkar (1999); Tripura sheltered the Bengal revolutionaries (2000)
- Journals: Varma = The Indian Sociologist, Cama = The Talwar, Besant = Commonwealth, Aurobindo = Bande Mataram (1999)
- Traps and details the handout flags: Barindra Kumar Ghosh was in the Cellular Jail from 1908, so he cannot be in Ghadar 1913-15; Curzon-Wyllie is not Curzon 99-05; Savarkar sentenced 1910, not 1909; CID 1903 after the Fraser Commission 1902; Madame Cama's flag at Stuttgart, August 1907
- The teacher's own cues: Mains potential FYQ (no PYQ), Prelims some questions; 'Narrative imp' beside Savarkar's 1857 book; 'Repeat 1857' on the Dhaka

MAINS HOOKS

- No Mains question has been asked on this chapter; the teacher writes 'Mains - potential FYQ (no PYQ)'
- Practice (bank, 250 words): examine the major themes, from the Rise of Revolutionaries to the Result of the Revolutionary Phase
- Practice (bank, 150 words): the significance of these events for the Indian National Movement
- Practice (from the teacher's slide 79 table): compare the Jugantar and the Dhaka Anushilan Samiti

column; 'Voice' circled on the abroad board

Each failed approach bred a more radical successor, Pen then People then Guns then MG; the Revolutionaries were repressed but gave back pride, and their generation resurfaced in the INA.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: After the Extremists fell by 1908, a small committed group chose armed struggle: repeat 1857 in the long run, heroic action now. Their secret societies and centres abroad fed a string of attacks (1907-12), the British answered with the CID and the Cellular Jail, and the phase ended repressed but not futile: it gave pride, helped bring 1911, and its Rash Behari Bose line runs to the INA.

1. Pen, People, Guns. By 1908 the Swadeshi Movement was leaderless: Tilak was deported to Mandalay, Aurobindo retired, B.C. Pal retired temporarily and L.L. Rai went abroad. The politically radicalised asked what next if mass politics had failed. The teacher's chain says it all: when the Pen failed, People came out; when People failed, Guns came out; when Guns failed, MG came out (1920+).

   → So the Revolutionaries gave two answers at once.

2. Two answers: a long game and a quick strike. The long-term goal was to repeat 1857: a civil rebellion and disaffection within the army. The immediate method was individual heroic action: assassinate hated officials to strike fear in British hearts, remove fear from Indians and arouse nationalism. If caught, the trial became a stage and a death sentence a supreme sacrifice.

   → Heroic action needed structure, so they built societies.

3. Bengal builds the Anushilan. In 1902 Pramathanath Mitra founded the Anushilan Samiti in Calcutta for physical training and character building, with armed resistance as its inner purpose. By 1906 an impatient inner circle formed around the newspaper Jugantar of Barindra Kumar Ghosh, Bhupendranath Datta and Abinash Bhattacharya. The British replied in 1903 with the CID, after the Fraser Police Commission of 1902.

   → But Bengal was only one stream, and the two streams soon diverged.

4. Jolt now, drill for later. Jugantar was a loose, decentralised confederation that believed in propaganda of the deed and assassination to show the British were not invincible. The Dacca Anushilan Samiti of Pulin Behari Das (1906) was rigidly hierarchical and built for long-term military preparation, the teacher's 'Repeat 1857'. In the west the Savarkar brothers turned Mitra Mela (1899, Nasik) into Abhinav Bharat (1904, Pune), copying Mazzini's Young Italy.

   → Now the Revolutionaries looked beyond India's borders.

5. Why go abroad? VOICE. Abroad they could speak freely in newspapers, procure weapons despite the Arms Act 1878, assassinate officers at Home in England, win diplomatic pressure by highlighting colonialism and raise awareness among NRIs. Savarkar sat in London, Hardayal reached the USA, Shyamji Krishna Varma ran the IHRS and India House (1905) before moving to Paris in 1907, and Madame Cama unfurled the first Indian flag at Stuttgart in August 1907.

→ With arms and money needed, the actions began.

6 1908: Barrah, Muzzafarpur and the bomb that missed. The Dacca Anushilan looted the Zamindar of Barrah to fund the revolution, since dacoity targeted collaborators. At Muzzafarpur Prafulla Chaki and Khudiram Bose bombed Magistrate Kingsford's carriage, but he was not inside and two English women died. Chaki killed himself and Khudiram, 18, was executed and became an instant martyr, the opposite of what the British intended.

→ The bomb alarmed the British into a wider crackdown.

7 Alipore and the Andamans. The Alipore Case brought mass arrests, including Aurobindo from Murari Pukur Road. C.R. Das defended him and B.C. Pal refused to testify, so he could not be convicted; he fled to Pondicherry and spiritualism. Barindra Kumar Ghosh and Ullaskar Dutta were sentenced to death, commuted to transportation for life in the Cellular Jail, which broke the early Jugantar.

→ Even a newspaper could now be sedition.

8 Tilak, Kesari and Jinnah. In Kesari, Tilak condemned the Muzzafarpur violence but defended Chaki and Bose on the ground that sustained oppression breeds violence, in an article titled 'Arrival of Bomb'. He was charged with sedition, sentenced to six years and sent to Mandalay, Burma, with Jinnah, a young constitutional lawyer, conducting his defence.

→ Meanwhile Abhinav Bharat struck at home and abroad.

9 1909: Dhingra, Nasik and Savarkar's sentence. In London in 1909 Madan Lal Dhingra killed Lt. Col. William Curzon-Wyllie, who was not Curzon 99-05 but worked with the Secretary of State for India. In Nasik, Anant Laxman Kanhere killed District Magistrate Jackson with a pistol that Savarkar had sent from London. In 1910 Savarkar was sentenced to transportation for life in the Cellular Jail.

→ Repressed, the phase still left its mark.

10 Pride, reform and Delhi. The Revolutionaries gave back pride and dignity, and many felt the Morley-Minto Reforms of 1909 were a reform offered to buy peace. In 1911 the Partition was annulled and Delhi became the capital at the Durbar of December 1911, reducing Bengal's outsized influence; in 1912 Bihar and Orissa and a full province of Assam followed. Curzon 99-05 lost the map but won the plan.

→ One more bomb fell in the new capital, and its thrower's story did not end.

11 Rash Behari Bose to the INA. In 1912 Rash Behari Bose threw a bomb from a balcony at Viceroy Hardinge 10-16 on an elephant in Chandni Chowk; Hardinge was wounded but survived. He led the Ghadar Movement (1913-15), escaped to Japan in 1915 and in 1942 convened the Tokyo and Bangkok conferences forming the IIL. Under it Captain Mohan Singh organised the first INA; after Mohan Singh's arrest Rash Behari Bose took over and, for old age, handed it to Netaji in 1943.

In simple words

- With the Extremists arrested or exiled by 1908, a small committed group chose armed struggle: the long-term goal was to repeat 1857, the immediate method was individual heroic action.
- They built secret societies at home (Anushilan 1902, Jugantar 1906, Dacca Anushilan 1906, Abhinav Bharat 1904) and centres abroad (IHRS 1905, India House, Paris, USA) where speech and arms were freer.
- Jugantar was loose and wanted propaganda of the deed now
- The Dacca Anushilan was disciplined and built for long-term preparation
- The actions ran Barrah, Muzzafarpur, Alipore, Tilak (1908), then Dhingra and Nasik (1909) and Delhi (1912)
- The British answered with the CID (1903), trials and the Cellular Jail
- The phase was repressed but gave pride and dignity, helped bring Morley-Minto 1909 and the 1911 Delhi move, and Rash Behari Bose carried the line from Delhi 1912 to the INA 1943.

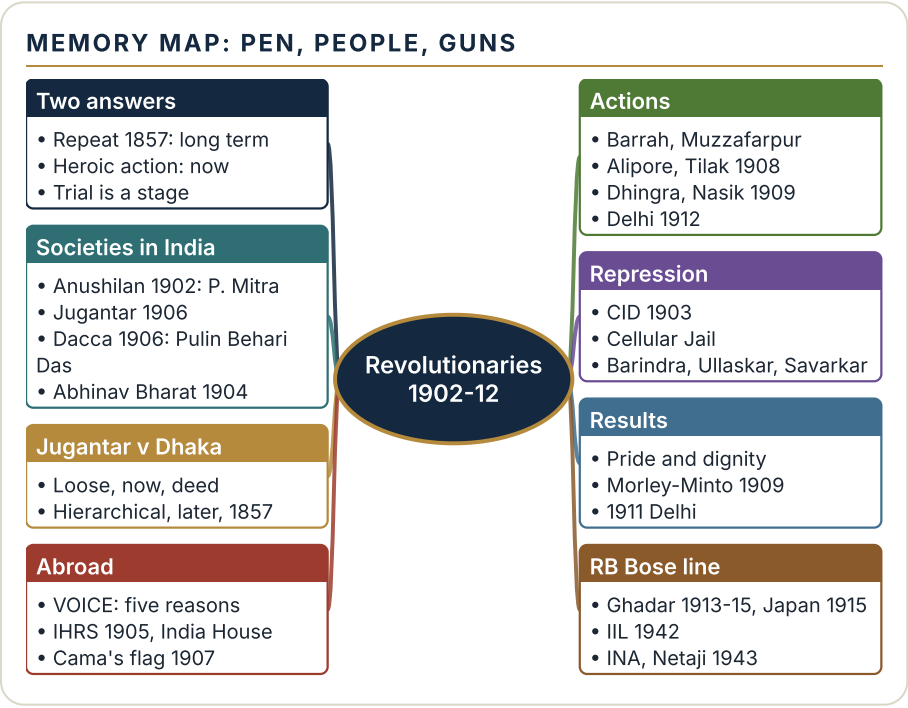
Key term	In plain words
Propaganda of the deed	A single dramatic act (an assassination) meant to inspire the masses; the Jugantar method
Individual heroic action	The Revolutionaries' immediate method: kill hated officials to end fear of the British and arouse nationalism
Repeat 1857	The long-term goal: a civil rebellion plus disaffection in the army
Anushilan Samiti	1902 Calcutta body (P. Mitra): physical training outside, armed resistance inside

Key term	In plain words
Jugantar	'New Era': the anti-British newspaper (1906) and the loose party of Barindra Ghosh's group
Abhinav Bharat	Young India: the Savarkar brothers' society, renamed from Mitra Mela (1899) in 1904 at Pune
Dacoity (as funding)	Armed robbery of zamindars and moneylenders seen as collaborators, to pay for weapons, printing and travel
CID (1903)	A professional network of spies and informers set up after the Fraser Police Commission 1902
IHRS and India House	Shyamji Krishna Varma's 1905 London society and its student hostel; journal The Indian Sociologist
Transportation for life	Imprisonment in the Cellular Jail (Kala Pani), Andamans: worse than death, isolating leaders without public hanging
Sedition	The charge used against Tilak in 1908 for 'Arrival of Bomb': condemn the act, explain the cause
IIL	Indian Independence League (1942): Rash Behari Bose's body for Indians in Southeast Asia that backed the first INA

Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS Pen failed, People failed, Guns came out: a small group repeated the dream of 1857 by heroic action, was repressed, and still left pride, 1911 and the INA line.

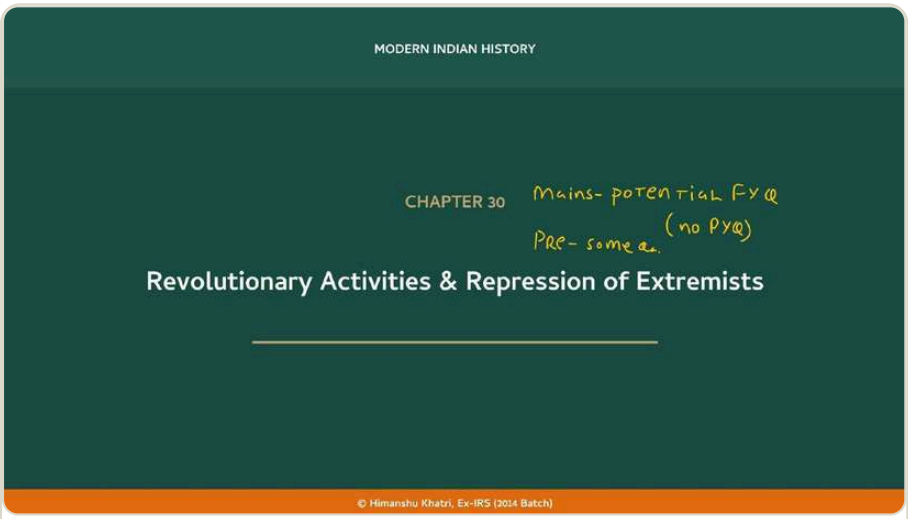
STORY LINK

Because the Extremists were scattered after Surat and the Swadeshi movement stood leaderless, someone had to answer what next. Ask: what did the Pen, the People and the Guns each try?



Chapter 30 title: Revolutionary Activities and Repression of Extremists
Lecture 31 slide 66

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Priority:
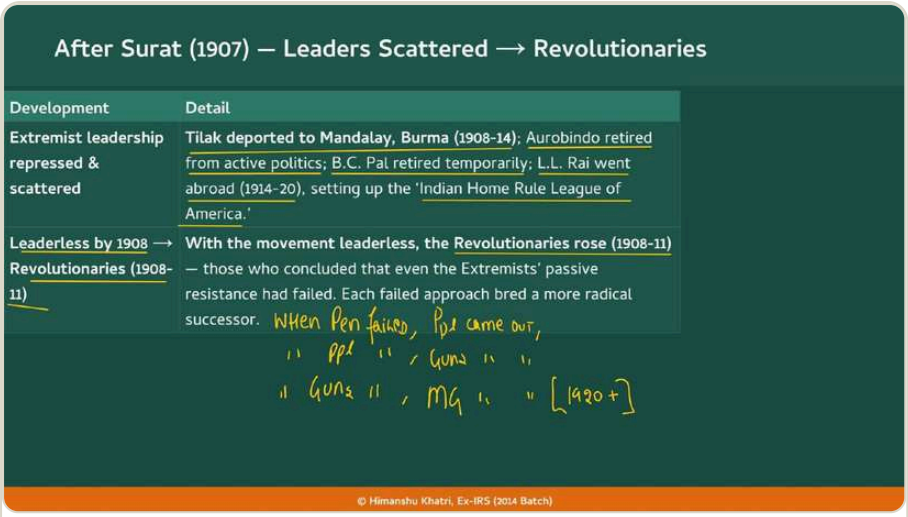
  - Mains = potential future question, no past question
  - Prelims = some questions
- A list-and-link chapter: who founded what, when, with which method, and what the British did in reply.



After Surat (1907): leaders scattered, Revolutionaries rise Lecture 31 slide 22

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Chain of failed approaches:
  - "When Pen failed, People came out
  - When People failed, Guns came out
  - When Guns failed, MG came out [1920+]." Pen = the earlier phase that failed
  - People = the Extremists' mass politics
  - Guns = the Revolutionaries
  - MG = mass politics returning from 1920+
- Each failed approach bred a more radical successor.

- The Extremist leaders were scattered after Surat (1907).
- Tilak was deported to Mandalay, Burma (1908-14)
- Aurobindo retired from active politics
- B.C. Pal retired temporarily
- L.L.
- Rai went abroad (1914-20) and set up the Indian Home Rule League of America.
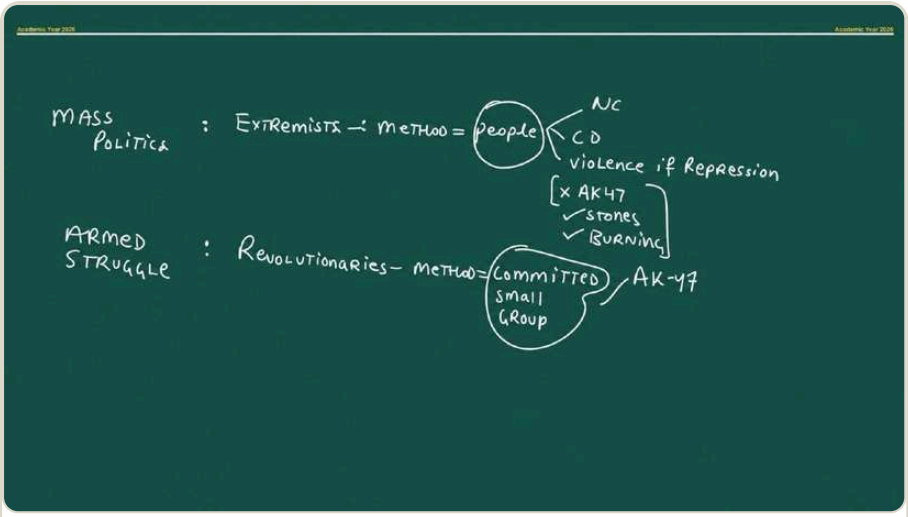
- With the movement leaderless by 1908, the Revolutionaries rose (1908-11): those who concluded that even the Extremists' passive resistance had failed.

1 · Rise of Revolutionaries

STORY LINK

Because mass politics had failed, a small committed group chose arms with two aims. Ask: which aim is long term and which is immediate?



Mass politics versus armed struggle Lecture 31 slide 72

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two models of struggle. Mass politics = Extremists
- Method = the people (NC = non-cooperation, CD = civil disobedience, violence only if repression, and then only stones and burning, not an AK-47)
- Armed struggle = Revolutionaries
- Method = a committed small group
- Tool = AK-47.

- By 1908 the Swadeshi Movement was leaderless: its prominent Extremist leaders had been arrested, deported, or forced into exile.
- The question facing the radicalised Indians: if mass politics has failed, what next?
- The Revolutionaries had two answers and pursued both at once. Long-term goal: repeat 1857, that is, start a civil rebellion and cause disaffection within the army, eroding the British military foundation in India. Immediate method: individual heroic action, assassinating hated British officials to strike fear in British hearts, to remove the fear of the British from among Indians, and to arouse nationalist sentiment.
- If caught, the courtroom itself became a platform: a public trial was an opportunity for propaganda, and a death sentence was an act of supreme sacrifice that could inspire others.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Goal = Repeat 1857 = LTM (long term) = not immediate action.
- Assassination is the method of now
- The 1857-style army rebellion is the goal of later
- "Repeat 1857" points to the Dhaka Anushilan's long-term preparation.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- 'Propaganda by deed' is not unique to India.
- Russian groups of the 1870s-80s (Narodniks, later the Socialist Revolutionary Party) used similar tactics.
- The Indian Revolutionaries knew these examples and consciously drew from them
- Savarkar's admiration for Mazzini shows the same internationalist consciousness

2 · Organisational network of the Revolutionaries

STORY LINK

Because heroic action needed structure, they built societies at home and centres abroad. Ask: why did the teacher say go abroad (VOICE)?

- The logic of individual heroic action needed structure.
- The Revolutionaries built two types of organisations: secret societies inside India and centres abroad that could operate with greater freedom, acquire weapons and produce propaganda.
- The two networks were linked and fed each other.

Secret societies: in India versus outside India Lecture 31 slide 75

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Five reasons to set up societies outside India ("Voice"): (1) Diplomatic pressure by highlighting colonialism.
- (2) Greater freedom of speech, newspapers: "Voice" (the modern-politics word for a platform).
- (3) Procure weapons and send them to India (Arms Act 1878 made weapons hard to get inside India).
- (4) Assassinate British officers at their home, in England (India is one stage, "Home in England" the other).
- (5) NRIs: awareness and nationalism (NRIs and relatives exchange letters).
- International help from enemies of the British supplies "Weapons and Rupee." Abroad an organisation can be "PUBLIC ORG (not secret org)"
- The example in the handout is the IHRS (Section 2.5)

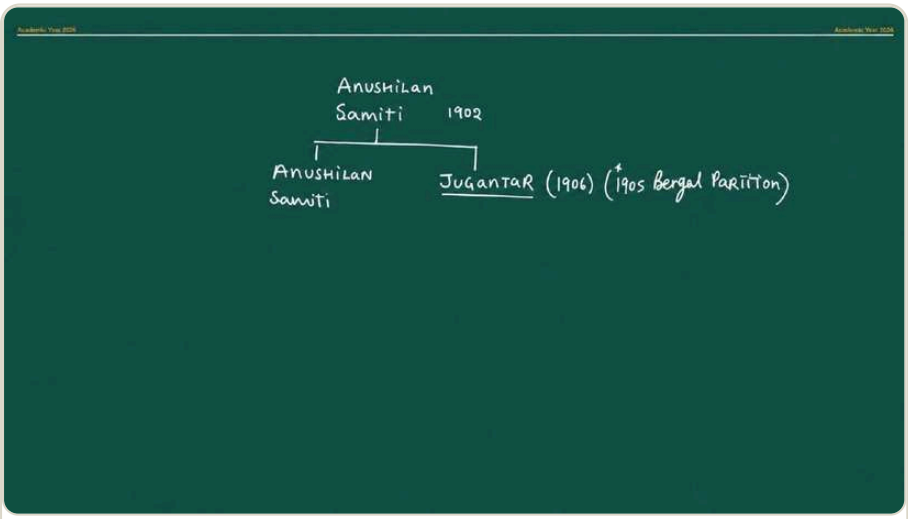
2.1 The birth of organised militant nationalism in Bengal (1902 onwards)

STORY LINK

Because the Samiti began with physical training and armed resistance, an impatient inner circle broke away around a newspaper. Ask: who stood behind Jugantar?



Anushilan Samiti 1902 and the Jugantar branch 1906 Lecture 31 slide 69

TEACHER'S BOARD

- One body in 1902, two branches by 1906.
- Anushilan Samiti (1902) is the parent
- It splits into the continuing Anushilan Samiti and Jugantar (1906). Backdrop: 1905 Bengal Partition.

- The roots of organised militant nationalism in Bengal go back to 1902, when Pramathanath Mitra (P.

- Mitra) founded the Anushilan Samiti in Calcutta.
- Outer form: a body for physical training and character building.
- Inner purpose: to cultivate the spirit of armed resistance.
- By 1906 an impatient radical inner circle had formed within the Samiti, driven by the conviction that immediate armed action could not wait.
- This faction coalesced around a fiercely anti-British newspaper, Jugantar ("New Era"), established by Barindra Kumar Ghosh (younger brother of Aurobindo Ghosh), Bhupendranath Datta and Abinash Bhattacharya.
- The network that grew around it became known independently as the Jugantar party.

MNEMONIC · THE MEN BEHIND THE JUGANTAR NEWSPAPER

B A D

To the British they were BAD news: the Jugantar trio.

B Barindra Kumar Ghosh, Aurobindo's younger brother

A Abinash Bhattacharya

D Bhupendranath Datta

The three have no fixed order, so the initials were rearranged into a word.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Who is who. Jugantar: B.K. Ghosh, Bhupendra Dutt, Abhinash Bhattacharya. Anushilan Samiti: P. Mitra, S C Basu.
- Dacca Anushilan Samiti: Pulin Behari Das.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Two brothers, two responses. Aurobindo worked through writing, philosophy and the INC
- Barindra went straight into revolutionary conspiracy.
- After the Alipore Case broke Jugantar, Aurobindo escaped to Pondicherry and turned to spiritualism
- Barindra was transported to the Cellular Jail (Section 3.4)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2000 (Tripura). Answer (b): the Bengal revolutionaries took shelter in Tripura.
- Organised militant nationalism was a Bengal story from 1902
- Tripura, next door, was the shelter.
- Distractors: (a) kings not standing anti-British rebels, (c) tribal temperament not the recorded reason, (d) no anti-kingship insurgency in the account.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Read the handout figure as a list of boxes, not arrows of descent.
- Correct lines:
  - Anushilan 1902 gives Jugantar 1906
  - Dacca Anushilan 1906 is a separate East Bengal offshoot
  - Abhinav Bharat is a Western-India stream from Mitra Mela 1899
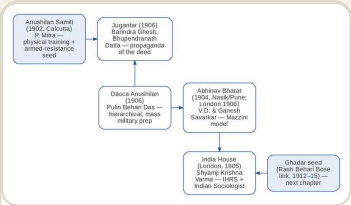
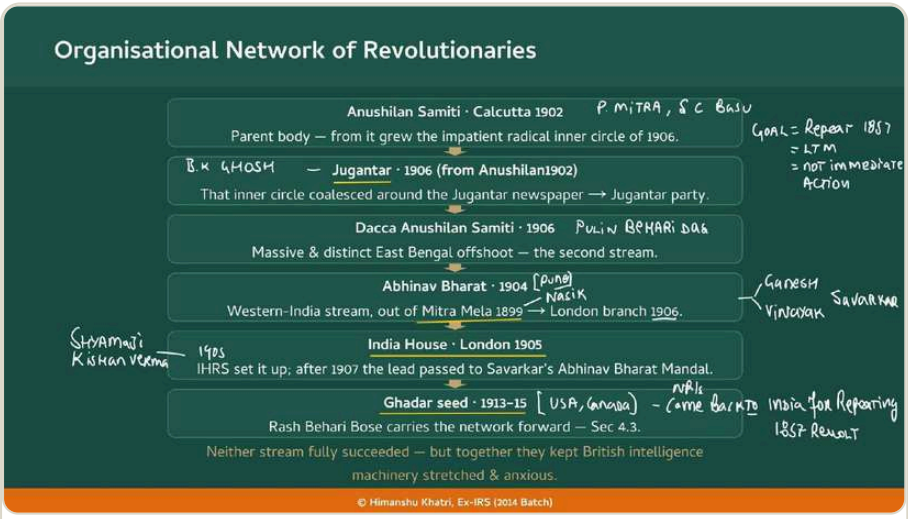
- The Ghadar box is "next chapter" (Chapter 32: Ghadar Movement (1913-15)).



Organisational network of the Revolutionaries: handout figure handout figure



Organisational network of the Revolutionaries Lecture 33 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The network with names. Anushilan: P. Mitra, S C Basu. Jugantar: B.K. Ghosh. Dacca Anushilan: Pulin Behari Das.
- Abhinav Bharat:
  - [Pune], Nasik
  - Ganesh and Vinayak = Savarkar.
- India House: Shyamji Krishna Varma, 1905 (year partly unclear).
- Ghadar seed: USA and Canada, NRIs who came back to India to repeat the 1857 revolt (Chapter 32: Ghadar Movement (1913-15)).
- Beside Anushilan: "Goal = Repeat 1857 = LTM = not immediate Action."

2.2 The British intelligence response: CID (1903)

TEACHER'S BOARD

Exam hooks on the CID slides: Fraser Police Commission of 1902 and the word "infiltrate."

- The British were not passive observers. Recognising the need for a specialised intelligence apparatus beyond the foundational Indian Police Act of 1861, the colonial government formally established the Criminal Investigation Department (CID) in 1903, following the recommendations of the Fraser Police Commission of 1902.
- What it was: a professionalised network of spies and informers, embedded within Indian society, designed to track, infiltrate and dismantle political dissent and secret societies.

NUMBER CARD · ONE A YEAR, 1902 TO 1906

02 · 03 · 04 · 05 · 06

A ladder of five years: the Samiti starts it and the British CID answers one year later.

1902 Anushilan Samiti, Calcutta (P. Mitra); Fraser Police Commission

1903 CID formally established

1904 Mitra Mela renamed Abhinav Bharat, Pune

1905 IHRS and India House, London (Shyamji Krishna Varma)

1906 Jugantar, Dacca Anushilan, Savarkar's London branch

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The CID (1903) was a structural response, not just a legal one.
- The British did not only pass sedition laws
- They built intelligence machinery to identify threats early, and the CID remained central to colonial repression throughout the INM.

2.3 Inside India: the Revolutionary organisations

STORY LINK

Because Bengal and the west each built their own society, the streams diverged in method. Ask: which stream matches Repeat 1857?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Abhinav Bharat 1904 [Pune]
- Mitra Mela 1899 [Nasik]
- Brothers Ganesh and Vinayak = Savarkar
- London branch 1906.
- "Narrative" - "imp": Savarkar's The Indian War of Independence 1857 (1909) recast the 1857 Revolt as a planned war of national liberation, not a mere "mutiny" (banned before publication, yet circulated underground as essential revolutionary reading).
- A Revolutionary movement also needs a narrative, a story of why it fights
- The same idea recurs for the IHRS ("Building Narrative in favor of Home Rule") and The Indian Sociologist ("Narrative for ideology of Nationalism"), Section 2.5

- Abhinav Bharat (1904): the Savarkar brothers, Vinayak (Veer Savarkar) and Ganesh, set up a secret society called Mitra Mela in 1899 in Nasik.
- It was renamed Abhinav Bharat, or Young India, in 1904 in Pune.
- When Veer Savarkar went to London to study law in 1906, he opened a branch of Abhinav Bharat there and compiled Mazzini Charitra* (1906), a translation of Mazzini's writings.
- Savarkar also wrote The Indian War of Independence 1857 (1909), which recast 1857 as a planned war of national liberation rather than a mere "mutiny." The British banned it before publication, but copies circulated underground.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Why "Young India"? Mazzini's "Young Italy." It was active in the revolts of 1830 to overthrow Austrian colonialism in northern Italy and unify the Italian kingdoms
- unification finally succeeded in 1870. Mazzini's method was guerrilla warfare.
- Savarkar saw a parallel between Austrian colonialism over Italy and British colonialism over India.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1999 (Abhinava Bharat). Answer (b) V.D. Savarkar.
- Distractors:
  - Khudiram Bose and Prafulla Chaki (Muzzafarpur bombers, Bengal stream)
  - Bhagat Singh (1920s generation)
- Hook: Mitra Mela 1899 Nasik, then Abhinav Bharat 1904 Pune = Savarkar.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Good Relations between Revolutionaries and Extremists": not enemies.
- The Dacca Anushilan Samiti had the backing of Bipin Chandra Pal (an Extremist) and P. Mitra. "&amp
- P. MITRA (main)" beside the Calcutta Anushilan Samiti of Satish Chandra Basu: P. Mitra is the main figure.

- The Anushilan Samiti of Satish Chandra Basu operated from Calcutta (the teacher adds: and P. Mitra, main).
- Dacca Anushilan Samiti (1906): a massive and distinct offshoot in East Bengal, founded by Pulin Behari Das with the backing of P. Mitra and Bipin Chandra Pal.
- The Jugantar faction: a third major strand, built around the newspaper of the same name (1906).
- After the police repression of the Barisal Conference in April 1906, Yugantar wrote defiantly: "30 crore Indians should raise their 60 crore hands to end oppression." The message: force must be stopped by force.
- The two major streams developed completely distinct operational philosophies and effectively broke apart (the two models below).

MNEMONIC · FOUR LEADERS, FOUR SOCIETIES (PYQ PEGS)

D A S H

Revolutionaries make a DASH for freedom.

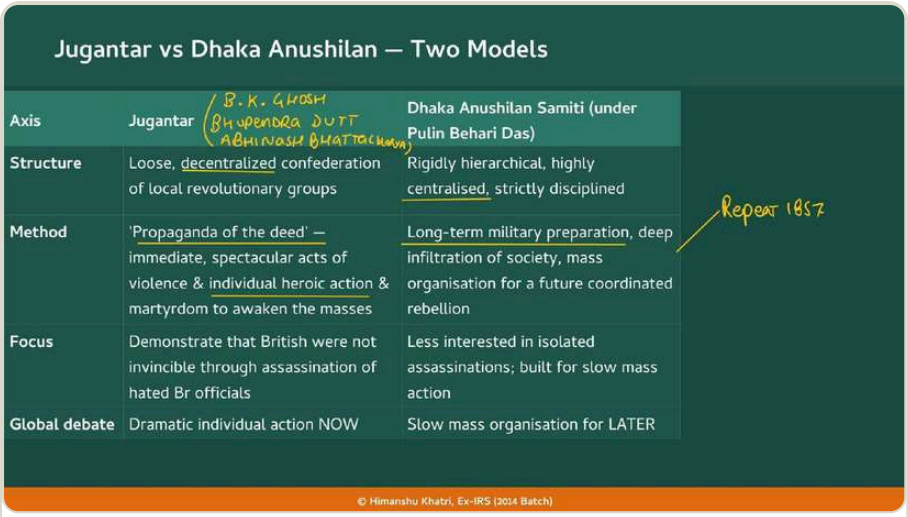
D C.R. Das: Swaraj Party

A Aurobindo: Anushilan (the exam key; the handout's founder is P. Mitra)

S Savarkar: Abhinav Bharat

H Hardayal: Ghadar Party

The four pairs have no fixed order, so the initials were rearranged into a word.



Jugantar versus Dhaka Anushilan: two models Lecture 31 slide 79

Axis	Jugantar	Dhaka Anushilan Samiti
Structure	Loose, decentralised confederation of local revolutionary groups	Rigidly hierarchical, highly centralised, strictly disciplined
Method	'Propaganda of the deed': immediate, spectacular acts of violence, individual heroic action and martyrdom to awaken the masses	Long-term military preparation, deep infiltration of society, mass organisation for a future coordinated rebellion
Focus	Demonstrate that the British were not invincible through assassination of hated British officials	Less interested in isolated assassinations; built for slow mass action
Global debate	Dramatic individual action NOW	Slow mass organisation for LATER

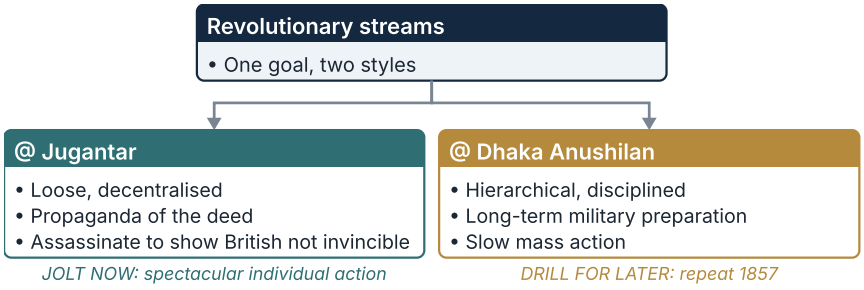
JUGANTAR AGAINST DHAKA ANUSHILAN: NOW OR LATER?



TEACHER'S BOARD

- Model table to learn. Jugantar:
  - Decentralised
  - Propaganda of the deed / individual heroic action
  - the stream of the immediate method
- Dhaka Anushilan:
  - Centralised
  - Long-term military preparation
  - matches the goal "Repeat 1857."

KEY TAKEAWAY

- A recurring global debate: dramatic individual action now versus slow mass organisation for later.
- Neither fully succeeded, but together they kept the British intelligence machinery stretched and anxious.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1995 (Barrah Dacoity). Answer (c) East Bengal.
- Done by the Dacca Anushilan Samiti under Pulin Behari Das (Section 3.2).
- Distractors: (a) Bombay-Karnataka = Savarkar's Abhinav Bharat, (b) Punjab = later Ghadar current, (d) Madras Presidency not a centre of the early dacoity phase.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1996 and 2000: the DASH pegs.
- Society-and-leader pairs:
  - Abhinav Bharat = Savarkar
  - Anushilan = Aurobindo (exam key, not the handout's founder; see the Exam lens alert)
  - Ghadar Party = Lala Hardayal
  - Swaraj Party = C.R. Das.
- In 2000:
  - Chittagong Armoury Raid = Kalpana Dutt
  - Kuka Movement = Guru Ram Singh.

2.4 Centres abroad

TEACHER'S BOARD

Exam hooks on the Centres Abroad slides: "secret societies inside India and centres abroad" (the two types), "first version of Indian national flag", "International Socialist Congress in Stuttgart, Germany." Reasons for going abroad: the VOICE list in Section 2.

- The Revolutionaries understood that operating freely required bases outside British jurisdiction. The key figures:
- 1. Veer Savarkar: London (Abhinav Bharat branch, from 1906).
- 2. Lala Hardayal: eventually reached the United States, where he became a key organiser.
- 3. Shyamji Krishna Varma: London (he moved to Paris in 1907, Section 2.5).
- 4. Madame Cama: Paris. In August 1907, Madame Bhikaji Cama unfurled the first version of the Indian national flag at the International Socialist Congress in Stuttgart, Germany, a dramatic assertion of Indian sovereignty on a global stage, years before any official tricolour was adopted.
- 5. Ajit Singh: abroad after the Swadeshi period.

MNEMONIC · WHO WORKED FROM ABROAD, IN THE HANDOUT'S ORDER

Some Heroes Stayed Clear Abroad

S	Savarkar: London (Abhinav Bharat branch from 1906)
H	Hardayal: reached the United States
S	Shyamji Krishna Varma: London, then Paris 1907
C	Cama: Paris; the Stuttgart flag, August 1907
A	Ajit Singh: abroad after the Swadeshi period

Order kept as the handout lists the five.

- Also in 1906, an All Bengal Conference of Revolutionary Groups was held, a coordination meeting that led to the formation of the weekly newspaper Yugantar / Jugantar (1906).

MNEMONIC · WHY BUILD CENTRES ABROAD? THE TEACHER'S FIVE REASONS

V O I C E

The teacher circled 'Voice' himself: abroad the Revolutionaries could speak, arm and organise freely.

V Voice: greater freedom of speech, newspapers

O Procure weapons (Arms Act 1878) and send them to India

I Assassinate British officers at Home in England

C Diplomatic pressure by highlighting colonialism

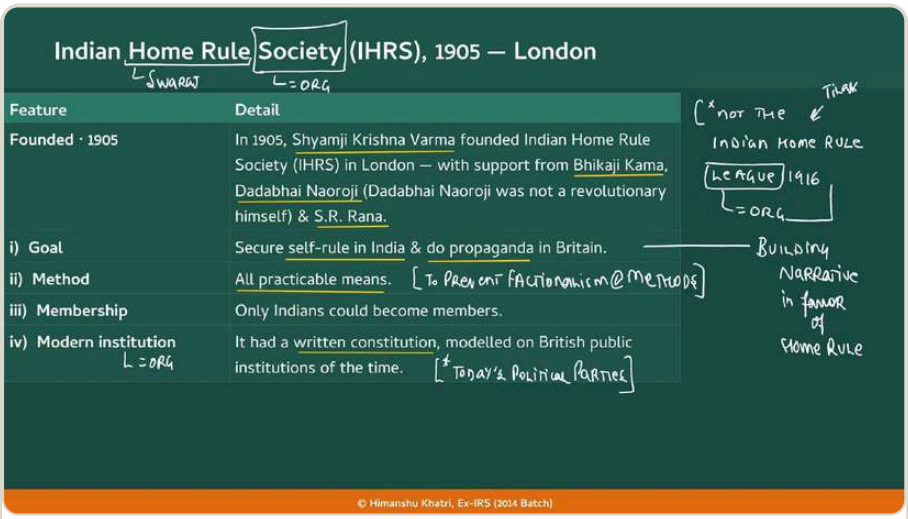
E NRIs' awareness and nationalism (letters to relatives)

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. Some letters sit inside a key word: O in procure, I in assassinate, C in colonialism, E in awareness.

2.5 Indian Home Rule Society (IHRS), 1905: revolutionary activity in Britain

STORY LINK

Because London was free of British jurisdiction, Shyamji built a public organisation with a hostel and a journal. Ask: how is it different from Tilak's 1916 League?



Indian Home Rule Society (IHRS), 1905, London Lecture 33 slide 1

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Indian Home Rule Society. Home Rule = Swaraj (self-rule)
- Society = ORG.
- Not the Indian Home Rule League of 1916, which is Tilak's (League = ORG; Chapter 33: Home Rule League Movement (1916-18) and Lucknow Pact (1916)).
- Goal's second half, "propaganda in Britain" = "Building Narrative in favor of Home Rule." "All practicable means" = "to prevent factionalism @ methods": groups with different methods can stay in one body.
- Written constitution = sign of a modern institution, like today's political parties.

- In 1905, Shyamji Krishna Varma founded the Indian Home Rule Society (IHRS) in London, with support from Bhikaji Cama (the handout spells it "Kama" in this line), Dadabhai Naoroji (who was not a revolutionary himself) and S.R. Rana.
- Its key features:
- 1. Goal: secure self-rule in India and do propaganda in Britain.
- 2. Method: all practicable means.
- 3. Only Indians could become members.
- 4. Organised as a modern institution: a written constitution, modelled on British public institutions of the time.
- 5. Strong support among Indian students and other Indians in Britain.
- 6. Maintained close contact with revolutionaries in India.
- 7. Set up India House in London, a student hostel that actively promoted nationalist views among students.
- 8. The IHRS and Shyamji's journal The Indian Sociologist (not socialist in ideology: the name is misleading) laid the foundation of the militant Indian nationalist movement in Britain.
- After Shyamji shifted to Paris in 1907, the lead role at India House passed to the Abhinav Bharat Mandal / Society, Veer Savarkar's secret nationalist society (the teacher's note: the 1906 London branch).

Criteria for fighting elections to the British Parliament Lecture 33 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Side board on Dadabhai Naoroji (the handout says he was not a revolutionary).
- Criteria for fighting British Parliament elections, for people of the empire who are not British citizens: (1) land or property ownership, (2) duration of stay.
- Naoroji served as an MP for one term [1892-95] on a Liberal Party ticket.

IHRS, 1905, London (contd.): India House and The Indian Sociologist
Lecture 33 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why Indian students were in Britain:
  - (1) to prepare for or give the CSE
  - (2) other degrees, e.g. law, medicine
  - (3) for jobs.
- That was India House's support base. The Indian Sociologist*: "Modern Politics: Voice" (a journal is a voice) and "Narrative for ideology of Nationalism." So the IHRS gave the movement in Britain an organisation, a hostel and a voice.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1999 (persons and journals). Answer (a) A-2 B-3 C-4 D-1: Shyamji Krishna Varma = *The Indian Sociologist
- Madam Bhikaji Cama = *The Talwar
- Annie Besant = *Commonwealth
- Aurobindo Ghosh = Bande Mataram.
- Only the Varma journal is in the handout
- the other three links come from the slide explanation only.
- Distractors swap Varma and Cama (d), swap the last two (c), or reassign all four (b).

3 · Key Revolutionary actions (1907 to 1912)

STORY LINK

Because the networks were ready, a chain of actions began, each triggering a British reply. Ask: which of the seven cards is a 1908 event?

- With the network in place, the next phase was action.
- The period produced a series of dramatic events, best understood in sequence: each event triggered a British response, which triggered the next escalation.

MNEMONIC · THE SEVEN ACTIONS IN ORDER

Key Revolutionary Actions, 1907 to 1912 Lecture 33 slide 6

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The seven cards. (1) 1907: attempt on the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal.
- (2) 1908 Barrah Dacoity = a Swadeshi dacoity
- the Zamindar of Barrah
- (3) 1908 Muzzafarpur: Bihar, not Muzaffar Nagar in UP.
- (4) 1908 Alipore: Aurobindo Ghosh, case fought by C.R. Das.
- (5) 1908 Tilak Trial: sedition, article "Arrival of Bomb," condemned violence but put the blame on the British, defended Chaki and Bose.
- (6) 1909 Abhinav Bharat: London, Dhingra, and the Nasik Conspiracy Case. (7) 1912: Delhi Conspiracy.
- Cards 3, 4, 5 form one chain: the Muzzafarpur bomb, the Alipore crackdown that followed, Tilak's article on Muzzafarpur.

3.1 1907: the attempt on the life of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal

- An attempt on the life of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal in 1907: it failed.

3.2 Barrah Dacoity, 1908

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "For revolution I need ARMS": three routes.
- (1) Dacoity at an armoury: 1930-33 Chittagong Armoury Raid by the IRA of Surya Sen.
- (2) Dacoity at the British Government of India or at loyalists ("Zlenders", most likely zamindars and money-lenders, as the handout says), then use the money to buy arms in India or abroad: Barrah Dacoity 1908 (the money route), Kakori Robbery 1925.
- (3) Alliance with enemies of the British (Germany, Russia, France; depends on geopolitics), as in WWI (1914-18)
- e.g. the Zimmerman Plan, linked to the Ghadar Movement.

- A Swadeshi dacoity in Dhaka, East Bengal, carried out by the Dacca Anushilan Samiti under Pulin Behari Das.
- The residence of the Zamindar of Barrah was looted
- the funds were intended to finance revolutionary activities.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- "Dacoity" (armed robbery) to fund operations was deliberate.
- The Revolutionaries needed money for weapons, printing and travel
- with no wealthy backers, they targeted zamindars and moneylenders seen as collaborators of the colonial order.

"For revolution I need ARMS": three routes Lecture 33 slide 5

HANDOUT ALERT

- Chittagong Armoury Raid: board and PYQ name different people.
- The board says "1930-33 Chittagong Armoury Raid by IRA of Surya Sen." The Prelims 2000 key pairs the raid with Kalpana Dutt (answer (a)).
- Not rival answers: use Kalpana Dutt in a match-the-following and Surya Sen's IRA from the board.
- The raid itself falls after this chapter (Chapter 39: Revolutionaries Post 1922).

3.3 1908 Muzzafarpur Conspiracy Case

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "Two English women were killed instead" (the bomb killed the wrong people).
- Prafulla Chaki:
  - "(OR) he ate CYANIDE": the handout says he shot himself in the mouth with his own revolver
  - another version says cyanide.
- Both agree he killed himself to avoid capture.
- Muzzafarpur is in Bihar, not Muzaffar Nagar in UP.

- Target: a failed attempt on the life of Magistrate Kingsford, a particularly hated colonial official.
- Attack: Prafulla Chaki and Khudiram Bose threw a bomb at his carriage, but Kingsford was not inside.
- Two English women were killed instead.

1908 Muzzafarpur Conspiracy Case Lecture 33 slide 9

- Prafulla Chaki shot himself in the mouth with his own revolver to avoid capture (the teacher: or he ate cyanide).
- Khudiram Bose was arrested, tried and given the death sentence.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Khudiram Bose was 18 when executed in 1908.
- He became an instant martyr across Bengal: songs were written, his image was printed on cloth and sold as mourning wear.
- The British intended deterrence
- it had "the opposite effect!!!!"

3.4 1908 Alipore Conspiracy Case (also the Murari Pukur / Manick Tolla Conspiracy Case)

STORY LINK

Because the Muzzafarpur bomb alarmed the British, they went after the masterminds. Ask: why could Aurobindo not be convicted, and what became of Barindra?

1908 Alipore Conspiracy Case Lecture 33 slide 11

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "A home was raided." The case is named after the raided house: Murari Pukur Road, Manicktolla colony, Alipore (house number unclear in the ink; check your notebook).
- Hence three names: Alipore, Murari Pukur, Manick Tolla.
- "Aurobindo Ghosh: case fought by C.R. Das."

- Trigger:
  - The Muzzafarpur bombing alarmed the British into a broader crackdown
  - they wanted to go after the masterminds, not just the foot soldiers
- This led to the Alipore Conspiracy Case: mass arrests, including Aurobindo Ghosh from his address on Murari Pukur Road in Manick Tolla.
- Defence: Aurobindo was defended by C.R. Das. B.C.
- Pal refused to testify, and without his testimony Aurobindo could not be convicted.
- After acquittal, Aurobindo wrote further anti-British articles but, sensing imminent re-arrest, escaped to Pondicherry, then under French control and therefore outside British jurisdiction.
- There he turned to spiritualism and withdrew permanently from politics.
- The case did far more damage to the Jugantar network.
- Barindra Kumar Ghosh (Aurobindo's younger brother and the principal organiser of Jugantar), Ullaskar Dutta and several others were found guilty and sentenced to death.
- Their sentences were later commuted to "transportation for life" in the Cellular Jail (Kala Pani) in the Andaman Islands.
- The Alipore Case heavily decimated the early Jugantar leadership, the very faction that had built the most active network of armed revolutionary cells in Bengal. B.C.
- Pal was forced to retire temporarily from active politics as a result of the case.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Ghadar PYQ trap (Barindra Kumar Ghosh). Barindra was transported to the Cellular Jail from 1908, so he could not have joined the Ghadar Movement (1913-15).
- Any UPSC option linking him to Ghadar is an elimination trap.
- Once transported, he was cut off from revolutionary activity on the mainland.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- "Transportation for life" to the Cellular Jail was seen as worse than death: isolation, brutal conditions, permanent removal from the mainland.
- Savarkar got this sentence in 1910.
- The Andamans let the state eliminate revolutionary leadership without creating more martyrs by public hanging.

3.5 Tilak Trial, 1908

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Kesari article (Marathi): in Kesari, Tilak's Marathi newspaper.
- Case points:
  - Sedition
  - Article "Arrival of Bomb"
  - "Condemned violence but put blame on Br"
  - "Defended Chaki &amp
  - Bose." Imp: sedition, six years, Mandalay, Jinnah.

- In his newspaper Kesari, Tilak condemned the violence of Prafulla Chaki and Khudiram Bose in the Muzzafarpur case, but simultaneously defended both men on a deeper ground: that the British should understand that sustained oppression will produce violence.
- The article was titled "Arrival of Bomb."
- This nuanced position (condemn the act, explain the cause) was enough for the colonial government to charge him with sedition.
- Tilak was sentenced to six years' imprisonment and deported to Mandalay, Burma.
- His legal defence was conducted by Jinnah, an early and significant meeting of two men whose later relationship would define the partition of India.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Jinnah defending Tilak, 1908. Jinnah was then a young constitutional lawyer with nationalist sympathies, not yet the Muslim League leader
- he took the case on principle.
- The two disagreed fundamentally on methods but stood on the same side of the anti-colonial divide.
- The gap to 1940 (the Pakistan demand) measures how much communal politics transformed in three decades.

3.6 Actions credited to Abhinav Bharat

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Imp names and phrases: Madan Lal Dhingra, Lt. Col.
- William Curzon-Wyllie, "worked with Secretary of State for India," District Magistrate Jackson, Anant Laxman Kanhere, "Savarkar had sent pistols to India," transportation for life, Cellular Jail, Nasik Conspiracy Case (1909).
- Banner: ABHINAV BHARAT over London, 1909 Dhingra and the Nasik Conspiracy Case.

- The Abhinav Bharat network, operating across India and London, was responsible for two major actions:
- 1. 1909, London: Madan Lal Dhingra killed Lt. Col.
- William Curzon-Wyllie (not Curzon 99-05 the Viceroy: Curzon-Wyllie was a different person, who worked with the Secretary of State for India).
- 2. 1909, Nasik Conspiracy Case: District Magistrate Jackson was killed by Anant Laxman Kanhere.
- Savarkar had sent pistols to India from London, one of which was used by Kanhere.
- As a consequence, in 1910 Savarkar was sentenced to transportation for life (imprisonment in the Cellular Jail in the Andaman Islands) in connection with the Nasik Conspiracy Case (1909).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Two traps. Curzon-Wyllie is not Curzon 99-05 the Viceroy (who imposed the Partition)
- Dhingra killed an adviser to the Secretary of State for India, in London
- Savarkar was sentenced in 1910, not 1909: the Nasik killing is 1909.

4 · Result of the revolutionary phase

STORY LINK

Because the phase was repressed, we ask what it still achieved. Ask: how did pride, Morley-Minto and 1911 link back to the Revolutionaries?

- The Revolutionary phase was repressed by the British.
- But its impact was not nothing.

4.1 Pride and dignity, and the Morley-Minto Reforms

- 4.1 The Revolutionaries gave back a sense of pride and dignity to Indians: the feeling that Indians were not passive subjects but active agents capable of fighting back.

- Many contemporaries felt that the Morley-Minto Reforms of 1909 were partly a result of British anxiety about the spread of revolutionary activities: a reform offered to buy peace.
- (The reforms are the subject of Chapter 31: Rise of Organised Muslim Politics and Morley-Minto Reforms.)

4.2 1911: the Partition annulled and the capital moved to Delhi

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> "Bihar & Orissa" (1912) is marked in quotation marks and a brace; no reason is written (check your notebook).

- In 1911 the Partition of Bengal was annulled and Delhi was made the new capital, which ended Bengal's dominance in the INM.
- The shift was announced at the Delhi Durbar of December 1911, where King George V and Queen Mary were crowned as Emperor and Empress.
- The reading:
  - The annulment of the Partition was the political concession
  - the capital shift was the strategic correction, reducing Bengal's outsized influence over the national movement

1911: Partition annulled, capital to Delhi Lecture 33 slide 18

- 1912: the province of "Bihar and Orissa" was separated from the Bengal Presidency, and Assam was made a full province from "East Bengal and Assam" (EBA 1905).
- (Assam had originally been made a Chief Commissioner Province in 1874.) These changes were the post-1911 tidying up of Bengal's territorial structure.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Curzon 99-05's legacy is contradictory. The Partition he imposed was reversed in 1911, and the capital he governed from was shifted away from Calcutta.
- In that narrow sense the Swadeshi agitation succeeded: Bengal was reunited.
- But the larger design of 1905 (divide Hindus and Muslims, undercut Bengal's dominance, shift capital) was substantially achieved: Curzon was successful on the strategic questions.

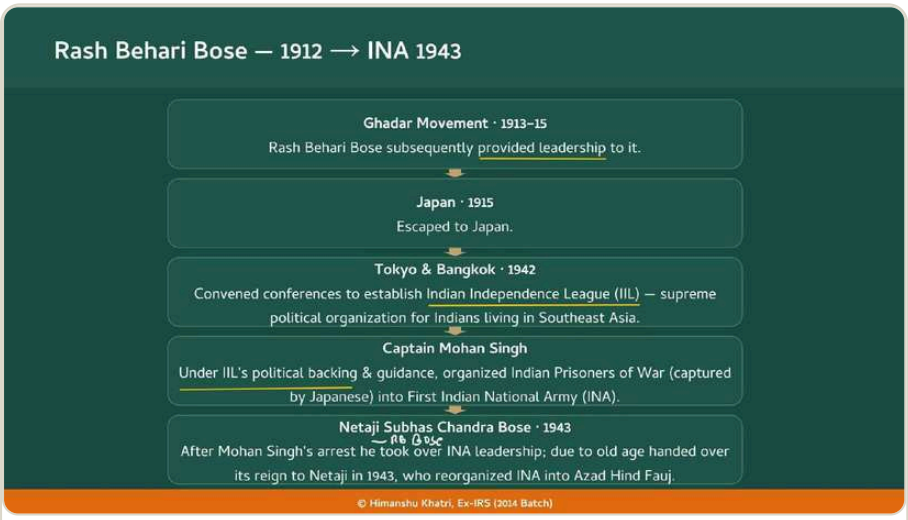
4.3 Delhi Conspiracy Case, 1912, and the line to the INA

STORY LINK

Because the capital moved to Delhi, a bomb greeted the procession, and its thrower lived on. Ask: how did Rash Behari Bose connect 1912 to the INA of 1943?



Rash Behari Bose (1912) to the INA (1943) Lecture 33 slide 21

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "- RB Bose": in the last box, Rash Behari Bose took over INA leadership after Mohan Singh's arrest and, because of old age, handed it to Netaji in 1943.
- "He" is not Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose.

- Occasion: when the capital was shifted from Calcutta to Delhi in 1911, a grand procession was organised in Delhi.
- Attempt: Rash Behari Bose planned and executed a failed assassination attempt against Viceroy Hardinge 10-16 in Chandni Chowk.
- Hardinge was seated on an elephant during the procession.
- Rash Behari Bose threw a bomb from a balcony
- Hardinge was wounded but survived.

- Rash Behari Bose subsequently provided leadership to the Ghadar Movement (1913-15) (see Chapter 32: Ghadar Movement (1913-15)) and escaped to Japan in 1915.
- Later, in 1942, he convened conferences in Tokyo and Bangkok to establish the Indian Independence League (IIL), which became the supreme political organisation for Indians living in Southeast Asia.

MNEMONIC · RASH BEHARI BOSE TO THE INA, IN ORDER

Delhi Goes, Japan Invites, Mohan, Netaji

- D 1912 Delhi bomb on Hardinge 10-16
- G 1913-15 leadership of the Ghadar Movement
- J 1915 escape to Japan
- I 1942 Indian Independence League, Tokyo and Bangkok
- M Captain Mohan Singh's first INA, backed by the IIL
- N 1943 Netaji takes over: Azad Hind Fauj

Order kept: six links, all through Rash Behari Bose.

- Under the political backing and guidance of the IIL, Captain Mohan Singh organised Indian Prisoners of War (captured by the Japanese) into the First Indian National Army (INA).

FROM THE EXTREMISTS' FALL TO THE INA

- After the arrest of Captain Mohan Singh, Rash Behari Bose took over the leadership of the INA
- due to old age he handed over its reign to Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose in 1943, who reorganised the INA into the Azad Hind Fauj.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The through-line from the Delhi Conspiracy Case (1912) to the INA (1943) passes through Rash Behari Bose.
- The generation of 1905-12 did not vanish after repression
- several resurfaced in later movements, in more organised, internationally connected forms.

From the Extremists' fall to the INA

- 1908:
  - Extremist leaders arrested, deported or exiled
  - Swadeshi leaderless
- Pen failed, People failed, Guns: a small committed group: repeat 1857 (long term), heroic action (immediate)
- Network:
  - Anushilan 1902, Jugantar 1906, Dacca Anushilan 1906, Abhinav Bharat 1904
  - Centres abroad
  - IHRS 1905
- Actions:
  - Barrah, Muzzafarpur, Alipore, Tilak (1908)
  - Dhingra and Nasik (1909)
  - Delhi (1912)
- British reply: CID 1903, trials, sedition, Cellular Jail (Barindra, Ullaskar, Savarkar 1910)
- Results:
  - Pride and dignity
  - Morley-Minto 1909
  - Partition annulled and Delhi capital 1911
- Rash Behari Bose: Delhi 1912, Ghadar 1913-15, Japan 1915, IIL 1942, INA, Netaji 1943

Chapter 29: The Extremists and the Swadeshi Movement (1905-11)

The Extremists' fall (leaders arrested, deported, exiled) is the starting point of this chapter; Tilak at Mandalay and the Partition of 1905 are in both.

Chapter 31: Rise of Organised Muslim Politics and Morley-Minto Reforms

The Morley-Minto Reforms of 1909 are read partly as a reform to buy peace after revolutionary anxiety.

Chapter 32: Ghadar Movement (1913-15)

Rash Behari Bose gives leadership to Ghadar; Barindra Kumar Ghosh cannot be in Ghadar because he was in the Cellular Jail from 1908; the teacher's Zimmerman Plan link.

Chapter 33: Home Rule League Movement (1916-18) and Lucknow Pact (1916)

Do not confuse Shyamji's IHRS of 1905 with Tilak's Indian Home Rule League of 1916 (the teacher's warning on slide 1).

Chapter 39: Revolutionaries Post 1922

The Chittagong Armoury Raid (Surya Sen, Kalpana Dutt) and Kakori 1925 on the teacher's arms board belong to the later generation.

Chapter 45: Bengal Famine (1943), INA and Naval Mutiny

The INA line: Rash Behari Bose, the IIL, Mohan Singh, Netaji and the Azad Hind Fauj (1943).

Chapter 21: The Revolt of 1857

The long-term goal is to repeat 1857, and Savarkar's 1909 book recasts it as a planned war of national liberation.

MODERN INDIAN HISTORY · CHAPTER 31

Rise of Organised Muslim Politics and the Morley-Minto Reforms

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 298-305 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 1999, 2001, 2002 (related: 2026, belongs to Chapter 34)

Mains PYQs: No Mains PYQ on the slides; practice: why ICA 1909 failed; how Divide & Rule worked from the Census to ICA 1909

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- ICA 1909 numbers: ILC 69 (9 + 60), 27 elected and 33 nominated (28 officials + 5 non-officials), officials 37 against 32, 8 of 27 Muslim seats (about 30% against 20%); the shortest-lived council reform, 10 years (1999)
- Muslim League: Dacca, December 1906; the Green Book by Mohsin-ul-Mulk and Mohammed Ali Jauhar; the London branch 1908 under Ameer Ali (2001); ML1906 was born to preserve the Partition and secure Separate Electorates, not to oppose them (2002)
- Simla Deputation 1906: Aga Khan, Minto 05-10, three demands (no annulment, proportional reservation, separate electorates); Sir Syed: qaums, MAO College 1875, Educational Congress 1886, opposed the INC (2002)
- ICA 1909 firsts and limits: proper indirect elections, non-official majority only in the PLCs, S.P. Sinha as the first Indian in the VEC, Budget vote by items only, supplementary questions by the original questioner, non-binding resolutions
- Census 1881, Hunter 1871, job reservation 1897, Partition 1905; the PCC trap (reorganised, not created, at Nagpur 1920); the teacher's cues: 'imp' on 27 + 33 (28 + 5), 'not imp' on the rotating 9th member and on Gupta and Bilgrami, 'main' on the Green Book authors

MAINS HOOKS

- Divide & Rule as the tool of imperialism: the Census, religion-wise reports, Hunter, jobs and the Partition
- Separate electorates as the hinge of partition history (of a Group, for a Group, by a Group)
- Why ICA 1909 failed and was the shortest-lived reform; Benevolent Despotism; Limited Self-Government against Responsible Government
- How the Morley-Minto Reforms split the INC (the 1906 Budget speech, Surat 1907) and then Hindus from Muslims

A reform that gave a council a voice but no power, and a community a separate vote, planted the seed of Partition.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The Census, the religion-wise reports and low Western education made Muslims a separate, deprived group that British Divide & Rule could favour; Sir Syed gave it the qaum idea, the Simla Deputation 1906 and the League asked for separate electorates, and the ICA 1909 granted them inside a council that had no real power, so the seed of Partition was sown.

1. The count that made a community. Census 1881 was the first full census of British India (the 1872 attempt was incomplete). It found Muslims roughly 20% overall, a majority in Punjab and about 50% in Bengal, and it told a Bengal weaver and a Punjab landlord that they were one community with one set of interests. Government reports on education, employment and poverty by religion then showed Muslims behind Hindus.

   → But why were Muslims behind in the new jobs?

2. Behind in the new jobs. Western education was expensive and most Bengal Muslims were poor ryots. The Ulamas resisted it for fear that Western literature would erode their community control, some wished to preserve Persian, and rich landlords saw little use for middle-class jobs. So Hindus, who took to Western education more readily, gained the new professions.

   → The rulers noticed, and had a plan.

3. The rulers' plan: appease and divide. The teacher's frame: the goal of imperialism is economic loot and the tool is Divide & Rule, co-opting one side to loot the other. W.W. Hunter's Indian Musalmans (1871) argued the British should appease Muslims, job reservation followed in 1897, and the 1905 Partition made East Bengal and Assam a Muslim Majority Province. All three favoured the elite.

   → Meanwhile a Muslim leader gave the plan an idea.

4. Sir Syed's qaums. The Mohammadan Association (1855) was pro-British and opposed the 1857 revolts. Sir Syed Ahmed Khan (1817-98) said India was a summation of qaums and that the Muslim qaum, the former rulers, needed Western education to claim special status; he built MAO College (1875) and the Mohammadan Educational Congress (1886) as a rival to the INC. He was not a full separatist, but he drew the blueprint of the Two Nation Theory.

   → And Hindu revivalism widened the wedge.

5. The Hindu wave and the Muslim withdrawal. The Arya Samaj (1875) turned aggressive after Dayanand died in 1883, and the Cow Killing Riots of 1893 followed; the INC, bound by its 1886 rule of political issues only, did not condemn them, and Muslim participation fell. The Hindi-Urdu controversy (success for Hindi in 1900) tied Hindi to Hindus and Urdu to Muslims, and the Swadeshi movement's symbols (Bande Mataram, Kali worship, Ganpati and Shivaji festivals) deepened the alienation.

   → Then the Partition of 1905 sent the elite to the Viceroy.

6 Simla 1906. Elite Muslims led by the Aga Khan met Viceroy Minto 05-10 at Shimla. They asked for no annulment of the Bengal Partition, reservation proportional to population in the ILC, PLCs and jobs, and separate electorates in future council reforms. Separate electorates are the hinge: once Muslims must elect Muslims, the Two Nation Theory is institutionally accepted.

→ An organisation followed within months.

7 The League is born. The All India Muslim League was set up at Dacca in December 1906 to hold the British to the Simla promises, promote Muslim interests and promote Muslim loyalty. Its Green Book was written by Mohsin-ul-Mulk and Mohammed Ali Jauhar, provincial Leagues came in 1907-09, and the London branch (1908) under Ameer Ali influenced ICA 1909. The PCCs became mass instruments only in 1920, so the League had a 13-year head start.

→ Meanwhile the Viceroy's side had a reform track.

8 Two tracks: repression and reform. Swadeshi (1905-11), the Extremists and Revolutionary Activities (from 1908) made India restless, so the British ran repression and reform together; Morley, a Liberal, was open to reform. Move 1 split the INC: Morley's 1906 Budget speech hinted at council reforms, the Moderates feared Extremist agitation would kill them, and the INC split at Surat in 1907. Move 2 divided Hindus and Muslims through separate electorates.

→ What did the Act actually give?

9 A bigger council, not a stronger one. ICA 1909 made the ILC 69 members (9 + 60: 27 elected, 33 nominated) but kept an official majority, 37 against 32. It used the word 'election' for the first time, with proper indirect elections, gave the PLCs a non-official majority (mostly nominated), put S.P. Sinha in the VEC, and let members vote on Budget items, ask supplementary questions and pass non-binding resolutions. Morley stated there was no intent of responsible government, only Limited Self-Government.

→ And for the Muslims?

10 The separate electorate. Muslims got separate electorates in the ILC, PLCs and local bodies: 8 of 27 elected ILC seats, about 30% against a population of about 20% (the INC's own 1889 Minority Clause had asked for 20%). They also voted in the general seats, had a lower income threshold and direct elections in Muslim seats. Joint electorates give a candidate of the People; separate ones give a candidate of a Group, for a Group, by a Group.

→ So how did the story end?

11 Failure and the long shadow. ICA 1909 lasted only 10 years, the shortest of the council reforms (30, 17, 10, 16, 15). The Moderates wanted real power, the INC's goal since 1906 was Swaraj, Muslims got separate electorates and the legislatures were powerless, so it was a Benevolent Despotism. Minto 05-10 became the Father of Communal Electorate, and organised communal politics, never reversed, hardened until 1947.

In simple words

- The Census 1881 and religion-wise reports made Muslims see themselves as one group that was behind Hindus
- Low Western education (cost, Ulamas, Persian, landlords) widened the gap
- The British used Divide & Rule (Hunter 1871, job reservation 1897, Partition 1905) while Sir Syed called Muslims a separate qaum and built MAO College 1875.
- Hindu revivalism (cow riots 1893, Hindi-Urdu, Swadeshi symbols) pushed Muslims away
- The Simla Deputation 1906 asked for separate electorates
- The Muslim League was born at Dacca the same year
- The ICA 1909 (Morley-Minto) was the reform track beside repression: ILC 69, an official majority 37 to 32, separate electorates (8 of 27 seats) and S.P. Sinha in the VEC.
- It gave Limited Self-Government, not responsible government: a Benevolent Despotism that lasted 10 years and laid the foundation of Partition.

Key term	In plain words
Communalism	Organising society on religion and believing each religious group has separate, possibly clashing interests
Qaum	Sir Syed's word for a community or nation; India as a summation of qaums

Key term	In plain words
Relative deprivation	The feeling of being behind another group, built here by religion-wise reports
Separate Electorates	Only Muslims vote in a seat reserved for a Muslim candidate
Joint Electorates	All communities vote in a reserved seat (today's SC seats)
Green Book	The constitution of the Muslim League, by Mohsin-ul-Mulk and Mohammed Ali Jauhar
Ex-officio member	A member who sits because of an office held (here, the 8 from the VEC and one rotating Governor)
Indirect election	Taxpayers elect local bodies, then an electoral college, then PLCs, then the ILC
Representative Government	People elect members to talk and advise; Limited Self-Government, not Responsible Government
Responsible Government	Every minister must first be an elected member of the legislature
Benevolent Despotism	More democratic than ICA 1892, but real power stays with the British Executive
Father of Communal Electorate	The title given to Minto 05-10

REMEMBER IT AS Separate electorates were the hinge: ML1906 asked, ICA 1909 granted, and Partition 1947 followed.

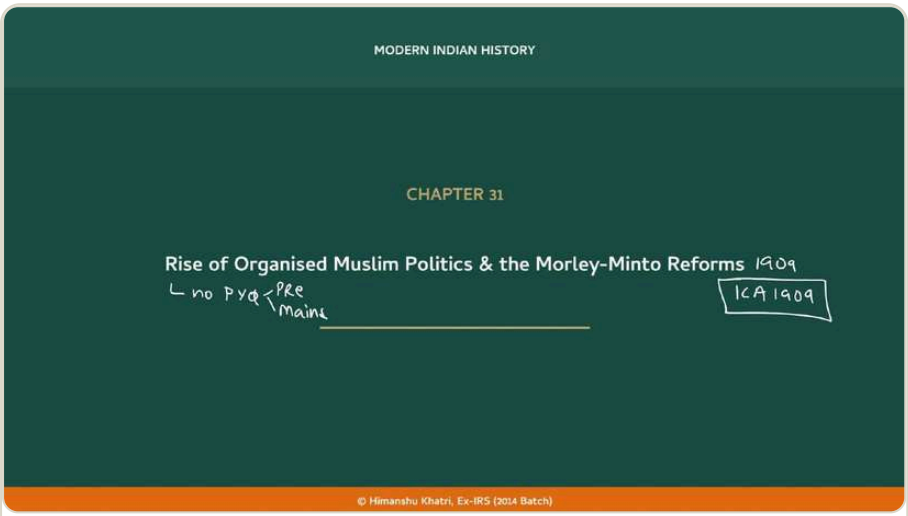
STORY LINK

Story so far: the chapter is two halves, the rise of an organised Muslim politics and the Act that wrote it into law. Ask: which thread joins them (Divide & Rule), and where does each later section fit?



Chapter 31 title: Rise of Organised Muslim Politics and the Morley-Minto Reforms Lecture 33 slide 39

TEACHER'S BOARD

- One story, two halves. First: how a separate organised Muslim politics rose (Census 1881, religion-wise reports, low Western education, Hunter, Sir Syed, Hindu revivalism, Simla Deputation 1906, ML1906).
- Second: ICA 1909 ("ICA 1909" box), the council reform through which the British turned that politics into law with separate electorates.
- The link is Divide &amp
- Rule (DnR).

The chapter in one chain

- Census 1881 and religion-wise reports: one homogeneous Muslim group, and a sense of relative deprivation
- Low Western education (cost, Ulamas, Persian, landlords): Hindus gain the new middle-class jobs
- British DnR: Hunter 1871, job reservation 1897, Partition 1905
- Sir Syed and the Muslim elite: qaums, MAO College 1875, Educational Congress 1886
- Hindu revivalism after 1883: Cow Killing Riots 1893, Hindi-Urdu 1900, Swadeshi symbols 1905-11
- Simla Deputation 1906: keep the Partition, population-proportional reservation, separate electorates

- ML1906 at Dacca:
  - Hold the British to Simla
  - London branch 1908
  - ICA 1909 grants separate electorates
- Foundation of Partition: organised communal politics never reversed until 1947

1 · Background: census, education and communal consciousness

STORY LINK

Because the teacher frames imperialism as loot with Divide & Rule as the tool, the British needed groups to work on. Ask: how did the Census, the religion-wise reports and low Western education make Muslims one deprived group?

1.0 The teacher's frame: the goal of imperialism

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Goal of imperialism = economic: loot or drain the wealth of the colony, that is its masses.
- Tool = DnR (Divide & Rule), especially against the leadership (one group of leaders favoured, one not).
- Masses split into majority and minority:
  - If the majority is co-opted, the minority is looted
  - If the minority is co-opted, the majority is looted.
- Example: Rwanda (colonial power Belgium, majority Hutus, minority Tutsis circled, which fits the "minority co-opted" branch; that link is a reading).
- Comes just before the Census slide.

1.1 Census 1881 and communal consciousness

- Census 1881 was the first full census of British India.
- The first attempt, in 1872, was not completed for all of British India.
- From 1881 it ran every 10 years: 1881, 1891, 1901...
- Muslims were roughly 20% overall, with a majority in Punjab and roughly 50% in Bengal.

Goal of imperialism and the tool of Divide and Rule Lecture 33 slide 40

TEACHER'S BOARD

Hold three numbers: Muslims about 20% overall; a majority in Punjab (~54%, the handout only says "majority"); about 50% in Bengal. 20% is the base against which the 30% of ICA 1909 is later called appeasement (Section 7.4.6).

1.2 The Census as a Divide & Rule contribution

- The Census had a deep DnR contribution: it created and reinforced a consciousness of being a homogeneous religious group among an otherwise heterogeneous Muslim community.
- Before mass enumeration, a poor Muslim weaver in Bengal and a rich Muslim landlord in Punjab had very different daily realities.
- The Census told both that they were part of one community with one set of interests, and that Hindus and Muslims were two separate communities with separate, potentially competing interests.
- Shia-Sunni differences and Worker-Peasant class differences all came later
- Muslim identity was put first by the census logic.

1.3 Religion-wise reports and relative deprivation

- The British government published reports on education, employment and poverty religion-wise.
- This created a sense of relative deprivation among Muslims: the data showed them behind Hindus in government jobs, education and the new middle-class professions.
- Whether the cause was discrimination or other factors, the published comparison reinforced a feeling that Hindus were gaining at Muslims' expense.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Communalism is the organisation of society on the basis of religion and the ideology that every religious group has its own separate interests, which may be mutually exclusive: that the two communities cannot co-exist happily, and that meeting one community's interests will necessarily hurt the other's.
- This is the logic that underpinned the demand for Separate Electorates and the demand for Pakistan.

1.4 Why Western education uptake was low among Muslims

- The low representation of Muslims in the new middle-class professions was partly the result of lower uptake of Western education.
- The reasons were structural, not simply backwardness:

Reason	Detail
i) Cost	Western education was expensive, and most Muslims in Bengal were poor ryots who could not afford it
ii) The Ulamas resisted it	The Ulamas (the Muslim clerical class) actively resisted Western education. Their concern was cultural and religious: the Western curriculum, through Western literature, exposed students to a way of life, family structures and social values that contradicted Islamic teaching and would erode their community control (the handout's reminder: literature has stories, values, attitudes and religious beliefs that shape the way we think)
iii) Preserve Persian	A desire to preserve Persian, the language of Muslim high culture and administration under the Mughals, against the encroachment of English and Hindi
iv) Landlords ' low incentive	Rich Muslim landlords had low utility for middle-class government jobs and therefore little incentive to pursue Western education
v) Consequence	Hindus benefitted more from the new middle-class professions created by British administration, because they accepted Western education more readily and in greater numbers

MNEMONIC · WHY WESTERN EDUCATION UPTAKE WAS LOW

C L A P

The community gave no CLAP to the English school.

C Cost: Western education was expensive and most Bengal Muslims were poor ryots

L Landlords: rich Muslim landlords had low use for middle-class government jobs

A Ulamas: the clerical class resisted it (the A sits inside Ulamas)

P Persian: a wish to preserve it against English and Hindi

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. The consequence (Hindus gained the new jobs) is separate.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Key line: "Hindus benefitted more from the new middle-class professions." The four causes (i to iv) are why; (v) is the result that feeds the relative deprivation of Section 1.3.

1.5 Hunter's Indian Musalmans and the British Divide & Rule

- W.W. Hunter's book Indian Musalmans (1871) argued that the neglect of Muslims, specifically their economic decline since the end of Mughal rule, had contributed to the Faraizi movement of the 1830s-70s in Bengal, and therefore the British should appease Muslims for greater political stability.
- This argument became a justification for the DnR approach of favouring Muslim interests against Hindu-dominated political formations.

1.6 The specific DnR measures toward Muslims

MNEMONIC · BRITISH DNR MEASURES, IN ORDER

Hunter Justifies Partiality

H 1871 Hunter's Indian Musalmans: appease Muslims for political stability

J 1897 Job reservation for Muslims

P 1905 Partition: East Bengal and Assam as a Muslim Majority Province

Order kept: three dated steps, an argument, then two favours.

Year	Measure	Detail
1871	Hunter's Indian Musalmans	The argument above: appease Muslims for political stability
1897	Reservation in government jobs for Muslims	The first named reservation
1905	Bengal Partition	Created East Bengal and Assam as a Muslim Majority Province (MMP), appeasing elite Muslims and countering rising Hindu nationalism

TEACHER'S BOARD

Stressed: "appease Muslims for political stability," "1897 - Job reservation," "elite Muslims." Elite matters: appeasement went to the elite, not the common Muslim; the next board (Section 1.7) asks what the common Muslim got.

1.7 The teacher's question: what did the common Muslim get?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Question: "What did the common Muslim get from Pakistan?" Board answer: a KATORA (bowl) with KHOON (blood) in it. The rest was spoken.
- After the slide on elite-directed measures (1871, 1897, 1905), read it as the cost to the common Muslim of an elite-led politics.

2 · Muslim WEMC demands: from association to organisation

STORY LINK

Because the DnR measures opened space for elite demands, the Muslim elite organised step by step. Ask: how did Sir Syed's qaums become the architecture of the Two Nation Theory, and why was he not a full separatist?

- The British DnR measures opened space for elite Muslim political demands.
- The Muslim upper and middle class, those who had accepted Western education (the WEMC, Western-Educated Middle Class, as the teacher abbreviates it), began demanding special political status.
- The demand built gradually through the 19th century:

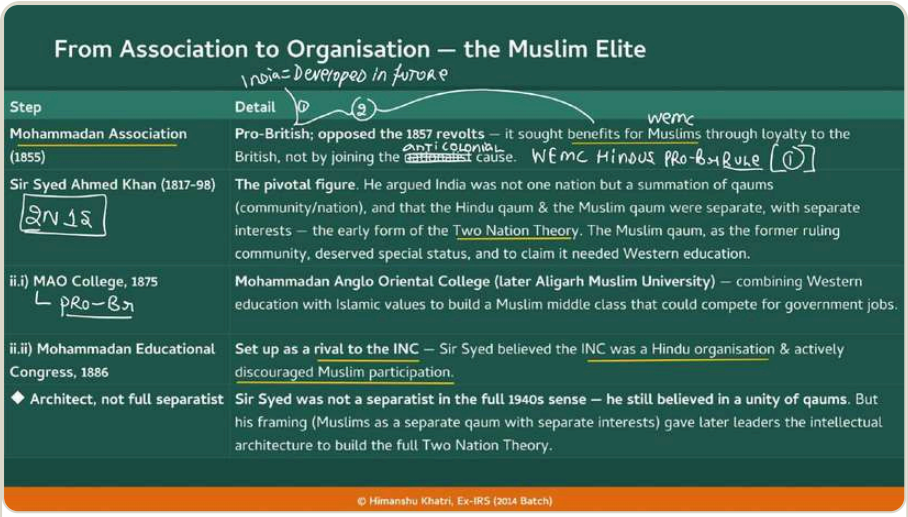
What did the common Muslim get from Pakistan? Lecture 33 slide 45



From association to organisation: the Muslim elite Lecture 33 slide 46

Step	Detail
Mohammadan Association (1855)	Pro-British; it opposed the 1857 revolts. It sought benefits for Muslims through loyalty to the British, not through joining the nationalist cause
Sir Syed Ahmed Khan (1817-98)	The pivotal figure. He argued that India was not a single nation but a summation of qaums (qaum = community or nation, a distinct ethno-religious group), and that the Hindu qaum and the Muslim qaum were separate, with separate interests (the early form of the Two Nation Theory). He further argued that the Muslim qaum, as the ruling community before the British, deserved special status, and that to claim it Muslims needed Western education
ii.i) Mohammadan Anglo Oriental College (MAO), 1875	Later Aligarh Muslim University. It combined Western education with Islamic values, to build a Muslim middle class that could compete for government positions without abandoning core religious identity
ii.ii) Mohammadan Educational Congress, 1886	Set up as a rival to the INC, because Sir Syed believed the INC was a Hindu organisation. He actively discouraged Muslim participation in the INC

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Sir Syed Ahmed Khan was not a separatist in the full 1940s sense.
- He still believed in a unity of qaums.
- But his framing, that Muslims are a separate qaum with separate interests, provided the intellectual architecture that later leaders used to build the full Two Nation Theory.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Short argument, partly unclear. (1) Row 1: "nationalist" replaced by "anti colonial": the Association stayed out of the anti-colonial cause.
- (2) "WEMC Hindus Pro-Br Rule", with aim 2 = benefits for Muslims: the early Muslim WEMC was pro-British rule, as the early Hindu WEMC also was.
- (3) Sir Syed row: "2N1S" (a label for the Two Nation idea; reading uncertain).
- (4) MAO College: "PRO-Br." (5) "India = Developed in future" (meaning not clear).
- Stressed: "Two Nation Theory," "a rival to the INC," "INC was a Hindu organisation," "discouraged Muslim participation."

3 · Post-1883: Hindu revivalism and Muslim alienation

STORY LINK

Because the Muslim elite was building a separate identity, Hindu revivalism widened the gap in three waves. Ask: which wave did the INC not condemn, and why?

- Hindu cultural revivalism of the late 19th and early 20th centuries (the Shuddhi movement, the Cow Protection Movement, the Swadeshi period's use of Hindu religious symbolism) alienated Muslims from the Congress-led national movement in successive waves.

Hindu revivalism and Muslim alienation after 1883 Lecture 33 slide 47

3.1 Wave i: Shuddhi and the Cow Protection Movement

- The Shuddhi movement and the Cow Protection Movement were run by the Arya Samaj (1875) and became more aggressive after Swami Dayanand Saraswati died in 1883.

- The result was the Cow Killing Riots of 1893.
- The INC did not condemn these riots, because its 1886 rule was to take up only political issues.
- This non-condemnation produced a sharp decline in Muslim participation in the INC.

3.2 Wave ii: the Hindi-Urdu Controversy (1880s to 1900)

- The controversy was in the North West Provinces and Awadh (1877), led by the moderate Madan Mohan Malviya.
- It demanded official language status for Hindi (spoken by the majority) equivalent to Urdu. Success came in 1900.
- The unintended byproduct: Hindi became associated with Hindus and Urdu with Muslims.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Language board:
  - Punjabi and Bangla are the two big languages, yet "Jinnah chose URDU" and its script is Arabic. Pakistan was linguistically dominated by Punjabis and Bengalis, but Jinnah made Urdu official for an Islamic image, not a linguistic majority
  - The Arabic script gave Urdu that image
- Remember the place and year "NWP" and "(1877)."

3.3 Wave iii: Hindu symbolism in the Swadeshi movement (1905-11)

- Bande Mataram, Kali worship, Prabhat Pheris, Ganpati and Shivaji festivals contributed further to Muslim alienation from the movement, leading to low participation (as already discussed).

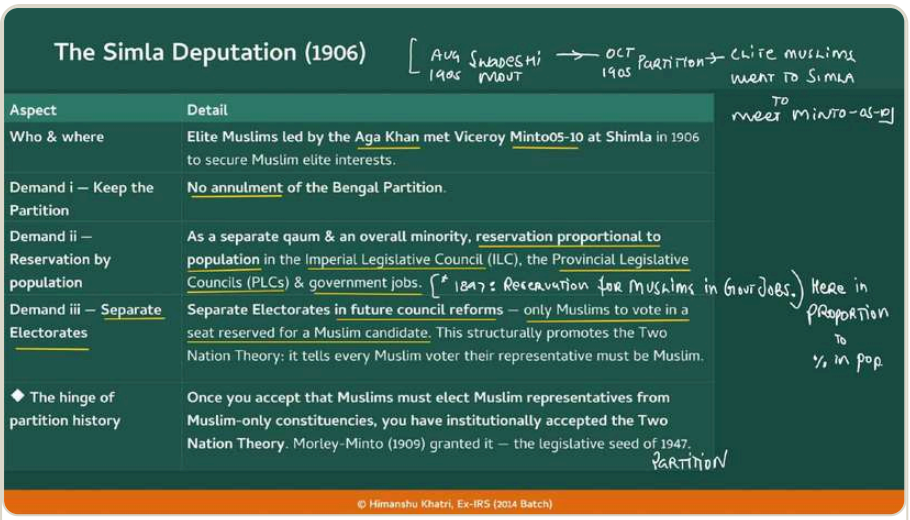
4 · The Simla Deputation (1906)

STORY LINK

Because the Partition of 1905 had favoured the elite, elite Muslims went to the Viceroy to secure it. Ask: why is Separate Electorates called the hinge of partition history?



The Simla Deputation (1906) Lecture 33 slide 48

4.1 What the Deputation was and what it demanded

- In 1906, elite Muslims led by the Aga Khan met Viceroy Minto 05-10 (1905-1910) in Shimla to secure Muslim elite interests. Their demands:

Demand	Detail
i) Keep the Partition	No annulment of the Bengal Partition
ii) Reservation by population	As a separate qaum and an overall minority, reservation proportional to population in the Imperial Legislative Council (ILC), the Provincial Legislative Councils (PLCs) and government jobs
iii) Separate Electorates	Separate Electorates in future council reforms. Separate Electorates = only Muslims have the right to vote (R2V) in a seat reserved for a Muslim candidate. This structurally promotes the Two Nation Theory: it tells every Muslim voter that their representative must be Muslim and their interests are separate from Hindu interests

MNEMONIC · THE THREE DEMANDS OF THE SIMLA DEPUTATION 1906

P E P

The Aga Khan gave Minto 05-10 a PEP talk at Shimla.

P Partition: no annulment of the Bengal Partition

E Electorates: separate electorates in future council reforms

P Proportion: reservation proportional to population in the ILC, PLCs and jobs

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The demand for Separate Electorates is the hinge of partition history.
- Once you accept that Muslims must elect Muslim representatives from Muslim-only constituencies, you have institutionally accepted the Two Nation Theory.
- The Morley-Minto Reforms of 1909 granted this demand, and that grant was the legislative seed of 1947.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Chain: Aug 1905 Swadeshi Movement, Oct 1905 Partition, elite Muslims went to Simla to meet Minto 05-10.
- Bottom: "Partition" under the hinge box.
- Demand ii precedent: "1897: Reservation for Muslims in Govt Jobs" and "Here in proportion to % in pop" (the 1906 job demand was proportional to population).
- "Separate Electorates" is the key demand.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source conflict:
  - Swadeshi and Partition order. The teacher's chain puts Aug 1905 Swadeshi before Oct 1905 Partition
  - the handout says the Partition set off the Swadeshi Movement.
- For cause and effect write Partition 1905 gave rise to the Swadeshi Movement 1905-11
- for dates use August and October

4.2 Reservation with Separate Electorates: the teacher's boards

TEACHER'S BOARD

- State or Country = sum of its constituencies.
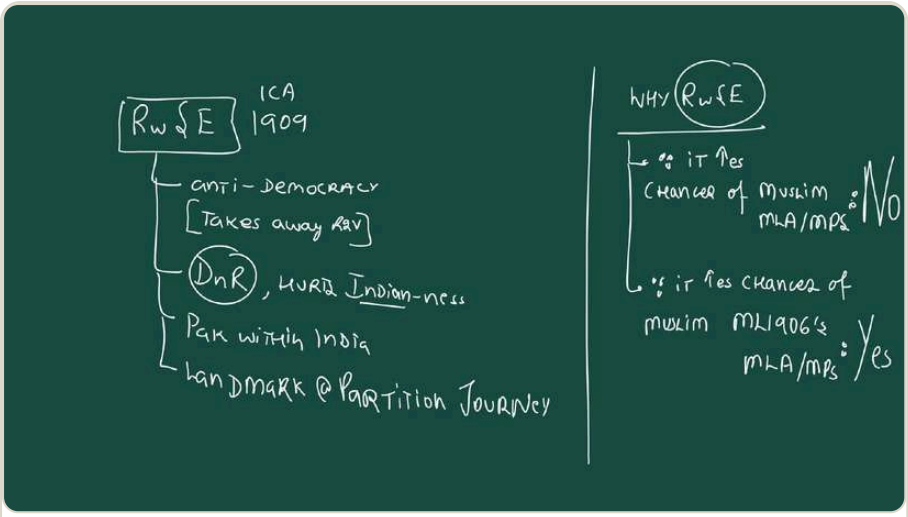
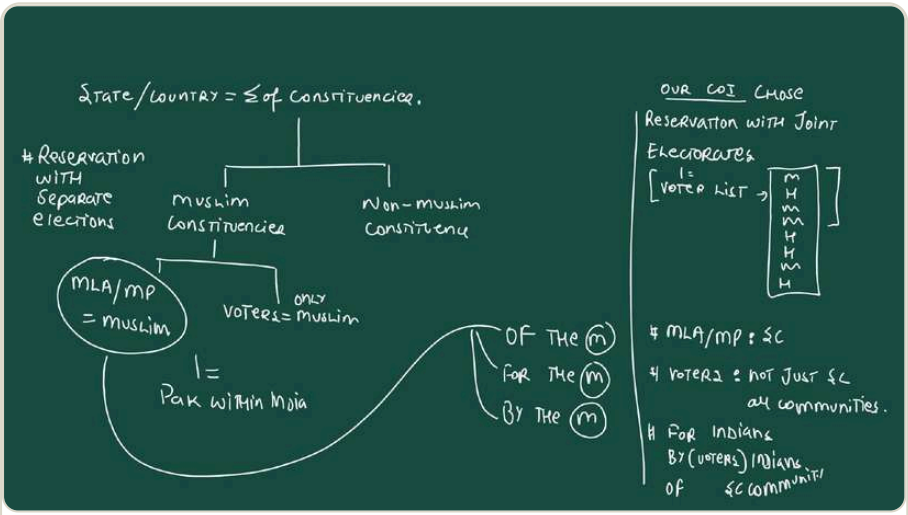
- Reservation with Separate Elections: MLA/MP = Muslim and voters = only Muslim, a representative "of the m, for the m, by the m" = "Pak within India." Our Constitution chose Reservation with Joint Electorates: the voter list is mixed, the MLA/MP is from the reserved community (example: SC), but all communities vote ("For Indians, by Indians"; last words unclear).



RwSE (Reservation with Separate Electorates) and ICA 1909 Lecture 33 slide 50



Reservation with separate electorates versus joint electorates Lecture 33 slide 49

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Four verdicts on RwSE (ICA 1909):
  - (1) anti-democracy ("takes away R&V", perhaps right to vote)
  - (2) DnR, hurts Indian-ness
  - (3) "Pak within India"
  - (4) landmark on the Partition journey.
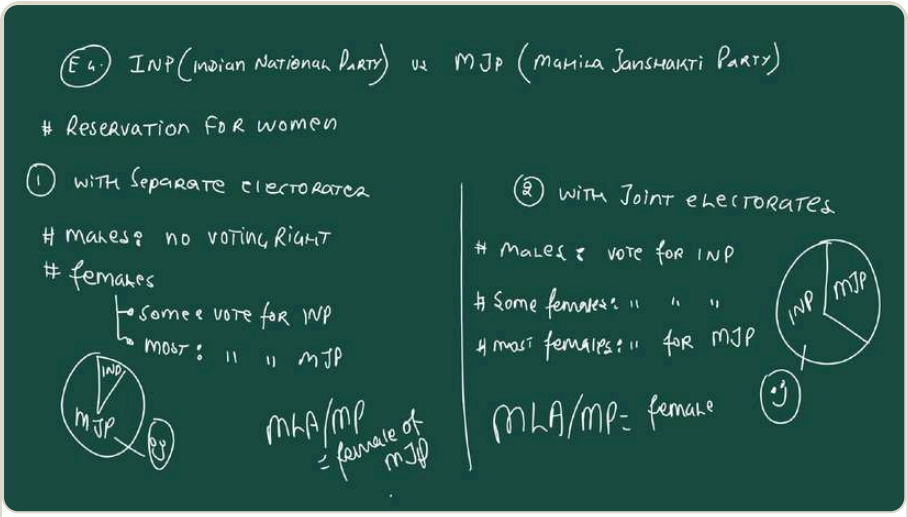
- "WHY (RwSE)?" Separate electorates do not raise the chances of Muslim MLA/MPs in general ("No"), but do raise those of the ML1906 Muslim MLA/MPs ("Yes"): the system helped the communal party, not Muslims as such (arrow direction unclear).



Example: INP versus MJP, reservation for women Lecture 33 slide 51

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Made-up example:
  - Reservation for women
  - General party INP (Indian National Party), women's party MJP (Mahila Janshakti Party).
- (1) Separate electorates:
  - Males have no vote in the women's seat
  - Most females vote MJP
  - winner = female of MJP.
- (2) Joint electorates:
  - Males vote INP, some females too, most females MJP
  - The pie is mostly INP, so the winner is a female (by the pie, the INP's candidate: a reading)
- Lesson:
  - Under separate electorates only the group's own voters decide, so the group's own party wins
  - Under joint electorates a party must win beyond its group. Hence ML1906 wanted separate electorates

5 · Formation of the All India Muslim League (ML1906)

STORY LINK

Because Simla needed someone to hold the British to its promises, the League was born at Dacca. Ask: what head start did the League's provincial structures give it over the PCCs?

Formation of the Muslim League (ML1906) Lecture 33 slide 52

- The All India Muslim League was set up by elite Muslims in Dacca, in December 1906, immediately following the Simla Deputation.

5.1 Goal

- To ensure the British did not go back on the promises made at the Simla Deputation (1906).
- To promote Muslim interests.
- To promote Muslim loyalty to the British.

5.2 The Green Book

- The League's constitution, called the Green Book, was written by Mohsin-ul-Mulk and Mohammed Ali Jauhar, both of the Aligarh movement.

> - Green Book row: "main" = the authors are an important point.
> - "Aligarh" and "movement": the League's constitution came out of Sir Syed's Aligarh movement (Section 2).

5.3 1907-09: Provincial Muslim Leagues and the head start

- Provincial Muslim Leagues were set up in 1907-09.
- ML1906 had functional provincial structures reaching ground-level Muslim communities for more than a decade before the INC's PCCs became effective mass instruments.
- This gave communal politics an organisational head start on the ground.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout only (no class slide): PCCs existed since the INC's 1908 Constitution (as the handout writes it; see alert below) but were mapped to British provinces and ran in English, keeping the Congress elite.
- At the 1920 Nagpur Session, Gandhi redrew PCC borders on linguistic lines, so local work ran in the mother tongue and the INC could penetrate the villages.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "1886 PCCs setup BUT they don't go to masses." "1920 [MG?] era began for PCCs, they became mass politics" (the two letters look like "MG", Mahatma Gandhi; unclear).
- Sum: "LOST 13 YEARS" and "-ve of INC under moderates." The 13 years run from the provincial Leagues of 1907 to the PCCs' mass role in 1920.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source conflict:
  - PCC year. The typed slide said PCCs existed from "the 1908 INC Constitution"
  - The teacher replaced it with "1886." The handout says 1908
- Follow 1886 in answers, and keep the trap:
  - PCCs were not created at Nagpur 1920
  - They were reorganised on linguistic lines there.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims trap (handout). If a statement says "PCCs were established for the first time at the 1920 Nagpur Session": False.
- If it says "PCCs were reorganised on linguistic lines at the 1920 Nagpur Session": True.

5.4 1908: the London branch under Ameer Ali

- A London branch of the ML1906 was set up in 1908 under the presidency of Ameer Ali.
- It influenced the Indian Councils Act 1909 (ICA1909), which laid the foundation of partition politics by introducing Separate Electorates for Muslims in the reformed councils.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2001 (UPSC tested this). Answer (B) Ameer Ali.
- Wrong options:
  - (A) Aga Khan (he led the 1906 Simla Deputation at home)
  - (C) Liaquat Ali Khan (the League's later 1940s generation)
  - (D) MA Jinnah (in 1908 still a Congress constitutional lawyer, the slide adds)

6 · The long thread: ML1906 to 1947

STORY LINK

Because the League kept its goal of Partition and Separate Electorates, organised communal politics never reversed. Ask: why is any option saying the League opposed them false (Prelims 2002)?

- ML1906 was set up in 1906 to preserve the Bengal Partition and to secure Separate Electorates.
- Separate Electorates were granted by ICA1909 (Morley-Minto Reforms).
- The INC's PCCs only became effective mass instruments in 1920
- ML had functional provincial structures for 13 years before the INC caught up
- The formal, organised beginning of communal politics that ML1906 represented never reversed: it deepened decade by decade until 1947.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout only (no class slide): the handout closes Section 6 with a point not on the slides.
- "This is why the birth of ML1906 is listed as one of the negative impacts of the Swadeshi period." It was not simply a reaction to Swadeshi, but the Swadeshi period's Hindu symbolism and the British DnR response together created the conditions for it.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2002 (UPSC tested this). Answer (C): "The All-India Muslim League formed in 1906 vehemently opposed the partition of Bengal and separate electorates" is NOT correct (marked "F" on the slide).
- Correct statements:
  - (A) Hakim Ajmal Khan was a leader to start the nationalist and militant Ahrar movement
  - (B) Sayyid Ahmad Khan opposed the INC when it was formed (marked "T")
  - (D) Maulana Barakatullah and Maulana Obeidullah Sindhi were among those who formed a Provisional Government of India in Kabul

7 · Morley-Minto Reforms / Indian Councils Act, 1909 (ICA1909)

STORY LINK

Because the British ran repression and reform together, the reform came packaged with Divide & Rule. Ask: what did Move 1 split, and what did Move 2 split?

7.1 Names behind the reform, and where ICA 1909 sits

TEACHER'S BOARD

Hallmarks: what each council Act is remembered for (ICA 1861 and ICA 1892 are Chapters 25 and 28):

Act	The teacher's hallmarks
ICA 1861	ILC with the VEC; PLCs with the GEC; a grain of popular representation; first: non-officers (nominated); the Portfolio System; 6 to 12 additional members, half at least non-officers
ICA 1892	First: questions can be asked; first: the Budget (BD) can be discussed; selection and not election (nominated non-officers from recommended lists); first: some popular representation; 10 to 16 additional members
ICA 1909	First: proper indirect elections; Reservation with Separate electorates; in the PLC a majority of non-officers, but most were nominated, not elected; first: one Indian in the VEC; brought Limited Self-Government (LTD SG); first: supplementary questions; resolutions can be passed; Budget vote on individual items, not on the Budget as a whole

Hallmarks of ICA 1861, 1892 and 1909 Lecture 33 slide 54

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source conflict: 1861 range. This board writes "6 to 12", a later board writes "6 to 10".
- Use 6 to 12 (as in Chapter 25)
- Treat "6 to 10" as a slip

- Two men gave the reform its name:
- John Morley was the Secretary of State for India, sitting in London.
- Lord Minto 05-10 (1905-1910) was the Viceroy and Governor-General in India.
- Together their names became attached to what is formally called the Indian Councils Act, 1909 (ICA1909).

7.2 Context: why this reform happened

- India in 1905 was not quiet. The partition of Bengal in 1905 had set off the Swadeshi Movement (1905-11), which pushed Indian politics in a sharper, angrier direction.
- 1905-1908 saw the rise of Extremist politics within the INC, and from 1908 Revolutionary Activities became a real and growing force that worried the British.
- The British response had two tracks, repression and reform, and they ran simultaneously. ICA1909 was the reform track.
- But reform, in British hands, always came packaged with a political strategy.
- There was also a personal dimension: Morley was a Liberal in the British political tradition, less authoritarian than many predecessors and open to giving Indians more participation.
- His disposition, with political necessity, shaped the reform.

7.3 The Divide & Rule (DnR) strategy behind ICA1909

- The British wanted to split the Indian political movement, specifically to separate the Moderates from the Extremists within the INC.
- The strategy played out in two moves.

Move 1: Split the INC.

- In 1906, Morley gave a speech in the British Parliament during the debate on India's Budget and hinted strongly at upcoming council reforms.
- The message landed exactly as intended. Moderate leaders began to worry that Extremist agitation would harden British opinion and kill the chances of reform.
- This fault line widened until the Surat Split of 1907, where the Extremists were expelled from the INC.
- With the Extremists outside the tent, the British moved to repress them directly.

Morley's 1906 Budget speech and the Moderates Lecture 31 slide 16

Move 2: Divide Hindus and Muslims.

- The vehicle was the introduction of separate electorates for Muslims, a demand formally placed before Minto 05-10 by a delegation of Muslim elites at the Shimla Deputation of 1906.
- The Shimla Deputation: a group of Muslim leaders met Minto 05-10 and asked not just for reserved seats, but for a system where only Muslims could vote for Muslim representatives.
- The British were happy to oblige: it suited their DnR strategy perfectly.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Move 1 (circles A, B, C). (A) In 1906 Secretary of State Morley spoke in the British Parliament on the Budget of the Government of India.
- (B) He hinted at council reforms, ILC and PLCs, "by amending ICA 1892," through expansion and powers.
- (C) Result: "Moderates' mouth watered." Links: "1906 session" and "1907 Surat Split" = DnR (Moderates against Extremists).
- Moderates "don't want any kind of violence so reforms aint derailed." Unclear: two words after "esp" (like "Br Madras") and "A Royal vs Royal".

HANDOUT NOTE

- The transcription reads "DnR" on this board as "Dadabhai Naoroji"
- It stands for Divide and Rule (as in the handout and Move 1)
- Read DnR = Divide and Rule.

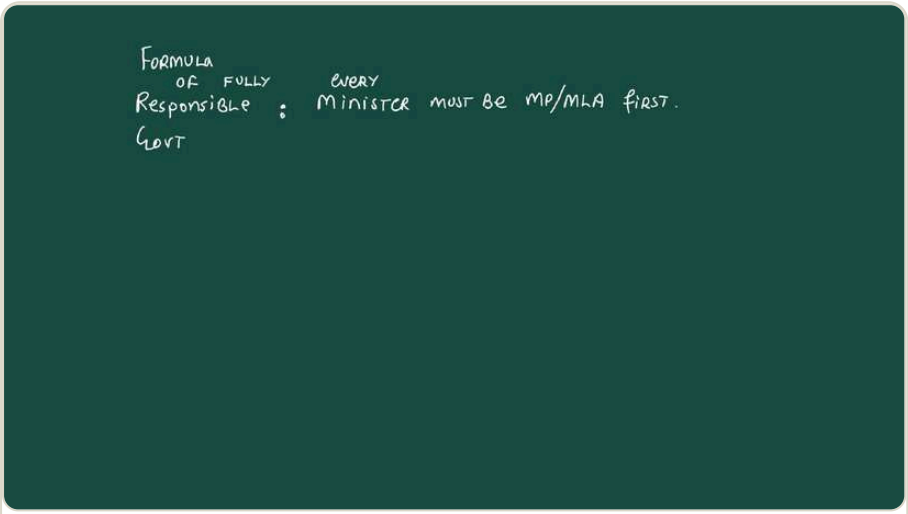
7.4 Provisions of ICA1909

7.4.1 Nature of government introduced



Formula of fully responsible government Lecture 33 slide 57

ICA1909: nature of government Lecture 33 slide 58

- Morley stated explicitly: "There is no intent of Responsible Govt in India via ICA1909."
- Fully Responsible Government means every minister must first be an elected member of the legislature: the Executive is the child of Parliament, and a child is always accountable to its mother.
- That is, no minister had to be an MP or MLA first.
- ICA1909 gave nothing of the sort.

- What ICA1909 did introduce was Representative Government, also called Limited Self-Government (LTD SG): people get to elect representatives to sit in a council and talk and advise, meaning some partnership in domestic affairs, but not self-rule, not Self Government, not Responsible Government.
- This had been the goal of the INC until 1906.
- From the 1906 Calcutta Session onward the INC's goal shifted to Swaraj.
- So even by the Moderates' own older standard, the reform arrived too late.
- It was the second failure of the Moderate approach.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Formula: "Fully Responsible Government: every minister must be MP/MLA first." The Executive does not need the legislature's membership or confidence, so ICA1909 is not responsible government.
- "[not fully Representative how]" beside Representative Government (last word unclear; likely the handout's point that most non-official members were nominated, not elected).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Goal ladder:
  - 1885-1906: LTD SG (Limited Self-Government)
  - 1906-16/28: SG within the empire, Home Rule, Swaraj (1906 stressed)
  - 1916/28: Dominion Status
  - 1929: Purna Swaraj.
- ICA1909 delivered the 1885-1906 goal in 1909, after the INC had already moved up the ladder.

7.4.2 The Viceroy's Executive Council (VEC)

- The structure of the VEC remained GG + Commander-in-Chief (CIC) + 6 ordinary members, the same as under ICA1892 (the teacher: "same since 1874").

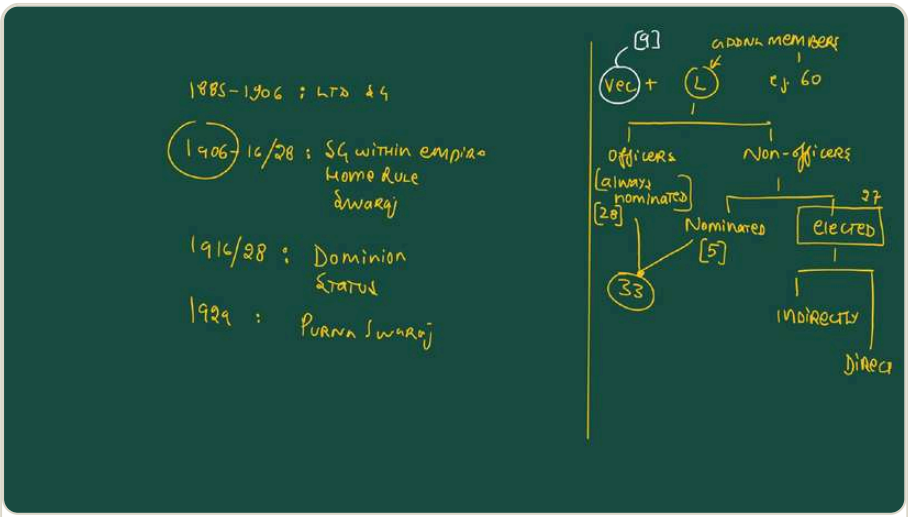
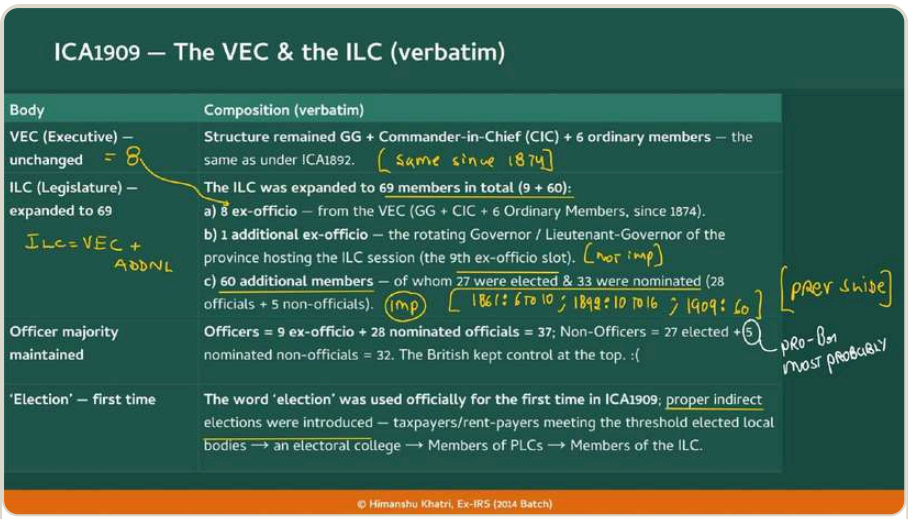
7.4.3 The Imperial Legislative Council (ILC): composition



The ILC tree: VEC plus additional members Lecture 33 slide 59



ICA1909: the VEC and the ILC Lecture 33 slide 60

- The ILC was expanded to 69 members in total (9 + 60). It was structured as follows:

NUMBER CARD · THE ILC UNDER ICA 1909

6 9 = 9 + 6 0

69 splits into 9 and 60; the 60 splits into 27 and 33; the officials win 37 to 32.

69 members of the ILC in total

9 8 ex-officio from the VEC plus 1 rotating Governor or Lt-Governor

60 additional members: 27 elected and 33 nominated (28 officials and 5 non-officials)

37 v 32officials (9 + 28) against non-officials (27 + 5)

Part	Members
a) 8 ex-officio members	Drawn from the VEC (GG + CIC + 6 Ordinary Members, since 1874)
b) 1 additional ex-officio member	The rotating Governor or Lieutenant-Governor of the province where the ILC session was held, so the 9th ex-officio slot changed with the location of the session
c) 60 additional members	27 elected and 33 nominated (28 officials + 5 non-officials)

- Result: an Officer majority was maintained at the Centre.
- Officers = 9 ex-officio + 28 nominated officials = 37.
- Non-Officers = 27 elected + 5 nominated non-officials = 32.
- The British were not giving up control at the top.
- The word 'election' was used officially for the first time in ICA1909.
- Proper indirect elections were introduced:

- Taxpayers and rent payers who met threshold criteria elected local bodies
- The local bodies elected an electoral college from among themselves
- The electoral college elected Members of PLCs, who elected Members of the ILC.

The indirect election chain (the teacher's board, slide 61)

- Rent / tax payers (who meet the income threshold) elect
- Local bodies
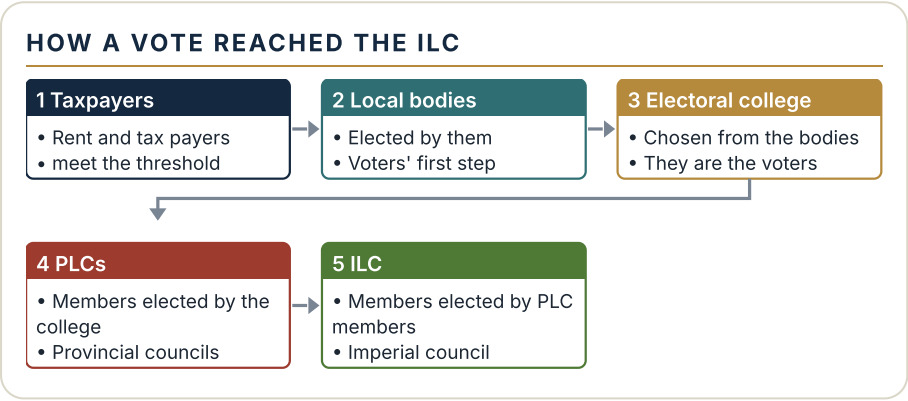
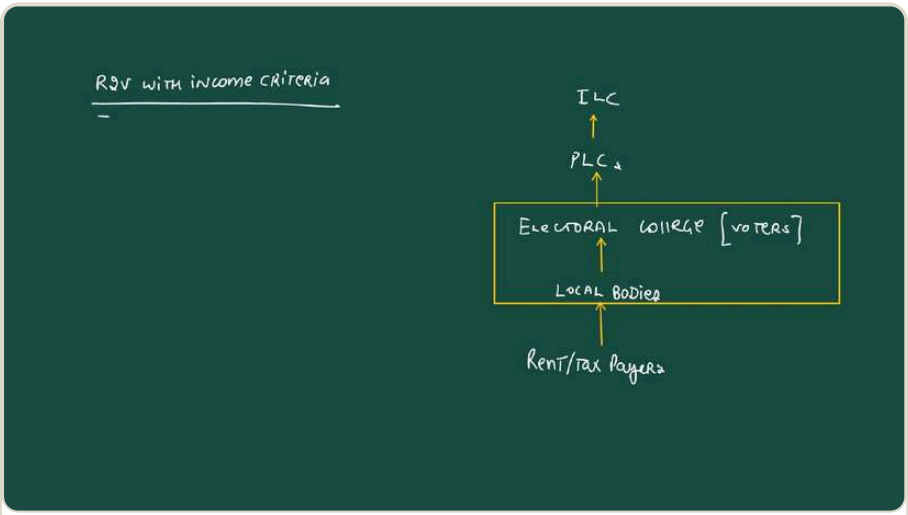
- Electoral college (the local bodies and the college are boxed together: the college is the voters)
- PLCs (Members of the Provincial Legislative Councils)
- ILC (Members of the Imperial Legislative Council)





Right to vote with income criteria: voters to ILC Lecture 33 slide 61

TEACHER'S BOARD

- ILC = VEC + additional members (e.g. 60).
- VEC side [9], "= 8" ex-officio from the VEC, plus the rotating one ("[not imp]").
- The 60 additional split into Officers 28 (always nominated) and Non-officers: Nominated 5, Elected 27. 28 + 5 = 33 nominated.
- "(imp)": the 27 elected + 33 nominated split, so learn the numbers.
- The 5 nominated non-officials: "PRO-Br" "MOST PROBABLY" (partly unclear).
- "[1861:
  - 6 to 10
  - 1892: 10 to 16
  - 1909: 60]" compares additional members across the three Acts (use 6 to 12 for 1861; Section 7.1)
- Elected: unreserved seats indirectly, Muslim reserved seats directly (Section 7.4.6).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source conflict:
  - 1861 range. This board writes "1861: 6 to 10"
  - the hallmarks board and Chapter 25 give 6 to 12.
- The 1892 range 10 to 16 matches both.
- Treat "6 to 10" as a slip.

7.4.4 Provincial Legislative Councils (PLCs)

- For the first time, a non-official majority was introduced, but only in the PLCs, not in the ILC.
- However, most non-official members were nominated, not elected.
- (Nominated non-officials are chosen by the government, not by the people: the difference between a government selecting a friendly face and the people actually electing their representative.)
- Bengal exception: the Bengal PLC got an elected majority, the first province to have this.
- But 4 of those elected seats were reserved for European Businesses.

7.4.5 Indians in the Executive: a first

- For the first time, Indians were inducted into executive branches.
- One Indian entered the VEC, the first Indian in the Viceroy's Executive Council: Satyendra Prasanna Sinha (S.P. Sinha), Law Member.
- (An Indian as Minister was new.)
- Two Indians had already been appointed to the Secretary of State's India Council in London in August 1907: K.G. Gupta and Syed Hussain Bilgrami.

- This was a precursor action, not a provision of ICA1909 itself, but it led to an Indian presence in the London administration for the first time.

> Stressed: "One Indian," "entered the VEC," "S.P. Sinha as Law Member," "the first Indian." August 1907 row: "Not Imp": learn Sinha, skip Gupta and Bilgrami (though they appear in the summary card, so know them once).

7.4.6 The Muslim separate electorate: communal appeasement

- For the first time, separate electorates for Muslims were introduced, in the ILC, PLCs and local bodies.
- In the ILC, 8 of the 27 elected seats were reserved for Muslims: about 30% of the elected seats.
- Muslim population in India was about 20%.
- The INC's own 1889 Minority Clause had asked for minority reservation proportional to population, that is 20% for Muslims.
- The extra 10% beyond the population share was pure appeasement politics.
- Due to separate electorates, only Muslims could vote in Muslim reserved seats.
- However, Muslims also had the right to vote in general (unreserved) seats, so they were not excluded from unreserved constituencies.
- Muslims effectively had a double advantage: they could influence both their own reserved seats and the unreserved seats.
- Compare with today's India: reservation exists for Scheduled Castes (SCs) in Parliament and state legislatures, but with joint electorates: non-SC voters also vote in SC-reserved seats.
- What ICA1909 gave Muslims was institutionally far more separatist.
- The conceptual difference is crucial. Reservation with Joint Electorates = Candidate of the People, For the People, By a Community.
- Reservation with Separate Electorates = Candidate of a Group, For a Group, By a Group.
- Country = Sum of Constituencies: thus today it is our Constituencies and tomorrow it is Our Pakistan.

JOINT AGAINST SEPARATE ELECTORATES

- The right to vote (R2Vote) was linked to income criteria.

- The income threshold was set lower for Muslims than for other communities, making it easier for Muslims to qualify.
- A mix of direct and indirect elections:
    - Unreserved seats = the first proper indirect elections
    - Muslim reserved seats = the first direct elections (but only for Muslim seats).

MNEMONIC · MUSLIM SEPARATE ELECTORATE: THE FAVOURS

In 1909 the British took the Muslim SIDE.

S Seats: 8 of 27 elected ILC seats, about 30% against about 20%

I Income: a lower income threshold for the right to vote

D Double vote: Muslim reserved seats plus the general seats

E Elections direct: the first direct elections, but only in Muslim seats

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- (Compare: ICA1892 had used the word "selection," a fake indirect election where bodies nominated rather than elected.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "EXTRA 10% = appeasement": 8 of 27 seats (about 30%) against 20% of the population.
- The 1889 Minority Clause (the INC itself had asked for the proportional 20%) shows the extra 10% is the British gift.
- Also stressed: "LOWER for Muslims" (income threshold) and "the 1st direct elections (but only for Muslim seats)." Handout formula: "of the m, for the m, by the m" (Joint against Separate: Section 4.2).

7.4.7 Powers of the legislature

Power	ICA1892	ICA1909
Budget (BD)	Discussion allowed, no voting	Members could vote on individual items of the Budget, but not on the Budget as a whole (voting to reject the whole Budget would amount to a No Confidence Motion, which the British would not allow)
Questions	No supplementary questions	Members could ask supplementary questions, but only the member who asked the original

		question could ask the supplementary
Resolutions	The opposition could not move resolutions and no voting on government resolutions	Members could initiate and pass resolutions, but the government was under no obligation to follow them: recommendatory only

7.4.8 Powers of the executive

- The government retained the power to reject or disqualify any candidate it considered politically dangerous (nationalists).
- In 1892 the British had the power of selection, choosing who could stand
- By 1909 they had the power of rejection, removing those they did not want
- Either way, nationalist leaders could be kept out of the councils.
- The Executive remained non-responsible to the Legislature.
- The Viceroy's powers continued as before.
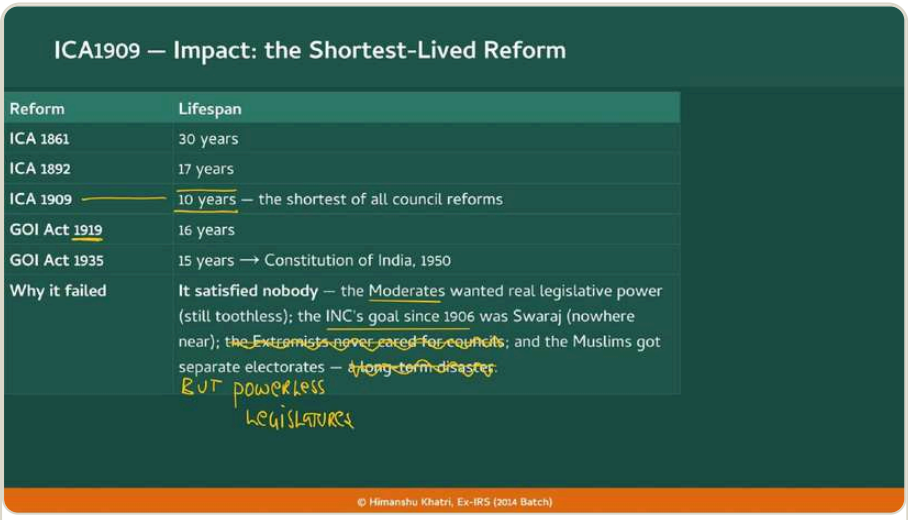
- This was not even remotely close to the position of a ceremonial President in a democracy.

7.5 Impact of ICA1909

Was ICA1909 a success? No, and by almost every measure it failed.

7.5.1 The shortest-lived reform



ICA1909: impact, the shortest-lived reform Lecture 33 slide 66

Reform	Lifespan
ICA 1861	30 years
ICA 1892	17 years
ICA 1909	10 years: the shortest of all council reforms
GOI Act 1919	16 years
GOI Act 1935	15 years, then the Constitution of India 1950

- ICA1909 is the most short-lived of all the council reforms. It satisfied nobody:
- The Moderates wanted real legislative power
- what they got was still toothless.
- The INC's goal since 1906 was Swaraj, and ICA1909 was nowhere near it.
- The Extremists had never cared for council reforms.
- The Muslims had been given separate electorates, which planted its own long-term disaster.

MNEMONIC · WHY NOBODY WANTED ICA 1909 (THE TEACHER'S FOUR REASONS)

S P A M

An Act nobody asked for: it was SPAM.

S Swaraj: the INC's goal since 1906 was already higher

P Powerless legislatures (the teacher's 'BUT')

A Separate electorates given to the Muslims (the A sits inside separAte)

M Moderates: wanted real legislative power and got a toothless council

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. The teacher struck 'Extremists never cared' and 'long-term disaster' from the handout's list.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Dropped: "the Extremists never cared for councils" and "a long-term disaster." Added: "BUT powerless legislatures." Why it failed: (1) the Moderates wanted real power, (2) the goal was already Swaraj, (3) the Muslims got separate electorates, (4) the legislatures were powerless.
- For the PYQ: "10 years" and "1919" (the Act that replaced it).

HANDOUT ALERT

Source conflict: reasons for failure. The handout keeps all four reasons, including "Extremists never cared for councils" and "a long-term disaster"; the teacher strikes both and adds "BUT powerless legislatures." Use the teacher's four points (Moderates, Swaraj, separate electorates, powerless legislatures); "long-term disaster" is covered in Section 7.5.2.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1999 (UPSC tested this). Q: "The most short lived of all of Britain's constitutional experiments in India was the ..." Answer (C) Indian Councils Act of 1909.
- Wrong options:
  - (A) ICA 1861 (the longest, 30 years)
  - (B) ICA 1892 (17 years)
  - (D) GOI Act 1919 (16 years)

7.5.2 The long shadow: foundation of Partition

- The most consequential impact of ICA1909 was not what it gave but what it planted.
- Separate electorates for Muslims, introduced here for the first time in the ILC, PLCs and local bodies, laid the direct foundation for the partition of India in 1947.
- When you tell a community that they must vote separately, you are telling them they are separate.
- Over decades this institutional separation hardened into political reality.

ICA1909: the long shadow and Benevolent Despotism Lecture 33 slide 67

- Minto 05-10 became known as the "Father of Communal Electorate", a title history has not handed down with pride.

R Representative (Limited Self-) Government introduced

E Election: the word used officially, with proper indirect elections

N Non-official majority, but only in the PLCs

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

7.5.3 Benevolent Despotism, again

- Since there was no responsible government, ICA1909 produced what we can call Benevolent Despotism.
- "Benevolent" because ICA1909 was more democratic than ICA1892: more participation, more discussion rights, more elections.
- "Despotism" because real power remained entirely with the British Executive, answerable to nobody in India.
- We saw the same phrase for ICA1861: "Despotism Controlled from Home" was the core feature then.
- Nearly five decades later, the core had not changed: the packaging had become slightly friendlier, but the structure of power was the same.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Foundation row:
  - "10 to 16 ADDNL" then "60 '": additional members rose from 10 to 16 in 1892 to 60 in 1909
  - Size grew sharply, power did not
- Benevolent Despotism: "Better Than 1892" (benevolent) and "= DICTATORSHIP, No Resp GOVT" (despotism).

- Statement 1: the 1919 Act made separate electorates watertight and extended them to Sikhs, Anglo-Indians and Christians.
- Statement 2: it fitted British Divide-and-Rule against a nationalism that had just united Hindus and Muslims (Lucknow 1916).
- Statement 3: the Depressed Classes got nominated seats, so every community had a favour to rally around.
- Other options:
  - (a) stops at statement 1
  - (b) drops statement 1, the core (the Muslim separate electorate retained and made watertight)
  - (c) drops statement 3

- Simla Deputation 1906: Partition kept, population-proportional seats, Separate Electorates
- ML1906 and its London branch 1908: the lobby for separate electorates

Chapter 25: Indian Councils Act, 1861

The first of the council series in the teacher's hallmarks board; 1861 gave a grain of popular representation, six to twelve additional members and the Portfolio System; ICA 1909 is the third step in that chain and is compared with it on the lifespan slide (30 years against 10).

Chapter 28: Indian Councils Act of 1892 (Lord Cross Act)

The immediate predecessor: selection not election, 10 to 16 additional members, a Budget that could be discussed; every ICA 1909 power in Section 7.4.7 is a step beyond ICA 1892.

Chapter 26: Moderates in INC: Ideology, Demands, Negatives

ICA 1909 is called the second failure of the Moderate approach; the Moderates' "mouth watered" at Morley's hint and they feared Extremist agitation would derail the reform.

Chapter 29: The Extremists and the Swadeshi Movement (1905-11)

The Swadeshi storm is why the reform came, the Hindu symbolism of that movement alienated Muslims, and the Extremists were expelled at Surat 1907; the handout lists ML1906 as a negative impact of Swadeshi.

Chapter 30: Revolutionary Activities and Repression of Extremists

Revolutionary Activities grew from 1908; the British ran repression and reform on two tracks, and ICA 1909 was the reform track.

Chapter 24: INC 1885 & English Political Reformers

Sir Syed's reason for the Mohammadan Educational Congress was that the INC was a Hindu organisation; the INC's 1886 rule of only political issues is why it did not condemn the Cow Killing Riots.

Chapter 33: Home Rule League Movement (1916-18) & Lucknow Pact (1916)

The Lucknow 1916 pact is the nationalism that "had just united Hindus and Muslims" in the Prelims 2026 answer slide; it is the result the British tried to prevent with DnR.

Chapter 34: Government of India Act, 1919

The 1919 Act retained and extended separate electorates (the Prelims 2026 question shown in Section 8) and replaced ICA 1909 after 10 years.

Chapter 37: Champaran, Ahmedabad, Kheda, Rowlatt Satyagraha and Gandhian Era (1920+)

The Nagpur 1920 reorganisation of the PCCs on linguistic lines ends the 13-year head start of the Muslim League's provincial structures.

Ghadar Movement (1913-15)

Class slides + handout | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 1998, 2005 (2), 2014, 2022 | Mains: none

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Leader of the Ghadar Party = Lala Hardayal (Prelims 1998); 1st President = Sohan Singh Bhakna; HQ = Yugantar Ashram, San Francisco
- Komagata Maru = a ship chartered by Baba Gurdit Singh (Prelims 2005); 376 passengers; Budge Budge Riot Sept 1914, about 20 killed
- Ghadar revolutionaries were based in North America (Prelims 2005); The Ghadr = revolutionary association with HQ at San Francisco (Prelims 2014)
- Actively associated with Ghadar: Rash Behari Bose only, not Barindra Kumar Ghosh, not Jogesh Chandra Chatterjee (Prelims 2022)
- Three plots: Punjab mutiny (21 Feb 1915), Pacific arms plot (Apr to Jul 1915), Christmas Day plot (Dec 1915); Rodda heist Aug 1914; Balasore Sept 1915
- Defence of India Act 1915 and the First Lahore Conspiracy Case (Apr to Sept 1915) crushed it; do not confuse with the Second Lahore Case (1929-30)

MAINS HOOKS

- Why did the Ghadar Movement fail even though it was global? Skeleton: intelligence and policing of the seas, sepoys did not rise (Peel Commission impact), uneven western education and INM, pro-British Mahants, pre-emptive strikes, Defence of India Act 1915
- What did it achieve? Skeleton: a generation of secular martyrs, inspiration (Sarabha, Bhagat Singh), first use of the diaspora for armed revolution, Hindu-Sikh-Muslim unity, survivors in Kisan Sabha, Communist and Akali movements
- Link it to Swadeshi revolutionary strand, propaganda of the deed (Bakunin) and WWI opportunity

Ghadar = a secular, republican, diaspora revolt (1913-15) that fell to intelligence, sepoy indifference and emergency law.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Punjabi NRIs in the US and Canada were shut out by racist rules, so they turned to revolution, inspired by the Swadeshi revolutionaries. They built a press campaign abroad (Free Hindustan, Swadesh Sevak, The Ghadr) and a party in San Francisco in 1913, guided by Lala Hardayal's anarchist ideas. The Komagata Maru humiliation and the outbreak of WWI gave them the trigger and the opening, so they planned three plots with German help: a Punjab mutiny, a Pacific arms shipment, and a Christmas Day rising. British intelligence and the Defence of India Act crushed all three, but the martyrs, from Bagha Jatin to Kartar Singh Sarabha, inspired the next generation.

1. Doors close on Indian emigrants. Many Punjabis went to Canada and the US for land and jobs; many were ex-soldiers of the British Empire. Canada allowed entry only after a direct journey from India (rule since 1908), and the US barred Indians from buying land. Britain feared that they would pick up ideas of liberty, democracy and a republic.

   → So anger at racism had nowhere to go but politics.

2. Swadeshi's revolutionaries light the way. The revolutionary strand of the Swadeshi Movement (1905-11) inspired them, above all the Delhi Conspiracy Case 1912, which targeted Viceroy Hardinge 10-16. Revolutionary action was seen as the inspiration to copy.

   → So they began with the weapon nearest to hand: the press.

3. A press campaign abroad. Tarak Nath Das wrote Free Hindustan (1907) in Vancouver; G.D. Kumar wrote Swadesh Sevak (1909) in Canada and asked Indian troops to revolt. In 1913 the Ghadar Party was set up in San Francisco with Sohan Singh Bhakna as 1st President and its HQ called Yugantar Ashram. Lala Hardayal launched the weekly The Ghadr.

   → But anger needed an idea, and Hardayal supplied one.

4. Bakunin and the deed. Hardayal founded the Bakunin Institute in 1912, a monastery of anarchism. Bakunin taught that the State is an instrument of oppression and must be destroyed; propaganda of the deed says that acts ignite where words only educate. Hardayal married this to the grievances of Punjabi labourers, peasants and ex-soldiers.

   → Now a trigger was needed, and it came by sea.

5. Komagata Maru, 1914. Baba Gurdit Singh chartered the Japanese ship Komagata Maru from Hong Kong to challenge Canada's direct-journey rule. 376 passengers, mostly Punjabi Sikhs, reached Vancouver in May 1914 and were refused landing. Forced out in July, the ship reached Budge Budge in September, where police firing killed about 20.

   → And just then the world went to war.

6. WWI opens the window. WWI began on 28 July 1914, and Britain was stretched on many fronts with fewer British Indian Army units in India. The returning Komagata Maru passengers were treated as dangerous enemy operatives under wartime conditions.

   → So the revolutionaries went looking for guns.

7. The Rodda heist. In August 1914 Bengal revolutionaries, helped by insider Shrish Chandra Mitra and Haridas Datta, diverted one of seven bullock carts of German arms from the Calcutta Customs House. The haul was 50 Mauser C96 pistols and 46,000 rounds, and not a shot was fired.

   → Now the guns met the grand plan.

8. Three plots of the Hindu-German Conspiracy. Plot 1: RB Bose's Punjab mutiny set for 21 Feb 1915. Plot 2: the Pacific arms plot (Apr to Jul 1915), 30,000 rifles via the SS Maverick. Plot 3: the Christmas Day plot of Dec 1915 in Bengal under Bagha Jatin.

   → But the British were already listening.

9 Intelligence crushes the plots. The Punjab mutiny was pre-empted, the arms ships were intercepted, and British intelligence cracked the Christmas plot's codes. Bagha Jatin and four comrades were cornered at Balasore in Sept 1915 and fought about 75 minutes with the Rodda Mausers until the ammunition ran out.

→ So the movement lost the fight but not the memory.

10 Repression and legacy. The Defence of India Act 1915 and the First Lahore Conspiracy Case destroyed the organisation in India. Kartar Singh Sarabha was hanged at 19 in Nov 1915, and the survivors carried on in Kisan, Communist and Akali movements.

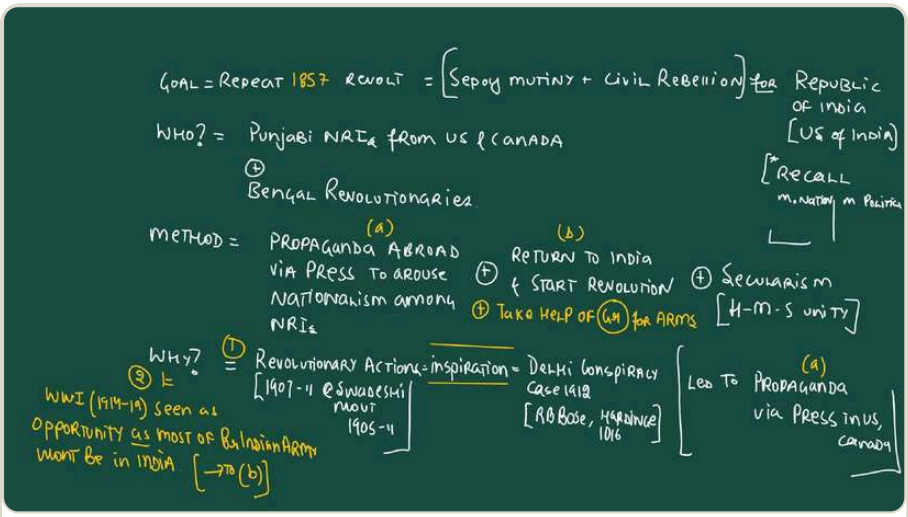
STORY LINK

Because Punjabi migrants were shut out abroad and inspired by Swadeshi revolutionaries, they planned to repeat 1857 from overseas. Ask: why did a global plan with German arms still fail?



Board: goal, who, method and why of Ghadar Lecture 32 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Goal = repeat the 1857 revolt = sepoy mutiny + civil rebellion for a Republic of India (board writes it as the US of India). Recall the Nation and Politics link.
- Who = Punjabi NRIs from the US and Canada plus Bengal revolutionaries.
- Method (a) propaganda abroad via the press to arouse nationalism among NRIs, (b) return to India and start the revolution, plus secularism (H-M-S unity), plus taking German help for arms.
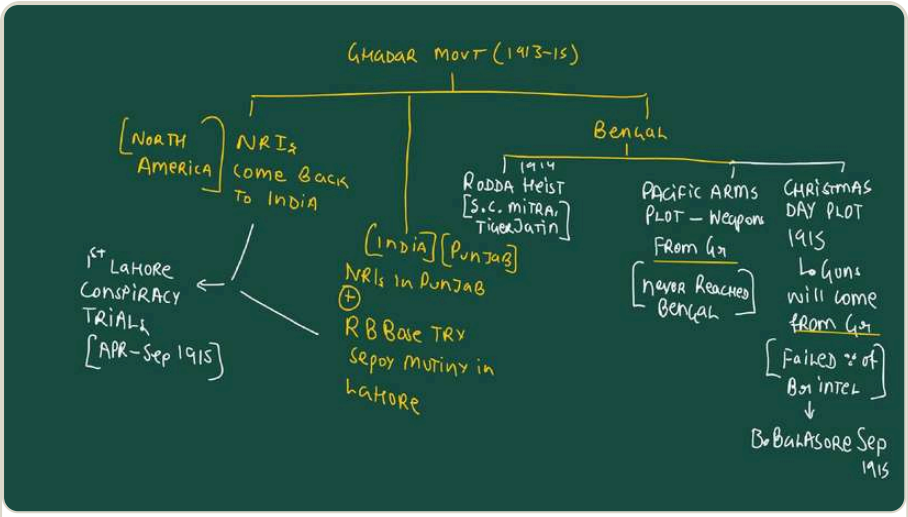
- Why (1) revolutionary action as inspiration: Swadeshi 1905-11 (revolutionaries from 1907-11) and the Delhi Conspiracy Case 1912 (RB Bose, Hardinge 10-16), which led to propaganda via the press in the US and Canada. (2) WWI (1914-19) seen as an opportunity as most of the British Indian Army would not be in India; this links to method (b).



Board tree: North America, Punjab and Bengal branches Lecture 32 slide 25

TEACHER'S BOARD

- North America: NRIs come back to India; this leads to the 1st Lahore Conspiracy Trials (Apr to Sep 1915).
- India / Punjab: NRIs in Punjab plus RB Bose try a sepoy mutiny in Lahore.
- Bengal has three parts: the 1914 Rodda heist (S.C. Mitra, Tiger Jatin); the Pacific arms plot (weapons from Germany, never reached Bengal); the Christmas Day plot 1915 (guns to come from Germany, failed because of British intelligence), ending at Balasore, Sep 1915.

1 · The Ghadar Movement

STORY LINK

Because British rule seemed unshakeable from inside, exiles chose to start the fire abroad. Ask: what did the two stages of the plan look like?

- 1.1 A revolutionary attempt by Punjabi NRIs and Bengal revolutionaries to overthrow British rule and set up a secular Republic of India, i.e. Purna Swaraj.
- 1.2 Method: first, a press campaign overseas; then physically return to India to repeat a 1857-style revolt, i.e. causing disaffection in the army plus a civil rebellion.
- Two-stage plan
    - Stage one: build the fire abroad through narrative
    - Stage two: light it inside India through arms and soldiers

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Teacher's board: the plan is two-stage, (a) propaganda abroad and (b) return to India and start the revolution. The goal is the republic, the mass base is sepoys plus civilians.

2 · Drivers of the Ghadar Movement

> STORY LINK
> Because migrants were insulted abroad and heard of revolutionaries at home, two drivers pushed them. Ask: which reason is about Swadeshi and which about migration rules?

Reason 1: Inspiration from the Swadeshi Movement

- Ghadar activists were directly inspired by the Swadeshi Movement, particularly its revolutionary strand.
- Especially the Delhi Conspiracy Case 1912, in which Viceroy Hardinge 10-16 was targeted.

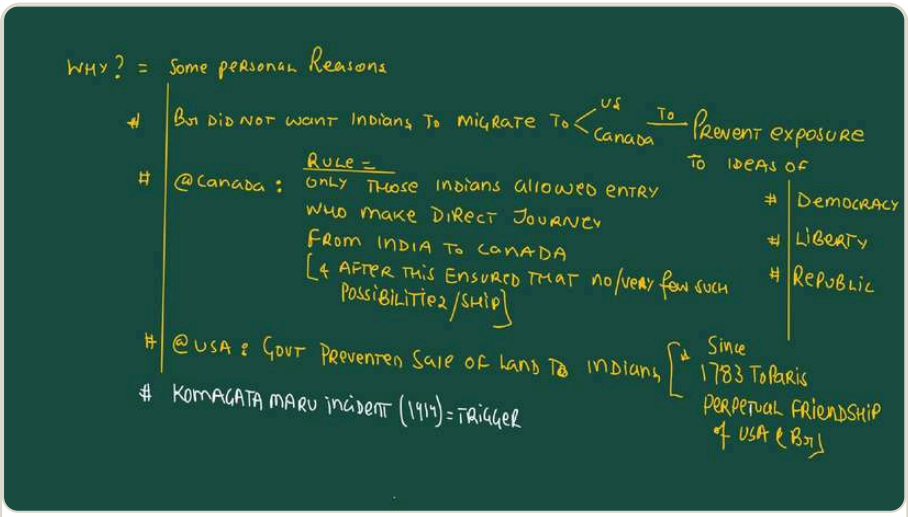
Reason 2: British policy of restricting Indian migration



Board: personal reasons, Canada rule, USA land ban, Komagata Maru trigger Lecture 32 slide 3

- Indians had migrated to Canada and the US for land and employment. Many were ex-soldiers who had served the very British Empire that was now shutting doors on them.
- Britain feared that Indians would be exposed to ideas of liberty, democracy and socialism.
- i) Canada: restricted Indian entry since 1908; only those who made a direct journey from India were allowed to enter.
- ii) USA: Indians faced racism and were legally barred from buying land. The 1783 Treaty of Paris between the US and Britain established perpetual friendship, hence the US respected British interests.
- iii) The irony: the same British government was sending Indians as plantation labourers to Fiji in the South Pacific Ocean. Tarak Nath Das highlighted this in Free Hindustan (1907) from Vancouver: Britain sends Indians to work on plantations but bars their entry into North America.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why (personal reasons): Britain did not want Indians to migrate to the US or Canada, to prevent exposure to ideas of democracy, liberty and republic (board uses these three words; the handout says democracy, liberty and socialism).
- Canada rule: only Indians who make a direct journey from India to Canada are allowed in, and after this very few such ships existed. USA: government prevented sale of land to Indians, since the 1783 Treaty of Paris, the perpetual friendship of the US and Britain.
- Komagata Maru incident (1914) = trigger.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout says Britain feared liberty, democracy and socialism; the board lists democracy, liberty, republic. Learn both; for the goal, the board's republic matches the Republic of India aim.

3 · Press Campaign Builds Narrative & Awareness

STORY LINK

Because the plan needed minds before muskets, the press came first. Ask: who started, and who is NOT the first President?

Board: press campaign 1907 to 1913 and the Bhakna note Lecture 32 slide 9

Year	Who and what
1907	Tarak Nath Das, Free Hindustan, Vancouver; exposed the plantation-versus-migration irony
1909	G.D. Kumar, Swadesh Sevak (Gurmukhi weekly), Canada; directly asked Indian troops to revolt
1913	Ghadar Party set up by NRIs in the US; Sohan Singh Bhakna = 1st President. HQ in San Francisco = Yugantar Ashram (same terminology as the secret society of Bengal)
1913	Lala Hardayal, professor of Sanskrit and Indian philosophy in San Francisco, set up the weekly The Ghadr. He had already praised the attack on Hardinge 10-16 (Viceroy 1910-16) in the Delhi Conspiracy Case 1912

- 3.5 The party drew members from Indian immigrants: farmers, labourers, students and ex-soldiers, mostly Punjabis.
- 3.6 The word Ghadar means revolt or mutiny: a deliberate invocation of 1857.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: these are the revolutionaries in Swadeshi (1907+), i.e. the Swadeshi revolutionary strand reaches abroad.
- Sohan Singh Bhakna = 1st President, not Lala Hardayal.
- Name link: Anushilan Samiti 1909, then 1906 Yugantar (board), the Bengal samiti and Yugantar names behind the San Francisco ashram. Check your notebook for the exact sequence.

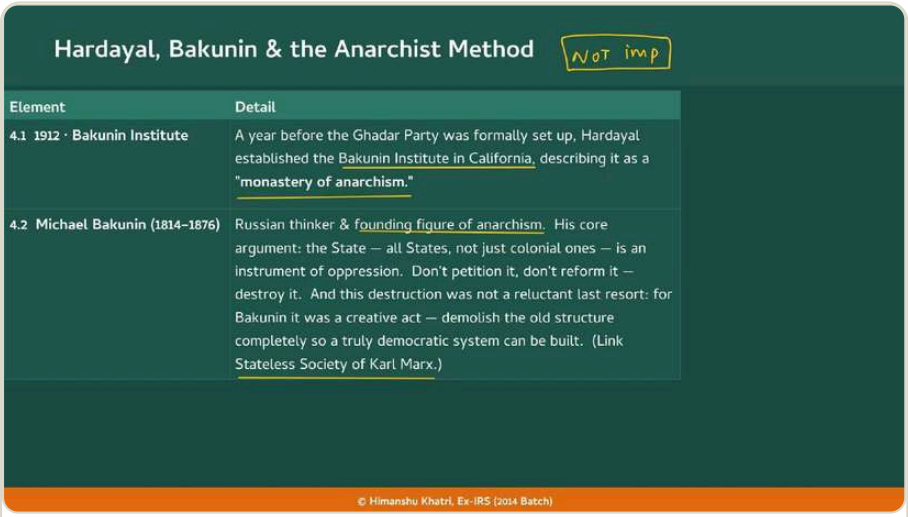
4 · Lala Hardayal, Bakunin & the Anarchist Method

STORY LINK

Because anger needs a method, Hardayal borrowed one from European anarchism. Ask: what does 'propaganda of the deed' mean?



Slide: Bakunin Institute; teacher marks it not important Lecture 32 slide 11

- 4.1 In 1912, a year before the party was formally set up, Hardayal established the Bakunin Institute in California (Oakland), a monastery of anarchism.
- 4.2 Michael Bakunin (1814-1876): Russian thinker and founding figure of anarchism. Core argument: the State, all States and not just colonial ones, is an instrument of oppression. Do not petition it, do not reform it: destroy it. For Bakunin destruction was a creative act: demolish the old structure completely so a truly democratic system can be built (link: Stateless Society of Karl Marx).
- 4.3 Key anarchist concept: Propaganda of the Deed.

- i) Idea: political actions, including violence and armed mutiny, are more powerful than any speech or pamphlet. Words educate. Acts ignite. The Delhi Conspiracy Case 1912, a public attempt on Hardinge 10-16 in the capital, was this kind of act.
- ii) In action: the plan to smuggle arms, cause army disaffection and trigger civil rebellion simultaneously was propaganda of the deed in action.
- 4.4 The rank-and-file: mostly Punjabi immigrant labourers, peasants and ex-soldiers; driven by fierce anti-colonial nationalism, raw anger at racial discrimination in North America, and the egalitarian traditions of the Sikh faith.
- 4.5 Hardayal's unique role: he took this ground-level anger and gave it a method, marrying European anarchist strategy to their grievances. Result: intellectual radicalism plus mass fury, which is why it worried the British so much.
- The pattern (western-educated intellectual gives the framework, workers and ex-soldiers give the muscle) recurs in the Russian Revolution 1917 and the Irish Easter Rising 1916.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board on Bakunin Institute, propaganda of the deed, the rank-and-file and Hardayal's role: not important. Revise lightly; the facts matter only for the story.

5 · The Ghadr Newspaper: Propaganda of the Deed in Print

STORY LINK

Because the party needed a voice that crossed oceans, The Ghadr went to print. Ask: what did every front page carry?

Slide: The Ghadr front page and content; teacher marks it important
Lecture 32 slide 14

- 5.1 The Ghadr was the most visible product of this method. Every front page carried Angrezi Raj ka kachcha Chithha, an exposé of British imperialism. It:
- i) Summarised all INM demands and grievances so far.
- ii) Published Veer Savarkar's Indian War of Independence 1909 in parts.
- iii) Carried poems titled Ghadr Di Goonj promoting patriotism and unity of all religions (echoing 1857 Hindu-Muslim unity).
- iv) Criticised the loyalist role of Punjabis in 1857 (they had helped the British suppress the revolt). Message: do penance, improve the past mistake.
- v) Final call: 31 crore Indians should rise against 1.2 lakh British and repeat the 1857 revolt. (Yugantar had given a similar call after the Barisal Conference repression 1906.) The masthead carried the date of the 1857 revolt.
- 5.2 Published in Urdu, Punjabi, Hindi and sometimes English.
- 5.3 Smuggled into India and distributed among soldiers and peasants in Punjab.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Teacher's board: this section is important (the slide carries an imp tag). Key hooks: the front-page title, Savarkar's book in parts, Ghadr Di Goonj, the penance message, 31 crore vs 1.2 lakh, languages and circulation among soldiers and peasants.

6 · The Komagata Maru Incident (1914)

STORY LINK

Because Canada's rule was built to exclude Indians, a ship was sent to break it. Ask: where did it start, where did it end?

- 6.1 Before the Ghadarites could act inside India, this incident turbocharged their anger.
- 6.2 Canada rule: only Indians making an unbroken direct journey from India could enter.

- 6.3 Baba Gurdit Singh chartered a Japanese ship called Komagata Maru from Hong Kong in 1914 to challenge Canada's racist immigration laws. 376 passengers, mostly Punjabi Sikhs, sailed from Hong Kong to Vancouver.

Timeline: Komagata Maru from April to September 1914 Lecture 32 slide 17

September 1914

September 1914
Budge Budge Riot: passengers resisted, police fired, about 20

- 6.6 The incident radicalised many Punjabis and fed directly into Ghadar recruitment: it proved Indians were humiliated both abroad and at home.
- The direct journey rule was a legal mechanism to keep Indians out of Canada, enforced by a country that simultaneously called Indians British subjects.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Teacher's board: the Komagata Maru is the trigger of Ghadar action (1914). Hooks on the slide: Baba Gurdit Singh, Japanese ship, Hong Kong to Vancouver, 376 passengers, Shore Committee, two-month standoff, return, Budge Budge, about 20 killed.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (Prelims 2005): Komagata Maru = (c) a naval ship on voyage to Canada. Wrong options: (a) a political party based in Taiwan, (b) a peasant communist leader of China, (d) a Chinese villager where Mao Tse Tung began his long march.

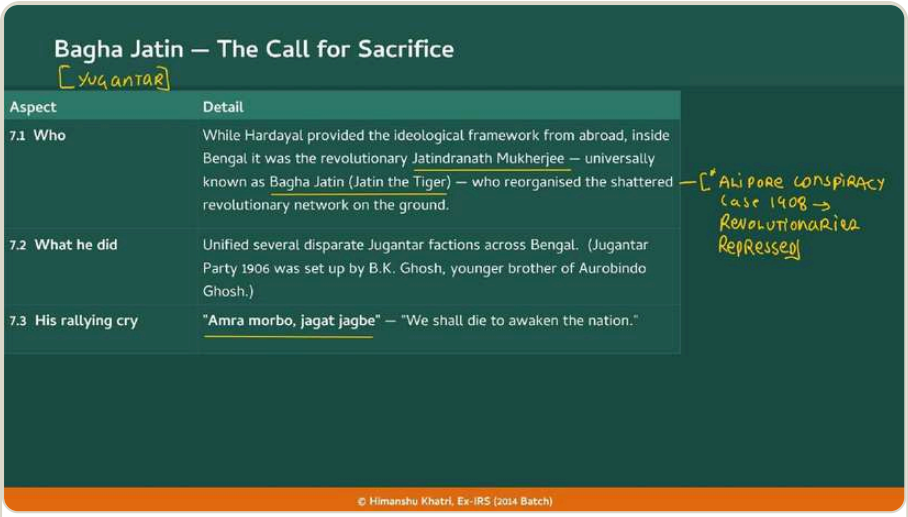
7 · Bagha Jatin: The Call for Sacrifice

STORY LINK

Because the Bengal networks had been shattered, a leader had to stitch them together. Ask: who, and what was his cry?



Slide: Bagha Jatin and the Alipore Case note Lecture 32 slide 18

- 7.1 While Hardayal gave the ideological framework from abroad, inside Bengal Jatindranath Mukherjee, known as Bagha Jatin (Jatin the Tiger), reorganised the shattered revolutionary network on the ground.
- 7.2 He unified several disparate Jugantar factions across Bengal. (Jugantar Party 1906 was set up by B.K. Ghosh, younger brother of Aurobindo Ghosh.)
- 7.3 Rallying cry: Amra morbo, jagat jagbe, meaning 'We shall die to awaken the nation.'

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Yugantar (Jugantar) is the Bengal body behind Jatin.
- Network was shattered because of the Alipore Conspiracy Case 1908, which repressed the revolutionaries.

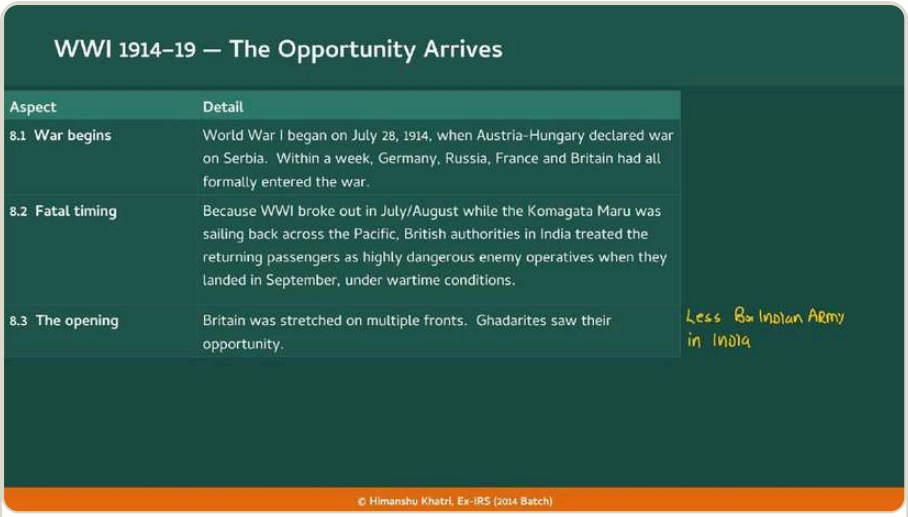
8 · WWI 1914–19: The Opportunity Arrives

STORY LINK

Because Britain went to war, India's garrison thinned out. Ask: why were the Komagata Maru passengers treated as enemies?



Slide: WWI opening; fewer British Indian Army in India Lecture 32 slide 19

- 8.1 WWI began on 28 July 1914, when Austria-Hungary declared war on Serbia. Within a week Germany, Russia, France and Britain had all formally entered.
- 8.2 WWI broke out in July/August while the Komagata Maru was sailing back across the Pacific, so British authorities in India treated the returning passengers as highly dangerous enemy operatives when they landed in September under wartime conditions.
- 8.3 Britain was stretched on multiple fronts; Ghadarites saw their opportunity.

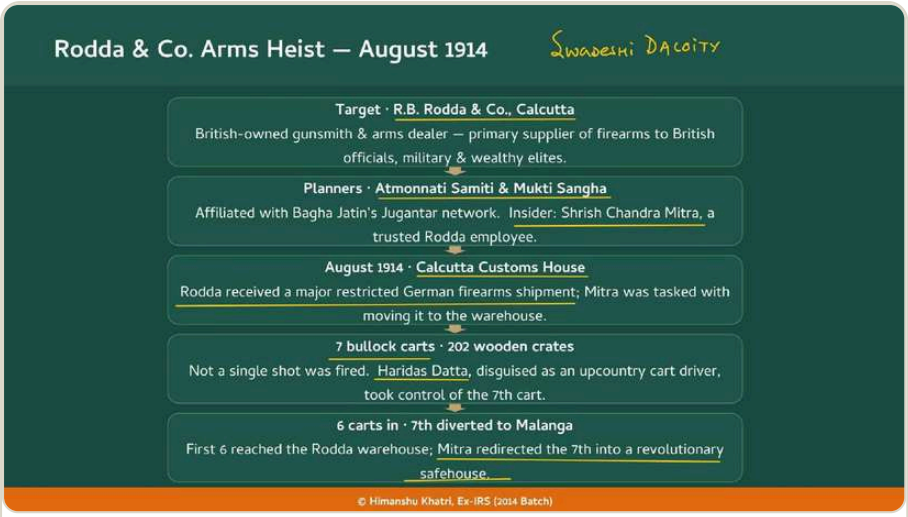
TEACHER'S BOARD

Teacher's board: less British Indian Army in India is the opening, as set out in the why of the first board (WWI 1914-19).

9 · Rodda & Co. Arms Heist (August 1914)

STORY LINK

Because revolution needs weapons, Bengal's revolutionaries took them from a gunsmith. Ask: how many carts, and where did the 7th go?



Slide: Rodda heist step by step; teacher calls it Swadeshi dacoity Lecture 32 slide 20

- 9.1 The colonial Statesman newspaper called it the greatest daylight robbery in the history of British India.
- 9.2 Target: R.B. Rodda & Co. (Calcutta), a prestigious British-owned gunsmith and arms dealer, primary supplier of firearms to British officials, the military and wealthy elites.
- 9.3 Planned by Atmonnati Samiti and Mukti Sangha (affiliated with Bagha Jatin's Jugantar network).
- 9.4 Insider: Shrish Chandra Mitra, a trusted Rodda employee.
- 9.5 August 1914: Rodda received a major restricted German firearms shipment at the Calcutta Customs House; Mitra was tasked with moving it to the Rodda warehouse.
- 9.6 Not a single shot was fired. Mitra went with 7 bullock carts to collect 202 wooden crates. Haridas Datta, disguised as an upcountry bullock-cart driver, took control of the 7th cart. The first 6 reached the Rodda warehouse; Mitra quietly redirected the 7th into the narrow lanes of Malanga straight into a revolutionary safehouse.
- 9.7 Stolen from that single cart: 50 Mauser C96 semi-automatic pistols (the famous Broomhandle) and 46,000 rounds of 7.63mm ammunition.
- Why the Mauser mattered: it came with a hollow wooden holster that attached to the grip, converting the pistol into a short-barrelled carbine, giving rapid-fire capability and range; in the hands of five revolutionaries it could pin down a police contingent.
- 9.8 Mitra fled Calcutta immediately and was never captured. The Mausers were distributed across the Jugantar network and used in almost every major political assassination and armed robbery in Bengal over the next decade, most famously at the Battle of Balasore (1915).

TEACHER'S BOARD

Teacher's board: the Rodda heist = Swadeshi dacoity. On the tree board it sits under Bengal as 1914 Rodda Heist (S.C. Mitra, Tiger Jatin).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the date table in the handout gives the heist as 26 August 1914; the section text says only August 1914. Use August 1914 unless asked for the day.

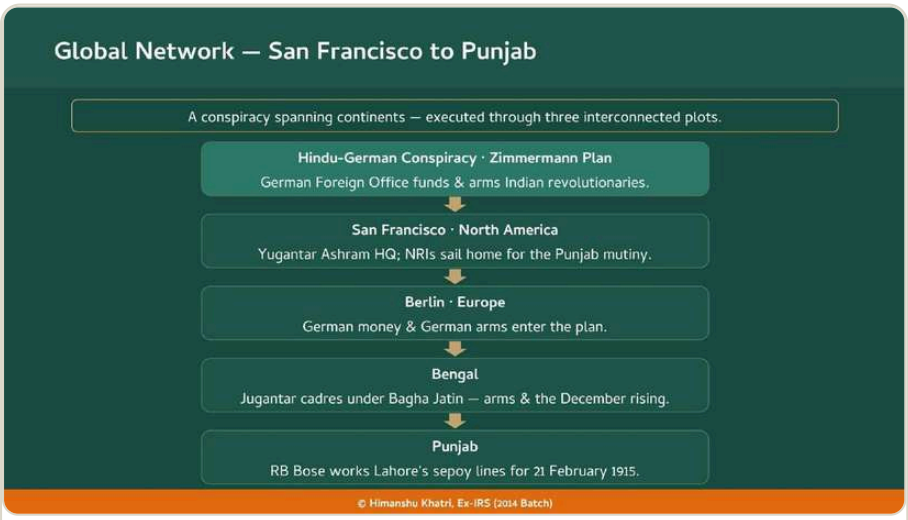
10 · Three Plots: Global Dimensions of the Ghadar Conspiracy

STORY LINK

Because guns and men were in place, the leaders linked three theatres into one plan. Ask: which plot was the main Ghadarite strategy?



Slide: San Francisco to Berlin to Bengal to Punjab Lecture 32 slide 22

- The Ghadar Movement was a global conspiracy across continents: San Francisco (Americas) to Berlin (Europe) to Bengal to Punjab (South Asia).
- It was largely driven by the Hindu-German Conspiracy (the Zimmermann Plan), a WWI strategy where the German Foreign Office sought to destabilise British India by funding and arming Indian revolutionaries.

- It was executed through three interconnected operational plots.

10.1 Plot 1: RB Bose's planned Punjab Mutiny (Feb 1915)

Slide: Bose in Lahore, 21 February 1915 and the PYQ facts Lecture 32 slide 24

- Plan: the primary Ghadarite strategy. Thousands of Ghadarite NRIs returned from North America to trigger a massive sepoy mutiny in Punjab and ignite civil rebellion.
- Key leader: Rash Behari Bose operated in Lahore to establish contact with the sepoys.
- Outcome: the mutiny was scheduled for 21 February 1915, but British intelligence had deeply infiltrated the movement. It was crushed pre-emptively, leading to the First Lahore Conspiracy trials.

10.2 Plot 2: Jugantar's Pacific Arms Plot (Apr to Jul 1915)

Slide: Pacific arms plot and the naval intelligence note Lecture 32 slide 26

- Plan: Germany financed a massive arms-smuggling operation to ship 30,000 rifles and ammunition from the United States to the eastern coast of India.
- Strategy: weapons to be delivered via the ship SS Maverick to Jugantar cadres to trigger a coordinated pan-Indian military mutiny.

- Outcome: the ships, including the Annie Larsen and SS Maverick, were intercepted by US and British authorities and the arsenal never reached the Indian coast.

10.3 Plot 3: Jugantar's Christmas Day Plot / Bengal Plot (Dec 1915)

- Plan: with the Punjab mutiny crushed and the Pacific arms intercepted, focus shifted to Bengal. A massive uprising in Calcutta on Christmas Day 1915, expecting a separate German arms delivery to land in the Bay of Bengal or the Sundarbans.
- Key leader: Jatindranath Mukherjee (Bagha Jatin) masterminded the Indian side.
- Outcome: British intelligence, strengthened significantly since the Police Act of 1861, cracked the communication codes. Using international double agents and the Indian CID, the British intercepted the network and fatally crushed the final leg of the Hindu-German Conspiracy.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board (Plot 2): add civil rebellion to the pan-Indian military mutiny; the ships were stopped by naval intelligence.
- Teacher's board (Plot 3): guns were to come from Germany; failed because of British intelligence, ending in the Balasore fight, Sept 1915.

10.4 The Martyr: Bagha Jatin

- 10.4.1 Police forces tracked and cornered Bagha Jatin and a handful of followers near the banks of the Burhabalanga river in Balasore, Odisha, in September 1915.
- The five revolutionaries: Bagha Jatin, Chittapriya Ray Chaudhuri, Manoranjan Sengupta, Niren Dasgupta and Jyotish Pal. Rather than surrender, they fought.
- 10.4.2 The Battle of Balasore / Battle of Chasakhand / Buribalam (September 1915): the name stems from its immense symbolic weight in nationalist historiography; the actual scale was small:
- i) Numbers: Bagha Jatin and 4 others versus a heavily armed contingent of British colonial police plus mobilised local villagers.
- ii) Duration: about 75 minutes.
- iii) Tactic: instead of running, they took a defensive position behind a termite mound and a raised embankment in a muddy paddy field at Chasakhand.

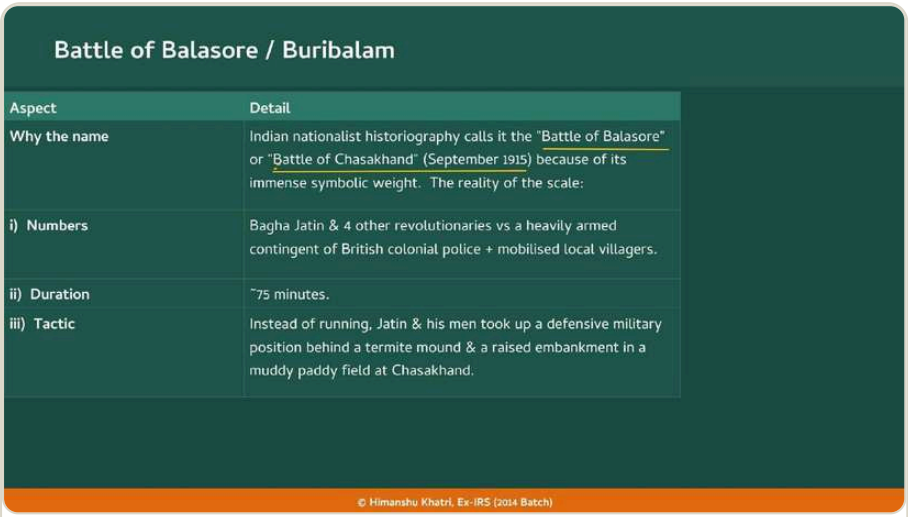
- iv) Why it felt like a battle: they carried the stolen Rodda Mauser C96 pistols, semi-automatic weapons whose effective range rivalled police rifles. Five men pinned down a full police force in a trench-warfare-style standoff until they ran out of ammunition.
- v) Martyrdom: severely wounded, Bagha Jatin died in hospital the following day. 'Amra morbo, jagat jagbe.' He kept his word.
- vi) Consequence: this effectively ended the Christmas Day plot before it could materialise.



Slide: Battle of Balasore and Chasakhand names, teacher-marked Lecture 32 slide 29

TEACHER'S BOARD

Teacher's board: the names Battle of Balasore and Battle of Chasakhand (September 1915) are marked for recall.

HANDOUT ALERT

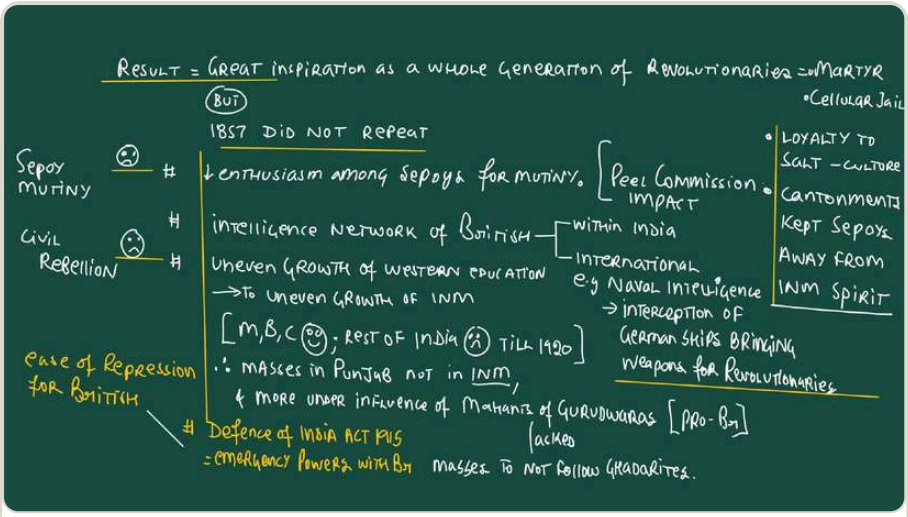
- Handout alert: the Christmas Day plot was planned for December 1915, but its leader fell at Balasore in September 1915, so the plot collapsed before its date. The date table says 'December 1915: Christmas Day Plot collapses'. In sequencing questions, put Balasore (Sept) before the Christmas plot date (Dec).

11 · Failure & Aftermath of the Ghadar Movement

STORY LINK

Because the British held intelligence, emergency law and the loyalty of sepoys and Mahants, the plan collapsed at every stage. Ask: why did 1857 not repeat?

11.1 Why the Movement Failed



Board: result, and why 1857 did not repeat Lecture 32 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Result = great inspiration as a whole generation of revolutionaries = martyrs (Cellular Jail is also noted beside this line).
- BUT 1857 did not repeat: no sepoy mutiny and no civil rebellion.
- Low enthusiasm among sepoys for mutiny: the Peel Commission impact, i.e. loyalty to salt (culture) and cantonments kept sepoys away from INM spirit.
- Intelligence network of the British, within India and international, e.g. naval intelligence leading to interception of German ships bringing weapons for the revolutionaries.
- Uneven growth of western education led to uneven growth of the INM: M, B, C (the presidency regions) were ahead, the rest of India behind till 1920. So the masses in Punjab were not in the INM and were more under the influence of Mahants of Gurudwaras (pro-British), who asked masses not to follow Ghadarites.
- Defence of India Act 1915 = emergency powers with the British, giving ease of repression.

- 11.1.1 Strong British intelligence network and effective policing of the seas.
- 11.1.2 RB Bose's efforts to mobilise sepoys in Lahore failed (poor response). The Peel Commission post-1857 had deliberately reduced political consciousness in the army; low western education among sepoys, hence little traction.
- 11.1.3 Udasi Sikh Mahants, the socially influential priests of Gurudwaras, were pro-British and actively asked religious masses not to support Ghadarites. (Similar to Ulamas aligning with the British during the Swadeshi Movement 0511; religious establishments tied to the colonial order become instruments of counter-nationalism.)
- 11.1.4 Late 1914 to early February 1915: British pre-emptive strikes against Ghadarites and regiments suspected of disloyalty; the mutiny planned for 21 Feb 1915 was crushed before it began.
- 11.1.5 March 1915 (Emergency): Ghadarites suppressed under the Defence of India Act, 1915, a wartime emergency law. (Link forward: Rowlatt Acts 1919 = Anarchical and Revolutionary Crimes Act 1919 sought to continue emergency powers after WWI.)

Under it revolutionaries could be detained without trial, special tribunals replaced ordinary courts and there was no right of appeal.

- 11.1.6 April to September 1915 (mass trials): after the failure of RB Bose's February mutiny the British launched the First Lahore Conspiracy Case (1915), a mass trial of captured Ghadarites. Many were sentenced to death, many to transportation for life, and hundreds were interned in their villages under the Defence of India Act, 1915. It crushed the organisational backbone of Ghadar inside India.

MNEMONIC · WHY GHADAR FAILED

I M P E D E

Six things impeded the Ghadarites

- I Intelligence network of the British
- M Mahants of Gurudwaras, pro-British
- P Peel Commission impact on sepoys
- E Education uneven, so INM uneven
- D Defence of India Act 1915
- E Early pre-emptive strikes, late 1914 to Feb 1915

Mains tip: group as intelligence and law (I, D, E), social base (M, P, E).

HANDOUT ALERT

- UPSC trap: do not confuse the First Lahore Conspiracy Case (1915, Ghadar) with the Second Lahore Conspiracy Case (1929-30, Bhagat Singh and HSRA 1928).

11.2 What the Movement Achieved

Slide: achievements, Sarabha hanged at 19, RB Bose to Japan Lecture 32 slide 33

- 11.2.1 India lost a whole generation of secular, nationalistic Indians who gave up comfortable lives abroad for a secular republic.
- 11.2.2 Their sacrifice increased nationalism and awareness of colonialism among the diaspora and Indians, and inspired the next generation. In November 1915 Kartar Singh Sarabha was arrested and hanged, only 19 years old. He became a martyr-hero, and Bhagat Singh later said he kept Sarabha's photograph in his pocket. (The British failed to arrest RB Bose, who escaped to Japan in May 1915.)
- 11.2.3 It was the first organised attempt to use the Indian diaspora for armed revolution against the British.
- 11.2.4 It showed that the spirit of 1857 had not died; Indians overseas were ready to sacrifice everything.
- 11.2.5 Sikh, Hindu and Muslim revolutionaries worked together without communal friction.
- 11.2.6 Survivors became active in the later INM and in peasant and working-class movements: the Kisan Sabhas, the Communist movement and the Akali movement in Punjab.
- 11.2.7 The freedom struggle was global, waged from San Francisco to Tokyo to Berlin.

TEACHER'S SHORTHAND · H-M-S UNITY

H M S

Board shorthand for the secular unity of the Ghadarites

H Hindu
M Muslim
S Sikh

The board writes secularism as H-M-S unity.

HANDOUT ALERT

- UPSC elimination tip: Jogesh Chandra Chatterjee belongs to the 1920s HRA/HSRA phase (Kakori Conspiracy Case, 1925). Do not associate him with Ghadar.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The Ghadar Movement holds a special place in the INM: perhaps the first sustained revolutionary current explicitly and consciously secular; Punjabis, largely Sikh in origin, sought Hindu-Muslim unity and rejected religious identity as the basis of the nation.
- Shaped by Bakunin's conviction that oppressive structures must be demolished and by propaganda of the deed, it imagined an India far more radical than the moderate mainstream. Balasore was the silencing of a very brave vision of what India could be.

MAINS HOOKS

- Teacher: Mains no PYQ for this chapter. Practice angles only, built from the notes.
- Assess the HRL Movement: 3 failures (repressed, no masses, Extremists failed again) against 6 gains (60,000 members, new regions, Nehru, network, Moderates weakened, secular method).
- Assess the Lucknow Pact: negative (Two Nation Theory landmark, separate electorates conceded) against positives (unity used in Khilafat and NCM, pressure on Montague 1917 and GOI Act 1919, Divide and Rule failed).
- Why 'Passive Resistance' split INC in 1917: Aurobindo's NC + CD doctrine against Besant's constitutionalism.

Prelims is the game here: dates, names and the five Lucknow demands.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: In 1914 the national movement was dull: Extremists crushed, Moderates spent. Tilak and Annie Besant, working outside INC, built two Home Rule Leagues in 1916 to carry educative propaganda from towns to villages. Besant's arrest in 1917 backfired, united Moderates and Extremists and made her INC President, but the Leagues could not become a mass movement and faded, leaving momentum for Gandhi. Alongside, the Lucknow Pact of 1916 joined INC and the Muslim League on joint demands, after a decade of British actions had alienated Indian Muslims.

1. A dull phase, 1914. Tilak came back from Mandalay in 1914 after six years in prison. Extremists and Revolutionaries had been crushed. Moderates had become irrelevant because their method had failed in 1892 and again with ICA 1909. Self-Government, INC's goal since the 1906 Calcutta Session, had not arrived.

   → So the movement needed new energy and an organisation that could carry it.

2. Tilak's calculated position. Tilak wanted the Extremists back inside INC, because outside it the British could repress them easily. He declared four things: Swaraj means self-rule within the Empire, violence has hurt the INM, Indians should support the war, and he is loyal to the Crown. The British and the Moderates were pleased.

   → But a united organisation also needed an ally with a base in the South.

3. Besant joins and the re-entry fight. Annie Besant, an Irish woman inspired by Home Rule in Ireland and head of the Theosophical Society at Madras, joined INC in 1914. She pushed for Extremist re-entry but Pherozshah Mehta blocked it. The 1915 Bombay Session decided to allow re-entry after Mehta died; the actual re-entry came at Lucknow 1916.

   → But INC still would not back Home Rule Leagues, fearing propaganda could slide into violence.

4. Two Leagues, one movement. Tilak set up the Indian Home Rule League in April 1916, with 6 branches and headquarters at Poona. Besant set up the All India Home Rule League in September 1916, with 200 branches and headquarters at Madras. They cooperated but did not merge, to prevent friction among followers.

   → So the two spread the same message in separate zones.

5. The message: Swaraj and more. Tilak's rallying cry was 'Swaraj is my birthright and I shall have it'. He also demanded vernacular education, linguistic provinces and an end to untouchability. He framed the fight as a clash of national interests, not of religions, so Jinnah, Besant and Tilak could work together.

   → Now the message needed carriers: newspapers.

6. The press and the Commonwealth idea. Tilak ran Kesari (Marathi) and Maharatta (English). Besant ran New India and Commonweal, from which came the word Commonwealth. She later wrote the Commonwealth of India Bill (1925) for Dominion Status.

   → But the war was straining the masses, and the British grew anxious.

7. The arrest that backfired, 1917. WWI brought inflation and anger among the masses. Besant was arrested and interned in 1917. Moderates now joined the Leagues, Sir S. Subramania Iyer gave up his knighthood, and Gandhi began a signature campaign. Besant was released and made INC President at the 1917 Calcutta Session.

   → But the Montague Statement and a quarrel over Passive Resistance split the camp.

8. Montague and the split. The Montague Statement of 1917 was a Divide and Rule tactic: Swaraj would come gradually. Extremists proposed Passive Resistance, meaning boycott plus deliberate law-breaking. Moderates opposed it and Besant, a constitutionalist afraid of anarchy, sided with them.

→ So the Leagues stalled while the mood outside was rising.

9 Fading, but not for nothing. By 1917-18 the British had repressed the Leagues and they became defunct. They failed to build a mass movement, and Lower Castes in Madras stayed away. Yet 60,000 members joined, new regions woke up, Nehru joined, and a network was left for later phases.

→ Meanwhile a parallel deal had been struck between INC and the League.

10 The Lucknow Pact, 1916. INC and ML1906 gave joint demands to the British for the first time: separate electorates, an elected majority, 50% Indians in the VEC, broad direct franchise, and early self-government. The League gave up general seats; INC accepted separate electorates and a fixed quota. GOI Act 1919 later hardened this into watertight rolls.

→ Why had the League moved so far from its loyal start?

11 The Decade of Alienation. Bengal Partition annulled (1911), Italy took Libya (1911), the first Balkan War (1912) and WW1 (1914) pushed the League towards INC. Then the Balfour Declaration (1917) and the Treaty of Sevres (1920) turned the anger into the Khilafat Movement.

In simple words

- Home Rule means Indians run domestic affairs, while foreign matters stay with Britain; it is the same idea as Swaraj within the British Empire.
- The HRL Movement was not an INC initiative: Tilak and Besant launched it, and the method was educative propaganda, not NC or CD.
- Aim: carry INC's message from urban leaders to rural masses.
- Two Leagues: Tilak (April 1916, Poona, 6 branches) and Besant (September 1916, Madras, 200 branches), cooperating but not merging.
- 1917 is the peak: Besant's arrest united Moderates and Extremists, and she became INC President; then Passive Resistance split them.
- The Lucknow Pact (INC + ML1906) was the first joint demand to the British, built on a separate-electorate compromise.
- ML1906 drifted from loyalty to unity with INC because of events abroad in 1911-14, and to the Khilafat Movement because of 1917-20 events.

Key term	In plain words
Home Rule	Domestic affairs significantly with Indians (democracy, responsible government); external matters stay with Britain

Swarajya Sabha	1920 new name of the All India Home Rule League, under MG

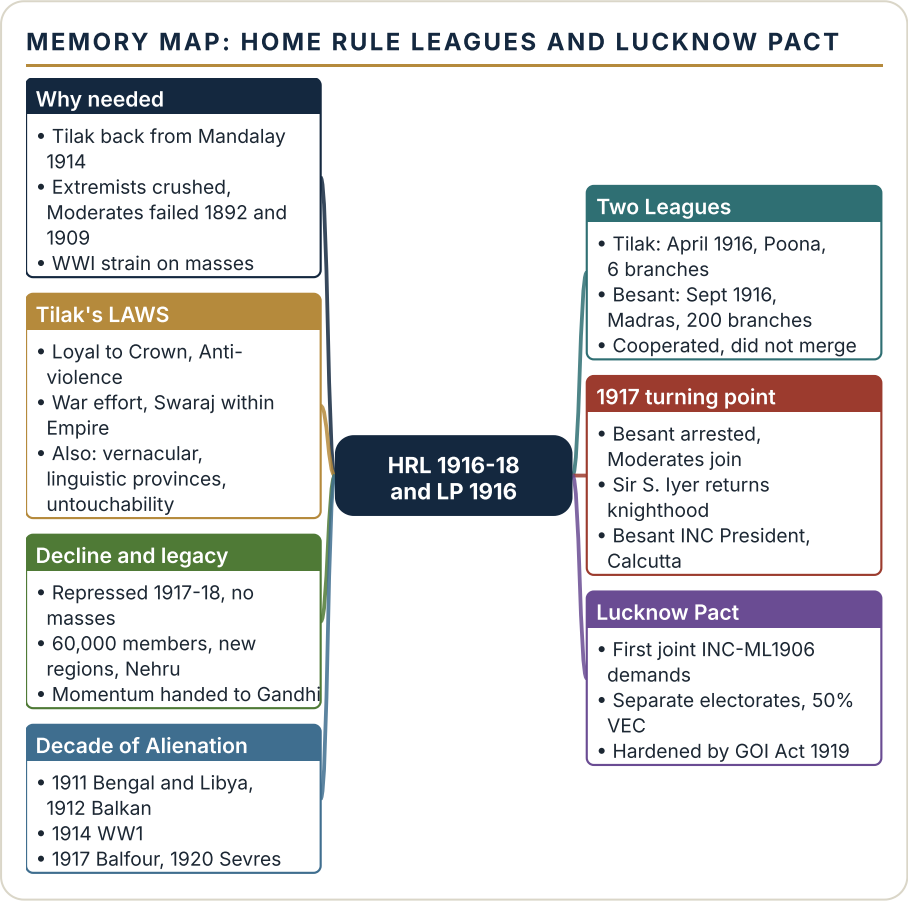
Memory map



REMEMBER IT AS Two Leagues in 1916 (6 and 200 branches), one Pact in 1916 (INC + ML1906), and a 1917 turning point that handed momentum to Gandhi.

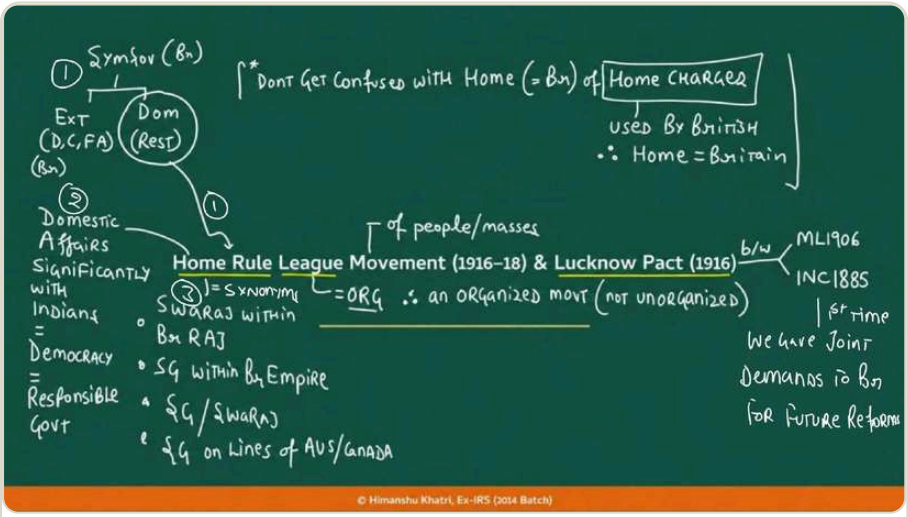
STORY LINK

Because the INM was dull in 1914-16, an organised movement was needed. Ask: what exactly does 'Home Rule League' mean, and what is the Lucknow Pact doing in the same chapter?



Board: Home Rule, League and Lucknow Pact explained Lecture 32 slide 49

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Home Rule: the board splits affairs into external (Ext: D, C, FA) kept by Britain and domestic (Dom: the rest) given to Indians. The letters D, C, FA are not expanded on the board: check your notebook.
- Domestic affairs significantly with Indians = Democracy = Responsible Government.
- Synonyms: Swaraj within British Raj; SG within British Empire; SG / Swaraj; SG on the lines of Australia / Canada. (SG = self-government.)
- Do not confuse Home (= Britain) with Home Charges, a term used by the British; Home = Britain.
- League = ORG = an organised movement of the people / masses, not an unorganised one.
- Lucknow Pact 1916 is between ML1906 and INC1885: the first time they have joint demands to Britain for future reforms.
- Title board: Mains: No PYQ. Pre: imp.

1 · Home Rule League Movement (1916–18)

STORY LINK

Because the Moderates had failed and the Extremists were crushed, the leaders went outside INC. Ask: whose movement was it, and what was its method?

- The HRL Movement of 1916-18 was not an INC initiative.
- It was launched independently by two leaders: Bal Gangadhar Tilak and Annie Besant.
- Method: educative propaganda, spreading awareness of Home Rule and Swaraj within the British Empire.
- It was not a programme of Non-Cooperation or Civil Disobedience.

Whose movement, what method, and what it was not Lecture 32 slide 50

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Add to the method: focus on popularising INC among the masses.
- Direction of travel: urban leaders go to the rural masses.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2005 alert. Who was a proponent of Fabianism as a movement? Answer (a) Annie Besant. Wrong: (b) AO Hume, (c) Michael Madhusudan Dutt, (d) R Palme Dutt. Slide key: Besant was a Fabian Society member and British socialist; Madhusudan Dutt died 1873, before the Fabian Society (1884); Palme Dutt was a communist.

Prelims 2005: Fabianism, answer (a) Annie Besant marked Lecture 32 slide 85

2 · Context: Why the Movement Was Necessary

STORY LINK

Because both Extremists and Moderates had run out of road by 1914, the INM needed a new vehicle. Ask: what exactly had failed?

- 2.1 Tilak returned from Mandalay (Burma) in 1914 after six years of imprisonment; the INM was at a dull phase.
- 2.2 Extremists and Revolutionaries had been firmly suppressed by the British.
- Moderates had become irrelevant, not for lack of sincerity but because their approach had failed twice: in 1892 and again in 1909 with the Indian Councils Act (ICA 1909).

- Those reforms had not delivered Self-Government, the goal INC had set since the 1906 Calcutta Session.
- 2.3 ICA 1909 gave a non-official majority only in the Provincial Legislative Councils, not in the Imperial Legislative Council at the centre, and even that was not an elected Indian majority in the full sense. So the movement saw ICA 1909 as a disappointment.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two labels are stressed: Extremists crushed and Moderates irrelevant (failed twice: 1892 and 1909).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert. Handout 2.2 wording ('elected non-official majority') is loose. Use the board of ICA 1909: official majority in ILC; non-officer majority in PLCs, not an elected Indian majority.

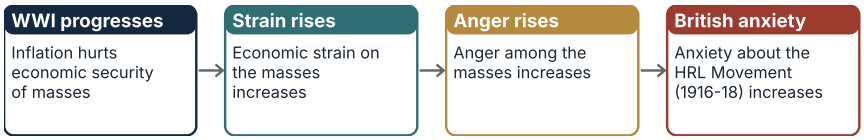
Board: WWI strain on masses raises British anxiety about HRL Lecture 32 slide 62

CHAIN: WHY THE BRITISH FEARED THE LEAGUES



3 · Tilak's Strategy

STORY LINK

Because organisation decides a movement's fate, Tilak wanted the Extremists back inside INC, but without provoking the British. Ask: what did he promise publicly?

- 3.1 To revive the INM, Tilak wanted the Extremists to re-enter INC, because organisation mattered for any movement.
- He understood that if Extremists stayed outside INC, the British could repress them more easily. So he took a deliberate, calculated position and declared publicly:

Declaration	What Tilak said and how it landed
i) Swaraj defined	Swaraj = self-rule within the British Empire; overthrowing British rule is not his goal. The British were pleased.
ii) Violence rejected	Violence has hurt the INM's progress. The British were pleased again; the Moderates too.
iii) Support the war	All Indians should support the British war effort. British pleased.
iv) Loyal to the Crown	He is loyal to the Crown. British pleased. Moderates reacted as if their own sentence had been copied.

- 3.2 This was a tactical move: it made it hard for the British to repress the Extremists again, and positioned the Extremists as compatible with INC's moderate framework.

MNEMONIC · TILAK'S FOUR DECLARATIONS

L A W S

Tilak stayed inside the LAWS, so the British could not crush him again.

- L Loyal to the Crown
- A Against violence: it hurt the INM
- W War effort: support Britain
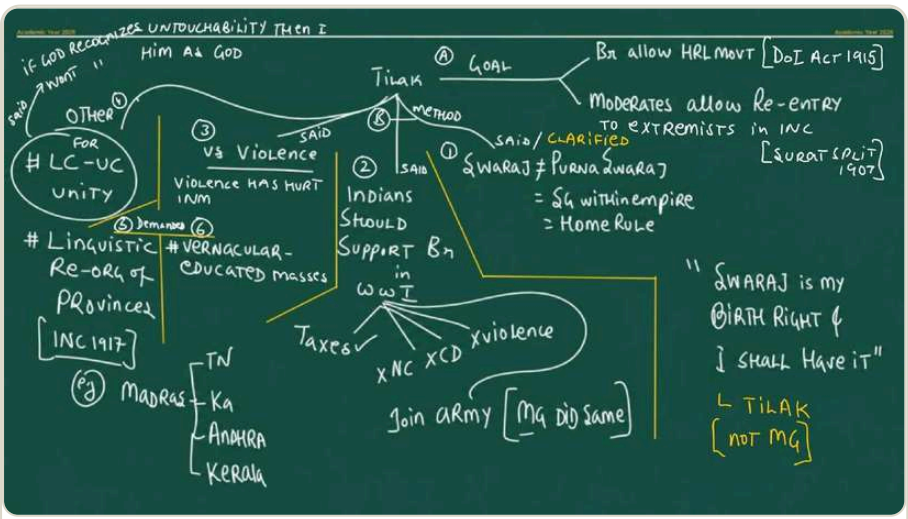
- S Swaraj means self-rule within the Empire

No fixed order; initials rearranged to LAWS.



Board: Tilak's goal, method, demands and slogan Lecture 32 slide 52

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A. Goal has two parts: the British allow the HRL movement (board tag: DoI Act 1915) and the Moderates allow re-entry of Extremists into INC (board tag: Surat Split 1907).
- B. Method (said / clarified): (1) Swaraj is not Purna Swaraj; it is SG within the Empire = Home Rule. (2) Indians should support Britain in WWI: pay taxes yes; no NC, no CD, no violence; join the army ([MG did the same]). (3) Against violence: violence has hurt the INM.
- Other points: (4) LC-UC unity, with Tilak's untouchability quote; (5) demanded linguistic reorganisation of provinces [INC 1917], e.g. Madras into TN, Ka, Andhra, Kerala; (6) vernacular-educated masses.
- 'Swaraj is my birthright and I shall have it' is Tilak, not MG.

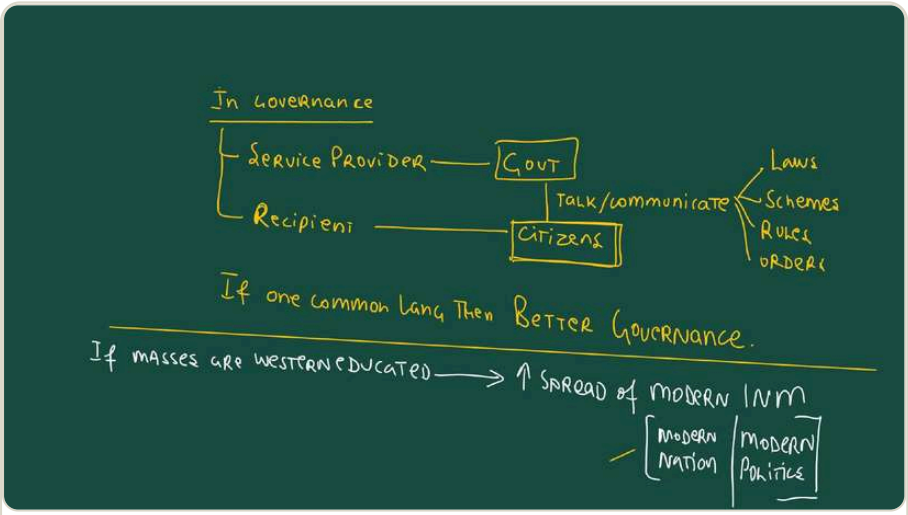
HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert. The handout does not mention the DoI Act 1915 tag or the INC 1917 adoption of linguistic provinces. Both are the teacher's board points; keep them.



Board: common language, better governance, Western education and modern INM Lecture 32 slide 53

TEACHER'S BOARD

- In governance, Govt = service provider and citizens = recipient; they communicate through laws, schemes, rules and orders. One common language gives better governance.
- If masses are Western educated, the spread of the modern INM rises: modern nation, modern politics.

4 · Annie Besant's Role

STORY LINK

Because Tilak alone could not move INC, Besant joined from Madras. Ask: who blocked re-entry, and why would INC not back the Leagues?

- 4.1 In 1914, Annie Besant, head of the Theosophical Society based in Madras, an Irish woman inspired by the Home Rule movement in Ireland, joined INC.
- She wanted self-rule for India and campaigned inside INC for the re-entry of Extremists, wanting a stronger organisation.
- Her attempt failed in 1914 because of opposition from Pherozshah Mehta, leader of Bombay's Moderates.
- 4.2 At the 1915 Bombay Session, INC finally decided to allow re-entry, as P.M. Mehta had died. The actual re-entry happened at the 1916 Lucknow Session.
- INC still did not support Home Rule Leagues: Moderates did not fully trust the Extremists and feared educative propaganda might slide into Non-Cooperation, Civil Disobedience or violence.

Besant's profile, the Mehta veto and the 1915 decision Lecture 32 slide 56

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Besant believed in Fabianism like J. Nehru: socialism in Britain. She was head, not founder, of the Theosophical Society.
- The 1915 Bombay Session made a decision on re-entry (the board replaces 'allowed' with 'Decision'); the actual re-entry was 1916.
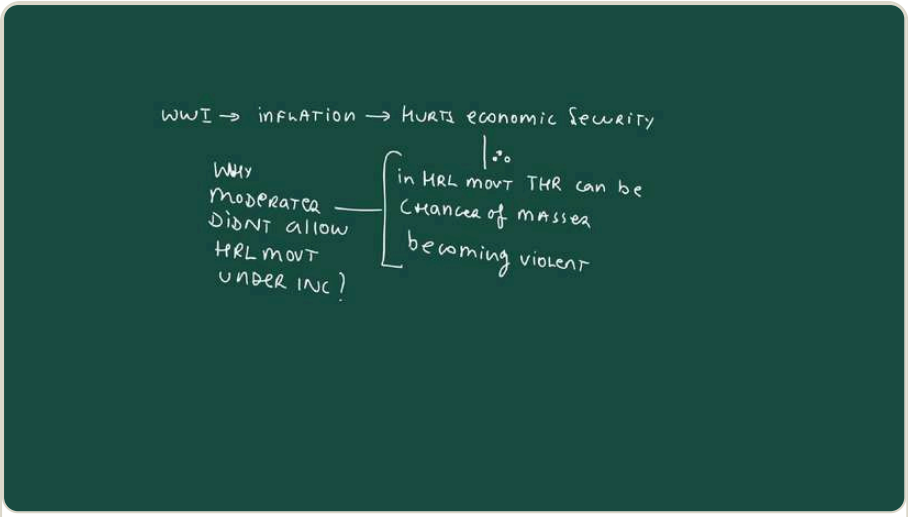
- Purpose of re-entry: strong united leadership, giving a better chance of SG within the Empire.



Board: WWI inflation and why Moderates blocked HRL under INC Lecture 32 slide 57

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why Moderates did not allow the HRL movement under INC: in an HRL movement there can be a chance of masses becoming violent. (Board context: WWI brought inflation, which hurt economic security.)

5 · Setting Up the Two Leagues

STORY LINK

Because INC would not host the Leagues, Tilak and Besant built their own, but divided the country between them. Ask: who has what zone, headquarters and branch count?

Aspect	Tilak's Indian HRL	Besant's All India HRL
Set up	April 1916 (Tilak is Indian, hence Indian HRL)	September 1916
Zone	Bombay Province / Maharashtra (except Bombay city), Berar, Karnataka, Central Provinces	Rest of British India
Branches	6	200
Headquarters	Poona	Madras

- 5.3 Both leagues cooperated but chose not to merge, to prevent friction among their followers, and divided their areas clearly: two Leagues, two zones, two headquarters, one movement.

NUMBER CARD · THE TWO LEAGUES

6 · 200

Tilak small and early, Besant big and late.

Apr 1916 Tilak, Indian HRL, Poona
6 branches of Tilak's League
Sep 1916 Besant, All India HRL, Madras
200 branches of Besant's League

The two Leagues compared, with Swarajya Sabha 1920 Lecture 32 slide 58

TEACHER'S BOARD

- In 1920 the All India Home Rule League changed its name to Swarajya Sabha under MG, and was merged with INC.
- The board writes the shorthand LORC beside Swarajya Sabha (1920); the mapping of its letters is not given: check your notebook.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2018 alert. In 1920 which changed its name to Swarajya Sabha? Answer (a) All India Home Rule League. Wrong: (b) Hindu Mahasabha, (c) South Indian Liberal Federation (Justice Party of Madras), (d) Servants of India Society (Gokhale, 1905). Handout gives only the rename; the 'merged with INC' point is the teacher's.

Prelims 2018: Swarajya Sabha, (a) marked Lecture 32 slide 89

6 · Demands & Spread of the Movement

STORY LINK

Because the Leagues wanted a broad, secular base, Tilak widened Swaraj into social demands and avoided a religious framing. Ask: what else did he demand, and who stood with him?

- 6.1 Goal: educative propaganda on Home Rule and Swaraj. Tilak's slogan: 'Swaraj is my birthright and I shall have it'. Beyond Swaraj he demanded:
- i) Education in vernacular languages.

- 6.2 Tilak argued the demand for self-rule was not because the British are Christians but because India and Britain have divergent national interests. This reduced the religious colouring, so Tilak made less use of Hindu nationalism.
- 6.3 Tilak, Jinnah and Besant together produced the Lucknow Pact of 1916. Jinnah also joined Besant's All India HRL and became President of its Bombay branch.

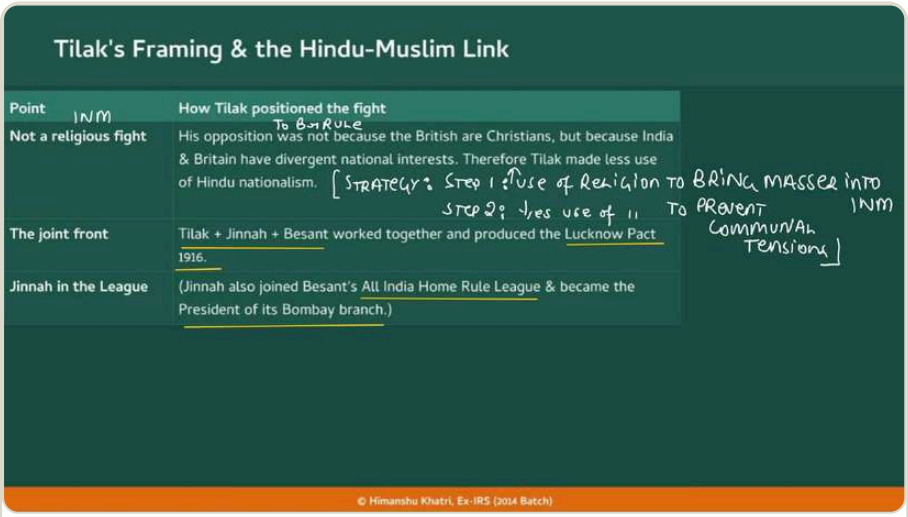
Tilak's three demands beyond Swaraj, each ticked Lecture 32 slide 59

TEACHER'S BOARD

- All three demands (vernacular education, linguistic provinces, end of untouchability) are flagged. Link the 1918 quote to the Ganpati Festival 1893: Lord Ganapati worshipped by both Upper and Lower Castes.



Tilak's strategy: religion to bring masses, then curb it Lecture 32 slide 60

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tilak's strategy has two steps. Step 1: use religion to bring masses into the INM. Step 2: reduce its use to prevent communal tensions.
- The board writes 'INM' and 'To Br Rule' above the first row of the slide; the exact reading is unclear: check your notebook.

- 6.4 Besides ground-level work promoting INC in villages, both leaders used the press: Tilak published Kesari (Marathi) and Maharatta (English); Besant published New India and Commonweal (common or public welfare), from which came the word Commonwealth.
- She popularised the voluntary 'Commonwealth of Nations', a phrase coined by Lord Rosebery in 1884. Besant later wrote the Commonwealth of India Bill (1925) proposing Dominion Status.

Board: empire is a negative word, commonwealth a positive one Lecture 32 slide 55

TEACHER'S BOARD

- British Empire is a negative word; British Commonwealth is a positive word. Besant's newspaper Commonweal is the root of Commonwealth.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2013 alert. Annie Besant: 1 started the Home Rule Movement; 2 founder of the Theosophical Society; 3 President of INC. Answer (c) 1 and 3. Wrong: (a) Only 1, (b) 2 and 3, (d) All. Slide adds: the Theosophical Society's founders were Madame Blavatsky and Colonel Olcott.

Prelims 2013: Besant statements marked T, F, T with 1917 Lecture 32 slide 87

7 · After Besant's Arrest (1917)

> STORY LINK
> Because the British over-reached, repression strengthened the Leagues instead of ending them. Ask: who joined, and who gave up a title?

- 7.1 Besant's arrest and internment in 1917 was a turning point: far from weakening the movement, it energised it.
- i) Even Moderates joined the HRLs: British overreach united the factions.

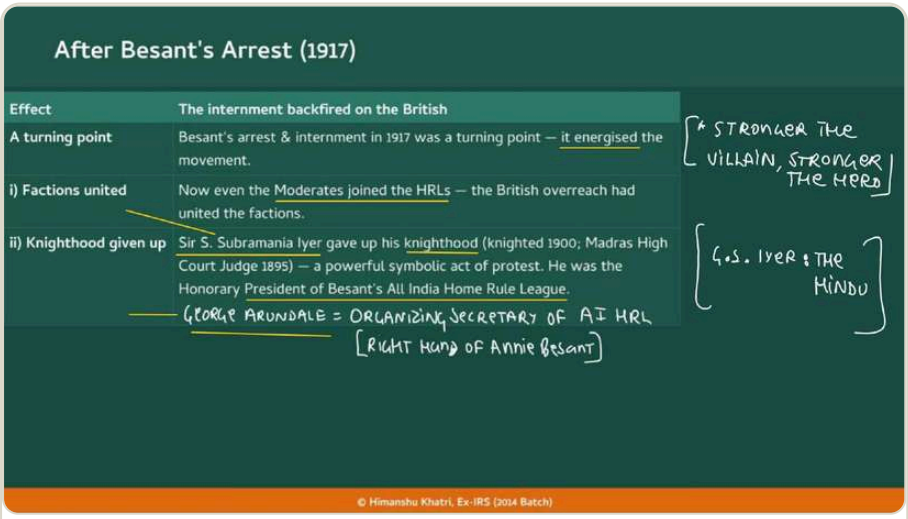
- Note on roles: Iyer had been Recording Secretary (1905-06) and Vice-President (1907-11) of the Theosophical Society. A Recording Secretary is the custodian of official and legal records (minutes, archives). An Organising Secretary handles correspondence, campaigns and network-building.
- In Besant's League the Organising Secretary was George Arundale, doing the heavy lifting of building the network across India.



The arrest backfires; Arundale and G.S. Iyer noted Lecture 32 slide 63

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Stronger the villain, stronger the hero: the arrest strengthened the movement.
- G.S. Iyer: The Hindu.
- George Arundale = Organising Secretary of the All India HRL, the right hand of Annie Besant.

8 · The Two Subramania Iyers

STORY LINK

Because two men share a near-identical name, exams love to swap them. Ask: which Iyer wrote The Hindu, and which one returned the knighthood?

- 8.1 Students confuse two different men with near-identical names, both linked to Madras and the early nationalist movement.

	G. Subramania Iyer (journalist, 1855-1916)	Sir S. Subramania Iyer (jurist, 1842-1924)
Full name / title	Ganapathy Subramania Iyer	Sir; K.C.I.E. (Knight Commander of the Indian Empire)
Press and bodies	Co-founded English paper The Hindu, 1878, to protest the appointment of an Anglo-Indian judge over a native Indian candidate; founded Tamil daily Swadesamitran, 1882; with M. Veeraraghavachariar and P. Anandacharlu founded the Madras Mahajan Sabha, 1884	Judge of Madras High Court 1895; knighted 1900; later Acting Chief Justice
INC and HRL	Moved the first resolution at INC's first session, Bombay 1885	Co-founder and Honorary President of the Home Rule League in Madras (1916) with Besant
1917	—	Wrote an explosive letter to US President Woodrow Wilson; renounced his knighthood over Besant's arrest

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Keep apart: G. Subramania Iyer = Journalist + The Hindu + 1885 first INC resolution. Sir S. Subramania Iyer = Judge + Knighthood surrendered + Home Rule League.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The line G. Subramania Iyer = Journalist + The Hindu + 1885 first INC resolution is stressed.

- 8.4 Mahatma Gandhi began a signature campaign for Besant's release. He was against using WW1 as the HRL leaders did: he had not joined the HRLs and travelled across India urging youth to join the British India Army, believing the Allies were victims of aggression and on the side of justice.
- 8.5 Result: Besant was released and made INC President at the 1917 Calcutta Session.
- 8.6 The British used the Montague Statement of 1917 as a Divide and Rule tactic: in layman's terms, the British will give Swaraj gradually.
- 8.7 Within the movement, Extremists proposed Passive Resistance; Moderates opposed it; Besant sided with the Moderates.

Gandhi, Besant's release and the Montague Statement Lecture 32 slide 66

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Besant was the first woman President of INC (1917).
- The Montague Statement is similar to Morley's BD speech 1906 (the board writes BD; expansion not given: check your notebook).
- The slide writes Passive Resistance as NC + CD + CW; the handout defines it only as NC and CD (see Section 9). CW is not expanded: check your notebook.
- Board takeaway: momentum is built; unity between Moderates and Extremists is achieved; therefore convert into an NCM.

Board: momentum, unity, restless masses, so convert propaganda into NCM Lecture 32 slide 67

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Momentum is built; unity between Moderates and Extremists is high; masses are restless because of the WWI impact; therefore it is the right time to convert educative propaganda to NCM.

9 · Understanding "Passive Resistance": Extremists, Besant, and Gandhi

STORY LINK

Because the 1917 debate was about law-breaking, Besant parted ways with the Extremists. Ask: what exactly did 'Passive Resistance' include?

- 9.1 When Extremists proposed 'Passive Resistance' in the HRL era, and earlier in the Swadeshi Movement, they drew from Aurobindo Ghosh. In April 1907 he published seven articles in the daily Bande Mataram, together called 'The Doctrine of Passive Resistance'.
- 9.2 It was an umbrella term with two linked concepts (flow below).
- 9.3 In the 1917 debate in INC, the Extremists asked for exactly this: boycotts (NC) and potential law-breaking (CD).
- 9.4 Besant backed away because she was a constitutionalist. She would agitate, petition and spread propaganda to the edge of legality (which led to her own arrest) but had a deep-seated fear of anarchy. She strictly opposed the law-breaking part, believing it would lead to chaos and mob violence.
- This divide is why she later broke away from MG when he launched the Non-Cooperation Movement in 1920.

CHAIN: WHAT PASSIVE RESISTANCE MEANT TO EXTREMISTS

Aurobindo, April → Seven Bande Mataram articles: The Doctrine of Passive Resistance

First step: NC → Boycott British goods, government schools, courts and administrative

Escalation: CD → If the State passes oppressive laws to stop the boycott, break those laws

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Underlined by the teacher: 'She was fundamentally a constitutionalist' and 'mob violence', the two keys to Besant's break.

10 · The Gandhian shift

- 10.1 For later chapters: when MG took command of the national movement he rejected the term 'Passive Resistance'. To Gandhi both Non-Cooperation and Civil Disobedience were highly active, fearless moral forces: Satyagraha, never passive.

11 · Overall Impact: Positives & Negatives

STORY LINK

Because educative propaganda could not become mass action, the Leagues faded; but they left a lot behind. Ask: what failed, and what survived?

Negatives

- 11.1 By 1917-18 the British had repressed the HRLs; they became defunct, since educative propaganda could not convert itself into a mass movement.
- 11.2 No mass movement: in Madras, Lower Castes did not support the All India HRL because its leadership was Upper Caste dominated.
- 11.3 Extremists failed a second time to take over INC; Moderates and Extremists failed to unite on a common programme.

Positives

- 11.4 60,000 members joined the HRLs.
- 11.5 It brought Gujarat, Sindh, United Provinces, Bihar and South India more actively into the INM, regions with low participation until then.
- 11.6 It prepared leadership for the Gandhian struggle: Nehru joined Besant's League through this movement.
- 11.7 It created an organisational network used in later phases of the INM.
- 11.8 It permanently decreased the influence of Moderates in INC.
- 11.9 It was secular in methods and helped Hindu-Muslim unity.

Positives of the Leagues, with rural-urban contact noted Lecture 32 slide 71

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Beside the organisational network the board adds: rural-urban contact (the last word is partly cut off: check your notebook).

NUMBER CARD · IMPACT

60,000 · 5

Sixty thousand joined; five regions woke up.

60,000 members joined the HRLs
5 regions: Gujarat, Sindh, UP, Bihar, South India
3 negatives: repressed, no masses, Extremists failed again
6 positives listed in the handout

12 · Lucknow Pact (1916)

STORY LINK

Because INC and the League both wanted reforms after ICA 1909 disappointed, they joined hands at Lucknow. Ask: what did each side give up, and what did it set in motion?

- 12.1 The Lucknow Pact of 1916 was an agreement between INC (1885) and the Muslim League (ML1906): the first time they gave joint demands to the British for constitutional reforms. ML1906 also supported the HRLs.

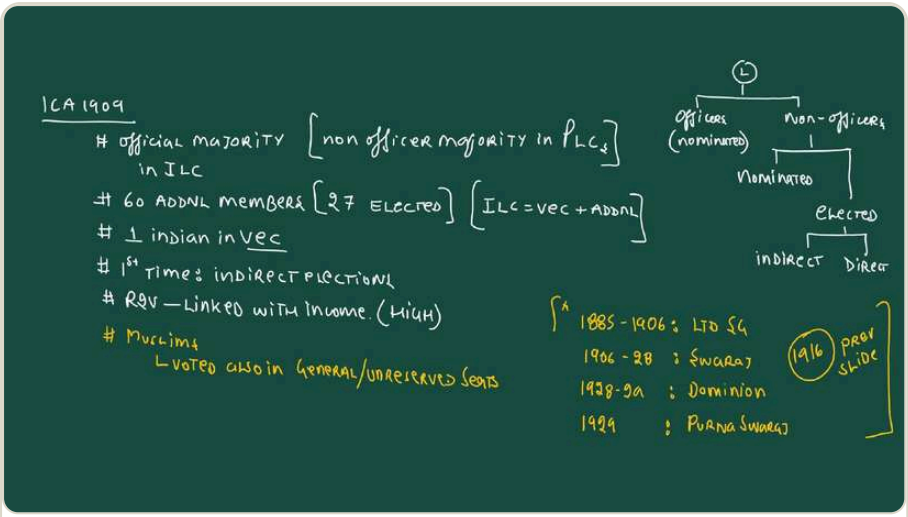
- The rising tension between ML1906 and the British must be read in world history (Section 13).



Board: ICA 1909 provisions, legislature tree and stages of demand Lecture 32 slide 74

TEACHER'S BOARD

- ICA 1909 board: official majority in the ILC (non-officer majority in PLCs); 60 additional members, 27 elected; ILC = VEC + additional members; 1 Indian in the VEC; first time indirect elections; right to vote (R2V) linked with income (high); Muslims also voted in general / unreserved seats.
- Legislature tree: officers (nominated) and non-officers; non-officers are nominated or elected; elected are indirect or direct.
- Stages of the demand: 1885-1906 limited SG; 1906-28 Swaraj; 1928-29 Dominion; 1929 Purna Swaraj. The board links the 1916 demand to this staging.

12.2 The joint demands

Clause	Joint platform of INC and ML1906
i) Separate Electorates	Continue separate electorates in future council reforms (the teacher calls it a temporary compromise)
ii) Elected majority	Expand councils and bring an elected majority (ICA 1909 gave only a non-official majority, and only in PLCs, not the ILC)
iii) 50% in VEC	At least 50% Indians in the Viceroy's Executive Council (GG and Ministers)
iv) Franchise	Franchise as broad as possible and direct elections; not yet UAF, which comes with the Motilal Nehru Report of 1928
v) Self-government	Self-government at an early date: equal status with other Self-Governing Dominions of the Empire

MNEMONIC · FIVE LUCKNOW DEMANDS (IN ORDER)

Some Elders Voted For Swaraj

- S Separate electorates continued
- E Elected majority in expanded councils
- V VEC: at least 50% Indians
- F Franchise broad, direct elections
- S Self-government at an early date

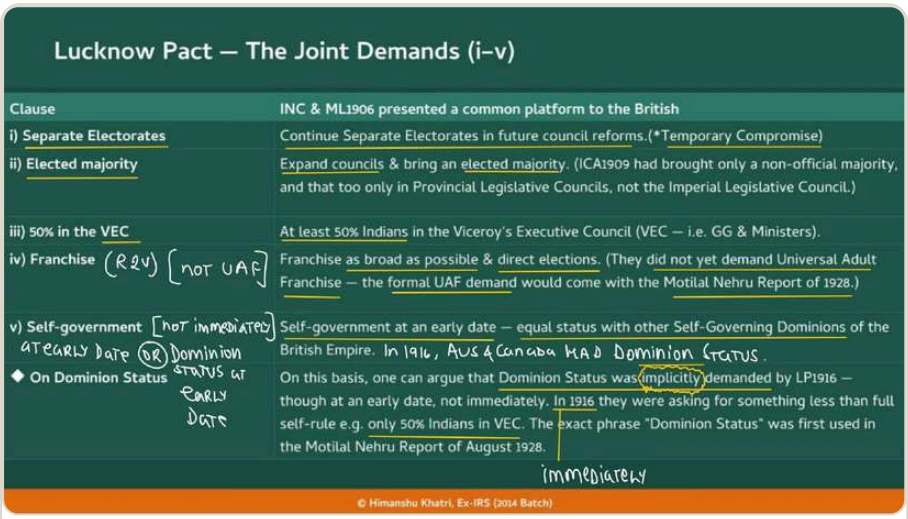
Order kept as handout i to v.



The five joint demands with the teacher's Dominion Status points Lecture 32 slide 73

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Franchise: R2V (right to vote), not UAF. Self-government: not immediately; the board says 'at an early date' or 'Dominion Status at an early date'.
- In 1916 Australia and Canada already had Dominion Status.
- Dominion Status was implicitly demanded by LP1916, at an early date and not immediately; in 1916 they asked for less than full self-rule, e.g. only 50% Indians in the VEC.
- The exact phrase 'Dominion Status' was first used in the Motilal Nehru Report of August 1928; the board contrasts 'not immediately' (1916) with 'immediately' (1928).

Board: when was Dominion Status first demanded? Lecture 32 slide 75

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Question: when did Dominion Status first appear? Options: 1916, 1928, 1906, 1885. The board's rule: 1916 may be correct if it is an option (implicit demand); else 1928 by default.

12.3 The Hindu-Muslim electoral compromise

CHAIN: THE ELECTORAL COMPROMISE TO GOI ACT 1919

ML1906 concedes	→	INC concedes	→	British adopt it	→	Result
Gives up its right to vote in General / Unreserved constituencies		Formally accepts Separate Electorates and a guaranteed fixed		GOI Act 1919 creates strictly segregated, watertight		Institutional hardening of communal division, set in motion

Assessing the Lucknow Pact

- Negative 12.4: a major landmark in the Two Nation Theory. By accepting separate electorates INC formally conceded that Hindus and Muslims were separate political communities needing separate representation: a significant and, in hindsight, dangerous concession.
- Positive 12.5: it led to INC-ML1906 unity, which MG later used in the Khilafat Movement (1919-24) and the Non-Cooperation Movement (1920-22).
- It created pressure on the British and contributed directly to the Montague Statement of 1917 and the GOI Act 1919.
- It also failed the British strategy of Divide and Rule.

13 · Why ML1906 Turned Against the British: World Context

STORY LINK

Because the League was founded with British support and began loyal, something big must have shaken it. Ask: which shocks between 1911 and 1920 made the League join INC and then back the Khilafat?

- 13.1 To understand the shifts from the 1916 Lucknow Pact to the Khilafat Movement in 1919, look at global events and their effect on Indian Muslim sentiment.
- 13.2 Indian Muslims had been more cautious than INC in opposing British rule; ML1906 was founded largely with British support and began loyal and deferential. A decade-long series of geopolitical shocks, the 'Decade of Alienation', changed that in two phases.

Board map: Arab North Africa, Ottoman Empire, Khalifa Lecture 32 slide 79

TEACHER'S BOARD

- North Africa is the Arab world: Morocco, Algeria, Tunis, Libya, Egypt, west to east. The Suez Canal (1869) separates it from the Ottoman area.
- Ottoman (Turks): its political head = religious head of the Muslim world = Khalifa.
- Ottoman Empire had Syria, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, Palestine; the board writes 'ARABS' beside them. Europe's side: Spain, France, Italy, Balkan (Greece).

Phase 1: triggers for the Lucknow Pact (1911-14)

- 13.3 These events shattered the illusion of British loyalty to Muslim interests and pushed the League to join INC in 1916:
- i) 1911, Annulment of Bengal Partition: the 1905 partition, which ML1906 had supported as it made a Muslim-majority east Bengal, was reversed to appease Extremist agitation: a massive betrayal.

Phase 1 triggers: Turkey lost in the Balkans, Britain did not help Lecture 32

Order kept: 1911, 1911, 1912, 1914.

Phase 2: triggers for the Khilafat Movement (1917-20)

- 13.4 After the Lucknow Pact, British actions during and after WW1 escalated alienation into a mass movement:
- i) 1917, Balfour Declaration: Britain declared intent to create a Jewish homeland in Palestine, then Ottoman. The Ottoman Empire had Turks and Arabs; the Arabs had supported Britain and begun a civil war against the Ottoman Turks, so the promise was seen as a stab in the back by the Arabs.

Mains PYQs: none solved in class; two practice questions (Dyarchy, INM dissatisfaction)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- The August Declaration (20 August 1917) and its key words gradual and progressive; Report 1918 = blueprint, Reforms = package, Act 1919 = law (2003, 2004, 2015, 2016)
- First-time features: bicameral Centre (CLA ~145, 3 yrs; CoS ~60, 5 yrs), elected majority, direct elections, adjournment motions, division of subjects, separate budgets; PLC at least 70% directly elected, 3 yrs (2012, 2015)
- Separate electorates: Muslims from ICA 1909 (not new in 1919), watertight rolls, Sikhs, Anglo-Indians, Christians; Depressed Classes nominated seats (2012, 2026)
- Women: PLCs may remove the sex disqualification, same property bar as men (husband's property is 1935); no universal adult franchise; VEC convention of 3 Indians in 8
- Viceroy's powers: veto, approve rejected bills, ordinance for 6 months, restore cuts, 75% non-votable; ICS exam in India 1922; Public Service Commission 1926 (Section 96C, Ross Barker); Narendra Mandal (Royal Proclamation 1921)
- Dyarchy: Reserved (Police, Justice, Finance, Land Revenue, Irrigation, Control over Officials) against Transferred (health, education, local government, agriculture); Local Self-Government is Transferred (2022); Dyarchy lives inside the province (2017); event order 1905, 1916, 1919 (1995)

MAINS HOOKS

- Why Britain moved: the WWI democracy slogan and INM pressure; 'gradual and progressive' kept the timeline in British hands
- Dyarchy as a design to discredit Indian ministers: no money, no officials, the Governor's override
- Six grounds of INM dissatisfaction: federalism, Dyarchy, franchise, no responsible Centre, seats by importance, no effective self-government
- Separate electorates as Divide and Rule; Taxation Without Representation at the Centre

1919 was the first step toward responsible government: elected houses and Dyarchy, but power without responsibility at the Centre and responsibility without power in the provinces.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Pressure from WWI and the INM forced Britain to promise gradual responsible government (1917); the Act (1919) gave elected houses and Dyarchy but kept real power: the Centre stayed irresponsible, the Governor held the key subjects, and separate rolls divided voters, so the INM called it a half-step.

1. The war's slogan comes home (1914-18). WWI is fought by Britain, France and the USA under the banner of democracy and self-determination, and Indians fight and die in large numbers. At home the pressure keeps building: Swadeshi 1905-08, Revolutionaries 1907-15, Ghadar 1913-15, Home Rule Leagues 1916-18 and the Lucknow Pact of 1916. Swaraj now has moral weight.

   → So Britain has to answer: what about democracy in India?

2. Montagu's promise (20 August 1917). Edwin Montagu, Secretary of State, tells the House of Commons that British policy is the gradual development of self-governing institutions towards the progressive realisation of responsible government within the Empire. Gradual means step by step; progressive means every step toward the goal, with the timeline in British hands. Swaraj is no longer seditious.

   → But a promise needs a plan.

3. The tour and the Report (1917-18). Montagu personally tours Indian provinces, an unusual step, and writes a joint report with Viceroy Chelmsford 16-21: the Montagu-Chelmsford Report of 1918. It is the blueprint; the Act is the law; together they are the Montford Reforms.

   → Parliament now turns the blueprint into law.

4. The Centre gets two houses (1919). The Act creates a bicameral Legislature for British India for the first time: the CLA (~145, 3 years) and the CoS (~60, 5 years), with elected majorities and direct elections in CLA, CoS and PLCs (at least 70% directly elected in a PLC). Adjournment motions are allowed; the Gaya 'End or Mend' resolution of 1922 leads the INC into the 1923 elections.

   → But who may vote, and who rules?

5. Who may vote. The franchise stays tied to income and property; there is no universal adult franchise, though the Lucknow Pact asked for one as broad as possible. Women are not enfranchised directly: PLCs may remove the sex disqualification, but under the same property bar, so under 1% qualify. The husband's-property rule comes only in 1935.

   → And the voters are divided as well.

6. Separate rolls made watertight. Separate electorates for Muslims continue from 1909 but become watertight: Muslims can no longer vote in unreserved seats. The principle is extended to Sikhs, Anglo-Indians and Christians. Depressed Classes get nominated seats. The British seize on the Lucknow Pact's logic for Divide and Rule.

   → Yet the Centre still answers to no one.

7. Powers on paper, strings in hand. Subjects are divided between Centre and Provinces for the first time, but with no lists, so the Centre can take any back; Land Revenue goes to Provinces, Customs and Income Tax to the Centre, and provincial budgets are separated. The VEC has no cap, by convention 3 Indians of 8. The Viceroy keeps veto, approval of rejected bills, ordinance for 6 months, restoring cuts and 75% non-votable budget items.

→ Taxation without representation continues.

8 Services and Princes. The ICS exam is held in India alongside England (first in 1922); Section 96C creates the Public Service Commission (1926, Ross Barker); the ICS splits into All India and Central services; 33% Indians are promised gradually. The Narendra Mandal, recommended by the Report, is constituted by Royal Proclamation in 1921 as a purely advisory body for the Princes.

→ Now the provinces: the most debated feature.

9 Dyarchy: dual rule in the provinces. Provincial subjects are split into Reserved (Police, Justice, Finance, Land Revenue, Irrigation, Control over Officials) under the Governor, unaccountable to the PLC, and Transferred (health, education, local government, agriculture) under elected ministers responsible to the PLC. The board compares it with ToA 1765 and the 1784 Act: Reserved is the old authority's, Transferred the new one's.

→ But ministers hold the soft half of the bargain.

10 Why Dyarchy failed. Ministers have no money (Finance is Reserved) and no control over officials; the Governor can overrule them on any matter and take over Transferred subjects on failure of constitutional machinery. When they fail they lose public trust, as the British designed, delaying the demand for full responsible government.

→ So the INM judges the Act.

11 The verdict of the INM. Six grounds: the division of subjects is not federal; Dyarchy mocks federalism; there is no universal adult franchise; no responsible government at the Centre and only partial in the provinces; seats go by importance not population; there is no effective self-government. Better than 1909's limited self-government, but far from Swaraj.

PYQs on this topic

Mains practice question (FYQ, not an exam question)	Skeleton
15 marks: "The Dyarchy introduced by the GOI Act, 1919 was designed not to share power but to discredit Indian self-government." Examine.	Intro: the Reserved/Transferred split was loaded against Indian ministers. Body: (1) soft subjects (health, education, agriculture) to ministers; (2) no money, as Finance was Reserved; (3) no bureaucracy, as Control over Officials was Reserved; (4) Governor could overrule ministers and take over Transferred subjects on failure of constitutional machinery. Closing: failure was meant to show Indians could not govern, delaying responsible government
10 marks: "GOI 1919 went further than ICA 1909 but fell short of Swaraj. Discuss the principal sources of INM dissatisfaction."	Intro: an advance (elected majorities) judged against the Lucknow Pact and Swaraj. Body: six grounds: not true federalism; Dyarchy mocked federalism; no universal adult franchise; no responsible government at Centre (partial in provinces); seats by importance; no effective self-government. Closing: better than limited self-government of 1909, far from Swaraj

GOI Act 1919: Dyarchy in provinces and the list of firsts Lecture 34 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- GOI Act 1919 = "DYARCHY in PROVINCES" (imp).
- Firsts:
  - Direct elections
  - Elected majority (Centre and Province)
  - Bicameral at the Centre
  - Right to vote (R2V) to women, via Provinces.
- Separate electorates also to Sikhs, Christians, Anglo-Indians.
- First reservation to Dalits (nominated seats).

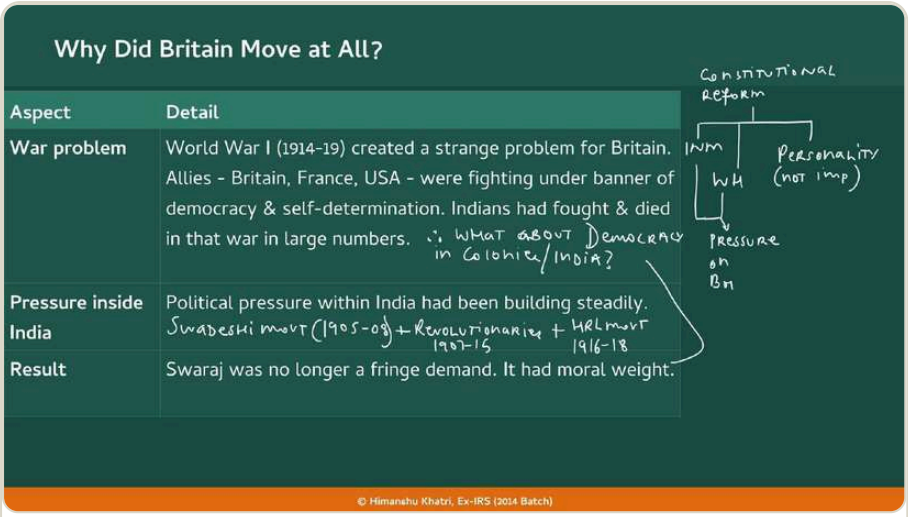
1 · The Montagu Statement, 1917: why did Britain move at all?

STORY LINK

Because WWI's democracy slogan and the INM's pressure made Swaraj respectable, Britain had to promise something. Ask: who controls the timeline?



Why Britain moved: WWI democracy slogan and pressure in India Lecture 34 slide 4

- World War I (1914-19) posed a problem: the Allies (Britain, France, USA) fought under the banner of democracy and self-determination, and Indians had fought and died in large numbers.
- Political pressure in India had built steadily: the Ghadar movement (1913-15), the Home Rule Leagues (1916-18) and the Lucknow Pact of 1916 (INC and Muslim League together).
- Swaraj was no longer a fringe demand
- It had moral weight.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Chain: WWI slogan of democracy → "What about democracy in colonies / India?" → Swaraj has moral weight.
- Pressure inside India = Swadeshi movement (1905-08) + Revolutionaries 1907-15 + HRL movement 1916-18.
- Constitutional reform had three drivers: the INM (pressure on Britain), WH (read as world history), and personality (not imp).

1.1 The Montagu Statement / August Declaration, 20 August 1917

- Issued by Edwin Montagu, Secretary of State for India, in the House of Commons on 20 August 1917.
- Policy henceforth: the "gradual development of self-governing institutions" with a view to the "progressive realisation of responsible government in India within the British Empire."
- Key words: "gradual" and "progressive". Britain promised not self-governance but a slow, controlled movement toward it, on British terms.
- The demand for Swaraj was acknowledged, but the timeline stayed in British hands.

Montagu Statement 1917: gradual and progressive Lecture 34 slide 5

- GOI 1919 = the 1st step toward the progressive realisation of responsible government.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Swaraj = SG (self-government). "Gradual" = step by step
- "progressive" = every next step is in the direction of the goal.
- The Lucknow Pact 1916 had demanded "SG at an early date".
- After the Statement, the demand for Swaraj is no more seditious: it is "just repeating government policy".
- The HRL movement 1916-18 was at its peak (arrest of Annie Besant).

SOURCE

- World History link. WWI propaganda fought absolute monarchies for democracy and self-determination, a moral contradiction while denying freedom in colonies.
- So the demand for Swaraj was no longer seditious in the post-1917 atmosphere
- it had legitimacy within the British imperial framework

TEACHER'S BOARD

Montagu Statement → "demand for Swaraj no longer seditious" (the World History link).

Road to the GOI Act, 1919: from Swadeshi to the Act Lecture 34 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

  - 1905-08 Swadeshi movement
  - 1907-11 Revolutionaries in the Swadeshi movement
  - 1912 Delhi Conspiracy Case (year read as 1912)
  - Then Ghadar 1913-15 → HRL 1916-18 → Lucknow Pact 1916 → Aug 1917 Declaration → 1918 Report (Chelmsford 16-21) → 1919 Act
- Lucknow Pact demand = "SG at an early date", read two ways: SG and Dominion status.
- SG = domestic affairs significantly with Indians
- Dominion status = the same at 100%.

The road to the Act

- 1905-08 Swadeshi and 1907-15 Revolutionaries
- 1912 Delhi Conspiracy Case
- 1913-15 Ghadar
- 1916-18 Home Rule Leagues
- 1916 Lucknow Pact:
  - INC + Muslim League
  - Demand "SG at an early date"
- 20 Aug 1917 Montagu Statement: gradual, progressive responsible government
- 1918 Montagu-Chelmsford Report (Chelmsford 16-21)

- A Act of 1919

Order kept: this is a chronology of pressure turning into reform.

2 · The Montagu-Chelmsford Report, 1918

STORY LINK

Because a promise needs a plan, Montagu toured India and wrote the Report. Ask: Report, Reforms or Act: which is the law?

- In 1917-18 Secretary of State Montagu personally visited India, an unusual step, and toured provinces to assess conditions on the ground.
- The joint report he co-authored with Viceroy Chelmsford 16-21 was the foundational document of the Act: the Montagu-Chelmsford Report (1918).
- It directly led to the GOI Act 1919, hence the Act is also called the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms or Montford Reforms.

HANDOUT NOTE

Report, Reforms, Act: not the same thing.

Term	What it means
Montagu-Chelmsford Report (1918)	Joint document after Montagu's visit: the recommendation, not yet law
Montagu-Chelmsford / Montford Reforms	Popular name for the whole package (Report + Act together); used loosely for the Act itself
Government of India Act, 1919	The actual legislation passed by the British Parliament: the law. The Report was its blueprint

HANDOUT ALERT

- Examiner-tested triplet. Report (1918) = blueprint
- Act (1919) = the law
- Tested Prelims 2003 (Indian Liberal Federation, formed by Moderates who left INC over the Report), 2004 (Report → Act 1919 lineage) and 2015 (Act 1919 defined Centre-Province jurisdiction).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Chelmsford 16-21 is written beside the Report.
- Era chain on the PYQ board: Chelmsford 16-21 = Lucknow Pact 1916, HRL 1916-18, WWI (1914-19) behind the Act, and Rowlatt Satyagraha, Jallianwala 1919, Khilafat 1920-24, NCM 1920-22 around it.
- RA 1773 to GOI 1935 = all the constitutions of British India (board wording partly unclear).

SOURCE

- Legacy link. The Narendra Mandal (Chamber of Princes) later became an important venue.
- When Mountbatten urged the Princes in 1947 to sign the Instrument of Accession, he addressed them in the body created on the foundations of this Act.

3 · Provisions of the Government of India Act, 1919

STORY LINK

Because Parliament turned the blueprint into law, the Centre got two houses and the voters got new rolls. Ask: what was new, and what stayed with the Viceroy?

3.1 Bicameral Legislature at the Centre

- Bicameral Legislature at the Centre for British India for the first time: the Central Legislative Assembly (CLA), lower house, ~145 members, and the Council of States (CoS), upper house, ~60 members.
- Elected majority in CLA, CoS and all Provincial Legislative Councils (PLCs) for the 1st time.
- (Under ICA 1909 a non-official majority existed only in PLCs, not at the Centre.)
- Direct elections for the first time in CLA, CoS and PLCs.

British India: Centre and Provinces, life of the houses Lecture 34 slide 12

- CoS too had direct elections, with higher income criteria for the vote, unusual for an upper house.
- CLA life:
  - 3 years
  - CoS life: 5 years.
- In Provinces, PLCs were unicameral with elected majority (1st) and direct elections (1st)
- At least 70% of members directly elected
- PLC life 3 years.
- (Under ICA 1909 PLCs had a non-official majority, but most non-officials were nominated.)
- Adjournment motions allowed for the 1st time.

MNEMONIC · FIRST-TIME FEATURES OF THE ACT

B E A D S

The Act strung together the BEADS of a new constitution.

- B Bicameral legislature at the Centre
- E Elected majority in CLA, CoS and PLCs
- A Adjournment motions allowed
- D Direct elections in CLA, CoS and PLCs
- S Subjects divided between Centre and Provinces

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. Further firsts: Dyarchy, separate budget, women's vote via PLCs, nominated seats for Depressed Classes.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- British India:
  - Centre = CLA (life 3 yrs) + CoS (life 5 yrs)
  - Provinces = PLCs (life 3 yrs)
- Elected majority and direct elections in CLA, CoS and PLCs.
- No UAF (universal adult franchise)
- R2V linked with income criteria. 1st: R2V to women. "Number of seats: not imp".
- Practice: CLA elections 1920 → 1923 → ...

TEACHER'S BOARD

- GOI 1919 applied only to British India and NOT to the 565 Princely States.
- GOI 1935 was intended to apply to the whole of India.
- From RA 1773 to GOI 1919 the constitutions were for British India only.

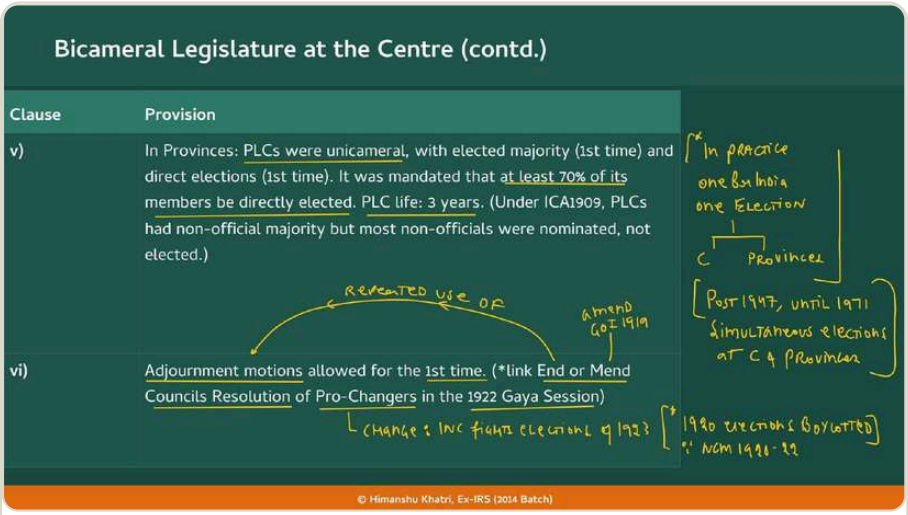
HANDOUT NOTE

Bicameralism was only for British India. Only the GOI Act 1935 extended the framework to Princely States in an all-India federation.



Adjournment motions, End or Mend and the 1923 elections Lecture 34 slide 13

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Adjournment motions link to the "End or Mend" Councils resolution of the Pro-Changers at the 1922 Gaya Session ("mend" = amend GOI 1919; repeated use of adjournment motions).
- Change: INC fights the elections of 1923. 1920 elections were boycotted because of the NCM 1920-22.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- In practice one British India meant one election, Centre and Provinces together.
- Post 1947, until 1971, simultaneous elections at Centre and Provinces.

3.2 Narendra Mandal: Chamber of Princes

- The Narendra Mandal (Chamber of Princes) was created as an advisory body for the Princely States.
- A key recommendation of the Montagu-Chelmsford Report (1918)
- formally constituted by Royal Proclamation in 1921, not by the GOI Act itself.
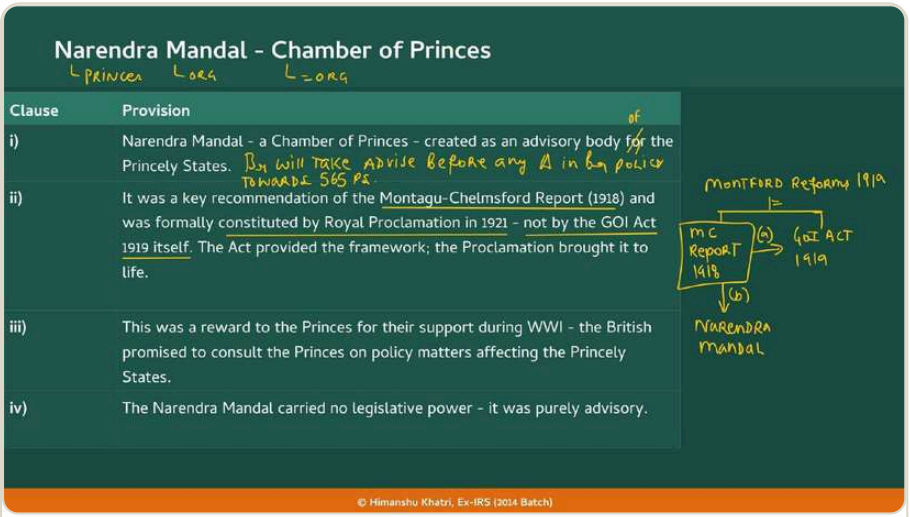
- The Act gave the framework
- The Proclamation brought it to life
- A reward to the Princes for WWI support: the British promised to consult the Princes on policy matters affecting the Princely States.



Narendra Mandal: advisory body born from the Report Lecture 34 slide 15

- It had no legislative power: purely advisory.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The Narendra Mandal is the Princes' own organisation, a body of the Princely States.
- Britain will take advice before any change in British policy towards the 565 Princely States.
- Montford Reforms 1919 = (a) MC Report 1918 → GOI Act 1919, and (b) MC Report 1918 → Narendra Mandal.
- The Mandal therefore comes from the Report, through the Proclamation of 1921.

3.3 Elections and the right to vote

- Right to vote linked to strict income/property criteria, as in ICA 1909.
- Women's franchise: the Act did not directly grant women the vote.

- It empowered Provincial Legislatures to pass resolutions removing the sex disqualification.
- Women admitted to vote had to meet the exact same strict property qualifications as men, so less than 1% of women qualified.

Women's franchise: 1919 against 1935 Lecture 34 slide 17

- No Universal Adult Franchise:
  - The Lucknow Pact of 1916 had demanded a franchise as broad as possible
  - not conceded

HANDOUT ALERT

- Women's franchise, 1919 against 1935. 1919 did NOT directly enfranchise women
- it only let Provincial Legislatures remove the sex disqualification, with the same property/income criteria as men and no lower threshold.
- Voting based on husband's property and a lower income criterion for women came only with the GOI Act 1935.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1919:
  - Same criteria for both
  - 1935: criteria = husband's property and a lower threshold for women.
- Random example:
  - Criteria men Rs 400 from property, women Rs 200 from property
  - husband's property gives Rs 300 → the man has no R2V
  - The wife has R2V (1935 logic). Lucknow Pact 1916 demand unmet

3.4 Separate electorates: expanded and made watertight

- Separate electorates for Muslims continued from ICA 1909, with a critical change.
- ICA 1909: Muslims could vote in Muslim reserved seats and in unreserved seats.

- GOI 1919:
  - Muslims could no longer vote in unreserved seats
  - unreserved seats took only voters on the unreserved rolls. The electorates became watertight.
- Roots in the Lucknow Pact 1916:
  - To forge a united front, the Muslim League gave up its right to vote in general constituencies
  - in exchange the INC accepted separate electorates and a guaranteed, fixed quota of seats for Muslims.

Separate electorates: 1909 against 1919 watertight Lecture 34 slide 18

- The British seized on the communal division logic
- it dovetailed with Divide and Rule.
- GOI 1919 created strictly segregated, watertight rolls and extended the separation to communities the Lucknow Pact never contemplated.
- Extended to Sikhs, Anglo-Indians and Christians, all with watertight rolls: they could vote only in their own reserved constituencies, not in unreserved seats.

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR COMMUNITIES WITH WATERTIGHT ROLLS

S C A M

Separate rolls were a communal SCAM, Divide and Rule sold as representation.

S Sikhs: new in 1919
C Christians: new in 1919
A Anglo-Indians: new in 1919
M Muslims: continued from 1909, now watertight

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.
Depressed Classes got nominated seats, not a separate roll.

Axis	ICA 1909	GOI 1919
Communities	Muslims	Muslims + Sikhs + Anglo-Indians + Christians
Muslim voter	Votes in Muslim (reserved) seats AND general seats	Only Muslim seats
Other voters	General seats	Only their own seats (Sikh, Anglo-Indian, Christian) or general seats
Rolls	Muslims on both the Muslim and the general rolls	Watertight

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1909 (for Muslims):
  - Muslims vote in both M (reserved) and General
  - The rest vote in General only. 1919 (Muslims + Christians + Sikhs + Anglo-Indians): watertight electorates: Sikh voters only Sikh seats
  - Muslim voters only Muslim seats
  - General voters only general seats. "In line with LP 1916".
- LP 1916 was for Hindus and Muslims only, not for Sikhs.
- Value-addition: if separate electorates were an important landmark for Pakistan, then Britain also laid the foundation of the Khalistan issue.
- Sikhs, A-I and Christians do not vote in UR/Gen seats.

Depressed Classes: nominated seats and the 1935 comparison Lecture 34 slide 21

- Depressed Classes (Lower Castes): reservation of nominated seats, not elected seats, in all legislatures.
- Since the legislature had an elected majority, the nominated share was inherently small.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Dalits: nominated seats (a small crescent of the circle), against the large elected part.
- GoI 1935: Dalit seats in elected seats, 18% at the Centre.

3.5 Division of subjects between Centre and Provinces

- Subjects were divided between Centre and Provinces for the first time.
- Not a federal distribution: no formal lists (no 7th Schedule of COI 1950).
- The Centre could still take away any subject from a province or legislate upon it at will.
- Provincial Budget separated from Central Budget for the first time.

Division of subjects: first time, but no lists Lecture 34 slide 22

- Land Revenue (LR) to Provinces
- Customs and Income Tax retained by the Centre.
- Seats in CLA and CoS allocated to Provinces not by population but by perceived importance: Punjab weighted for military importance, Bombay for commercial importance.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Subjects = sovereign functions / affairs (initials on the board: D, C, FA, Fin, Rev, Home, Health etc.).
- Seats by importance, not population = "not in line with democracy".
- Budget (BD) = statement of income and expenditure.
- Till 1919 the Centre prepared the BD of the Centre and the BDs of the Provinces of British India
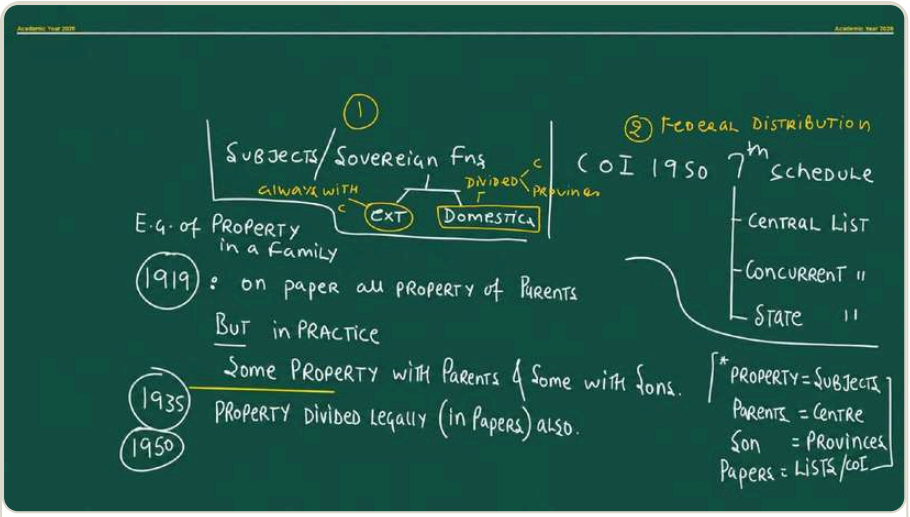
- from 1919 the Provincial Budget was separate



Subjects: sovereign functions, family-property analogy and the 7th Schedule Lecture 34 slide 23

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board 1: subjects / sovereign functions split into External (always with the Centre) and Domestic (divided between Centre and Provinces).
- Board 2: federal distribution = COI 1950 7th Schedule: Central List, Concurrent List, State List.
- Family-property analogy: 1919: on paper all property is of the parents, but in practice some property is with the parents and some with the sons. 1935 and 1950: property is divided legally (in papers) also.
- Key:
  - Property = Subjects
  - Parents = Centre
  - Sons = Provinces
  - Papers = Lists / COI.

3.6 Viceroy's Executive Council (VEC)

- The Act removed the statutory maximum limit on ordinary members of the VEC.
- (ICA 1861: 5 ordinary members; 1874 amendment: 6.)
- By convention (not statutory): the VEC normally had Viceroy + Commander-in-Chief + 6 ordinary members = 8, of whom 3 of the 6 ordinary members were Indians.
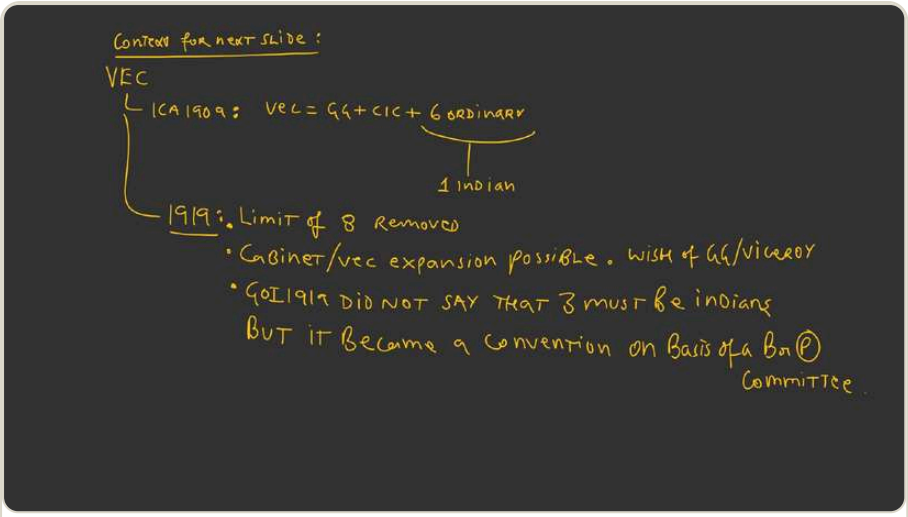
- A political practice, not a legal requirement.



VEC: ICA 1909 against 1919, limit of 8 removed Lecture 34 slide 25

- The Lucknow Pact 1916 demanded that half the VEC be Indians
- 3 of 8 = demand unmet.

TEACHER'S BOARD

ICA 1909: VEC = GG + CIC + 6 ordinary, of which 1 Indian. 1919: limit of 8 removed; expansion of the Cabinet/VEC possible at the wish of the GG/Viceroy. GOI 1919 did not say that 3 must be Indians; it became a convention on the basis of a British Committee (one initial in its name is unclear: check your notebook).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Source of the cap. The handout dates the 6-member cap to the 1874 amendment (5 under ICA 1861)
- The board writes it under ICA 1909 (GG + CIC + 6, one Indian)
- Both give 8 in all, and Chapter 31 records the VEC as the "same since 1874"
- Use the handout's dating and the board's numbers

3.7 Powers of the Viceroy: no responsible government at the Centre

- Was the VEC responsible to the legislature?
- No. It was not accountable to the legislature.
- "Responsibility" has a technical meaning: a Minister must be an elected Member of Parliament and is accountable through the No Confidence Motion.
- None of this existed for the Central Executive.
- Morley (on ICA 1909):
    - "There is no intent of Responsible Govt in India." The August Declaration promised "progressive realisation"
    - GOI 1919 was only the 1st step, and the Centre was not made responsible.
- The Viceroy kept these powers:

MNEMONIC · THE VICEROY'S RETAINED POWERS

V E R B S

The Viceroy had the last VERBS: action words over every bill and rupee.

- V Veto over all bills
- E Executive order: ordinance valid 6 months
- R Rejected bills approved
- B Budget cuts restored
- S Spending: 75% of the budget non-votable

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

No.	Power	Meaning
i	Veto over all bills
ii	Approve rejected bills	Could pass bills rejected by CLA/CoS
iii	Ordinance power	Law by executive order, valid 6 months
iv	Restore cuts in grants	Override budget votes
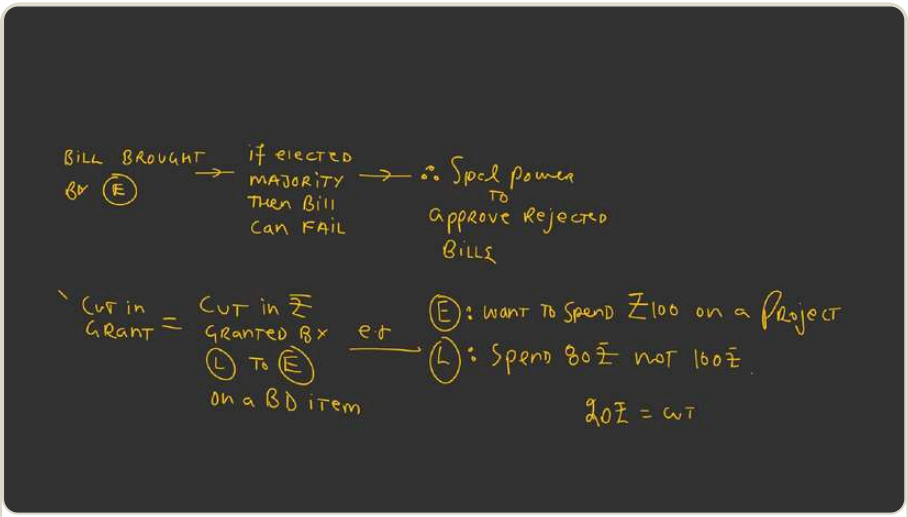
v	75% of budget items non-votable	Legislature could discuss but real financial control stayed with the executive



Viceroy's special powers: approve rejected bills and restore cuts Lecture 34 slide 30

TEACHER'S BOARD

- E = Executive, L = Legislature. Bill brought by E → if the legislature has an elected majority the bill can fail → hence the special power to approve rejected bills.
- Cut in grant = a cut in the rupees granted by L to E on a budget item.
- Example:
  - E wants to spend Rs 100 on a project
  - L says spend Rs 80, not Rs 100
  - Rs 20 = the cut. The Viceroy could restore it
- Budget:
  - "vote on individual items" (the votable part)
  - 75% of BD non-votable.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Taxation Without Representation: taxes must be approved by elected MPs.
- The old colonial grievance continued after 1919: Indians were taxed but had no real control over how the money was spent.

3.8 Simultaneous ICS exam and the Public Service Commission

- The Act mandated that the ICS examination be held simultaneously in India alongside England
- The first examination in India was held in 1922.
- Section 96C mandated a Public Service Commission for India
- set up in 1926 with Ross Barker as first Chairman (direct ancestor of the modern UPSC)
- A gradual increase to 33% Indians in senior civil service positions.
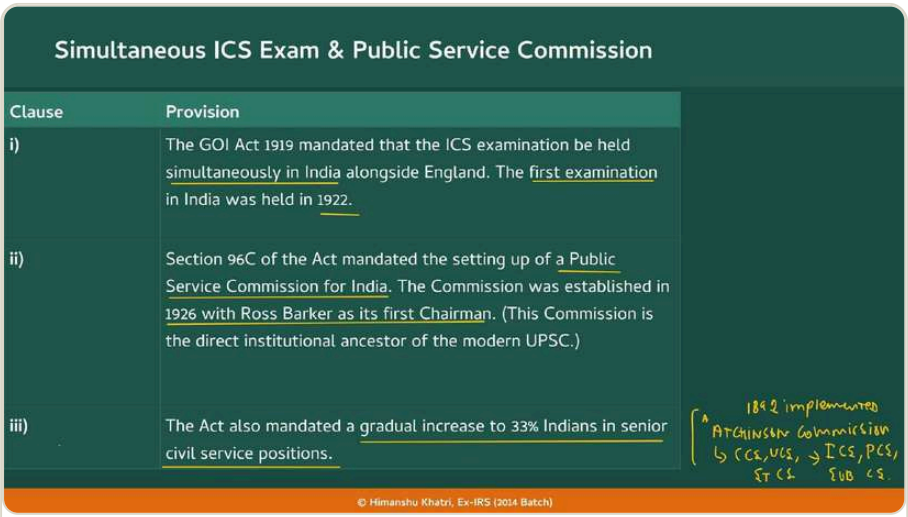
- Since the Act divided subjects between Centre and Provinces (Dyarchy), the ICS was split into All India Services (AIS) and Central Civil Services, the structure we see today, continued and modified by the Constitution.



Simultaneous ICS exam, PSC and the 1892 Aitchison board Lecture 34 slide 32

TEACHER'S BOARD

1892 implemented the Aitchison Commission: CCS and UCS became ICS, PCS and Subordinate CS (a further abbreviation on the board is unclear: check your notebook; see Chapter 18). If IT and Customs are revenue sources for the Centre, then the civil servants who collect IT and Customs should be under the Centre's control; so today also IRS = Central CS.

HANDOUT ALERT

Examiner-tested anchors. Prelims 1995 (Partition 1905 → Lucknow Pact 1916 → Rowlatt Act 1919 → Dyarchy via GOI 1919); 2012 (principal features); 2017 (Dyarchy = division of the subjects delegated to the provinces); 2022 (Reserved = Justice + Land Revenue + Police, NOT Local Self-Govt). Solved in Section 7.

4 · Dyarchy at the provincial level: the most debated feature

STORY LINK

Because the Centre could not be made responsible yet, the experiment moved to the provinces. Ask: who got which half, and could ministers actually govern?

- What was Dyarchy? "Dyarchy" = dual rule (Dy = Two; Archy = Top Authority).
- At the provincial level all subjects were split into two categories, Reserved and Transferred, governed by different authorities.

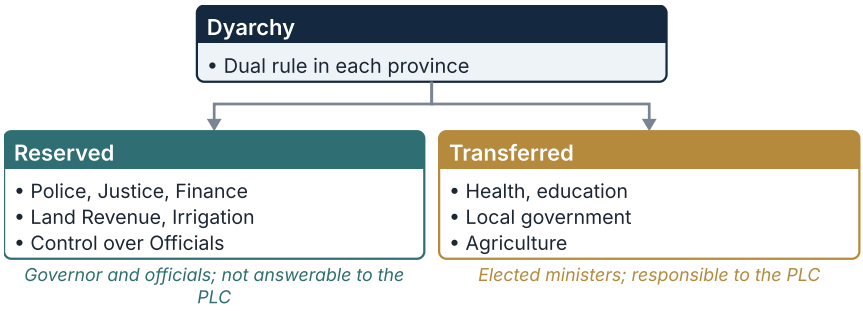
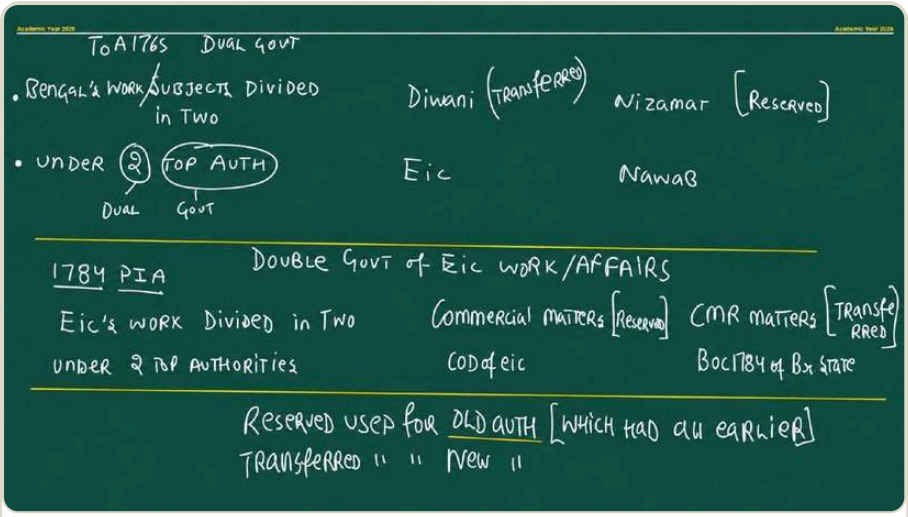
DYARCHY: TWO HALVES OF PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT





Earlier dual governments: ToA 1765, PIA 1784 and Reserved/Transferred
Lecture 34 slide 36

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Dyarchy = "2 TOP AUTHORITIES" (2 = Dual, Top Auth = Govt).
- ToA 1765 Dual Government:
  - Bengal's work divided in two under two top authorities: Diwani (Transferred) with the EIC
  - Nizamat (Reserved) with the Nawab.
- PIA 1784 double government of the EIC's affairs:
  - EIC's work divided in two: Commercial matters (Reserved) with the Court of Directors of the EIC
  - CMR matters (Transferred) with the Board of Control 1784 of the British State.
- "Reserved" is used for the OLD authority (which had everything earlier)
- "Transferred" for the NEW authority.
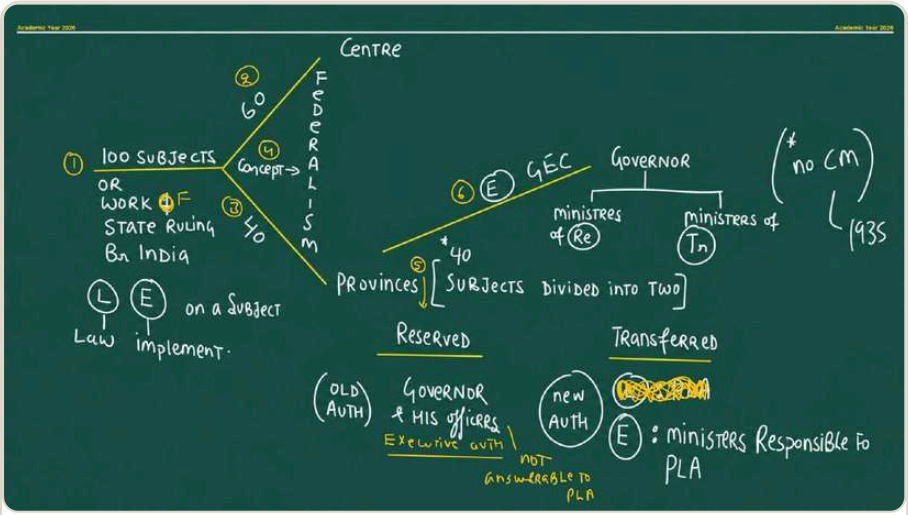
- See Chapter 10 and Chapter 17.



Dyarchy board: subjects, Centre, Provinces, Governor and ministers
Lecture 34 slide 37

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Subjects = the work of the State ruling British India (illustration: 100 subjects).
- L = law-making, E = implementing on a subject.
- Illustration: 100 → 60 to the Centre + 40 to the Provinces = the concept of FEDERALISM.
- Provinces' 40 subjects are divided into two: Reserved and Transferred.
- Reserved = OLD authority:
  - The Governor and his officers
  - Executive authority, not answerable to the PLA.
- Transferred = NEW authority: E = ministers responsible to the PLA.
- The Governor (E; board shorthand GEC) has ministers of Re and ministers of Tn
- no CM under 1919 (1935 brings the CM).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Reserved executive. The handout says Reserved subjects were run by the Governor and his unelected Executive Councillors
- the board calls them "ministers of Re" responsible to the Governor, not to the PLA.
- Same meaning: unelected and unaccountable to the PLC.

4.1 Reserved subjects

- Politically important:
  - Law &amp
  - Order i.e. Police, Administration of Justice, Finance, Land Revenue, Irrigation, and Control over Officials.
- The PLC had formal law-making power, but the Governor held absolute veto and certification powers to pass rejected bills.
- Executive powers lay with the Governor and his officials (unelected Executive Councillors), completely unaccountable to the PLC.
- Why Irrigation was Reserved: the major canal systems that created the Punjab Canal Colonies were State-funded public works (unlike early railway expansion, financed substantially by private British capital under State guarantees).
- Irrigation was closely linked to Land Revenue, water rates and rural administration.
- The British argued the small electorate, dominated by landlords, could not yet be trusted with these rural matters.
- Keeping it Reserved let British officials retain control over provincial revenue
- in Punjab it also allowed canal-colony lands to be granted to military veterans and loyal rural elites.

MNEMONIC · RESERVED SUBJECTS

F O C A L

The Governor kept the FOCAL points of power.

- F Finance
- O Order: Law and Order i.e. Police
- C Control over Officials
- A Administration of Justice
- L Land Revenue (with Irrigation attached)

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. The handout adds Irrigation as a sixth Reserved subject, tied to Land Revenue.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Irrigation on the summary card. The handout's detailed list (Section 4.1) and the Mains skeleton include Irrigation
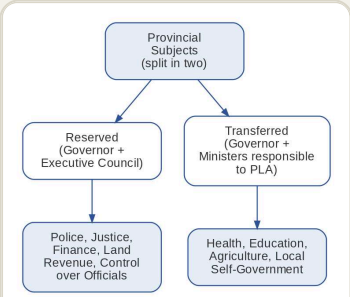
- the slide summary card lists Reserved as Police, Justice, Finance, Land Revenue, Control over Officials without Irrigation
- Learn the six
- PYQ 2022 only tests Justice, Land Revenue and Police



Reserved and Transferred subjects: who ran each half handout figure

HANDOUT ALERT

- Board mnemonic for Prelims 2022. The board mnemonic reads "Power = [rupee sign] + [small drawing] + POL + SoWUL"
- The drawing and the last word are unclear
- Readable parts:
  - The rupee sign sits beside Land Revenue
  - POL = Police

4.2 Transferred subjects

- Less politically sensitive: health, education, local government, agriculture.
- (Land Revenue stayed Reserved while Agriculture was Transferred: the British reserved the revenues while transferring the tension.)
- Legislative power on Transferred subjects was with the PLC.
- Administered by elected Ministers responsible to the PLC

- the Governor had to appoint Ministers from among the elected members of the PLC.

MNEMONIC · TRANSFERRED SUBJECTS

H A L E

Ministers got the HALE subjects: healthy-sounding, soft ones with no purse.

- H Health
- A Agriculture
- L Local government
- E Education

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. Local Self-Government is Transferred (Prelims 2022 trap).

TEACHER'S BOARD

Direct elections → the party that gets a majority will send ministers to handle Transferred subjects.

Axis	Reserved	Transferred
Subjects	Politically important: Law & Order (Police), Justice, Finance, Land Revenue, Irrigation, Control over Officials	Less sensitive: health, education, local government, agriculture
Law-making	PLC had formal power; Governor held absolute veto and certification	PLC
Executive and accountability	Governor and unelected officials; not responsible to the PLC	Elected Ministers responsible to the PLC

4.3 Why Dyarchy was a problem in practice

- Indian ministers got the politically less important subjects (health, education, agriculture) but no control over finance or officials.
- Without money and control over the bureaucracy they could not govern even the Transferred subjects.
- When they failed to deliver they became unpopular, exactly as the British designed.
- Goal: hurt the legitimacy of Indian ministers and show Indians could not govern, delaying the demand for full responsible government.
- On failure of constitutional machinery the Governor could take over executive and legislative powers over Transferred subjects as well.
- Ministers from the PLC could be overruled by the Governor on any matter.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Examples of "failure of constitutional machinery":
  - No party gets a majority
  - MG's boycott of the Legislature.
- Contrast: today there are no Reserved subjects, so every minister has to be an MLA first.

4.4 Dyarchy today

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Today all subjects at the Province level are Transferred:
  - L = SLA
  - E = ministers responsible to the SLA.
- Today a form of Dyarchy exists in "UT with Legislature".
- Difference:
  - Today the LG acts on the aid and advice of the Central Government, which is a fully responsible government
  - not the case in GOI 1919.

5 · Why were INM leaders dissatisfied?

MNEMONIC · SIX GROUNDS OF INM DISSATISFACTION

D R E A M S

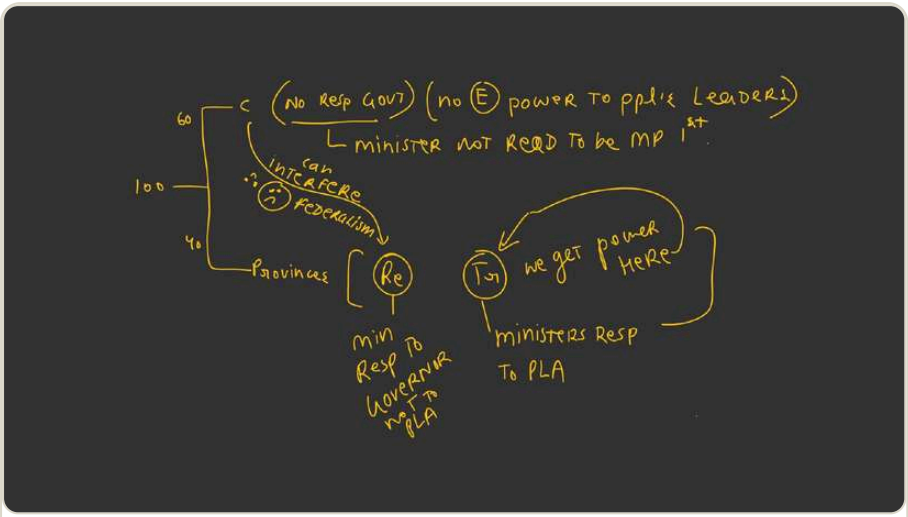
The INM's DREAMS of Swaraj outran a half-step.

D Division of subjects: not true federalism (5.1)
R Responsible government missing at the Centre (5.4)
E Effective self-government missing (5.6)
A Adult franchise missing: income-linked vote (5.3)
M Mockery of federalism by Dyarchy (5.2)
S Seats by importance, not population (5.5)

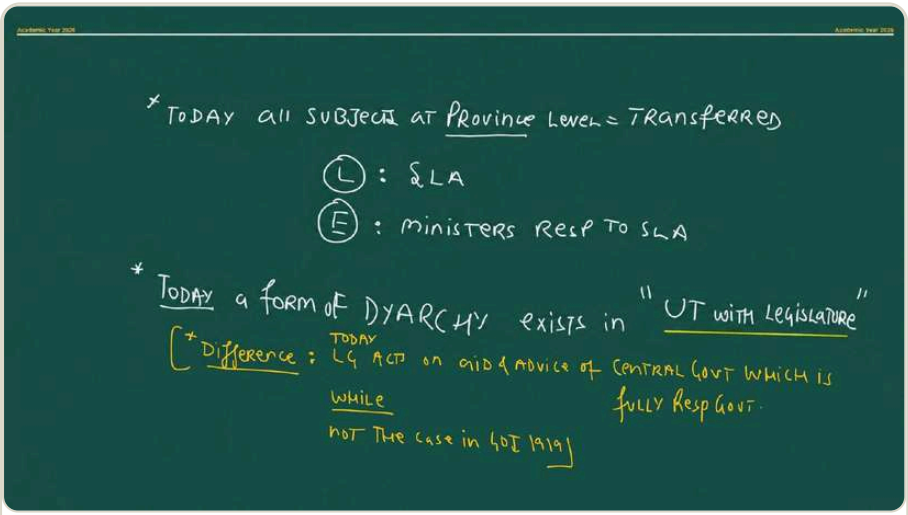
Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

STORY LINK

Because the half-step fell short of the Lucknow Pact and Swaraj, the INM listed its grievances. Learn them as DREAMS.



Dissatisfaction: Centre irresponsible, Reserved interfered, Transferred the only gain Lecture 34 slide 48



Today: all provincial subjects Transferred; Dyarchy in UT with Legislature Lecture 34 slide 39

No.	Ground of dissatisfaction	Detail
5.1	Unsatisfactory division of subjects	Not true federalism: the Centre retained overriding power. (Hence Federalism, sad.)
5.2	Dyarchy mocked federalism	The Governor, as agent of the Centre, kept control over Reserved subjects
5.3	No Universal Adult Franchise	Right to vote income-linked, far short of the Lucknow Pact 1916 demand of "as broad as possible"
5.4	No fully responsible government	Partial only in the provinces (Transferred), none at the Centre

No.	Ground of dissatisfaction	Detail
5.5	Seats by importance, not population	In CLA and CoS (to Provinces)
5.6	No effective self-government	Better than the limited self-government of ICA 1909, far from Swaraj (INC goal since the 1906 Calcutta Session)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Extra point on 5.1: the division of subjects between Reserved and Transferred was itself unsatisfactory: Transferred = politically less imp.
- Board: 100 subjects = 60 Centre (no responsible government; no executive power to the people's leaders; a minister is not required to be an MP first) and 40 Provinces.
- The Centre can interfere in Reserved, so federalism suffers.
- Re: ministers responsible to the Governor, not to the PLA.
- Tr: ministers responsible to the PLA: "we get power here".

Self-government scale: 1909 limited SG, 1919, Swaraj Lecture 34 slide 49

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Scale of self-government: No SG → Ltd SG (1909) → 1919 (franchise unsatisfactory; no responsible government at the Centre; partially responsible government at the Provinces) → SG.
- Seats allocated "to Provinces" by importance.

6 · GOI Act 1919: summary card

Provincial details	PLCs: elected majority, direct elections, 3-year life

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Dyarchy = partially responsible government. Viceroy powers:
  - "restore cuts in grants"
  - The 75% non-votable is of the BD (budget).
- Beside Women's franchise: "Thank you Sarojini Naidu".
- "Royal Proclamation 1921" stressed for the Narendra Mandal.
- Separate electorates: Sikh, A-I, Christians do not vote in UR/Gen seats.

HANDOUT NOTE

The handout page ends with the index of the next chapter (Gandhiji in South Africa, Sections 1 to 8), which belongs to Chapter 35; it is not part of this chapter.

- (a) includes Local Self-Government and drops Police
- (b) counts Local Self-Government as Reserved and omits Justice
- Local Self-Govt is the odd one out: Transferred.
- The board adds a mnemonic that is partly unclear (see the alert in Section 4.1).

7.9 Prelims 2026: Montford and community alliances

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "T" after every statement: answer (d) 1, 2 and 3.
- Statement 1: 1919 made separate electorates watertight and extended them to Sikhs, Anglo-Indians and Christians.
- Statement 2: it fitted British Divide and Rule against a nationalism that had just united Hindus and Muslims (Lucknow 1916).
- Statement 3: the Depressed Classes got nominated seats, so every community had a favour to rally around.
- (a) stops at 1
- (b) drops 1, the core (Muslim separate electorate retained and made watertight)
- (c) drops 3
- The same question is also solved in Chapter 31.

From the Report to Dyarchy

- 1918 Report: Montagu and Chelmsford 16-21 recommend reform
- 1919 Act:
  - Parliament enacts it
  - Centre: two houses, elected majority
  - Viceroy keeps VERBS
- Provinces: Dyarchy: Reserved (Governor, FOCAL) and Transferred (ministers, HALE)
- Ministers: no purse, no staff, Governor can overrule

Chapter 31: Rise of Organised Muslim Politics & the Morley-Minto Reforms

ICA 1909 is the baseline: non-official majority only in PLCs, separate electorates for Muslims, VEC with one Indian (S.P. Sinha); the Prelims 2026 PYQ is solved there too.

Chapter 33: Home Rule League Movement (1916-18) & Lucknow Pact (1916)

The Lucknow Pact demands (SG at an early date, broad franchise, half the VEC Indian, separate electorates) are the yardstick for the Act's dissatisfaction.

Chapter 32: Ghadar Movement (1913-15)

One of the pressures (1913-15) on the road to the Act.

Chapter 29: The Extremists and the Swadeshi Movement (1905-11)

Swadeshi 1905-08 and the Partition of Bengal 1905 open the chain in PYQ 1995.

Chapter 30: Revolutionary Activities and Repression of Extremists

Revolutionaries 1907-15 and the Delhi Conspiracy Case add to the pressure on Britain.

Chapter 37: Champaran, Ahmedabad, Kheda, Rowlatt Satyagraha and Gandhian Era (1920+)

Rowlatt, Jallianwala, Khilafat and the NCM surround the Act; the 1920 elections were boycotted.

1935 fixes what 1919 left: lists of subjects, husband's property for women, Dalit elected seats, Dyarchy at the Centre, all-India federation.

Chapter 17: Constitutional History of EIC's British India (1773-1858)

RA 1773 to GOI 1935 as one constitutional series; the Double Government of PIA 1784 is the board's analogy for Reserved and Transferred.

Chapter 10: Battle of Plassey 1757 & Battle of Buxar 1764

The Dual Government of ToA 1765 (Diwani, Nizamat) is the first "Reserved and Transferred" split.

Chapter 18: EIC Administration: Judiciary, Civil Services, Police

Aitchison Commission 1892 tiers, Islington 25% and the 33% of 1919.

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Four population groups (Bantus 70%, Europeans 18%, Mixed 9%, Asians 3%); teacher's SAf = CNOT; Memon Muslim traders versus indentured labourers
- Pietermaritzburg 1893; Franchise Amendment Bill 1894 and Immigration Law Amendment Bill 1895 (leave, re-indenture, or £3 poll tax)
- Natal Indian Congress 1894 versus INC 1885; Indian Opinion; Phase 1 petitions, prayers, press
- Phoenix 1904 (Ruskin, Unto This Last) and Tolstoy Farm 1910; Black Act 1906 (RC); Transvaal Immigration Restriction Act 1907
- Gokhale 1912 (Poll Tax and RC); 1913 Christian-marriage judgement, march of 2,000, Kasturba arrested, Hardinge 10-16; the three 1914 concessions; Prelims 2019: Gandhi and indentured labour

MAINS HOOKS

- Satyagraha was born in South Africa; Champaran 1917 was its first use on Indian soil
- Two phases: Constitutional (1896-1906) like the INC Moderates, Extra-Constitutional (1906-1915)
- The Satyagrahi's five-clause code (teacher: iDeal indian Bf/Husband; goal = irritate the villain)
- Poll Tax Campaign and the 1913 turn to a mass movement; Phoenix to Tolstoy to the Indian ashrams
- South Africa as the laboratory for Champaran, Kheda and Dandi

Natal and Transvaal were the laboratory: the code, the training farms and the mass method were all tested there before 1915.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Injustice, then a method, then a mass movement, then victory: an ejection and two Natal laws (injustice) lead to petitions (Phase 1), then to Satyagraha (the method) built on a code and two training farms, then to the 1913 turn (mass), and finally to the three-demand settlement of 1914 (victory).

1. A barrister, a ticket and a platform (1893). Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi arrives in South Africa as a young barrister hired for a commercial case of a Memon Muslim merchant. At Pietermaritzburg station he is ejected from a first-class compartment solely for being Indian, despite a valid ticket. The humiliation on the cold platform becomes his political catalyst.

   → So he resolves to fight, not to endure.

2. The community asks him to stay. He planned a short stay, but the Indian community was leaderless and had no educated advocate who understood both law and their grievances. He was the only person who could fight within the system, so he stays: a short visit becomes twenty-two years (1893 to 1915).

   → Soon two Natal laws give him his first fight.

3. Two Natal laws (1894-95). The Franchise Amendment Bill 1894 would strip Indians of the vote on racial grounds: taxation without representation, like the American colonists of 1776. The Immigration Law Amendment Bill 1895 forces an indentured labourer, after his contract, to leave, re-indenture for two more years, or pay a poll tax of £3 a year.

   → Gandhiji answers within the law.

4. Petitions, prayers and the press (1896-1906). He founds the Natal Indian Congress, modelled on the INC, and the newspaper Indian Opinion. His methods are petitions, prayers and public meetings: a Moderate in South Africa, like the INC Moderates at home.

   → But the government is unmoved by petitions.

5. Satyagraha is born (1906). By 1906 he concludes that constitutional methods are not enough, and that the answer must be direct but non-violent. A true Satyagrahi is truthful, non-violent, fearless, ready to accept suffering and loving to the wrongdoer. In 1904 he had already founded Phoenix Settlement near Durban, inspired by Ruskin's Unto This Last.

   → Now a law arrives that tests the method.

6. The Black Act and the broken promise (1906-14). The Asiatic Law Amendment Act 1906 forces every Indian in Transvaal to carry a Registration Certificate, on pain of fine, jail and deportation. The government offers to withdraw it if Indians register; Gandhiji registers first, and the promise is broken. He leads a bonfire of RCs and Jail Bharo through the Passive Resistance Association.

   → The government now closes the borders.

7. Caged within provinces (1907-08). The Transvaal Immigration Restriction Act 1907 bars movement from Cape, Natal and Orange Free State into Transvaal. Indians cross illegally, refuse bail and hawk without licence to fill the jails; Gandhiji is jailed in 1908.

   → A long struggle needs a base.

8. Tolstoy Farm and Gokhale (1910-12). In 1910 Tolstoy Farm near Johannesburg becomes the residential base for Satyagrahis and their families, part ashram and part training ground: Phoenix, then Tolstoy, then the Indian ashrams. In 1912 Gokhale visits, the government promises repeal and breaks the promise, and Gokhale advises focus on two demands: abolish the Poll Tax and the RC.

   → Then a court ruling lights the fuse.

9. 1913: the movement goes mass. The Poll Tax Campaign brings indentured labourers in. A Supreme Court judgement recognises only Christian marriages, so Hindu and Muslim wives are legally not wives. Indians cross into Transvaal illegally, Kasturba Gandhi is arrested, 2,000 workers march, and all workers strike.

→ Pressure now comes from India as well.

10 Gokhale tours India; Hardinge 10-16 speaks. Gokhale travels across India building public opinion, and Viceroy Hardinge 10-16 publicly condemns the South African government: unprecedented pressure from within the British Empire. The South African government comes to the table.

→ So the talks end in a settlement.

11 Victory and return (1914-15). The government concedes all three demands: the Poll Tax is abolished, the RC requirement is dropped and Indian marriages are validated. Gandhiji returns to India in January 1915 as a leader who had won, having learned that mass civil disobedience works. The laboratories of Natal and Transvaal would be deployed at Champaran, Kheda and Dandi.

In simple words

- Gandhiji came to South Africa in 1893 for a case and stayed 22 years after he was thrown out of a first-class compartment at Pietermaritzburg.
- Two Natal laws, the Franchise Bill 1894 and the Immigration Bill 1895 (a £3 poll tax), led him to found the Natal Indian Congress and start petitions, prayers and the press (Phase 1).
- When petitions failed, Satyagraha was born (Phase 2, 1906 on): a bonfire of Registration Certificates against the Black Act, Jail Bharo, illegal border crossings and hawking, with Phoenix and Tolstoy Farm as training bases.

- In 1913 the poll tax, the Christian-marriage judgement, Kasturba's arrest, a march of 2,000 and a strike made it a mass movement, and Hardinge 10-16 condemned South Africa.
- The 1914 settlement conceded all three demands and Gandhiji sailed home in January 1915 with the method that he would use at Champaran, Kheda and Dandi.

Key term	In plain words
Indentured labour	Contract-bound, tied labour: a step above slavery in name only
Memon Muslims	Traders and merchants who came to South Africa voluntarily
Taxation without Representation	Paying taxes with no say in who governs: the grievance behind the 1894 Franchise Bill, like 1776
Poll tax	£3 a year on ex-indentured labourers who neither left nor re-indentured (1895)

Jail Bharo	Courting arrest to fill the jails
Passive Resistance Association	The body through which the RC Satyagraha ran
Phoenix and Tolstoy Farm	Gandhiji's 1904 and 1910 communal settlements, precursors of his Indian ashrams

PYQs on this topic

Year and paper	What was asked	The answer or trap	Where in this chapter
Prelims 2019	Three statements: (1) Mahatma Gandhi was instrumental in the abolition of the system of Indentured Labour; (2) in Lord Chelmsford's War Conference Gandhi did not support the resolution on recruiting Indians for the World War; (3) after the breaking of the Salt Law the INC was declared illegal. Options: (a) 1 and 2 (b) 1 and 3 (c) 2 and 3 (d) 1, 2 and 3	(b) 1 and 3. Statement 1 is true (the handout's "examiner-tested anchor"). Statement 2 is false: at the April 1918 Delhi War Conference Gandhi did support recruitment. Statement 3 is true: the INC was declared illegal after the Salt Law was broken in 1930. Only statement 1 comes from this chapter	Section 2 (indentured labour) and the exam traps at the end

1 · Who was in South Africa, and why did it matter?

STORY LINK

Story so far: a stratified society (70, 18, 9, 3) in which Indians are the smallest group. Ask: who came free and who came bonded?

- The Union of South Africa of the late 19th century was a stratified society.

- Its population fell into four groups:

NUMBER CARD · SOUTH AFRICA'S POPULATION

70 · 18 · 9 · 3

Bantus, Europeans, Mixed, Asians: the shares shrink and add to 100.

70% Indigenous Bantus
18% European settlers
9% Mixed race
3% Asians (indentured labour after 1890)

Group	Share
Indigenous Bantus	roughly 70%
European settlers	18%
Mixed race	9%
Asians	3%

- The Asians were brought in as indentured labourers, a practice that accelerated after 1890 when white settlers recruited cheap labour from India and elsewhere.

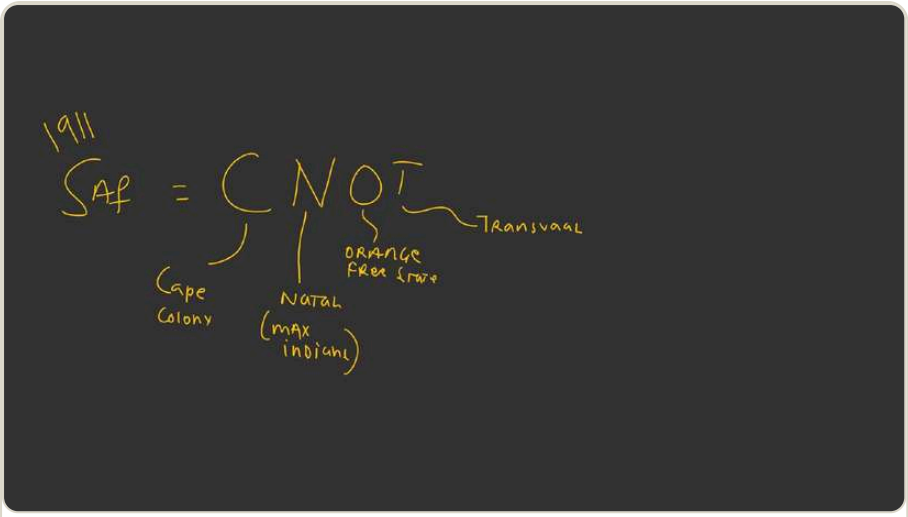
MNEMONIC · SOUTH AFRICA'S FOUR PROVINCES (TEACHER'S MNEMONIC)

C N O T

The teacher wrote it on the board in 1911: SAf = CNOT.

C Cape Colony
N Natal (maximum Indians)
O Orange Free State
T Transvaal

The teacher's own mnemonic, kept exactly as given. The 1907 Act barred movement from Cape, Natal and Orange Free State into Transvaal.



South Africa in 1911: Cape, Natal, Orange Free State, Transvaal Lecture 34 slide 88

TEACHER'S BOARD

1911: SAf = CNOT = Cape Colony, Natal (max Indians), Orange Free State, Transvaal. Natal had the most Indians.

1.1 Two kinds of Indians

Group	Who they were
Memon Muslims	Traders and merchants who came voluntarily
Indentured labourers	Men and women brought under bond contracts (essentially tied labour), arriving in numbers after 1890 to work on sugar plantations and in mines. Legal standing precarious, rights minimal, voice nearly non-existent

- Indentured labour was a step above slavery in name only.
- A labourer signed a contract, usually without fully understanding it, binding him to an employer for a fixed term under conditions he could not easily escape.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Examiner-tested anchor (Prelims 2019): Mahatma Gandhi was instrumental in the abolition of the system of Indentured Labour.
- Full question in the Exam lens.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Handout chart adds a third group: ex-indentured Indians (completed contract, settled in South Africa).
- Grievances by group:
  - Indentured = bond-tied labour
  - Free-passage Memon traders = Black Act 1906 (RC, fingerprinting) and the Transvaal Immigration Restriction Act 1907
  - ex-indentured = £3 poll tax (1895 Immigration Law) and the Franchise Bill 1894.
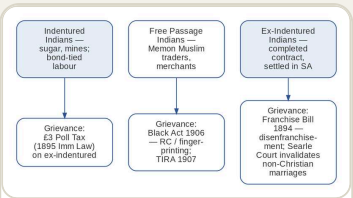
- The chart also lists the court judgement that invalidated non-Christian marriages (1913, section 6).



Handout chart: three Indian groups and their grievances handout figure

2 · How did Gandhiji end up staying?

STORY LINK

Because an ejected barrister decided to fight, and because a leaderless community asked him to stay, a short visit became twenty-two years. Ask: what made him stay?

- Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi arrived in South Africa in 1893 as a young barrister, hired to handle a commercial legal case for a Memon Muslim merchant.
- Shortly after landing, at Pietermaritzburg railway station, he was ejected from a first-class compartment solely for being Indian, despite holding a valid ticket.
- The humiliation of that night on the cold platform became his political catalyst: the moment he resolved to fight racial discrimination rather than quietly endure it.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Stressed: "ejected from a first-class compartment solely for being Indian" and "resolved to fight racial discrimination rather than quietly endure it".

- He had planned a brief stay. The Indian community, leaderless and without any educated advocate who understood both law and their grievances, persuaded him to stay on.
- He was the only person who could fight for them within the system.
- A short visit became twenty-two years (1893 to 1915), years that forged the methods and the man who would transform India's independence movement.

3 · What started the struggle? The two trigger laws

STORY LINK

Because Natal wanted to cut the Indians out of politics and out of the colony, two laws provoked his first response. Ask: what did each law take, the vote or the livelihood?

- Two laws of the 1890s directly provoked Gandhiji's first political response in South Africa.

3.1 Franchise Amendment Bill, 1894 (Natal)

- The Bill sought to disenfranchise Indians, to strip them of the Right to Vote.
- Some Indians had earlier qualified by a wealth criterion (property above a certain value).
- The 1894 Bill aimed to close that door entirely, purely on racial grounds.
- Later scholars called this "Taxation without Representation" (TWR) in a different form: Indians paid taxes and contributed to the economy but were denied any say in who governed them.
- Compare the American colonists' grievance against Britain in 1776: taxed by a Parliament in which they had no voice.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Stressed: "This Bill sought to disenfranchise Indians".

3.2 Immigration Law Amendment Bill, 1895 (Natal)

- The law gave indentured labourers a brutal choice on completing their contract:

Option	What it meant
1	Leave South Africa
2	Re-indenture for two more years
3	If neither, pay a poll tax of £3 per year, a large sum for a labourer on bare subsistence wages

MNEMONIC · THE 1895 POLL-TAX CHOICES, IN ORDER

Labourers Rarely Prosper

- L Leave South Africa
- R Re-indenture for two more years
- P Pay a poll tax of £3 a year

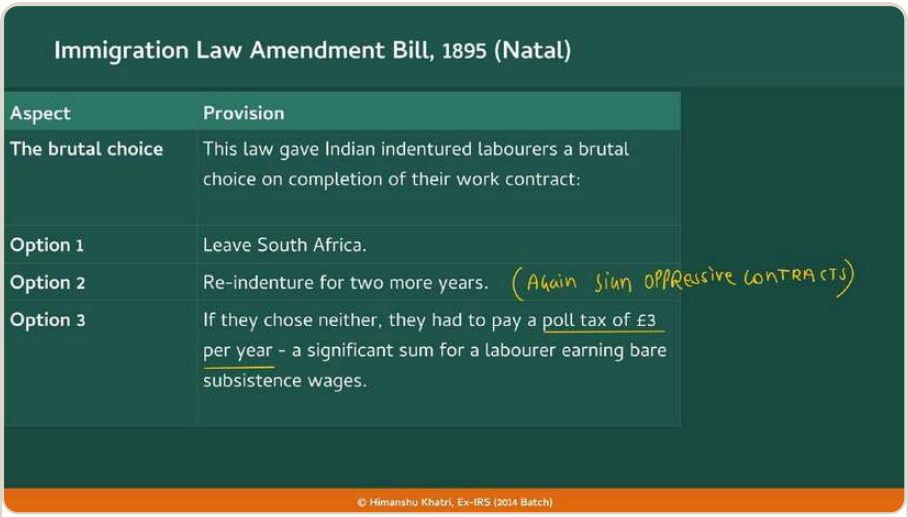
Order kept: options 1, 2 and 3 of the Immigration Law Amendment Bill 1895.



Immigration Law Amendment Bill 1895: leave, re-indenture or pay Lecture 34 slide 89

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Option 2 = "again sign oppressive contracts".
- Stressed: "poll tax of £3 per year".

- The tax was not about revenue. It was about making Indian settlement economically unsustainable: go back, sign another bond, or pay an annual penalty "just for existing".

4 · Phase 1: the Constitutional struggle (1896-1906)

STORY LINK

Because he first trusted the law, he behaved like an INC Moderate. Ask: how is the NIC different from the INC?

- Gandhiji's early response was entirely within the law: petitions, prayers and public meetings (the handout: "petitions, prayers, and press").
- He founded the Natal Indian Congress (NIC), modelled on the Indian National Congress at home, to give the community a formal, organised political voice.
- He launched the newspaper Indian Opinion to document and publicise Indian grievances.
- Approach: moderate, respectful, constitutional: appeal to the conscience of the rulers, expose injustice by argument, trust that reason would prevail.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Board shorthand: NIC beside Natal Indian Congress; Np (newspaper) beside Indian Opinion.

- This phase echoes the Moderates of the INC in India at the same time: petitions, prayers and press.
- Gandhiji was, in spirit, a Moderate in South Africa before he became something far more in India.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Exam trap. The Natal Indian Congress (1894) and the Indian National Congress (1885) are separate bodies founded in different countries.
- Gandhiji founded the NIC
- He did not found the INC.

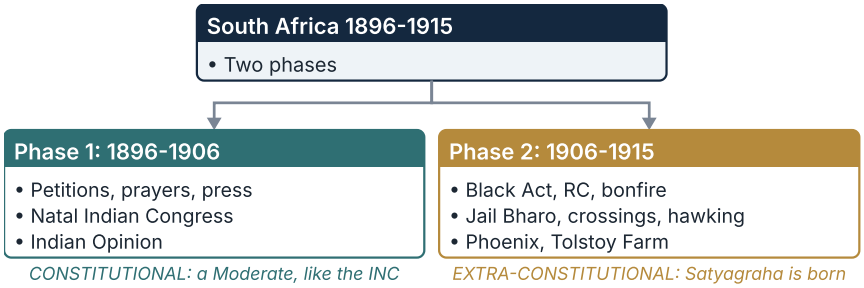
5 · Phase 2: the Extra-Constitutional struggle (1906-1915)

TWO PHASES OF THE STRUGGLE



STORY LINK

Because petitions failed, a new method was needed: Satyagraha. Ask: what code and which training grounds did it need?

- By 1906 Gandhiji concluded that constitutional methods alone were not enough: the government was unmoved by petitions.
- Something more direct was needed, but it had to remain non-violent.
- This was the crucible in which Satyagraha was born.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Exam trap. Satyagraha was first developed and deployed in South Africa, not India.
- Gandhiji brought it to India only after 1915
- the Champaran Satyagraha (1917) was its first use on Indian soil

5.1 What is a Satyagrahi?

- Satyagraha was not passive submission: it was active, disciplined resistance grounded in a specific personal code. A true Satyagrahi must be:

Clause	The code
i	Truthful in word, action and intention
ii	Non-violent absolutely, even under provocation
iii	Fearless: willing to face arrest, imprisonment and physical suffering
iv	Ready to accept suffering, not to inflict it
v	Loving toward the wrongdoer: hate has no place

The Satyagrahi's code: five clauses with board notes Lecture 34 slide 95

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Truthful: gives courage and credibility of the demand. Non-violent: longer movement, greater participation. Fearless: willing to bear violence.
- Loving: Gandhiji had faith in the humanity of the evil-doer, who will realise his mistakes sooner or later if we follow Satyagraha.
- "Goal of Satyagrahi = IRRITATE THE VILLAIN".
- "Mnemonic for exam": "iDeal indian Bf/Husband".

- Standard:
  - Not "protest when convenient"
  - It demanded a complete transformation of the individual.
- An undisciplined Satyagrahi was a contradiction in terms.

5.2 Phoenix Settlement (1904)

- 1904: inspired by John Ruskin's *Unto This Last, Gandhiji founded the Phoenix Settlement near Durban.
- Residents lived and worked together, practising self-reliance and simple living.
- Indian Opinion was also printed here.
- It was his 1st communal living experiment, the philosophical precursor to Tolstoy Farm (1910) and later his ashrams in India (link Chapter 36: Ruskin's influence on Gandhian ideology).

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Stressed: "John Ruskin's Unto This Last" and "Tolstoy Farm (1910)".

5.3 Satyagraha against Registration Certificates (1906-1914)

- The Asiatic Law Amendment Act 1906, bitterly called the Black Act, was passed by the Transvaal government.
- It required every Indian to carry a Registration Certificate (RC) at all times.
- Failure to produce it on demand meant fine, imprisonment and deportation.
- The RC was a physical identity card to be produced to any authority: "an instrument of racial surveillance".

Black Act 1906: Registration Certificate compulsory Lecture 34 slide 98

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Stressed: "Registration Certificate (RC)". Margin: "COMPULSORY VIDAI" [second word uncertain: check your notebook].

- The government offered to withdraw the law if Indians registered voluntarily.
- Gandhiji, in good faith, was the first to register, leading by example.
- The government broke its promise.
- Response: a bonfire of Registration Certificates, then courting arrest ("Jail Bharo").
- The struggle ran through the Passive Resistance Association.

5.4 Satyagraha against immigration laws (1907)

- The Transvaal Immigration Restriction Act 1907 barred Indians from moving freely between provinces (from Cape Province, Natal or Orange Free State into Transvaal): Indians were "physically caged" within provincial boundaries.
- Response: Indians crossed provincial boundaries illegally, courted arrest and refused bail.
- Indians in Transvaal hawked without a licence, a minor illegal act committed deliberately to fill the jails.
- Gandhiji was jailed in 1908
- the prisons overflowed
- Strategy: make enforcement so costly that the government must negotiate.

5.5 Tolstoy Farm (1910)

- 1910: extended struggle costs morale, families and livelihoods, so Gandhiji founded Tolstoy Farm, a communal settlement near Johannesburg, as a residential base for Satyagrahis and their families during the passive phases.
- Named after the Russian writer Leo Tolstoy, whose ideas on non-violent resistance influenced him.
- Part ashram, part training ground: residents learned self-reliance (farming, crafts, basic trades).
- If you are fearless and self-sufficient, the government has fewer levers against you.
- This is the seed of the ashram model in India.
- Progression: Phoenix Settlement (1904) → Tolstoy Farm (1910) → Sabarmati/Sevagram in India, each building on the last.

5.6 The visit of Gokhale (1912)

- Gopal Krishna Gokhale, Gandhiji's political mentor and a leading Moderate of the INC, visited South Africa in 1912.
- The government, impressed by his stature, promised that discriminatory laws would be repealed.
- After he left, the promise was broken.

- His advice: focus on two emotionally resonant demands: abolition of the Poll Tax (under the Immigration Law) and abolition of the Registration Certificate (under the Black Act).
- These two hit every Indian household and could mobilise the masses.

6 · The Poll Tax Campaign and the final countdown (1913)

> STORY LINK
> Because Gokhale had narrowed the demands to those every household felt, 1913 made the struggle mass. Ask: which two classes joined this year?

- By 1913 the movement was at a turning point: the Poll Tax Campaign gave it a mass character.
- Until then it was led by educated Indians (lawyers, merchants, community leaders).
- The poll tax hit the indentured labourer directly, so the working class joined.
- 1913 Supreme Court judgement: only Christian marriages were legally valid.
- Hindu, Muslim and other rites were not recognised: Indian wives were legally not wives, their children potentially illegitimate.
- The community was outraged: the struggle was now about family, dignity and religious identity, not just taxes and documents.

6.1 Events during the final struggle

- The sequence was the closest thing to a mass uprising the community had seen:

Step	What happened
1	Illegal crossing into Transvaal: Indians openly defied the Transvaal Immigration Restriction Act
2	Kasturba Gandhi arrested, which galvanised the whole Indian worker community
3	Gandhiji led a march of 2,000 workers into Transvaal; arrested marchers rejoined after release, swelling numbers
4	All Indian workers across the province went on strike: economic disruption became impossible to ignore
5	Gokhale travelled across India, building public opinion and political pressure
6	Viceroy Hardinge 10-16 publicly condemned the South African government: unprecedented pressure from within the British Empire
Result	The South African government came to the table; talks were held with Gandhiji

7 · Outcome: what did Gandhiji win?

STORY LINK

Because the pressure now came from workers, wives, India and the Viceroy, the government gave in on all three. Ask: which demand did not return?

- The negotiations ended with the government conceding all three key demands:
- i) Poll Tax abolished: the £3 annual penalty on ex-indentured labourers who chose to stay was removed.
- ii) Registration Certificates: the Black Act requirement was dropped.
- iii) Indian marriages validated: Hindu, Muslim and other rites were given legal recognition.

Poll Tax abolished (Gokhale's demand 1)
RC dropped (Gokhale's demand 2)
Marriages Indian marriages validated (the 1913 grievance)

- Each win had a direct, concrete impact on thousands of families.
- Gandhiji returned to India in January 1915, "not as a defeated petitioner but as a leader who had won".

- Lessons:
    - Mass civil disobedience works
    - ordinary people, not just elites, can be the soldiers of a non-violent movement
    - The State's most powerful weapon, the law, is neutralised when people accept its punishment without fear.
- The laboratories of Natal and Transvaal produced the experiments deployed at Champaran, Kheda, Dandi and beyond.

- Gandhi's rejection of the Industrial Revolution and his village economy; Trusteeship against Marx and Ambedkar
- Why Satyagraha was strategically effective; why Swaraj was left undefined (Jinnah and Tagore)

Gandhi's ideology was a moral politics: a stateless ideal, a village economy and Satyagraha, held together by truth, non-violence and an inclusive Swaraj.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Ideology comes first: Gandhi's cultural nationalism and moral critique of the West give him a stateless, village-based ideal, and Satyagraha (rising tempo, control, S-CW-S, an undefined Swaraj) is the method that carries ordinary people towards it.

1. Why start with ideology. Modern politics has goals, plans, a programme, leadership, voice and money, and the root of all of them is ideology. Gandhi is the Father of the Nation because he brought the masses (religions, castes, genders, regions, ethnicities) into a movement to establish a Nation State, though his was the maximum contribution, not the only one.

   → So where do we read his mind? In one book.

2. Hind Swaraj and a cultural nationalist. Hind Swaraj (1909) was written on a ten-day sea voyage as a dialogue between a Reader and an Editor. Gandhi stood in the tradition of Dayanand's Arya Samaj (1875), Vivekananda's Ramakrishna Mission (1897) and Bankim, but he took it further: he dressed and spoke like the masses, used Ram Rajya, Sita and Draupadi, and used religion to mobilise.

   → Was he then against everything modern?

3. Not anti-modern, but moral. Gandhi criticised Western modernity, built on industrial capitalism, the profit motive and the coercive State, not reason or science. Western civilisation was Godless, and Indians enslaved themselves when doctors, lawyers and railways became instruments of an alien system looting India. He called an act immoral (adharma), not merely illegal.

   → If the State is coercive, what should replace it?

4. A stateless ideal. Gandhi's end-goal, like Marx's, was a stateless society, but through Enlightened Anarchism: every individual his own master, morality in place of law. He wanted direct democracy and Village Republics, with the Gram Sabha (Article 243) as the living legacy, and he accepted parliamentary democracy with a weak State only as a transition. Ambedkar replied that a strong State with constitutional law protects the oppressed.

   → And the economy under such a polity?

5. The village economy. He wanted a village-based, self-sufficient economy modelled on ancient India, rejecting the Industrial Revolution that uproots villagers into factories. Almost everyone else was pro-IR; Mao turned against it in 1958 for a different reason. Land should come by voluntary gift: Vinoba Bhave's Bhoodan (Telangana, 1951).

   → But what of capitalists?

6. Trustee and arbitrator. He did not want capitalists abolished: under Trusteeship the owner holds the enterprise for the welfare of workers and community, so ownership stays and purpose changes. Disputes go to Arbitration: reveal the truth of both sides, then a middle path. The same method united Moderates and Extremists in 1920.

   → The method for politics is Satyagraha.

7. Satyagraha and its two principles. Satyagraha, truth-force, is Non-Cooperation, Civil Disobedience, Constructive Work, Non-Violence and Morality, with a Satyagrahi who is truthful, fearless, non-violent, ready to suffer and morally superior. He would not gain from the evil doer's weakness (he backed Britain in both wars) and hated breach of promise (Montague 1917, Rowlatt Act 1919).

→ How did he run a movement?

8 Tempo, control, truce. He began with lighter forms and escalated; he insisted on a controlled mass movement and withdrew the NCM after Chauri Chaura (22 policemen, February 1922). The truce was never idle: Constructive Work filled it, so S-T-S was really S-CW-S, a lineage from the Ramakrishna Mission to Sabarmati.

→ Why did it work?

9 Why it worked, and an undefined Swaraj. Satyagraha united Moderates and Extremists (Surat 1907), let common men and women join, and made repression a propaganda disaster. Gandhi never defined Swaraj, so a peasant, worker, woman and nationalist could each find their own meaning; Jinnah and Tagore were uneasy about this.

→ Where did the ideas come from?

10 Five influences. Ruskin's Unto This Last (1862) gave Sarvodaya and the Phoenix Settlement (1904); Tolstoy (1894) gave non-resistance and the Tolstoy Farm (1910); Thoreau (1849) gave civil disobedience; the Gita gave Nishkama Karma; the Sermon on the Mount gave love of the enemy. The mix made Satyagraha a universal method.

→ And the record of his life?

11 Fasts, writings, jails. Nine fasts run from Ahmedabad 1918 to Delhi 1948, including the Epic Fast 1932 (Poona Pact, 71 to 147) and the 1933 temple-entry fast. His papers run from Indian Opinion 1903 and Hind Swaraj 1909 to Young India 1919 and Harijan 1933. Ten arrests run from 1906 to Quit India 1942, with the 1922 trial as the only major trial in India.

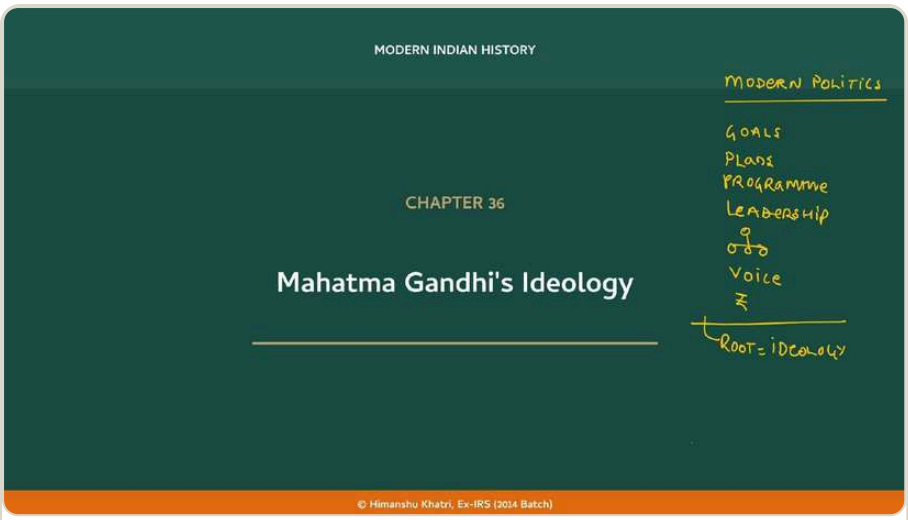
0 · Why ideology: the root of modern politics

STORY LINK

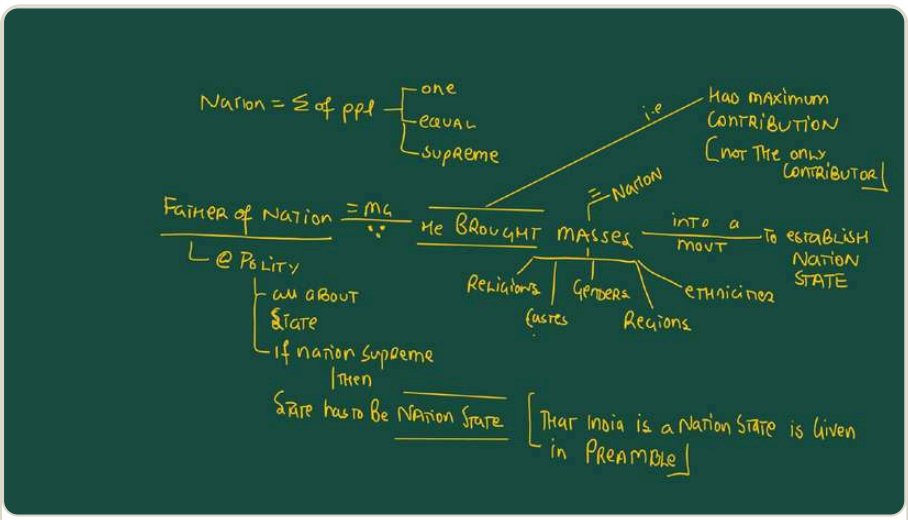
Because movements grow from beliefs, this chapter comes first. Ask: why does a chapter on movements begin with ideas?



Modern politics: goals, plans, programme, leadership, voice, money; root = ideology Lecture 35 slide 1

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Modern politics has goals, plans, programme, leadership, voice and money.
- The root of all of these is ideology, so Gandhi's ideology comes before his movements.



Father of the Nation, nation and Nation State Lecture 35 slide 2

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Nation = sum of people: one, equal, supreme.
- Father of the Nation = MG because he brought the masses (religions, castes, genders, regions, ethnicities) into a movement to establish a Nation State.
- He had the "maximum contribution", not the only contribution.
- Polity is all about the State: if the nation is supreme, the State has to be a Nation State, and that India is a Nation State is given in the Preamble.

1 · Hind Swaraj (1909): the most authentic source

> STORY LINK
> Because ideology is the root, we need the source of his mind. Ask: what kind of book is Hind Swaraj, and why is it called authentic?

- Before the mass movements (Non-Cooperation, Civil Disobedience, Quit India), understand what Gandhi believed and what kind of India he wanted.
- Hind Swaraj (1909) is the most authentic source of his ideology.
- It was written during a ten-day sea voyage and is structured as a dialogue between a "Reader" and an "Editor".
- In it Gandhi takes positions that were unconventional then, and remain so today.

2 · What kind of nationalist was Gandhi?

> STORY LINK
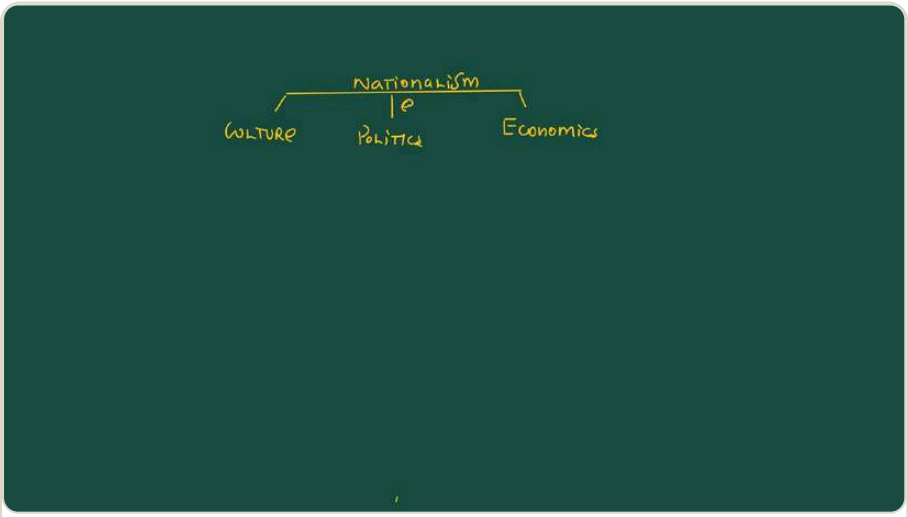
> Because the book shows a nationalist of culture, not just politics. Ask: whose tradition did he stand in, and how did he go further than Tilak?

- Gandhi was a Cultural Nationalist, in a tradition built over decades before he arrived.



Nationalism has three aspects: culture, politics, economics Lecture 35 slide 4

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Nationalism has three branches: culture, politics, economics.

2.1 The tradition before him

- British racism (Indian civilisation "primitive and inferior") stimulated cultural nationalism: Indians answered that their civilisation was equally worthy of pride.
- Contributors: Swami Dayanand Saraswati and the Arya Samaj (1875), Swami Vivekananda and the Ramakrishna Mission (1897) and Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay.

Cultural nationalism: culture, values and the way of life Lecture 35 slide 6

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Cultural nationalism = identity rooted in civilisation, culture and shared heritage, not race, language or territory alone
- Different from political nationalism (the demand for self-governance)
- Culture = art, music, paintings, religion, folk lore, literature, historical heroes, festivals, spiritual questions and philosophies, all expressing the values they represent, the way of life.
- Values help resolve ethical dilemmas in economy, society and geopolitics.
- The way of life covers economic, political and cultural life
- Culture covers social relations, art, religion.
- Point 3: "India is a civilization".

2.2 How Gandhi took it further

- He dressed like the masses, spoke their language and invoked symbols they understood.
- Ram Rajya was not a sectarian claim: it was a shared civilisational vocabulary across class and caste.
- Sita and Draupadi as icons of suffering and resilience drew women, till then spectators, into the national movement.
- He used religion to mobilise, because in India religion is a stronger social bond than class.
- The Moderates, with petitions aimed at the Western-educated middle class, never grasped this.

- He took cultural nationalism into a concrete economic and political programme: this made him unique among cultural nationalists.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Ram Rajya = a society with no oppression: no gender-based, caste-based or religion-based oppression.
- Religion used to mobilise masses: similar to the Extremists, different from the Moderates.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Contrast with linguistic communalism: MG = Gujarati, yet the 1920 Nagpur Session of the INC said use Hindi as far as possible (board tag: "utilitarianism").

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Extremists:
  - Tilak = Ganapati festival 1893
  - Bankim = Bharat Mata (an ideologue, not a politician)
- They believed in a secular use of religion.

Religion stronger than class: many "isms" to organise a society Lecture 35 slide 11

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A society can be organised in multiple ways, like seating a school class in rows.
- "isms" are chashmas (spectacles)
- Our ism = nationalism.
- The rows: communalism (value neutral: H, M, S, C, Bu, Atheist; racism sits under it), linguistic nationalism (L1 to L7), casteism, genderism (feminism, patriarchal, LGBTQ), class-ism (landed, capitalist, ryot, factory worker, artisan), regionalism.
- In India the religion row binds the most people.

2.3 Gandhi, Tilak and Tagore

- Tilak used religion too: Ganesh Chaturthi (1893) and Shivaji Festival (1896).
- Difference:
  - Tilak's mobilisation built a relatively combative nationalism
  - Gandhi's aimed at universal inclusion across all communities.
- Tagore shared the love of Indian civilisation but feared mass religious nationalism could slide into dangerous intolerance.
- Gandhi: you cannot raise consciousness before you first mobilise the people.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Tilak's festivals = "CULTURE (not RELIGION)"
- Shivaji Festival = the day of his coronation
- Gandhi's own hymn line: "Ishwar Allah tero naam".
- Board tag beside Tagore's fear: "[UTILITARIANIST]".

3 · Was Gandhi anti-modern?

STORY LINK

Because a cultural nationalist might seem to reject everything new, the chapter clears the doubt. Ask: what exactly did he criticise?

- He was not anti-modern. He criticised Western modernity: industrial capitalism, the profit motive as sole purpose and the coercive State.
- His critique was of its content, not of reason, science or human progress.

TEACHER'S BOARD

This is cultural nationalism at work: the coercive State = strong centralised State; Western civilisation is "Godless" = morality-less.

3.1 The moral critique

- Modern Western civilisations are Godless: their only motive is profit, with no concern for morality.
- Gandhi's persistent language of morality links to the pre-1857 and 1857 resistance movements, framed in moral and religious terms (British rule as polluter of the Indian moral order).
- He updated this resistance for modern politics.
- Self-criticism: Indians are responsible for their own enslavement: Indian minds were enslaved by capitalism, and doctors, lawyers and railways became instruments of an alien economic system looting India.

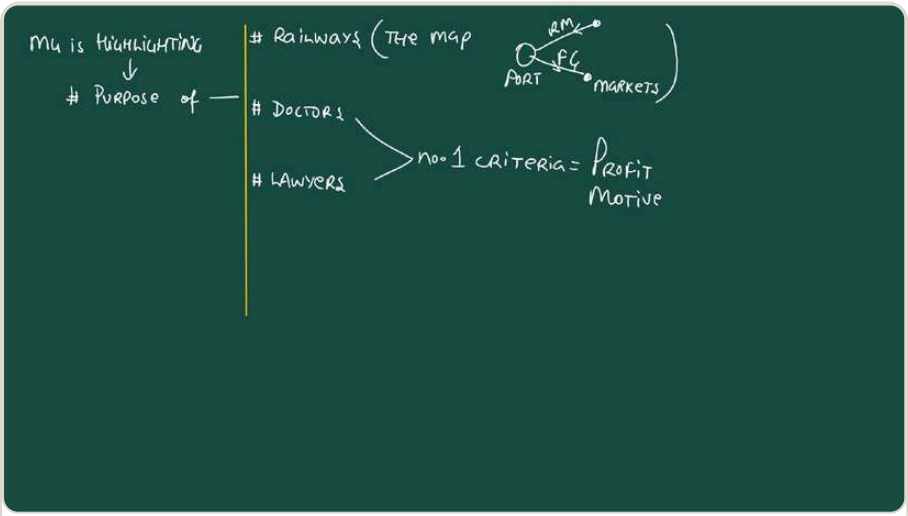
MNEMONIC · GANDHI'S CRITIQUE OF THE WEST

M O R A L

Gandhi's critique of the West was MORAL, not anti-science.

M Minds of Indians enslaved by capitalism
O dOctors: instruments of a profit-driven system
R Railways: ports linked to raw materials and markets
A lAwyers: the same profit motive, looting India
L godLess civilisation: only motive is profit, no morality

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. Letters come from key words inside the items.



Purpose of railways, doctors and lawyers: profit motive first Lecture 35 slide 16

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Gandhi highlights the purpose of railways, doctors and lawyers.
- Railways: a port linked by lines to raw materials (RM) and to markets, carrying finished goods (FG).
- Doctors and lawyers: the no. 1 criterion = profit motive.

TEACHER'S BOARD

The pre-1857 and 1857 resistance was in the language of the masses; the point: everyone agreed that British rule is IMMORAL.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A Constitution-minded critic says: "this act is against Fundamental Rights and constitutionalism" (X).
- MG says: "this act is immoral (ADHARMA)" (tick).

3.2 Dayanand and the nation

- Swami Dayanand made the argument decades earlier: Swarajya = Indians enslaved themselves by abandoning their heritage.
- Board: Swarajya = freedom from foreign influence.
- Gandhi extended it into a full economic programme.
- India is a nation since ancient times
- the basis of oneness is civilisation, not race or language as in the Western conception
- Its bond held for millennia without railways or a centralised bureaucracy.
- The British disrupted unity (slide examples: separate electorates; rich-poor divide).

4 · Stateless society and Enlightened Anarchism

STORY LINK

Because the West's State is coercive, he wanted none at all. Ask: how does his stateless society differ from Marx's, and why did Ambedkar object?

- Gandhi believed in a stateless society, reaching the same end-goal as Marx by a different path.

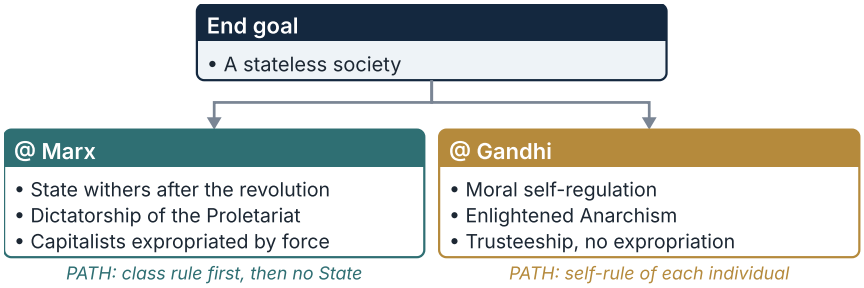
SAME DESTINATION, DIFFERENT JOURNEYS (PRELIMS 2020)



- (Marx: the State withers away after the communist revolution; Gandhi: when individuals reach perfect moral self-regulation.)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- UPSC PYQ marked here (Prelims 2020, below).
- Same end-goal as Marx but different rationale and methods.
- MG's Swaraj = Enlightened Anarchism:
  - Self-rule of each individual
  - His favourite Fundamental Right = individual liberty.
- Marx wanted the Dictatorship of the Proletariat (working class).
- Morality, not State law, guides behaviour
- With perfect self-regulation even multi-party democracy (MPD) is unnecessary

- Swaraj = not just independence from Britain but every individual his own master. The word was taken literally.
- Gandhi wanted self-rule of each individual, not the home rule of the Extremists, the indirect democracy of the Moderates, or the class rule of Marx.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MG: rule of each individual. Marx: rule of the working class.
- So MG is more democratic and wants greater decentralisation.

Swaraj as indirect democracy versus Gandhi's direct democracy Lecture 35 slide 23

TEACHER'S BOARD

Extremists, Moderates, Bose, Nehru, Patel: Swaraj = self-rule = indirect (representative) democracy, which is India today: (1) people elect their representatives; (2) representatives rule (legislature and executive). MG wanted direct democracy.

4.1 Village Republics and the critique of parliamentary democracy

- In place of the strong State-led democracy of the West, Gandhi wanted Village Republics built on direct democracy and mutual cooperation.
- In the Gram Sabha each villager is effectively an MP.
- Article 243 (Gram Sabha as foundation of Panchayati Raj) is Gandhi's most concrete institutional legacy in the Constitution.
- His critique: multi-party democracy leads to the will of political parties, not of the people.
- The voter hands over power every few years and is forgotten.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Direct democracy = every person is MLA/MP and minister.
- That is why MG wanted Village Republics
- In the Gram Sabha MLA/MP = villager.
- Aim: maximum decentralisation of political power to the level of the individual.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Madhya marg: use technology (blockchain, internet) for referendums on certain matters and to seek public opinion, combining direct democracy with MPD.

Power of attorney analogy: rule of the party, not of the people Lecture 35 slide 28

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Voting once in 5 years = a power of attorney to the MP: rule of the political party, not of the people.
- Example:
  - An MP from a constituency of traders
  - A Bill taxes traders and the money helps the poor.
- As MP, how do you vote: Yes or No?

HANDOUT ALERT

- Today's relevance. The handout links the critique to the anti-defection law, party whips overriding an MP's conscience, and the weakening of Parliament as a deliberative body.
- Board: "to rule of parties and not of MPs".

4.2 Gandhi among the leaders

- Tilak and Nehru wanted a strong central State to replace the British State
- Patel built one
- Bose wanted temporary authoritarian rule to remove poverty fast
- Gandhi alone feared State power itself, not only British power.
- Ambedkar's sharpest disagreement:
  - A strong State with constitutional law was the only protection of the oppressed
  - A village republic would be local caste dominance with a romantic name.
- Transitional concession:
  - Gandhi accepted parliamentary democracy with a State as weak as possible until the higher morality for a stateless society arrived
  - Then the State should wither away.
- A concession to reality, not an endorsement.

MNEMONIC · GANDHI'S POLITY: FIVE PIECES

S A V E D

Gandhi's polity would have SAVED the village from rule by parties.

S Stateless society as the ideal

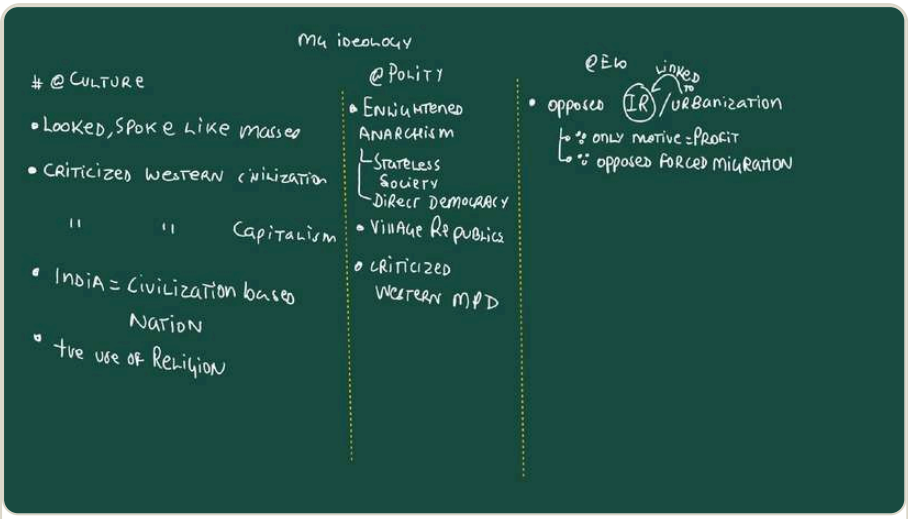
A Anarchism (Enlightened): self-rule of each individual

V Village Republics: direct democracy, Gram Sabha

E Elected representatives: MPD with a weak State as the interim

D Direct democracy: every person his own MP

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.



MG ideology on one board: culture, polity, economy Lecture 35 slide 34

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Culture:
  - Looked and spoke like the masses
  - Criticised Western civilisation and capitalism
  - India = civilisation-based nation
  - Positive use of religion
- Polity:
  - Enlightened Anarchism (stateless society, direct democracy)
  - Village Republics
  - Criticised Western MPD
- Economy:
  - Opposed the Industrial Revolution (IR) and urbanisation
  - Only motive = profit
  - Opposed forced migration

5 · The economic vision: village self-sufficiency

STORY LINK

Because the State was to wither, the economy had to be of villages. Ask: why was he nearly alone against the Industrial Revolution?

- Gandhi wanted a village-based, self-sufficient economy modelled on ancient India.
- The Industrial Revolution uproots rural masses (forced migration) into urban factories where they are dependent, exploited and cut off from their roots.

Village to town to city: the factory as magnet of jobs Lecture 35 slide 36

TEACHER'S BOARD

- A big factory = magnet of jobs.
- Villages around it send people in: village, town, city, with increasing population and homes packed around the centre. Urbanisation is linked to IR.

- On the IR Gandhi stood almost alone: Marx, Moderates, Extremists, Nehru and Ambedkar were all pro-IR.
- Mao turned anti-IR with the Great Leap Forward (1958) to protect communist power from the bourgeoisie that industry creates.
- Gandhi rejected it to protect the moral self-sufficiency of village life: same conclusion, different reasoning.
- Land: Gandhi opposed forceful redistribution (State coercion against morality over law) and favoured voluntary donation by landlords.
- This inspired the Bhoodan Movement of Vinoba Bhave, Telangana, 1951, walking village to village asking landlords to donate land to the landless.

6 · Trusteeship and Arbitration: reforming capitalism without destroying it

STORY LINK

Because he kept capitalists but changed their purpose. Ask: how does the Trust differ from the Company, and how does Arbitration work?

- Gandhi did not demand abolition or expropriation of capitalists.

- Trusteeship: a capitalist holds his enterprise as a trustee for the welfare of his workers and the community.
- The ownership stays
- The purpose of ownership changes.

COMPANY AGAINST TRUST: WHERE DOES THE PROFIT GO?

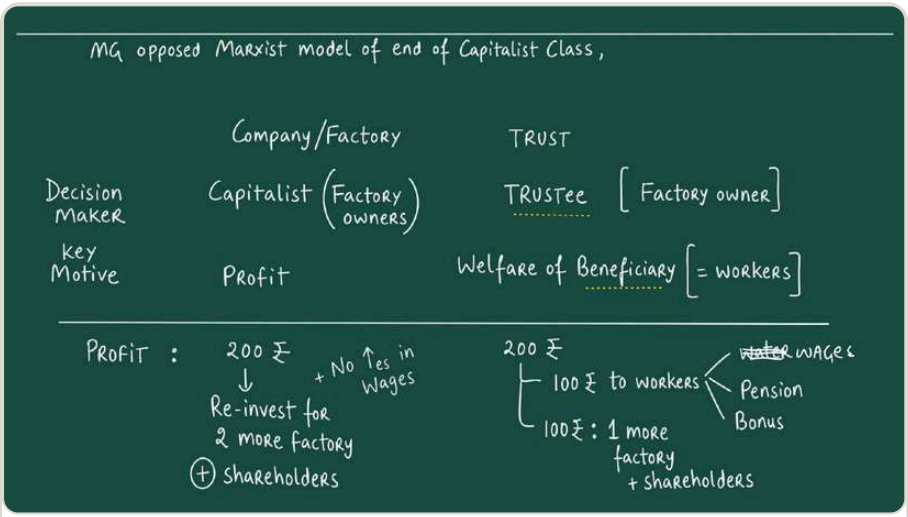
Rs 200 profit
- Who decides, and for whom?

@ Company
- Decision maker: capitalist
- Motive: profit
- Re-invest in 2 more factories plus shareholders
- No rise in wages

PROFIT first

@ Trust
- Decision maker: trustee (the owner)
- Motive: welfare of the workers
- Rs 100 to workers: wages, pension, bonus
- Rs 100: 1 more factory plus shareholders

WELFARE first



Company versus Trust: decision maker, motive, use of profit Lecture 35 slide 40

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MG opposed the Marxist end of the capitalist class.
- Company/factory:
  - Decision maker = capitalist
  - Motive = profit.
- Trust:
  - Decision maker = trustee (the factory owner)
  - Motive = welfare of the beneficiary (= workers).
- Profit example, Rs 200: Company re-invests for 2 more factories plus shareholders, no rise in wages.
- Trust: Rs 100 to workers (wages, pension, bonus) and Rs 100 for 1 more factory plus shareholders.

- Three answers to inequality:
  - Marx called capitalists parasites to be expropriated by force
  - Ambedkar wanted the State to control major industries
  - Gandhi asked capitalists to reform themselves morally.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
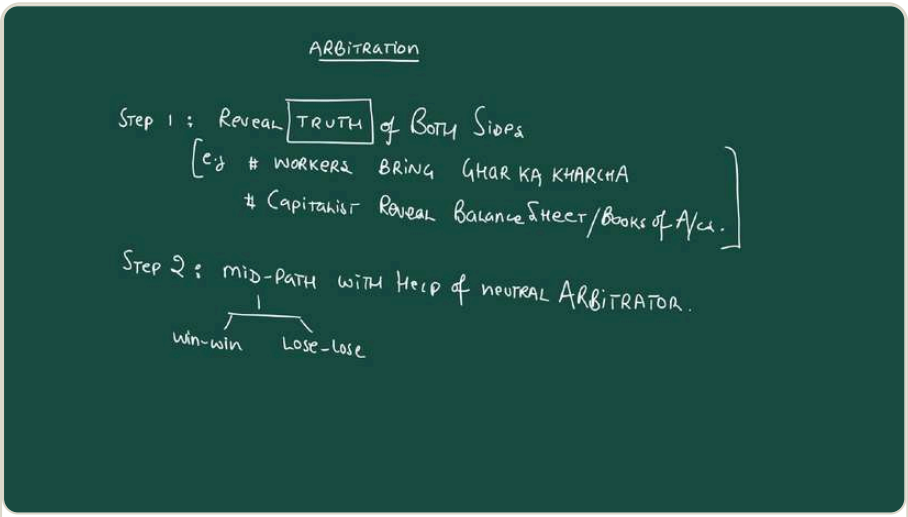
> Those who wanted State control of industries: Ambedkar and also Bhagat Singh, Bose, Nehru (board list; first name partly unclear).

6.1 Arbitration

- Disputes between workers and capitalists: Arbitration, a transparent inquiry into both sides' accounts (the capitalist's balance sheet, the worker's cost of living) for a just middle path, not strikes or lockouts that harden conflict and disrupt the economy.



Arbitration: reveal the truth of both sides, then a middle path Lecture 35 slide 41

> - Step 1: reveal the truth of both sides (workers bring household expenses; capitalist shows balance sheet and books of accounts).
> - Step 2: a mid-path with the help of a neutral arbitrator: win-win, not lose-lose.
> - A lockout = the capitalist locks the factory.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Dispute resolution = arbitration in three steps: (1) inquiry; (2) reveal the truth of both sides; (3) madhyamarg (middle path).

6.2 Arbitration in political form

- In 1920 Gandhi united the Moderates and Extremists, split since Surat (1907), through Satyagraha: Moderates accepted NC and CD

- Extremists gave up violence.

Satyagraha as a middle path between Moderates and Extremists Lecture 35 slide 44

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Moderates = only petition (pen) + non-violence (NV).
- Extremists = pen + NC + CD + CW + violence if repressed.
- Satyagraha = pen and NV, plus NC, CD, CW: each side gave up something, both gained a mass movement.

7 · Universal disarmament: not abstract pacifism

STORY LINK

Because moral politics rejects selective force. Ask: what was the Arms Act 1878 asymmetry he challenged?

- Gandhi favoured universal disarmament, but with a precise Indian context: the Arms Act of 1878 under Viceroy Lytton 76-80 disarmed Indian civilians while exempting Anglo-Indians and Eurasians.
- The colonial State armed itself while disarming the colonised.
- Disarmament is just only when universal, not as a colonial tool of repression.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MG demand: first disarm the British police and the British Indian Army, then it is OK to disarm the masses.
- The idea is also used today in the geopolitics of nukes.

8 · The method of Satyagraha

> STORY LINK
> Because ideals need a method. Ask: what are the five parts of Satyagraha, and why is non-violence also strategic?

- If Gandhi rejected the Moderates' petitions and the Revolutionaries' violence, his method was Satyagraha: literally "truth-force" or "soul-force", an extra-constitutional, non-violent mass struggle.
- A third path: civil disobedience, non-cooperation and peaceful mass non-compliance, with Constructive Work.
- Satyagraha = Non-Cooperation + Civil Disobedience + Constructive Work + Non-Violence + Spirituality/Morality.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - Point 1: Extra-constitutional non-violent (NV) mass struggle.
> - Satyamev Jayate was popularised by Madan Mohan Malviya (Prelims trap).

- Moral logic: the British were militarily superior (never denied), but Satyagrahis could be morally superior.
- Strategic logic:
  - If a Satyagrahi turns violent, the British get a justification for repression ("they attacked first")
  - Non-violence removes it
- It also makes large-scale, long-duration movements possible, because anyone can take part.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Moral logic boosts confidence: God is on the side of morality, so you will triumph.

Why non-violence: higher participation, stronger and longer movement
Lecture 35 slide 48

TEACHER'S BOARD

- NV, then higher participation: the INM comes closer to its name (nation = sum of people).
- NV, then a stronger movement: because participation is higher, and longer, with a lower chance of repression, which gives confidence to join.

8.1 Qualities of a Satyagrahi

Clause	Quality	Why
8.1	Truthful	Truth increases the legitimacy of demands and gives personal courage; nothing to hide
8.2	Fearless	Non-violence is not cowardice; it takes more courage than lifting a weapon
8.3	Non-violent	Widens participation, cuts repression risk, enables bigger and longer movements
8.4	Ready to accept suffering; hate is alien to him; loves the evil doer	Calm dignity and love force the evil doer to confront his own immorality; retaliation gives him a "he attacked me first" escape
8.5	Morally superior	Inner courage and conviction that God is on the side of truth and morality (board: confidence)

TEACHER'S BOARD

On 8.5: God is on their side, so confidence. On 8.4: strategy, not sentiment.

8.2 Bose and Vivekananda

- Bose: "Give me blood, and I shall give you freedom": a nation in chains has no luxury of clean methods.
- Gandhi's implicit reply: a nation born of violence will remain violent. Never fully settled.

MNEMONIC · QUALITIES OF A SATYAGRAHI

S O U L S

Satyagraha is soul-force, and SOULS are what a Satyagrahi needs.

S Suffering: ready to accept it, loves the evil doer
O nOn-violent: wider participation, less repression
U trUthful: legitimacy and personal courage

L fearLess: non-violence is not cowardice

S morally Superior: God is on the side of truth and morality

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word. Letters come from key words inside the items.

- Vivekananda: "Strength is life, weakness is death" is contrasted with non-violence, but both agreed on fearlessness.
- Vivekananda built the inner strength
- Gandhi channelled it into organised mass action.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Vivekananda's inner strength and Gandhi's channelling into mass action meet at "it" = fearless organised action.

9 · Two principles that defined Gandhi's character

STORY LINK

Because method needs character. Ask: why did he support Britain in both wars, and what is breach of promise?

9.1 Do not benefit from the weakness of the evil doer

- Gandhi stood on the side of justice, not merely India.
- He supported Britain in both World War I and World War II, though India was still colonised, and would not exploit Britain's vulnerability.
- A Satyagrahi does not take what has not been earned by moral force.
- Tilak took the opposite, pragmatic position: use WWI as leverage for concessions.
- Bose allied with the Axis powers to fight Britain.
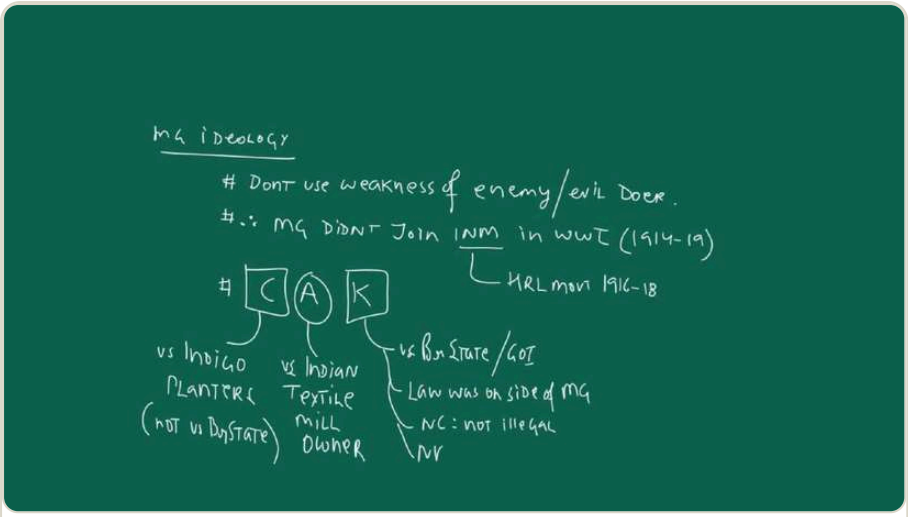
- Gandhi refused both on moral grounds.



MG ideology: do not use the weakness of the enemy; MG and WWI Lecture 36 slide 6

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Do not use the weakness of the enemy or evil doer
- Therefore MG did not join the INM in WWI (1914-19) and stayed out of the HRL movement 1916-18.
- The C-A-K list on this slide (Champaran, Ahmedabad, Kheda) belongs to Chapter 37.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MG would not support the way Karna was killed
- Bose would.
- Justice was on the side of Britain:
  - In WWI Britain was the victim of Central Powers aggression
  - In WWII the victim of Axis aggression

TEACHER'S BOARD

Tilak's use of WWI = the HRL movement 1916-18, pressure for Swaraj; MG did not join the HRL movement.

9.2 He hated breach of promise

- Rooted in his commitment to truth. When the British broke a promise, as with the Rowlatt Act (1919) after Montague's 1917 promise of greater self-governance, his response was a moral response to a moral wrong, not calculated strategy.
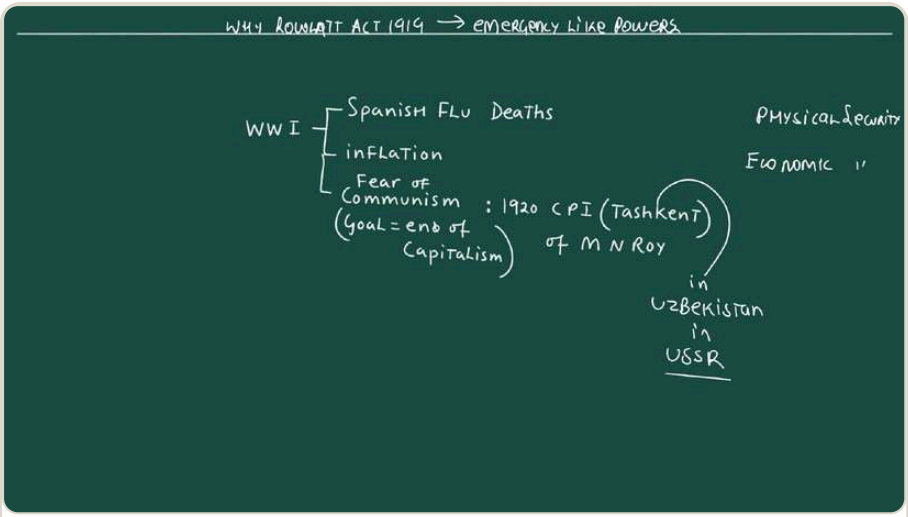
- His entry into each campaign was typically triggered by the gap between what was promised and what was delivered.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Gandhi's response to the Rowlatt Act was the Rowlatt Satyagraha (1919).
- Why did Britain pass the Rowlatt Act (next slide)?



Why the Rowlatt Act 1919: emergency-like powers after WWI Lecture 35 slide 57

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Rowlatt Act = emergency-like powers. Reasons after WWI: Spanish flu deaths, inflation, fear of communism (goal = end of capitalism; the board names the 1920 CPI at Tashkent of M N Roy, in Uzbekistan in the USSR).
- The State needs physical and economic security.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Date on the board. The board links the Rowlatt Act (1919) to the CPI at Tashkent in 1920, a year later.
- Read it as the communist threat the British feared
- Check your notebook

10 · The strategic method: rising tempo, controlled movement, S-CW-S

STORY LINK

Because principles need a plan for running movements. Ask: how do tempo, control and S-CW-S fit together?

10.1 Rising tempo

- Gandhi did not launch Civil Disobedience on day one.

- He began with lighter forms: signature campaigns, public meetings, hartals, and escalated gradually.
- Each refusal to respond gave the movement more moral authority and momentum.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - Order of escalation on the board: pen (petition), NC, CD.
> - Example: NCM (1920-22): plan = one year of NC, and if Swaraj is not achieved in one year, then CD.

10.2 Controlled mass movement

- Gandhi insisted on strict adherence by the masses to the programme decided.
- Spontaneous, uncoordinated agitation led to violence, which he would then have to withdraw.
- Chauri Chaura (February 1922):
  - A mob burned a police station and killed 22 policemen
  - Gandhi withdrew the entire Non-Cooperation Movement at its peak.
- Critics saw betrayal
- To Gandhi it was keeping the promise of non-violence.
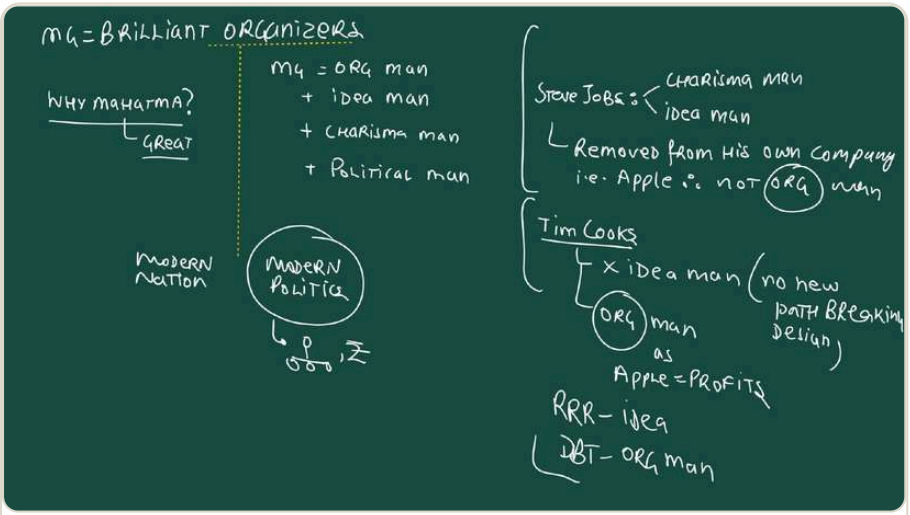
- A Satyagrahi who benefits from a mob's violence breaks the same principle as one who benefits from the enemy's weakness.



Brilliant organiser: why Mahatma, with the Steve Jobs and Tim Cook contrast Lecture 35 slide 61

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MG = brilliant organiser. "Why Mahatma?" = great.
- MG = ORG man + idea man + charisma man + political man
- This made modern politics (mass politics) possible
- Contrast: Steve Jobs = charisma man and idea man, but removed from his own company (Apple), so not an ORG man.
- Tim Cook = not an idea man (no path-breaking design) but an ORG man, and Apple = profits.
- Film example:
    - RRR = idea
    - DBT = ORG man.

10.3 S-CW-S: struggle, constructive work, struggle

- The problem:
    - Masses tire, especially economically: sustained boycotts mean lost income, hartals mean lost livelihoods
    - Exhaustion leads to desperation, and desperation to violence.
- The answer: the Truce phase was never idle: Constructive Work = atmashakti (inner strengthening), training in Satyagraha, building the INC's organisational network, identifying local leaders, raising grassroots political awareness.
- S-T-S was really S-CW-S (political struggle, constructive work, political struggle): the passive phase was preparation, not rest.

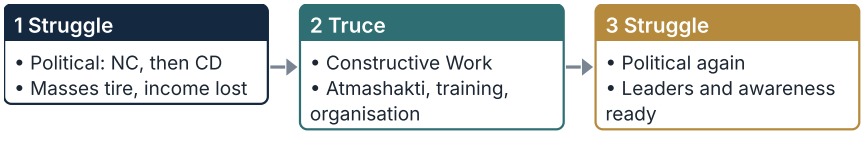
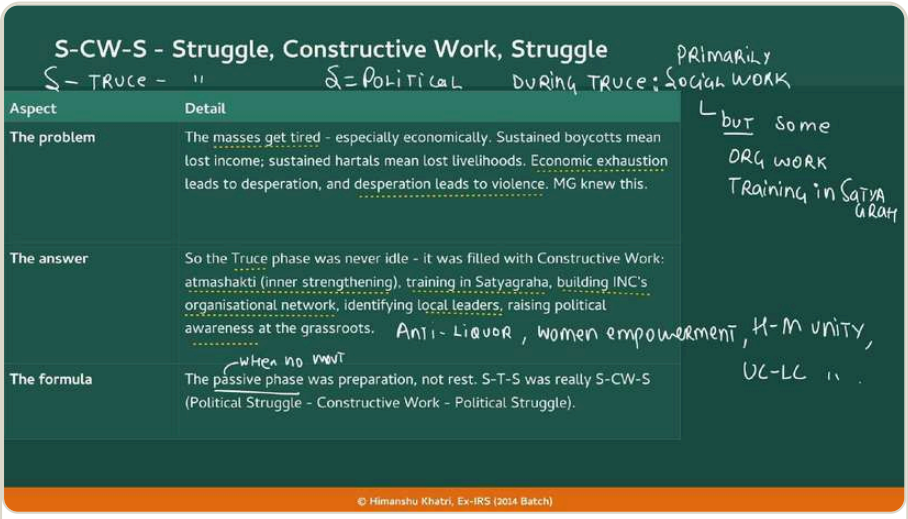
S-CW-S: THE TRUCE IS PREPARATION, NOT REST





S-CW-S: what Constructive Work fills the truce with Lecture 35 slide 63

TEACHER'S BOARD

- S = political struggle. During the truce: primarily social work with some ORG work and training in Satyagraha.
- Examples: anti-liquor, women's empowerment, Hindu-Muslim unity, upper caste-lower caste unity.
- The passive phase = when there is no movement.

- Lineage of Constructive Work:
  - Ramakrishna Mission (1897) -&gt
  - Arya Samaj's DAV schools -&gt
  - Tagore's Shantiniketan (1901) -&gt
  - Tilak's Constructive Swadeshi -&gt
  - Gandhi's Tolstoy Farm (1910, South Africa) -&gt
  - Sabarmati Ashram (1917).
- Gandhi made Constructive Work the middle phase of every movement.

11 · Why was Satyagraha so strategically effective?

STORY LINK

Because the plan must work. Ask: which three results did Satyagraha achieve?

Clause	Reason	What it means
11.1	United Moderates and Extremists	Moderates liked non-violence, Extremists liked mass struggle; the bridge that healed the Surat (1907) split after a decade
11.2	Allowed the common man and woman to participate	Armed struggle needs weapons and training; Satyagraha needs only courage and conviction. Peasants, women and workers, once spectators, joined: the democratic revolution within the freedom struggle
11.3	Potential to prevent British repression	Violent crackdowns on non-violent Satyagrahis became a propaganda disaster in Parliament, British public opinion and international opinion

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Lucknow Session 1916: re-entry of Extremists, but no unity on methods.
- MG brought rural masses into the INM.

Participation curve: urban peak, and when rural participation is high
Lecture 35 slide 67

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Participation in any movement peaks in urban areas (the British Government's capital and the INM leaders are there).
- High participation in rural areas needs: (1) a charismatic leader, and/or (2) a highly emotive issue, and/or (3) a very well organised movement.
- Matching MG qualities:
  - Charismatic
  - People love him
  - Brilliant organiser.

12 · The inclusive approach: why Swaraj was deliberately never defined

STORY LINK

Because India is plural, the goal was left open. Ask: why did Jinnah and Tagore worry about it?

- Gandhi knew India's plurality (caste, religion, language, class) and never precisely defined the goal of Swaraj: this was deliberate political architecture, not vagueness. Interests at times collided.
- Swaraj meant end of high rents to a peasant, better wages to a worker, dignity and agency to a woman, self-governance to a nationalist intellectual.
- Leaving it open maximised the support base across social plurality.
- His simple attire, Hindi, Ram Rajya, Sita and Draupadi let masses, who would never attend a constitutional conference, feel the movement was personally theirs.

- Jinnah's sharpest criticism: "Swaraj" was a Hindu cultural concept dressed as a national one and Muslim interests could not be safe inside its undefined borders.
- Gandhi's counter: its openness made it inclusive of all.
- Tagore's worry, the mirror image: undefined mass emotion, even well-intentioned, could become narrow and intolerant.
- Gandhi:
    - Mobilise first, refine after
    - You cannot teach philosophy to an empty stomach.

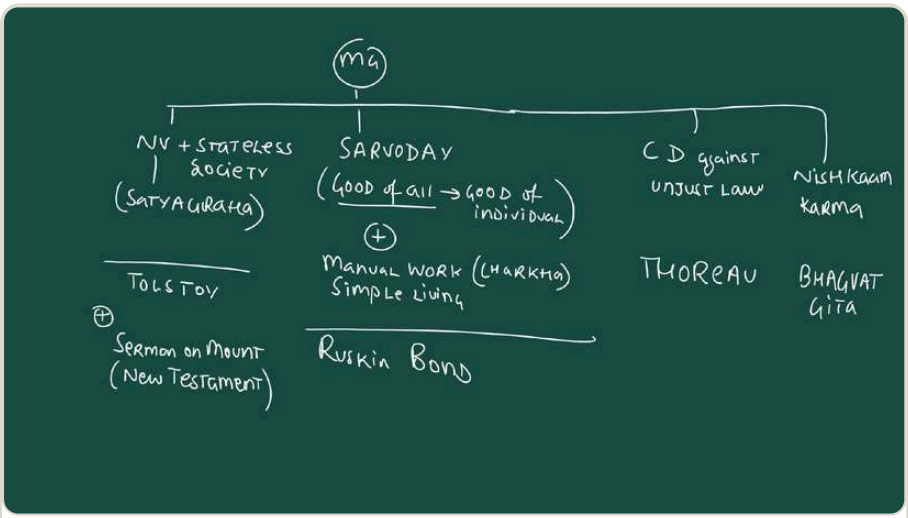
13 · Key intellectual influences on Gandhi

STORY LINK

Because ideas have sources. Ask: what did each of the five give him?

- His ideology was a synthesis of Indian and Western texts and thinkers
- UPSC frequently tests them



Gandhi's influences: Tolstoy, Ruskin, Thoreau, Gita, Sermon on the Mount
Lecture 35 slide 78

TEACHER'S BOARD

Four branches: NV + stateless society (Satyagraha) = Tolstoy, plus the Sermon on the Mount; Sarvodaya (good of all, then good of the individual) = Ruskin, plus manual work (charkha) and simple living; CD against unjust law = Thoreau; Nishkam karma = Bhagavad Gita.

HANDOUT ALERT

Board slip. The board writes "Ruskin Bond" under Sarvodaya; the author of Unto This Last is John Ruskin (handout). Use Ruskin.

13.1 John Ruskin, Unto This Last (1862)

- Gandhi said it "transformed my life." Message:
  - The good of the individual lies in the good of all
  - manual labour (farmer, barber, craftsman) has the same dignity as intellectual labour
  - A life of labour is worth living
- Read on a train journey in South Africa, it moved him to found the Phoenix Settlement (1904) near Durban, a cooperative community of shared manual work and simple living.
- Prelims 2011 asked about the link
- Answer (b), the good of the individual is contained in the good of all (Sarvodaya)
- Slide hook: Gandhi called it "The Magic Spell".

13.2 Leo Tolstoy, The Kingdom of God is Within You (1894)

- The State, military and Church rest on organised violence
- A morally self-regulated individual needs none of them
- Non-resistance to evil by force and moral self-regulation struck Gandhi strongly.
- He corresponded with Tolstoy and named the Tolstoy Farm (1910) near Johannesburg after him: a Satyagraha training commune, the prototype of his Indian ashrams.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> Tolstoy = NV + stateless society.

13.3 Henry David Thoreau, Civil Disobedience (1849)

- When a law is unjust the citizen has a moral duty to disobey
- Obeying an unjust State is itself a moral failure
- The term "civil disobedience" entered Gandhi's vocabulary through Thoreau, one of the two pillars of Satyagraha with non-cooperation.

13.4 Bhagavad Gita: Nishkama Karma

- Action as duty without attachment to its result: his moral compass, letting him act decisively in politics while inwardly detached from power, fame and gain.
- He called the Gita his "spiritual dictionary" and read it daily.

13.5 Sermon on the Mount (New Testament)

- Christ's non-violence (turn the other cheek, love the enemy, overcome evil with good) confirmed that non-violence is the highest moral courage.
- With the Gita, the twin spiritual pillars of Ahimsa.
- The eclecticism (Hindu, Christian, Western secular) was deliberate: it made Satyagraha a universal moral method, not a Hindu religious one, and credible from South Africa to London to rural India.

MNEMONIC · GANDHI'S FIVE INFLUENCES, IN THE HANDOUT'S ORDER

14 · Summary: the core of Gandhian ideology

STORY LINK

Because seven heads sum it up. Ask: can you give one line for each of 14.1 to 14.7?

Head	Core idea
14.1 Civilisation	India a nation since ancient times; civilisation, not race or language, is the source of unity and values; Western civilisation Godless, driven only by profit
14.2 State	Ideal = stateless society through Enlightened Anarchism; interim = parliamentary democracy with a weak State plus Village Republics as direct democracy
14.3 Economy	Reject IR and Western capitalism; village self-sufficiency; Trusteeship over expropriation; voluntary land redistribution through morality
14.4 Society	Reject class concept and class war; Varnashram as non-hierarchical, non-hereditary guild-based cooperation; anti-untouchability as personal moral priority
14.5 Method	Satyagraha = NC + CD + CW + Non-Violence + Morality; rising tempo; controlled disciplined mass movement; never exploit the opponent's weakness; hate breach of promise
14.6 Strategy	S-CW-S; ambiguous Swaraj to maximise support across plural India; inclusive approach bringing all sections on to the streets
14.7 Intellectual roots	Ruskin (dignity of labour, Phoenix Settlement), Tolstoy (non-resistance, Tolstoy Farm), Thoreau (civil disobedience as moral duty), Gita (Nishkama Karma), Sermon on the Mount (love the enemy, turn the other cheek)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Exam-linking cues (handout and slide agree). Gandhi vs Tagore: Nai Talim (vocational) vs Shantiniketan (creative)
- Tagore warned against hyper-nationalism: Mains 2023.
- Gandhi vs Bose:
  - Means vs ends
  - Village republics vs heavy industrialisation: Mains 2016.
- The handout points to a companion chapter for point-by-point tables.

HANDOUT NOTE

Society (14.4) has no separate section earlier in the handout: Varnashram as non-hierarchical, non-hereditary, guild-based and anti-untouchability appear only in this summary. No class note covers it.

15 · Major fasts of Mahatma Gandhi

STORY LINK

Because Gandhi's life was part of his ideology. Ask: which fast targeted the British and which targeted Indians?

- Each fast was a calibrated political or moral instrument
- Some targeted the British, others Indians themselves
- Individual fasts have been asked in Prelims and Mains.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Fasts: "Self STUDY" (teacher's ink): read this table yourself; no board work.

Fast	Year and place	Trigger	Outcome
1. Ahmedabad Mill Workers' Fast	1918, Ahmedabad	Mill workers' strike weakening; workers losing resolve in the demand for a 35% wage hike	Workers held firm; mill owners agreed to arbitration; Gandhi's first fast on Indian soil, establishing fasting as a Satyagraha tool
2. Fast during NCM withdrawal	1922, Delhi	Chauri Chaura (February 1922): mob burned a police station killing 22 policemen; Gandhi withdrew NCM and fasted five days as penance	Showed he would sacrifice momentum to preserve non-violence; controversial in Congress
3. 21-day fast for Hindu-Muslim unity	1924, Delhi (house of Muhammad Ali)	Widespread communal riots, particularly after the Kohat riots	National attention; a fragile truce between the communities; reinforced his moral authority on communal harmony
4. Epic Fast (against the Communal Award)	1932, Yerwada Jail, Pune	Ramsay MacDonald's Communal Award gave separate electorates to Depressed Classes: a permanent division of Hindu society	Poona Pact (September 1932): Ambedkar accepted joint electorates with reserved seats; seats rose from 71 to 147
5. 21-day fast for self-purification	1933, Yerwada Jail, Pune	Continuation of the anti-untouchability campaign; pressure on caste Hindus to open temples and wells to Dalits	Government temporarily released him fearing his death; speeded the temple entry movement
6. Fast in Rajkot	1939, Rajkot	The Thakore Sahib of Rajkot broke a promise of political reforms: breach of promise, his deepest moral trigger	Viceroy Linlithgow intervened; highlighted princely-state misgovernance; reforms never fully implemented
7. 21-day fast in Quit India detention	1943, Aga Khan Palace, Pune	British blamed him for Quit India violence; he denied it and fasted to assert innocence and protest detention without trial	Viceroy refused release; he nearly died; Kasturba and Mahadev Desai both died during the detention; international attention grew

Fast	Year and place	Trigger	Outcome
8. Fast for Calcutta peace	1947 (September), Calcutta (Hydari Mansion, Beliaghata)	Horrific Hindu-Muslim rioting after Partition and the Great Calcutta Killings of 1946	The "Calcutta Miracle": rioting stopped within days; leaders pledged peace; Mountbatten called him a one-man boundary force
9. Fast for Delhi peace	1948 (January), Birla House, New Delhi	Violence in Delhi against Muslims by Hindu and Sikh refugees from Pakistan; government failing to protect minorities	Leaders signed a seven-point pledge; occupied mosques vacated; he broke the fast but was assassinated twelve days later, 30 January 1948

- Exam trap. Do not confuse the 1932 Epic Fast (against separate electorates for Dalits, Poona Pact) with the 1933 fast (temple entry, self-purification).
- Trigger, location and objective differ
- UPSC has tested this

17 · Arrests and imprisonments of Mahatma Gandhi

STORY LINK

Because jail was part of the method. Ask: which arrest had a trial, and where was he held in 1942?

- Imprisonments were central to Satyagraha:
  - Accepting jail without resistance shows moral superiority
  - Each arrest drew public sympathy and international attention, turning the courtroom and prison into platforms

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Pilots: Champaran (Rajkumar Shukla, Tinkathia 3/20th, Rajendra Prasad, J.B. Kripalani, first CD, Act 1918); Ahmedabad (Sarabhai, plague bonus, 50 / 35 / 27.5, Textile Labour Association, founder Gandhi); Kheda (ryotwari remission, Patel, NC not CD)
- Rowlatt Act (Feb 1919, ILC, Sedition Committee, DoI Act 1915, imprisonment without trial, Chelmsford 16-21), Rowlatt Satyagraha as Gandhi's first all-India venture, Jallianwala Bagh (13 April, 379 against 1,500, Hunter Committee, Tagore, Montague's 'preventive murder')
- Khilafat and NCM: Khilafat Committee Mar 1919, Allahabad Jun 1920, Calcutta Sep 1920 (Lajpat Rai), Nagpur Dec 1920 (C. Vijayaraghavachariar), Hasrat Mohani and complete independence (2001, 2004), programme (boycott, Swadeshi, CW; titles surrendered)
- NCM events and results: Prince of Wales Nov 1921, Chauri Chaura Feb 1922 (3 killed, 22 policemen, Malaviya's defence), Bardoli Resolution, what the NCM gave (mass Congress, fear removed) and what it did not (concessions)
- Passive Phase: Swarajists against No-Changers, Gaya 1922, Swaraj Party 1923, Belgaum 1924 and the Gandhi-Das Pact, Responsivists, INC leaves the councils 1926; chronology Minto-

MAINS HOOKS

- The three Pilot Projects of 1917-18 and how each added a method to Gandhian Satyagraha (practice question, 15 marks)
- Reasons and consequences of the withdrawal of the NCM in February 1922 (practice question, 10 marks)
- Leaderless masses and Gandhi's controlled mass movement; why Rowlatt failed as an organised strike and what MG learnt
- NCM: what it won and where it fell short; the Passive Phase as 'anything but passive' (Constructive Work, Swarajists, No-Changers)

Morley, Montford, Chauri Chaura, Dandi
(2004)

Three pilots built the method, Rowlatt showed what a leaderless crowd does, and the NCM made the INC a mass body, until Chauri Chaura sent it into quiet years of Constructive Work.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: MG built a method in three small pilots, learnt from the Rowlatt failure that a mass movement needs control, and used the Khilafat anger to make the INC a mass organisation (NCM 1920-22). When Chauri Chaura broke that movement, the INC split over council entry but stayed whole, and Constructive Work kept it alive until the Simon Commission.

1. The cake is cut (1915-18). MG arrives in January 1915, tours India on Gokhale's advice and stays out of the INM during WWI because he will not use the enemy's weakness. After two years he picks three local fights: Champaran (civil disobedience against indigo planters, Tinkathia abolished, Act 1918), Ahmedabad (fast and arbitration: 50, 35, 27.5) and Kheda (first non-cooperation, law on the ryots' side, Patel joins).

   → But a pilot is not a nation: the next call is for all Indians.

2. The Rowlatt promise broken (1919). In February 1919 the ILC passes the Rowlatt Act over the opposition of every Indian member: it carries the Defence of India Act 1915 into peacetime, with WWI misery and the fear of communism behind it. MG, who backed the war hoping for self-government and who hates a breach of promise (Montague Statement 1917, MC Report 1918), calls a nationwide non-violent strike.

   → But a strike without a driver runs wild.

3. The driverless truck (April 1919). Leaders are arrested, violence spreads in Punjab, O'Dwyer empowers and Dyer applies martial law. On 13 April at Jallianwala Bagh Dyer's troops fire for 10 minutes: 379 dead by the official count, 1,500 by the INC's. The Hunter Committee lets Dyer off; MG withdraws the movement with two lessons: control the INC, and train people in non-violence.

   → Anger over Punjab was about to meet anger over Turkey.

4. Khilafat joins the cause (1919-20). The Treaty of Sèvres (1920) strips the Khalifa, and the Ali Brothers set up the Khilafat Committee in March 1919. At Allahabad in June 1920 the movement is launched with boycott and a no-tax call. MG sees a once-in-a-hundred-years chance for Hindu-Muslim unity and brings the INC along, even C.R. Das; Tilak, B.C. Pal, Besant, Jinnah and the ML stay out or oppose.

   → So the INC meets, first in Calcutta, then in Nagpur.

5. Calcutta and Nagpur (September and December 1920). At Calcutta (Lajpat Rai presiding) the INC launches the NCM with three goals: Swaraj, Punjab wrongs, Khilafat wrongs; Swaraj is promised in one year, with a CDM after. At Nagpur (C. Vijayaraghavachariar presiding) MG takes over: the method changes from the pen to Satyagraha, and a CWC of 15, linguistic PCCs, a 4-anna fee, Hindi and Princely States' members make the INC a body of the masses.

→ Now the movement has to run.

6 The movement runs (1920-22). The Tilak Swaraj Fund raises Rs 1 crore; the Reading talks fail because MG refuses to be used for Divide and Rule. Peasants (Awadh Kisan Sabha), workers, tribals and new regions join, British imports halve and only 5% vote in 1920. When the Prince of Wales visits in November 1921 the strikes turn violent, and MG confines the CDM to Bardoli.

→ But the next violence he could not contain.

7 Chauri Chaura breaks it (February 1922). Police fire on satyagrahis, killing 3; the crowd burns 22 policemen alive. MG withdraws the NCM, suspends the Bardoli CDM and passes the Bardoli Resolution: Constructive Work must precede any movement. 170 are sentenced to death; Malaviya defends them and 19 are hanged. The Rowlatt Act is repealed in March 1922, but Khilafat ends in 1924 when Turkey abolishes the Khalifate.

→ With no mass movement to run, the INC asks what to do next.

8 Mend it or boycott it (1922-24). All agree there is no CDM yet. The Swarajists (Das, Motilal Nehru) want to end or mend the councils; the No-Changers (Patel, Rajendra Prasad, Rajaji) want boycott and Constructive Work. The Gaya resolution fails, the Swarajists form the Congress Khilafat Swaraj Party and contest the 1923 elections. MG opposes but compromises, and at Belgaum 1924 the Gandhi-Das Pact makes them the INC's parliamentary wing.

→ But the party in the councils soon came apart.

9 The Swarajists in the councils (1923-26). They demand a new constitution, civil liberty and help for Indian industry, and use the adjournment motion. But they have no street support, Das dies in 1925, the ML is lost over Bengal's Muslim tenants, and the 1924 riots split off the Responsivists. The party loses heavily in 1926 and the INC leaves the councils.

→ Meanwhile the quiet work went on.

10 The quiet machine (1922-27). Constructive Work keeps cadres busy, unites castes and communities, deepens the INC's rural hold, builds the masses' confidence and sets up national schools and panchayat courts. The Passive Phase is 'anything but passive'; the Simon Commission of 1927 rekindles the INM.

In simple words

- Gandhi (MG) tested three methods in three local pilots: Champaran 1917 (civil disobedience), Ahmedabad 1918 (fast and arbitration) and Kheda 1918 (non-cooperation by withholding revenue).
- The Rowlatt Act (Feb 1919) kept wartime powers in peacetime
- MG's strike turned violent without leaders, and Jallianwala Bagh (13 April 1919) followed: he learnt to want a controlled mass movement
- Khilafat anger and Punjab anger joined in the NCM (1920-22): Calcutta launched it, Nagpur gave the INC to MG with a new structure and the goal of Swaraj by peaceful means.
- Chauri Chaura (Feb 1922) ended the mass movement
- The Bardoli Resolution put Constructive Work first, and the Passive Phase split the INC into Swarajists and No-Changers
- The split was healed by MG's trust (Gandhi-Das Pact, Belgaum 1924), while Constructive Work built cadres and rural roots until the Simon Commission (1927).

Responsivists	Faction of the Swaraj Party after the 1924 riots: cooperate with government, protect Hindu interests

0 · The chapter on one board

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MG arrived in Jan 1915 and toured India on the advice of Gokhale, his political mentor.
- Pilots = "Not all India, not for all Indians":
  - Champaran (Bihar, 1917, for peasants, 1st CD)
  - Ahmedabad (Gujarat, for the working class, 1st fast by MG, hunger strike)
  - Kheda (Gujarat, 1918, for peasants, 1st NC)
- Rowlatt 1919 = "for all Indians":
  - The 1st all-India mass strike
  - Jallianwala Bagh Apr 1919
- Moderate Era → Extremism Era → Gandhian politics in INM (1920+) = politics of the masses, of common people.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Date and a letter. The board writes 1917 over Ahmedabad
- The handout and typed slides say 1918. Use 1918.
- The extra "E" after "CAK" is read here as "Era"
- Check your notebook

1 · The three pilot projects (1917-1918)

MNEMONIC · THE THREE PILOTS: THE TEACHER'S CAKE

C A K E

The teacher's own mnemonic: MG cut the CAKE into three pilot slices before the Gandhian Era.

C Champaran 1917: civil disobedience against indigo planters

A Ahmedabad 1918: fast and arbitration with mill owners

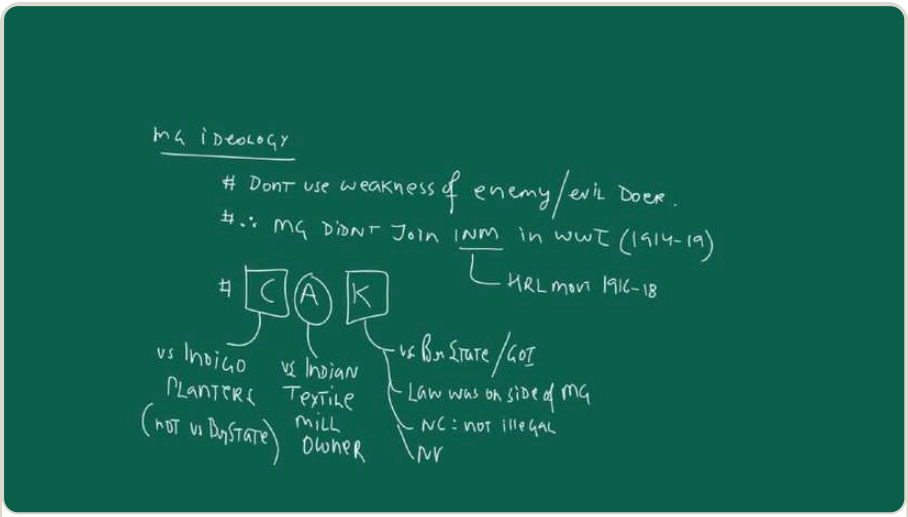
K Kheda 1918: non-cooperation, withholding revenue

E Era: the Gandhian Era that follows (read)

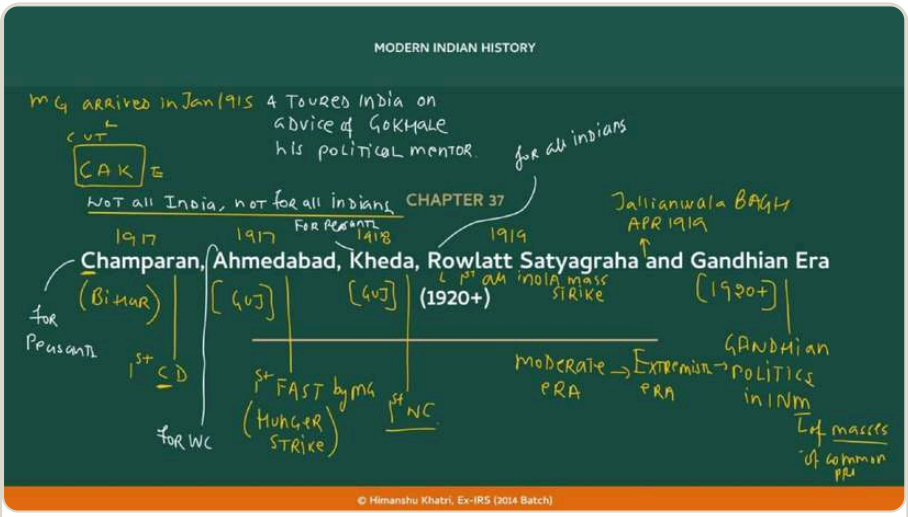
The teacher's mnemonic, kept exactly as written on the board (CUT above CAKE). The E is read as Era; check your notebook.

STORY LINK

Story so far: MG is back from South Africa and tests his method. Ask: which pilot tested which method, and against whom?



MG ideology: Champaran, Ahmedabad and Kheda opponents Lecture 36 slide 6



Chapter 37 on one board: pilots, Rowlatt, Gandhian era Lecture 36 slide 4

- MG arrived in India in January 1915 and did not rush into mass politics.
- He founded the Satyagraha Ashram at Kochrab (1915), relocated to Sabarmati (1917), and travelled, listened and understood the country for nearly two years.
- He then chose three small, carefully picked local struggles: one in Bihar (1917), two in Gujarat (1918), each testing a different method.

Pilot	What it tested
Champaran 1917	Passive resistance and civil disobedience
Ahmedabad 1918	Mill strike, hunger strike and arbitration
Kheda 1918	Non-cooperation through a no-revenue movement

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MG ideology: do not use the weakness of the enemy or evil-doer.
- Hence MG did not join the INM during WWI (1914-19)
- the Home Rule League movement (1916-18) ran meanwhile
- Opponents:
  - C = indigo planters (not the British State)
  - A = Indian textile mill owners
  - K = British State / GoI.
- At Kheda law was on MG's side
- NC is not illegal
- NR [read as no revenue]

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Together the three form the laboratory in which Gandhian mass politics was invented.
- Exam cluster:
  - Champaran and Rajendra Prasad (2005)
  - First Satyagraha site = Champaran (2007)
  - Teacher-by-profession = J.B
- Kripalani (2008)
- Kheda plague-period revenue (2011)
- Champaran = first civil disobedience on Indian soil (2018)

2 · Champaran Satyagraha, 1917: the first civil disobedience

STORY LINK

Because MG needed a first test, Rajkumar Shukla brought him to Bihar. Ask: why did the Tinkathia system get worse during WWI?

- Rajkumar Shukla, a peasant leader from Bihar, met MG at the Lucknow Session of the INC in 1916 and asked him to visit Champaran.
- The grievance was the Tinkathia System: ryots were forced to grow indigo on 3/20th of their land under contracts with British planters.
- Tinkathia = three kathas (a unit of land) out of every twenty.
- After the Indigo Revolt (1859-60) in Bengal, indigo plantation shifted almost entirely to Bihar by 1863.
- German synthetic dyes became popular after 1895 and ate into the indigo market

- During WWI those dyes were unavailable, so planters pushed the Tinkathia System harder than ever

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Underlined: Rajkumar Shukla, peasant leader, Tinkathia, three kathas, Indigo Revolt 1859-60, shifted to Bihar by 1863, German synthetic dyes, unavailable in WWI.
- Side note: revise the post-1857 peasant revolts (Chapter 22).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Name check. The bank's practice answer says Rajendra Prasad "joined here".
- PYQs 2005, 2008 and 2010 use him with J.B.
- Kripalani as Gandhi's Champaran colleagues
- The man who persuaded MG to come was Rajkumar Shukla (Prelims 2010: statement 1 is false)

2.1 Events and result

- MG arrived
- The authorities ordered him to leave the district. He refused.
- Disobeying a direct official order and courting arrest = Civil Disobedience.
- Unsure how to handle him, the government made MG head of an Inquiry Committee.
- He used it to document the exploitation systematically.

MG ideology: dispute resolution by arbitration Lecture 36 slide 11

- He convinced the administration to abolish the Tinkathia System: the Champaran Agricultural Act, 1918.
- Planter oppression did not fully stop.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Dispute resolution = arbitration:
  - (1) inquiry
  - (2) reveal the TRUTH of both sides
  - (3) Madhyamarg (the middle path)
- "Truth revelation" is the work of the Inquiry Committee.
- Why oppression continued: the contracts were legal, and planters could oppress through non-indigo matters, e.g. rents. Hallmark: civil disobedience.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Champaran = civil disobedience: MG disobeyed a direct official order, accepted the legal consequence, and the system followed arbitration: Inquiry Committee, then legislation resolving a decades-old grievance.
- Significance (Prelims 2018): peasant unrest joined India's national movement.

3 · Ahmedabad Mill Strike, 1918: the first hunger strike

STORY LINK

Because the second test was a labour dispute, MG met two people he knew. Ask: how did the three wage figures reach a midpath?

- Hallmark: a new technique of arbitration plus MG's first hunger strike.
- MG was invited by Anasuya Sarabhai, a social worker.
- Her brother Ambalal Sarabhai headed the Ahmedabad Mill Owners' Association.
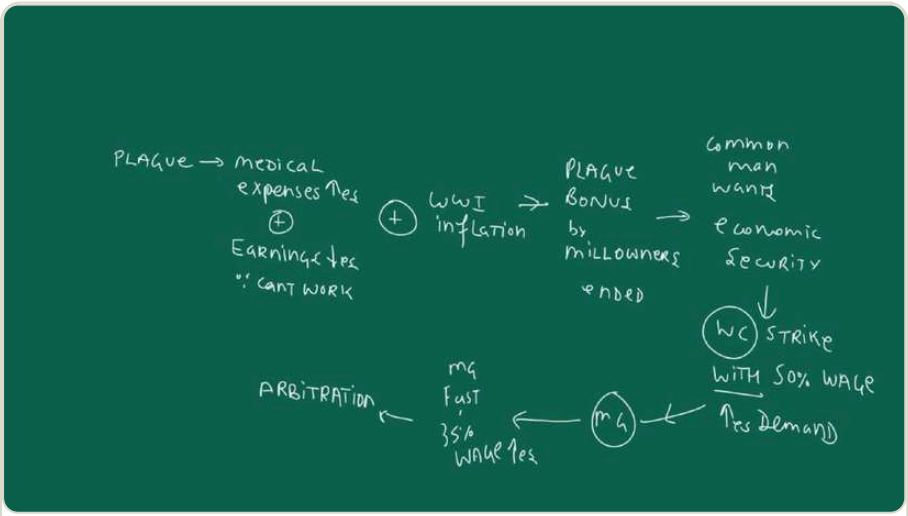
- MG knew both sides: an awkward middle position.



Ahmedabad strike: plague, inflation, bonus, strike, fast Lecture 36 slide 15

TEACHER'S BOARD

Chain: plague → medical expenses up and earnings down (cannot work); + WWI inflation → mill owners ended the plague bonus; the common man wants economic security → WC strike with a 50% wage-rise demand → MG fast with 35% → arbitration.

- During WWI plague hit Ahmedabad
- Owners paid a Plague Bonus to compensate for working through the epidemic, then discontinued it while WWI inflation (and the Spanish Flu) crushed workers' purchasing power
- Workers demanded a 50% wage rise
- owners refused even to negotiate until the strike ended
- MG demanded 35% and began a fast unto death, as moral pressure on the owners
- It also made it hard for workers to abandon the strike
- An Arbitration Board settled on 27.5%.

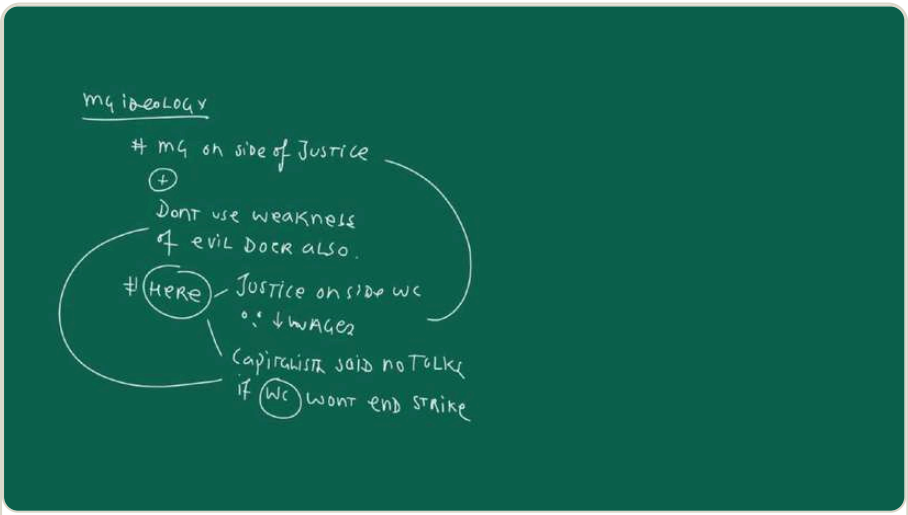
NUMBER CARD · AHMEDABAD WAGE FIGURES

50 · 35 · 27.5

Fifty asked, thirty-five fasted, twenty-seven and a half agreed.

50% workers' demand
35% MG's demand, with the fast unto death
27.5% Arbitration Board settlement: the midpath



MG ideology: justice and not exploiting the evil-doer's weakness Lecture 36 slide 16

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MG is on the side of justice and also does not use the weakness of the evil-doer.
- Here justice was on the side of the WC (wages had fallen)
- The capitalists said no talks unless the WC ended the strike.
- The 27.5% is "in line with midpath."

HANDOUT ALERT

- Wage figure. Handout and slide:
  - Arbitration Board settled at 27.5%
  - 35% was MG's demand.
- A margin note brackets "Bipin Chandra 35%" beside "as per Bandhopadhyay," and the bank's Mains practice answer says "35% wage increase." Use 50% / 35% / 27.5% as above.

3.1 Impact

- The strike laid the foundation of the working-class movement in Ahmedabad and led to the Textile Labour Association (TLA) in 1920 (organised WC movement).
- 1920 was a landmark for the WC: the AITUC was formed in 1920 by Lala Lajpat Rai (the first all-India working-class organisation), and the CPI was set up in 1920 at Tashkent under Roy (M.N.), reconstituted in India in 1925.
- Two hallmarks: the first hunger strike by MG and arbitration (an economic midpoint, not winner-takes-all).
- The midpath returns at Bardoli 1928.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2009 (founder of the Ahmedabad Textile Labour Association = Mahatma Gandhi). Handout: 1920
- slide key: 1918.
- Underlined on the board: "founder ... Mahatma Gandhi." Answer (a).

4 · Kheda Satyagraha, 1918: the first non-cooperation

STORY LINK

Because the third test was against the State itself, MG chose the law's side. Ask: why is withholding revenue NC and not CD?

- Hallmark: first Non-Cooperation / No-Revenue Movement.

- Under the Ryotwari system, Kheda (Gujarat) farmers were entitled by law to a remission of Land Revenue (LR) if the crop fell below one-quarter of normal output.
- The 1918 harvest failed
- plague added to the misery
- The government refused the legal remission: it needed money for WWI.
- MG asked peasants to withhold payment of LR.
- The government eventually agreed not to confiscate the property of those who could not pay: only those who could pay would be required to.
- Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel became MG's follower here
- Kheda was his first experience of organised mass action.

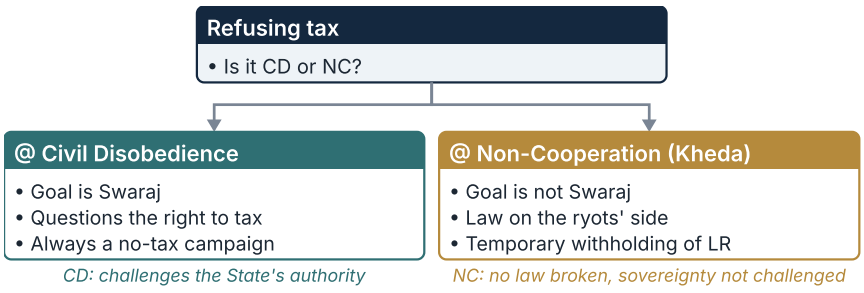
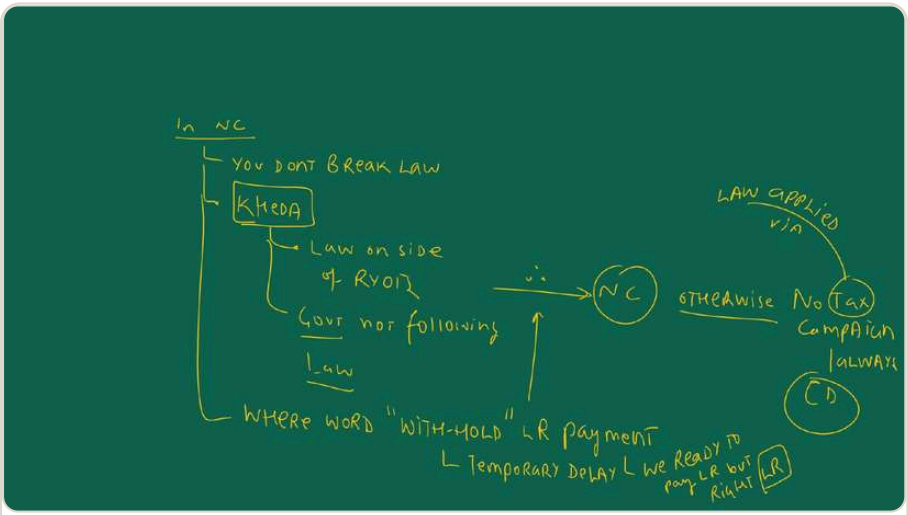
KHEDA: WHY NON-COOPERATION, NOT CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE





Kheda: why it is NC and not CD Lecture 36 slide 23

TEACHER'S BOARD

- In NC you do not break the law.
- At Kheda the law was on the side of the ryots and the government was not following the law.
- The word "withhold" means a temporary delay: "we are ready to pay LR, but our right (to remission) first." Therefore NC.
- Otherwise a no-tax campaign is always CD.
- Margin:
  - "Sardar" = title given in 1928 by the Bardoli ryots and women
  - "organised" circled with "imp".

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Why Kheda = NC, not CD. If the goal is Swaraj and we refuse tax, it is CD (we question the British right to tax).
- At Kheda the goal was not Swaraj
- payment was temporarily withheld because the law was on the ryots' side (like a businessman who disputes the assessed amount in court)
- NC = withholding cooperation from an unjust action without challenging colonial sovereignty.

4.1 Between Kheda and Rowlatt: the War Conference

- At the Viceroy's War Conference (Delhi, 1918) MG actively supported recruiting Indians for WWI, unlike many leaders.
- He expected wartime help to be repaid with self-government
- hence the Rowlatt Act felt like a broken promise.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Margin: justice was on the side of Britain, the victim of aggression by the Central Powers.
- This fits "do not use the enemy's weakness."

5 · Rowlatt Satyagraha, April 1919

STORY LINK

Because the British kept wartime powers, MG called his first all-India strike. Ask: what happens when a mass movement loses its leaders?

- It was called by MG alone, not by the INC
- MG had not yet taken control of the INC

- Goal:
    - The Rowlatt Satyagraha was not for Swaraj
    - Its goal was repeal of the Rowlatt Act.

5.1 The Rowlatt Act

- In February 1919 the Imperial Legislative Council (ILC) passed the Rowlatt Act, the Anarchical and Revolutionary Crimes Act, based on a Sedition Committee chaired by Justice S.A.T. Rowlatt.
- Two bills were passed together as one Act.
- It was passed by the ILC, not the Central Legislative Assembly (CLA)
- the CLA came only in December 1919 under the GOI Act 1919.
- It extended the emergency powers of the Defence of India Act 1915 into peacetime.

Rowlatt Act: WWI, fear of communism, DoI Act 1915 Lecture 36 slide 27

- That Act was for WWI (1914-19) only: detention without trial, press suppression, trials without juries.
- The British wanted to keep these powers permanently.
- It passed despite the unanimous opposition of every Indian member of the ILC.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board:
  - Rowlatt Satyagraha 1919: goal is not Swaraj
  - Goal = repeal of the Rowlatt Act.
- Why the British were anxious: (1) WWI: Spanish Flu deaths and Indian soldiers' deaths (physical security) and inflation (economic security).
- (2) Communism rising:
  - October Revolution 1917 in Russia, USSR later (1921)
  - CPI 1920 at Tashkent
  - goal = end of capitalism, sub-goal = end of the colonial empires of capitalist powers
- So Britain wanted to continue the emergency powers of the DoI Act 1915, which was only for WWI, i.e. WWI end = end of the DoI Act 1915.
- Margin:
  - ICA 1909: ILC = Viceroy's Executive Council + 60 additional members
  - No elected majority
  - 27 elected.

HANDOUT NOTE

- Date:
  - Handout and slide give the Act's passage as February 1919
  - the Prelims 2008 key says March 1919 (see the Exam lens)
- Learn Feb 1919
- the satyagraha is April 1919.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Context (political): Home Rule Leagues (Tilak's and Besant's, 1916-18) built mass political mobilisation ("aware", HRL 16-18) and the Lucknow Pact 1916 brought Hindu-Muslim cooperation ("united").
- Jinnah, Madan Mohan Malaviya and Mazharul Haq resigned from the ILC in 1919, drawing on this consciousness.
- Board: an example of NC, but by legislators, not by masses.
- (Prelims 2015 statement 2: Gandhi tried to use the Home Rule League; the Swarajya Sabha was renamed AIHRL in 1920.)

5.2 Why MG reacted so strongly

- For MG it was a breach of promise.
- The Montague Statement of 1917 spoke of gradual self-government, and the Montford reforms (GOI Act 1919) were being framed at that very time, yet the British wanted coercive powers permanently.

- He called a nationwide non-violent strike, the first such call in Indian history.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - MG ideology: hates breach of promise. What: SG (self-government).
> - How: Montague Statement 1917, MC Report 1918.
> - Dictatorial powers versus SG = democracy.
> - Call: "Leave whatever you are doing. Hit the streets. Stay NV."

MG ideology: hates breach of promise Lecture 36 slide 28

5.3 Events: leaderless masses, Punjab, Jallianwala Bagh

- It was the first mass strike and first all-India movement, and it revealed both the potential and the danger of mass politics without organisation.
- MG's arrest and those of other leaders left it leaderless.
- Violence followed, especially in Punjab, where INC leaders Dr Satya Pal and Dr Saifuddin Kitchlew were already arrested.

Pattern in INM: leaderless movement, violence by masses Lecture 36 slide 37

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Pattern in the INM: if a movement goes leaderless, masses turn violent.
- Answer = organisation: without a leader who keeps masses on track of NV and ensures they follow plan, programme and methods, leaderless masses carry huge energy on the streets, like a driverless truck at 200 km/hr (not a Tesla).
- MG style = controlled mass movement.
- Think:
  - (1) MG wanted anarchism [as the ideal]
  - (2) MG wanted controlled mass action [as the method]

- Martial law:
  - Under Lieutenant Governor O'Dwyer, General (Colonel Reginald) Dyer applied martial law in Punjab with O'Dwyer's approval
  - Public gatherings were banned
- Future link: O'Dwyer was assassinated by Udham Singh in London in 1940, retribution for Jallianwala Bagh.

TEACHER'S BOARD

TRAP: LG O'Dwyer empowered; General Dyer applied martial law.

- 13 April 1919, Jallianwala Bagh, Amritsar: people gathered peacefully, to celebrate Baisakhi and protest their leaders' arrest.
- Without warning Dyer ordered firing
- It lasted 10 minutes
- the exits were narrow and blocked
- Official count 379 dead
- INC count 1,500.
- The Hunter Committee (set up October 1919, report 1920) found Dyer guilty only of being overly zealous in the Empire's service: no real punishment, the "second wound."
- The Mahants of the Golden Temple honoured Dyer, being pro-British as in the Ghadar Movement 1913-15.
- Overwhelmed by the violence, MG withdrew the movement: mass action without training and discipline is dangerous.

MNEMONIC · WHY RURAL MOVEMENTS SUCCEED

A village movement needs a CEO.

C Charismatic leader
E Emotive issue (highly)
O Organised movement (very well)

Order is free (and/or), so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- First mass strike plus first all-India movement: the beginning of mass politics.
- High urban participation by the working class
- Low in rural areas (an agrarian economy is hard to organise: masses live in villages, colonial rule and nationalist leadership sit in cities)
- Two lessons: MG needed control over the INC for a controlled mass movement, and Indians needed training in non-violent Satyagraha.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher disagrees with "1st mass strike, 1st all-India movement":
  - The books copy each other
  - The credit belongs to the Swadeshi Movement 1905-11.
- (Still, Rowlatt = Gandhi's first all-India venture, Prelims 1999.) Board curve: participation peaks in urban areas (British government's capital, leaders of INM).

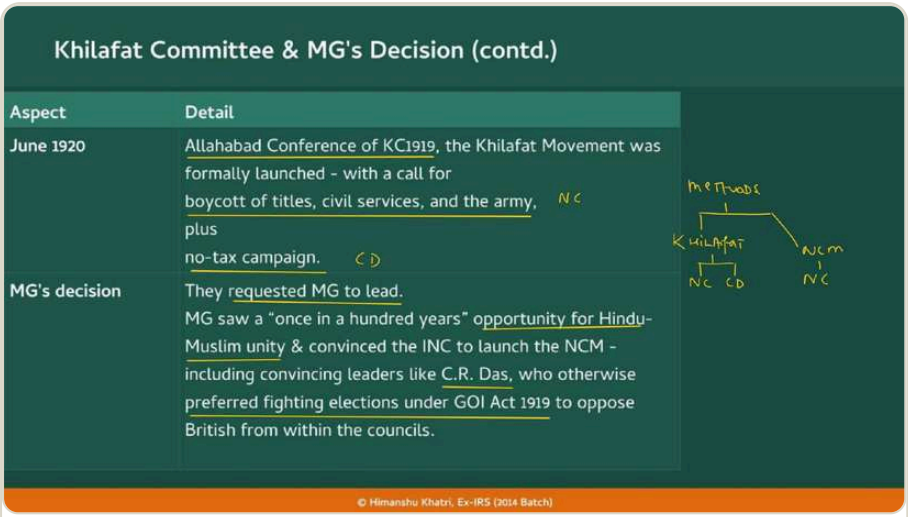
6 · Khilafat (1920-24) and the reasons for the NCM (1920-22)

STORY LINK

Because Punjab and Turkey angered different groups, MG joined them. Ask: who opposed, and why did Tilak fear communalism?



Khilafat launch, MG's decision and the methods tree Lecture 36 slide 52

- Common grievances:
  - WWI inflation and food insecurity, unemployment, the Spanish Flu (about 12 million Indians dead), anger at the Rowlatt Act and Jallianwala Bagh
  - the GOI Act 1919 gave no responsible government at the Centre and only partly responsible dyarchy in provinces
  - The Hunter Committee report of 1920 did not hold Dyer accountable
- Khilafat trigger: the harsh Treaty of Sèvres (1920) on the Ottoman Empire.
- The Khalifa was seen as spiritual head of the Islamic world
- The treaty stripped him of territory and control over Muslim holy places and placed Arabs under non-Muslim rule (Syria and Lebanon to France; Palestine, Transjordan, Iraq to Britain)
- Indian Muslims who had supported the war felt a breach of promise.
- Rise of the Ulamas: Deoband and Firangi Mahal (Lucknow), both in UP, became politically active.
- In the Muslim League (ML 1906) radicals rose: Muhammad Ali Jauhar and Shaukat Ali (the Ali Brothers), Abul Kalam Azad, Hakim Ajmal Khan, Hasrat Mohani.
- Jinnah (who united ML and INC in the Lucknow Pact 1916) did not support the Khilafat issue, later opposed the NCM's methods and resigned from the INC in 1920.
- March 1919: Khilafat Committee set up by the Ali Brothers (not a ML initiative; many ML members joined).
- Demands:
  - Revise Sèvres
  - Restore the Khalifa's dignity, territory and control of holy places
  - No Arabs under non-Muslim rule
- June 1920, Allahabad Conference: Khilafat Movement formally launched: boycott of titles, civil services and the army, plus a no-tax campaign.

- They asked MG to lead. He saw a "once in a hundred years" opportunity for Hindu-Muslim unity and convinced the INC to launch the NCM, including leaders like C.R. Das, who preferred fighting elections under the GOI Act 1919 from within the councils.

6.1 Who opposed the NCM

Who	Why
Tilak (died Aug 1920)	Opposed backing a religious goal: it would breed communalism later (1922-24 proved him right)
B.C. Pal (resigned Aug 1920)	Against a personality-centric INC; against non-violence as an absolute principle; against MG's Swaraj as "enlightened anarchy with a Stateless society"
Annie Besant and Jinnah	Opposed extra-constitutional methods; resigned from the INC; felt masses would not stay non-violent under repression
ML 1906	Officially did not support the NCM (pro-British), though many members joined the All India Khilafat Committee

7 · Special Calcutta Session, September 1920

> Because the cause was joined, the INC had to launch it formally. Ask: how does the tempo rise from NC to CDM?

- President:
  - Lala Lajpat Rai. The INC formally launched the NCM with three goals: Swaraj
  - Redressal of Punjab wrongs
  - Redressal of Khilafat wrongs.
- MG promised Swaraj in one year
- the INC decided NC for 1 year, and if Swaraj was not achieved, launch CDM.

> TEACHER'S BOARD

NC = boycott plus Swadeshi: what is boycotted Lecture 36 slide 56

TEACHER'S BOARD

- NC = BC (boycott) + SW (Swadeshi).
- BC aims at the State and at British goods (yes, via Swadeshi).
- Under the State:
  - L (MLA/MP, voters) NA
  - E (minister, CS, MS) NA
  - J (judges, lawyers, people) yes
  - education institutions (teachers, students) yes

- Side note on the programme slide:
  - ICA 1909: no responsible government at the Centre and Provinces
  - GOI 1919: first elections (1920) still pending in Sep 1920.

7.1 Programme for the first year of NC (three streams)

Stream	Programme
i) Boycott	Leave titles and honours; boycott councils, courts, educational institutions; boycott British goods
ii) Swadeshi	Panchayats as alternative dispute resolution; national education; use Khadi (hand-spun, a deeper and more rural form than Swadeshi 1905-11's industrial goods)
iii) Constructive Work (CW)	Picketing of liquor shops; anti-untouchability campaign (a break from the 1886 INC rule against social issues); build Hindu-Muslim unity

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Councils = L (legislature). "Why not boycott the Executive?" We are not ministers
- Once the legislature is boycotted the question does not arise
- Margin: MG ideology: opposed IR [read as Industrial Revolution]. CW feeds Atmashakti (individual, community).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Madras: 4 PCCs (Kannada, Telugu, Tamil, Malayalam).
- "565 PS" [565 Princely States] beside the Princely States clause.
- "Class" politics here = elite WEMC.
- Constructive Work is the mass-contact tool:
  - Hindi and PCCs for mobilising masses
  - Constructive Work for training in Satyagraha.
- Rising escalation: CDM phase 2 = no-tax campaign (= CD) plus resignation from government services (= NC but far more powerful: a civil servant quitting destabilises the administration).

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout also gives the order of two sessions: Calcutta (Sep 1920) launched the NCM, Nagpur (Dec 1920) institutionalised MG's control.
- Lajpat Rai (Calcutta) is covered in Section 14
- Vijayaraghavachariar (Nagpur) is the trap name

9 · Events of the NCM (1920-22)

STORY LINK

Because the movement had to run, money, talks and tests followed. Ask: why did MG confine the CDM to Bardoli and then withdraw?

9.1 Tilak Swaraj Fund and the Gandhi-Reading talks (1921)

- Tilak Swaraj Fund: MG raised Rs 1 crore, oversubscribed, named for Tilak (died Aug 1920).
- Gandhi-Reading talks (1921): Viceroy Reading 21-26 sought talks (one year of NC nearly over; the British feared the coming CDM).
- They failed:
  - Reading wanted MG to publicly criticise the Ali Brothers for speeches endorsing violence
  - MG refused to be an instrument of Divide and Rule (DnR) and defeated the DnR strategy.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- "ORG needs ₹": MG = the Org Man.
- Talks = an example of attempted arbitration.
- MG's reason: masses getting tired → truce. MG style = S-T-S (Step-Tension-Step).

9.2 Prince of Wales (Nov 1921), Chauri Chaura (Feb 1922), Bardoli Resolution

- The Prince of Wales (Britain = England + Ireland + Scotland + Wales) represented the Crown and colonial rule.
- His visit triggered nationwide strikes by workers (shutdowns, demonstrations in cities), but violence broke out against Parsis, Christians and landlords who supported the visit.
- MG, alarmed, decided no all-India CDM
- CDM only at Bardoli (Gujarat) through a limited no-tax campaign.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Violence = "PROOF:
  - Masses getting tired." NCM began Sep 1920
  - 1 year already over.
- MG style = controlled mass movement.

- Chauri Chaura (Feb 1922, UP, Gorakhpur district, 5 Feb):
  - Police fired on a procession of satyagrahis, killing 3
  - the crowd burned 22 policemen alive inside the police station
- MG's response:
  - (i) withdrew the mass movement (NCM)
  - the INC as an institution would continue its own NC by boycotting the 1923 council elections (only the "M", the mass movement, was withdrawn)
  - (ii) suspended the CDM planned for Bardoli.
- Bardoli Resolution (1922): training in non-violent Satyagraha through Constructive Work must precede any future movement (CW = apolitical work: khadi, schools, anti-untouchability).
- Trials:
  - 170 sentenced to death
  - Madan Mohan Malaviya fought their cases
  - After appeals 19 were hanged.

NUMBER CARD · CHAURI CHAURA IN NUMBERS

3 · 22 · 170 · 19

Three fell, twenty-two burned, one hundred seventy doomed, nineteen hanged.

3 satyagrahis killed in the police firing
22 policemen burned alive in the station
170 sentenced to death
19 finally hanged after Malaviya's appeals

- The handout adds "22 satyagrahis paid for 22 policemen."

HANDOUT NOTE

- The handout's "22 satyagrahis" does not match "19 hanged" on its face.
- It fits only if the 3 satyagrahis killed in the police firing are added to the 19 hanged (3 + 19 = 22): this is a reading, not stated in the handout.

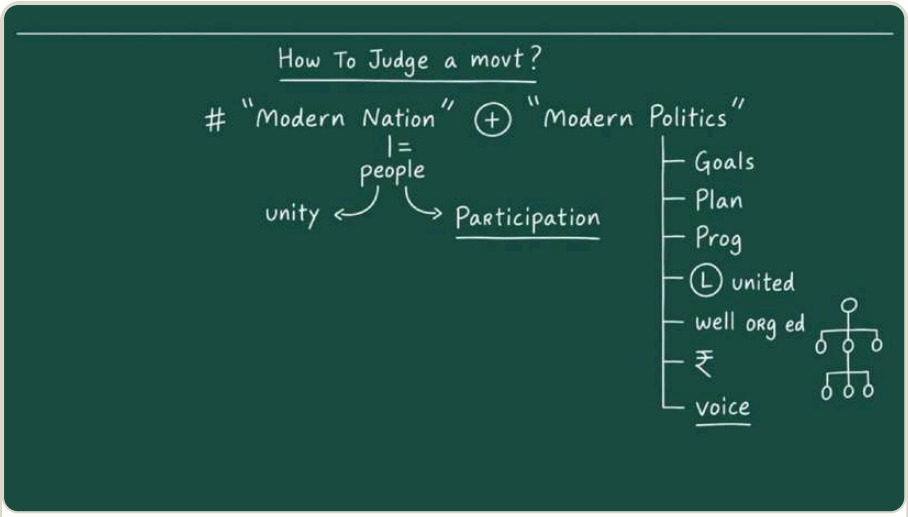
10 · Results of the NCM

STORY LINK

Because the NCM ended in violence, its record is mixed. Ask: which negatives are about people and which about method?



How to judge a movement: modern nation, modern politics Lecture 36 slide 72

TEACHER'S BOARD

- How to judge a movement: "Modern Nation" = people → unity + participation (underlined).
- "Modern Politics" = goals, plan, programme, leadership (L: united), well organised, money (₹), voice.

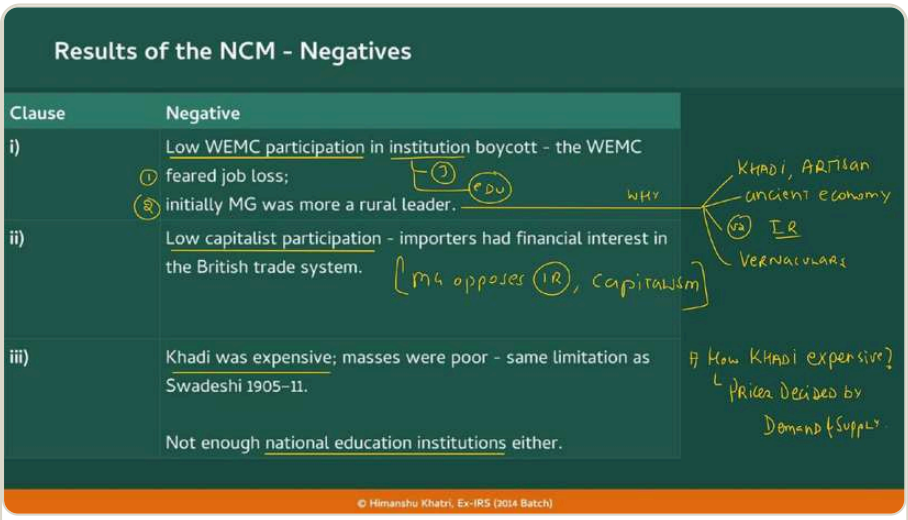
10.1 Negatives



NCM negatives: WEMC, capitalists, khadi Lecture 36 slide 73

No.	Negative
i	Low WEMC participation in the institution boycott: feared job loss (J, EDU); initially MG was more a rural leader
ii	Low capitalist participation: importers had a financial interest in British trade
iii	Khadi was expensive, masses poor (same limit as Swadeshi 1905-11); too few national education institutions
iv	Anti-untouchability was MG's personal priority, not shared by the upper-caste INC leadership

No.	Negative
v	Violence: Malabar (1921), Prince of Wales visit (Nov 1921), Chauri Chaura (1922)
vi	Communal violence: the Ulamas' role brought religiosity; Moplah Revolt 1921 (Malabar): INC mobilised ryots on Khilafat with Ulamas, leaders were arrested, it turned communal against Hindu Janmies; riots 1922-24; Tilak had predicted it; Hindu-Muslim unity was temporary
vii	Revolutionaries disappointed by the 1922 withdrawal (Alluri Sitarama Raju: joined the NCM, then the Rampa Rebellion in Andhra forests)
viii	Khilafat ended 1924: Turkey abolished the Khalifate, a secular republic under Mustafa Kemal Ataturk

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why low WEMC:
  - (1) feared job loss
  - (2) MG was a rural leader.
- Why: khadi and artisans, an ancient economy, IR [read as Industrial Revolution], vernaculars: MG opposes IR and capitalism.
- "How is khadi expensive?" Prices are decided by demand and supply.
- Marked: violence, communal violence, "Hindu-Muslim unity was temporary."

10.2 Positives

- Rowlatt Act repealed March 1922.
- INC popular in NWFP (Muslim-majority; Chief Commissioner's Province from Punjab 1901, full province 1932).
- Strong working-class participation:
  - J.M. Sen Gupta led strikes in Assam tea plantations and Bengal steamer services
  - WC strikes at the Prince of Wales visit
- WC journey: initiation at Swadeshi 1905-11 → education at HRL 1916-18 → action at Rowlatt 1919 → full mobilisation at NCM 1920-22.
- Revolutionaries joined, including a young Bhagat Singh.
- Strong peasant participation: the Awadh Kisan Sabha (Oct 1920) (below), the Eka Movement (1921) led by Madari Pasi (extremist in method, not Gandhian) and the Akali Movement (1920-25) merged into the NCM (INC took up ryot issues; ryots backed Swaraj).
- Tribals: in Andhra violated forest laws as CD (Alluri Sitarama Raju, Rampa).
- Lower castes: untouchability became a mainstream political issue in the INM for the first time (All India Anti-Untouchability League 1932 later).
- Great Hindu-Muslim unity 1920-22, except Malabar.
- New regions joined for the first time: Rajasthan, Gujarat, Sindh, NWFP, UP, South India (HRL: political education; NCM: direct action).
- Economic boycott succeeded: British imports halved (it failed in Swadeshi 1905-11).

- Council boycott succeeded: only 5% voted in the 1920 CLA elections, the first direct elections under the GOI Act 1919.
- C.R. Das left his lucrative legal practice.
- Anti-liquor campaign succeeded and brought women in large numbers.
- Regional leaders emerged: Subhas Chandra Bose, Jawaharlal Nehru, Vallabhbhai Patel (Bose: Cambridge, passed the exam in 1920 at the first attempt after six months, 4th rank; resigned in 1921 and joined the NCM).
- Akali Movement (1920-25) backed the NCM from 1921:
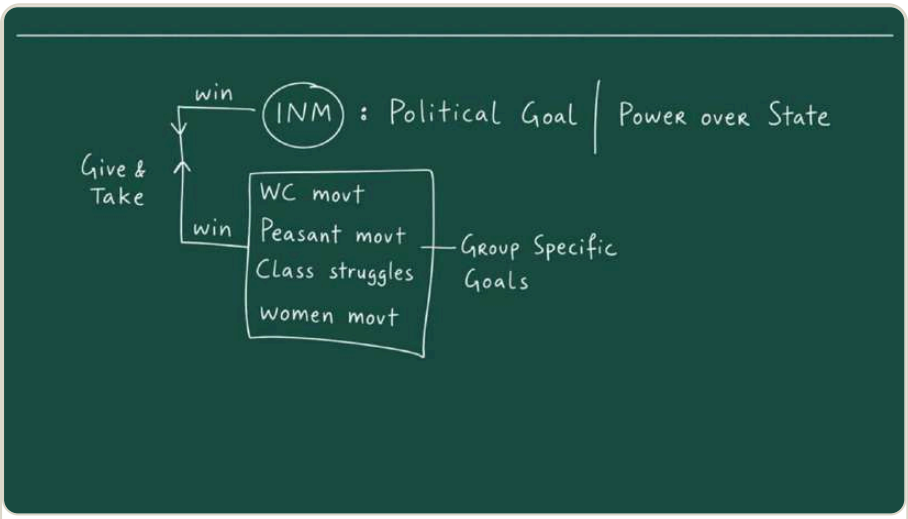
    - Taking Gurudwaras from British-loyal Mahants brought religious Punjabi masses in
    - Hindu-Muslim-Sikh unity (like Tilak's Ganpati 1893 and Shivaji 1896 festivals)



INM's political goal and group-specific movements Lecture 36 slide 79

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Participation in peasant movements needs: well organised, charismatic, emotive issue (same three conditions as in Section 5).
- INM = political goal: power over the State.
- WC, peasant, class and women movements = group-specific goals
- between them give and take: each wins from the other.
- Marked: "Even revolutionaries joined", "Strong peasant participation", "Baba Ramchandra", "Tribal participation", "violated forest laws as CD", "Hindu-Muslim unity", "Economic boycott", "Akali ... brought Punjabi masses into the INM." Side note: CDM 1930-34: British imports halved too.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Awadh Kisan Sabha (Oct 1920): Baba Ramchandra, a Fiji-returned indentured labourer, organised peasants in Awadh from about 1918-19 against taluqdars (illegal evictions, nazrana, begar) and built it from below.
- Nehru joined in June 1920 (Pratapgarh villages), giving organisational structure and a Congress link.
- Future link: this prepared the All India Kisan Sabha (AIKS) 1936 (Chapter 38).

HANDOUT NOTE

- Stokes and Andrews (boxes in the handout and slides).
- Samuel Evans (Satyananda) Stokes, the American Satyagrahi: settled in Himachal Pradesh, introduced the American Red Delicious apple to the Shimla hills, and was the only American arrested under the sedition law for the NCM (1921). C.F.
- Andrews (Deenabandhu, "Friend of the Poor"):
    - MG's associate since South Africa
    - Came to India 1904 to teach at St. Stephen's College, Delhi
    - a bridge between MG and Tagore at Shantiniketan
    - AITUC President in 1925 and 1927
    - mediator between the INC and the British
    - Helped end indentured labour (abolition 1921, as on the slide)

11 · The Passive Phase (1922-27)

STORY LINK

Because the mass movement stopped, the INC argued about councils. Ask: why was there no repeat of Surat 1907?

- The NCM was withdrawn in 1922
- MG was in jail 1922-24
- CLA elections were due in 1923.
- All INC leaders agreed: no CDM yet.
- They split on what to do instead: Swarajists (Pro-Changers) against No-Changers.

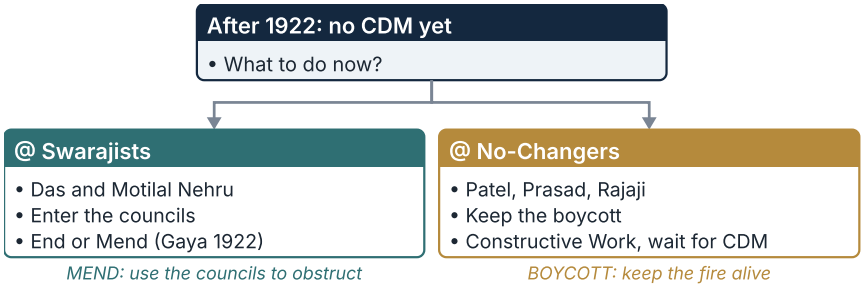
THE PASSIVE PHASE: TWO CAMPS



Camp	Leaders	Position
Swarajists	C.R. Das and Motilal Nehru, with Lajpat Rai and Madan Mohan Malaviya	At Gaya 1922: "Ending or Mending the Councils": enter the councils to reform or wreck them
No-Changers	Vallabhbhai Patel, Rajendra Prasad, C. Rajagopalachari (MG's supporters)	Continue council boycott and Constructive Work for non-violent training; wait for CDM

- Swarajists' case:
  - (i) propaganda and filling the void left by the NCM
  - (ii) struggle and obstruction (using the adjournment motion of the GOI Act 1919), not Moderate-style reforms
  - (iii) without the INC the 1923 elections would still happen and non-INC forces would enter, weakening it
  - (iv) a good turnout without the INC would be a loss of face
  - (v) the British would call the 1919 reforms a success
- No-Changers' case: council entry would cause (i) neglect of Constructive Work, (ii) loss of revolutionary zeal (parliamentary routine), (iii) political corruption (perks of office).
- Prescription: continue NC, CW, wait for CDM.

11.1 How a Surat-style split was avoided

MNEMONIC · HOW A SURAT-STYLE SPLIT WAS AVOIDED

D A T A

The INC kept its DATA together: four reasons it stayed whole.

D Divide and Rule prevented: MG backed the Bengal Swarajists
A All accepted MG's leadership
T Trust and respect in MG's style
A Already done: council entry was complete by 1924

Order is free, so the letters were rearranged into a word.

- At Gaya 1922 the "End or Mend" resolution failed.
- The Swarajists resigned their INC posts (not membership) and formed the Congress Khilafat Swaraj Party (Swaraj Party)
- "Khilafat" was added to win Muslim votes while the Khilafat Movement (1920-24) continued. They contested the 1923 elections
- MG opposed council entry but compromised. Four reasons there was no repeat of Surat 1907: (i) all accepted MG's leadership (the INC had learnt that unity beats winning an argument)
- (ii) MG's style of trust and respect
- (iii) MG prevented British DnR: when the government repressed the Bengal Swarajists, he publicly supported them
- (iv) by 1924, when he left jail, council entry was already done.
- At the 1924 Belgaum Session (the only INC session presided over by MG) the Gandhi-Das Pact (1924) recognised the Swarajists as the parliamentary wing of the INC.

12 · The Swarajists in the CLA

> STORY LINK
> Because the Swarajists entered, the councils became arenas. Ask: why did the party fade by 1926?

- Motilal Nehru demanded a new constitution in the very first session (the GOI Act 1919 allowed review after ten years, i.e. 1929).
- They demanded civil liberty (repeal of repressive laws) and concessions for Indian industry, and used the adjournment motion effectively.
- They filled the void left by the NCM.

12.1 Negatives and the Responsivists

- No street-level support beside council work (they relied on newspapers).
- C.R. Das died in 1925: a leadership vacuum.
- Lost the ML 1906: the Swarajists did not support Muslim tenants in Bengal.
- Communal riots of 1924 divided the councils and split the party: the Responsivists.
- They wanted to cooperate with the government, and sought British support to protect Hindu interests
- Lajpat Rai and Malaviya were associated with them and accused Motilal Nehru of being too pro-Muslim
- Kelkar (N.C.) and Jayakar joined the Executive Council in the Central Provinces ("seat-hungry"), against "End or Mend."
- By the 1926 elections communal unity in the party had gone
- The Bengal Pact collapsed with Das
- The Swaraj Party lost heavily in 1926, losing Muslim voters and leaders

- Response: they reiterated commitment to a mass CDM, and the INC decided to withdraw from the councils in 1926 (all withdrew finally in 1930 after the Lahore Resolution of 1929 for Purna Swaraj).

The Passive Phase: how it ran

- 1922 Gaya:
  - End or Mend fails

13 · Constructive Work in the Passive Phase

> STORY LINK
> Because the INC could not run a movement, it built a machine. Ask: which of the five gifts mattered most for the next round?

- (i) Work for party cadre in a politically inactive phase, keeping the INC organisation active among masses
- Cadres were trained.
- (ii) Unity within communities: upper-caste urban workers in rural CW learned the conditions of lower castes and villages, bridging the rural-urban divide.
- (iii) Deepened the INC's hold in rural areas: CW became a recruitment tool in villages.
- (iv) Built the masses' confidence in the INC: a trust no editorial or council speech could create.
- (v) Parallel grassroots institutions: Swadeshi education through national schools and local panchayats as independent arbitration courts, bypassing British justice: CW nurtured nationalism.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The Passive Phase was "anything but passive": no mass movement ran, but it built organisation, cadres, rural roots, mass trust and nationalist consciousness.
- The announcement of the Simon Commission in 1927 rekindled the INM and ended the Passive Phase (Chapter 40).

- Five PYQs on the slides: Prelims 1996, 1997, 2003, 2005, 2026. Every one is a name/place/number pair.

MAINS HOOKS

- Why did peasants join the INM, and why were these movements still independent of INC? (symbiotic, not hierarchical)
- Bardoli as the template of Gandhian method: constructive work, local leader, legislators resign, Gandhi arrives, tribunal.
- Why Eka and Mapilla failed (violence, lost leadership) while Borsad and Bardoli succeeded.
- Akali Movement: religious reform as a peasant and nationalist movement; positives and negatives for the INM.

Teacher marks this chapter important for both Prelims and Mains; learn the five movements as a ladder from disorganised unrest to disciplined satyagraha.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: After the Home Rule Leagues and the Non-Cooperation Movement taught villagers the language of rights and the tools of protest, peasants in Awadh, Malabar, Gujarat and Punjab organised around their own grievances: cesses, eviction, forced labour, rent and revenue. These movements were boosted by the INM but never owned by the INC. Those that dropped non-violence or lost their leaders (Eka, Mapilla) were crushed or derailed, while Borsad and Bardoli, run on Gandhian lines by Patel, won concrete outcomes. The Akalis fought a religious-reform battle that also politicised Punjab's peasantry.

1 The countryside is educated. The Home Rule Leagues (1916-18) and NCM (1920-22) taught urban workers and rural ryots to take part in politics. Peasants learnt by doing and saw the use of satyagraha, boycott, civil disobedience and social boycott. This gave them a vocabulary of protest for their own fights.

→ So peasants began organising, but they had real grievances of their own.

2 Awadh peasants are squeezed. Big landlords (zamindars and taluqdars) levied illegal abwabs and nazrana, evicted at will (bedakhli), and forced hari and begar. WWI inflation raised prices while rents and cesses did not fall.

→ So they set up their own Sabhas.

3 Kisan Sabha 1918 and Awadh Kisan Sabha 1920. The UP Kisan Sabha was set up in Feb 1918 by Mishra and Dwivedi with Malaviya as senior patron. Malaviya was a Moderate and opposed the Non-Cooperation Movement, so Baba Ramchandra, with Nehru's support, founded the Awadh Kisan Sabha in 1920 for extra-constitutional struggle.

→ But the movement turned violent in 1921.

4 Repression plus a concession. In 1921 the British used the Seditious Meetings Act (1911) to crush the agitation. They also passed the Awadh Rent Amendment Act (1921), which met some rent grievances and took the sting out of it.

→ Meanwhile a parallel Awadh movement rose under a new leader.

5 Eka 1921: a lower-caste leader. The Eka Movement had the same grievances plus thikedars (rent collectors) and the same methods. Madari Pasi, from the lower castes, led it. It did not hold to non-violence, so the British crushed it on law-and-order grounds by 1922.

→ But Awadh was not the only region in revolt.

6 Malabar 1921: Mapilla revolt. Muslim tenants, the Mapillas, were part of Khilafat and angry with Hindu Jenmies over rents and eviction. INC joined at first, but arrests of INC leaders left the revolt without guidance. It turned violent and communal, and the British declared martial law.

→ Then NCM itself was withdrawn, and the next fight was fought on pure Gandhian lines.

7 Borsad 1922-24: dual tyranny. After NCM was withdrawn in 1922, Patel led Borsad against dacoits, police collusion and an additional police tax. Villagers refused the tax non-violently and volunteer corps warned them of police confiscation. The Governor of Bombay ordered an inquiry and withdrew the tax.

→ Patel's organising skill was now proven, and Bardoli would test it at scale.

8 Bardoli 1928: the model. Bardoli had Kaliparaj and Ujaliparaj, the Hali system and a 30% revenue rise based on a miscalculation. Gandhi did constructive work from 1927, Patel led from 1928, Bombay legislators resigned, and Gandhi arrived. A tribunal cut the rise to 6.03%, and the women of Bardoli called Patel Sardar.

→ Meanwhile in Punjab a religious fight was becoming a peasant and national one.

9 Punjab: Akalis versus Mahants. Udasi Mahants, enriched by Ranjit Singh RS01-39's land grants, controlled Gurudwaras and backed the British. They honoured General Dyer after Jallianwala Bagh, and the outrage launched the Akali Movement (1920-25). Nankana, the Keys Affair and Guru Ka Bagh followed.

→ The British finally gave way because they feared the Army.

10 Outcome and lesson. The British passed the Gurudwara Reform Act, 1925, and the elected SGPC took all Gurudwaras. Gandhi had already withdrawn support over the Nabha issue. The chapter's lesson is that the INM gave peasants consciousness and language, and the peasants gave the INM its mass character.

In simple words

- Two-way street: INC took Swaraj to the villages, and peasants took land and rent into the INM.
- These were not INC movements. They had their own grievances, leaders and organisations, and were only boosted by NCM, Khilafat and the Home Rule Leagues.
- Awadh: cesses, eviction, forced labour and inflation. The Kisan Sabha (non-INC method: satyagraha) and the Eka (violent) were the two outlets.
- Violence or lost leadership = defeat: Eka was crushed, and the Mapilla revolt turned communal after INC leaders were arrested.
- Gujarat = Gandhian success: Borsad (no extra police tax) and Bardoli (30% hike cut to 6.03%), both led by Patel.

- Akalis fought for Gurudwara control, joined NCM, and won the Gurudwara Reform Act 1925 because the British feared Sikh disaffection in the Army.
- Trajectory to remember: Kisan Sabha 1918, Awadh Kisan Sabha 1920, Eka 1921, Borsad 1922-24, Bardoli 1928.

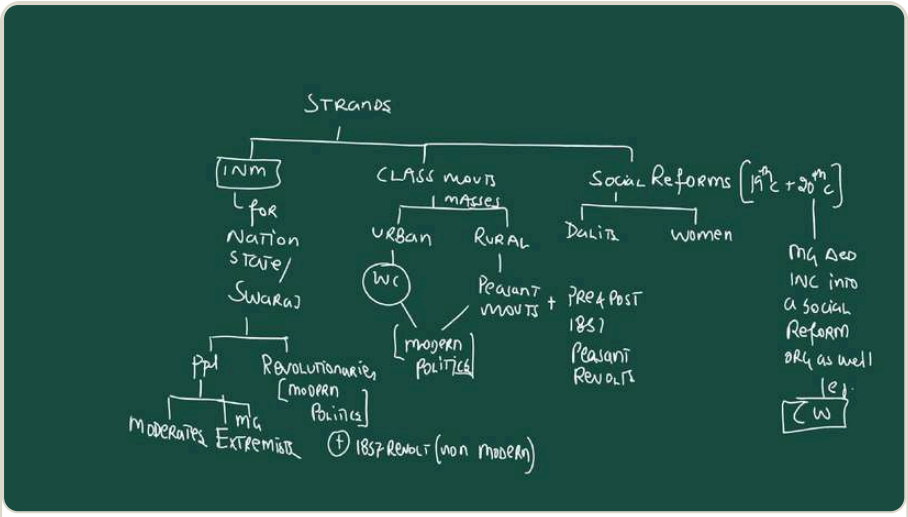
0.1 Strands of the national movement



Board: three strands of the national movement Lecture 37 slide 2

- INM for nation state / Swaraj: the people's side has Moderates, Extremists and MG; the Revolutionaries are modern politics too. The 1857 Revolt is added as non-modern.
- Class movements of the masses: Urban has the working class (WC); Rural has peasant movements, plus pre- and post-1857 peasant revolts. WC and peasant movements both feed into modern politics.
- Social reforms (19th and 20th century): Dalits and Women. MG made the INC a social-reform organisation as well, e.g. Constructive Work (CW).

TEACHER'S BOARD

Teacher's board: this chapter belongs to the rural class-movement strand. It sits between the pre- and post-1857 peasant revolts and the working-class movement.

1 · How did Peasant Movements connect with INM?

STORY LINK

Because the HRLs and NCM spread political awareness, peasants began to organise, yet their anger was about land and rent. Ask: who gave what to whom?

- The peasant movements of the 1920s were heavily influenced by the INM: the energy of the Home Rule League Movement (1916-18), NCM (1920-22) and the Khilafat agitation.
- These movements created political awareness among the rural masses and gave them a vocabulary of protest.
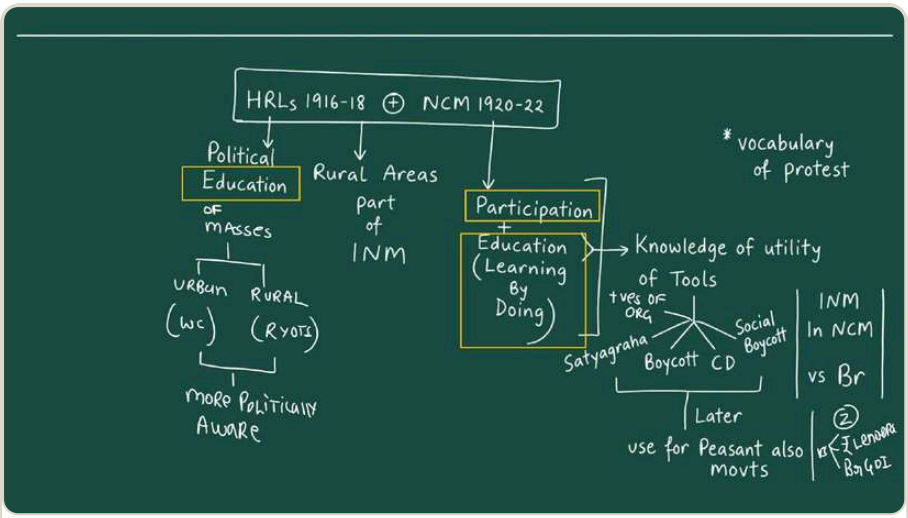
- In turn, peasant movements merged with the INM by bringing the countryside into the national struggle.
- A two-way street: INC raised the issue of Swaraj among peasants, and peasants raised land and rent within the INM.

1.1 What the INM gave the peasants



Board: HRL and NCM gave education, participation and tools Lecture 37 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: HRLs (1916-18) plus NCM (1920-22) gave political education of the masses: urban WC and rural ryots became more politically aware, and rural areas became part of the INM.
- Participation plus learning by doing taught the utility of tools: satyagraha, boycott, civil disobedience and social boycott. These were used later in peasant movements too.
- Two enemies appear on the board: the INM in NCM was against the British, and peasant movements were also against lenders and the British GOI.
- The Home Rule Leagues gave peasants confidence, so the Kisan Sabha demands are peasant demands.

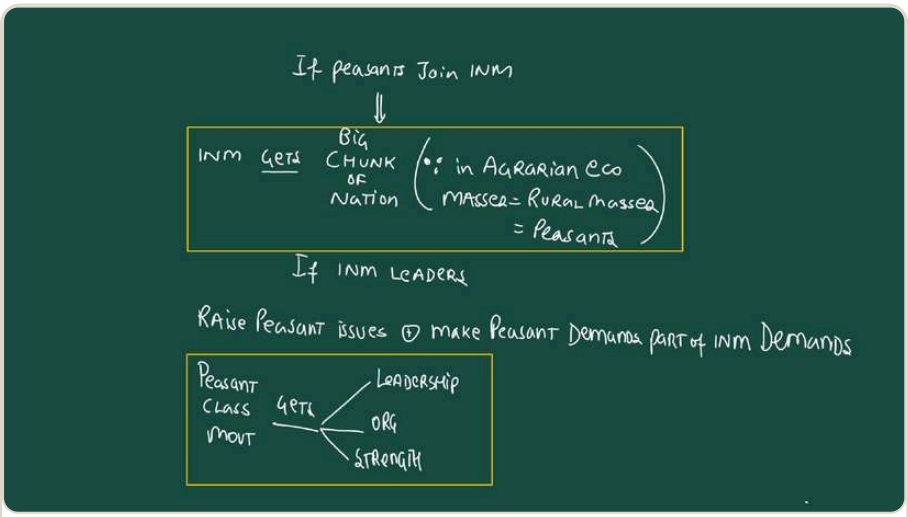
1.2 What the peasants gave the INM



Board: what each side gains when peasants join the INM Lecture 37 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: if peasants join, the INM gets a big chunk of the nation, because in an agrarian economy the masses are the rural masses, that is the peasants.
- If INM leaders raise peasant issues and make peasant demands part of INM demands, the peasant class movement gets leadership, organisation and strength.

1.3 Linked to INM but independent of INC

- These peasant movements were not of INC and were independent of INC.
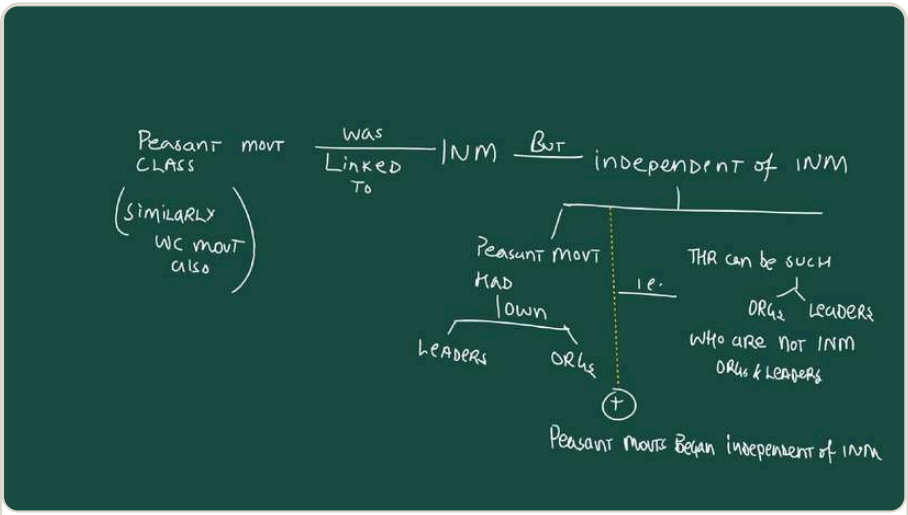
- The peasantry had its own grievances (illegal cesses, forced labour, eviction), its own leaders and often its own methods.
- INC's relationship was sometimes supportive, sometimes distant and sometimes uncomfortable, depending on how far the peasants were willing to go.



Board: peasant movement linked to INM but independent Lecture 37 slide 6

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the peasant class movement was linked to the INM but independent of it. The same holds for the WC movement.
- Independent means they had their own leaders and organisations, which are not INM organisations or leaders. Peasant movements began independent of the INM.

Board: correlation of INM with class movements and its limit Lecture 37 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: mostly there is a positive correlation. When the INM rises, the peasant class movement rises, and when the INM falls, it falls.
- Later the INM correlates with the WC movement too. But in some cases where communism is inversely related to the INM, there is divergence between the INM and the WC and peasant movements (WC examples: CDM, and a second movement the board abbreviates; check your notebook).
- Reason: communists placed INM or national interests below class interests.

Board: communism in industrial and agrarian sectors Lecture 37 slide 7

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: communism has an industrial stream (Marx, Stalin) and an agrarian stream (Mao, hence Maoism). Indian Naxalism was called Maoism.
- No private ownership, state control and a one-party system make it the teacher's 'Bigger Hitler of the Left Wing'.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- INM gave consciousness and language; peasants gave the INM its mass character.
- The relationship is symbiotic, not hierarchical.

2 · Kisan Sabha Movement (1918) and Awadh Kisan Sabha (1920)

STORY LINK

Because Awadh's landlords took more than the rent and the HRLs had given peasants a voice, they formed Sabhas. Ask: why did Baba Ramchandra start a second Sabha in 1920?

2.1 What were the grievances?

Awadh grievances and the board's note on the land settlement Lecture 37 slide 13

- Awadh peasants faced strong oppression from big landlords (zamindars and taluqdars). Their grievances:
- Illegal abwabs and nazrana: extra cesses beyond the legal rent, with no authorisation.

Board: inflation link to Ahmedabad Mills Strike 1918 Lecture 37 slide 14

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board links the inflation grievance to the Ahmedabad Mills Strike 1918 (urban workers hit by the same price rise).
- The board also labels Awadh as a hybrid mahalwari area with the ryots in the inner zone. The exact zone labelling: check your notebook.

MNEMONIC · AWADH GRIEVANCES (NO FIXED ORDER)

L I C E

Landlords were lice on the Awadh peasant.

- L Labour, forced (hari and begar)
- I Inflation of WWI, rents not cut
- C Cesses: illegal abwabs and nazrana
- E Eviction (bedakhli)

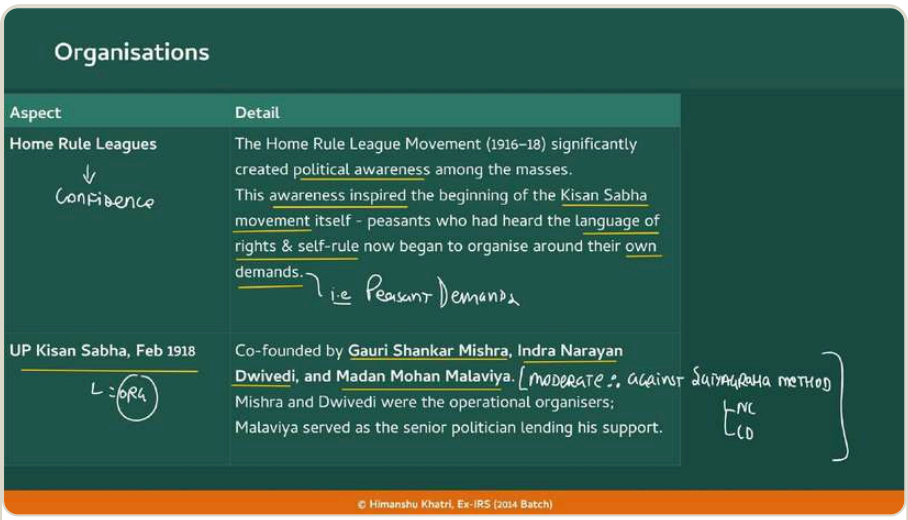
Four grievances, order does not matter.

2.2 Role of the Home Rule Leagues

- The Home Rule League Movement (1916-18) created political awareness among the masses.
- This awareness inspired the beginning of the Kisan Sabha movement itself: peasants who had heard the language of rights and self-rule began to organise around their own demands.

2.3 The organisations



Board: HRL confidence and the UP Kisan Sabha founders Lecture 37 slide 15

- UP Kisan Sabha set up in February 1918, co-founded by Gauri Shankar Mishra, Indra Narayan Dwivedi and Madan Mohan Malaviya.
- Mishra and Dwivedi were the operational organisers; Malaviya was the senior political patron lending his weight.
- Jawaharlal Nehru was NOT associated with UPKS 1918. He engaged with the Kisan Sabha movement only from June 1920, when he visited Pratapgarh with Baba Ramchandra.
- Kisan Sabha leaders attended INC sessions, linking the peasant cause to the national movement.
- In 1920 Baba Ramchandra emerged as the leader of peasants in Awadh, and Nehru developed close contact with the movement.

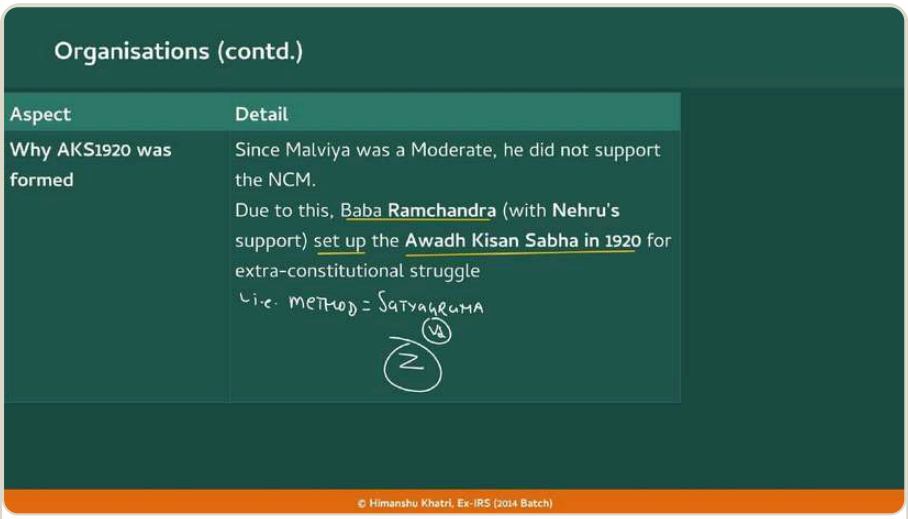
TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the Home Rule Leagues gave the peasants confidence.
- Malaviya was a Moderate, therefore against the satyagraha method: no NC (Non-Cooperation) and no CD (Civil Disobedience).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout says UPKS was co-founded by all three (Mishra, Dwivedi, Malaviya). The slide hook on the PYQ says Mishra and Dwivedi set it up with Malaviya's support, and that it had 450 branches by June 1919. The PYQ answer is the same either way: Nehru was NOT associated. Use the handout wording for descriptive answers.

2.4 Why the Awadh Kisan Sabha formed, and its methods



Board: AKS 1920 method equals satyagraha Lecture 37 slide 17

- Since Malaviya was a Moderate, he did not support NCM. So Baba Ramchandra (with Nehru's support) set up the Awadh Kisan Sabha in 1920 for extra-constitutional struggle: methods beyond petitions and prayers, towards active resistance.
- Methods: resisting eviction, social boycott of those who did not join, and refusal of forced labour.

TEACHER'S BOARD

Teacher's board: for the AKS 1920, 'extra-constitutional' means the method is satyagraha.

2.5 What happened next?

- In 1921 the movement turned violent. The British suppressed it under the Seditious Meetings Act (1911).
- The British also brought the Awadh Rent Amendment Act (1921), which met some rent grievances and took the sting out of the agitation.
- The movement ended partly through repression and partly through a legislative concession.

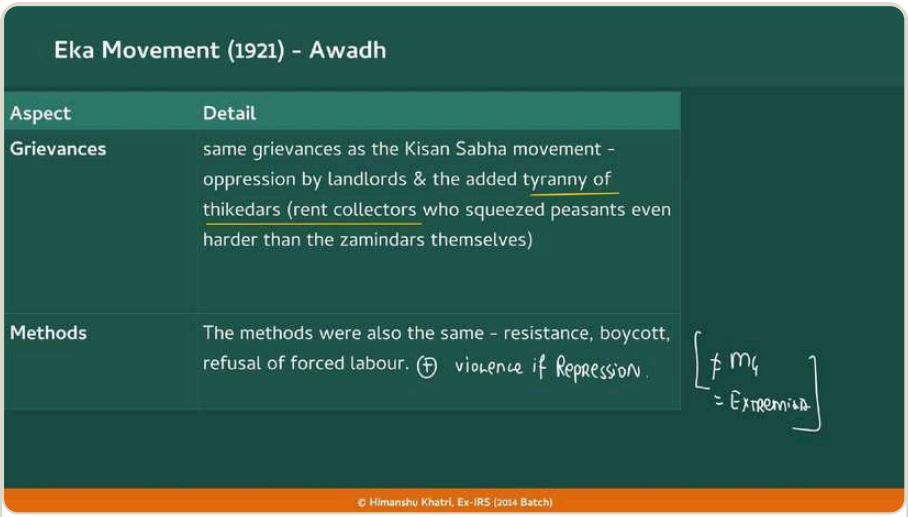
3 · Eka Movement (1921) — Awadh

STORY LINK

Because the Awadh Kisan Sabha was being crushed, the same grievances found a second outlet under a new kind of leader. Ask: what did Madari Pasi's movement refuse to accept that Gandhi insisted on?



Board: Eka methods, violence if repressed, not MG Lecture 37 slide 19

- The Eka Movement arose in Awadh with the same grievances as the Kisan Sabha: landlord oppression plus the extra tyranny of thikedars, rent collectors who squeezed peasants harder than the zamindars.
- The methods were the same: resistance, boycott, refusal of forced labour.
- The key difference was leadership: Madari Pasi, a leader from the lower castes, emerged at the head. This shows the peasant struggle was not just upper-caste.
- Unlike the Gandhian movements, which made non-violence non-negotiable, the Eka did not adhere to non-violence. This let the British repress it on law-and-order grounds, and it was crushed by 1922.
- Eka shows a tension within the INM: Gandhi's method required strict non-violence, but many peasant leaders, especially of lower-caste background, saw non-violence as a restraint favouring the oppressor. Madari Pasi was the Extremist, not the Gandhian, of the peasant world.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Eka methods were the same, plus violence if repressed.
- Eka is not the MG way: the board calls its leader the Extremist.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Eka = Awadh, 1921, Madari Pasi, lower castes, thikedars, not non-violent, crushed by 1922.

4 · Mapilla Revolt (1921) — Malabar

> STORY LINK
> Because Malabar's Muslim tenants had both a Khilafat cause and a landlord problem, their anger could turn either way. Ask: what turned it from agrarian to communal?

4.1 Background and grievance

- In Malabar (present-day Kerala), Muslim tenants, called Mapillas or Moplahs, were part of the Khilafat movement.
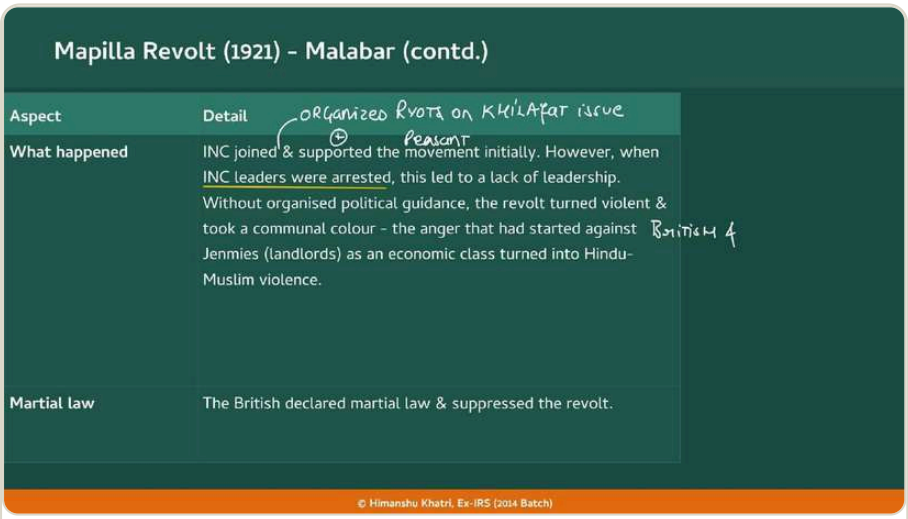
- The Mapillas had a long history of revolt: earlier uprisings in the 1840s and 1870s, driven by the same agrarian grievance.
- Primary grievance: oppression by landlords, predominantly Hindu Jenmies (hereditary landowners) who controlled vast lands. Mapilla tenants suffered heavy rents and arbitrary eviction.

4.2 What happened?



Board: INC organised peasant ryots on the Khilafat issue Lecture 37 slide 22

- INC joined and supported the movement initially.
- When INC leaders were arrested, there was a lack of leadership. Without organised political guidance, the revolt turned violent and took a communal colour: anger against Jenmies as an economic class turned into Hindu-Muslim violence.
- The British declared martial law and suppressed the revolt.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - Teacher's board: the INC (Khilafat issue) had organised peasant ryots on the Khilafat issue, a positive for the INM.
> - The board also notes anger against the British next to the landlords (the rest of that line: check your notebook).

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The Mapilla Revolt is one of the saddest chapters of the period: a genuine agrarian grievance derailed into communal violence for lack of strong secular leadership.
- It also hurt Hindu-Muslim unity within NCM.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Slide hook (Prelims 1997 explanation): the Moplah Revolt in Malabar, 1921, was led by Ali Musliyar and Varian Kunnath Haji. These names are not in the handout, so treat them as extra detail.

5 · Borsad Satyagraha (1922–24) — Gujarat (Post-NCM)

STORY LINK

Because NCM was withdrawn in 1922, Gujarat's peasants took a fresh route under Patel. Ask: what made Borsad a textbook satyagraha?

5.1 The grievance

- After NCM was withdrawn in 1922, Gujarat saw a unique form of peasant mobilisation under Vallabhbhai Patel.
- In Borsad there was monetary collusion between dacoits and the police: the police were in league with the dacoits and not protecting the people.
- The Government also applied an additional tax on villagers to fund an additional police force against dacoity.
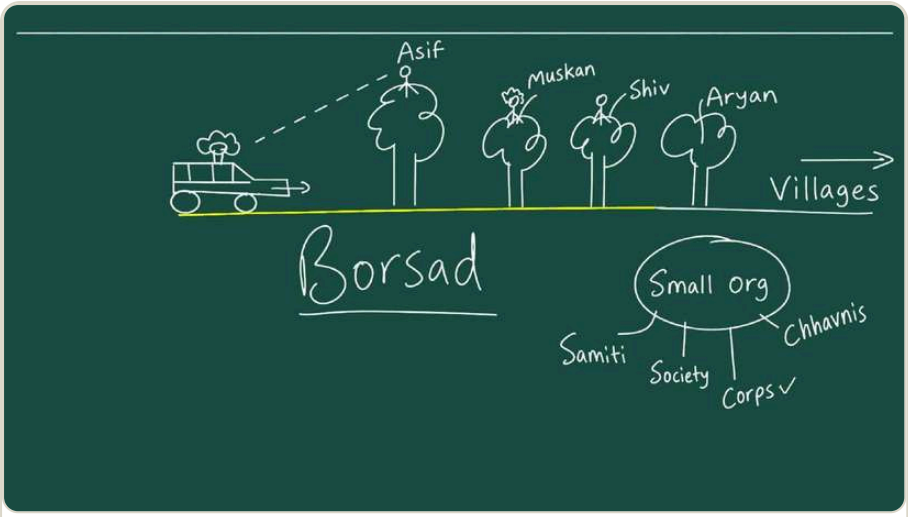
- Dual tyranny: dacoits looted them, the police who should protect them colluded with dacoits, and the Government made peasants pay for an extra police force that was not doing its job.

5.2 The action



Board: corps warn villagers as the police vehicle approaches Lecture 37 slide 27

- Patel asked villagers not to pay the additional tax, and not to resort to violence even if the Government confiscated movable property.
- Volunteer corps were raised who alerted villagers when police came for confiscation, giving people time to run away, so the police found empty villages.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: a police vehicle goes village to village while lookouts warn each village. A small organisation can take several forms (Samiti, Society, Corps, Chhavnis), and the board marks Corps as the form used here.
- Patel's organisational skill shows in the voluntary corps.

5.3 The result

- The Governor of Bombay, upset over the accusation of police-dacoit collusion, ordered an inquiry.
- This led to an immediate halt to confiscation and the withdrawal of the additional tax levied for the extra police force.

Board: clear goal, inquiry for truth, voluntary corps Lecture 37 slide 30

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Clear goal: no additional tax for the pay of the police force, and not a no-land-revenue campaign.
- The concrete outcome was an inquiry for truth, and the organisational skill was the voluntary corps.
- The slide's answer note: the Sarabandi (no-tax) campaign of 1922 was led by Vallabhbhai Patel, a great organiser like MG.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Borsad is a small but textbook Gandhian satyagraha: specific grievance, non-violent resistance, moral pressure on the authorities, a concrete outcome. Patel's organisational skills were already visible.

HANDOUT ALERT

- The teacher's PYQ slide for Prelims 1996 adds: Patel emphasised the principal hardships and the need for complete unity and non-violence.

6 · Bardoli Satyagraha (1928) — Surat, Gujarat

STORY LINK

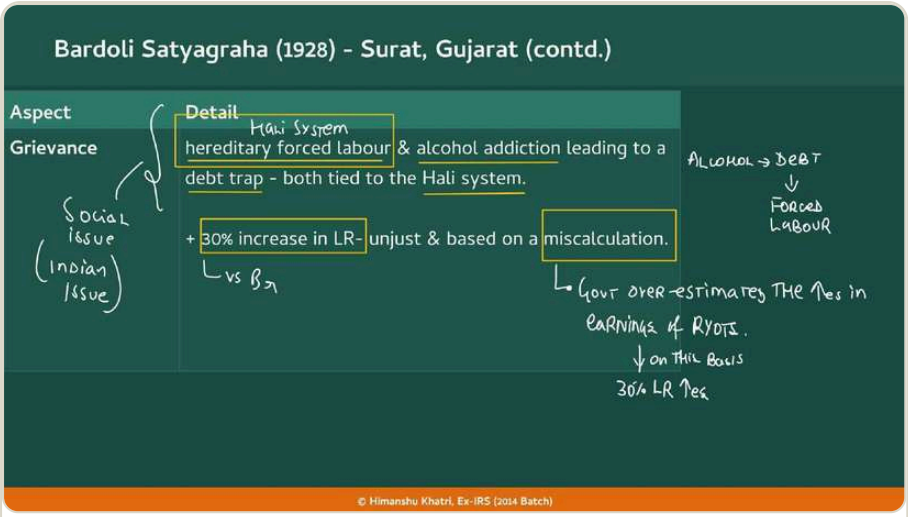
Because the INM was in a passive phase after 1922, Bardoli was the proving ground for CDM. Ask: what steps raised the tempo?

- The Bardoli Satyagraha of 1928 was among the most significant peasant movements of the 1920s and a preparation ground for CDM (1930-34).
- INC had originally planned CDM to begin from Bardoli itself.

6.1 Background

- The people of Bardoli (Surat) were already politically organised, a consciousness built during NCM.
- Two main caste groups: Kaliparaj (lower castes) and Ujaliparaj (upper castes), with a bonhomie between them and efforts to prepare for CDM.
- Bhajan Mandalis were used to raise political awareness among the rural population.

6.2 The grievance



Board: Hali system, social issue, and the miscalculated 30% rise Lecture 37 slide 33

- Two forms of oppression: hereditary forced labour and alcohol addiction leading to a debt trap, both tied to the Hali system.
- On top, the Government imposed a 30% increase in land revenue assessment, unjust and based on a miscalculation.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the Hali system is a social issue (an Indian issue), and the 30% hike is the fight against the British.
- Chain: alcohol leads to debt, and debt leads to forced labour.
- The miscalculation: the Government over-estimated the rise in the earnings of ryots, and on that basis raised land revenue 30%.

6.3 Constructive work and local leadership

- Gandhi led a campaign through his newspapers Young India and Navjivan and visited Bardoli in 1927.
- He worked to unite the low-caste Kaliparaj with the Ujaliparaj by opposing the Hali system, essential because caste divisions would have weakened any collective resistance.
- Gandhi renamed the Kaliparaj as Rani Paraj, People of the Forests, giving them a dignified identity.
- Vallabhbhai Patel took leadership in 1928.

6.4 Focus and organisation

- The focus was kept limited to unjust aspects only; it was not a revolt against the entire revenue system.
- Patel highlighted the miscalculation in the 30% rise and asked peasants to pay land revenue only at the old rates. He demanded an independent tribunal to examine the assessment.
- Here Patel received the title Sardar from the women and ryots of Bardoli.

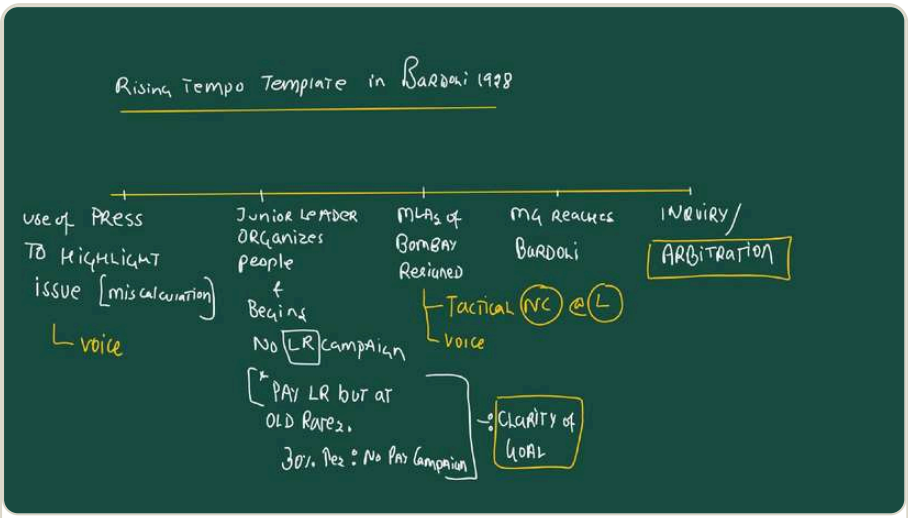
- Organisation: Chhavnis as the basic unit, women included, social boycott of non-supporters, and the Bardoli Patrika newspaper to spread awareness of the miscalculated assessment.

6.5 Building pressure and the result



Board: rising tempo template in Bardoli 1928 Lecture 37 slide 34

- Incremental pressure: members of the Provincial Legislative Assembly (PLA) resigned, e.g. K.M. Munshi. Gandhi then reached Bardoli in 1928, adding his weight.
- A truce followed. An independent tribunal was appointed and revised the increase down to 6.03%, from the original 30%.
- MG style of arbitration: reveal economic truth and seek a middle path based on facts, not maximalist demands.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board, 'Rising Tempo Template in Bardoli 1928', five steps in order: (1) use of the press to highlight the miscalculation, which gives voice; (2) a junior leader organises people and begins the No LR campaign; (3) MLAs of Bombay resign, a tactical non-cooperation at the legislature, which also gives voice; (4) MG reaches Bardoli; (5) inquiry / arbitration.
- Under step 2: pay LR but at old rates; the 30% rise gets a no-pay campaign. This is clarity of goal.
- The board writes PLC beside PLA (the Provincial Legislative Council/Assembly of Bombay); the handout writes PLA.

Board: Bardoli lifted MG out of depression after 1922 Lecture 37 slide 31

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Bardoli lifted MG out of depression. 1922-28 was the passive phase of the INM: Chauri Chaura (1922) ended NCM, and the Bardoli Resolution of 1922 suspended the movement. Both hurt MG's popularity (last word on the board is abbreviated: check your notebook).
- So Bardoli 1928 restored the popularity of MG.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the companion's mains practice answer speaks of a 22% increase in a single taluka and names a Maxwell-Broomfield inquiry. The handout and the teacher's slides say 30%, cut to 6.03%. Use 30% to 6.03%; the teacher's board beats the bank key.

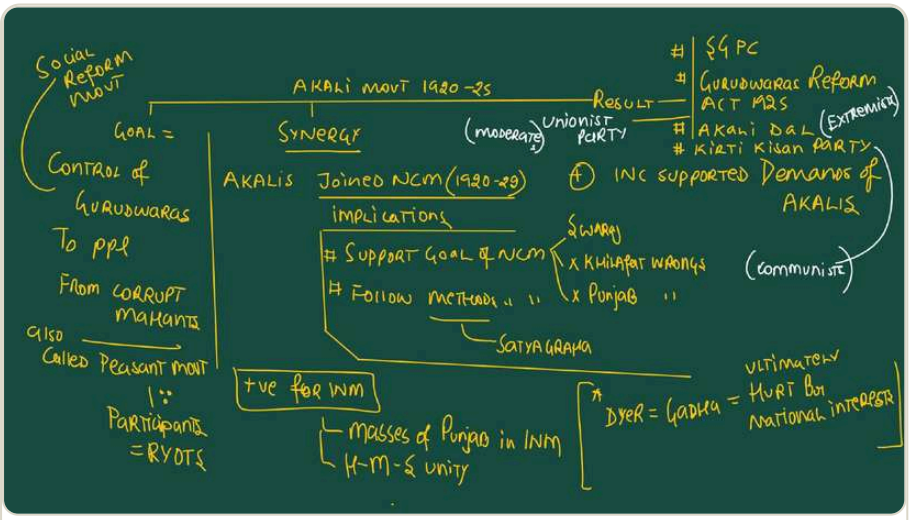
KEY TAKEAWAY

- Bardoli = Surat, 1928, Patel, 30% to 6.03%, Sardar, Rani Paraj, Chhavnis, preparation for CDM 1930.

7 · Akali Movement (1920–25) — Punjab

STORY LINK

Because Mahants controlling Gurudwaras honoured Dyer, Sikh devotees would no longer tolerate them, so a religious reform fight became a peasant and national one. Ask: why did the British give way?



Board: Akali goal, synergy with NCM, and results Lecture 37 slide 40

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the Akali Movement (1920-25) is a social reform movement. Goal: take control of Gurudwaras to the people from corrupt Mahants. It is also called a peasant movement, because the participants were ryots.
- Synergy: the Akalis joined NCM. They supported the NCM goal (Swaraj, Khilafat wrongs and Punjab wrongs) and followed its method, satyagraha. INC supported the demands of the Akalis. (The board's NCM end year reads unclear: check your notebook; the handout says NCM 1920-22.)
- Result: SGPC, Gurudwaras Reform Act 1925, and splits into the Unionist Party (moderate), Akali Dal (extremist) and Kirti Kisan Party (communist).
- Positive for the INM: masses of Punjab entered the INM, and there was Hindu-Muslim-Sikh unity.
- Teacher's remark: Dyer = Gadha (a fool), whose act ultimately hurt British national interests.

7.1 Background

- The movement was a struggle for control of Gurudwaras, Sikh places of worship under Udasi Sikh Mahants since the 18th century.
- Its origins go back to the Singh Sabha Movement of the 1880s, which first raised Sikh religious reform.
- Mahants had control because they received rich lands from Ranjit Singh RS01-39, the ruler of the Sikh Empire. Over time they became corrupt and lived in luxury.
- After the British annexation of Punjab in 1849, the British supported the Mahants against Sikh reformers. The priests of the Golden Temple also issued a hukamnama against the Ghadarites.
- The Mahants honoured General Dyer after the Jallianwala Bagh massacre of 1919. This outrage laid the foundation of the Akali Movement.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Jallianwala Bagh triggered the Akali Movement: Mahants honoured the very man who ordered the massacre of Sikhs at Amritsar.

7.2 Organisations

- Core demand: control of Gurudwaras.
- The British gave control of the Golden Temple easily, probably hoping to pacify the Akalis. This was the British policy of appeasing the moderates and suppressing the extremists among the Akalis.
- SGPC formed in 1920 for organised management of the Golden Temple.
- Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD) formed for further organised protests against Mahants, to win other Gurudwaras. The British supported the Mahants and tried to repress the movement.

7.3 Three important events

TEACHER'S BOARD

Teacher's board: the three events (Nankana, Keys Affair, Guru Ka Bagh) are marked not important. Know them only in a line each.

Event	What happened
Nankana Tragedy (1921)	The Mahant of Nankana Gurudwara used 500 mercenaries when Sikhs tried to enter. Hundreds of Akalis were killed, but the Akalis took control. In 1921 they passed a resolution adopting Non-Cooperation, so the movement became part of NCM.
Keys Affair	Akalis held the Golden Temple but not the Toshikhana (treasury). The movement for its keys was led by Baba Kharak Singh, a moderate. The British soon gave the keys, following their policy of appeasing moderates.
Guru Ka Bagh (1922)	The Gurudwara was given to Akalis but the Mahant still controlled the lands around it. Heavy Government suppression, since NCM was over and the British wanted to restore authority. The Akalis bore the repression and finally won.

MNEMONIC · AKALI EVENTS IN ORDER

Nobly Kept Gurudwaras

- N Nankana Tragedy 1921
- K Keys Affair (Toshikhana)
- G Guru Ka Bagh 1922

Order kept: 1921, Keys, 1922.

7.4 Why the British agreed, and Gandhi's withdrawal

- The British were anxious about disaffection in the Army, since Sikhs formed a significant part of the British Indian Army. They did not concede on principle but because they could not afford Sikh disaffection in the ranks.
- Gandhi withdrew support when the Akalis protested for the restoration of the deposed Raja of Nabha (a Princely State). The movement turned violent, and Gandhi's support was conditional on non-violence.

7.5 Final outcome

- To prevent disaffection in the Army, the British passed the Gurudwara Reform Act, 1925. It was a success: the SGPC, an elected body of Sikhs, got control of all Gurudwaras.

7.6 How the Akali Movement strengthened the INM

Positives	Negatives
Politicisation of Punjab's peasantry; since it was a religious issue, peasants joined in large numbers and it later merged into NCM.	Rooted in a religious issue, Sikhs became religiously charged, which later encouraged communalism.

Positives	Negatives
Educated middle-class Sikhs took leadership from the pro-British feudal class.	After the movement the Akalis split into three factions (see table below).
Unity of rural and urban population.
Hindus and Muslims participated, giving Hindu-Muslim-Sikh unity.
Growth of nationalist and anti-British feeling in the Princely States of Punjab.

Faction	Handout label	Board label
Kirti Kisan Party	Gandhians and Leftists	communist
Akali Dal	Communalists	extremist
Unionist Party	Loyalists to the British	moderate

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout describes the three factions by attitude (Gandhians and Leftists, Communalists, Loyalists), while the teacher's board tags them moderate, extremist and communist. Both describe the same three parties; use the handout for the split and the board for the one-word tag. The board's pairing of Kirti Kisan with the communist label matches the handout's Leftists.

8 · A Note on Peasant Movements and INC

STORY LINK

Because each movement had its own leader and method, the INC's role differed every time. Ask: what is the single line that decides most exam questions?

- Peasant movements of the 1920s were boosted by the INM: the Home Rule Movement, NCM and Khilafat. But they were not of INC and were independent of INC.
- Peasants had their own grievances, leaders and often their own methods.
- INC's engagement was real but strategic: the countryside gave the INM its mass base, but INC leadership was not always comfortable with where peasant anger could go.
- The INM gave peasant movements political consciousness and language; peasant movements gave the INM its mass character. The relationship was symbiotic, not hierarchical.

Board: timeline of 1920s peasant movements by region Lecture 37 slide 24

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: UP has UPKS 1918, AKS 1920 and Eka 1921. Malabar (Madras) has the Moplah Revolt 1921. Then 1922 Chauri Chaura. Gujarat has Borsad 1922-24 and Bardoli 1928.

HANDOUT ALERT

Prelims 2005	UPKS Feb 1918: Nehru NOT associated

TEACHER'S BOARD

Teacher's board: for the 1997 match list, learn the year with each movement: Moplah 1921, Pabna 1873, Eka 1921, Birsa Munda 1899. The slide hook adds that the Pabna revolt ran 1873-76 in Bengal.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Option traps from the slides: Vithalbhai J. Patel is not the Bardoli leader (2003); in the 2026 question, Eka was independent of Congress and Bardoli was in Surat, not Saurashtra, while Eka was in Awadh, not Varanasi-Mirzapur.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Prelims 1997 match-list: Chittagong = Surya Sen, Kakori = Ram Prasad Bismil, Lahore Conspiracy = Jatin Das, Ghadar = Lala Hardayal (key b).
- Prelims 2001: organiser of the Chittagong armoury raid = Surya Sen (key b).
- Founders of HRA 1924, who died how, and who wrote which document (Bandi Jeevan, Philosophy of Bomb).
- HRA 1924 to HSRA 1928: why 'Socialist' was added; Vohra's death on 28 May 1930.
- Women of Chittagong with ages and deeds; Nehru jailed 1933 for sedition.

MAINS HOOKS

- How were the post-1922 revolutionaries different from the 1907-15 phase (secular, ideological, thinkers)?
- Ideological strands of the 1920s: socialism, class rights, secularism in the national movement.
- New objectives added to the vision of independence after the twenties (social and economic freedom).

Armed struggle returned after Chauri Chaura, but now with socialism, secularism and a pen.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: NCM was withdrawn in 1922 and released revolutionaries, disliking both council-entry and constructive work, went back to arms. This time the Russian Revolution of 1917 had given them socialism, so HRA 1924 became HSRA 1928 and a fight against class oppression joined the fight against the British. Kakori, the Lahore Conspiracy, the bomb in the CLA and Chittagong followed, ending in hangings by 1934. The movement was crushed, but it left a secular, ideological, thinking revolutionary tradition.

1 Crushed, then released. In World War I the Defence of India Act 1915 was used to jail many revolutionaries. The 1920 amnesty let them out. They joined Gandhiji's NCM 1920-22 with enthusiasm, leaving arms behind.

→ But NCM was suddenly withdrawn.

2 Chauri Chaura breaks the hope. In February 1922 NCM was withdrawn after Chauri Chaura. The revolutionaries were deeply disappointed. They had no interest in the Swarajists (Pro-Changers) or the No-Changers' Constructive Work.

→ So they went back to what they knew, but with new ideas.

3 A new idea arrives. The Russian Revolution of 1917 spread communist thought. They now wanted to end class oppression as well as colonial oppression. Mass poverty under colonial rule made socialism attractive, and they believed non-violence had failed.

→ So they built a new organisation.

4 HRA 1924 is set up. Ram Prasad Bismil, Ashfaqullah Khan, Jogesh Chatterjee, Chandrashekhar Azad and Sachin Sanyal founded HRA in 1924. The goal was armed revolution for a United States of India with universal adult franchise.

→ But arms cost money.

5 Kakori 1925. HRA looted cash from a train in the Kakori Robbery case, 1925. Many were arrested. Bismil and Ashfaqullah were hanged. Azad escaped. With its leaders gone, HRA went inactive.

→ But Azad and a young Punjab revolutionary revived it.

6 HSRA 1928 and the Lahore Conspiracy. Azad and Bhagat Singh revived HRA as HSRA 1928, adding 'Socialist'. Lala Lajpat Rai died of lathi injuries in November 1928. Bhagat Singh meant to kill James Scott but killed John Saunders by mistaken identity.

→ So they turned from killing to making a statement.

7 Bomb in the CLA, 1929. The CLA was discussing the Public Safety Bill and Trade Disputes Bill, aimed at the working class and communists. Bhagat Singh and B.K. Dutt threw a harmless bomb with leaflets to 'make the deaf hear' and courted arrest. The trial became their platform.

→ Meanwhile, in Bengal, a different story was running.

8 Bengal after C.R. Das. Bengal revolutionaries backed Swarajist leader C.R. Das, so the British repressed Swarajists too. After Das died in 1925, Bengal Congress split between S.C. Bose (Yugantar) and J.M. Sen Gupta (Anushilan Samiti). Gopinath Saha's failed attempt on the Police Commissioner brought Bose's arrest.

→ Then East Bengal opened its own front.

9 Chittagong 1930-33. During CDM 1930-34, Surya Sen, a school teacher, set up the IRA and raided the Chittagong Armory. They declared a Provisional Revolutionary Government, cut communications and went into the hills. Women, schoolgirls and Muslims fought and died.

→ But the state hit back hard.

10 The end of the phase. Azad died at Alfred Park on 27 February 1931. Bhagat Singh, Sukhdev and Rajguru were hanged on 23 March 1931. The Chittagong group was crushed by 1933 and Surya Sen was hanged in 1934. The armed phase after NCM ended, though it inspired the nation.

In simple words

- After 1922 the revolutionaries went back to arms because NCM had been withdrawn and they did not like council politics or constructive work.
- The new element was ideology: after the Russian Revolution of 1917 they wanted to end class oppression as well as colonial rule.
- HRA 1924 became HSRA 1928; the added word 'Socialist' shows the leftward shift. Bhagat Singh was a Marxist.
- Their big events: Kakori 1925, Lahore Conspiracy 1928-31, CLA bomb 1929, Chittagong 1930-33.
- They were secular in public, dropped Hindu oath rituals, and Muslims joined (Chittagong had Sattar, Mir Ahmad, Fakir Ahmad Mian, Tunu Mian).
- Bhagat Singh in jail believed in the pen more than violence and urged youth to join the INC and the INM.

- Chittagong is the first group armed action since 1857, with women and Muslims; Surya Sen was hanged in 1934.

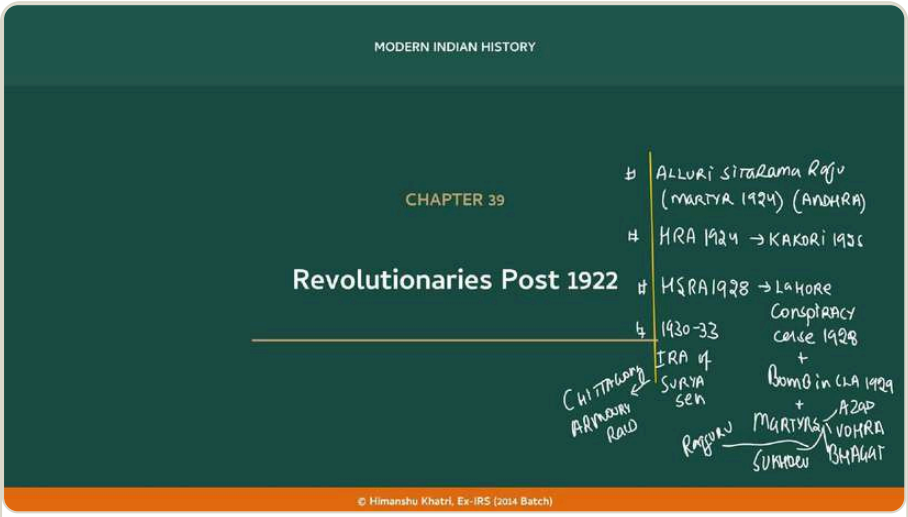
0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Because the class opens with one board that lists the whole chapter, read it first and hang every fact on it. Ask: which four items are on the board?



Teacher's chapter map: Raju, HRA, HSRA, IRA Lecture 37 slide 68

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board lists the chapter in four hash points: (1) Alluri Sitarama Raju (martyr 1924), Andhra; (2) HRA 1924 to Kakori 1925; (3) HSRA 1928 to Lahore Conspiracy Case 1928 + Bomb in CLA 1929 + Martyrs (Rajguru, Sukhdev, Bhagat; also Azad, Vohra); (4) 1930-33 IRA of Surya Sen to Chittagong Armoury Raid.
- Reason: this is the order in which the questions and the story run. The martyrs line gathers every name that dies in 1930-31.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout has no text on Alluri Sitarama Raju; the board gives only 'martyr 1924, Andhra'. Check your notebook for more.
- All slides 68 to 101 belong to this chapter (the last six are its two PYQs); no slides from other chapters are mixed in.

1 · Why Did Revolutionary Activities Revive after 1922?

STORY LINK

Because NCM ended in a sudden withdrawal, the released revolutionaries had nowhere to go. Ask: why did they not join the Swarajists or the Gandhians?

- In World War I the British cracked down using the Defence of India Act 1915; many were jailed.
- An amnesty in 1920 released them; they joined Gandhiji's NCM enthusiastically.
- NCM was abruptly withdrawn in February 1922 after Chauri Chaura; they were left disappointed.
- No interest in the parliamentary politics of the Swarajists (Pro-Changers) nor in the Constructive Work of the No-Changers (Gandhians); so they returned to revolutionary activity.
- It was not just a passion for armed struggle: recall they had left arms to join NCM 1920-22.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board stresses: the 1920 amnesty, Feb 1922, Chauri Chaura, 'deep disappointment', no interest in Pro-Changers and no interest in No-Changers' Constructive Work.
- Reason: these are the push factors; they explain why a non-violent mass movement fed an armed revival.

1.1 What was different this time

Element	Detail
Russian Revolution 1917 (RR1917)	A wave of communist thought across the world reached India's revolutionaries.
Twin oppression	They wanted to end colonial oppression and class oppression (peasants by landed classes, workers by capitalists).
Method	Armed struggle; they concluded non-violence had failed.
Goal	Socialism, given mass poverty under colonial rule; the framework was still evolving.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board underlines: communist thought, twin oppression, colonial oppression, class oppression, peasants, workers, Socialism.
- Reason: the post-1922 revolutionaries are defined by class plus colony, not colony alone.

MNEMONIC · WHAT CHANGED AFTER 1922

S C A R

Chauri Chaura left a scar and a new programme.

- S Socialism as goal
- C Class oppression as target
- A Armed struggle as method
- R Russian Revolution 1917 as spark

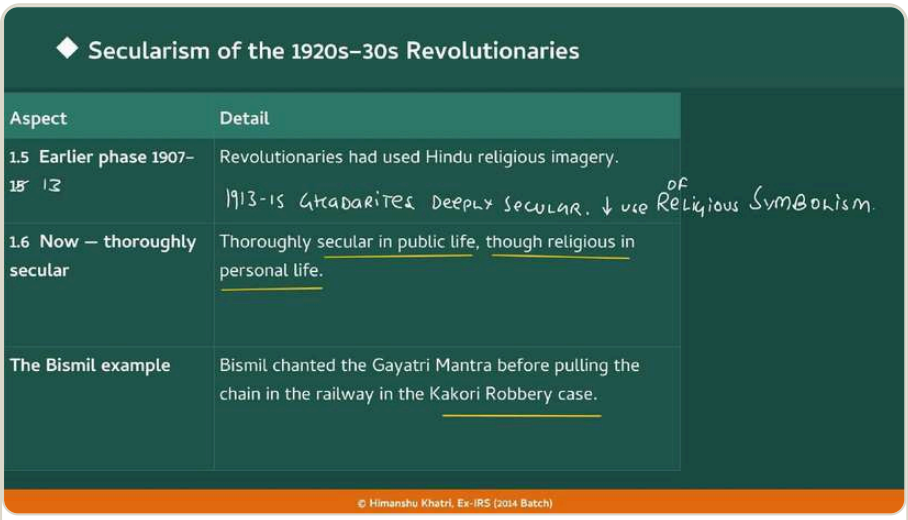
Items have no fixed order; initials rearranged into SCAR.

1.2 Secularism

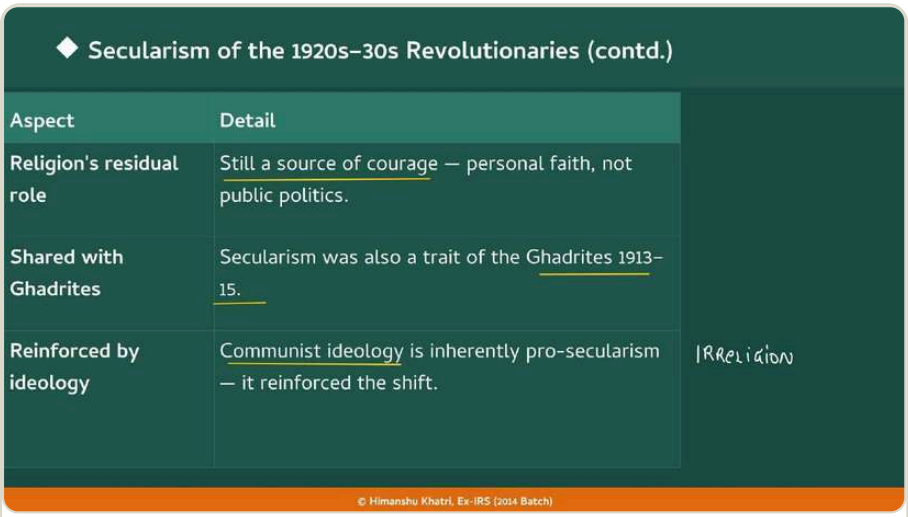


Earlier phase corrected to 1907-13; Ghadarites secular Lecture 37 slide 71

Aspect	Detail
Earlier phase 1907-13	Revolutionaries used Hindu religious imagery.
Now: thoroughly secular	Secular in public, though religious in personal life.
The Bismil example	Bismil chanted the Gayatri Mantra before pulling the chain in the railway in the Kakori Robbery case.
Religion's residual role	Still a source of courage: personal faith, not public politics.
Shared with Ghadrites	Secularism was also a trait of the Ghadrites 1913-15.
Reinforced by ideology	Communist ideology is inherently pro-secularism.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the earlier phase is 1907-13 (corrected from 1907-15). 1913-15 Ghadarites were deeply secular, so the decline in use of religious symbolism starts there.
- Teacher's board beside 'reinforced by ideology': irreligion. Communist influence pushed them toward irreligion.
- Reason: the secular turn did not begin with HRA; the Ghadarites had already done it.



Communist influence reinforced secularism: irreligion Lecture 37 slide 72

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout writes the earlier phase as 1907-15. The teacher's board corrects it to 1907-13; use 1907-13 for the earlier phase and 1913-15 for the Ghadrites.

2 · Hindustan Republican Army / Association (HRA 1924)

STORY LINK

Because the revolutionaries needed a body of their own, they formed HRA in 1924. Ask: who founded it and for what goal?

- Set up in 1924 by Ram Prasad Bismil, Ashfaqullah Khan, Jogesh Chatterjee, Chandrashekhar Azad and Sachin Sanyal.
- Sachin Sanyal: associated with the Delhi Conspiracy Case of 1912; wrote Bandi Jeevan, a guide to revolutionary activities.
- Goal: armed revolution to establish a 'United States of India' with universal adult franchise.

HRA founders; Bengal marked against Jogesh and Sanyal Lecture 37 slide 73

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: 'Association' = political organisation; 'Army' = its military wing (check your notebook for the exact arrow).
- Teacher's board marks Jogesh Chatterjee and Sachin Sanyal as from Bengal.
- Teacher's board: Bandi Jeevan was written 'to resolve the ethical dilemma at use of violence'.

Why two texts: ethical dilemma and legitimacy Lecture 37 slide 74

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: two aims, (a) to resolve the ethical dilemma of using violence and (b) to get legitimacy and support for revolutionary methods.
- Two documents serve these: Bandi Jeevan by Sachin Sanyal, and Philosophy of Bomb by Bhagwati Charan Vohra and Azad.
- Reason: revolutionaries had to justify violence to themselves and to the public.

MNEMONIC · FIVE FOUNDERS OF HRA 1924

R A J A S

Five 'rajas' of the republican army.

- R Ram Prasad Bismil
- A Ashfaqullah Khan
- J Jogesh Chatterjee
- A Azad (Chandrashekhar)
- S Sachin Sanyal

No fixed order; initials arranged into RAJAS.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout title reads 'Army / Association'; the slide table says 'Hindustan Republican Army / Association (HRA)' for 1924 but 'Hindustan Socialist Republican Association' for HSRA. Either form is accepted; do not fight over Army or Association in the exam.

3 · The 1925 Kakori Robbery Case

STORY LINK

Because HRA needed arms and arms need money, it robbed a train. Ask: what did the robbery cost the organisation?

CHAIN: KAKORI

Need	→	The act, 1925	→	Crackdown	→	Result
HRA 1924 needed money to buy arms		Cash looted from a train: Kakori Robbery case		Many arrested; Bismil and Ashfaqullah Khan hanged; Azad not		With key leaders executed or on the run, HRA 1924 went inactive

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: HRA 1924 to Kakori 1925, one link on the chapter map. Answer slide for the PYQ adds: Kakori is the train robbery on the Sahasranpur to Lucknow line under Ram Prasad Bismil (spelling as the slide writes it).
- Reason: Kakori to Bismil is the tested pair in Prelims 1997.

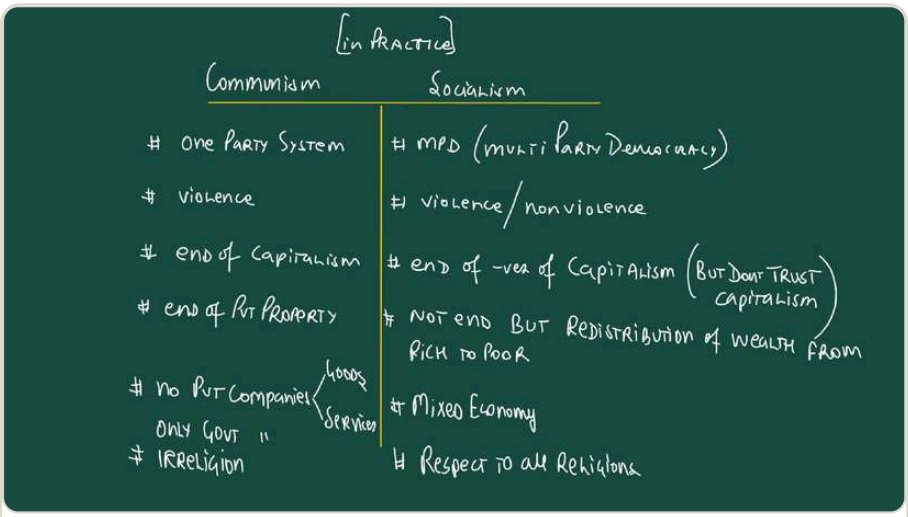
HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout says 'Kakori Robbery case'; the PYQ says 'Kakori Conspiracy'. Same event.

3.1 Board aside: communism versus socialism

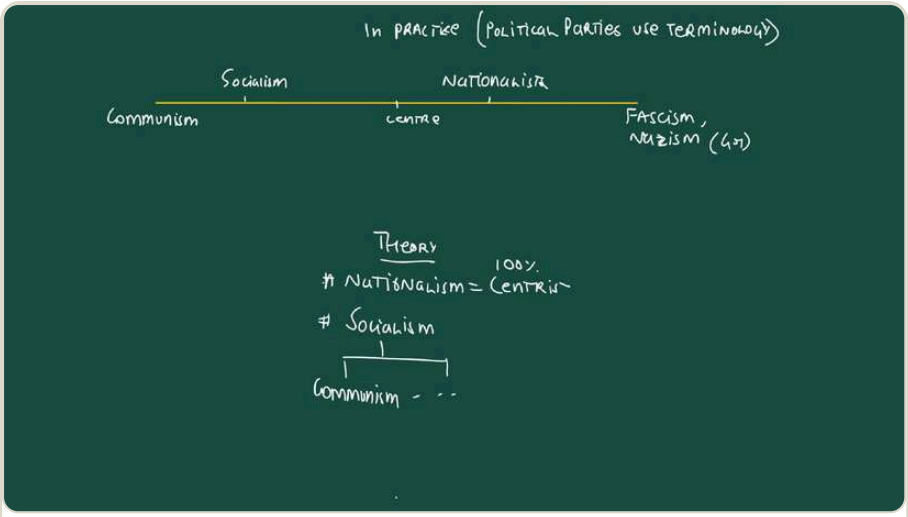
STORY LINK

Because the HSRA name adds 'Socialist', the teacher stops to separate communism from socialism. Ask: which is violent, one-party and irreligious in practice?



Communism versus socialism in practice Lecture 37 slide 76

In practice	Communism	Socialism
Party system	One-party system	Multi-party democracy (MPD)
Violence	Violence	Violence or non-violence
Capitalism	End of capitalism	End of the negatives of capitalism (but do not trust capitalism)
Property and wealth	End of private property	Not an end but redistribution of wealth from rich to poor
Firms	No private companies, only government (goods and services)	Mixed economy
Religion	Irreligion	Respect to all religions



Political spectrum and theory of socialism Lecture 37 slide 77

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: on the spectrum, Communism and Socialism lie to the left, centre in the middle, Nationalist to its right, Fascism and Nazism at the far right. Political parties use these terms this way in practice.
- Teacher's board for theory: Nationalism = Centrist (100%); Socialism branches, with Communism one of its branches (the other branch is not named on the board; check your notebook).
- Reason: the exam wants the distinction between in-practice labels and in-theory definitions.

4 · Hindustan Socialist Republican Army / Association (HSRA 1928)

STORY LINK

Because Kakori broke HRA and a new ideology had arrived, Azad and Bhagat Singh revived it with a new name. Ask: what does the new word prove?

- Azad and Bhagat Singh revived HRA 1924 as HSRA 1928; 'Socialist' shows the leftward ideological shift.
- HSRA brought together all the revolutionaries of North India.
- Key members: Sukhdev, Rajguru, Bhagwati Charan Vohra (teacher adds Azad, Bhagat Singh).
- Vohra was killed on 28 May 1930 while testing a bomb near the River Ravi, Lahore; a significant loss.

'Socialist' proves socialist influence; Bhagat Singh a Marxist Lecture 37 slide 78

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board on 'Socialist': proof of the influence of Socialist ideology, and Bhagat Singh = Marxist.
- Teacher's board adds Azad and Bhagat Singh to the key-members line.
- Reason: the one added word is the evidence that ideology changed.

MNEMONIC · KEY HSRA 1928 MEMBERS

C R A B S

Five crabs gripped north India's revolution.

- C Charan (Bhagwati Charan Vohra)
- R Rajguru
- A Azad
- B Bhagat Singh
- S Sukhdev

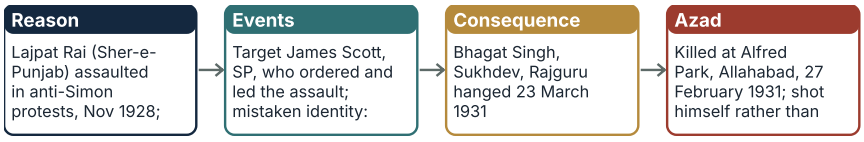
No fixed order; initials arranged into CRABS.

5 · Lahore Conspiracy Case 1928-31

STORY LINK

Because Lala Lajpat Rai died of lathi blows, Bhagat Singh decided to avenge him. Ask: who was the target and who fell?

CHAIN: LAHORE CONSPIRACY



TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: HSRA 1928 to Lahore Conspiracy Case 1928 and the martyrs line: Rajguru, Sukhdev, Bhagat; with Azad and Vohra.
- Teacher's board in the 1997 PYQ: Jatin Das = Lahore C Case.
- Reason: the Lahore case links the hunger-strike death of Jatin Das to this chapter.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout calls the target SP James Scott and the man killed DSP John Saunders; do not swap them. Azad died on 27 Feb 1931, before the 23 Mar 1931 hanging.

6 · 1929 Bomb in the CLA by Bhagat Singh and B.K. Dutt

STORY LINK

Because the British feared communism, the CLA was handling bills to curb it. Ask: why was the bomb harmless?

- The CLA was discussing the Public Safety Bill and the Trade Disputes Bill, both aimed at curbing the Working Class (WC) movement and communists.
- The British feared the rising influence of communist ideas.
- Bhagat Singh and B.K. Dutt threw a harmless bomb with leaflets: 'to make the deaf hear'.
- The intention was not to kill but to draw attention; Bhagat Singh deliberately courted arrest.
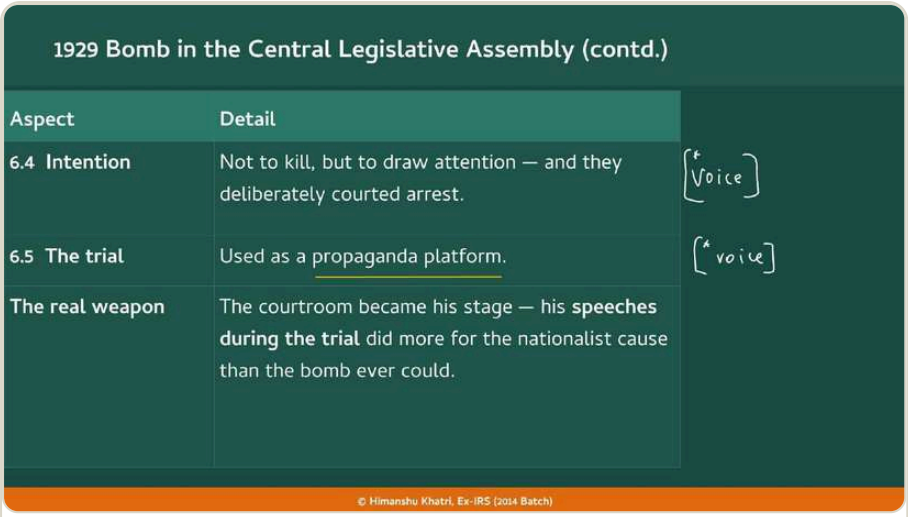
- He used the court trial as a propaganda platform; his trial speeches did more for the nationalist cause than the bomb ever could.



Bomb and trial both tagged 'voice' Lecture 37 slide 81

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board tags both the intention (6.4) and the trial (6.5) with 'voice': the bomb and then the court gave the cause a voice (check your notebook for the exact marks).
- Teacher's board underlines 'propaganda platform'. Reason: the stage was the court, not the assembly.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the bomb was harmless; a statement that it was meant to kill is wrong.

7 · Revolutionaries in Bengal

STORY LINK

Because Bengal's revolutionaries backed the Swarajists, repression fell on both. Ask: who stood behind Bose and who behind Sen Gupta?

- Bengal revolutionaries supported Swarajist leader C.R. Das; the British repressed Bengal's Swarajists as well.
- When C.R. Das died in 1925, factionalism weakened Bengal Congress; two rival groups merged: S.C. Bose (backed by Yugantar) and J.M. Sen Gupta (backed by Anushilan Samiti).
- Repression grew after a failed attempt on the life of the Police Commissioner by Gopinath Saha, which led to S.C. Bose's arrest and a fresh wave of repression.

Anushilan Samiti 1902 splits into Jugantar and Dacca Anushilan Lecture 37 slide 83

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: 1902 Anushilan Samiti splits in 1906 into Jugantar and Dacca Anushilan Samiti.
- Reason: this tells you why two groups stand behind Bose and Sen Gupta.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout says the rival groups 'merged'; the sense is that two rival groups arose inside Bengal Congress. Remember who backed whom: Bose = Yugantar, Sen Gupta = Anushilan.

8 · Chittagong Armory Raid 1930-33

STORY LINK

Because Gandhiji was leading CDM, East Bengal opened its own armed front. Ask: why is this called the first group action since 1857?

Board links CDM 1930 and the IRA Lecture 37 slide 84

- Context: during CDM 1930-34, revolutionaries in East Bengal began their own armed struggle under Surya Sen, a school teacher.
- He set up the Indian Republican Army (IRA) and mobilised even women.
- They raided the Chittagong Armory, declared a Provisional Revolutionary Government and cut Chittagong off by destroying communications and railway lines.
- When the British attacked they moved to hills and villages for guerrilla warfare.
- First time since 1857 of group action in armed struggle; many Muslims and women fought and died.
- Slides add: the raid was on 18 April 1930.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board links CDM 1930 and the IRA: the armed front ran alongside the mass movement.
- Teacher's board underlines: Indian Republican Army, even women, Provisional Revolutionary Government, cut Chittagong off, hills and villages, guerrilla warfare, first time since 1857, group action, Muslims and women.

8.1 The women of Chittagong

Name	What she did
Pritilata Waddedar (21)	Consumed potassium cyanide to avoid capture; a martyr.
Kalpana Dutt	Life imprisonment.
Shanti Ghosh (15) and Suniti Chaudhary (14)	School girls; shot dead C.G.B. Stevens, District Magistrate of Comilla, 14 December 1931.
Bina Das (21)	Fired five shots at Governor Stanley Jackson at a Calcutta University convocation, Feb 1932; he survived.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board underlines 'consumed potassium cyanide' for Pritilata. Reason: it is the line most likely to be framed as a statement.

Pritilata 21, Shanti 15, Suniti 14, Bina 21.

21 Pritilata Waddedar (cyanide)

14 Suniti Chaudhary (Stevens)
21 Bina Das (Governor Jackson)

- Post of Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal was created in 1854 and elevated back to Governor in 1912.

8.2 Solidarity, repression and end

- Muslim villagers gave food and shelter to the revolutionaries.
- In 1933 Nehru was arrested on sedition charges and given two years for condemning imperialism and praising the revolutionaries' heroism.
- By 1933 the Chittagong revolutionaries were crushed; Surya Sen was captured and hanged in 1934.
- The revolutionary movement post-NCM ended, though it greatly inspired nationalism.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board underlines 'sedition charges' and 'two years' for Nehru, 1933.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (PYQ cluster): Prelims 1997 and Prelims 2001 test Surya Sen for Chittagong and Bismil for Kakori.
- The 2001 answer slide calls him chief of the 'Chittagong Republican Army' while the handout says Indian Republican Army (IRA); use the handout name IRA.

9 · Overall Assessment of Revolutionaries of 1920s-30s

STORY LINK

Because the new revolutionaries carried ideas, they differed from the 1907-15 men. Ask: what are the three differences?

- No religious symbolism: unlike the Anushilan Samiti and Jugantar of the Swadeshi era, with their Hindu oath-taking rituals, these men dropped them; this facilitated Muslim participation (Surya Sen's IRA had Sattar, Mir Ahmad, Fakir Ahmad Mian, Tunu Mian).
- Developed political ideology: attracted by socialism given mass poverty; the framework evolved over the years; not just a passion for armed struggle.
- More politically aware and ideologically strong: well-read, articulate, able to write theoretical works and run propaganda; not just fighters, they were thinkers.

Assessment: no religious symbolism, Muslim cadre named Lecture 37 slide 90

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board puts a tick on No religious symbolism and on its Effect (Muslim participation, the four names).
- Teacher's board underlines 'ideologically strong', 'well-read, articulate', 'capable of theoretical works and propaganda', 'thinkers'.
- Reason: the first difference is the most stressed.

MNEMONIC · PHILOSOPHY OF BOMB, SIX POINTS (SEE SECTION 10)

Bhagat Singh did not mince words.

M Marxist: socialism = end of capitalism and class domination

I Independence: social, economic and political
N Nationalisation of large-scale industries
C Class rights of workers and peasants
E freedom from Exploitation
S Secular: communalism as big an enemy as colonialism

Handout items have no fixed order; initials arranged into MINCES.

10 · Ideology of Bhagat Singh and HSRA 1928

STORY LINK

Because HSRA needed to say what it stood for, Vohra and Azad wrote it down. Ask: how did the document define revolution?

- The 'Philosophy of Bomb' was written by Bhagwati Charan Vohra and Azad; it defined them not as criminals or misguided youth but as revolutionaries with a clear vision.
- 10.1 Revolution = 'Independence: Social, Economic and Political'; not just removing the British.
- 10.2 Bhagat Singh was a Marxist: socialism = end of capitalism and class domination.
- 10.3 Real independence only with freedom from exploitation; peasants and workers must be freed from landlords and capitalists.
- 10.4 Supported class rights of workers and peasants.
- 10.5 Socialism in State policy, e.g. nationalisation of large-scale industries.
- 10.6 Secular: 'Communalism is as big an enemy as Colonialism'.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board underlines Vohra and Azad as authors, 'Social, Economic', 'freedom from exploitation', 'Workers and Peasants', 'nationalisation of large-scale industries', 'Communalism is as big an enemy as Colonialism'.
- Reason: authorship, the three-fold independence and nationalisation are the testable facts.

11 · Bhagat Singh in Jail

STORY LINK

Because Bhagat Singh believed in ideas, jail became his study. Ask: what did he tell youth to do?

Bhagat Singh: 'I am a revolutionary'; Lahore Student Union Lecture 37 slide 94

- Set up a library in jail; believed more in the pen than in violence.
- Stated that he acted like a terrorist but was not a terrorist; did not urge youth to take up revolutionary activity but to join the INC and the INM.
- Worked actively in the Lahore Student Union (set up 1923 by Lala Lajpat Rai) and set up the Punjab Naujawan Bharat Sabha 1926 to educate youth on mass politics.
- Wrote 'Why I Am an Atheist' in jail in 1930.
- Started a hunger strike against inhuman living conditions; fellow prisoner Jatin Das died on the 64th day due to forced feeding.

Naujawan Bharat Sabha; atheism as Marxism and irreligion Lecture 37 slide 95

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board rewrites the jail statement in the first person: 'I have acted like a terrorist, but I am not a terrorist, but a REVOLUTIONARY.'
- Teacher's board: Bhagat = member of the Lahore Student Union (set up by Lajpat Rai); Punjab Naujawan Bharat Sabha set up by Bhagat Singh; 'Why I Am an Atheist' = Marxism and irreligion.
- Teacher's board underlines 'believed more in the pen', 'Urged youth to join the INC and the INM', 'Jatin Das' and 'forced feeding'.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout writes in the third person ('he was not a terrorist'); the board says 'I am a revolutionary'; learn it as the board gives it.
- Handout says 'worked actively in' the Lahore Student Union; the board says 'member'. Same meaning.

Simon Commission (1927) to Delhi Manifesto (November 1929)

Class slides + handout | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 1995, 1998, 2010, 2011, 2013, 2017

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Six PYQs sit in this chapter: 1995 (Independence for India League), 1998 and 2013 (why Simon was boycotted), 2010 (Simon's key recommendation), 2011 (Nehru Report) and 2017 (Butler Committee).
- Simon Commission: 7 British MPs, chair Sir John Simon, member Clement Attlee, no Indian. Boycott reason = no Indian member.
- Nehru Report (Aug 1928): Dominion Status, 19 FRs, Universal Adult Franchise first time, no separate electorates, unitary British India, Union of India with Princely States.
- Muslim League ladder: 4 Delhi Proposals (Dec 1927), 3 Calcutta Amendments (Dec 1928), 14 Points (Mar 1929).
- Butler Committee (1927; report 1929): Paramountcy stays; States not to join a Union without consent. Diwali Declaration (31 Oct 1929) and Delhi Manifesto (Nov 1929) with its 3 conditions.

MAINS HOOKS

- Why the Nehru Report could not deliver Hindu-Muslim consensus: communal clauses, the Calcutta Amendments, the 14 Points.
- Simon Commission and Birkenhead's challenge: how British insult produced the first Indian constitutional blueprint.
- Nehru Report and the idea of the Basic Structure in the national movement (teacher's value-addition).
- Princely States and Paramountcy: Butler Committee, AISPC, and how the 1947 integration challenge began in 1927.

Simon insulted, Nehru drafted, Jinnah demanded, Irwin offered nothing, and the Delhi Manifesto set the terms.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: In 1927 Britain sent an all-British Simon Commission to review the 1919 reforms, two years early. Indians were insulted, and Birkenhead dared them to write their own constitution. INC set up the All Party Conference and produced the Nehru Report (Aug 1928), but the Muslim League's Delhi Proposals, Calcutta Amendments and 14 Points showed that consensus had broken. Britain answered with the Butler Committee for the Princely States and Irwin's vague Diwali Declaration. INC replied with the Delhi Manifesto, which set the conditions for the Round Table Conference.

1. The review arrives early. The Montague Statement of 1917 promised gradual Swaraj, and GOI Act 1919 was the first step with a review after 10 years. In 1927 the Conservative Government in Britain appointed the Simon Commission two years early. It did not want to leave a sensitive question to the next government after the coming elections.

   → But the Commission had seven members and not one of them was Indian.

2. Not a single Indian. All seven were British MPs under Sir John Simon, and Clement Attlee was one of them. Swaraj includes a say for Indians in their own constitution. GOI Acts and Councils Acts were British legal instruments, so excluding Indians even from the review was an insult.

   → So INC rejected it, and Birkenhead dared Indians to do better.

3. Birkenhead's dare. The Secretary of State for India, Birkenhead, challenged Indians in the British Parliament to draft a constitution themselves. He believed their internal differences would stop them from acting together. This taunt gave INC its task.

   → So the Madras session of 1927 rejected Simon and set up an All Party Conference.

4. Madras 1927 and the streets. INC rejected the Commission and decided on an APC to draft the Principles of a Constitution. When Simon came again in October 1928, protests swept the country. In Lahore Lala Lajpat Rai was lathi-charged by SP James Scott and died in November 1928.

   → Meanwhile the Muslim League made its own offer before the APC could finish.

5. Four Delhi Proposals. In December 1927 ML1906 sent Four Delhi Proposals to Motilal Nehru: three new Muslim Majority Provinces, one-third at the Centre, reservation in Punjab and Bengal, and joint electorates if all that was met. INC first accepted them, but the APC later rejected them.

   → So the Nehru Report had to settle the communal question itself.

6. The Nehru Report. The APC under M.A. Ansari formed a Motilal Nehru committee in May 1928, and the Report came in August 1928. It asked for Dominion Status, a Union of India with the Princely States, a unitary British India, 19 Fundamental Rights and no separate electorates. It conceded some Muslim demands and refused others.

   → But ML1906 wanted more and raised its demands at Calcutta.

7. Calcutta, December 1928. Jinnah proposed Three Amendments in the APC: one-third at the Centre, Punjab-Bengal reservation until UAF, and residuary powers to Provinces. All were rejected. INC then approved the Nehru Report. Bose's Purna Swaraj resolution failed, so INC set a one-year deadline for Dominion Status and passed a Constructive Work resolution.

   → So Jinnah turned the rejected demands into one master list.

8. The 14 Points. In March 1929 Jinnah issued the 14 Points, a summary of every communal demand ever made by any Muslim organisation. It became the blueprint of all later ML1906 politics. Birkenhead won his challenge: Indians could not agree.

→ Meanwhile Britain was dealing with the Princely States separately.

9 Butler Committee and AISPC. The Butler Committee, appointed in 1927, reported in 1929 that Paramountcy over the States was re-affirmed and that States should not be moved into a Union of India without their consent. The AISPC, set up in 1927, told it that the people, not the Princes, represent the States. This is the 1927 root of the Patel challenge of 1947.

→ Now Viceroy Irwin spoke on behalf of Britain.

10 Diwali Declaration. On 31 October 1929 Irwin said Dominion Status is implicit in the Montague Statement and that the intent is to give it at a future date, with a Round Table Conference in London. It had no decision, no timeline and the wrong forum, since it proposed an RTC in London and no Constituent Assembly in India.

→ So INC answered with conditions.

11 Delhi Manifesto. In November 1929 INC leaders set three conditions for joining the RTC. It must act as a Constituent Assembly for Dominion Status, a majority of Indian delegates must be from INC, and there must be amnesty in the Bomb in CLA case and the Meerut Conspiracy Case. The next chapter picks up from here.

In simple words

- Simon Commission 1927: seven British MPs, no Indian. INC boycotted it because Indians had no say in their own constitution.
- Birkenhead's dare led to the All Party Conference and the Nehru Report (Aug 1928), the first Indian constitutional blueprint.
- Dominion Status means the Crown keeps sovereignty, external affairs and the power to change the constitution, while Indians run domestic affairs with democracy.
- ML1906's ladder: Delhi Proposals (Dec 1927), Calcutta Amendments (Dec 1928), 14 Points (Mar 1929). Every step was about a bigger share of political power.
- Butler Committee protected Paramountcy and Princes' consent; the AISPC said the people, not the Princes, speak for the States.
- Diwali Declaration offered an intent and an RTC in London. Delhi Manifesto made INC's participation conditional on a Constituent Assembly, an INC majority and amnesty.

Key term	In plain words
Statutory Commission	Official review body set up under an Act; Simon Commission = Indian Statutory Commission
APC	All Party Conference set up to draft the Principles of a Constitution
Dominion Status	Self-government inside the Empire; the Crown keeps sovereignty, defence and foreign policy
Paramountcy	British Crown's supreme power over the 565 Princely States since 1858
MMP	Muslim Majority Province
Joint electorates	One common voters' list for all communities; ML1906 accepted it only once, with conditions
Residuary powers	Powers not listed for either Centre or Provinces; Nehru Report gave them to the Centre, ML1906 wanted them with Provinces
UAF	Universal Adult Franchise; demanded clearly for the first time in the Nehru Report
DPSP	Directive Principles for State's Policy
Purna Swaraj	Complete independence, as against Dominion Status
CW	Constructive Work resolution of 1928 to prepare masses for non-violent satyagraha
IOA	Instrument of Accession, the route for States into the 1935 federation
AISPC	All India State People's Congress, set up in 1927
RTC	Round Table Conference in London proposed in the Diwali Declaration
Constituent Assembly	Body elected to draft a constitution; Delhi Manifesto wanted the RTC to act as one

Key term	In plain words
Meerut Conspiracy Case	1929 case against communists arrested over rail strikes and an Indian Comintern branch

Memory map

REMEMBER IT AS Simon excluded Indians, so Indians wrote the Nehru Report, ML1906 climbed from 4 Proposals to 3 Amendments to 14 Points, and Irwin's Diwali Declaration drew the Delhi Manifesto.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the Montagu Statement / August Declaration 1917 promised gradual Swaraj (step by step). The first step was GOI 1919, which says the next step comes after 10 years.
- Therefore Simon 1927 came 2 years in advance, because elections in Britain were near and the Conservative Party did not want to leave the question to the Liberal Party.
- All 7 were British MPs, so no Indian. Swaraj includes a say of Indians in the COI.
- The Commission ended the passive phase of the INM (1922-27).

1 · Indian Statutory Commission / Simon Commission (1927)

STORY LINK

Because GOI Act 1919 had a 10-year review and Britain wanted to control the timing, the Commission arrived early with no Indian. Ask: why did Indians see the exclusion as an insult?

1.1 Why it came and why early

- The appointment of the Indian Statutory Commission in 1927 ended INC's passive phase that had lasted since the Bardoli Resolution of 1922.
- GOI Act 1919 had a built-in provision to review constitutional reforms after 10 years. This was the link to the gradual Swaraj promise of the Montague Statement of 1917.
- The Commission was appointed 2 years ahead of schedule. The Conservative Government in Britain did not want to leave this sensitive matter to the next government.
- Added pressures: Pro-Changers within INC, rising revolutionary activity through the 1920s, and growing fear of communism spreading in India.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: in 1926 the Swarajists (Pro-Changers) lost the elections and INC said Leave (check your notebook for the exact point of the letter L). Simon and Butler both came in 1927.

1.2 Composition: not a single Indian

- The seven-member Commission was headed by Sir John Simon and consisted of Members of the British Parliament.
- One member was Clement Attlee, later Prime Minister of Britain (1945-51), who oversaw Indian independence.
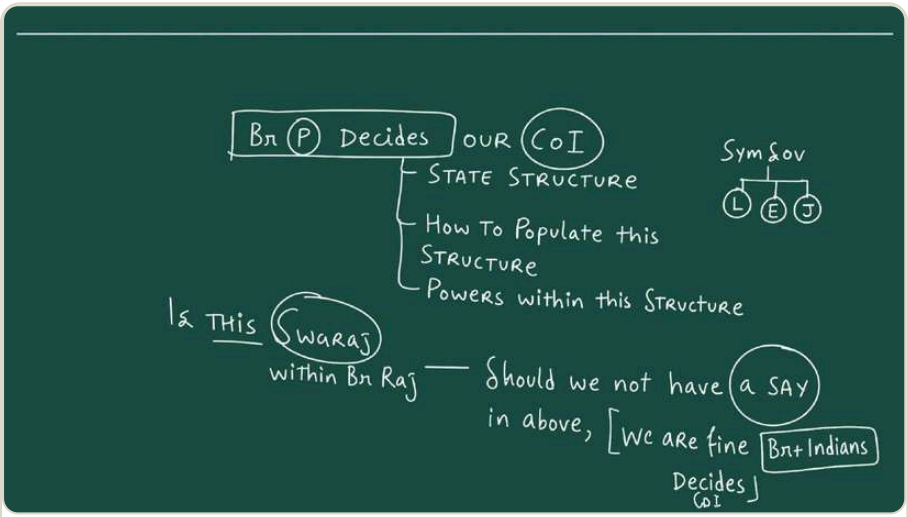
- Not a single Indian was among the 7. INC opposed the Commission precisely on this ground: the principle of self-government promised in the Montague Statement of 1917 was being violated, as Indians had no say in their own future constitution.
- ICAs and GOI Acts were legal instruments serving British administrative purposes. They were not a Constitution of Indians, and exclusion even from this review was an insult.



Who decides the state structure: British or Indians Lecture 37 slide 105

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: British Parliament decides our COI. That decision covers the state structure, how to populate this structure, and the powers within it. The structure splits into L, E, J (check your notebook for the expansion of the board's Sym Sov).
- Question on the board: is this Swaraj within British Raj? Should we not have a say in the above? We would be fine if British plus Indians decide the COI.

1.3 Birkenhead's challenge

- Birkenhead, Secretary of State for India, challenged Indians (not INC specifically) in the British Parliament to draft a constitution themselves.
- He believed Indian leaders could not overcome their internal differences and act unitedly.
- He was essentially taunting Indians. He was partially proved right, not because Indians lacked ability but because British-era communal divisions made consensus difficult.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 1998, 2013: boycott reason = no Indian member. Prelims 2010: the Commission's key recommendation = abolition of Dyarchy at provincial level, i.e. replacement of diarchy by responsible government in the provinces.

2 · What did INC do? The 1927 INC Madras Session

STORY LINK

Because Simon excluded Indians, INC chose to write the structure itself. Ask: what does drafting only the Principles of a Constitution mean?

- At its Madras session in 1927, INC rejected the Simon Commission and decided to set up an All Party Conference (APC) to draft the Principles of a Constitution.
- Think of this as drafting the basic structure of a Constitution; the full legal language would take years.
- The Commission's first visit was in February 1928 (teacher's addition). Its second visit in October 1928 triggered massive anti-Simon protests across the country.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: a student can use MIH (the Motilal Nehru Report 1928) in Basic Structure. UPSC Polity and MIH together give the Idea of BS (Basic Structure) in the INM (check your notebook for the letter J on the board).

2.1 Lahore lathi charge

- Lala Lajpat Rai was subjected to a brutal lathi charge by SP James Scott during the protests in Lahore; the injuries led to his death in November 1928.

- This led to the assassination of John Saunders (a DSP, mistaken for Scott) by Bhagat, Sukhdev, Rajguru, Azad, investigated as the Lahore Conspiracy Case of 1928.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout says Saunders was killed by Bhagat Singh and calls him a British police officer; the slide gives the fuller list Bhagat, Sukhdev, Rajguru, Azad and the rank DSP. Use the slide's list.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board (timeline): Anti-Simon agitations 1928 and LLR martyr Nov 1928 lead to HSRA 1928; then the Lahore Conspiracy Case 1928; then the Bomb in CLA 1929, which was against the Public Safety Bill and the Trade Disputes Bill; then BSR martyr 23 March 1931.

3 · Four Delhi Proposals (December 1927) by ML1906

STORY LINK

Because INC was drafting a constitution, the Muslim League sent its own list. Ask: what did ML1906 want and what price did it name for joint electorates?

- Even as INC was setting up the APC, ML1906 put forward the Four Delhi Proposals of December 1927, addressed to Motilal Nehru.
- INC initially accepted them, but the APC later rejected them.

No.	Demand
3.1	One-third reservation for Muslims in the central legislature. Muslims were about 20% of the population, so asking 33% was classic over-bargaining, like bargaining in a shop (teacher's analogy).
3.2	Creation of 3 new Muslim Majority Provinces (MMPs) by separating Sindh from the Bombay Presidency and giving full province status to Baluchistan and NWFP. More provinces meant more MLAs, MPs and Ministers from ML1906, i.e. more political power.
3.3	Reservation in the MMPs of Punjab and Bengal in proportion to the Muslim share of population (teacher's figures: Punjab 54%, Bengal 50%).
3.4	If the above 3 conditions were met, ML1906 was willing to accept joint electorates. This was the 1st and last time ML1906 agreed to joint electorates, but with conditions.

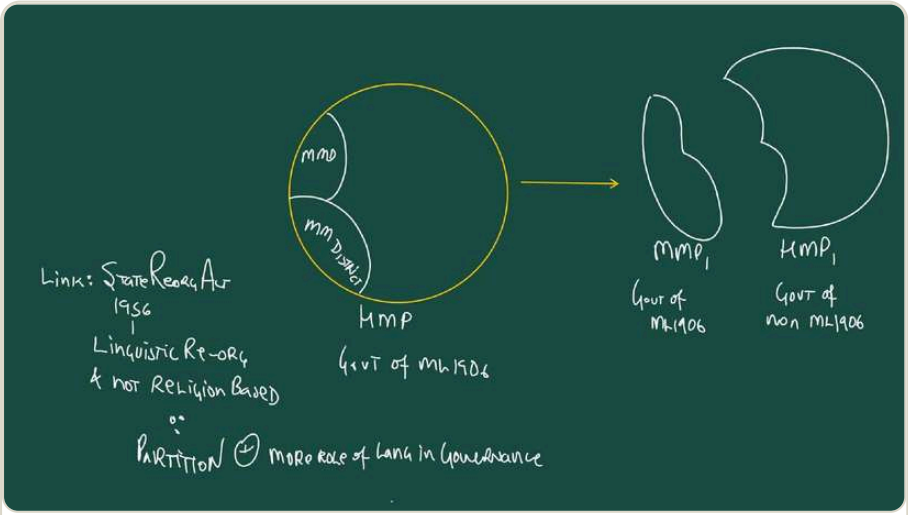
Four Delhi Proposals scored against the Nehru Report Lecture 38 slide 12

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: each Delhi Proposal is scored against the Nehru Report of Aug 1928. Of the three new provinces, two are accepted and one is not; the one-third at the Centre, the Punjab-Bengal reservation and joint electorates on those terms are not accepted.
- Result: APC accepted 2/6 = 1/3rd as justified demands (check your notebook for the exact six counted).



MMP government of ML1906 and the linguistic link Lecture 37 slide 116

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: a Muslim Majority Province (MMP) would be a government of ML1906. Inside it a Muslim majority district exists. Splitting off a new MMP1 (government of ML1906) leaves HMP1 (government of non-ML1906); this is how provinces became a route to power.
- Link: the States Reorganisation Act 1956 was linguistic, not religion-based. This is Partition plus a bigger role for language in governance.

4 · Nehru Report (August 1928)

STORY LINK

Because Birkenhead dared Indians to draft a constitution, the APC under Ansari produced the Nehru Report. Ask: how much self-government, and how to treat the communal question?

4.0 Making of the Report

- In 1928 the APC was formally set up in Delhi, headed by M.A. Ansari.
- In May 1928 a committee under the APC was constituted under Motilal Nehru to draft the Principles of a Constitution.
- Result: the Nehru Report of August 1928, the first Indian attempt at a constitutional blueprint.
- Independence for India League was founded by Nehru and Bose, the radical wing of INC, in opposition to the Report's Dominion-status goal (Prelims 1995).

4.1 What did it demand? Dominion Status

- The Report asked for Dominion Status, the maximum self-government possible without leaving the British Empire.
- Sovereignty would remain with the British Crown. Britain would retain the power to change the constitution and would be overall responsible for Defence and Foreign Policy. In the domestic sphere Indians would have self-government.
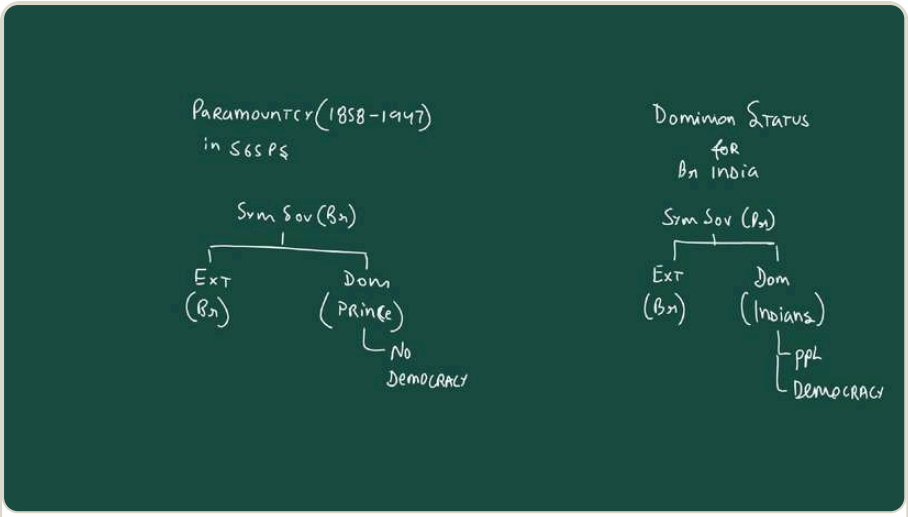
- Compare Princely States: Paramountcy since 1858 effectively meant Dominion Status minus democracy. The Indian Prince had self-governance in domestic affairs and the British Crown controlled everything else.



Paramountcy in 565 States versus Dominion Status Lecture 37 slide 119

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Paramountcy (1858-1947) in 565 PS: the top is Sym Sov (Br), Ext (Br), and Dom (Prince) with no democracy.
- Dominion Status for British India: Sym Sov (Br), Ext (Br), and Dom (Indians) with people and democracy. The only difference is democracy in the domestic sphere (check your notebook for the expansion of Sym Sov).

4.1 Union of India and the structure

- For the first time the Report demanded a Union of India bringing together British India and the Princely States, with federal relations between the two.
- Think of this as 565 versions of Article 370 without democracy: non-interference by the Centre, dominated by British India's politicians, in affairs of Princely States.
- For British India itself it proposed a unitary structure: a strong Centre with residuary powers with the Centre against Provinces.

Crown structure: unitary Provinces, confederal Princely States Lecture 38 slide 3

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Union GoI acts as agent of the Crown (D, ?, FA; check your notebook for the middle letter) over the whole of India. It is unitary in domestic affairs over the Provinces of British India and confederal in domestic affairs over the 565 PS (Art 370), where the Prince controls 100% of domestic affairs.
- Test: if the Centre holds at least 80% of powers and subjects the structure is unitary; if the Centre holds 20% or less it is confederation.
- 7th Schedule today: Union List has much more subjects, State List much fewer, Concurrent List some. So today's COI leans unitary.

Polity structure 1858-1947: British India and 565 States Lecture 38 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: British India = 78% population, 63% territory; Princely States = 22% population, 37% territory, which is x 565 = 565 PS.
- A State is an organisation that rules a territory and its people, with LEJ in domestic affairs. The board counts Total States = 566, i.e. 566 country-like units.
- Result of the INM by 1947: people = 1 = nation (excluding Portuguese and French territories).

Union GoBrI over Provinces versus a Union of India Lecture 38 slide 5

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: before 1928 the Crown sat over the Union GoBrI (over Provinces) and separately over the 565 PS. The Nehru Report proposed one Union of India under the Crown with Unitary Provinces of British India and a Confederal 565 PS.

How the USA and the Union of India were formed Lecture 38 slide 11

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: USA: (1) 13 colonies became independent, (2) they united to form a union. It is a voluntary union with a choice to join or not. An indestructible union of indestructible States; cannot change borders of provinces.
- Union of India: step 1: the Union was created. It is easy for the Centre to change borders of provinces and the nature of government, e.g. create a UT.

Nehru Report provisions: language, court, bicameral Centre Lecture 38 slide 7

4.2 Other key provisions

No.	Provision
i	Linguistic reorganisation of provinces of British India. Originally Tilak's demand, taken up in the Home Rule League Movement of 1916-18, and again demanded by INC in 1917. It materialised through the States Reorganization Act of 1956.
ii	A Supreme Court and an independent Judiciary.
iii	A bicameral legislature at the Centre with a 7-year term for the upper house and a 5-year term for the lower house.
iv	The Governor-General to function on the aid and advice of the Executive Council.
v	Universal Adult Franchise, demanded clearly for the first time.
vi	Directive Principles for State's Policy (DPSPs).
vii	19 Fundamental Rights: key rights included UAF, women's equality, trade union rights, dissociation of state from religion, plus rights on liberty, education, workers, Lower Castes and minorities.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board on (i): the board says oppose religion-based re-org. The Swadeshi movement demanded linguistic re-organisation of East India, i.e. a Bengal, an Orissa, a Bihar, an Assam.
- On (iii): stability at the Centre leads to good governance. For comparison, GOI 1919 terms: Council of State 5 yrs, CLA 3 yrs, Provincial Legislative Councils 3 yrs.

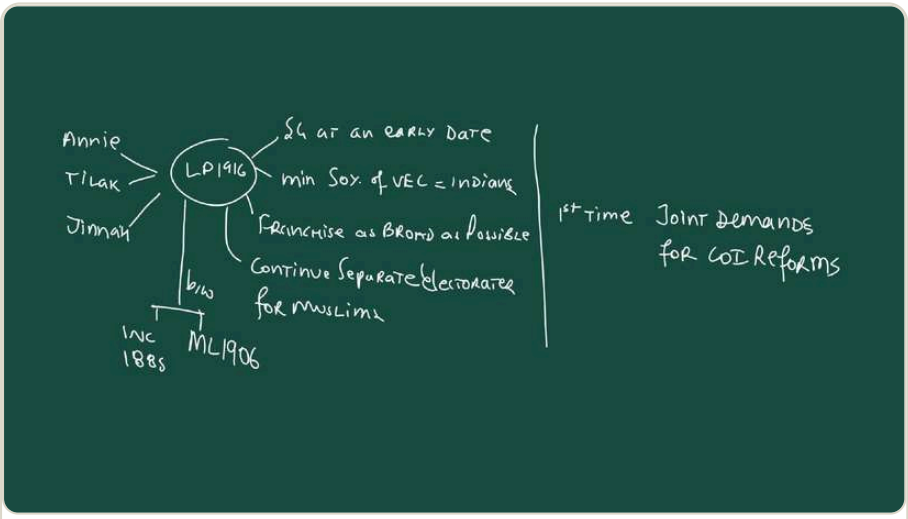
Nehru Report: GG on advice, UAF, DPSPs, 19 FRs Lecture 38 slide 8

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board on (iv): the Governor-General's powers mean Responsible Government, Democracy, a powerless Viceroy/GG in domestic affairs.
- On (v): LP1916 asked Franchise as broad as possible (not UAF), so the Nehru Report went a step further.



Lucknow Pact 1916: who made it and what it asked Lecture 38 slide 9

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: LP1916 was made by Annie (Besant), Tilak, Jinnah, between INC 1885 and ML 1906. It demanded SG at an early date; a share of the Viceroy's Executive Council to be Indians (check your notebook for the fraction); franchise as broad as possible; continue separate electorates for Muslims.
- It was the first time joint demands for COI reforms were made.

DPSP read word by word Lecture 38 slide 10

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board (DPSP, with the line what your parents told you while sending you abroad): Directive = directions, not law, so not binding. Principles = not very specific and not law. of State's Policy = any decision, especially law and executive, where State = the organisation that rules a territory and its people.

4.3 What about the communal question?

- The communal provisions were where the real political friction lay:

No.	Provision	ML1906 reaction
i	No separate electorates. A direct reversal of LP1916.	Blow to ML1906
ii	NWFP and Baluchistan to be full provinces.	ML1906 wanted this: accepted
iii	Separation of Sindh from Bombay Presidency, but only after Dominion Status is achieved and only if Sindh is financially viable.	Conditional concession, not full acceptance
iv	No reservation for Muslims in MMPs.	Unhappy
v	Reservation for Muslims in Muslim minority Provinces and at the Centre, but in proportion to population, not the 1/3rd demanded.	Unhappy
vi	Reservation for non-Muslim minorities in Sindh and NWFP.	-
vii	Reservation to last only 10 years, then reviewed (like the COI 1950 provision on reservation).	-
viii	No State religion, but protection of culture of minorities.	-

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Teacher's verdict, matched to the handout: Accepted = NWFP and Baluchistan full provinces. Partially accepted = Sindh only after Dominion Status and if viable; reservation by population %, not 1/3rd. Rejected = separate electorates (joint instead); 1/3rd at the Centre; reservation in MMPs of Punjab and Bengal.

5 · Three Calcutta Amendments (December 1928) by ML1906

STORY LINK

Because the Nehru Report refused most of the Delhi Proposals, Jinnah came to Calcutta with sharper demands. Ask: which amendment was new?

- In December 1928 the APC met in Calcutta, where Jinnah proposed Three Calcutta Amendments to the Nehru Report.

Calcutta Amendments: old demand and a new one Lecture 38 slide 17

No.	Amendment	Teacher's tag
5.1	One-third reservation for Muslims in the Central Legislative Assembly (CLA).	Old
5.2	Reservation in the MMPs of Punjab and Bengal in proportion to Muslim population, until Universal Adult Franchise is implemented. Logic: under income-based voting, Muslims, being generally poorer, may not form a majority of the voter list even in Muslim majority provinces (Punjab and Bengal).	New
5.3	Residuary powers to Provinces, not the Centre. A minority or regional party always desires federalism because it knows it will not be in power at the Centre.	Strong Provinces

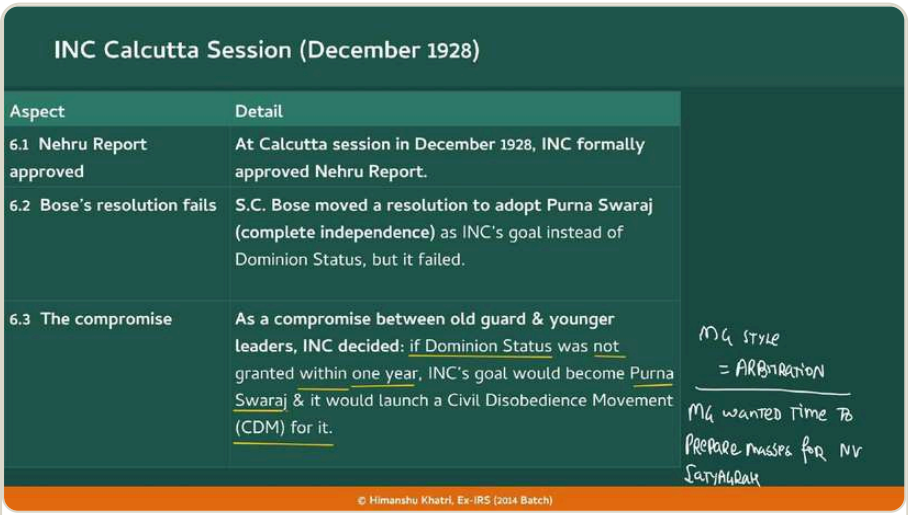
6 · INC Calcutta Session (December 1928)

STORY LINK

Because INC was split between old and young leaders, it adopted the Nehru Report with a deadline. Ask: why was Constructive Work needed before any mass movement?



INC Calcutta 1928: Nehru Report approved, one-year deadline Lecture 38 slide 19

- 6.1 INC formally approved the Nehru Report.
- 6.2 S.C. Bose moved a resolution to adopt Purna Swaraj as INC's goal instead of Dominion Status, but it failed.
- 6.3 Compromise between old guard and younger leaders: if Dominion Status was not granted within one year, INC's goal would become Purna Swaraj and it would launch a Civil Disobedience Movement (CDM) for it.

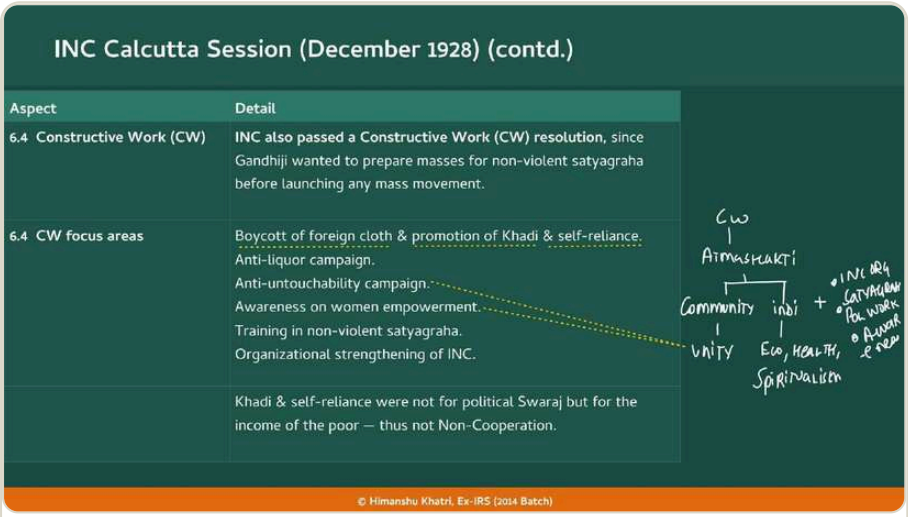
TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: MG style = arbitration. MG wanted time to prepare masses for non-violent satyagraha, which is why the deadline carried a year.



Constructive Work: community unity and individual strength Lecture 38 slide 20

6.4 Constructive Work (CW) resolution

- Gandhiji wanted to prepare the masses for non-violent satyagraha before any mass movement.
- Focus areas: boycott of foreign cloth and promotion of Khadi and self-reliance; anti-liquor campaign; anti-untouchability campaign; awareness on women empowerment; training in non-violent satyagraha; organisational strengthening of INC.
- Khadi and self-reliance were not for political Swaraj but for the income of the poor, so this is not Non-Cooperation.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: CW builds self-strength (atmashakti; check your notebook for the exact word) at two levels. Community gives unity (anti-untouchability and women's awareness). Individual gives economic, health and spiritual strength.
- Plus: INC organisation, satyagraha political work and awareness.

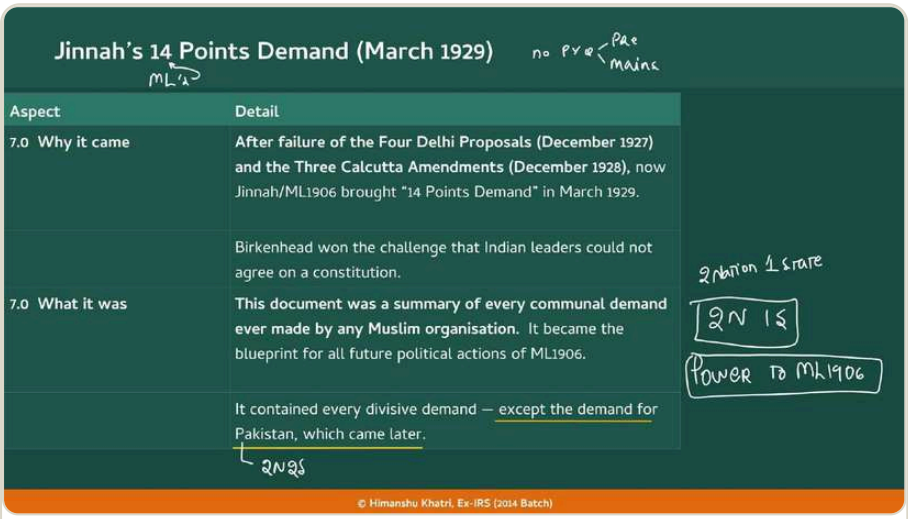
7 · Jinnah's 14 Points Demand (March 1929)

STORY LINK

Because the Delhi Proposals and Calcutta Amendments both failed, Jinnah collected every demand into one list. Ask: what did the list leave out?



14 Points: why it came and what it was Lecture 38 slide 22

- After the failure of the Four Delhi Proposals (Dec 1927) and the Three Calcutta Amendments (Dec 1928), Jinnah/ML1906 brought the 14 Points Demand in March 1929.
- Birkenhead won the challenge that Indian leaders could not agree on a constitution.
- It was a summary of every communal demand ever made by any Muslim organisation and the blueprint for all future political actions of ML1906.
- It contained every divisive demand except the demand for Pakistan, which came later.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: no PYQ in Prelims or Mains on the 14 Points themselves (the exam relevance is its role in the Pakistan story).
- Teacher's board: the 14 Points = 2 nation 1 state, i.e. Power to ML1906. The later Pakistan demand is written as a separate step (check your notebook for the exact shorthand).

No.	Demand
7.1	Separate electorates.
7.2	Veto power on bills if 3/4th of minority members opposed it (borrowed from the 1888 INC rule).
7.3	One-third Muslims in the central legislature.
7.4	Minimum one-third reservation in cabinet at the Centre and in Provinces.

No.	Demand
7.5	Reservation in all elected bodies, even where Muslims were in a majority.
7.6	Reservation in government services.
7.7	Reservation in MMPs.
7.8	Creation of new MMPs: Sindh, Baluchistan and NWFP.
7.9	A federal constitution.
7.10	Residuary powers to Provinces.
7.11	Provincial autonomy.
7.12	No constitutional amendment without consent of Provinces.
7.13	No territorial reorganisation that would hurt Muslim majority status in any province.
7.14	Protection of the culture of Muslims.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Check your notebook: the board figures beside 7.2 (20 Muslim versus 80 non-Muslim, and a yes/no split) are hard to read, so the exact arithmetic of the veto is not stated here.

- The Butler Committee was appointed in 1927 to examine and clarify the relationship between the British Crown and the Princely States.
- Its 1929 report had two findings: British Paramountcy over Princely States was re-affirmed; and Paramountcy should remain intact to preserve the States, which should not be transferred into a Union of India without their own consent.
- This is why GOI Act 1935 used an Instrument of Accession (IOA) for States to join the proposed federation. The IOA remained operative as our COI until 26 January 1950.

- Viceroy Irwin 26-31 issued a statement on 31 October 1929, the Diwali Declaration.
- Text: Dominion status is implicit in the Montague Statement of 1917 and it is the intent of the British to give Dominion Status at a future date, and for this purpose Britain will hold a Round Table Conference (RTC) in London.
- 9.2 No decision, only an intent. No timeline, only a vague future date. Wrong forum: an RTC in London, not a Constituent Assembly in India.
- 9.3 In short, the British offered nothing concrete, so INC responded with the Delhi Manifesto in November 1929.

10 · Delhi Manifesto (November 1929)

STORY LINK

Because the Diwali Declaration was vague, INC leaders attached conditions to the RTC. Ask: which of the three conditions concerned prisoners?

- A meeting of national leaders of INC passed the Delhi Manifesto, placing specific conditions on INC's participation in the proposed Round Table Conference:
- 10.1 The RTC should act as a Constituent Assembly (CA): it should draft a constitution implementing Dominion Status, not merely discuss reforms.

- The Bomb in CLA was Bhagat Singh's action of throwing a bomb in the Central Legislative Assembly, not the Lahore Conspiracy Case of 1928, which was about the Saunders assassination.
- In the Meerut Conspiracy Case, many communists were arrested over ongoing rail strikes and attempts to set up an Indian branch of the Comintern; the Working Class movement was repressed.

MAINS HOOKS

- CDM versus NCM: goal, method, social base
- Significance of Gandhian movements lay in the masses mobilised (Mains 2026, Elucidate)
- Constructive programmes of MG in NCM and CDM
- Why MG chose salt and why not a no-rent campaign

Twenty-two Prelims questions sit on this chapter: master Lahore, Dandi, the Pact, Karachi and the Poona Pact first.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: Irwin 26-31 turned down the Delhi Manifesto, so INC adopted Purna Swaraj at Lahore and MG offered eleven demands as a last chance. When they were refused, he broke the salt law at Dandi and the whole country followed, from Vedaranniyam to Peshawar. Violence and exhaustion forced a truce in the Delhi Pact, but the 2nd RTC deadlocked on separate electorates, the Communal Award and the Poona Pact followed, and MG turned the 2nd phase into a campaign against untouchability. CDM ended in 1934 with little to show on the street, yet INC cashed in the political capital in the 1937 elections.

1. Delhi Manifesto turned down. The Manifesto asked for an RTC acting as a Constituent Assembly with dominion status, an INC majority among Indian delegates and amnesty in the Bomb in CLA and Meerut cases. Irwin 26-31 refused all of it.
   → So INC had to answer at its next session.

2. Lahore chooses Purna Swaraj. At Lahore (Dec 1929, Nehru presiding) INC made complete independence its goal, fixed 26 January 1930 as the pledge day, rejected the RTC, quit the legislatures and empowered the AICC to launch CDM.
   → But MG did not launch it at once.

3. Why MG waited. Muslim leaders of INC wanted an INC-ML pact like Lucknow, capitalists feared the Great Depression, ML1906 spoke of Hindu raj, other parties envied INC's popularity and CPI1925 called INC bourgeois.
   → So MG offered an olive branch first.

4. Eleven demands. In January 1930 MG listed four middle-class, two peasant and five general demands, from the 1s 4d rupee to abolition of the salt tax. If the British met them, INC would not need to fight.
   → But Irwin 26-31 rejected all eleven.

5. Salt as the weapon. Salt was used by everyone, was neither a Hindu nor a bourgeois issue and carried little risk of immediate repression. MG began at Dandi from Sabarmati Ashram in March 1930 and the Salt Satyagraha spread across regions.
   → Now the movement was all-India.

6. Regions join in. Rajaji marched to Vedaranniyam, Kelappan to Poyannur, Inchudi became the Second Dandi, Ankola the Bardoli of Karnataka, and Andhra built Sibirams. INC's organisation since 1920 made this possible.
   → But the Frontier had its own story.

7. Peshawar and the Garhwalis. Ghaffar Khan's Red Shirts met machine guns at Qissa Khwani Bazaar on 23 April 1930. The Royal Garhwal Rifles refused to fire on the unarmed Muslim crowd.
   → So the movement kept growing, and so did the state's anger.

8. Dharasana and arrest. MG warned the British about the Dharasana raid and was arrested in May 1930. Naidu, Manilal and Imam Saheb led 2,500 volunteers against 400 police; Webb Miller's report shocked the world.
   → But violence at Chittagong, Peshawar and Sholapur was rising.

9. Truce and Karachi. The Delhi Pact of 5 March 1931 suspended CDM and brought INC to the 2nd RTC. Bhagat Singh was hanged on 23 March, and Karachi approved the Pact amid black flags, with rights and an economic programme.
   → But London produced no settlement.

10. Deadlock and Award. The 2nd RTC failed on separate electorates and MG resumed CDM. INC was banned in January 1932 and the Communal Award of August 1932 extended separate electorates to the Depressed Classes.
    → So MG fasted, and the Poona Pact followed.

11. Pact and Harijans. The Poona Pact (24 Sept 1932) replaced separate electorates with reserved seats raised from 71 to 147. MG's 2nd phase turned to anti-untouchability, with the Harijan Sevak Sangh, Fund and magazine. CDM ended in 1934; INC won big in 1937.

- MG first made 11 demands: if the British met them, no struggle was needed.
- When they were refused, he began with salt because everyone uses it and nobody could oppose it.

- Peshawar showed non-violence among Pashtuns; the Garhwalis showed unity.
- Violence and tiredness led to the Delhi Pact, Karachi and the 2nd RTC, which failed on separate electorates.
- The Communal Award led to MG's 6-day fast and the Poona Pact: no separate electorates, but 147 reserved seats.
- The 2nd phase was about untouchability: it was weak, but INC won in 1937.

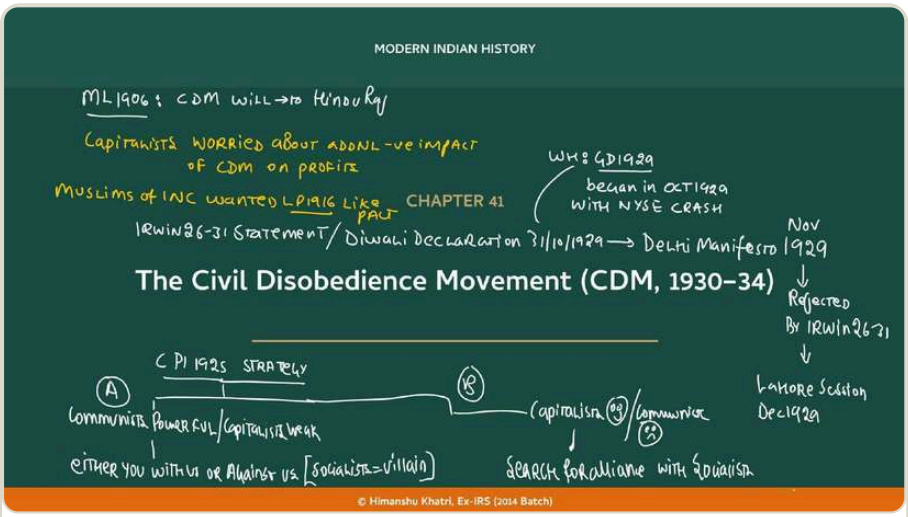
STORY LINK

Because Irwin 26-31 turned down the Delhi Manifesto, the Congress had nowhere left to go except Purna Swaraj and a mass struggle. Ask: why did Gandhi still wait three months before marching?



Chapter board: Diwali Declaration to Lahore, ML1906, capitalists, CPI1925 strategy Lecture 38 slide 60

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Chain on the board: Irwin 26-31 Statement (Diwali Declaration, 31/10/1929) → Delhi Manifesto (Nov 1929) → rejected by Irwin 26-31 → Lahore Session (Dec 1929).
- Three forces holding CDM back: ML1906 said CDM would lead to Hindu Raj; capitalists feared an additional negative impact of CDM on profits; the Muslims of INC wanted an LP1916-like pact first.
- Context line: Great Depression 1929 began in Oct 1929 with the NYSE crash (World History link).
- CPI 1925 strategy, two stages: (A) Communists powerful, capitalists weak: the line was 'either you are with us or against us', socialists = villain. (B) Capitalists in trouble, communists gaining: search for an alliance with socialists. In stage A the CPI treated INC as the enemy, which is why it opposed CDM.

- Diwali Declaration (31 Oct 1929): Irwin 26-31's statement offering dominion status gradually and an RTC; the Delhi Manifesto of 1 Nov 1929 was the Indian reply (see Chapter 40).
- CDM (1930-34) in one line: Lahore goal (Purna Swaraj) + 11 demands + Salt Satyagraha (1st phase) → Delhi Pact → failure of 2nd RTC → 2nd phase (anti-untouchability) → end in 1934.

1 · The INC Lahore Session, December 1929

> STORY LINK
> Because Irwin 26-31 refused all three asks of the Delhi Manifesto, INC had to answer at its next session. Ask: what did Lahore change, and what did it leave to the AICC?

- Viceroy Irwin 26-31 (1926-1931) rejected the Delhi Manifesto in November 1929.
- The Manifesto asked for three things:
  - The Round Table Conference (RTC) to function as a Constituent Assembly drafting a constitution with dominion status.
  - A majority of Indian representatives in the RTC to come from INC.
  - Amnesty in the Bomb in CLA case (1929) and the Meerut Conspiracy Case (1929).
- Irwin 26-31 refused all of it.
- The response came at the INC Lahore Session, December 1929, with Jawaharlal Nehru as President. INC took five major decisions.

1.1 The five decisions

No.	Decision	Detail
1.1	Purna Swaraj	Goal of INC is now complete independence, not dominion status.
1.2	Independence Day	26 January 1930 to be celebrated by taking an independence pledge. Date chosen as the last Sunday of January 1930, a holiday, for maximum participation and publicity.
1.3	RTC rejected	INC rejected the RTC (three sessions: 1930, 1931, 1932) and did not attend the 1st RTC of 1930.
1.4	Legislatures	Withdraw from legislatures immediately: end of the Pro-Changer strategy of working the CLA, CoS and PLAs from within.
1.5	AICC empowered	The AICC (set up by the Nagpur Session of 1920) empowered to launch CDM at an appropriate time.

Board: RTC years 1930, 1931, 1932 and INC attendance Lecture 38 slide 67

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board on 26 January: it is called Purna Swaraj Divas. Republic Day 1950 reuses the date. Constitution Day is 26 November because the Constitution was adopted (finalised) on that day in 1949; it came into effect (became law) on 26 January 1950.
- RTC and INC: 1930 = no INC, 1931 = INC participated, 1932 = no INC. Teacher writes the three years as NO INC / INC / NO INC.
- Legislature withdrawal: the board reads it as NC by INC, i.e. a non-cooperation step taken already at Lahore.

MNEMONIC · LAHORE'S FIVE DECISIONS

P O L A R

Lahore swung India's pole from dominion to full independence.

- P Purna Swaraj as the goal

PYQ 2012 board: Lahore statements, ticks and years Lecture 39 slide 80

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (Lahore PYQ cluster): Prelims 1995 (CDM began from Sabarmati Ashram); 2006 (Lahore 1929 President = Jawaharlal Nehru); 2009 (Dandi March began CDM); 2012 (Lahore: Purna Swaraj resolution); 2014 (1929 Session: Purna Swaraj adopted as goal); 2005 (working committee authorised to launch civil disobedience at Lahore).
- Teacher on Prelims 2012: statement 2 (rift between extremists and moderates resolved at Lahore) is false; the teacher's years are 1916 (Lucknow reunion) and 1920 (moderates left). Statement 3 (rejecting the Two-Nation Theory) is false. Only statement 1 is true, so answer (a).

2 · Why Was CDM Not Launched Immediately?

STORY LINK

Because Lahore had only authorised the AICC to launch CDM, and the year given at Calcutta 1928 was up, the pressure on MG was heavy. Ask: who wanted him to wait, and why?

- The 1928 Calcutta Session resolved that if dominion status was not granted within one year, INC would launch CDM for Purna Swaraj. That year was now up, so pressure on MG to act was high.
- MG, true to his style of inclusiveness, wanted broad consensus before moving. Several forces opposed an immediate CDM:

No.	Force	Position and reason
2.1	INC Muslim leaders	Wanted an INC-ML1906 unity pact before CDM, like LP1916 which preceded NCM 1920-22. Without it they would face opposition from Muslim masses when mobilising them.

No.	Force	Position and reason
2.2	Capitalist class	Unsure of the economic impact of CDM because the Great Depression (GD1929) began in October 1929 with the US Stock Market Crash. The US economy was linked to the world through import-export and FDI, and by 1914 the US was the top economy, so a US depression meant a global one.
2.3	ML1906	Called CDM a ploy of INC to establish Hindu raj.
2.4	Sikh parties, Hindu Mahasabha, Justice Party of Madras	The Justice Party (lower castes) had not supported NCM 1920-22. All three opposed CDM because it would raise INC's popularity. Except the Justice Party they had joined the All Parties Conference and demanded Purna Swaraj or Dominion Status, but did not want INC to become the sole mass leader.
2.5	CPI 1925	Opposed CDM on directions of the Comintern (Third International), the body of all communist parties led by the Communist Party of the USSR. CPI1925 called Bose, Nehru and INC agents of the Bourgeoisie and INC a party of the capitalist class.

- Result: instead of launching CDM directly, MG gave his 11-point demands in January 1930.

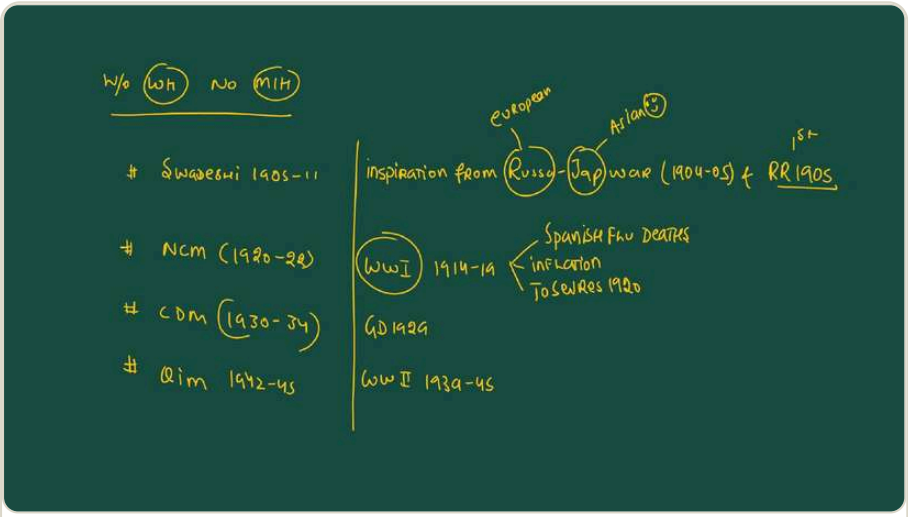
Board: Great Depression chain and the 'Purna Swaraj = Capitalist Raj' charge Lecture 38 slide 61

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Depression logic: GD means falling demand; factories cut output; layoffs or wage cuts follow; people spend less, so demand falls again (a loop).
- Why CPI said INC = party of Bourgeoisie: socialism was strong in INC in the 1930s (Bose, Nehru); GD1929 brought negative press for capitalism; the CPI said Bose and Nehru were agents of the bourgeoisie and Purna Swaraj would mean Capitalist Raj.
- USA and the world (board): links are Diaspora, Remittances (via MN Banks), Internet + MNCs, FII and FDI, Imports and Exports, dollar as forex, world trade routes. If USA sneezes, the world catches cold. By 1914 USA was no. 1 economy.



Board: without World History no Modern Indian History Lecture 38 slide 83

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 'w/o WH no MIH' (teacher's own line): each movement links to a world event. Swadeshi 1905-11: Russo-Japanese war 1904-05 (a European power beaten by an Asian one) and the Russian Revolution 1905, the first. NCM (1920-22): WWI 1914-19 with Spanish flu deaths, inflation, Treaty of Sevres 1920. CDM (1930-34): GD1929. QIM 1942-45: WW II 1939-45.

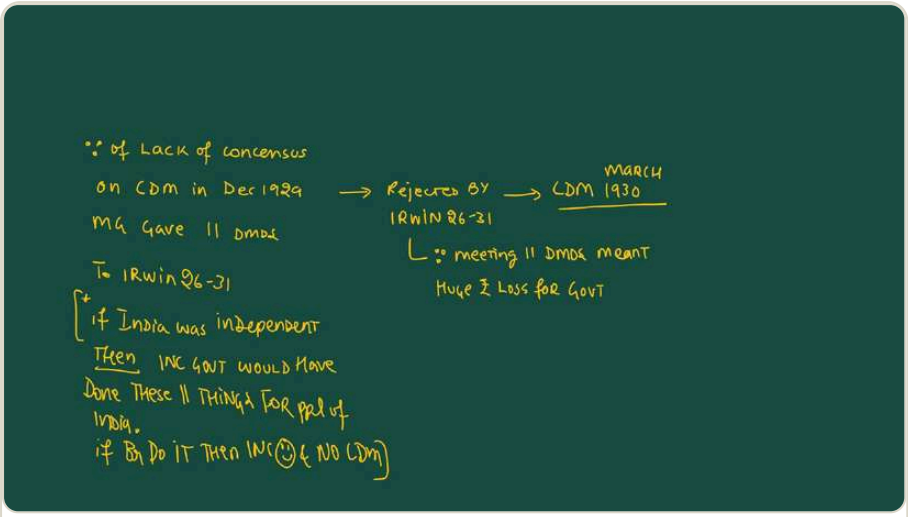
3 · MG's 11-Point Demands, January 1930

STORY LINK

Because MG wanted to give the British a chance to deliver Swaraj's substance without a fight, he turned Swaraj into eleven concrete benefits. Ask: what did each group get on the list?

- The 11 demands defined what Swaraj would mean for the masses: the benefits ordinary people would get under self-government.

- MG's argument: if the British delivered these on their own, INC was ready to sacrifice its own interest in political power. This is MG's style of arbitration: offer a chance to deliver the substance without a confrontation.



Board: no consensus, 11 demands, and what rejection meant Lecture 38 slide 63

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board logic: because of the lack of consensus on CDM in Dec 1929, the 11 demands went to Irwin 26-31, who rejected them, and CDM began in March 1930. Meeting the 11 demands would have meant a huge rupee loss to the government.
- If India were independent, an INC government would have done these 11 things for the people. If the British did them, INC would be happy and there would be no CDM.

NUMBER CARD · 11 DEMANDS

4 · 2 · 5

Four for business, two for farmers, five for everyone.

4 Middle-class / Bourgeoisie issues (3.1-3.4)
2 Peasants' issues (3.5-3.6)
5 General issues (3.7-3.11)

3.1 Four Middle-Class / Bourgeoisie issues

- 3.1 Exchange rate: lower the Rupee to 1 Rs = 1s 4d (1 shilling and 4 pence). This is depreciation of the Rupee: it boosts Indian exports and discourages import of British goods by making them costlier (in line with Make in India, i.e. domestic production).
- 3.2 Cotton tariffs: protective tariffs for cotton, i.e. import duty on imported cotton cloth.

- 3.3 Indian Tariff Board: full status and powers, so Indian businessmen have a say in import/export duties.
- 3.4 Postal Reservation Bill: reserve 50% of seats in the postal department for Indians: jobs for the Western Educated Middle Class (WEMC).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Note on the rupee (Hilton-Young): in 1926 the Hilton-Young Commission fixed the rupee high at 1s 6d. Fewer rupees were needed to pay fixed debts in pounds, so remittances to Britain flowed easily and India looked financially stable to lenders. The high rupee made British goods cheaper in India and hurt Indian capitalists, workers and farmers by making Indian goods expensive abroad. Businesses pressed for 1s 4d since 1926 (see Chapter 47).

Board: remittances, credit standing, British imports into India Lecture 38 slide 77

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Remittances: money moves from India to Britain. Financial stability: it makes India look creditworthy, like a good CIBIL score. High rupee: British imports into India become cheaper.
- Strong rupee, less rupee needed for a foreign expense (example: if 1 dollar = 1 rupee, paying a dollar debt is easy).

3.2 Two Peasants' issues and five General issues

- 3.5 Land Revenue: 50% decrease and zero LR during famine.
- 3.6 Bardoli: release confiscated property of those in the Bardoli Satyagraha (1928).
- 3.7 Expenditure: decrease military expenditure and salaries of civil servants.
- 3.8 Arms Act 1878: amend it to give Indians the right to bear arms for self-defence.
- 3.9 Prohibition: total prohibition on intoxicants.
- 3.10 Political prisoners: release those not guilty of violence.
- 3.11 Salt tax: abolish the salt tax (8.2% of Government revenue) and the Government salt monopoly.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Beside 3.10 the board writes Delhi Manifesto, Nov 1929: the prisoner demand carries over from the Manifesto.

- The salt demand was not new: the British Indians' Association (1851), Madras Native Association (1852) and Bombay Association (1852) sent similar demands to Parliament before the Charter Act of 1853. The Salt Act 1882 applied tax on salt and reaffirmed the Government monopoly.
- Irwin 26-31 rejected all 11 demands. CDM was now inevitable.

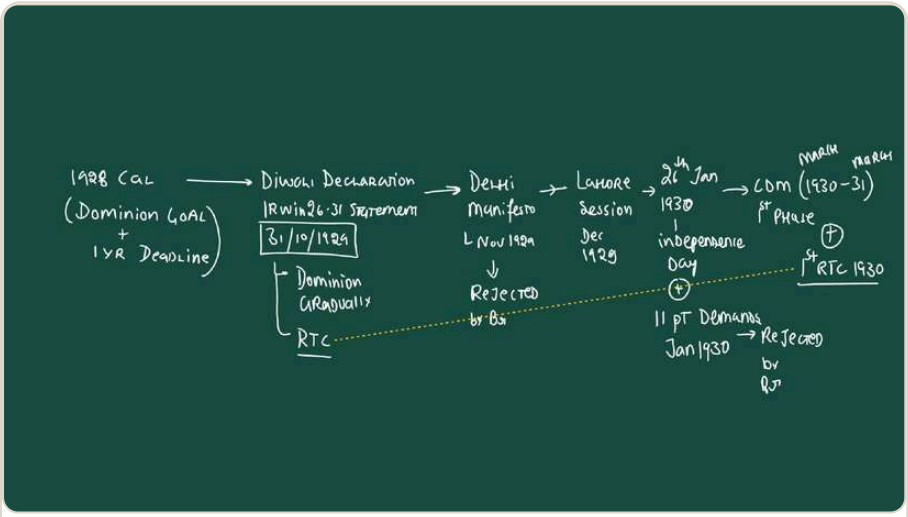
HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (CDM-plan and RTC cluster): Prelims 1996 (Indian-British meetings 1930-32 in London = RTCs); Prelims 2003 (chronology of freedom struggle facts). Prelims 2026 (Hilton-Young rate) is on the slides: answer (a), the rate served remittances and creditworthiness; see the PYQ table.



Board: Calcutta 1928 to Lahore, 11 demands and 1st RTC Lecture 39 slide 8

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Timeline on the board: 1928 Calcutta (dominion goal + 1 year deadline) → Diwali Declaration, Irwin 26-31 statement, 31/10/1929 (dominion gradually, and an RTC) → Delhi Manifesto, 1 Nov 1929, rejected by the British → Lahore Session, Dec 1929 → 26 Jan 1930 Independence Day → CDM (Mar 1930 - Mar 1931) 1st phase. The 11 demands of Jan 1930 were rejected by Irwin 26-31, and the 1st RTC of 1930 sits on the same line.

4 · Civil Disobedience Movement (CDM), 1930–34: Reasons

STORY LINK

Because the 11 demands were rejected and the Depression was crushing farmers and workers, the push for struggle came from both politics and the pocket. Ask: why were ryots and workers both restless?

- 4.1 Rejection of MG's 11-point demands by Irwin 26-31.
- 4.2 Economic grievances from the Great Depression (GD1929):
  - i) Cash crops: prices crashed in international markets; cotton and jute, both export crops, were badly hit, devastating the ryots. (Recall: the end of the US Civil War 1861-65 also cut raw cotton prices and contributed to the Bombay Deccan Riots of 1875.)
  - ii) Food crops: prices of wheat and rice fell in domestic markets, but Land Revenue stayed the same. Moneylenders stopped lending and demanded old loans back. Peasants sold land to fund the next sowing season.
  - iii) Working Class (WC): low wages and lay-offs.
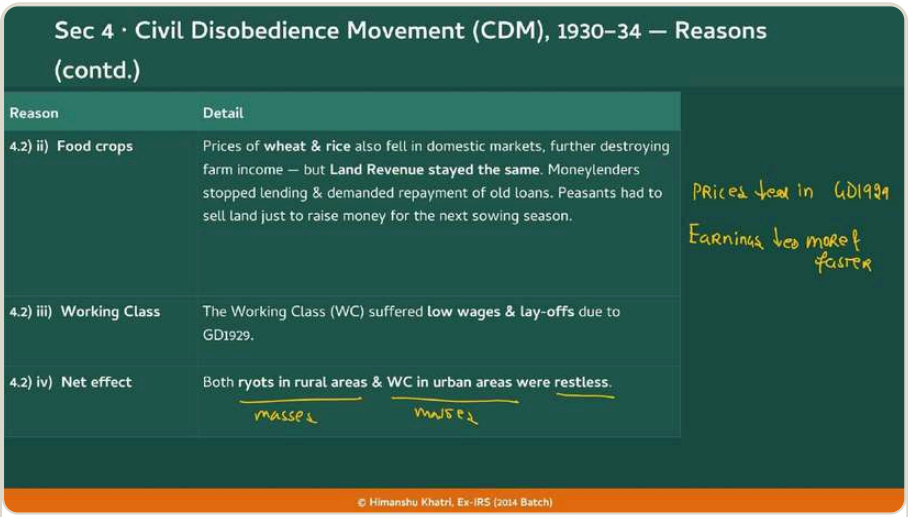
  - iv) Net effect: ryots in rural areas and WC in urban areas were restless.



Board: prices fell, earnings fell faster; both groups are the masses Lecture 38 slide 85

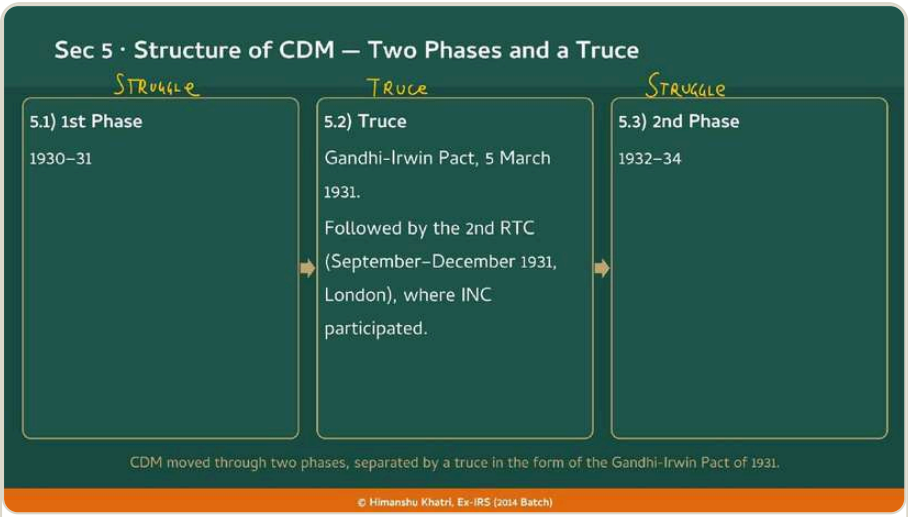
TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prices fell in GD1929, but earnings fell more and faster. Ryots (rural) and WC (urban) are both labelled masses: the Depression pushed the masses, not just the elite, towards CDM.

5 · Structure of CDM

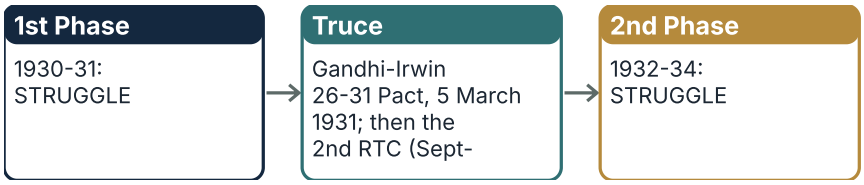
STORY LINK

Because CDM was fought as a struggle, a truce and a second struggle, its structure is the skeleton of the chapter. Ask: what ended the first struggle?



Board: Struggle, Truce, Struggle across the two phases Lecture 38 slide 86

CHAIN: CDM STRUCTURE



TEACHER'S BOARD

- The three boxes are labelled STRUGGLE - TRUCE - STRUGGLE: MG's STS strategy (see Chapter 36).

6 · CDM Plan of MG

STORY LINK

Because MG's method is rising tempo, the plan climbs from the salt law to revenue and forest laws. Ask: which issue was safe from every critic?

- Design principle: MG's style of rising tempo, i.e. gradual escalation.

6.1 First stage

- 6.1 Salt: marches by leaders in coastal areas for illegal manufacture of salt: civil disobedience against the salt law.

- 6.2 Non-Cooperation (NC): (i) boycott of British institutions: lawyers and civil servants to resign, boycott of courts; (ii) boycott of British goods and use of Swadeshi goods, e.g. Khadi.

Board: first stage, with tags on lawyers, servants, courts, education
Lecture 38 slide 87

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's tags on boycott of institutions: J for lawyers, E for civil servants, J for courts, and educational institutions added by the teacher (the J, E, J tags: check your notebook for the board's expansion).

6.1a Why salt was chosen

- i) Consumed by everyone.
- ii) Highlights British oppression even over basic necessities.
- iii) It would unite all, especially the poor.
- iv) Neither a Hindu issue (ML1906 could not object on communal grounds) nor a Bourgeoisie issue (CPI1925 could not call it capitalist).
- v) Less chance of immediate repression, since abolishing the salt tax would not much hurt Government revenue.

MNEMONIC · WHY SALT WAS CHOSEN

S Staple of every home: consumed by all and unites the poor (i and iii)

A Apolitical: neither a Hindu nor a Bourgeoisie issue (iv)

L Low risk of immediate repression (v)

T Tyranny shown even on basic necessities (ii)

Five reasons folded into four letters: S joins 'consumed by everyone' with 'unites the poor'.

6.2 Second stage

- 6.3 No-revenue campaign in Ryotwari and Mahalwari areas, where the masses paid LR directly to the Government.
- 6.4 Non-payment of Chowkidari tax in Zamindari areas: the tax pays salaries of Chowkidars (village watchmen) under the Indian Police Act 1861.
- Why not a no-rent campaign? MG wanted the fight framed as Indians versus the British. A no-rent drive in Zamindari areas would split Indians: Indian ryot versus Indian landlord. High rent was the tenants' real grievance but it was deliberately not made the demand.
- 6.5 Forest laws: violation of forest laws in the Central Provinces.

Board: second stage aims at Indian vs British issues Lecture 38 slide 90

TEACHER'S BOARD

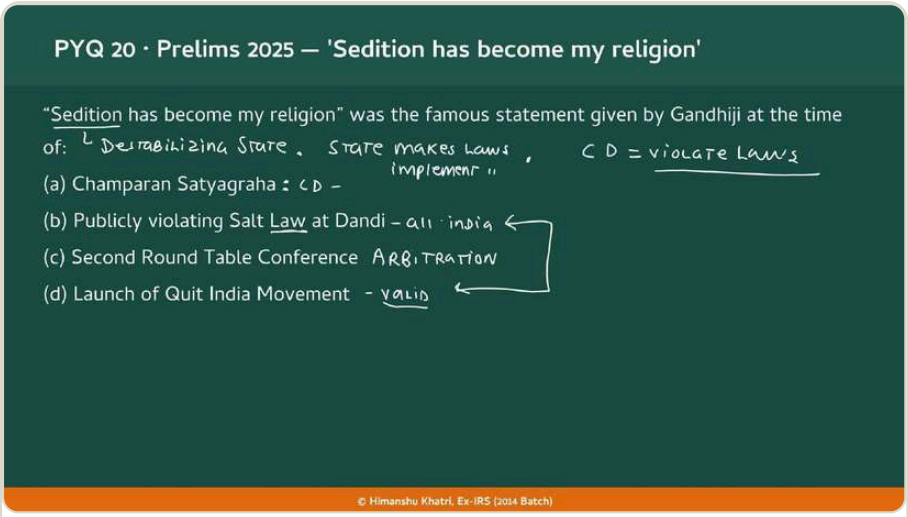
- Teacher's reasoning: MG searched for an Indian vs British issue, not an Indian vs Indian issue; that is why a no-rent campaign was not called. The 2nd Stage is the no-revenue and Chowkidari tax stage.

7 · Implementation: 1st Stage (March 1930 – May 1930)

STORY LINK

Because the plan had to become action, Dandi lit the fire and regional leaders spread it. Ask: what made CDM all-India where Swadeshi stayed in Bengal?

- The Dandi March began in March 1930. MG marched from the Sabarmati Ashram (set up 1917) to the Dandi coast to break the salt law. Huge crowds joined, including women.
- Why CDM became truly all-India: the Salt Satyagraha was not limited to Dandi. Regional leaders launched their own campaigns across the country, so CDM was far more spread than any earlier movement.



PYQ 2025 board: 'Sedition has become my religion' Lecture 39 slide 97

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prelims 2025 reasoning: sedition = destabilising the State; the State makes laws and implements them; civil disobedience = violating laws. The Dandi salt-law violation is an all-India civil disobedience, so (b). Champaran is not CD of this kind; the 2nd RTC is arbitration; Quit India is also marked valid as a rival, but the handout alert ties the statement to the CDM era.

7.1 Madras: Rajaji's Vedaranniyam March

- C. Rajagopalachari marched from Tiruchirappalli to Vedaranniyam with 98 handpicked volunteers, chosen from over a thousand applicants and trained to endure police brutality without retaliation.
- Launch date 13 April 1930: both Tamil New Year (Puthandu) and the day commemorating the Jallianwala Bagh massacre.
- They reached the coast on 28 April and broke the salt law on 30 April; Rajaji was arrested on 30 April.
- J.A. Thorne, District Collector of Tanjore, made it a criminal offence to give the marchers food, water or shelter. People tied food packets to tree branches and left provisions at secret spots, so the marchers were fed without anyone being caught.
- The march anthem by Namakkal Kavignar Ramalingam Pillai: 'Kathi indri ratham indri yuddham ondru varugudhu' (a war is coming without swords, without blood).
- Rukmini Lakshmipathi became the first woman in India to pay a penalty for violating the salt laws.

7.2 Malabar, Assam, Odisha

Region	Event and leaders
Malabar	K. Kelappan ('the Kerala Gandhi') led the Malabar Salt March from Calicut to Poyannur on the same day, 13 April 1930. He also led the Guruvayur Temple Entry Satyagraha of 1931-32.
Assam	Maulana Abdul Hamid Khan Bhashani marched from Sylhet to Noakhali in Bengal.
Odisha	Inchudi (Balasore district) was called the 'Second Dandi', led by Gopabandhu Chaudhuri and Harekrushna Mahatab, with massive women's participation under Rama Devi and Malati Choudhury.

7.3 Karnataka, Maharashtra, Bombay, Andhra

Region	Event and leaders
Karnataka	Ankola (Uttara Kannada) earned the title 'Bardoli of Karnataka' for no-tax and salt campaigns, with raids on the Sanikatta salt works. Leaders: M.P. Nadkarni, R.R. Diwakar, Karnad Sadashiv Rao.
Maharashtra	Shiroda salt works in Ratnagiri saw massive raids.
Bombay	Vile Parle was the movement headquarters, organised by Jamnalal Bajaj. Kamaladevi Chattopadhyay sold contraband salt outside the Bombay Stock Exchange and the Bombay High Court.
Andhra	Military-style training camps called Sibirams in Krishna, Godavari and Guntur districts. Konda Venkatappaiah directed operations from a Sibiram in Vijayawada; Pattabhi Sitaramayya played a major organising role.

- Non-Cooperation also began alongside the salt campaigns: boycott of British goods and institutions.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Why CDM spread where Swadeshi did not: MG's groundwork since 1920 (PCCs on linguistic lines, CWC, AICC, local committees) meant CDM did not depend on MG reaching every village; INC machinery let regional leaders run disciplined campaigns. Swadeshi 1905-11 stayed largely confined to Bengal.

8 · NWFP: The Khudai Khidmatgars and the Qissa Khwani Bazaar Massacre

STORY LINK

Because CDM was an all-India fire, it reached the Frontier as well, and there it took its most striking form. Ask: how did a Pashtun army become non-violent?

- NWFP was one of the most remarkable chapters of CDM.
- Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan was the Frontier Gandhi, Badshah Khan, Fakhr-e-Afghan (Pride of Afghans): an educator and social reformer who opened schools across NWFP and published the Pashto political journal Pakhtun (1928).
- In 1929 he founded the Khudai Khidmatgars (Servants of God), the Red Shirts or Surkh Posh. Uniforms were dyed with cheap brick-dust because white khadi got dirty too fast in rugged terrain.

- Ideological fusion: the Pashtun code of honour (Pukhtunwali) joined to Gandhian non-violence; non-violence was the ultimate test of bravery for a true Muslim and true Pashtun.
- The oath: forgive oppressors, live a pure life, serve humanity without reward.
- Why Britain feared it: a disciplined non-violent army of tens of thousands of Pashtuns, a people historically feared for martial spirit, was a strategic nightmare.

8.1 The Qissa Khwani Bazaar massacre, 23 April 1930

- On 23 April 1930 Britain arrested Ghaffar Khan in Peshawar. Massive unarmed crowds gathered at the Qissa Khwani Bazaar (Storytellers' Market).
- The British drove armoured cars into the crowd, ran over several people, and fired machine guns. Hundreds of peaceful protesters were killed, yet the crowd kept coming forward. Eventually the Pashtuns erupted in violence.
- Royal Garhwal Rifles: these predominantly Hindu soldiers were ordered to fire on the unarmed Muslim crowd. Led by Chandra Singh Garhwali they flatly refused, saying they would not shoot unarmed citizens, and were court-martialled with severe sentences for mutiny.
- Their defiance became the ultimate symbol of Hindu-Muslim unity during CDM, and proof that non-violent resistance had reached even the British Indian Army.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: Prelims 2002 (Khudai Khidmatgars = Red Shirts, NWFP, Abdul Ghaffar Khan; the movement called for Pathan regional nationalist unity and a struggle against colonialism, answer d). Not terrorism, not communism, not union with Afghanistan.

9 · Implementation: 2nd Stage (May 1930 – March 1931)

STORY LINK

Because MG openly announced the raid on Dharasana, the state had to arrest him, and that arrest opened the 2nd stage. Ask: how did one journalist turn a beating into a world story?

- Dharasana Satyagraha, May 1930 (Gujarat): MG gave the British prior warning of a planned peaceful raid on the Dharasana salt works (south of Dandi). A satyagrahi is fearless: crimes are hidden, but politics is public.
- This led to MG's arrest in May 1930 and the 2nd Stage of CDM began.
- Leadership passed to Abbas Tyabji, a 76-year-old retired judge, who marched with MG's wife Kasturbai; both were arrested before reaching Dharasana.
- 21 May 1930: Sarojini Naidu, MG's son Manilal and Imam Saheb (a follower since the South African struggle) took charge. About 2,500 volunteers marched at the works where about 400 police waited with steel-tipped lathis. The satyagrahis were beaten and none raised an arm; over 300 were injured.

- Webb Miller, American journalist of United Press, witnessed it all. His report, printed in over a thousand newspapers, turned international opinion against British rule. The British tried to censor it; MG later said Miller 'helped make' Indian independence.
- Assam: protests against the Cunningham Circular (1930-31), which forced parents to give an assurance of good behaviour of their children, a way to keep youth out of CDM.

10 · Impact of CDM's 1st Phase (March 1930 – March 1931)

STORY LINK

Because the salt campaign reached every region, the 1st phase scored firsts but also showed the cracks. Ask: which groups joined for the first time, and which stayed away?

10.1 Positives

- 10.1 High participation in both urban and rural areas, from regional leaders in NWFP to Bengal to Madras (all-India).
- 10.2 Radicalism: MG showed more radicalism than in NCM 1920-22: he did not withdraw the movement despite initial violence.
- 10.3 CD, not just NC: both NC and CD happened at an all-India level. This was progress in the INM because CD means breaking the law, so the masses showed willingness to bear repression and go to jail.
- 10.4 Capitalists: for the first time massive participation of the capitalist class, especially traders who stopped importing British cloth: 50% decrease in import of foreign cloth. (Unlike Swadeshi; like NCM 1920-22.) GD1929 also cut imports as demand crashed, but the traders' active role was significant.
- 10.5 Women: for the first time large-scale women's participation in urban and rural areas. People were shocked by the huge gatherings of women. MG's image as Mahatma and his years of constructive work on women's empowerment had steadily reduced Indian men's opposition to women in mainstream politics.

10.2 Negatives

- 10.6 Working class: no major WC participation except Sholapur and Nagpur. Reasons: CPI1925 boycotted CDM; WC was not attracted to non-violent methods under communist influence; MG himself was cautious about WC participation, fearing violence.
- 10.7 Muslims: low participation for lack of Hindu-Muslim unity; no INC-ML1906 pact this time, unlike LP1916 before NCM.
- 10.8 Middle-class youth were not drawn to non-violent Satyagraha; they were inspired by revolutionaries like Bhagat Singh.
- 10.9 Capitalists: participation fell as financial losses mounted.
- 10.10 Peasants: participation fell gradually because of property confiscation on non-payment of tax.
- 10.11 Tenant ryots began no-rent campaigns on their own as GD1929 crashed crop prices. MG grew cautious about unity among Indians (ryot vs landlord) and these were not formally adopted into CDM.
- 10.12 Repression drove participation down especially after September 1930; the movement had begun only in March 1930. (Board: March to September 1930 had good participation.)
- 10.13 INC banned for the first time (1930): the Government declared the Congress and allied bodies (CWC and provincial committees, PCCs) illegal, during the salt campaign. The ban was lifted in 1931 after the Delhi Pact and returned in January 1932 after the failure of the 2nd RTC, when MG declared resumption of CDM.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board heading for the negatives: the masses got tired. Capitalists, peasants and the no-rent worry all sit under that heading.

11 · Why Was CDM's 1st Phase Suspended?

STORY LINK

Because violence kept rising and the masses were exhausted, MG chose a truce. Ask: which three flashpoints did the teacher list?

- Main reason: rising violence.
- 11.1 Chittagong Armoury Raid (1930-33) by the Indian Republican Army of Surya Sen in East Bengal.
- 11.2 Peshawar (NWFP): arrest of Ghaffar Khan → Qissa Khwani Bazaar massacre → violent aftermath.
- 11.3 Sholapur: after MG's arrest in May 1930, huge violence by workers: burning of liquor and foreign-cloth shops, burning of the railway station, a massive textile strike. They set up a parallel government, forcing the British to impose martial law.
- CDM was suspended under the Gandhi-Irwin 26-31 Pact of 1931. This was STS: Struggle-Truce-Struggle. The truce came because the masses were tired and violence had escalated.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board: beside the Chittagong raid the board writes that the raiders established a provisional government; the parallel government is the Sholapur point.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout gives the parallel government only for Sholapur. Keep the board's extra line on Chittagong as well.

12 · Gandhi-Irwin 26-31 Pact 1931 (Delhi Pact, 5 March 1931)

STORY LINK

Because MG needed a pause and the British needed INC in London, both sides sat down. Ask: who gained what?

- Reasons: for MG, rising violence in the 1st phase. For the British, the 1st RTC of 1930 failed without INC, and mass participation in CDM proved that any constitutional settlement without INC would carry no popular legitimacy.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Who gained: features 12.1 and 12.2 are marked as British gains; 12.3 to 12.6 are marked as INC gains. Teacher's gloss: 'personal use' means not commercial selling; 'not charged with violence' is the qualifier on prisoners.

No fixed order, so the initials are rearranged into PROS. The handout adds a fifth gain, cancellation of fines and return of lands (12.7).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the slide numbering jumps from 12.6 to 12.8 and leaves out 12.7 (fines cancelled, confiscated lands returned). Use the handout. Slide 'Irwin Statement 1929 = 1st invite': the first invitation to RTC came in the 1929 Diwali Declaration.

13 · Karachi Special Session of INC, March 1931

STORY LINK

Because the Pact had to be ratified and Bhagat Singh had just been hanged, Karachi was both approval and anger. Ask: what did INC tell the masses it stood for?

Sec 13 · Karachi Special Session of INC, March 1931

Aspect	Detail
Prez=Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel.	Karachi Session was significant for four reasons.
13.1) Delhi Pact approved	INC approved the Gandhi-Irwin26-31 Pact.
13.2) FRs & Economic Programme	• INC passed resolutions on Fundamental Rights (FRs) and a National Economic Programme influenced by socialist principles. [PRO POOR] • Purpose= communicate to masses what INC would stand for@2nd RTC.
13.3) Swaraj defined for Masses	• INC defined Swaraj for the masses — political freedom must include economic freedom. (*notice- Socialist influence)
13.4) formal tribute was paid to the martyrs	• Bose's supporters showed black flags — "MG Go Back." • Reason= anger @ failure of MG to secure commutation of death sentences of Bhagat Sukhdev Rajguru (executed barely days)(Ah!) • Bose & others ensured that a formal tribute was paid to the martyrs

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board: the economic programme is PRO POOR; Swaraj defined for masses; the socialist influence is noted in 13.3. The anger was at the failure to save Bhagat Singh, executed days earlier. Sequence on the board: Delhi Pact 05/03/1931 → Bhagat Singh and others martyred 23/03/1931 → Special Karachi Session, March 1931.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the FR resolution was drafted by Jawaharlal Nehru; Patel only presided (Prelims 2005 and 2010). Prelims 2003: the false statement is that Karachi opposed the Pact; in truth Karachi passed it unopposed. Prelims 2003 also gives Bose's Forward Block (true) and Bhagat Singh among HSRA founders (true).

14 · 2nd Round Table Conference, September–December 1931

STORY LINK

Because INC went to London hoping for Purna Swaraj, it met a wall of separate electorate demands. Ask: why did MG alone speak for INC and still fail?

- MG was the sole official delegate of INC. Others like Sarojini Naidu and M.M. Malviya attended in other capacities: Sarojini represented Indian women; Malviya was invited by the British to represent the nationalist Hindu view.
- The 2nd RTC failed on a deadlock over separate electorates. Muslims, Anglo-Indians, Europeans in India, Indian Christians and the Depressed Classes all demanded separate electorates. The Depressed Classes were represented by B.R. Ambedkar. MG and INC opposed separate electorates. (The Nehru Report of August 1928 had proposed joint electorates.)
- The British also rejected Purna Swaraj.
- MG's response: announced resumption of CDM (2nd phase, 1932-34). In January 1932 INC was banned and MG imprisoned in Yeravda jail (Pune).

Board: why separate electorates favour single-group parties (XYZ example) Lecture 39 slide 13

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why separate electorates benefit parties that speak for one group: a seat is reserved for community XYZ; only XYZ voters may vote; the candidate of the XYZ party wins; the XYZ candidate of an 'all People's Party' loses. So parties that say 'we are not for all Indians but only for one group' benefit.

14.1 What the British declared

- 14.1 NWFP to become a full province (done 1932).
- 14.2 Sindh to be separated from Bombay as a full province (done 1936).
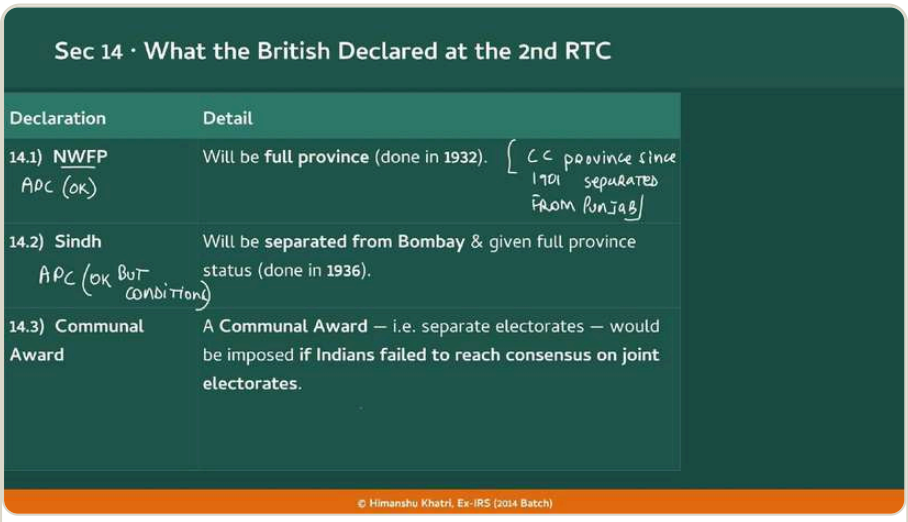
- 14.3 Communal Award: if Indians failed to agree on joint electorates, the Government would impose separate electorates.



Board: NWFP and Sindh notes against the All Parties Conference Lecture 39 slide 14

TEACHER'S BOARD

- NWFP: a Chief Commissioner's province since 1901, separated from Punjab; the board marks the demand as acceptable to the All Parties Conference (APC: OK). Sindh: also marked APC, but OK with a condition.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (2nd and 1st RTC PYQ cluster): Prelims 1997 (match list of RTC delegates and roles); Prelims 2005 (1st RTC: all major political organisations did not take part, INC boycotted). The 1st RTC ran 12 Nov 1930 to 19 Jan 1931, presided by Ramsay MacDonald.

15 · 3rd Round Table Conference, November–December 1932

STORY LINK

Because INC was already banned, the 3rd RTC was a shell, yet it fed straight into the 1935 Act. Ask: which document came out of it?

- Held without INC, which had been banned in January 1932 (very low participation).
- It produced a White Paper (1933), examined by a Joint Parliamentary Committee (JPC). The JPC report was the basis of the Government of India Act 1935 (see Chapter 42).

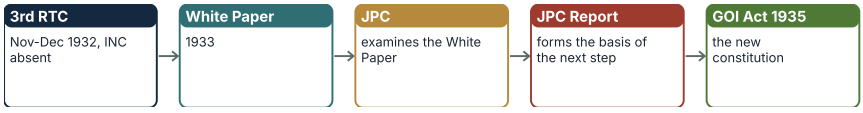
CHAIN: FROM RTC TO THE 1935 ACT



Conference	Dates	INC	Outcome
1st RTC	Nov 1930 - Jan 1931	Absent: CDM underway	Ambedkar demanded separate electorates for the Depressed Classes; no outcome without INC, a failure
2nd RTC	Sep - Dec 1931	Attended: MG sole official voice	Deadlock over separate electorates; Purna Swaraj rejected; British declared NWFP province, Sindh separate, Communal Award warning
3rd RTC	Nov - Dec 1932	Absent: banned since Jan 1932	White Paper 1933 → JPC → report → GOI Act 1935

HANDOUT ALERT

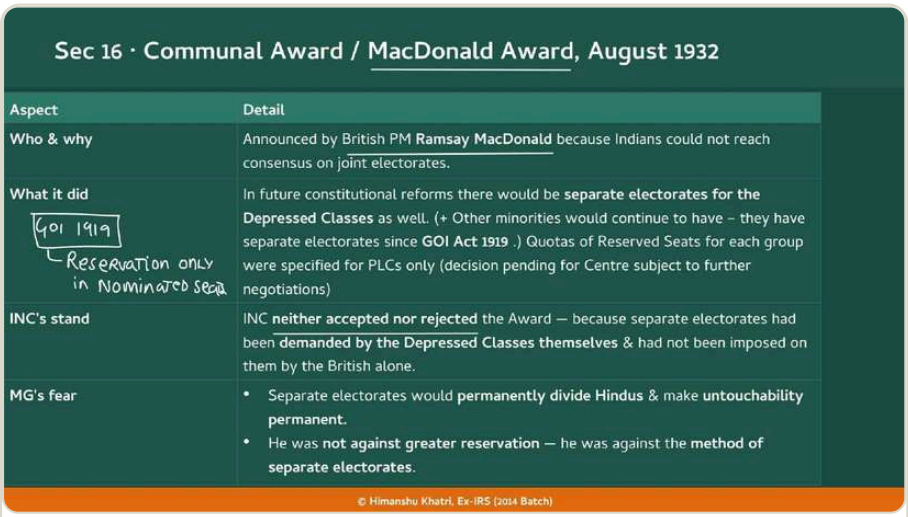
- Handout alert (Prelims 1996): the London meetings are strictly one conference held in three sessions, not three separate conferences; answer (d). The INC attendance pattern (absent, present, absent) is a true fact but not the reason the naming is wrong.

16 · Communal Award / MacDonald Award, August 1932

STORY LINK

Because Indians could not agree on joint electorates, the British decided for them. Ask: why did INC neither accept nor reject, and why did MG still fast?

- Announced by British PM Ramsay MacDonald (17 August 1932) because Indians could not reach consensus on joint electorates.
- It extended separate electorates to the Depressed Classes. Other minorities already had them since the GOI Act 1919. Reserved seat quotas for each group were fixed for the provincial councils only; the Centre was left pending for further negotiation.
- INC's stand: it neither accepted nor rejected the Award, because separate electorates had been demanded by the Depressed Classes themselves and were not imposed by the British alone.
- MG's fear: separate electorates would permanently divide Hindus and make untouchability permanent. He was not against greater reservation; he was against the method of separate electorates. His issue was how representation would be elected, not how much.



Board: GOI 1919 and the Award, with INC's stand marked Lecture 39 slide 17

TEACHER'S BOARD

- GOI 1919 box: under the 1919 Act the Depressed Classes had reservation only in nominated seats; the Award moved them to separate electorates.
- Prelims 2002 match list, teacher's years: Macdonald → Communal Award; Linlithgow 36-43 → August Offer; Dalhousie 48-56 → Doctrine of Lapse; Chelmsford 16-21 → Dyarchy. Answer (a) A-2 B-3 C-1 D-4.

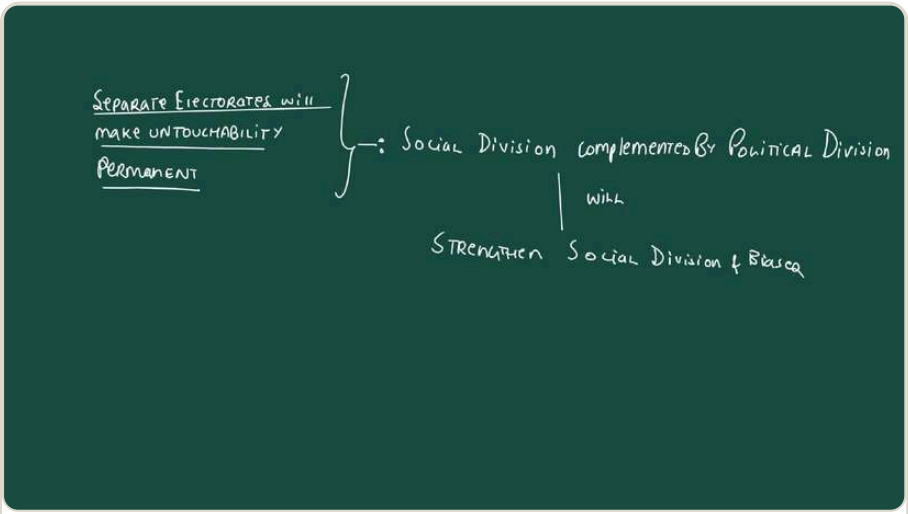
PYQ 2002 board: Macdonald, Linlithgow, Dalhousie, Chelmsford matches Lecture 39 slide 55

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (Communal Award cluster): Prelims 2013 (1932 Fast Unto Death was against the Communal Award, answer c); Prelims 2002 (match list); Prelims 2025 (Harijan upliftment after the Poona Pact); Prelims 1997 (Poona Pact was between MG and Ambedkar side, not the British Government).
- Slide conflict on PYQ 2002: options (b) and (d) are printed identically on the slide; the key is (a).



Board: separate electorates make untouchability permanent Lecture 39 slide 18

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board: separate electorates will make untouchability permanent, because social division is complemented by political division, which will strengthen social division and biases.

17 · Poona Pact, September 1932

STORY LINK

Because MG would not let the Award stand, he fasted in Yeravda until Ambedkar and the Hindu leaders found a middle path. Ask: how many days, and how many seats?

- MG began a fast unto death against the Communal Award in Yeravda jail on 20 September 1932. Pressure led to the Poona Pact on 24 September 1932. MG broke the fast only when the British accepted amending the Award in line with the Pact. The fast lasted 6 days.
- Signatories: Ambedkar for the Lower Castes (LC); Madan Mohan Malviya for the Upper Castes (UC).

Board: correction, the fast lasted 6 days, not 21 Lecture 39 slide 19

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Correction in MG ideology: a 6-day fast is right; 21 days is wrong for the 1932 fast. The 21-day fast belongs to 1933 (see Section 18).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (fast length): the handout says MG undertook a 21-day fast unto death and was released in September 1932; the Prelims 2013 explanation slide repeats '21-day'. The teacher's board overrules both: the 1932 fast ran 20-24 September = 6 days. A separate 21-day fast began 8 May 1933 for self-purification and the Harijan campaign.

17.1 Terms

- 17.1 Award rejected: the Communal Award of August 1932, in so far as it gave separate electorates to the Depressed Classes.
- 17.2 Reservation raised: from 71 to 147 seats in the PLAs (PLCs), plus 18% reservation in the CLA.
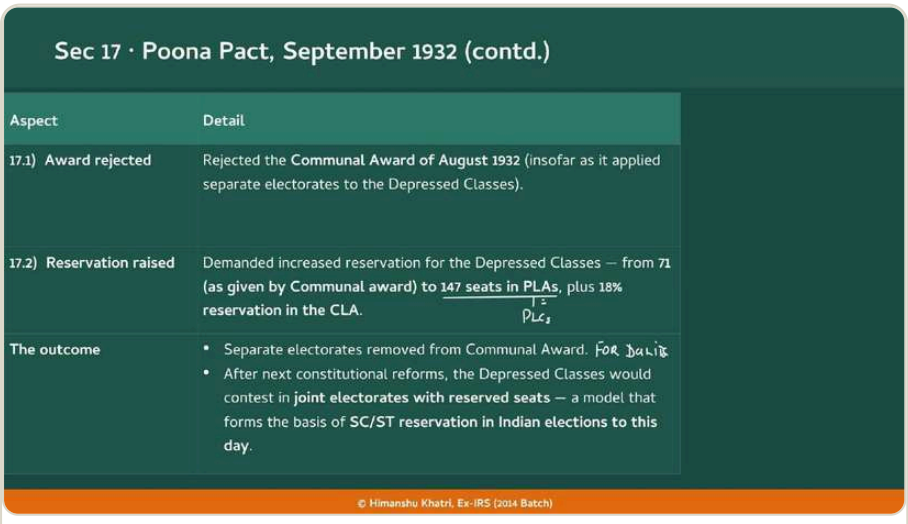
- Outcome: separate electorates removed (for Dalits) but reserved seats more than doubled. After the next reforms, the Depressed Classes would contest in joint electorates with reserved seats, the basis of SC/ST reservation in Indian elections to this day.

NUMBER CARD · POONA PACT

7 1 → 1 4 7 · 1 8 % · 6

Method rejected, reservation more than doubled.

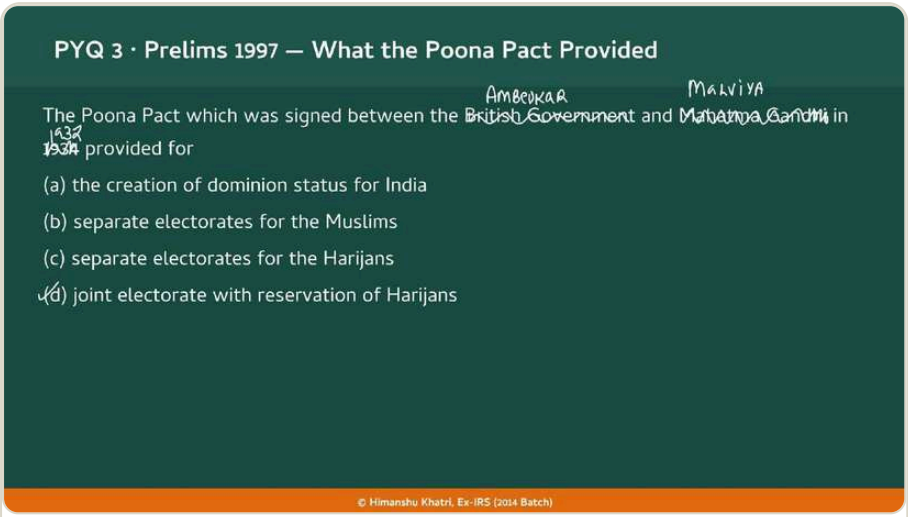
71 Depressed Classes seats in PLAs under the Communal Award
147 seats in PLAs under the Poona Pact
18% reservation in the CLA
6 days of the fast, 20-24 Sept 1932



Board: 147 seats in PLAs, PLCs, and 'for Dalits' Lecture 39 slide 20

KEY TAKEAWAY

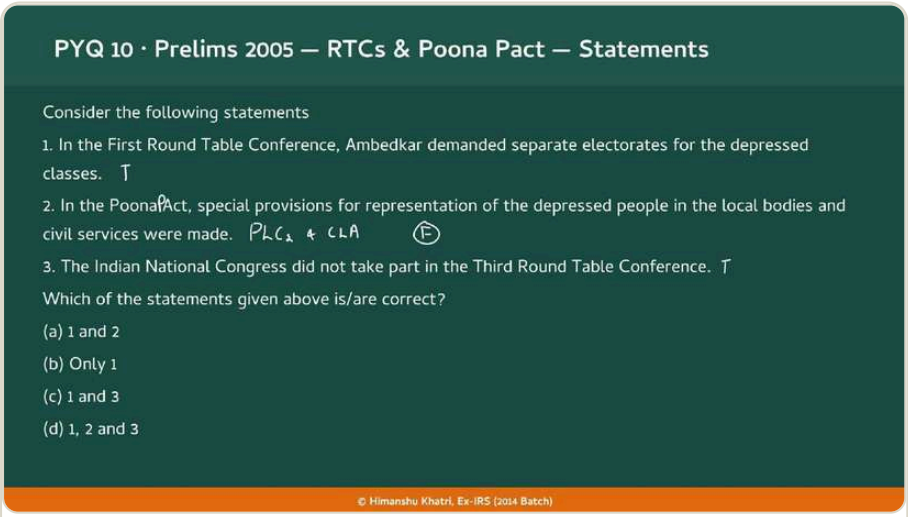
- Exam trap: the Pact rejected the Award's method (separate electorates) but increased the reservation. Students confuse 'rejection' of the Award with 'reduction' of reservation: the opposite is true.



PYQ 1997 board: Poona Pact corrected to Ambedkar, Malviya, 1932 Lecture 39 slide 39

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prelims 1997 on the board: the stem is corrected: the Pact was signed by Ambedkar and Malviya (not the British Government and MG) in 1932 (not 1934). Answer (d): joint electorate with reservation for Harijans.



PYQ 2005 board: Ambedkar at 1st RTC, Poona Pact terms, 3rd RTC Lecture 39 slide 64

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prelims 2005: statement 1 True (Ambedkar demanded separate electorates at the 1st RTC). Statement 2 False: it is the Poona Pact, and its terms concern PLCs and CLA seats, not local bodies or civil services. Statement 3 True (INC absent from the 3rd RTC). Answer (c) 1 and 3.

18 · CDM 2nd Phase, September 1932–1934

STORY LINK

Because the 2nd phase opened with INC banned and MG in jail, his energy turned from the street to society. Ask: what organisation did he build for the new campaign?

- 18.1 January 1932: INC banned; MG imprisoned in Yeravda (after the decision to resume CDM).
- 18.2 Fast and release: MG's 1932 fast ended with the Poona Pact in September 1932. On 8 May 1933 he began a 21-day fast for self-purification and to energise the anti-untouchability (Harijan) campaign; he was released at once on health grounds.
- Primary focus of the 2nd phase: the anti-untouchability campaign.
- 18.3 Penance: MG asked Hindus to do penance and appealed for complete eradication of untouchability.
- 18.4 Internal reform: he worked on reform among Harijans in education, health and hygiene and asked Harijans to remove untouchability within their own communities too.
- 18.5 Organisation:
  - i) Harijan Sevak Sangh (1932) / All India Anti-Untouchability League (1932).
  - ii) Harijan Sevak Fund (1932).
  - iii) Awareness: the Harijan Magazine (1933), a 20,000 km march across India, and two fasts.

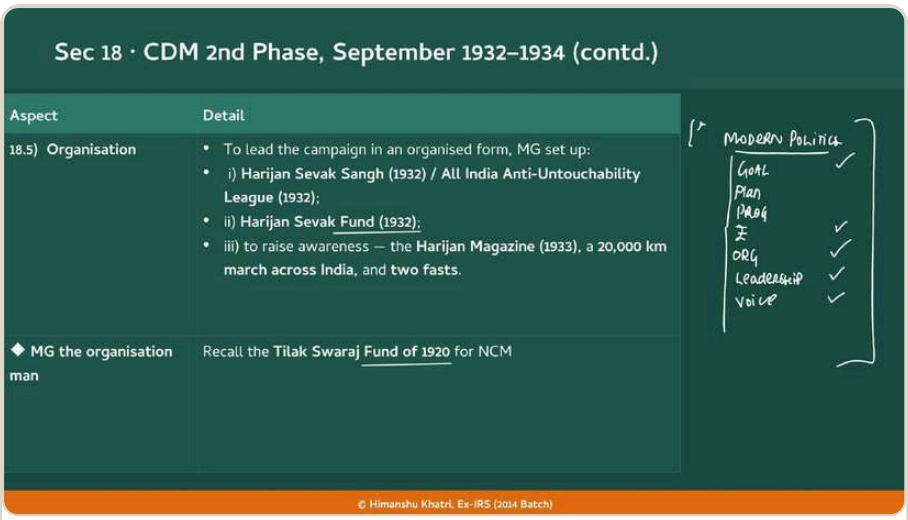
KEY TAKEAWAY

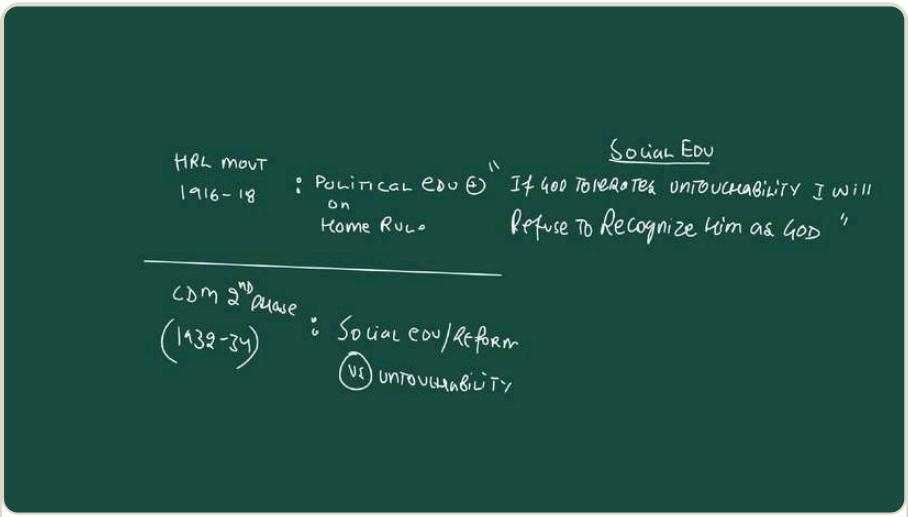
- MG the organisation man: recall the Tilak Swaraj Fund of 1920 for NCM. Every MG campaign had an organisation, a dedicated fund and a media arm.



Board: modern politics checklist beside the Harijan organisation Lecture 39 slide 23

TEACHER'S BOARD

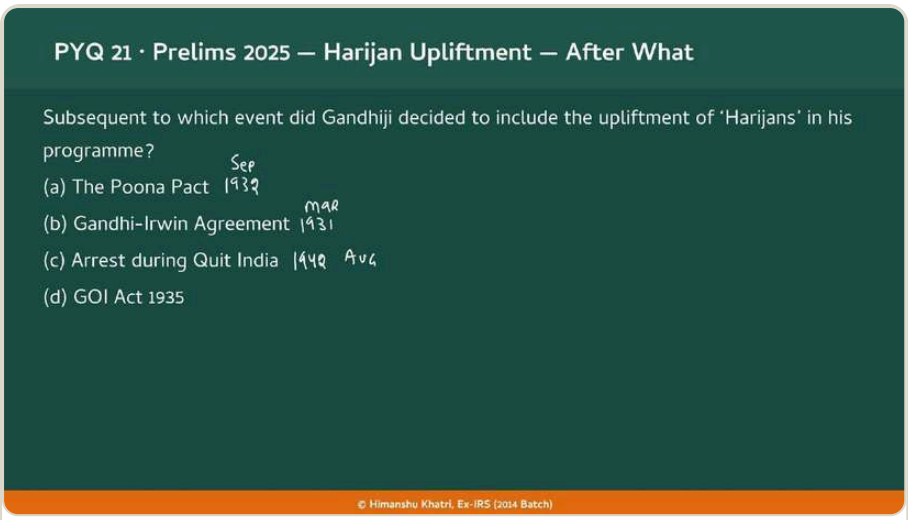
- Modern Politics checklist on the board: Goal, Plan, Programme, (a money symbol), Organisation, Leadership, Voice. MG's campaigns tick these boxes: Fund (Harijan Sevak Fund), Organisation (Sangh), Voice (Harijan magazine). Check your notebook for the fourth item's exact word.



Board: Home Rule's political education versus CDM's social education Lecture 39 slide 24

TEACHER'S BOARD

- HRL 1916-18 gave political education on Home Rule. CDM 2nd phase (1932-34) gave social education and reform against untouchability. MG's quote on the board: 'If God tolerates untouchability I will refuse to recognize Him as God.'



PYQ 2025 board: Harijan upliftment, dates of each option Lecture 39 slide 100

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prelims 2025 dates on the board: Poona Pact Sep 1932; Gandhi-Irwin Pact Mar 1931; arrest in Quit India Aug 1942. MG included Harijan upliftment after the Poona Pact: answer (a).

19 · Results of CDM's 2nd Phase

STORY LINK

Because the 1st phase had ended in a truce and the Harijan work spoke to society, not to politics, the response was thin. Ask: yet who gained in the end?

- 19.1 Low response, with demoralisation after the suspension of the 1st phase.
- 19.2 Caste response: neither Upper Castes nor Lower Castes were enthusiastic about the Harijan campaign. LC were becoming more radical and wanted political and economic rights; MG mainly addressed social dignity.
- 19.3 Repression did the rest. CDM was formally ended in 1934.
- 19.4 Yet INC benefitted: it did very well in the 1937 provincial elections under the GOI Act 1935. Political capital from years of mass mobilisation was cashed in at the ballot box.

19.1 Nellie Sengupta, third woman INC President (1933)

- Born Edith Ellen Gray in Cambridge, England; married to J.M. Sengupta. At the 1933 Calcutta Session, after the arrest of the designated President Madan Mohan Malaviya, she defied a government ban to chair it.
- She is the third woman President of INC (after Annie Besant, 1917 and Sarojini Naidu, 1925) and the second foreign-born woman to preside.

HANDOUT ALERT

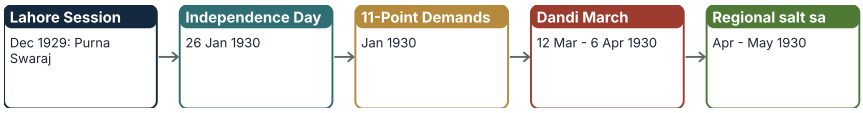
- Handout alert (CDM 2nd-phase PYQ): Prelims 1997 (match list of 2nd-phase events with leaders and dates). Dates to hold: Communal Award Aug 1932; Poona Pact 24 Sept 1932; 3rd RTC Nov-Dec 1932; Harijan Sevak Sangh 1932; Harijan magazine 1933; CDM ends 1934.

20 · CDM chronology at a glance (slides only)

STORY LINK

Because the story has many dated steps, the teacher cut it into four boards. Ask: can you rebuild each board from memory?

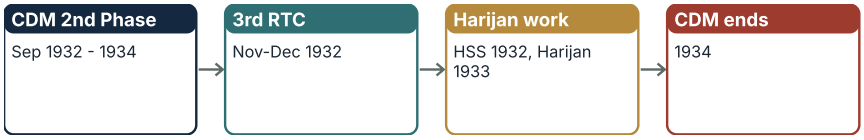
BOARD 1: LAHORE TO REGIONAL SALT SATYAGRAHAS



BOARD 2: ARREST TO PACT

BOARD 3: KARACHI TO POONA

BOARD 4: THE 2ND PHASE



TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board 2 links: the arrows tie Suspension and the Gandhi-Irwin Pact both ways: the violence led to the truce, and the truce formalised the suspension.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Order check: Board 2 lists MG's arrest (May 1930) before Qissa Khwani, but the Qissa Khwani massacre is dated 23 April 1930, earlier than the Dharasana raid. Use the dates, not the box order.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Federation never started: 50% of Princes had to sign the IoA (Section 6); threshold never met
- Dyarchy at the Centre, not in provinces: 4 Reserved subjects (Defence, External Affairs, Ecclesiastical, Tribal); Finance and Home were Transferred
- Provincial autonomy from 1937; Federal Court 1937; RBI (RBI Act 1934, operational 1 April 1935) is NOT a GOI 1935 provision
- FA 1/3 Prince nominees and indirect; CoS direct and permanent; 10% voters; women's derived vote and reserved seats
- 1937: INC majority in 6, ministries in 8 of 11; Punjab = Unionist Party (Sikandar Hayat Khan); Constituent Assembly idea: M.N. Roy 1934, Swaraj Party May 1934

MAINS HOOKS

- Why the British passed GOI 1935: pressure from below and legal consultations above (250-word FYQ on the board)
- How the Act was a trap: strong Centre, powerful Governor, Divide and Rule inside INC
- How GOI 1935 helped the Constituent Assembly (Mains PYQ): lists, Federal Court, Governor, responsible government

Federation and the Centre stayed on paper; only the provincial half ran from 1937.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The British did not give GOI 1935 out of generosity. Linlithgow36-43 called it the best way to maintain control, and it grew out of pressure from below (revolutionaries, Anti-Simon, Civil Disobedience, the Great Depression) and consultations above (Simon, three Round Tables). Its federal Centre needed 50% of the Princes to sign, so it never started and the 1919 machinery kept ruling the Centre. Only the provincial half worked from 1937: dyarchy ended and Congress took 8 of 11 provinces for 28 months, which gave it experience, energised the Princely States and tested the British plan to split INC.

1. A candid Viceroy. Linlithgow36-43 implemented the Act in 1937 and admitted it was the best way to maintain control over India. It runs to 321 sections. Nothing in it was a gift of self-government.
   → But why did Britain bother at all?

2. Pressure from below. Revolutionaries (HRA1924, HSRA1928, Chittagong Armory Raid 1930-33), the masses (Anti-Simon 1928, Civil Disobedience 1930-34) and the Great Depression of 1929 kept Britain nervous. The board calls reform a safety valve on a pressure cooker of Indians.
   → So Britain also needed a legal route.

3. Consultations above. The Simon Commission (1927, no Indian member) reported in June 1930: provincial autonomy, nothing at the Centre, more franchise, separate electorates, Burma out. Three Round Table Conferences followed (1930, 1931, 1932).
   → But Indian demands were rejected, so the Act was against self-government.

4. The Act of August 1935. The Act has two halves. The Centre half proposed a Federation of British India and Princely States with dyarchy at the Centre. The provincial half proposed autonomy with a still-powerful Governor.
   → So what stopped the Centre half?

5. The Princes say no. The Federation needed at least 50% of Princes to sign the Instrument of Accession (Section 6). They feared two bosses, losing financial autonomy, low representation and democracy. The threshold was never met.
   → Now the Centre stayed on the old Act.

6. The Centre stays on paper. The Act of 1919 kept governing the Centre. The Federal Court was set up in 1937, but the Federal Assembly, Council of States and dyarchy at the Centre never began. The Viceroy kept 80% of the Budget non-votable.
   → But the provinces were different.

7. Provinces go live in 1937. Dyarchy ended and all provincial subjects became transferred. A Premier and Council of Ministers became responsible to the Assembly. Orissa, Bihar and Sindh became provinces (1936) and Burma was separated (1937).
   → But the Governor was still powerful.

8. A strong Governor. Forty percent of the provincial Budget was non-votable. The Governor could summon the Assembly, veto bills, issue ordinances, run tribal areas, protect minorities and British interests, and take over the government indefinitely.
   → Now who benefits from this design?

9. The British plan. Hold the Centre, hand over provinces and keep INC busy governing. Provincial leaders would become autonomous power centres, so Divide and Rule would be applied to INC itself. INC rejected the Act and demanded a Constituent Assembly by Universal Adult Franchise.
   → So INC still decided to contest.

10. Congress ministries 1937-39. INC contested for the same reason as the Pro-Changers of 1923: occupy the space and do Constructive Work, now with executive power. It won a majority in 6 provinces and formed ministries in 8 of 11. Punjab went to the Unionists and Sindh to the Sind United Party.

→ So what did 28 months change?

11 The impact. Morale of cadre, peasants and workers rose, INC gained governance experience, and Praja Mandals or State People's Congresses spread in Princely States. The Chamber of Princes (1921) was the British answer from above; the ministries energised the answer from below.

In simple words

- Why the Act: the British wanted to keep control, not share it. Linlithgow36-43 said so openly.
- Two halves: the Centre half (Federation, dyarchy) never started; the provincial half ran from 1937.

- The Federation trap: it needed 50% of the Princes to sign, and they refused, so the old 1919 Centre continued.
- Provinces: dyarchy ended, ministers answered to the Assembly, but the Governor kept big powers and 40% of the Budget was non-votable.
- Voting: only about 10% could vote; women's vote came through the husband; communal seats grew to new groups through quotas within quotas.
- INC's answer: reject the Act, demand a Constituent Assembly, yet contest 1937 and rule 8 of 11 provinces for 28 months.
- Legacy: three lists, Federal Court, Governor's take-over and tribal areas show up later in the Constitution of 1950.

STORY LINK

Every constitutional reform had a cause, and GOI 1935 is the last big one before Independence. Ask: who pushed the British, and who did the Act really serve?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- FYQ (250 words): there were multiple factors behind constitutional reforms brought after the Revolt of 1857 until Independence. Elaborate.
- 1. INM: the strongest factor, through reports and petitions: Lucknow Pact 1916 and MLN Report 1928 (underlined by the teacher).
- 2. DnR (Divide and Rule): ICA 1909 and ICA 1861; ICA 1861 rewarded those loyal in 1857.
- 3. WH (World History): GOI 1919 came from moral pressure; GOI 1935 came from GD1929 -> INM (CDM 1930-34).
- 4. Legal contributors: for 1919 the Montford Report 1918; for 1935 the Simon 1927, Butler 1927 and Poona Pact 1932.
- 3 RTCs (1930, 1931, 1932) lead to the White Paper.
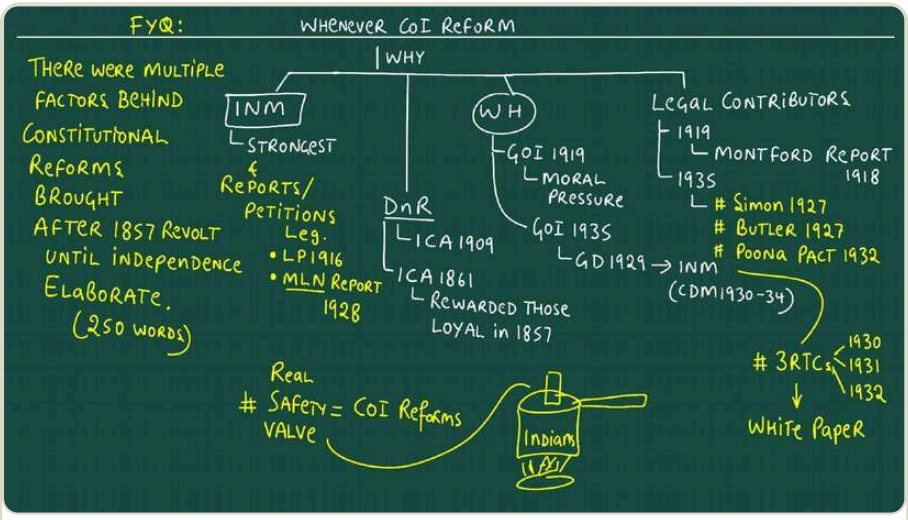
- Real safety valve = CoI reforms: the board draws Indians as a pressure cooker on a flame, and reform as the valve.



Board: four causes behind every constitutional reform Lecture 39 slide 107

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout lists Simon, RTCs and the Butler Committee but not the Poona Pact 1932 or the White Paper; both are the teacher's additions. Use the teacher's board for the FYQ.

CHAIN: LEGAL BASIS, 1927 TO 1937

Some Reforms Reach Governments Painfully

- R Simon Report June 1930
- R Round Tables 1930-32
- G GOI Act August 1935
- P Provinces 1937

Order kept: commission, report, conferences, Act, provincial start.

Half of the Act	Status
Federation on offer	Needed 50% of Princes to accede; unmet, so stillborn
Centre: never switched on	Old 1919 machinery simply kept running
Provinces: live from 1937	Autonomy delivered; elected ministries take charge

1 · Why Was the GOI Act 1935 Passed?

STORY LINK

Because Britain wanted to keep control while easing pressure, the Act was a manoeuvre, not a gift. Ask: what exactly was the pressure?

- 1.1 GOI Act 1935 did not come from any genuine British desire to give Indians self-government.
- Linlithgow36-43 (Viceroy 1936 to 1943, who implemented the Act in 1937) was candid: the Act was the best way to maintain control over India.
- That is the honest summary of a 321-section Act.
- 1.2 The circumstances were two kinds of pressure: pressure from below and pressure from legal consultations above.
- 1.3 Pressure from below came from every direction:
  - Revolutionaries: HRA1924, HSRA1928 and the Chittagong Armory Raid of 1930-33 kept the British nervous
  - Masses: Anti-Simon agitations 1928 and Civil Disobedience Movement 1930-34
  - Great Depression 1929: mass economic suffering and deeper anger against British rule
- Every section of society (youth, peasants, workers, capitalists) and even World History (GD1929) fed the pressure that produced GOI 1935.
- 1.4 Legal basis was built through the stages that follow (Section 2).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Pressure from below = CDM and consultations above = RTC (board under 1.2).
- The board joins GOI 1919 with GOI 1935 as two reforms born from pressure on Britain.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (Prelims 2018): GOI Act 1935 proposed Provincial Autonomy and a Federal structure. The PYQ listed with this alert in the companion is on residuary powers (answer: Governor General); see the PYQ table.

2 · Legal Basis

STORY LINK

Because Britain needed a legal route that looked consultative, it sent a commission and then called conferences. Ask: did any of them listen to Indians?

2.1 Simon Commission Report (June 1930)

- The seven-member Simon Commission had no Indian member. It recommended:
  - i) Provincial Autonomy: abolish dyarchy (GOI 1919) and give full responsible government in provinces, with some emergency powers kept by the Governor
  - ii) No change at the Centre: the Centre stayed under British despotism
  - iii) Expansion of franchise: wider electorate, but far short of Universal Adult Franchise
  - iv) Retention of separate electorates: the communal electorate system continues
  - v) NWFP: keep it a Chief Commissioner's Province with a limited representative legislature and no responsible government
  - vi) Separation of Burma from India

TEACHER'S BOARD

- All seven Commission members were British MPs.
- NWFP: the Round Table process recommended upgrading it to a Governor's Province; implemented in April 1932 with the extension of dyarchy under GOI 1919. The board reads this as a full province with dyarchy, so the governing Act is GOI 1919.
- Sind: the Simon Commission wanted detailed inquiry first. The board says this is the same as the MLN Report 1928.
- Boundaries Commission: the board compares it with the 1953 State Re-organisation Commission and notes 1912: Bihar & Orissa.
- Burma: the board adds the Third Anglo-Burmese War (Dufferin 84-88) beside the two wars in the handout.

Board: NWFP became a full province with dyarchy in 1932 Lecture 39 slide 119

- NWFP detail: the RTC process upgraded it to a Governor's Province, implemented April 1932, together with the extension of dyarchy under the GOI Act 1919.
- Sind: the Commission expressed sympathy with separation from Bombay but deferred a final decision pending inquiry into financial consequences. After the First RTC the Sind Financial Enquiry Committee (the Miles Irving Committee, 1931) estimated an initial annual deficit of about Rs 1.10 crore.
- Broader reorganisation: a neutral Boundaries Commission to examine reorganisation of provinces, with Sind and Orissa as prominent cases.
- Burma: the 1st Burma War (1824-26) and 2nd Burma War (1852-53) led to annexation; it was finally separated from India in 1937.

2.2 The Three Round Table Conferences (RTCs)

RTC	What happened
1st RTC (1930)	Princely States and non-INC parties took part; Princes demanded a federation (a union of British India and Princely States); INC boycotted
2nd RTC (1931)	INC participated; Indian demands for a federation with responsible government at the Centre and Purna Swaraj were rejected; the Nehru

RTC	What happened
	Report of August 1928 (the wish of the All Party Conference) stayed a wish
3rd RTC (1932)	INC boycotted; participation so low it was practically irrelevant

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1st RTC: the board writes the Princes' demand as made under the influence of some powerful pro-united India Princes.
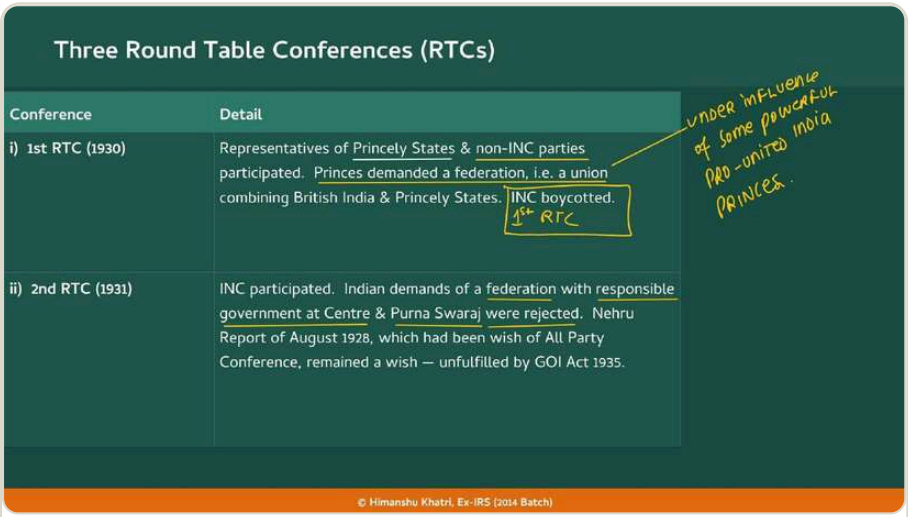
- For Prelims 2009 the board adds 1932 and White Paper contributes: the 3rd RTC fed the White Paper that fed the Act.



Board: Princes demand federation at the 1st RTC; INC boycotts Lecture 39 slide 123

2.3 Thus GOI Act 1935 Was Against the Principle of Self-Government

- i) No Indian in the 7-member Simon Commission (1927).
- ii) INC boycotted the 1st and 3rd RTCs; the 2nd RTC was a failure.
- iii) The Nehru Report of August 1928, merely a wish of the All Party Conference, stayed unfulfilled.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout tags a GOI 1935 Legal-Basis PYQ cluster: Prelims 2000 (Simon features to GOI 1935 lineage), Prelims 2004 (Joint Parliamentary Committee head = Linlithgow36-43), Prelims 2005 (GOI 1935 as basis of the 1950 Constitution), Prelims 2009 (RTC outcomes to Communal Award to GOI 1935).
- The full PYQ list for the chapter is in the PYQ table; the tags above do not match the companion questions one-to-one.

3 · Territorial and Administrative Reorganisation

STORY LINK

Because the Act gave provinces real power, their borders had to be redrawn first. Ask: which new provinces appear and when?

- 3.1 Full province status to Orissa (1936) and Bihar (1936), separating them from the combined Bihar & Orissa province created in 1912.
- Sindh separated from Bombay and made a full province (1936).
- 3.2 NWFP: its full-province status (created 1932, raised from Chief Commissioner's Province to Governor's Province) was reaffirmed.
    - In 1932 it got only a limited legislative council of about 40 members with dyarchy-type arrangements; the Governor kept strong reserve and veto powers and the executive was not responsible to the council
    - Full responsible government came only with GOI 1935 from 1937: dyarchy abolished, a proper Legislative Assembly, and a Premier with a Council of Ministers responsible to the PLA
- 3.3 Burma was separated from India in 1937. United Provinces as a name was formalised in 1937.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Orissa, Bihar, Sindh and Burma all change under GOI 1935.
- NWFP: a full province, but now no dyarchy (GOI 1935).
- The board writes undivided Awadh 1801 and 1856 and then 1877, 1902, 1937 beside the United Provinces name: check your notebook for what each year marks.

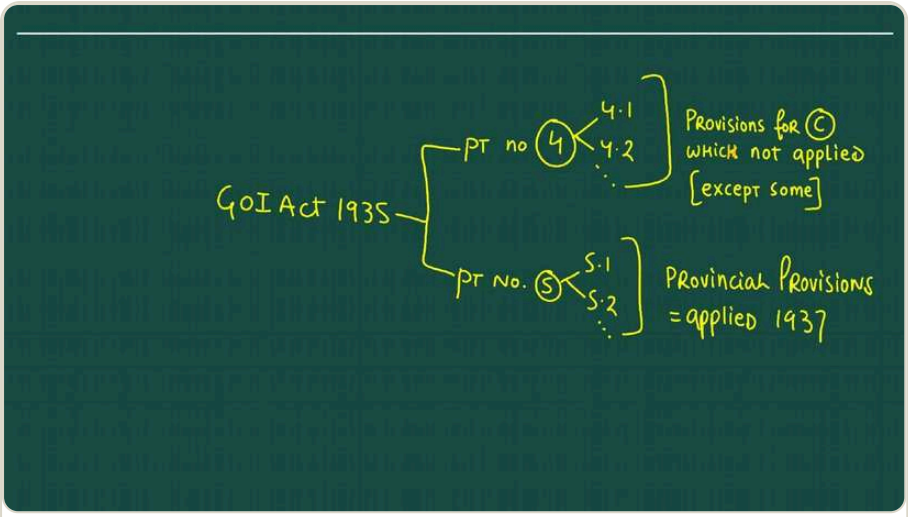
4 · Features at the Centre: The Part That Never Happened

STORY LINK

Because the Princes would not sign, the Centre half of the Act never started. Ask: what did the Act plan, and why did the Princes say no?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The board splits the Act into Sec 4: provisions at the Centre (not applied, except some) and Sec 5: provisions at Provinces (applied 1937). Provinces here do not include Princely States (PS).



Board: Centre provisions not applied; provincial provisions applied in 1937
Lecture 39 slide 131

- Everything at the Centre under GOI 1935 stayed on paper. The central federal provisions never became operational and the GOI Act 1919 continued to govern the Centre. Hold on to this.

4.1 A Federation of British India and the Princely States

- India was to become a Union of British India and Princely States with federal relations between the two (this mirrored the Nehru Report of August 1928).
- This required at least 50% of Princes to sign the Instrument of Accession (IoA) as defined in Section 6 of GOI 1935. That threshold was never met.
- The Butler Committee of 1927 had promised no change in the status of Princely States without the Princes' consent, and the Princes used the promise as cover to stay out.
- After signing the IoA a Princely State would transfer only Defence, Foreign Affairs and Communications to the Union. This is structurally like Jammu & Kashmir signing only an IoA in 1947 and not a full merger; Art. 370 is that legacy.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- CoI creates a State for India. GOI 1935 proposes a Central legislature with seats for 565 Princely States as well.
- Pre-condition for the Act to come into effect = creation of a United India. Only then could the Centre make laws for the whole of India, drawing members from British India and the 565 PS. This United India was never created.
- All sections that mention the whole of India or the 565 PS = null and void; sections about provinces = valid.
- Rules and People: Rules (T) of 1935 cover the whole of India (British India plus 565 PS). From 1861 to 1919 the rules were for British India only.
- Condition for the whole of India: at least 50% of Princes must agree to join by signing the IoA (Sec 6). The reason, on the board: the promise of the Butler report. An example of DnR: Princes happy, British India sad.
- Never done: British India: Centre stays with GOI 1919 and Provinces move to GOI 1935.
- On signing the IoA = Art. 370-like status. Imagine 565 Art. 370s. Like the MLN Report of Aug 1928: only D, C, FA with the Centre; the rest, including domestic affairs, with the Prince.
- IoA decides the distribution of subjects between the Centre and a Princely State (board, Democracy in GOI 1935).

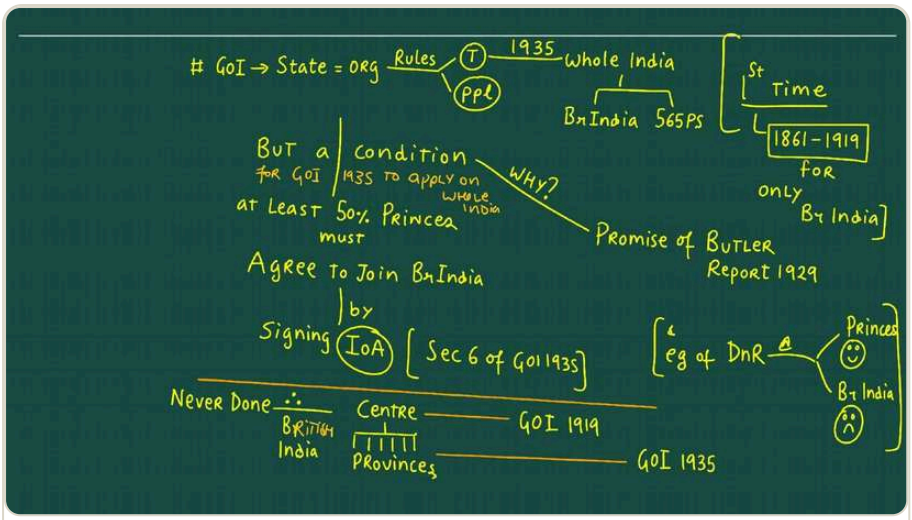
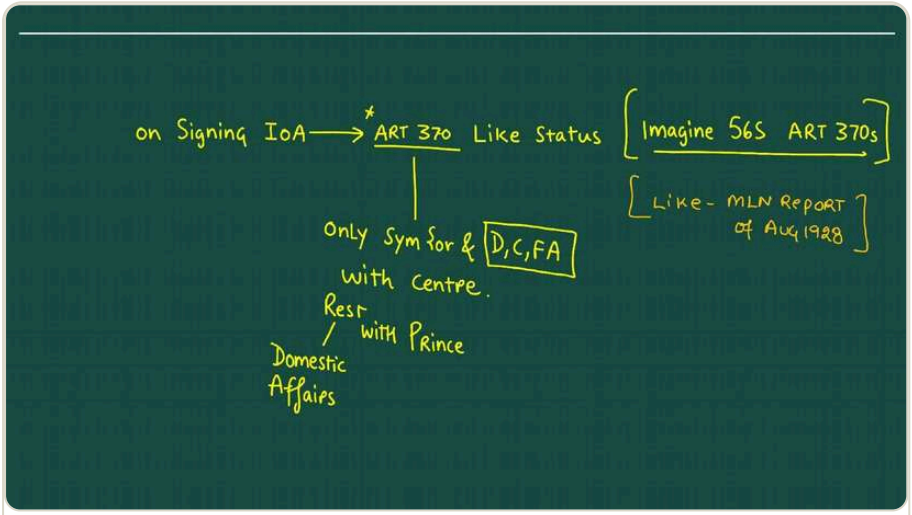
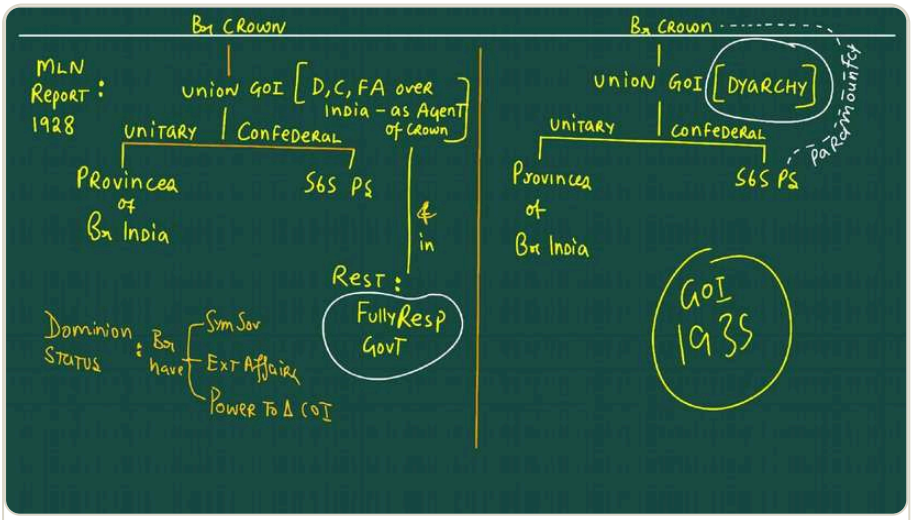
Board: a United India was the pre-condition, never created Lecture 39 slide 112



Board: 50% of Princes must sign the IoA, Section 6 Lecture 39 slide 113



Board: IoA gives Art. 370-like status; D, C, FA only Lecture 39 slide 114



Board: MLN Report 1928 structure versus GOI 1935 with paramountcy Lecture 39 slide 133

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout says the Butler Committee of 1927; the board writes Butler Report 1929 for the same promise. Use the handout for the Committee (1927); the board's 1929 is the report date, so check your notebook.
- Reserved list on the board: the teacher writes D, C, FA / Tribal Affairs / Church beside the Reserved subjects. D, C, FA is the IoA trio (Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs). The typed four Reserved subjects are Defence, External Affairs, Ecclesiastical, Tribal; use the typed four.

- Why the Princes refused to sign:
  - i) Paramountcy was not abolished by GOI 1935; Princes faced two bosses, the Union Government and the British Crown, and wanted neither
  - ii) Financial autonomy: once inside the Union, the GOI could compel Princes to contribute to the Defence Budget (for example, force them to fund the army)
  - iii) Low representation: smaller Princely States felt they would get little say in the proposed legislatures
  - iv) Fear of democracy: once the States joined the Union, INC could launch movements inside those States too; as one country the rules of political activity would change entirely

MNEMONIC · WHY PRINCES REFUSED (NO ORDER)

P A C T

The IoA was a pact the Princes refused to sign.

P Paramountcy stayed: two bosses
A Autonomy in money lost to Defence Budget
C Congress movements feared inside States
T Tiny States, tiny representation

Four reasons, any order; PACT is the Instrument of Accession itself.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Financial autonomy for a Prince: with only paramountcy and no IoA, the subsidy (the defence contribution) follows that State's own arrangement. Under GOI Act 1935, defence follows India's needs, and nobody knows how much each State would be made to share.
- Fear of democracy: the board notes INC can support the AI-SPC (1927), which works better if India is one.

Board: financial autonomy of a Prince with and without the IoA Lecture 39 slide 137

4.2 A Bicameral Legislature at the Centre

- The proposed Central legislature: Federal Assembly (FA) and Council of States (CoS). Under GOI 1919 the equivalents (CLA and CoS) were only for British India, not the Princely States.
- i) One-third of FA members were Nominees of the Princes, not elected. This practically ended the chance of an INC majority in the more powerful lower house.
- ii) Elections to the CoS were direct (for better representation of regions and communities); elections to the FA were indirect, specifically to limit INC strength in the more powerful house.
- Logic: regional parties do better than all-India parties when elections are indirect, so INC would win fewer FA seats.
- iii) CoS: permanent, one-third retiring every third year (COI1950: one-third every 2 years). FA: 5-year life (CLA under GOI 1919: 3 years).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Democracy in GOI 1935 (synonym: responsible government): Centre = partial responsible government (dyarchy), only for British India; Provinces of British India = 100% fully responsible government; 565 PS = no responsible government.
- FA pie: the Princely States held one-third of FA seats, set against their much smaller population share (figures on the board: check your notebook). In a democracy seats are distributed as per population.
- Voter behaviour: in state (MLA) elections regional parties do better (voters choose a CM); in Lok Sabha elections all-India parties do better (voters choose a PM).
- Today: Lok Sabha is directly elected and more powerful; Rajya Sabha is chosen by MLAs. 1935 was the reverse: FA indirect and CoS direct.
- 1967: elections at the Centre and the provinces together (one nation, one election); INC lost heavily for the first time and the era of regional parties began.

4.3 Right to Vote: Expanded but Restricted

- Franchise extended, but income and education criteria meant only 10% of the population qualified. Intent: deny the vote to INC's base of poor peasants and workers.
- Women's franchise was derived, not independent:
  - A woman could vote on her husband's income or property, with a lower financial threshold than the one for men
  - A widow could vote on property or income left by the dead husband
  - Qualifications were defined in the Sixth Schedule and varied by province; in many provinces literacy alone was enough for a woman, while men without property often needed middle school or matriculation

TEACHER'S BOARD

- R2V (right to vote) ladder: LP1916: franchise as broad as possible. GOI 1919: R2V linked with income; first time a woman's vote is linked to her income.
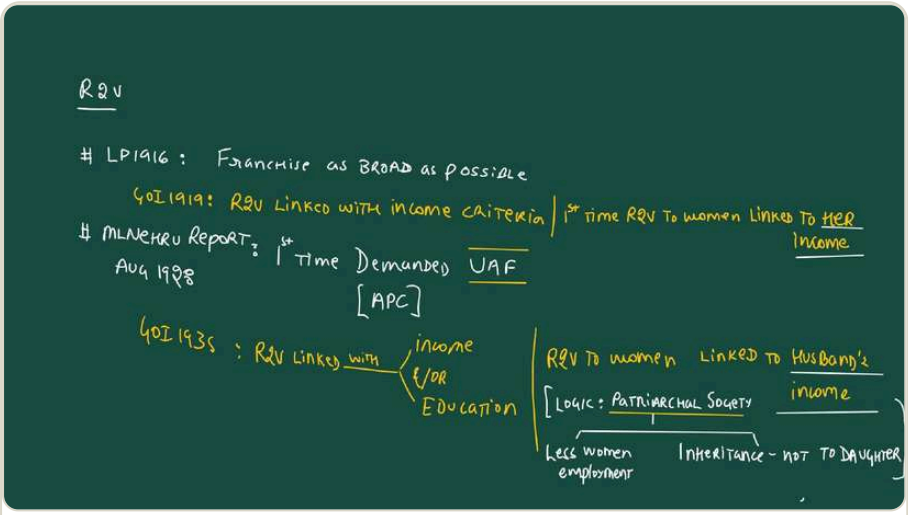
- MLN Report Aug 1928: first time UAF (Universal Adult Franchise) demanded, by the All Party Conference.
- GOI 1935: R2V linked with income and/or education; women's vote linked to the husband's income. Logic: patriarchal society: less women's employment and inheritance not going to daughters.



Board: right to vote from Lucknow Pact to GOI 1935 Lecture 40 slide 8

4.4 Representation: Continuation and Expansion of Communal Politics

- i) Separate electorates for all minorities continued as under GOI 1919 (and as per the Communal Award, August 1932).
- ii) Scheduled Castes got reservation in elected seats in the FA, CoS and PLAs. Under GOI 1919 reservation for depressed classes was only in nominated seats, so this was a step forward.
- iii) Reservation for women and labour/workers was also provided.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- First time: the phrase Scheduled Castes (1935) replaces Depressed Classes (1919) (Dalits). PLC was technically renamed PLA.
- Women and labour: first time. Women's seats are a quota within quota; labour seats are separately reserved.
- Elected majority since 1919 at the Centre and provinces.
- Poona Pact, September 1932 (starred): about 147 seats in PLC and 18% in CLA. The board adds that the share of elected seats now far exceeds the share of nominated seats, so check your notebook for the exact figures.

4.5 First Federal Distribution of Subjects

- For the first time a proper federal distribution of subjects into three lists: Federal, Concurrent, Provincial (ancestor of the 7th Schedule of COI1950).
- Under GOI 1919 the Centre outsourced some subjects to provinces but constitutional ownership stayed with the Centre. Under GOI 1935 provinces received constitutional ownership of their subjects, so 1935 marks the peak of federalism in British India; the journey began in 1861 and peaked in 1935.
- For Princely States that signed the IoA only three subjects (Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs) went to the Centre, structurally like Art. 370. The Motilal Nehru Report of August 1928 had a similar federal distribution.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The three lists cover British India, not 565 PS.
- How did federalism begin in 1861? 1833: legislative powers of provinces taken away. 1861: legislative powers restored to provinces.
- Board question: what decided the distribution of subjects between Centre and Provinces? The 3 lists. Between Centre and 565 PS? The IoA.

Board: 100 subjects, Reserved and Transferred at the Centre Lecture 40 slide 15

4.6 Budget and Financial Controls at the Centre

- 80% of the Budget at the Centre was still non-votable.
- The Viceroy kept residual powers, veto, ordinance power, power to restore cuts in grants, and power to certify rejected bills.
- The Viceroy under GOI 1935 was not a powerless ceremonial President.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Prelims alert: in COI1950 residuary power is with Parliament (P), while under GOI 1935 it stayed with the Viceroy.
- Shorthand: Viceroy = GG (Governor General).

4.7 Dyarchy at the Centre

- Ironically, dyarchy applied in provinces under GOI 1919 was now proposed at the Centre. Federal subjects had two legal categories: Reserved and Transferred.
- Reserved subjects (strictly 4): Defence, External Affairs, Ecclesiastical Affairs (Church), Tribal Areas. Under the absolute legislative and executive control of the Viceroy, with up to 3 Counsellors not responsible to the legislature. Link: 5th Schedule of COI1950 for tribal areas.
- Transferred subjects: all other Federal List subjects, including Finance and Home, run by the Viceroy on the aid and advice of a Council of Ministers responsible to the FA and CoS. This made only a partially responsible government at the Centre.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board tree: of 100 subjects, the Centre side splits into Reserved and Transferred (check your notebook for the 60/40 labels). Reserved: legislature and executive are the Viceroy and his officers, not responsible to the FA. Transferred: laws by FA and CoS; executive by ministers responsible to the FA.
- Reserved laws: laws will be made by FA and CoS, but high powers with the Viceroy. Why a legislature for Reserved subjects? It lessens the executive's workload: the Viceroy says yes if he likes the law and vetoes it if not.
- Provinces: the Transferred 40 are under the PLA, with a Premier heading a Council of Ministers responsible to the PLA (first time a CM): fully responsible government.
- Under GOI 1919 at provinces: ministers of Reserved subjects were not accountable to the PLC.
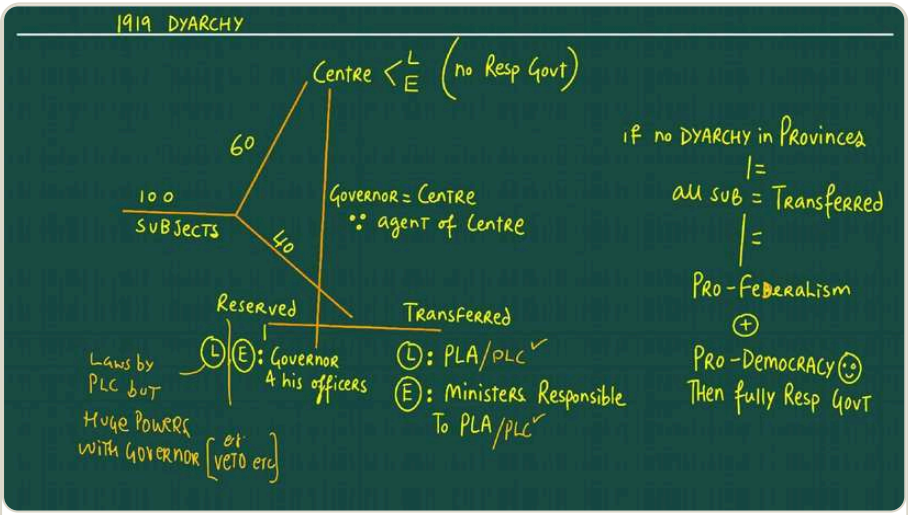
- COI1950 link: through the Governor, the Centre controls tribal affairs in 5th Schedule areas.
- Prelims alert, corrected on the board: Finance was a Transferred subject that the Viceroy could control through Special Responsibilities (the handout word is shadow; the board writes control).



Board: 1919 dyarchy in provinces, for comparison with 1935 Lecture 39 slide 115

HANDOUT ALERT

- EXAM TRAP, Home and Finance: Finance and Home were legally Transferred, not Reserved.
- Section 12 gave the Viceroy overriding Special Responsibilities: (i) protect the financial stability and credit of the Federal Government (override the Finance Minister); (ii) prevent any grave menace to the peace or tranquillity of India (override the Home Minister).
- Reserved subjects are strictly four. A statement that Finance was Reserved under GOI 1935 is incorrect.

4.8 Fiscal Autonomy to GOI from the Secretary of State

- Financial control over British India moved from the Secretary of State for India (SoS) in London to the Viceroy in India.
- Since GOI 1858 the SoS was the top authority on Indian finances; that is why Morley made his famous Budget speech in 1906.
- Nehru called this the only major change in the whole Act.

4.9 Federal Court

- The Act provided for a Federal Court, the first court with jurisdiction over disputes between provinces and between provinces and the Centre. It was set up in 1937, ancestor of the Supreme Court under COI1950.

4.10 Reserve Bank of India

- Not a provision of GOI 1935. The RBI was established under the RBI Act 1934 and became operational on 1 April 1935, timed with the wider constitutional and financial restructuring of the mid-1930s.
- It was set up as the central banking authority to manage currency and credit, a prerequisite for the fiscal federalism GOI 1935 envisaged.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert, Centre and Federation PYQs: Prelims 1996 (Princes' accession needed for Federation, never achieved); Prelims 1996 (Federal Court 1937 predecessor of Supreme Court); Prelims 2001 (RBI 1935, not a GOI 1935 provision); Prelims 2019 (federal structure, dyarchy at Centre, provincial autonomy); Prelims 2024 (provisions verbatim).

5 · Features at the Provinces: The Part That Did Work (from 1937)

STORY LINK

Because the Centre stalled, the real change fell on the provinces. Ask: how democratic was provincial autonomy, really?

- 5.1 Provincial Autonomy: the provincial provisions came into force in 1937. The federal distribution of subjects and the end of dyarchy made all provincial subjects transferred, under PLAs and popular ministers.
- The Governor was expected to act on the aid and advice of the Council of Ministers. The Governor is the Centre's agent, so 1919 dyarchy was anti-democratic and also anti-federal. Federalism began in 1861 and peaked in 1935.
- 5.2 Fully Responsible Government: dyarchy ended; a Council of Ministers headed by a Premier (Chief Minister) became responsible to the PLA, genuine responsible government at the provincial level for the first time.
    - Direct elections and separate electorates continued as under GOI 1919
    - Some provinces got an Upper House (a representation mechanism for one administrative level below the legislature)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- All subjects transferred = fully responsible government.
- The teacher marks the Premier and Council of Ministers arrangement as the system today's States still follow (check your notebook).

5.3 The Governor Was Still Too Powerful

- 40% of the provincial Budget was non-votable, and the Governor kept powers that could override the elected government at any moment.
- An Indian MLA would be sad about the 40% non-votable Budget, an Indian minister perhaps less so; from a democratic standpoint this was anti-democratic, not merely pro-British.
    - i) Discretionary power to summon the PLA
    - ii) Veto over bills
    - iii) Ordinance power
    - iv) Administration of tribal areas (link: 5th Schedule of COI1950)
    - v) Special powers to protect minority rights, British business interests and privileges of civil servants
    - vi) Power to take over the government and run it indefinitely (link: Art. 356 of COI1950)

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 40% of the Budget non-votable at provinces in GOI 1935: the British are neither happy nor sad. Finance is a Transferred subject, so the Indian Finance Minister is happy and Indian MLAs are sad: anti-democratic but not pro-British.
- Special powers (v): the board tags them DnR (Divide and Rule).
- Tribal affairs: at the Centre they are in the Reserved List; in the province they are with the Governor. So the British controlled tribal areas, with minerals and forest wealth at stake.

6 · The Evolution of Voting Rights and Communal Representation (1909-1935)

STORY LINK

Because Britain wanted to add new groups without upsetting fixed communal ratios, it built compartments inside compartments. Ask: what is the difference between a separate electorate and a reserved seat?

6.1 The Core Definitions

Concept	Meaning
Why it confuses	One of the most misunderstood areas of modern Indian constitutional history: textbooks blur reserved seats and separate electorates
Separate Electorate	The voter pool is strictly segregated by identity: only voters of a community vote for that community's candidates (only Muslims voting for a Muslim candidate)
Reserved Seat	A seat is guaranteed for a group, but who votes for it can vary: the candidate pool is restricted, the voter pool might not be

6.2 Phase 1: The 1909 Act (Birth of Separate Electorates and the Double Vote)

- Policy: the Indian Councils Act of 1909 formally introduced Separate Electorates for Muslims.
- Reality, the Double Vote: rolls were not mutually exclusive. Qualified Muslims voted in the new separate Muslim constituencies and also in the standard General constituencies.

6.3 Phase 2: The 1919 Act (Watertight Compartments)

- Policy: GOI 1919 adopted the Hindu-Muslim compromise of the 1916 Lucknow Pact. Muslims surrendered the Double Vote in exchange for a guaranteed quota of seats and acceptance of separate electorates.
- Reality: legally watertight rolls: a special minority roll (like the Muslim roll) or the General roll (everyone else, predominantly Hindus).
- Rule of exclusion: cross-voting was banned. A Muslim voter had no right to vote for a General seat, and a General voter had none for a Muslim seat.

6.4 Phase 3: The 1935 Act (Expansion and Internal Carve-Outs)

- The Act took the watertight compartments of 1919 and expanded them to new groups using combinations of reservation and separate electorates.
- i) Women (communal segregation through internal carve-outs): reserved seats for women were given without altering any religious community's share.
    - Step 1, the quota: the British first fixed the absolute number of seats per community to keep the communal balance (for example, Muslims get exactly 30% of seats in a province)
    - Step 2, the carve-out: inside that quota, they reserved some seats for women. If the Muslim quota was 30 seats, 2 could be reserved for Muslim women, leaving 28 standard Muslim seats and 2 Muslim Women's seats. The same rule applied to the General (Hindu) quota
    - Result: the community's total representatives stayed untouched; the only losers were the men of those communities, who had slightly fewer seats to contest
    - Voting clarification: these seats were not a gender-exclusive electorate. Men and women both voted, but the watertight rule applied: only Muslim men and women vote for the Muslim Women's seat, and only General men and women for the General Women's seat

- ii) Labour (special constituencies): true separate electorates; seats allocated to specific registered Trade Unions or factory groups; only qualified workers in those groups vote.
- iii) Differential franchise: to raise the number of women voters without universal adult suffrage, the bar was lowered for women. In many provinces literacy alone qualified a woman, while propertyless men typically needed middle school or matriculation.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- ICA 1909: separate electorates to Muslims.
- GOI 1919: separate electorates to Muslims, Sikhs, Christians, Anglo-Indians, Europeans in India.
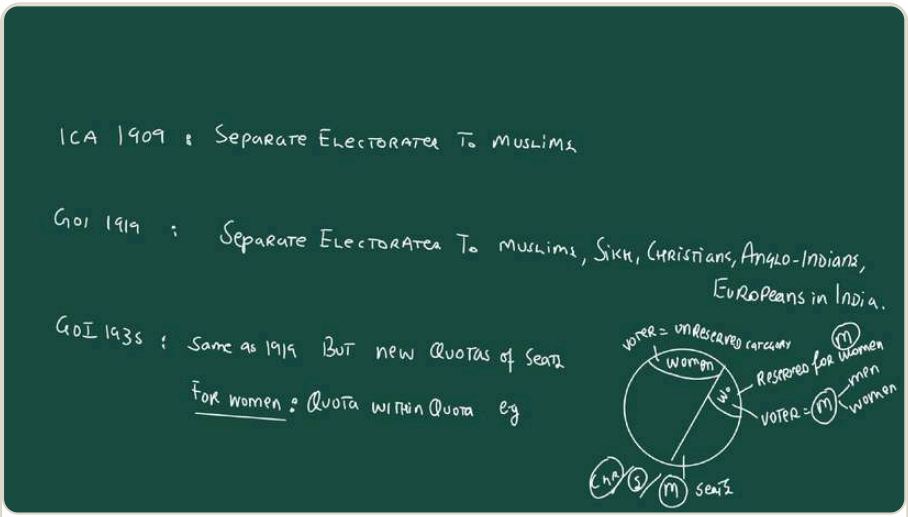
- GOI 1935: same as 1919 but new quotas of seats. For women: quota within quota. The board's example: a circle of Muslim (M), Sikh (S) and Christian (Chr) seats; the General half has its own women's seats voted by the unreserved category, while the seat reserved for Muslim women sits inside the Muslim quota and its voters are Muslim men and women.



Board: separate electorates 1909, 1919, 1935 and quota within quota
Lecture 40 slide 10

MNEMONIC · ELECTORATES IN ORDER

Double Walls Cage

- D 1909 Double vote: Muslims in two rolls
- W 1919 Watertight rolls, no cross-voting
- C 1935 Carve-outs: women inside each quota

Order kept: 1909, 1919, 1935.

6.5 Summary Takeaway

- From 1909 to 1935 the system moved from overlapping voting rights to a rigidly divided society where religion or class decided which box a citizen was locked into.
- General did not mean open to everyone; it meant those left over after all separate electorates were carved out.
- This was the British way to grant special representation to new groups without upsetting the fiercely negotiated communal ratios between Hindus, Muslims and Sikhs.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert, voting-rights PYQs: Prelims 2002 (Communal Award and separate electorates for Depressed Classes); Prelims 2005 (1937 elections, Congress majorities in 8 of 11); Prelims 2021 (electorate expanded from ~3% to ~14%).
- Conflicts, use the Summary card and board: for Prelims 2002 the slide reads SCs got elected reserved seats with Joint Electorates, up from nominated; for Prelims 2005 the Congress Ministries section says majority in 6, ministries in 8 of 11; for Prelims 2021 the slide says only ~10% qualified, far short of UAF.

7 · Result: What GOI 1935 Actually Achieved for the British

STORY LINK

Because the Centre stayed British and provinces went Indian, the Act aimed at INC itself. Ask: how did INC and the League react?

- 7.1 British design: strong control at the Centre while giving provinces to elected Indian governments, keeping INC busy governing provinces.
- 7.2 Provincial governance by regional leaders would create autonomous power centres within INC and weaken central INC leadership: Divide and Rule applied to the INC organisation itself, not to communities.
- 7.3 INC rejected the Act entirely and demanded a Constituent Assembly elected by Universal Adult Franchise. From 1927 INC had demanded the right to draft its own constitution; the Delhi Manifesto of 1929 wanted the RTCs to work as a Constituent Assembly; UAF was a consistent INC demand from 1928.
- Note: the idea of a Constituent Assembly was first mooted in 1934 by M.N. Roy (founder of CPI (1920) in Tashkent, USSR); then in May 1934 the Swaraj Party (1923; Swarajists or Pro-Changers) also passed a resolution demanding one.
- 7.4 ML1906 feared a Hindu majority in the Federal Assembly or at the Centre, since there were very few Muslim-majority provinces.
- 7.5 INC opposed representation of Princely States by nominees of the Princes and demanded elections in the Princely States.
- 7.6 Some provinces received an Upper House.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- INC senior vs junior leaders: seniors are sad as power to Indians at the Centre is absent; junior leaders become powerful as ministers and MLAs with fully responsible government at provinces.
- Whenever personality weakens at the Centre, power shifts vertically down or by horizontal replacement; add factionalism, shown as R vs N and N vs N (check your notebook for the names).
- Constituent Assembly: the Swaraj Party was a party within INC.
- ML1906 was not in favour of GOI 1935 and wanted 1/3 reservation at the Centre.
- Seats in the CoS and FA are allocated to provinces; fewer Muslim-majority provinces means fewer ML MPs. ML1906 demand = 1/3rd reservation at the Centre: Delhi Proposal Dec 1927, 3 Calcutta Amendments Dec 1928, 14 point demands Mar 1929.
- 7.5: INC wanted elections in the 565 PS.

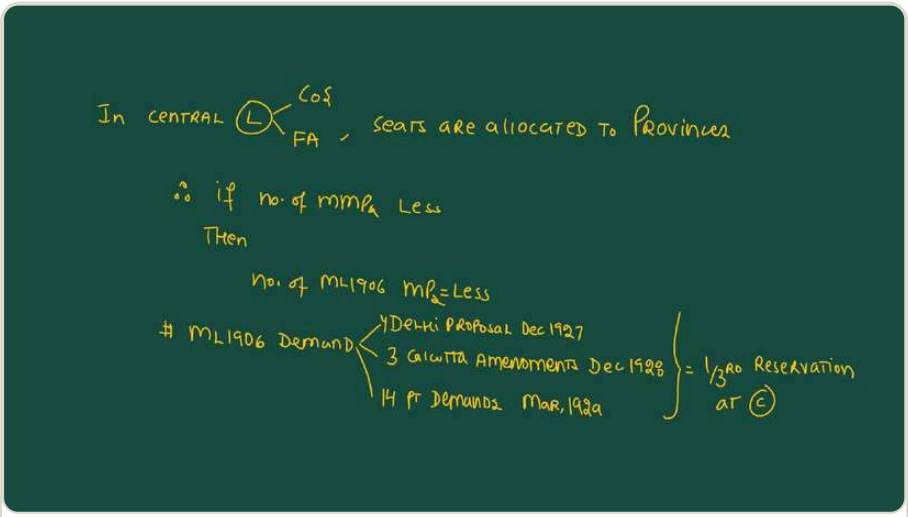
Board: INC seniors, junior leaders, power shift and factionalism Lecture 40 slide 55



Board: ML1906 demands for 1/3 reservation at the Centre Lecture 40 slide 58

HANDOUT ALERT

- Constituent Assembly PYQ (Prelims 1996): the answer is Swaraj Party 1934. M.N. Roy mooted it first but as an individual, and no individual is among the options.
- Prelims 2019 (Sapru, Neogy, Joshi): the board circles 1918 and writes PRO MC REPORT, linking the Liberals to the Montford report; all three pairs are correct.

8 · Comparative Analysis Across All Five Acts (ICA 1861 to GOI 1935)

STORY LINK

Because each Act added a little more representation, a side-by-side view shows the trend. Ask: where is 1935 the peak and where is it still the cage?

8.1 Council / Legislature Size

Act	Central body	Composition	Total approx.
ICA 1861	ILC	VEC (GG+5+CIC) + 6-12 Additional Members	13-19
ICA 1892	ILC	VEC (GG+6+CIC) (of 1874) + 10-16 Additional Members	17-23
ICA 1909	ILC	9 ex-officio + 60 additional (27 elected + 33 nominated)	69
GOI 1919	CLA + CoS	Bicameral, both with elected majority, direct elections	~145 CLA + ~60 CoS
GOI 1935	FA + CoS	FA: indirect + 1/3 Prince nominees; CoS: direct, permanent	~375 FA + ~260 CoS

- Trend: from a small advisory body (~15 members) to a near-full-sized legislature (~600+ members across both houses).

Board: why 1935 applied only in 1937, and the result

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why GOI 1935 applied in 1937: the PLCs, CoS and CLA had to complete their terms; preparation needs time: the Federal Court, new provinces (Sindh, Orissa, Bihar) and separating Burma from British India, fully responsible government, reservation reallocation, and time for Princes to decide on the IoA.
- Result: Centre = only for British India, not the whole of India, with GOI 1919 operating (dyarchy only on paper). Provinces = fully responsible government (dyarchy ended), with GOI 1935 operating.
- Two COIs in British India: Vol 1: Centre and Vol 2: Provinces. Things got repeated: President, PM, LS, RS, Speaker at the Centre; Governor, CM, State Legislative Assembly, Speaker in provinces.
- One common COI for Centre and Provinces is a unitary feature and a symbol of the unity of India.

9 · Congress Ministries: 28-Month Rule (1937-39)

STORY LINK

Because INC rejected the Act but not its provincial half, it chose to govern. Ask: why did INC enter government and what changed?

9.1 Why Did INC Decide to Form Governments?

- GOI 1935 came into effect in 1937. INC made a strategic decision to contest the provincial elections and form governments, for two reasons:
  - i) The same logic that drove the Pro-Changers into the CLA in 1923: stop non-INC parties from becoming powerful by occupying the space yourself
  - ii) To promote Constructive Work, and unlike 1923, INC would now be in the executive as well, not just the legislature

TEACHER'S BOARD

- MG opposed this; MG left INC and controlled INC from outside (margin note).

9.2 Election Results

- INC won a majority in 6 provinces (Madras, Bombay, UP, CP, Bihar, Orissa) but formed ministries in 8 of 11 provinces.
- In Bengal, Assam and NWFP INC was the largest party without a majority; it set up coalition governments in Assam and NWFP. (NWFP was carved from Punjab as a Chief Commissioner's province in 1901 and raised to a Governor's Province in 1932 with a limited legislative council; full responsible government came only in 1937.)

- Punjab: the Unionist Party under Sikandar Hayat Khan won the majority; ML1906 got only 2 of 175 seats. Sindh: the Sind United Party won.

9.3 Impact of the Congress Ministries

- Morale and organisation: ministries boosted the morale of cadre, peasants and workers. Peasant and working-class movements strengthened because INC was now a governing party, not just an agitational one.
- Governance experience: crucial administrative experience over the 28 months (1937-39), invaluable after 1947.
- INM strengthened in the Princely States: if INC could extract Swaraj from the British, States' people reasoned they could win democratic rights from their Indian princes. New Praja Mandals or State People's Congresses (SPCs) were set up in more States and existing SPCs grew.
- After GOI 1919 the Narendra Mandal or Chamber of Princes was set up in 1921 as an advisory body of Princely States to the British. The Congress ministries of 1937-39 energised the popular response from below.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Chamber of Princes: the board adds but not by GOI 1919, and strikes out the line calling it the British response to the Princely States question from above.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout calls the Chamber of Princes the British response from above and sets it after GOI 1919. Use the board: it came after the Act but not by GOI 1919.
- PYQ hooks (Prelims 1996 Nehru): Kripalani was INC President in 1947; Rajendra Prasad chaired the Constituent Assembly; Pant formed the first Congress ministry in UP; Prelims 2001: Nehru was AISPC President in 1939, in the years of surging SPCs; Prelims 2005: Punjab had no Congress ministry; Bose formed the Forward Bloc in 1939 after the Tripuri clash (the board adds: within INC); Prelims 2000: Bose's 1938 presidency (Haripura) advocated Roman script for Hindi.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Twelve PYQs (1998 to 2026) sit on this chapter: Cripps (1998, 2003, 2009 x2, 2010, 2016, 2022), ministries' resignation (2008, 2012), Individual Satyagraha (2009), Bose and the Forward Bloc (1999, 2026).
- Cripps is the star: Dominion Status, solely Indian Constituent Assembly, right to secede, Defence stays with the Viceroy, Nehru and Azad as negotiators, Churchill as PM.
- Know the order and numbers: first three Satyagrahis Bhave, Nehru, Brahma Dutt; VEC 3 of 8 to 8 of 12; 565 + 11 = 576.
- The August Offer 1940 (advisory council, VEC expansion, CA 'mainly' Indians, Dominion Status, minority veto) is the base for all later offers.

MAINS HOOKS

- Theme-based answers use the four tags: ToP, Swaraj, COI, Unity. Judge every offer (AO1940, Cripps) on these four.
- Skeleton for 'why India became independent': INM strong hero + weak colonial villain (economic: WWI, Great Depression, WWII; political; military: INA, Naval Mutiny).
- Skeleton for 'why did INC and ML both reject AO1940 / Cripps': INC wanted Purna Swaraj and unity; ML wanted two Constituent Assemblies and Pakistan.
- Skeleton for 'WWII and the INM': 1939 war without consent, ministries out, AO1940, Individual Satyagraha, Cripps failure, the road to Quit India.

Three players, four questions: every offer from 1939 to 1942 is graded on ToP, Swaraj, COI and Unity.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: In September 1939 Britain dragged India into the war without asking, and the Congress answered by pulling its ministries out. Britain tried to buy cooperation back with the August Offer (1940) and the Cripps Mission (1942), but each offer either kept power in the Viceroy's hands or planted seeds of partition. The INC wanted Purna Swaraj and a united India; the Muslim League wanted a veto, then Pakistan; Britain wanted to prevent decolonisation. Every offer failed on one of the four questions, and the failure of Cripps pushed the INM towards Quit India.

1 A weak villain, a strong hero. Teacher opens the chapter with one question: why did India become independent? The INM was the strong hero. The colonial power was the weak villain, bled by three huge economic shocks in 31 years (WWI, the Great Depression, WWII) and shaken on the military front by the INA and the Naval Mutiny.

→ So to read 1939 to 1947 properly, you need to see who is playing and what they are fighting over.

2 Three players, four questions. The British, the INC and the ML1906 bargain over four things: transfer of executive power (ToP), the kind of Swaraj, who drafts the Constitution (COI), and Unity (565 Princely States, Pakistan). Britain's best case is no ToP, no Dominion, COI by Britain and a united Indian colony. INC wants ToP to one centre, Purna Swaraj, one COI by Indians. ML wants two centres and two COIs.

→ But first Britain made a move nobody asked it to make.

3 September 1939: India is taken to war. Britain declared war on Germany and declared India a belligerent. Viceroy Linlithgow36-43 did not consult a single Indian leader. This act of colonial arrogance set the tone for six years.

→ So the INC had to decide what to do, and it did not speak in one voice.

4 Three views inside the INC. MG: unconditional support, because Britain was the victim of Axis aggression. Bose: Britain's weakness is India's chance, start a Civil Disobedience Movement now. Nehru: no cooperation without Purna Swaraj, but no mass movement either. Most leaders privately wanted an Allied win, since the Axis were dictatorships and India might become a Japanese colony.

→ But the INC did not take any one pole; it named a price for cooperation.

5 The INC's price and Linlithgow36-43's no. The INC asked for responsible government at the Centre, a post-war Constituent Assembly and a declaration of war aims. In return it would help the war effort. Linlithgow36-43 rejected all three and offered only an advisory committee.

→ So the CWC met at Wardha and the INC walked out of the government.

6 Wardha 1939: ministries resign. The CWC refused to support the war and directed the Congress ministries to resign, ending the 28-month rule. Linlithgow36-43 panicked and promised Dominion Status after the war. The ML1906 spotted its opening and passed the Lahore Resolution in March 1940.

→ Now Britain needed to bring the INC back to the table.

7 August Offer 1940. Advisory War Council, a bigger VEC, a post-war Constituent Assembly of mainly Indians, Dominion Status after the war, and no constitution without the consent of minorities. The last clause handed the ML a veto over the Constitution.

→ But both sides said no, for opposite reasons.

8 Both reject, then Individual Satyagraha. The INC rejected Dominion Status and the backdoor partition in the veto. The ML feared a Hindu-majority Centre would ignore its veto, leaving it with neither power nor Pakistan. MG, pressed to launch a mass movement, chose a limited Individual Satyagraha in October 1940: Bhave, Nehru, Brahma Dutt arrested in that order.

→ Then the war itself turned against Britain.

9 1941: the war turns. In 1941 the VEC was expanded to 8 Indians out of 12, but Defence, Home and Finance stayed out of Indian hands. Germany attacked the USSR in June, Japan hit Pearl Harbour in December, and the INC offered support for Purna Swaraj after the war plus immediate ToP.

→ So when Rangoon fell, Britain had to send someone to Delhi.

10 Cripps 1942: the post-dated cheque. Japan took Rangoon in March 1942. Under US and USSR pressure, Churchill sent Sir Stafford Cripps. The offer: Dominion Status plus foreign policy, a solely Indian CA, a right to secede (565 + 11 = 576 entities) and Defence with the Viceroy during the war. The talks broke on that last point. MG called it a post-dated cheque.

→ The failure of Cripps closes the negotiation route and leads on to Quit India (Chapter 44).

In simple words

- The chapter is a three-player game: the British, the INC and the ML1906, all bargaining over four questions: ToP, Swaraj, COI, Unity.
- September 1939: Britain declared war and declared India a belligerent without consent. The INC refused to support the war and its ministries resigned.
- August Offer 1940 gave an advisory council, a bigger VEC, a CA of mainly Indians, Dominion Status after the war and a minority veto. INC and ML both said no, for opposite reasons.
- Individual Satyagraha (Oct 1940) was a small, symbolic protest for freedom of speech: Bhave, Nehru, Brahma Dutt.
- 1941: VEC became 8 Indians of 12, yet Defence, Home and Finance stayed out of reach.
- Cripps (March 1942) offered Dominion Status, a solely Indian CA and a right to secede (576 possible entities), but kept Defence with the Viceroy. Talks broke there.
- MG called it a post-dated cheque. The INC conceded only autonomy for Muslim Majority Provinces, during the talks.

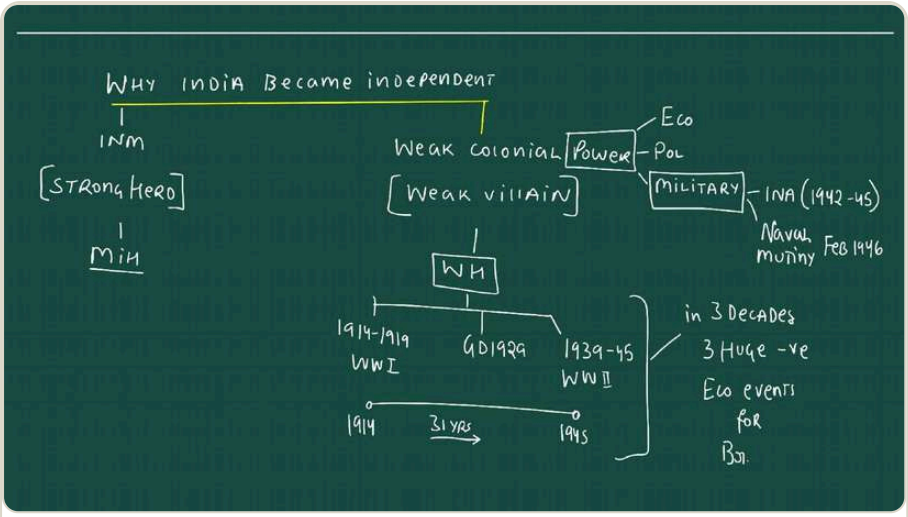
STORY LINK

Because the colonial power was weak and the national movement strong, India became free. Ask: what hit Britain, and what did the INM do with it?



Board: why India became independent, strong hero versus weak villain Lecture 40 slide 142

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why India became independent: INM is the strong hero; the colonial power is the weak villain.
- The weak villain lost power on three fronts: Eco, Pol and MILITARY. Military means INA (1942-45) and the Naval Mutiny, Feb 1946.
- The weak villain was hit by three huge negative economic events in three decades: WWI (1914-19), GD1929, WWII (1939-45). From 1914 to 1945 is 31 years.
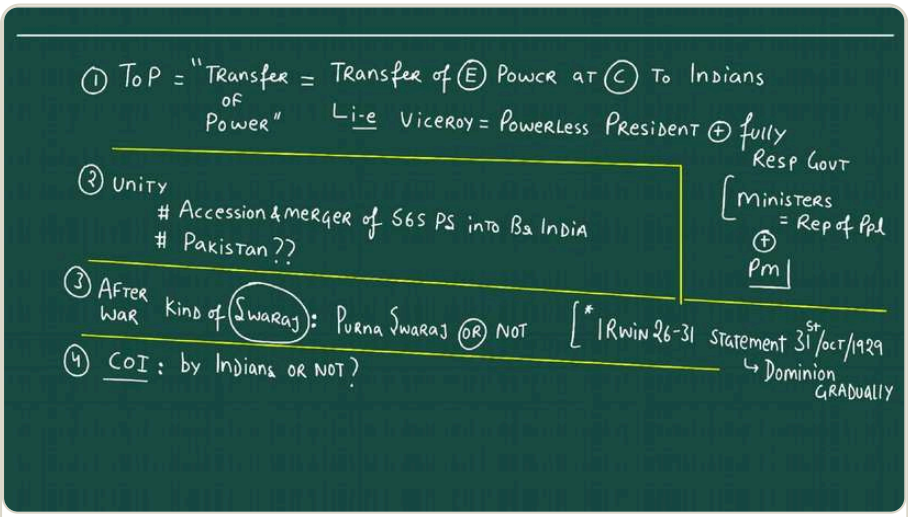
- Board boxes 'WH' and 'MIH' sit on the two branches; check your notebook for what the letters stand for.



Board: the four issues ToP, Unity, Swaraj after war, COI Lecture 40 slide 143

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The period 1939-47 is organised on four issues:
- 1 ToP = Transfer of (E) Executive Power at (C) Centre to Indians, i.e. Viceroy = powerless President + fully responsible government (ministers = representatives of the people + PM).
- 2 Unity = accession and merger of 565 PS (Princely States) into British India, and Pakistan??
- 3 After war, kind of Swaraj: Purna Swaraj or not. Reference point: Irwin26-31 statement, 31 Oct 1929: Dominion GRADUALLY.
- 4 CoI: by Indians or not?

Board: two viceroys at WW II, Linlithgow and Wavell, and their events
Lecture 41 slide 11

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Two viceroys at WW II 1939-45: Linlithgow36-43 and the soldier viceroy Wavell 43-47 (Wavell was the C-in-C under Linlithgow36-43).
- Under Linlithgow36-43: AO 1940 (the August Offer), Cripps 1942, Bengal Famine 1943, QIM 1942-45, INA 1942-45.
- Under Wavell 43-47: Wavell Plan, June 1945 (this ended QIM 1942-45), CMP 1946 (3 British Cabinet ministers), Dec 1945-46 elections, INA Trials (1945-46) + Naval Mutiny, Feb 1946.
- Why it matters: this single board is the map of the next four chapters.

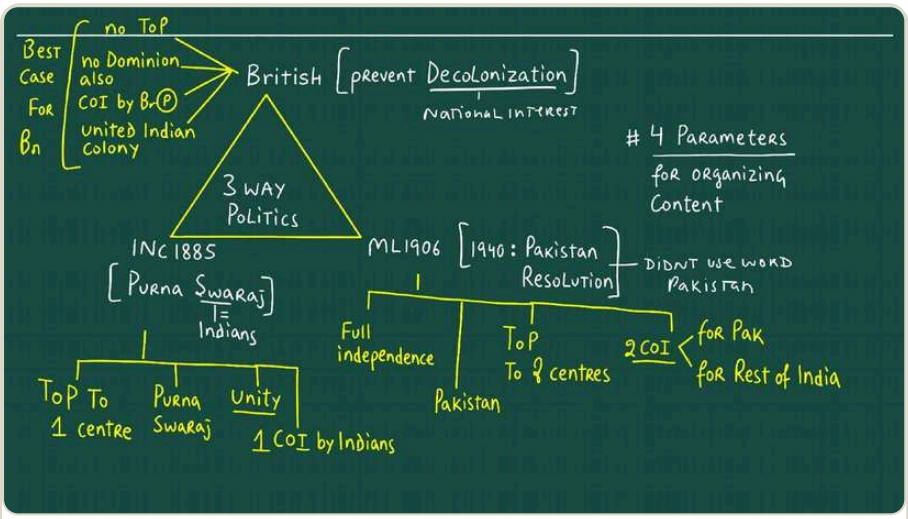
HANDOUT ALERT

- This chapter (handout) covers only September 1939 to Cripps 1942. QIM, Famine, INA, Naval Mutiny, Wavell Plan and CMP come in Chapters 44 to 46.

1 · Setting the Stage: Three Players, Four Questions

STORY LINK

Because three players pulled in three directions, every event 1939-47 is a move in one game. Ask: what does each player want on the four questions?



Board: three-way politics, British versus INC versus ML on four parameters
Lecture 41 slide 4

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three-way politics: British, INC 1885 and ML1906. The board uses 4 parameters for organising content.
- British aim: prevent decolonisation (national interest). Best case for Britain: no ToP, no Dominion also, COI by Britain, united Indian colony.
- INC 1885 aim: Purna Swaraj (Swaraj = by Indians). Branches: ToP to 1 centre, Purna Swaraj, Unity, 1 COI by Indians.
- ML1906 aim: 1940 Pakistan Resolution, which did not use the word Pakistan. Branches: full independence, Pakistan, ToP to 2 centres, 2 COI (one for Pak, one for the rest of India).

1.1 The three players

Player	What it is doing, 1939-1947
British	Ruling India, at war from Sept 1939, negotiating, pressuring and manoeuvring around the same four questions
INC	Negotiating, pressuring and manoeuvring for power at the Centre, and refusing to hand over cooperation for free
ML1906 (Muslim League)	Manoeuvring for a separate settlement, using the INC's confrontation with the British as its own opening

1.2 The four questions

Question	What it asks
@ToP Transfer of executive power at Centre	Viceroy a powerless constitutional head; real power with an Indian PM and Council of Ministers. Not just 'more Indians in the Viceroy's council': actual responsible government, ministers accountable to an elected legislature, not to London
@Swaraj What kind of freedom?	Purna Swaraj (full independence) or merely Dominion Status, which keeps India tethered within the British Empire
@COI Constitution of India	Will Indians draft their own constitution through a Constituent Assembly composed entirely of elected Indians, or will the British keep a hand in it?
@Unity One India or many?	A united India? Will the British create Pakistan? Will Princely States merge into India or float as separate entities?

MNEMONIC · THE FOUR QUESTIONS (NO FIXED ORDER)

C U T S

Every offer is graded on four questions, and a bad one CUTS India apart.

- C COI: who frames the Constitution
- U Unity: 565 PS, Pakistan
- T ToP: transfer of executive power
- S Swaraj: Purna or Dominion

Teacher's tags are ToP, Swaraj, COI, Unity; CUTS is only a rearranged memory aid.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Exam-hall rule (handout and slide): the tags are a pedagogic device. Do NOT write (@ToP), (@Swaraj), (@COI), (@Unity) in the exam; the examiner does not need them. Use them only to think and revise.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert, PYQ labels: the handout's stage-setting alerts name Prelims 2008 (Linlithgow era), 2009 (CWC 1939 stance) and 2012 (Forward Bloc). The actual questions on the slides are: 2008 = ministries resigned (A/R); 2009 = second Satyagrahi, Cripps provisions, which PM; 2012 = why ministries resigned; Forward Bloc = Prelims 2026. Use the question table in this notebook.

2 · 1939: Where Did the INC Stand @WW II?

STORY LINK

Because Britain declared India a belligerent without asking, the INC had to choose a stand. Ask: did the INC speak with one voice?

- When Britain declared war on Germany in September 1939, it simultaneously declared India, a country it ruled without consent, a belligerent.
- Viceroy Linlithgow36-43 (1936-43) did not bother to consult Indian leaders. This single act of colonial arrogance set the tone for the next 6 years.
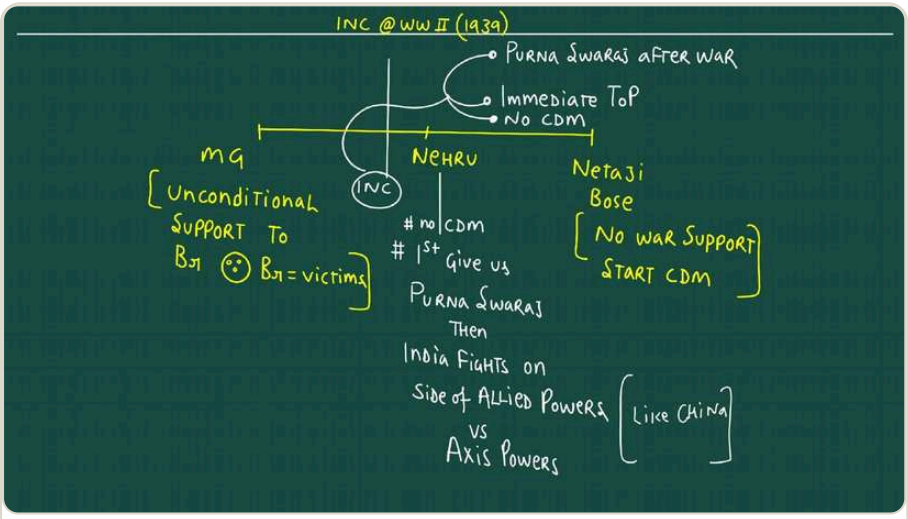
- Inside the INC there was no single position: at least three distinct views.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board on the declaration: India's state, its economy, army and human resources, were committed to the war; the box also reads 'belligerent / participant'. (Check your notebook for the exact first symbol.)



Board: INC at WW II 1939, MG, Nehru and Bose on one scale Lecture 41 slide 12

TEACHER'S BOARD

- INC @ WW II (1939) hangs three points on the INC: Purna Swaraj after war, Immediate ToP, No CDM.
- On one scale left to right: MG = unconditional support to Britain (Britain = victims); Nehru = no CDM, first give us Purna Swaraj, then India fights on the side of the Allied Powers vs the Axis Powers ('Like China'); Netaji Bose = no war support, start CDM.
- The INC's actual line sits between MG and Nehru.

2.1 Mahatma Gandhi's position

- Justice was on the Allied side: Nazi Germany and fascist Italy were aggressors; morally India should support Britain unconditionally.
- To take advantage of Britain's difficulty would be wrong.

2.2 Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose

- The opposite view: Britain's weakness was India's opportunity; the moment called for an immediate Civil Disobedience Movement (CDM).

Board: Bose's reasoning, post-WWI colonies and a Japanese takeover Lecture 41 slide 13

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Bose's reasoning on the board: post WWI the victors took the colonies of the losers; therefore if the Axis win, India may become a colony of Japan = dictatorship, no self-government to its own people, so all progress may be lost, i.e. GoI 1935.
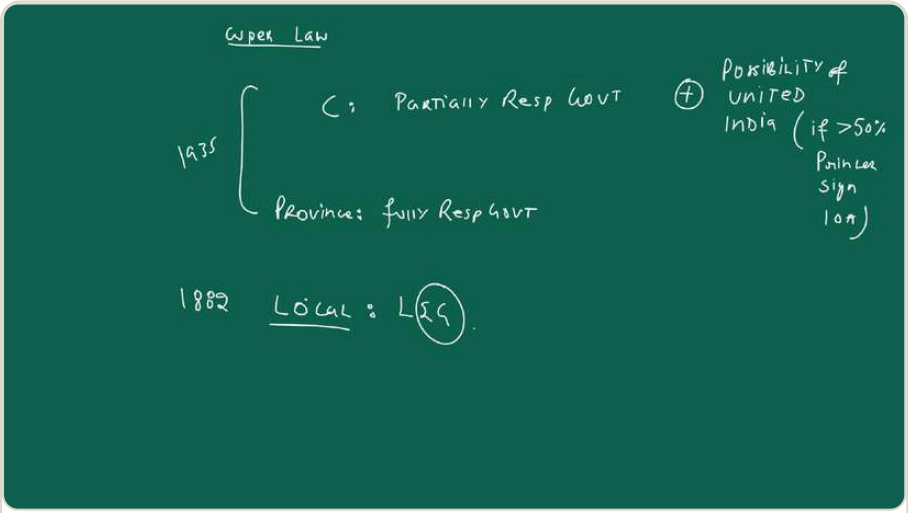
- The label on the left reads Indian National Interest: Bose believes that a Japanese takeover of India will be prevented (by his path).



Board: GoI 1935 as the super law to protect, and 1882 local self-government Lecture 41 slide 14

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board on what could be lost: GoI 1935 = Centre: partially responsible government; Province: fully responsible government; plus the possibility of a united India (if more than 50% of Princes sign the IoA).
- Also 1882 Local: LSG (local self-government). The title word reads 'Super Law' (check your notebook for the first letter).

Bose's road out of the Congress

CHAIN: BOSE AND THE FORWARD BLOC

Haripura 1938 — Bose first elected Congress President; urged the Roman script for Hindi to

Tripuri 1939 — Bose beat Gandhi's candidate Pattabhi Sitaramayya. Gandhi: 'Pattabhi's

Resigns — Unable to function as President without CWC support, Bose

Forward Bloc 193 — Left-wing faction inside the INC, like the Congress-Khilafat Swaraj

- Why the Left could not hold Bose. The Left had united to elect him, but the coalition collapsed at Tripuri; the three-way fracture of the Left left Bose with no base.

Faction	What it did at Tripuri
Communists (CPI), Socialists (CSP, JP Narayan), MN Roy's followers	All voted for Bose when electing him
Gandhian right wing	Passed the Pant Resolution: Bose to form his CWC strictly per Gandhi's wishes
CSP (Jayaprakash Narayan) and MN Roy's supporters	Abstained on the Pant Resolution, choosing Congress unity over Bose, fearing a permanent split would destroy the anti-imperialist movement
Communists (CPI)	The only faction that stayed with Bose and voted against the resolution

- Result: with the right wing hostile and the Left fragmented, Bose had no base left inside the Congress.
- The Forward Bloc later became the political base from which Bose launched his international campaign and eventually the INA (Chapter 45).

Board: CPI 1925, pro-USSR, and its wartime dilemma Lecture 41 slide 20

TEACHER'S BOARD

- CPI 1925 was pro-USSR and against capitalist Britain plus against colonialism.
- The USSR did not join the war on the Allied side until June 1941 (the board writes 'WWI'; read it as this war).
- Therefore in 1939 the CPI wanted stronger action against Britain: no dilemma.
- June 1941: USSR joins the Allied Powers, so the CPI becomes pro-USSR, pro-Britain. QIM 1942: CPI opposed.

HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ Prelims 2026 (Forward Bloc): answer (b) 1, 2 and 4. Statement 1: Bose beat Gandhi's candidate and could not function without CWC support. Statement 2: the Left that elected him fractured. Statement 4: CSP (JP) and Royists abstained on the Pant Resolution. Statement 3 is backwards, because the CPI stood by Bose.

2.3 Nehru's position

- More calibrated: no cooperation in the war unless India received actual independence, Purna Swaraj, but no mass movement during the war itself.

Why most INC leaders privately wanted an Allied victory

- WWI precedent (1914-19): victors took over the colonies of the defeated; German colonies in Africa went to Britain and France; Ottoman territories became British and French mandates.
- If the Axis won, all progress made by the INM could be lost and India could become a colony of Japan.
- The Axis were dictatorships: when they did not give democracy to their own people, why would they give it to the people of their colonies?
- Still, Britain had dragged India into war without consent, and the INC was not going to hand over cooperation for free.

MNEMONIC · THREE INC VIEWS ON THE SCALE, IN ORDER

Meek Neutral Bold

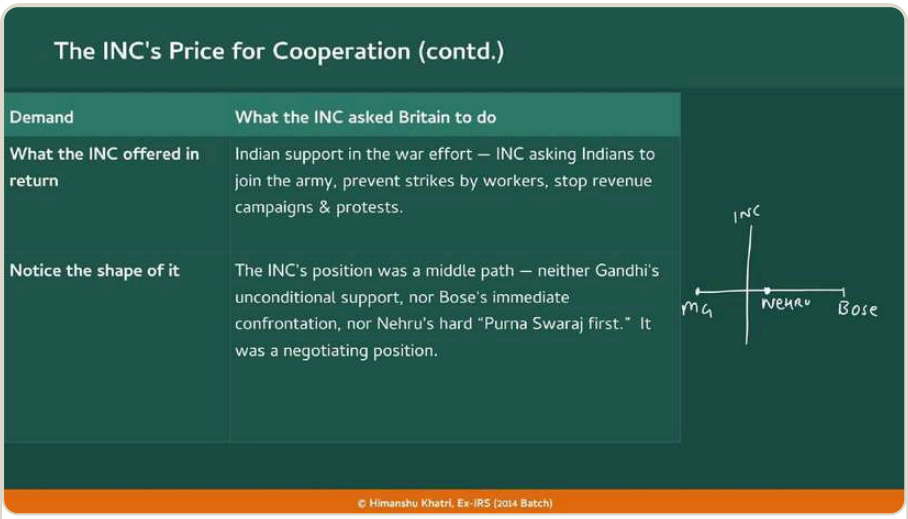
From left to right on the board: MG meek, Nehru in the middle, Bose bold.

M	MG: unconditional support
N	Nehru: Purna Swaraj first, no CDM

B Bose: no support, start CDM

Order kept: board scale left to right.

The INC's price for cooperation



Board: the INC's line on the scale between MG, Nehru and Bose Lecture 41 slide 24

Demand	What the INC asked Britain to do
i) @ToP	Immediately establish Responsible Government at the Centre: Indian ministers, Indian accountability
ii) @COI	Promise a Constituent Assembly after the war to frame India's own constitution
iii) @Swaraj	Declare its war aims regarding India's future: tell Indians whether they fight for their own freedom or someone else's empire. Margin: this means Purna Swaraj after war
INC offered in return	Indian support for the war: INC asking Indians to join the army, prevent strikes by workers, stop revenue campaigns and protests

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The INC's position was a middle path: neither Gandhi's unconditional support, nor Bose's immediate confrontation, nor Nehru's hard 'Purna Swaraj first'. It was a negotiating position.

Linlithgow36-43's answer

- Linlithgow36-43 rejected all three demands.
- Offered instead only an advisory committee of Indian politicians from British India and representatives of the Princely States, so Indians could 'advise' the British on the war.
- Read the device: Indians feel consulted without being given power, classic.

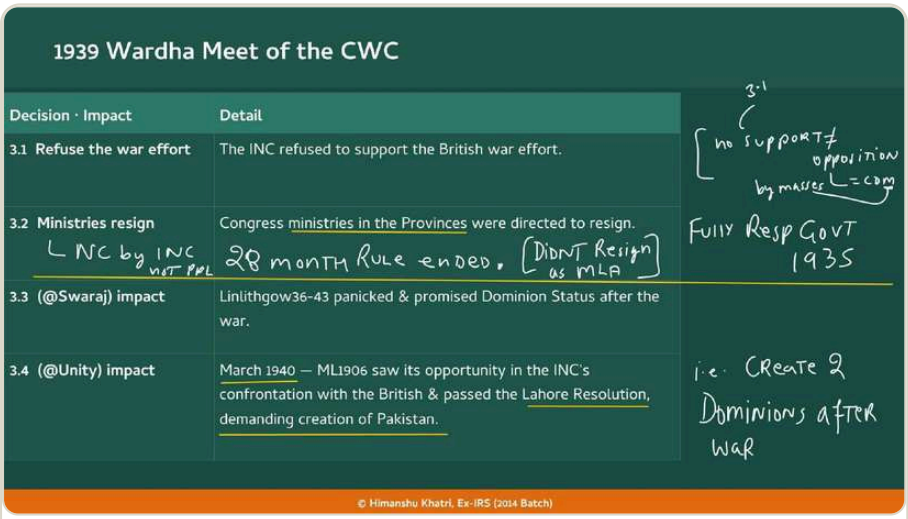
HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ cluster (Prelims 1999): the 'godsent opportunity' leader is Bose. Rajagopalachari: no such view; Jinnah's opening was political (Lahore Resolution); Nehru's stand was no cooperation without Purna Swaraj and no mass movement. Handout alert names Prelims 1999 as 'war aims'; the slide question is the godsent-opportunity one.

3 · 1939 Wardha Meet of the Congress Working Committee

STORY LINK

Because Linlithgow36-43 refused every demand, the CWC met at Wardha. Ask: what could the INC do short of a mass movement?



Board: Wardha decisions, ministries, 28-month rule and Lahore Resolution
Lecture 41 slide 26

- At the Wardha Meet of the CWC (1939):
- 3.1 The INC refused to support the British war effort.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board on 3.1: no support is not the same as opposition by the masses (opposition by masses would be a CDM). Also notes Fully Resp Govt 1935 (Provinces).
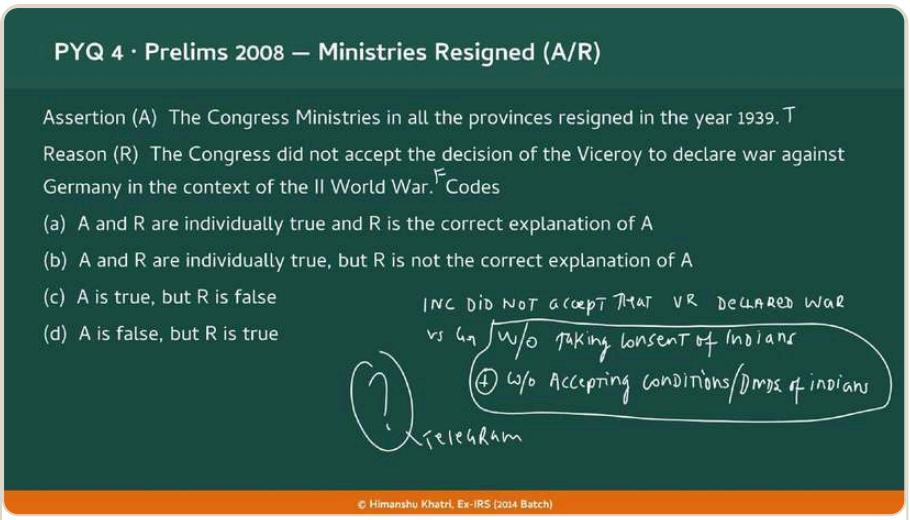
- On 3.2: the ministries' resignation was an order by the INC, not by the people; the 28-month rule ended; they did not resign as MLAs.
- On 3.4: i.e. create 2 Dominions after war, so Dominion Status plus the Lahore demand points to two Dominions.



PYQ Prelims 2008, ministries resigned, with the teacher's marks and note
Lecture 41 slide 67

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's marks on Prelims 2008: Assertion = true; Reason = false as worded.
- Reasoning on the board: the INC did not accept that the Viceroy declared war against Germany without taking the consent of Indians and without accepting the conditions and demands of Indians. A note about a telegram sits beside a question mark; check your notebook.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Conflict: the answer slide of the same deck gives (a) (R explains A) because the unconsulted war declaration led straight to the Wardha directive. Teacher's board reads R as imprecise. For the exam, learn the chain (declaration without consent -> Wardha -> resignation) and treat the answer slide (a) as the key.
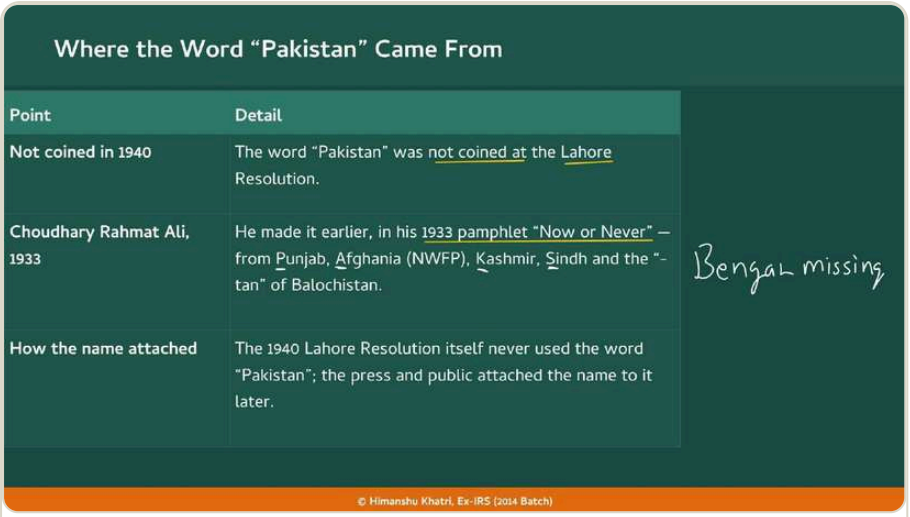
- Prelims 2012 (ministries resigned in seven provinces) = (d) none of the three: not a ministry-formation problem, not the Left, not communal disturbances; it was the Wardha directive. The key notes that the INC held ministries in 8 of 11 provinces in 1937.

Where the word 'Pakistan' came from



Board: Rahmat Ali's 1933 pamphlet and the letters of Pakistan Lecture 41 slide 27

- The word was not coined at the Lahore Resolution. Choudhary Rahmat Ali made it earlier in his 1933 pamphlet 'Now or Never': Punjab, Afghania (NWFP), Kashmir, Sindh and the '-tan' of Balochistan.
- The 1940 Lahore Resolution itself never used the word 'Pakistan'; the press and public attached the name later.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher underlines the first letters of Punjab, Afghania (NWFP), Kashmir and Sindh (P, A, K, S) and notes 'Bengal missing': no letter stands for Bengal.

4 · August Offer (AO1940) by Linlithgow36-43

STORY LINK

Because the ministries' exit shook the British, Linlithgow36-43 tried to bring the INC back. Ask: what did the offer give, and what did it hide?

- The resignation of Congress ministries shook the British. The August Offer was Linlithgow36-43's attempt to bring the INC back to the table. It promised:
- 4.1 An Advisory War Council.

MNEMONIC · THE FIVE PROMISES OF AO1940, IN ORDER

A Viceroy Couldn't Deliver Much

Linlithgow36-43 promised a lot and delivered little.

A	Advisory War Council	V	VEC expanded
C	Constituent Assembly, mainly Indians
D	Dominion Status after war	M	Minority veto

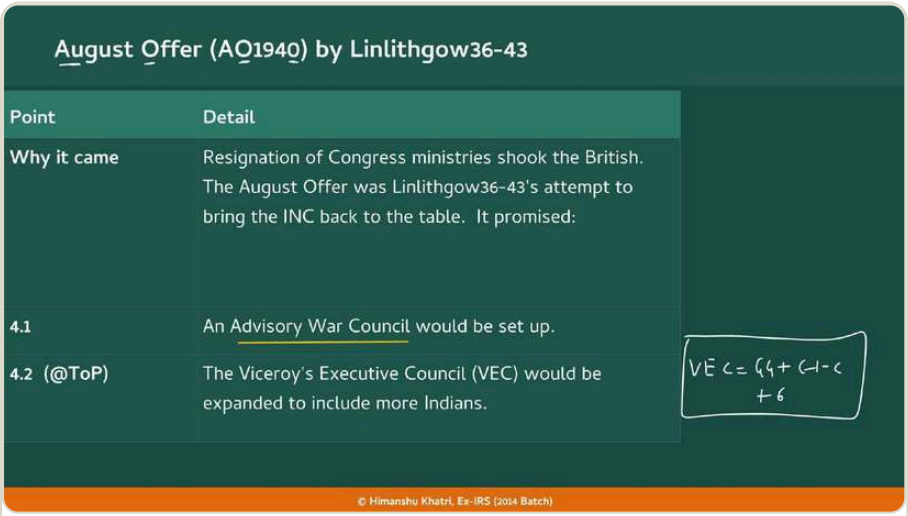
Order kept: 4.1 to 4.5.



Board: the VEC as Governor-General, C-in-C and six members Lecture 41 slide 28

4.2 The VEC as it stood

- After GOI Act 1919 it became a convention that 3 of 8 members of the VEC were Indians, nominated as per the wish of the Viceroy.
- Structure: Viceroy + Commander-in-Chief (C-i-C) + 6 ordinary members, of which 3 were Indian.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board: VEC = GG + C-in-C + 6.
- On the convention: No responsible government at the Centre [1919], therefore not the wish of people's representatives; the members were the Viceroy's picks.

Board: the minority veto, the 80-20 Constituent Assembly and Article 1 vote
Lecture 41 slide 30

4.3 and 4.5: what they actually did

- The word 'mainly' in 4.3: some British members could still be part of the CA (the board adds 'not only').
- Yet this was the first time the British formally promised that constitution-making would be 'primarily the responsibility of Indians themselves': a significant rhetorical and constitutional advance over all previous offers.
- 4.5, imagine a CA in session. Article 1: 'There shall be a Union of India.' ML1906 votes No. The article fails: a hung Assembly. If the British do not then create Pakistan, ML keeps using its veto and India remains ungoverned.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board: veto matters for the drafting of COI by the CA after the war, by AO1940.
- The pie: a CA of 100 = 80 + 20 (Muslims). Of the 20 Muslims, ML1906 = 15 and 5 are with INC / Unionist Party / CPI.
- Art 1 proposal: voting (80 + 5) = Yes 85 against 15 = No. Ideally Article 1 passes. Under AO1940: No, it won't pass.

Board: Britain's intent at AO1940, divide and rule between INC and ML
Lecture 41 slide 31

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Intent of Britain at AO1940: DnR (divide and rule) between INC and ML1906.
- Chain: because of the veto, COI won't get drafted, so Dominion won't be created, so Britain will continue to rule India. That's why Jinnah/ML1906 rejected AO1940.

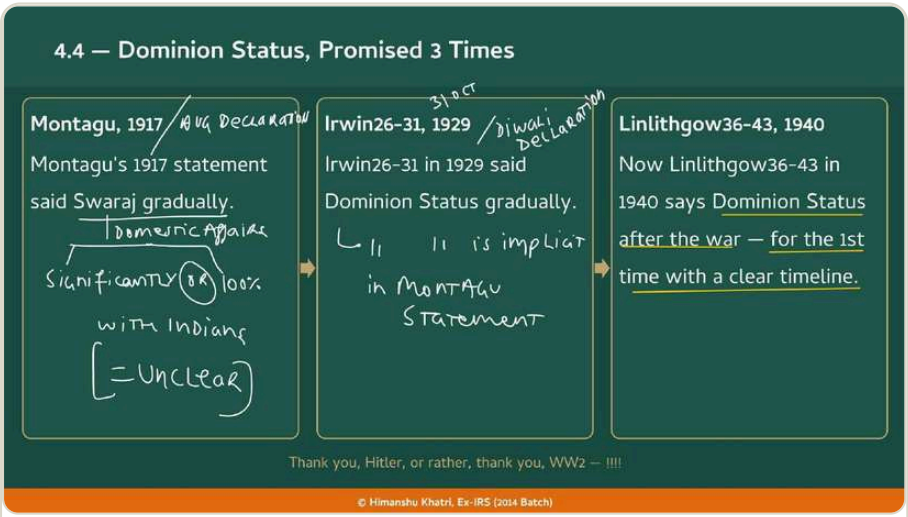
4.4 Dominion Status, promised three times



Board: Montagu 1917, Irwin 1929, Linlithgow 1940 on Dominion Status
Lecture 41 slide 33

Who and when	What was said
Montagu, 1917 (Aug Declaration)	Swaraj gradually. Board adds: domestic affairs, 'significantly OR 100% with Indians' = unclear
Irwin26-31, 1929 (31 Oct, Diwali Declaration)	Dominion Status gradually; board: this is implicit in the Montagu statement
Linlithgow36-43, 1940	Dominion Status after the war: for the first time with a clear timeline

- Thank you, Hitler, or rather, thank you, WW2 (the handout's own aside): the war forced the timeline.

NUMBER CARD · VEC ARITHMETIC

3 of 8 -> 8 of 12

Seats rose, but the key portfolios did not move.

3 of 8 Indians in the VEC by convention after 1919
8 of 12 Indians in the VEC after 1941
GG + C-in-C + 6 VEC structure on the board

5 · Impact of AO1940: Why Both Sides Rejected It

STORY LINK

Because the veto clause cut both ways, INC and ML both said no, for opposite reasons. Ask: what did each fear?

Who rejected	Why
5.1 INC, at the Wardha Meet (1940)	(@Swaraj) Accepting meant Dominion Status instead of Purna Swaraj, the INC's stated goal since 1929
INC, second reason	It implicitly meant accepting partition, because the veto clause was a backdoor partition mechanism. INC's goal was Purna Swaraj, not Dominion Status
5.2 ML1906, the opposite reason	(@Unity) The Offer made no explicit mention of two separate Constituent Assemblies or of Pakistan
ML1906, deeper anxiety	If the British transfer executive power at the Centre, a Hindu-majority government could ignore ML's veto in the CA and use force to prevent Pakistan
ML1906, and then?	If the British did not follow through on creating Pakistan even after ML used its veto, ML would be left with neither power nor Pakistan

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board on 5.1: INC's goal = United India, not Pak. See the Article 1 voting picture in Section 4: with the veto, the INC could not draft a united India.

6 · Individual Satyagraha (Oct 1940)

STORY LINK

Because AO1940 failed, MG faced pressure to launch a mass movement. Ask: why did he choose a small, symbolic protest?

- With AO1940 failed in August, MG came under pressure from within the INC to launch a CDM. He resisted and launched a carefully limited, symbolic protest: Individual Satyagraha.

Element	Detail
The form	Deliberate and precise: the Satyagrahi made a public anti-war speech and asserted the right to freedom of speech
The goal	Not Purna Swaraj: the specific, narrow demand for freedom of speech
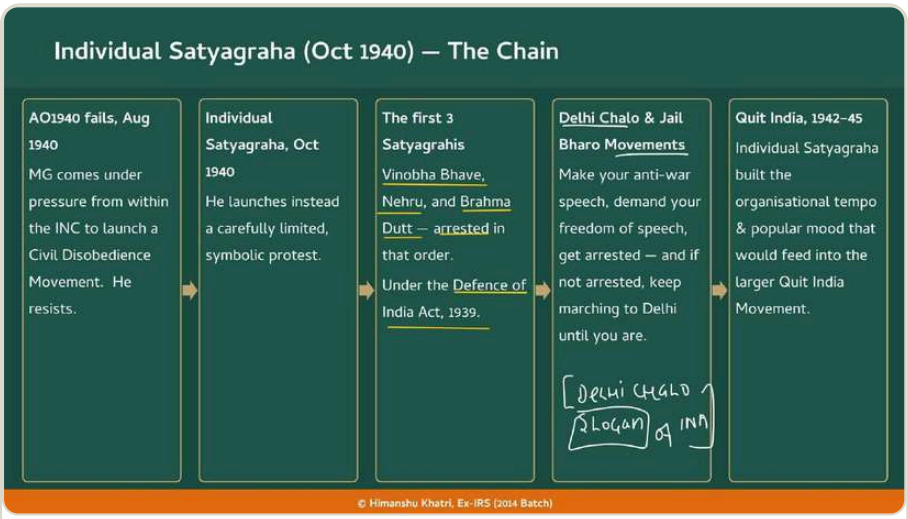
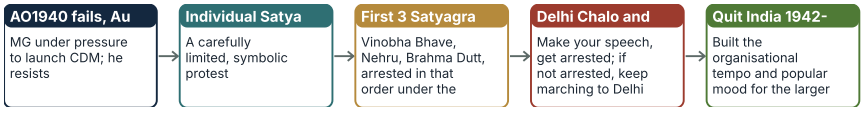
Directed against	Individual civil disobedience against the Defence of India Act, 1939, an emergency law restricting civil liberties during wartime



Board: the Individual Satyagraha chain, Delhi Chalo and the INA slogan
Lecture 41 slide 39

CHAIN: INDIVIDUAL SATYAGRAHA



TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Delhi Chalo was the slogan of the INA: the same words were used again by Bose's army.

MNEMONIC · FIRST THREE SATYAGRAHIS, IN ORDER

Vinoba Needs Brave Devotees

Bhave first, then Nehru, then Brahma Dutt.

V Vinobha Bhave (1st) N Nehru (2nd)

B Brahma Dutt (3rd)

D Defence of India Act, 1939 (the law used)

Order kept: Bhave, Nehru, Brahma Dutt; D reminds you of the Act.

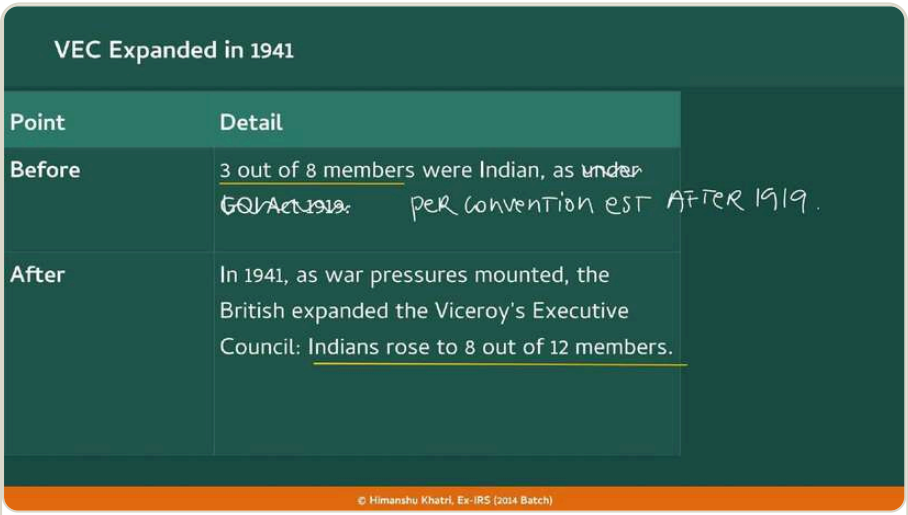
HANDOUT ALERT

- PYQ Prelims 2009: second Satyagrahi = Nehru. Rajendra Prasad, Rajagopalachari and Patel are not in the trio.

7 · VEC Expanded in 1941

STORY LINK

Because the war pressures mounted, Britain gave more seats but not more power. Ask: which portfolios did Britain keep?



Board: VEC before 1941 was a convention after 1919 Lecture 41 slide 40

- In 1941 the British expanded the VEC. Indians rose from 3 of 8 to 8 of 12 members.
- For the first time, Indian ministers were in a majority at the Centre.
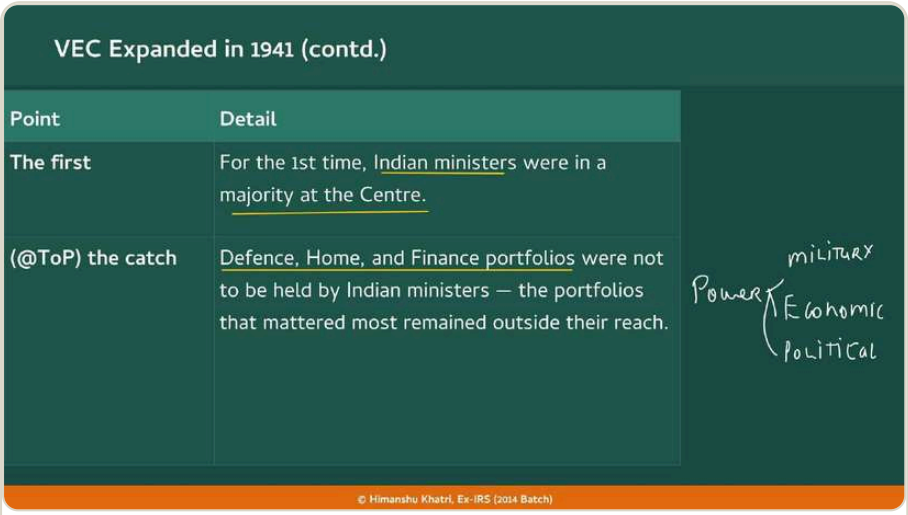
- (@ToP) the catch: the Defence, Home and Finance portfolios were not to be held by Indian ministers, the portfolios that mattered most.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher corrects the typed line: the 3 of 8 pattern was per convention, established after 1919, not a rule written into the 1919 Act itself.
- Why it matters: it makes the point that the VEC was never answerable to an elected legislature.



Board: power as military, economic and political Lecture 41 slide 41

TEACHER'S BOARD

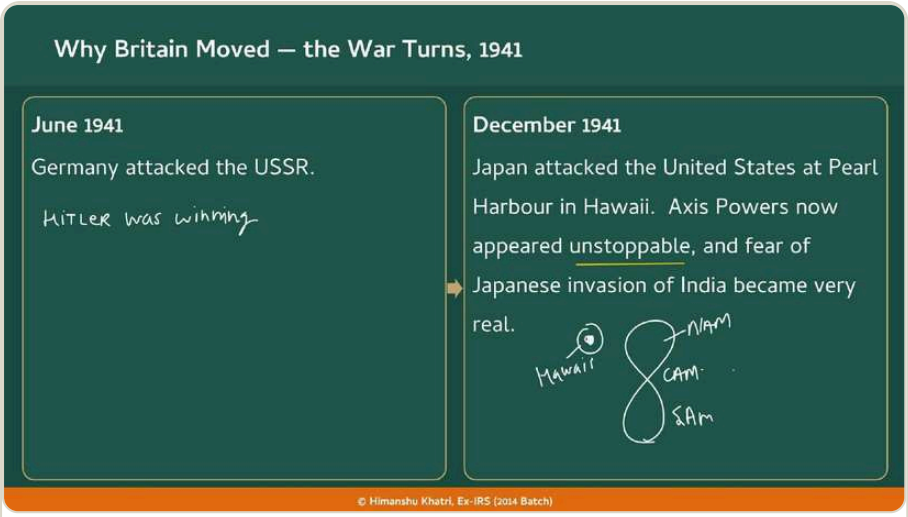
- Board: Power = military + economic + political. Defence = military, Finance = economic, Home = political. The three withheld portfolios are the three kinds of power.

8 · Cripps Mission (1942)

STORY LINK

Because Japan reached Burma, Britain had to show India was a willing partner. Ask: did Cripps offer anything that moved ToP?

8.1 Background



Board: Hitler winning in June 1941, Pearl Harbour in December 1941 Lecture 41 slide 42

- The war shifted in the second half of 1941: June 1941 Germany attacked the USSR; December 1941 Japan attacked the United States at Pearl Harbour in Hawaii. The Axis now appeared unstoppable and the fear of Japanese invasion of India became real.
- December 1941: the INC, overriding the objections of both Nehru and MG, offered to support the British war effort if: (i) Purna Swaraj after the war and (ii) immediate transfer of power at the Centre (Viceroy a powerless President + Indian PM + Indian ministers).
- March 1942: Japan occupied Rangoon (Burma); India's eastern border was exposed. Under pressure from the US and USSR, now Allied partners, Britain needed to show India was a willing partner, so it sent the Cripps Mission in March 1942.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board notes: June 1941 = 'Hitler was winning'. A sketch marks Hawaii as a dot off the coast of North, Central and South America.

Board: Cripps team and the INC negotiators Nehru and Azad Lecture 41 slide 45

Side	Who
Led by	Sir Stafford Cripps, a minister in the War Cabinet of PM Winston Churchill
Other members	Senior British officials
INC's official negotiators	Nehru and Maulana Azad (the serving INC President; board: 1942-46)

8.2 Provisions / Offer

TEACHER'S MNEMONIC · UNCLE CHIPS (CRIPPS)

5 6 5 + 1 1 = 5 7 6

A crispy chip snaps into smaller and smaller pieces: the Cripps Plan could crumble India into 565 + 11 parts. Crispy chip. Cripps Plan. Remember it.

565 Princely States
11 Provinces
576 countries technically possible, all with Dominion Status inside the Empire

- i) (@Swaraj) Dominion Status after the war, plus Indian control over foreign policy. Dominion Status was already in AO1940; now it added foreign affairs. Still Dominion Status, not Purna Swaraj.
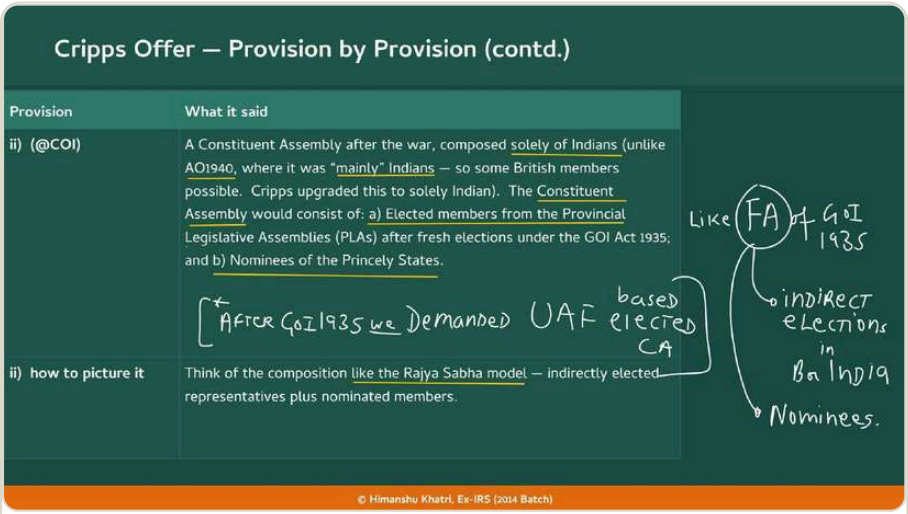
- ii) (@COI) A Constituent Assembly after the war, composed solely of Indians (AO1940: 'mainly'). It consists of: a) elected members from the PLAs after fresh elections under GOI Act 1935; b) nominees of the Princely States. Picture it like the Rajya Sabha model: indirectly elected plus nominated members.



Board: CA composition, GoI 1935 demand and indirect elections plus nominees Lecture 41 slide 48

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board on ii: after GoI 1935 we demanded a UAF-based (universal adult franchise) elected CA. The Cripps CA is like the FA of GoI 1935: indirect elections in British India + nominees.
- Why it matters: this is why the INC later objected to Princely State nominees.

- iii) (@Unity) The most explosive provision. Once the constitution was framed by the CA, any Province of British India or Princely State that disagreed had the option to: a) not join the Union, and b) frame its own constitution or set up its own union within the British Empire.

Board: the secession clause, 'secede from' written over 'not join' Lecture 41 slide 49

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher rewrites 'not join' as 'secede from' the Union and boxes the word 'framed': the option arises only once the constitution is framed.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout vs board: the handout says 'not join the Union'; the board says 'secede from the Union'. Both describe the same right of a dissenting Province or State to stay out; learn 'secede'.

Board: step-by-step secession logic, 565 + 11 = 576 Lecture 41 slide 50

- Step-by-step logic: 1 CA frames a constitution for India. 2 Members representing a Province or Princely State pass a resolution that they disagree. 3 That Province or State is allowed to secede. 4 It can frame its own constitution or set up its own union within the Empire.
- Hence technically 565 Princely States + 11 Provinces = 576 countries possible.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board on step 1: CA frames the constitution for India (Dominion), on no veto and a majority-vote basis, so a united India created: the contrast with the AO1940 veto.
- Why it matters: the veto of 1940 stopped a united India; the Cripps majority rule would have allowed it, but the secession clause then broke it up.

- iv) (@ToP) If power was transferred during the war itself, Defence would continue under the Viceroy and there would be no dilution of the Viceroy's powers over ministers; he would not become a powerless constitutional President acting on aid and advice of popular ministers; he would retain real power over Defence.
- It was on this last point that the talks actually broke down. The British adopted a 'take it or leave it' approach on the Viceroy's war powers.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher adds under provision iv: the Viceroy can veto any decision of ministers.

MNEMONIC · CRIPPS PROVISIONS I TO IV, IN ORDER

Sir Cripps Unveiled Terms

Swaraj, COI, Unity, ToP: the handout's order.

S Swaraj: Dominion + foreign policy

C COI: CA solely Indian

U Unity: right to secede

T ToP: Defence stays with Viceroy

Order kept: provisions i, ii, iii, iv.

Cripps offer, 4-point summary

Question	Verdict
@ToP	Failed: Viceroy retained Defence; no real transfer of executive power
@Swaraj	Failed: only Dominion Status offered, not Purna Swaraj
@COI	Partially advanced: CA solely Indian for the first time, but Princely State representatives were unelected nominees of the Princes
@Unity	Gravely threatened: right to secede could fragment India into 576 entities

8.3 Result

- MG called the Cripps offer a post-dated cheque: most things were to take effect after the war, and nothing was immediate.
- i) INC (@Swaraj): wanted Purna Swaraj after the war, not Dominion Status.

- ML1906 opposed the offer because it wanted two Constituent Assemblies: one for what would become Pakistan and one for the rest of India.

Board: INC concession on Muslim Majority Provinces and Article 370
Lecture 41 slide 56

- (@Unity) The one concession the INC did make: during the Cripps negotiations it agreed to autonomy for Muslim Majority Provinces within the future Constitution of India. The Centre could be weak in those provinces as compared with non-Muslim majority provinces.
- In a sense this was Article 370, not just for Kashmir but as a principle for all Muslim Majority Provinces.
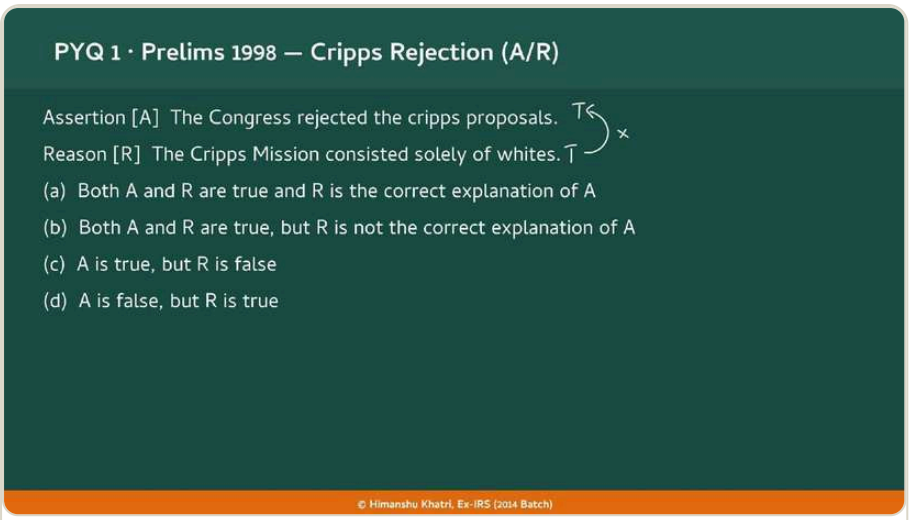
- Important: this INC concession was made during negotiations, not in the formal Cripps offer itself.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Board: a negative point, 2 Nations 1 State, equals Art 370 to MMP (Muslim Majority Provinces). (Check your notebook for the middle symbol.)

HANDOUT ALERT

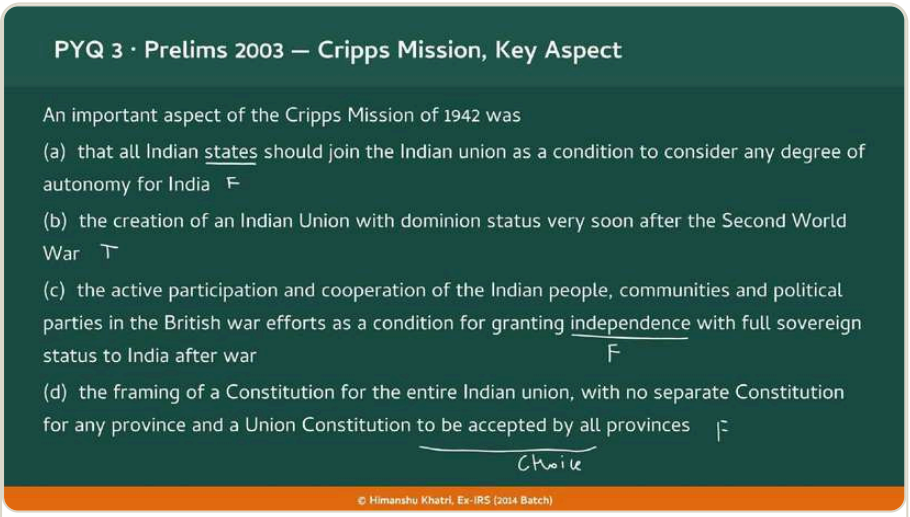
- Handout alert, Cripps PYQ cluster: Prelims 2003, 2009, 2016, 2022 (and 1998, 2010 on slides). Prelims 1998 is the A/R question on rejection; 2016 is Dominion status; the handout's phrase 'rejected by INC and ML for different reasons' does not match the actual 2016 stem.



PYQ Prelims 1998, Cripps rejection, teacher marks both parts true Lecture 41 slide 58

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's marks on Prelims 1998: A true; R true; link crossed out. Answer (b): the Mission was an all-British team, but the grounds for rejection were constitutional (Dominion Status, nominees, secession), not the composition.



PYQ Prelims 2003, Cripps key aspect, teacher's true and false marks Lecture 41 slide 64

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's marks on Prelims 2003: (a) false (states are not forced to join), (b) true, (c) false (the word 'independence'; only Dominion Status), (d) false (provinces had a choice).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout vs companion: the companion's mains guidance speaks of the fall of Singapore; the handout and board use the fall of Rangoon (Burma), March 1942. Use Rangoon.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Cripps in one line: Dominion Status + solely Indian CA + right to secede (576) + Defence with the Viceroy = post-dated cheque.
- Cripps's failure leaves no constitutional route during the war: the next move is the Quit India Movement (Chapter 44).

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Origin facts: Cripps failure, 8 Aug 1942 Bombay resolution, Gowalia Tank, "Do or Die", Yusuf Meherally coined "Quit India" (Prelims 2005, 2009, 2013, 2021).
- Gandhi's speech list: servants do not resign, soldiers do not fire on countrymen, princes accept their people's sovereignty (Prelims 2005: only statement 3 is correct).
- People and places: Aruna Asaf Ali (underground), Usha Mehta (Congress Radio), Ballia (Chittu Pandey), Midnapore (Jatiya Sarkar), Satara (Patri Sarkar) (Prelims 2009, 2011).
- "Not true" trap: QIM was NOT non-violent; labour participation was limited "in general" (Prelims 2011).
- Sequence: August Offer 1940, QIM 1942, INA trial late 1945, RIN revolt 1946 (Prelims 1998, 2017).
- Linlithgow A/R: "most serious revolt after 1857" and the peasant upsurge: both true, R explains A.

MAINS HOOKS

- Causes of QIM (Cripps failure, war inflation, Burma-Malaya abandonment) and its results (the five-point Sec 6 list).
- Spontaneous or not: "leaderless at the top, rootless no" (provincial leaders and Gandhi's speech).
- Parallel governments: character and what they proved about self-rule.
- Utility of fasts (teacher's FYQ board) and Gandhi's theory vs practice in 1942 (national interest).

Hot chapter: ten prelims stems, a mains question and a teacher board on almost every idea. Learn the speech, the five phases, the three parallel governments and the five results.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: By 1942 the Cripps Mission had failed, war inflation was biting and Britain had run away from Burma and Malaya, so Gandhi drafted a Quit India resolution that the INC passed in Bombay on 8 August 1942. Within hours the top leadership was jailed, so the movement ran leaderless at the top but rooted below: the mass phase was angry and crushed in six weeks, then it went underground and later threw up parallel governments at Ballia, Midnapore and Satara. Gandhi's 1943 fast carried the cause abroad, and by June 1945 the leaders were freed for the Simla Conference. The movement won no instant freedom, but it proved India ungovernable by force and made the British know they could not stay.

1. The last door shuts. The Cripps Mission (1942) offered only vague post-war promises and nothing on real transfer of power during the war. It showed that Britain meant to rule on its own terms whatever Indians thought. The last hope of a negotiated settlement was gone.
   → But anger was already rising outside the talks.

2. Prices and fear. War inflation squeezed ordinary people while British policy ignored the rising cost of living. Britain had also abandoned its colonial subjects in Burma and Malaya when Japan invaded, and Indians feared the same fate.
   → So Gandhi asked how a frightened people could resist an invader.

3. Gandhi's logic. The INC did not want Indians to meet a Japanese invasion in low morale and passive helplessness. MG's idea: a high-spirited, nationalist people would resist far better than a demoralised one. He drafted a resolution demanding Quit India and non-cooperation against Japan if it invaded.
   → Now the party had to authorise him.

4. Wardha and Bombay. The CWC accepted the idea at Wardha in July 1942. On 8 August 1942 the INC held a special session in Bombay and passed the QIM resolution demanding immediate Purna Swaraj. The same evening at Gowalia Tank (Azad Maidan) Gandhi gave his "Do or Die" speech.
   → But the government struck that same night.

5. The night of 9 August. The entire top INC leadership was arrested. The detailed resolution could not be made public, so the public knew only what MG said in the speech. Everything not in the speech, such as the land-revenue plan, stayed a private strategy.
   → So the crowds acted on what they understood.

6. Six angry weeks. The mass struggle was not non-violent: crowds pulled up railway tracks, blew up bridges, cut telegraph wires and attacked stations, police stations, courts and post offices. Provincial leaders led, villagers joined, and peasants were the soul of the movement.
   → But Britain had prepared its weapons.

7. The harshest repression. Under the Revolutionary Movement Ordinance and Defence of India Rules the press was gagged, aircraft carried machine guns, villages were fined and burnt, and 60,000 were arrested by the end of 1942. The mass phase was crushed in six weeks.
   → Yet the movement refused to die.

8. Underground. The Congress Socialist Party leaders ran an underground network: Achyut Patwardhan, Lohia, Aruna Asaf Ali, JP and others. Bombs, arms, couriers, leaked raid plans and rich donors kept it alive, and Usha Mehta ran the Congress Radio.
   → Meanwhile Gandhi gave the cause a moral boost from jail.

9. The fast. Held at Aga Khan Palace, Pune, Gandhi refused to condemn the movement's violence and began a 21-day fast (1943) against British violence.

Indian members of the Viceroy's Executive Council resigned and world media took notice. He lost Mahadev Desai (15 Aug 1942) and Kasturba (22 Feb 1944) in the same palace.

→ And in places British authority collapsed outright.

10 People's governments. Ballia (Aug 1942, Chittu Pandey) was the first. Jatiya Sarkar at Midnapore (Dec 1942 to Sep 1944) had courts, school grants, rice, cyclone relief and the Vidyut Vahini. The Patri Sarkar of Satara (mid-1943 to 1945) was the most successful.

→ Then the war ended and the jails opened.

11 The end and the verdict. Gandhi was released in May 1944 on health grounds and turned to constructive work. In June 1945 all INC leaders were freed for the Simla Conference, which formally ended QIM. India had proved ungovernable by force; after 1942 the British knew they could not stay.

In simple words

- QIM was the first mass movement to include the Princely States, so it was truly all-India. Gandhi's call was Do or Die.
- It began because Cripps failed, inflation hurt and Burma-Malaya were abandoned. Gandhi wanted a brave people before Japan came.
- Everyone was arrested on 9 August, so the public knew only the speech: leaderless at the top, but not rootless.
- The mass phase attacked symbols (tracks, bridges, wires, stations) and was crushed in six weeks; 60,000 were arrested.
- It then went underground under Congress Socialist Party leaders, and parallel governments ran at Ballia, Midnapore and Satara.
- CPI and Muslim League stayed out: CPI followed the Soviet line; the League bargained with the British.
- It ended with the June 1945 release for the Simla Conference. Result: India proved ungovernable, and independence became a matter of when, not whether.

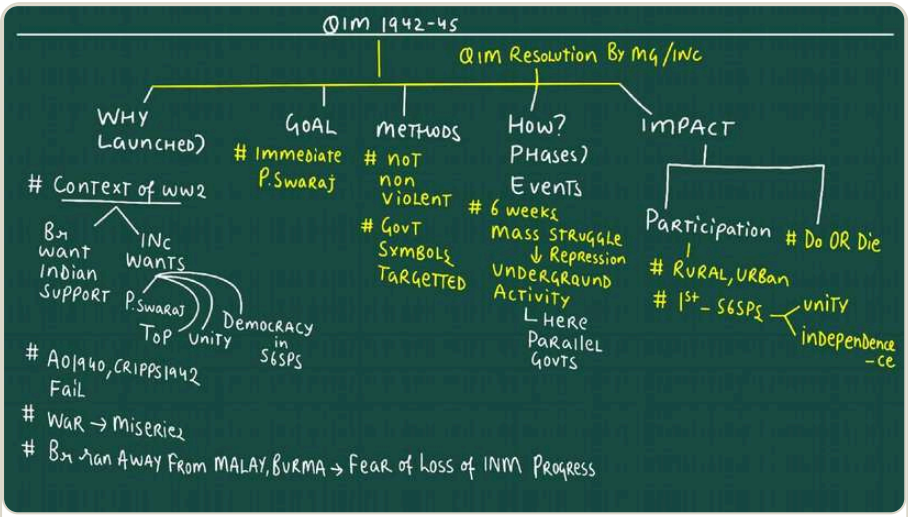
STORY LINK

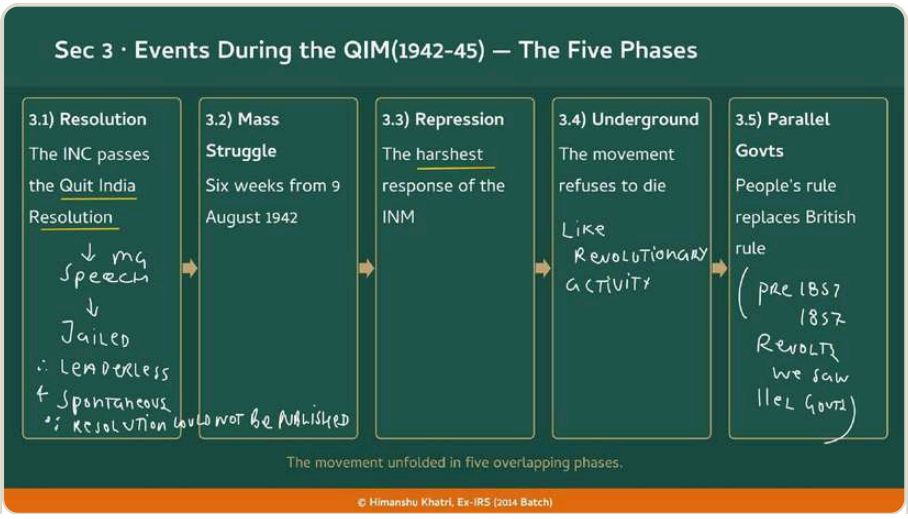
Because every route to a negotiated freedom had closed by 1942, the INC chose a mass movement in the middle of a world war. Ask: why did Gandhi launch it when Japan was at the door?



Teacher's summary tree: why, goal, methods, phases, impact Lecture 41 slide 125

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why launched: context of WW II: Britain wanted Indian support; the INC wanted Purna Swaraj, top unity and democracy in the 565 Princely States. Also the August Offer 1940 and Cripps 1942 failure, war miseries, and Britain running away from Malaya and Burma, which raised the fear of losing the progress of the national movement.
- Goal: immediate Purna Swaraj. Methods: not non-violent; government symbols targeted.
- Phases: 6 weeks of mass struggle, then repression, then underground activity, and here the parallel governments.
- Impact: participation (rural and urban); the first movement to reach the 565 Princely States, which brought unity and independence; the Do or Die call.

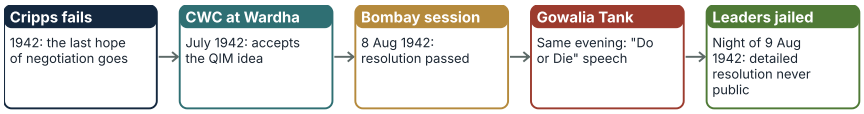


The five phases of QIM with teacher's reasoning notes Lecture 41 slide 98

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Gandhi's speech, then the jailing, so the movement was leaderless and spontaneous, because the resolution would not be published.
- The underground phase (3.4) is like revolutionary activity.
- Parallel governments (3.5): the board links them to the pre-1857 period and the 1857 Revolt, where parallel governments were also seen (check your notebook for the exact wording).

CHAIN: FROM CRIPPS TO GOWALIA TANK



KEY TAKEAWAY

- The detailed resolution never reached the public; only the speech of the evening before did.

1 · What Was the Quit India Movement?

STORY LINK

Because the movement was meant to be total, it reached beyond British India. Ask: who joined, who stayed out, and who named it?

- The QIM (1942-45) holds a special place in the Indian National Movement.
- It was the first mass movement to include the Princely States, making it truly all-India in character. For the first time the people of those states stood alongside British India demanding freedom.
- The phrase "Quit India" was coined by Yusuf Meherally, the same man who had earlier coined "Simon Go Back".

TEACHER'S BOARD

- First mass movement to include the Princely States: this is the line to remember (the board elsewhere writes it as the first to reach the 565 Princely States).
- Yusuf Meherally coined both "Quit India" and "Simon Go Back".

Two forces that stayed out

Force	Why it stayed out
CPI (1925)	The Soviet Union was fighting on the British side in WW II and the CPI followed that line.
Muslim League (1906)	It was against the INC and was calculating its own gains from the British, hoping to extract concessions in exchange for cooperation.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- CPI reason: Soviet Union on the British side. ML reason: gains and concessions from the British in exchange for cooperation.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (PYQ cluster, Sec 1): the handout lists Prelims 2005 as "Cripps failure, AICC Bombay", 2009 as "Do or Die", 2011 as "Yusuf Meherally" and 2013 as "QIM features". The real stems on the slides differ (2005 is Gandhi's eve-of-launch instructions; 2013 is "launched in response to Cripps"). The handout's 2011 cluster also says QIM results = INA + RIN mutiny + Cabinet Mission and Partition, which is not a real stem. Use the stems in the Exam lens table; Meherally is a practice question (FYQ), not a 2011 stem.

2 · Reasons for Launching the QIM

STORY LINK

Because the war had closed every door, three pressures met in 1942. Ask: which of the three made action urgent rather than merely desirable?

- Three pressures came together in 1942 to make action unavoidable.
- First: the Cripps Mission failed (1942).
  - It removed the last hope of a negotiated settlement.
  - It offered vague post-war promises but nothing on real transfer of power during the war.
  - It proved that Britain wanted to keep ruling India on its own terms regardless of Indian opinion.
- Second: popular anger was building fast.
  - War-related inflation squeezed ordinary people hard, with no relief in sight.
  - The cost of living kept rising while British policy ignored it.
- Third: Burma and Malaya were abandoned.
  - Britain abandoned its colonies' people in Burma and Malaya when Japan invaded; Indians feared the same fate.
  - The INC did not want Indians to face a Japanese invasion in low morale and passive helplessness.

- MG's idea: a high-spirited, nationalist people would resist a Japanese invasion far better than a demoralised, colonially exhausted one.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Three pressures: the failure of Cripps removed the last hope of a negotiated settlement; inflation was the second pressure; the INC did not want Indians to face Japan in low morale, so a brave people would resist a Japanese invasion better.

No fixed order in the handout, so the initials are rearranged into CAP.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the Wavell Plan was discussed at the Simla Conference in June 1945 (Wavell 43-47), after the movement; the Cabinet Mission came in 1946. Only Cripps (1942) fits as the trigger.

3 · Events During the QIM (1942)

STORY LINK

Because Gandhi wanted a brave, united people before Japan came, the plan unfolded in five overlapping phases. Ask: what did the public hear, and what stayed private?

- The movement unfolded in five overlapping phases: 3.1 INC Quit India Resolution; 3.2 Mass Struggle Phase (six weeks); 3.3 British Repression; 3.4 Underground Activity; 3.5 Mushrooming of Parallel Governments.

NUMBER CARD · QIM KEY NUMBERS

Resolution day, crushing time, arrests, fast.

8 Aug 1942	Bombay resolution and Do or Die speech; arrests that night
6 weeks	Mass struggle phase crushed
60,000	Arrested by end of 1942
21 days	Gandhi's fast in 1943
3.5 months	Ahmedabad mill strike

3.1 The INC Quit India Resolution

- After the Cripps Mission collapsed, MG drafted a resolution demanding Quit India and committing the INC to non-cooperation against Japan if India were invaded.
- July 1942, Wardha: the Congress Working Committee (CWC) accepted the idea.
- 8 August 1942, Bombay: the INC held a special session, followed by a massive public meeting at Gowalia Tank (Azad Maidan).
- The QIM resolution was passed at the session with the demand for immediate Purna Swaraj.
- At the public meeting the same evening MG gave his historic speech, including "Do or Die" (Karo ya Maro), laying out the plan of action for the public.
- Night of 9 August 1942: the entire top INC leadership was arrested. The detailed resolution could not be made public, so the public only knew what MG said in his speech. Everything not mentioned in it became effectively the private strategy of the movement.

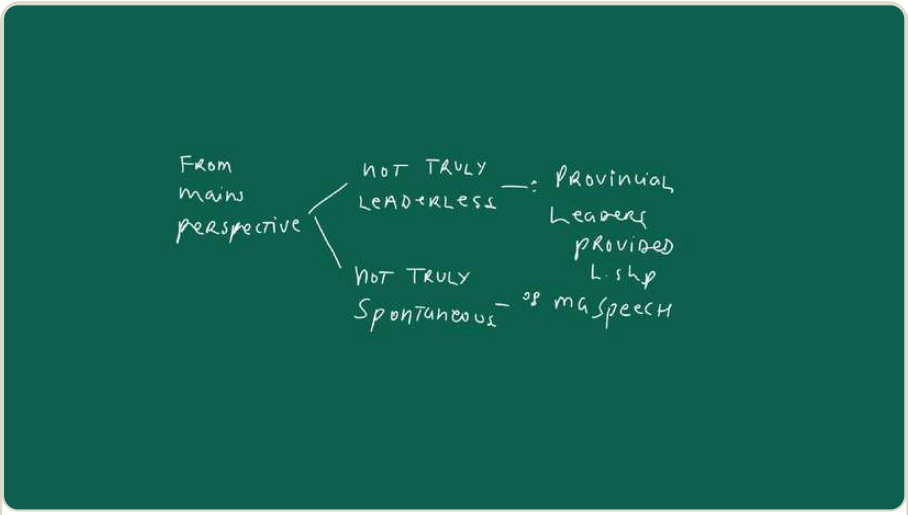
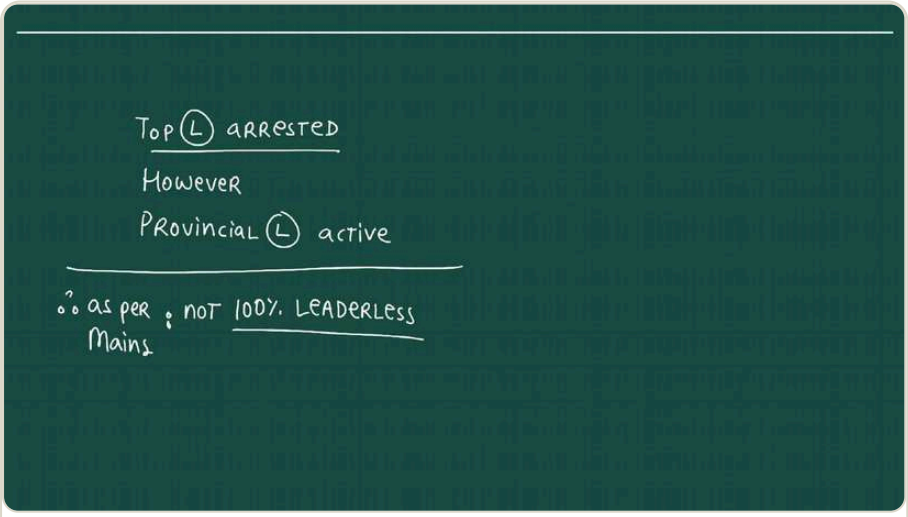
Prelims 2021: what happened on 8 August 1942 Lecture 42 slide 46



Mains view: not truly leaderless, not truly spontaneous Lecture 41 slide 99



Top leaders arrested, provincial leaders active Lecture 41 slide 102

TEACHER'S BOARD

- From the mains perspective: QIM was not truly leaderless, because provincial leaders provided leadership; it was not truly spontaneous, because of MG's speech.
- Top leaders were arrested; however provincial leaders were active, so as per mains it was not 100% leaderless.
- The board dates it: 8 Aug 1942 (the date on the Prelims 2005 stem).

What MG told the public in his speech

Audience	Instruction
i) Government servants	Do not resign. Stay in your posts but declare your loyalty to the INC and to the people of India.
ii) Soldiers	Support Britain against the Fascists (the Allied war effort) but do not fire on your own countrymen.
iii) Students	Leave your studies and join the QIM.
iv) Princes	Accept the sovereignty of your own people and stop supporting the British.
v) People of the Princely States	Declare that you are part of India. Support your prince only if he is anti-British.

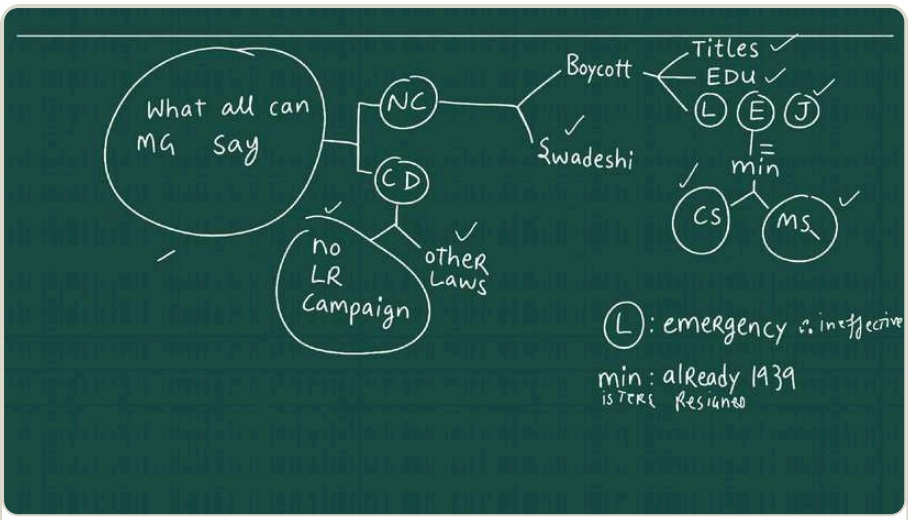
MNEMONIC · GANDHI'S SPEECH TO FIVE GROUPS, IN ORDER

Stay Spare Struggle Pledge Proclaim

Each word is the instruction to each audience.

- S Servants: stay in posts, declare loyalty to INC
- S Soldiers: spare your countrymen, keep fighting Fascists
- S Students: struggle, leave studies and join
- P Princes: pledge to your own people's sovereignty
- P People of States: proclaim you are part of India

Order kept: servants, soldiers, students, princes, people of the states. Prelims 2005 trap: servants were NOT told to resign and soldiers were NOT told to leave posts.



What can Gandhi say: non-cooperation vs civil disobedience options
Lecture 41 slide 104

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The menu of what Gandhi could say: two branches, NC (non-cooperation) and CD (civil disobedience).
- NC: boycott (titles, education, and the L, E, J options) and Swadeshi. CD: no land-revenue campaign and other laws.
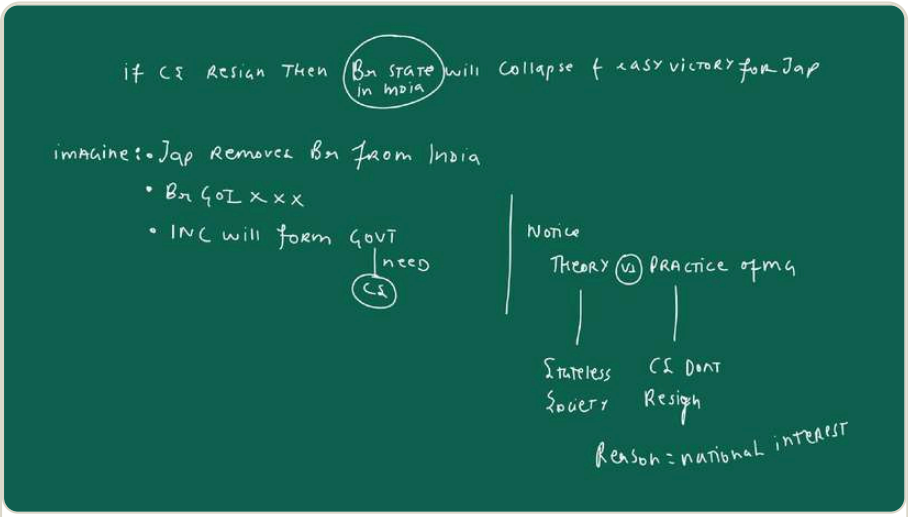
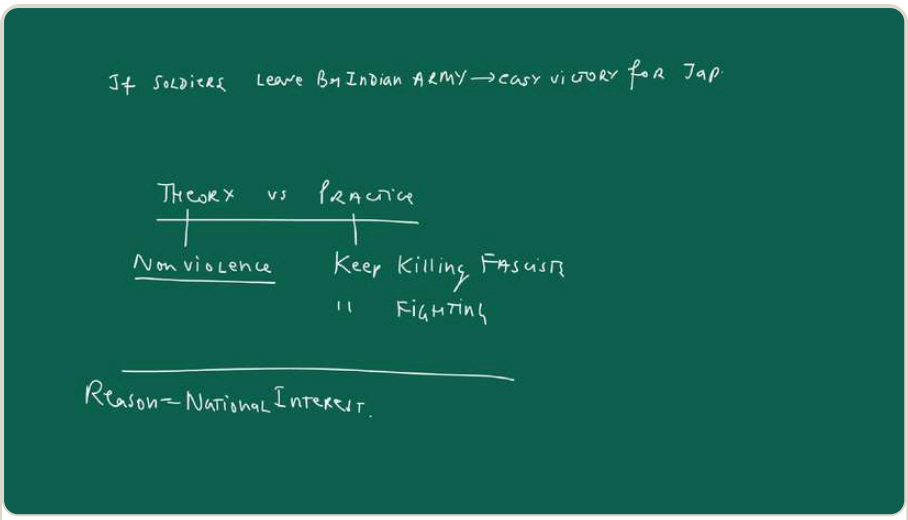
- Why not the others: the L option is ineffective in an emergency; the ministries option is already used, since the ministries resigned in 1939. Civil servants and soldiers are the remaining targets in the speech.
- Check your notebook for the exact expansion of the letters L, E, J, CS and MS.



If civil servants resign, the British state collapses Lecture 41 slide 106



If soldiers leave, easy victory for Japan Lecture 41 slide 107

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Civil servants: if they resign, the British state in India would collapse and Japan would win easily. Imagine Japan removes the British: the British government is gone, the INC must form a government and needs the civil servants. Theory vs practice of MG: theory is a stateless society; practice is that civil servants do not resign. Reason: national interest.
- Soldiers: if they leave the British Indian army it is an easy victory for Japan. Theory vs practice: theory is non-violence; practice is "keep killing Fascists", i.e. fighting. Reason: national interest.

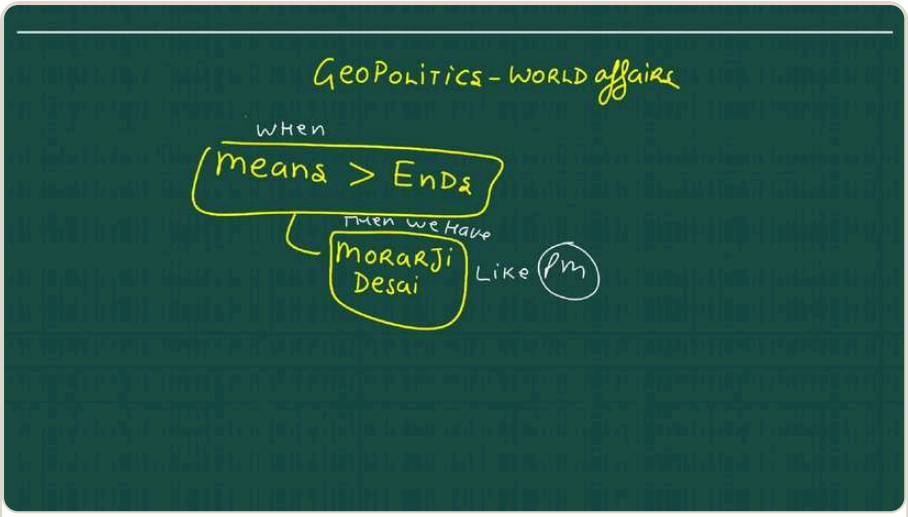
Resolution in two parts: oppose Britain, oppose Japan Lecture 41 slide 108



Geopolitics: when means outrank ends Lecture 41 slide 109

TEACHER'S BOARD

- The QIM resolution has 2 parts: how to oppose the British; how to oppose the Japanese if they come.
- The teacher asks: is justice not on the side of the British in 1942? More so in 1942 than in 1939. That is why soldiers were told to keep supporting the Allied fight against Fascists.
- Geopolitics (world affairs): when means rank above ends you get a Morarji Desai, like a PM; Gandhi in 1942 ranked national interest first.

What the public was NOT told: the plan kept private

Audience	Instruction
i) Peasants	Do not pay land revenue.
ii) Tenants	Pay only a fair rent, and pay it only if your zamindar is anti-British. (First time the INC explicitly raised a no-rent campaign as part of its programme.)
iii) INC's position	Land belongs to its actual tiller.

- Why it matters: the last line was a significant ideological step. The INC was stating for the first time that its vision of a free India included Ryotwari for all, not Zamindari. Quiet, but important.

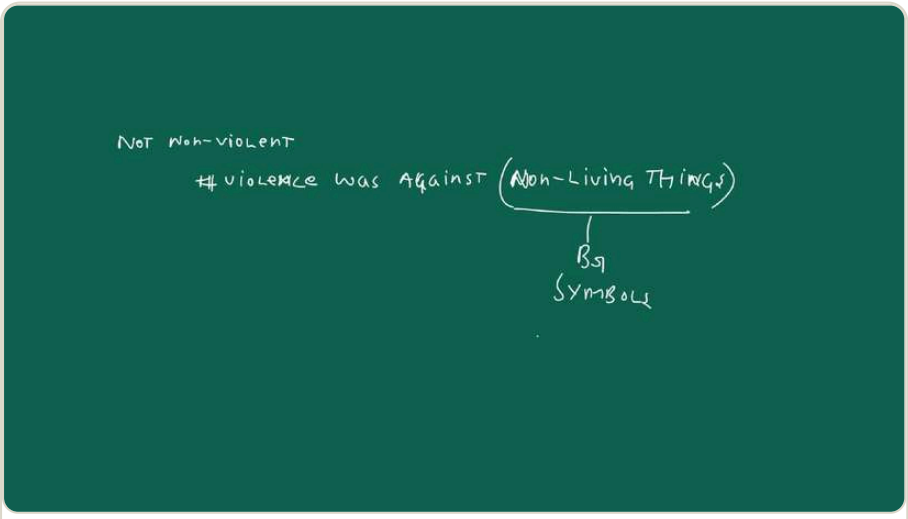
Wars need money: no land revenue hurts the war on Fascists Lecture 41 slide 112

TEACHER'S BOARD

- First time the INC raised a no-rent campaign as programme: "in INM vs Br", i.e. within the national movement against the British.
- Why it was kept off the platform: wars need money, and if people stop paying land revenue it is a big negative for the British war against the Fascists, i.e. an easy victory for Japan.
- Thought: choose the lesser evil in the national interest.

3.2 The Mass Struggle Phase: six weeks from 9 August 1942

- The mass struggle phase was not non-violent. With the entire leadership under arrest, people acted on their own understanding, raw and angry.
- The primary target was the symbols of British authority: crowds removed railway tracks, blew up bridges, cut telephone and telegraph wires, attacked railway stations, police stations, courts and post offices.
- The Tricolour flag was hoisted on trains and public buildings.



Not non-violent: violence was against non-living British symbols Lecture 41 slide 114

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Not non-violent: the violence was against non-living things, i.e. British symbols (bombs, tracks, wires), not against people such as zamindars.

Who participated?

Group	Role
i) Common people	Showed unparalleled heroism and faced the harshest repression yet seen in the entire INM.
ii) Leadership	Passed to provincial and local INC leaders, since the top leadership was behind bars.
iii) Villagers	Joined the urban protesters as news of the arrests spread.
iv) Peasants	The soul of the QIM, especially in eastern UP, Bihar, Midnapore (Bengal) and Satara (Maharashtra). Rich and poor peasants both took part; anger was directed entirely at the British, with no violence against zamindars or moneylenders.
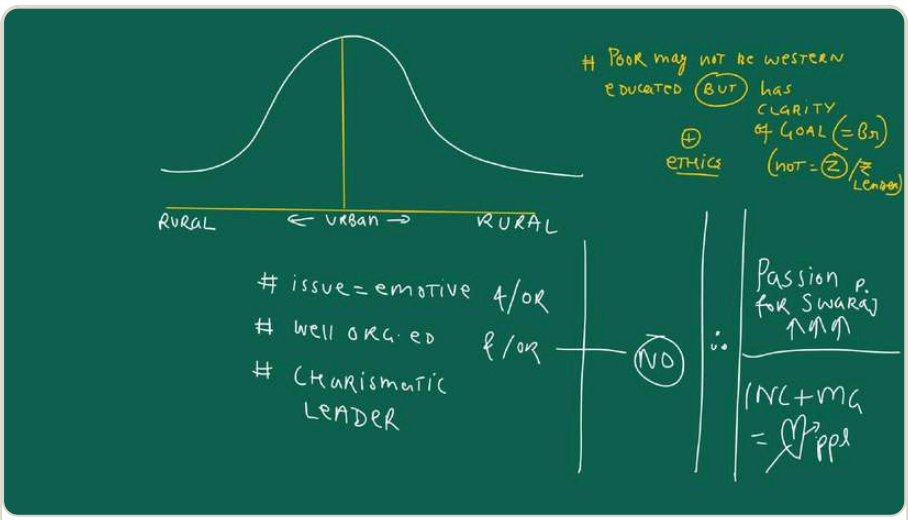
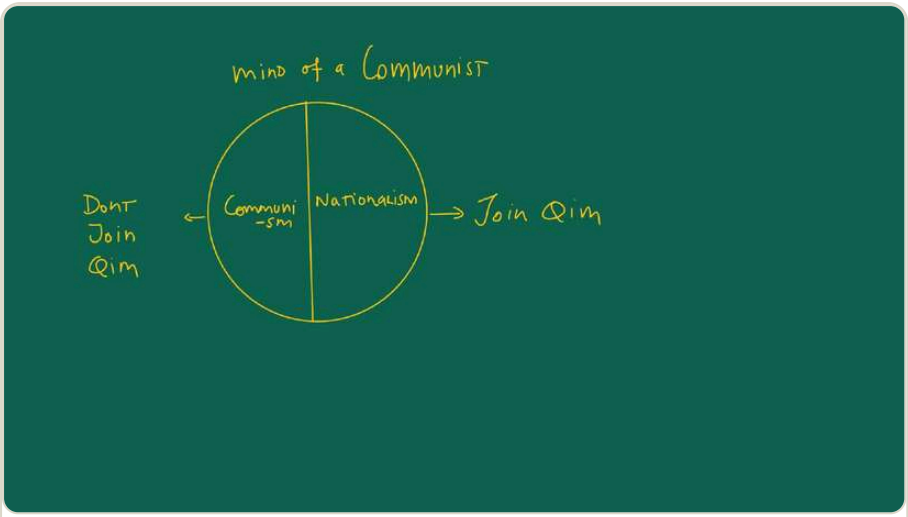
v) Zamindars	Big zamindars stayed neutral and did not help the British either. Smaller zamindars actively participated, especially in UP and Bihar.
vi) Workers	The CPI (1925) did not participate, yet many worker strikes broke out independently. The Ahmedabad mills strike lasted 3.5 months. Hundreds of individual Communists participated despite the CPI's official stand.
vii) Women	School and college girls played a vital role. Aruna Asaf Ali and Sucheta Kriplani were active organisers in the underground phase. Usha Mehta ran the Congress Radio to coordinate underground activities.
viii) Students	Left studies, led processions, distributed illegal patrikas (leaflets) and acted as couriers for the emerging underground networks.
ix) Muslims	Overall participation was not high since the ML (1906) opposed QIM. Yet even ML supporters gave shelter to underground activists and did not act as informers. There was a total absence of communal violence.
x) Most active region	Eastern UP and Bihar: the INC had done the highest level of constructive work there in recent years, which became organised mass participation.



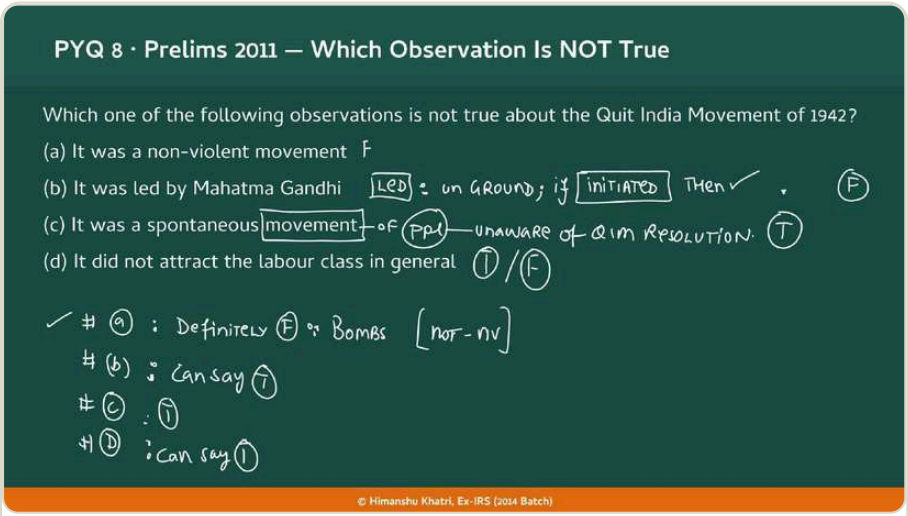
Rural-urban spread and the poor's clarity of goal Lecture 41 slide 117



Mind of a Communist: communism vs nationalism Lecture 41 slide 119

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Rural and urban curve: the poor may not be western-educated, but they have clarity of goal (the British are the enemy) plus ethics, so their anger was not aimed at the zamindar or moneylender.
- Mass movements usually need an emotive issue and/or good organisation and/or a charismatic leader. With the top organisers jailed, the driver here was passion for Swaraj; INC plus MG had won the hearts of the people. Check your notebook for the middle step.
- Mind of a Communist: split between communism (do not join QIM) and nationalism (join QIM). That is why the party stayed out while many Communists joined.
- Handout aside: the handout jokes that Jinnah was wrong, since there was no communal violence.



Prelims 2011: which observation about QIM is NOT true Lecture 42 slide 40

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (Prelims 2011): the slide wording of option (d) is "did not attract the labour class in general"; the companion prints "in particular". "In general" makes (d) true. The slide records that UPSC marked (b), which the author thinks wrong. Use the teacher's board: (a), because the movement used bombs and sabotage.

3.3 British repression

- Repression was immediate and severe: the harshest response to any movement in the history of the INM.
- Legal tools already in place: the Revolutionary Movement Ordinance and the Defence of India Rules (powers of preventive detention).
- Methods: the entire top INC leadership arrested on 9 August itself; the press gagged; machine guns on aircraft; collective fines on villages; whole villages burnt.
- Scale: by the end of 1942, 60,000 people had been arrested.
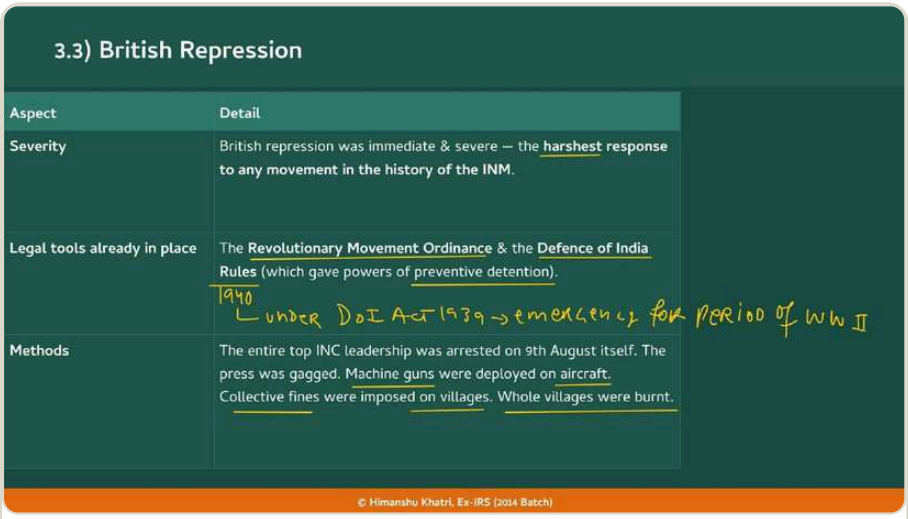
- Outcome: the mass struggle phase was crushed in six weeks. But by going underground the movement refused to die.



Repression: legal tools and the 1940 emergency note Lecture 41 slide 122

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1940: the Defence of India Rules operated under the DoI Act 1939, an emergency for the period of WW II.
- Arithmetic: 60,000 arrests in 5 months is 12,000 per month, about 400 per day.

Mirabehn (Madeleine Slade): Gandhi's English disciple

- Daughter of a British Admiral, Madeleine Slade renounced her life in England to live in Gandhi's Sabarmati ashram from 1925; Gandhi renamed her Mirabehn. She became one of his closest confidants.
- In QIM (1942): a key campaigner, imprisoned alongside Gandhi and other Congress leaders.

- After independence: she took the localised Gandhian ideal into rural development, animal husbandry and environmental sustainability in the Himalayan foothills around Rishikesh and later the Kumaon region. She returned to Europe in 1959.

3.4 The Underground Phase

- When the mass phase was suppressed, the movement shifted underground. Leadership came primarily from the Congress Socialist Party.
- The network was led by: Achyut Patwardhan, Ram Manohar Lohia, Biju Patnaik, Aruna Asaf Ali, Sucheta Kriplani, Chhotu Bhai Puranik, Ramnath Goenka (founder of the Indian Express) and Jayaprakash Narayan (JP).

TEACHER'S MNEMONIC · UNDERGROUND LEADERS

JP Goenka ASA Ram se BaCho

A strange sentence, but it works.

- J JP: Jayaprakash Narayan
- G Goenka: Ramnath Goenka
- A ASA: Aruna Asaf Ali, Sucheta Kriplani, Achyut Patwardhan
- R Ram Manohar Lohia
- S se (connector word)
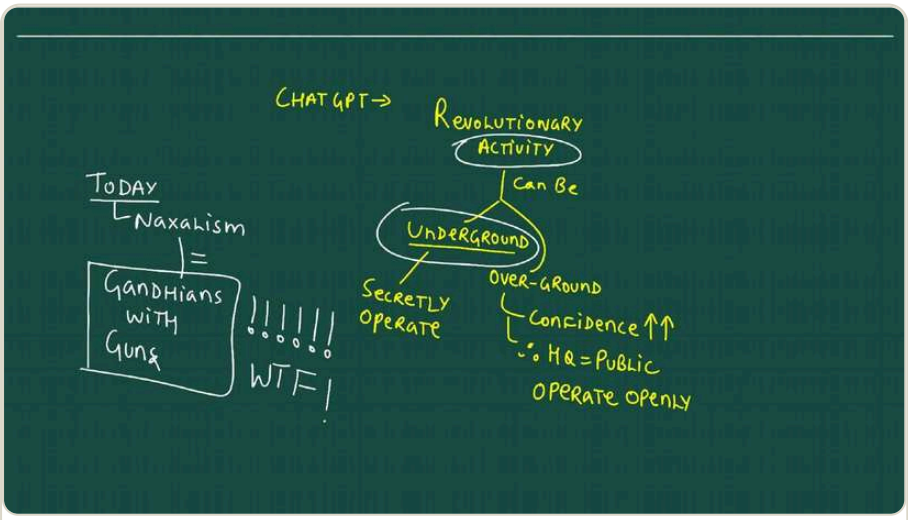
- B BaCho: Biju Patnaik (and Chhotu Bhai Puranik; check your notebook)

Teacher's own mnemonic, unchanged. The handout's expansion lists JP, Goenka, Aruna Asaf Ali, Sucheta, Achyut, Ram Manohar Lohia, Biju; the eighth name, Chhotu Bhai Puranik, is likely the "Cho".



Revolutionary activity: underground vs over-ground Lecture 41 slide 128

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Revolutionary activity can be underground (operate secretly) or over-ground (confidence rises, headquarters is public, operate openly). QIM's 3.4 phase is of the first kind.
- Teacher's aside on Naxalism today ("Gandhians with guns") is a classroom remark, not for exam answers.

What the underground network did

- Supplied bombs and arms to activists.
- Pilots and train drivers delivered these supplies: the underground had penetrated critical British infrastructure.
- Students acted as couriers; villagers refused to give information to the police.
- Government officials and police officers leaked details of impending raids: a sign of how far British authority had eroded within its own apparatus.
- Businessmen donated generously. Sumati Morarjee (later one of India's leading women industrialists) gave Achyut Patwardhan a different car every single day so he could not be tracked.

The boost from MG's fast (1943)

- MG was held at Aga Khan Palace, Pune. The British wanted him to condemn the movement's violence. He refused and began a 21-day fast as a protest against British violence. The British had imprisoned the man but could not imprison the moral argument.
- Two personal losses: secretary Mahadev Desai died on 15 August 1942 in Aga Khan Palace (MG called it losing his right hand); wife Kasturba Gandhi died on 22 February 1944 in the same palace. Both deaths deepened demands for his release.
- Impact of the fast:
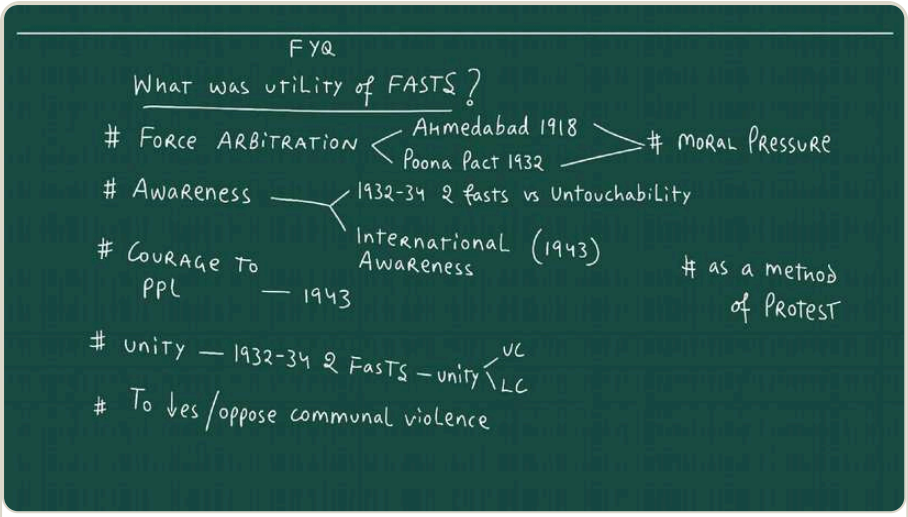
    - A mass upsurge of demonstrations and strikes across the country.
    - Indian members of the Viceroy's Executive Council resigned, not wanting to be held responsible for MG's death.
    - International media focused on British repression in India.
    - Even those who had opposed QIM now demanded MG's release: the fast brought unity the movement itself had struggled to generate.



FYQ board: utility of fasts Lecture 41 slide 136

TEACHER'S BOARD

- FYQ: what was the utility of fasts? (1) Force arbitration (Ahmedabad 1918, Poona Pact 1932), both giving moral pressure. (2) Awareness: the 1932-34 two fasts against untouchability, and international awareness in 1943. (3) Courage to the people (1943). (4) Unity: the 1932-34 fasts, between upper and lower castes. (5) A method of protest. (6) Opposing communal violence (verb unclear, check your notebook).

3.5 The parallel governments

- The most dramatic consequence of the collapse of British authority in certain areas: people's administrations that replaced British rule locally and actually functioned.

Government	Place and period	Key facts
Ballia (the first)	Eastern UP, August 1942	Led by Chittu Pandey. The people overthrew the District Collector and freed INC leaders from jail. Held briefly until British forces returned, then dissolved: short-lived but significant as the first. The British failed to arrest Pandey; he later became a Member of Parliament.
Jatiya Sarkar	Midnapore, Bengal, Dec 1942 to Sep 1944	More sustained. The INC had done extensive constructive work in Midnapore. It set up arbitration courts, gave grants to schools, distributed rice to the poor, gave cyclone relief and had an armed wing, the Vidyut Vahini.
Patri Sarkar (most successful)	Satara, Maharashtra, mid-1943 to 1945	The most successful and long-running. Set up by Nana Patil (earlier Robin Hood-style robberies against colonial targets), guided by Achyut Patwardhan, who earned the title Lion of Satara. YB Chavan was the most important leader until his arrest at the end of 1942.

- The Vidyut Vahini was not just symbolic: it was the enforcement arm of a functioning parallel state, a direct challenge to British sovereignty in the region.
- Why "Patri": the harsh punishment given to those who opposed the parallel government, i.e. government officials and informers who collaborated with the British.
- What the Patri Sarkar did:

- Set up people's courts and village libraries.
- Enforced prohibition on alcohol.
- Organised Gandhi Marriages where Dalits were invited and given proper respect: a direct challenge to caste hierarchy.
- Functioned continuously from mid-1943 to 1945.

- Handout's amusing detail: Nana Achyut Chavan once attended a Gandhi Marriage organised by the Patri Sarkar and brought a book on Patri justice as a gift, because gifting alcohol was prohibited under the Patri Sarkar's own rules.

Lecture 42 slide 16

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (Tamluk, Satara): the handout's PYQ note "Tamluk-Midnapore = Tamralipta Sarkar" is the same body as the Jatiya Sarkar of Midnapore. The Prelims 2000 key mentions Tamluk, Satara and Balia (Ballia). The companion's mains outline adds Talcher and a few numbers that are not in the handout; stay with the handout.
- Handout vs board (Patri Sarkar): the handout says YB Chavan led it until his arrest at the end of 1942, though the Sarkar began in mid-1943. The board resolves it: then Achyut took over the guiding role.

4 · Was the QIM Spontaneous?

STORY LINK

Because the leaders vanished on night one, it looked spontaneous. Ask: if the leaders were gone, what kept the people moving?

- Yes and no.
- It appeared spontaneous: the arrests of 9 August meant the public did not know the full plan, so it was leaderless at the top.
- But not unorganised from below: since the Nagpur Session of 1920 MG had systematically strengthened the INC at the grassroots; the Individual Satyagraha of 1940-41 kept the tempo alive; decades of constructive work trained ordinary people to act.

- Verdict: leaderless at the top, yes. Rootless, no.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- On the board the answer is split two ways: not truly leaderless (provincial leaders gave leadership) and not truly spontaneous (Gandhi's speech). Also: leaderless and spontaneous because the resolution was not published.
- Prelims 2011: the movement was a spontaneous one of people who were unaware of the QIM resolution, so that observation is true.

5 · How Did the QIM End?

STORY LINK

Because the war was ending and Japan's threat had faded, the cause for a violent revival weakened. Ask: why did Gandhi choose constructive work after his release?

- May 1944: MG was released from detention on health grounds. He turned to constructive work.
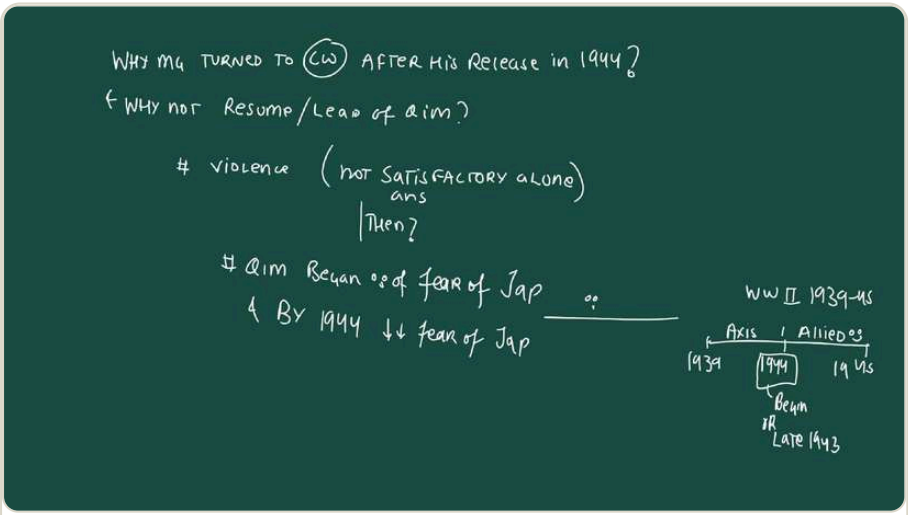
- June 1945: with the end of WW II all INC leaders were released to take part in the Simla Conference (June 1945). This formally marked the end of the QIM.
- Germany surrendered in May 1945; Japan surrendered in September 1945. Britain's position in India was never the same again.



Why Gandhi turned to constructive work after release in 1944 Lecture 42 slide 12

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Why constructive work, not resuming QIM? Violence alone was not satisfactory. QIM began out of fear of Japan, and by 1944 that fear had fallen as the war turned (the board marks the turn at 1944 or late 1943; check your notebook).

Prelims 2017: second RTC, QIM, RIN mutiny in order Lecture 42 slide 107

- Sequence boards: AO 1940, QIM 1942-45, INA trial late 1945-46, RIN revolt 1946 (Prelims 1998 answer 1-3-2-4). Second RTC 1931 (1930, 31, 32), QIM Aug 1942, RIN mutiny Feb 1946 (Prelims 2017 answer 3-2-1).

6 · Results and Significance of the QIM

STORY LINK

Because the movement was crushed yet changed British minds, its result was psychological. Ask: how does a movement that fails on the ground still win?

- The QIM did not achieve immediate independence, but it produced a psychological paradigm shift, both within India and in the British mind, that made the end of colonial rule inevitable.

- i) India proved ungovernable by force.
  - Parallel governments functioned for months, underground networks could not be dismantled, ordinary people chose arrest over submission: no repression could hold India indefinitely.
  - The British administrative machinery, stretched thin by war, could no longer sustain the fiction of stable governance.
- ii) The loyalty of the British administrative machinery broke.
  - Officials leaked raid plans, police turned a blind eye, Indian members of the Viceroy's Executive Council resigned.
  - The steel frame that held British India together for nearly a century was rusting from within.
- iii) Parallel governments showed Indians could self-govern.
  - Jatiya Sarkar, Patri Sarkar and even brief Ballia proved ordinary Indians could set up courts, distribute relief, enforce law and administer territory.
  - The British argument that India was "not ready" for self-rule lost its credibility.
- iv) International attention shifted decisively.
  - MG's fast, 60,000 arrests by end of 1942, and aircraft machine guns against civilians got global coverage.
  - The United States, an ally of Britain but uncomfortable with colonialism, began applying pressure; Britain's moral authority was publicly questioned as never before.
- v) The movement unified forces that had been fragmented.
  - Even earlier opponents, including some who criticised MG for launching it, rallied behind the demand for his release and an end to repression.
  - Post-1942 consensus: independence was no longer a matter of whether, but when.

MNEMONIC · FIVE RESULTS OF QIM

R U L E S

Who rules India after 1942? Not the British.

- R Raj could not rule by force: India ungovernable
- U Unity: opponents rallied for Gandhi's release
- L Loyalty of the machinery broke
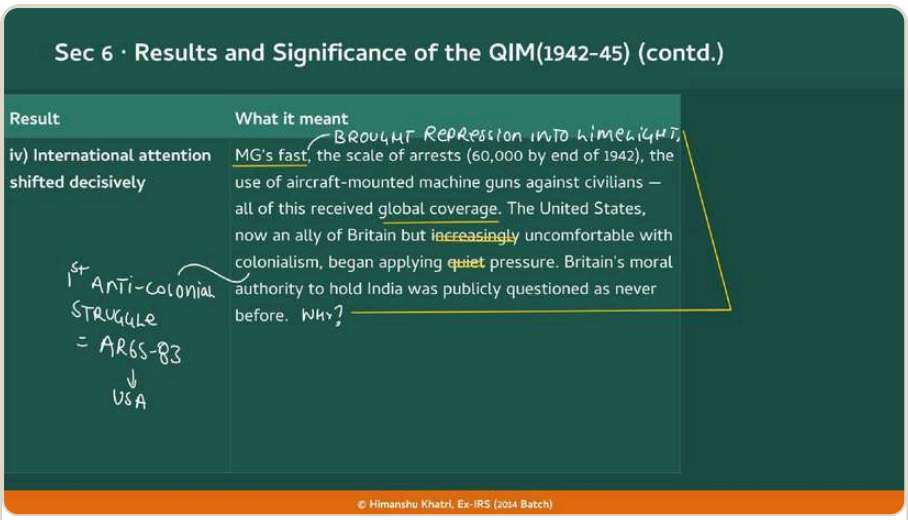
- E Eyes of the world: international attention
- S Self-rule proved by parallel governments

The handout lists these five in a different order (i to v); initials rearranged into RULES.



International attention: American Revolution 1765-83 as first anti-colonial struggle Lecture 42 slide 17

TEACHER'S BOARD

- QIM combined with the INA (1942-45) gives the full result picture.
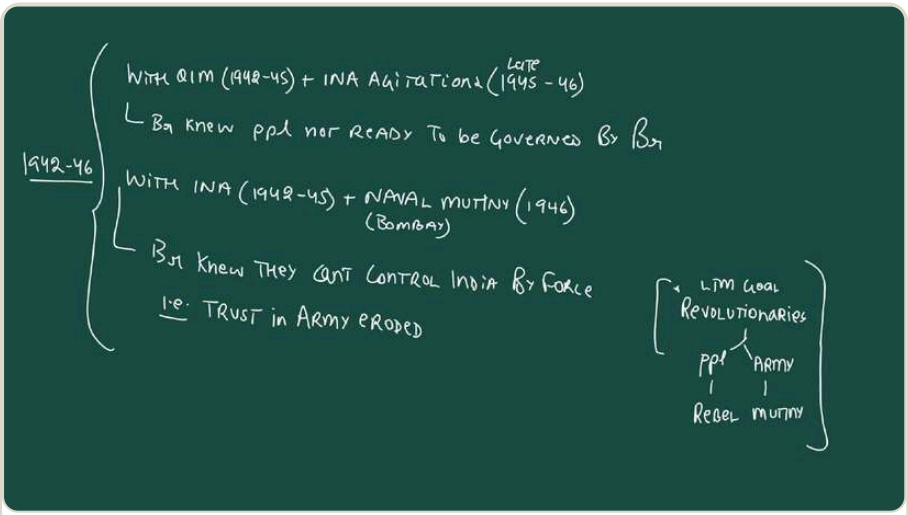
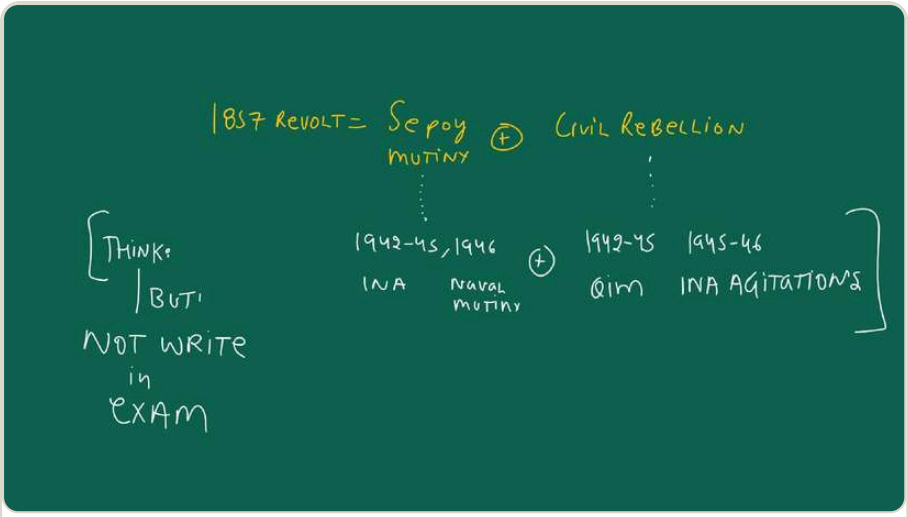
- Parallel governments (iii): the board sets the Congress ministries (1937-39) alongside the parallel governments of QIM 1942-45 as examples of Indians governing themselves.
- International attention (iv): QIM brought repression into the limelight. Why would the USA care? The first anti-colonial struggle was the American Revolution (1765-83).
- The board drops the handout words "increasingly" and "quiet" in the US line: learn it as the US being uncomfortable with colonialism and pressing Britain.
- CDM vs QIM: the first move to gain international attention was the CDM.



How 1942-46 made the British know they could not stay Lecture 42 slide 20



1857 as mutiny plus civil rebellion, paralleled in 1942-46 Lecture 41 slide 129

TEACHER'S BOARD

- 1942-46: QIM (1942-45) plus the INA agitations (late 1945-46): the British knew the people were not ready to be governed by the British. INA (1942-45) plus the Naval Mutiny (Bombay, 1946): the British knew they could not control India by force, i.e. trust in the army eroded.
- The board's revolutionaries' goal: the people rebel, the army mutinies (check your notebook for the label).
- 1857 parallel: 1857 Revolt = sepoy mutiny plus civil rebellion. Sepoy mutiny side: INA and Naval Mutiny (1942-45, 1946). Civil rebellion side: QIM (1942-45) and INA agitations (1945-46). The board says think this, but do not write it in the exam.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Closing verdict: if the CDM (1930-34) made the world notice India's demand, the QIM made the world accept that it could not be denied. The British left in 1947 not out of generosity but because after 1942 they knew they could not stay.

MODERN INDIAN HISTORY · CHAPTER 45

Bengal Famine (1943), INA & Naval Mutiny

Class slides + handout | Handout pp. 1-5 | High priority

Prelims PYQs: 2000, 2005, 2008 (x2), 2017, 2021

Mains PYQ: 1 (naval mutiny)

Exam lens

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Date trap: the INA existed from September 1942 under Mohan Singh at Singapore. 1943 was only a change of leadership (R.B. Bose, then Netaji in July 1943). PYQ 2000 asks 'came into existence in 1943 in' and the answer is Singapore.
- Free Indian Legion = Germany = Netaji, raised from Indian PoWs (PYQ 2008). Azad Hind Radio (1942) is from the same Germany phase.
- Red Fort trial, November 1945: Shah Nawaz Khan, Prem Sehgal, Gurbaksh Singh Dhillon (Muslim, Hindu, Sikh) are INA officers (PYQ 2021). Defence: Bhulabhai Desai, Tej Bahadur Sapru, Nehru, Asaf Ali.
- Naval mutiny: HMIS Talwar, Bombay, February 1946; HMIS Hindustan at Karachi; 78 ships, 20 shore establishments, about 20,000 sailors (PYQ 2005). Order for PYQ 2017: 2nd Round Table Conference (1931), then Quit India (1942), then Naval Mutiny (1946).
- Famine: man-made, not crop failure; about 5 million died; four causes; Woodhead Commission (1945); Amartya Sen entitlement failure; link to Tebhaga (1946-47, half to one-third).

MAINS HOOKS

- Mains PYQ (guiding theme): 'In what ways did the naval mutiny prove to be the last nail in the coffin of British colonial aspirations in India?' Skeleton: INA trials spread sympathy to the forces; ratings' three grievances; tricolour, INA, Congress and League flags together; RIAF sympathy strikes; 'martial races' myth shattered; the Raj rested on Indian soldiers used against Indians; the signal that transfer of power could not be postponed.
- Themes: famine as colonial neglect (Churchill, diversion, Sen's entitlement view); INA as a military route to freedom and its limits (ally discrimination, Imphal failure); communal unity in the INA agitations; armed forces as the last prop of the Raj.

Teacher's title board says the chapter is not important at the exam, yet five Prelims PYQs sit in it: learn the dated fact lists, skip the storytelling.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: In 1943 Bengal starved while food was sent to feed the army: a man-made famine that turned Indian opinion, and British opinion, against the Raj. Japan's sweep through Malaya, Singapore and Burma gave Indian PoWs and expatriates a chance: Mohan Singh built the INA, R.B. Bose held it, and Netaji gave it money, regiments and a Provisional Government. The INA failed at Imphal, but its soldiers, tried at the Red Fort in November 1945, became national heroes and produced the greatest unity of the freedom movement. That sympathy reached the Royal Indian Navy in February 1946; once sailors and airmen defied the Raj, the British saw that the army could no longer be trusted and that transfer of power could not wait.

1 A famine with no shortage. In 1943 roughly 5 million Indians died in Bengal although crops had not failed. Food from India was sent to feed British soldiers and Europeans, Burma's imports stopped after Japan took it in March 1942, logistics were run badly, and war speculation made prices unaffordable.

→ So Indians felt their lives ranked below European lives, but the inquiry that followed did not fix the blame.

2 The inquiry and the economist. The Famine Inquiry Commission (1945) under Sir John Woodhead blamed natural factors and supply disruption and let the administration off. Decades later Amartya Sen showed it was a failure of entitlement: wages collapsed, prices soared, procurement drained rural markets.

→ But the famine was only one wound; the same war was cracking British power in South-East Asia.

3 Japan topples the British in Asia. Japan took Malaya in January 1942, Singapore in February and Burma in March. Territories held for decades fell in weeks, and thousands of Indian soldiers were now Prisoners of War.

→ So Captain Mohan Singh saw a chance to turn the PoWs into an Indian army.

4 Mohan Singh builds the INA. After Singapore fell, Mohan Singh persuaded the Japanese to hand over Indian PoWs; 40,000 in Singapore joined and the First Division was formed in September 1942. In June 1942 expatriates had set up the Indian Independence League at Bangkok as the political wing. In December 1942 Mohan Singh was arrested for demanding real autonomy.

→ But the army needed a leader, and the old Ghadar revolutionary Rash Behari Bose took it over in early 1943.

5 Netaji's long road. Bose broke with the Gandhian leadership, formed the Forward Bloc (May 1939) and left the Congress after Tripuri. Arrested in July 1940, he fled house arrest in January 1941 via Afghanistan and the USSR to Germany by March 1941, where he ran Azad Hind Radio and raised the Free Indian Legion from Indian PoWs.

→ Yet Hitler saw Indians as an inferior race, so Bose left Germany in February 1943 for Japan's side of the war.

6 Netaji takes over the INA. He crossed the Indian Ocean from a German to a Japanese submarine and reached Singapore in July 1943, where he took over the IIL and the INA from Rash Behari Bose. He raised money from NRIs, formed the Rani Jhansi, Gandhi and Nehru regiments and got Tojo's assurance that Japan would not annex India.

→ With funds and an assurance in hand, he declared a government.

7 A Provisional Government and the Andamans. On 21 October 1943 Netaji set up the Provisional Government of Free India with INA headquarters in Rangoon and Singapore. The INA liberated the Andaman and Nicobar Islands; Bose raised the flag there on 29-31 December 1943 and renamed them Shaheed Dweep and Swaraj Dweep.

→ But a flag is not a campaign; the test was the Indian border.

8 Imphal fails, Japan surrenders. In 1944 the INA and Japan attacked towards Kohima and Imphal and failed; INA soldiers were even short-changed on weapons and supplies. Japan surrendered on 15 August 1945 and a reported plane crash at Taihoku on 18 August 1945 is said to have killed Netaji.

→ The soldiers were now prisoners, and the British decided to try them.

9 The Red Fort trials backfire. In November 1945 Shah Nawaz Khan, Prem Sehgal and Gurbaksh Singh Dhillon were tried at the Red Fort. The British had miscalculated: the country rose, spontaneously and across communities, and even officials gave money. The Congress made the INA a campaign issue, defended the accused under Bhulabhai Desai and ran an INA Relief Committee.

→ That sympathy was strongest inside the forces, and in February 1946 the navy moved.

10 HMIS Talwar and the Naval Mutiny. In February 1946 ratings on HMIS Talwar struck over fear of unemployment, poor conditions and racial pay, and INA inspiration. They raised the tricolour with INA, Congress and League flags, wrote 'Quit India' on ships and toured Bombay with Netaji's pictures. The CPI backed them, Bombay's workers struck, and Aruna Asaf Ali led them against Gandhi's and the Congress's advice.

→ Congress and League withdrew support and Patel and Jinnah calmed the ratings, but the damage to British confidence was done.

11 The signal that ended the Raj's confidence. With RIAF strikes too, the 'martial races' myth broke and the British saw that the armed forces, the last reliable instrument, were cracking. The Cabinet Mission arrived the very day the mutiny began in Bombay, and this was one of the key factors that made transfer of power impossible to postpone.

In simple words

- The 1943 Bengal Famine was man-made: crops did not fail, but food was sent to the army and Europeans, Burma's rice stopped, logistics broke and speculation raised prices. About 5 million died.
- Sen's idea: people starved because they lost their entitlement to food (wages collapsed, prices soared, procurement drained villages), not because food ran out.
- The INA was born in 1942 from Indian PoWs at Singapore under Mohan Singh; 1943 brought a change of leaders: R.B. Bose, then Netaji in July 1943.
- The IIL (Bangkok, June 1942) is the political wing and the INA is its military wing: two wings, one purpose.
- Netaji funded the INA with Indian money, raised the Rani Jhansi Regiment, and declared the Provisional Government (21 October 1943).
- The Red Fort trials (November 1945) backfired: they created the maximum unity of the freedom movement and the people, not any party, led the agitation.
- The Naval Mutiny (February 1946) began on HMIS Talwar, Bombay; it spread to 78 ships, 20 shore establishments, about 20,000 sailors.
- Navy plus RIAF strikes broke the martial races myth: the Raj used Indians against Indians, and that instrument cracked.

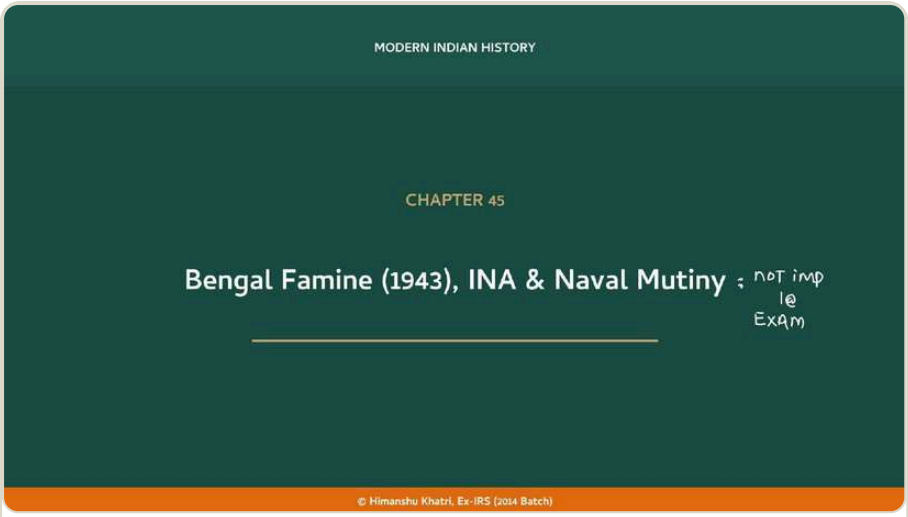
0 · The chapter on one board

STORY LINK

Because the war pulled Britain's attention, food and army to the East, 1943 brought famine at home and an Indian army abroad. Ask: how did three events in four years leave Britain unable to trust its own forces?



Chapter title board with the teacher's exam-weight remark Lecture 42 slide 49

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the chapter is not important at the exam.
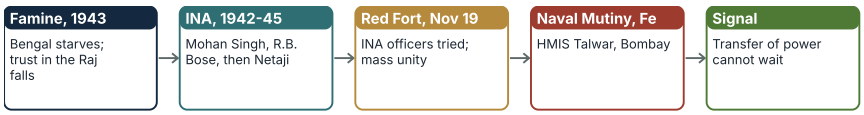
- Reasoning in practice: the content is a set of short fact lists (dates, names, numbers) that Prelims asks as one-liners, not a chapter to argue at length.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (weight): the teacher's remark sits against a dense PYQ record: Prelims 2000, 2005, 2008 (Free Indian Legion), 2017 and 2021 all map to this chapter. Priority is marked H because of those PYQs; revise the fact lists, skip the narrative.

CHAIN: FROM FAMINE TO THE END OF CONFIDENCE



1 · Bengal Famine (1943)

STORY LINK

Because Britain put its army and Europeans first, Bengal's food left and nothing replaced it. Ask: if crops did not fail, why did 5 million die?

1.1 Was there actually a food shortage?

- No. The most important point: the Bengal Famine of 1943 was not caused by a failure of crops.
- It was a man-made famine; roughly 5 million Indians died.

- Four factors combined:
    - Food diverted to Europe: supplies from India, including Bengal, went to feed British soldiers and European civilians; the needs of the army and Europeans were given priority over Indian lives.
    - Burma occupied, March 1942: Japan's occupation of Burma stopped Bengal's food imports from Burma entirely.
    - Poor logistics and supply chains: the government managed distribution badly, so whatever food existed was distributed chaotically.
    - War-driven speculation: prices rose beyond what ordinary people could afford.

MNEMONIC · FOUR CAUSES OF THE FAMINE

Not a slab of food reached the poor: grain was locked away or sent off.

S Speculation drove prices up
L Logistics and supply chains mismanaged
A Army and Europeans given priority (food diverted)
B Burma imports stopped (Japan, March 1942)

The four causes have no fixed order on the board, so the initials are rearranged into SLAB.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: cause (i) stresses that the needs of the army and Europeans came first; cause (ii) stresses food imports from Burma stopping entirely.
- Reasoning: these two are the political decisions behind a famine with no crop failure, so they carry the 'man-made' argument.

1.2 Impact

- The famine produced a deep and lasting distrust of British rule among Indians, and not without reason: European lives were visibly prioritised above Indian ones and the government did little by way of relief.
- Viceroy Linlithgow 36-43 did request food for India and proposed a ban on food exports from Bengal.
- Prime Minister Churchill denied both, and reportedly asked whether Gandhi was still alive or had died in his ongoing fast unto death (1943).
- In Britain, Churchill was compared to Hitler for this.
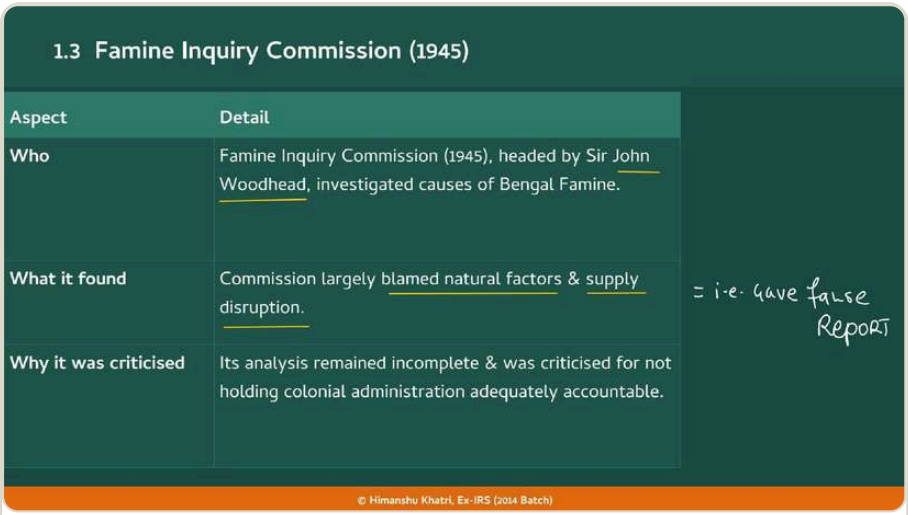
- British opinion shifted: by 1943, most British politicians were sympathetic to Indian independence, and the famine accelerated that shift.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the board stresses 'among Indians' (distrust), Linlithgow's request for food and ban on Bengal's exports, Churchill, and that by 1943 most British politicians were sympathetic to independence.
- Reasoning: the exam-worthy contrast is Viceroy asked, Prime Minister refused; and the famine shifted opinion in Britain itself, not only in India.

1.3 Famine Inquiry Commission (1945) and Amartya Sen's analysis



Famine Inquiry Commission: findings and the teacher's verdict Lecture 42 slide 55

Aspect	Woodhead Commission (1945)	Amartya Sen (decades later)
Who	Famine Inquiry Commission headed by Sir John Woodhead	Nobel laureate economist
Explanation	Largely blamed natural factors and supply disruption	'Entitlement failure': not insufficient food in Bengal
Verdict on administration	Incomplete analysis; criticised for not holding the colonial administration accountable	Large sections of people lost their entitlement to food: wages collapsed, prices skyrocketed through speculation, government procurement drained food from rural markets
Core point	Nature and supply	A failure of access, not of supply

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the Woodhead Commission 'blamed natural factors and supply disruption', i.e. it gave a false report.
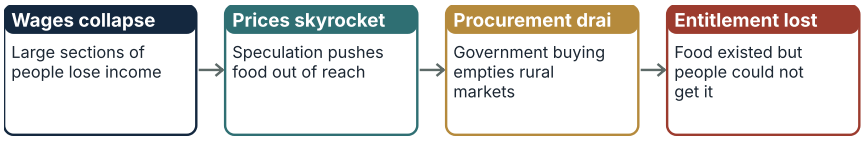
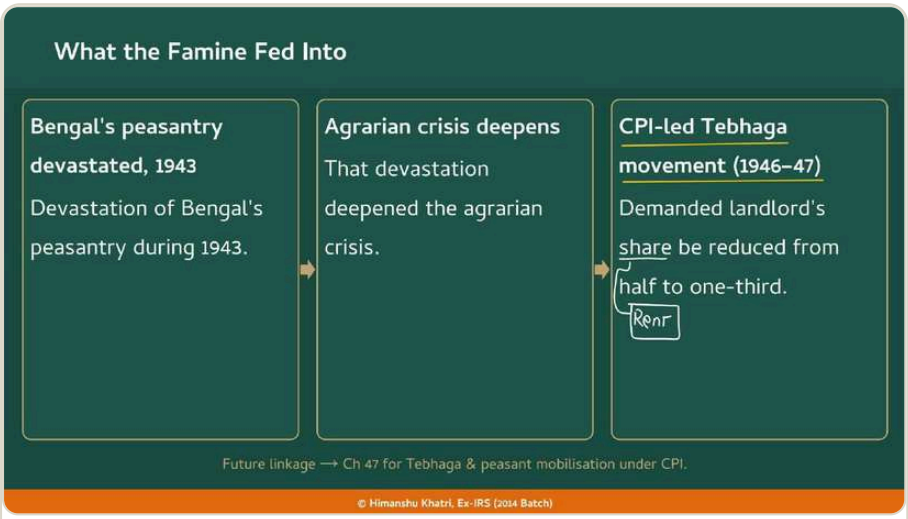
- Reasoning: the famine was man-made with no crop failure (1.1), so blaming nature contradicts the facts. Stress on the name John Woodhead.

CHAIN: SEN'S ENTITLEMENT COLLAPSE



- Sen's insight, that famines come from entitlement collapse rather than absolute shortage, became one of the most influential ideas in development economics.



What the famine fed into: Tebhaga movement Lecture 42 slide 58

- The devastation of Bengal's peasantry in 1943 deepened the agrarian crisis, which fuelled the CPI-led Tebhaga movement (1946-47).
- Tebhaga demanded that the landlord's share be reduced from half to one-third.
- Future linkage: Chapter 47 for Tebhaga and peasant mobilisation under the CPI.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: on the Tebhaga box the board stresses 'CPI-led Tebhaga movement (1946-47)' and notes that the landlord's share here means rent.
- Reasoning: link famine to rural unrest; the half-to-one-third cut is the rent claim.

HANDOUT ALERT

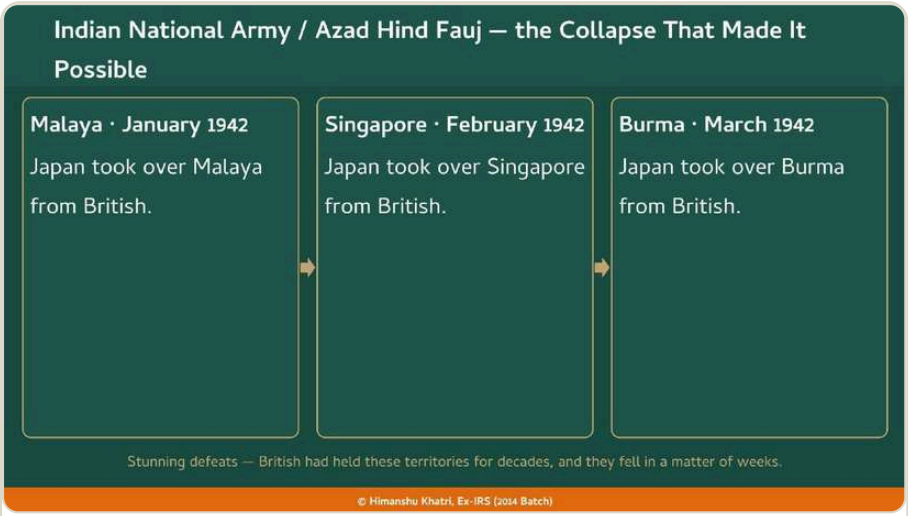
- Handout alert: the handout cites 'Prelims 2008' for the famine's administrative causes and Sen's framework, but the Companion's PYQ list has no famine question (its two 2008 PYQs are Simla/VEC and Free Indian Legion). Treat famine as a facts-list topic with no teacher-marked PYQ.

2 · Indian National Army / Azad Hind Fauj (1942-1945)

STORY LINK

Because Japan overran British Asia in weeks, thousands of Indian PoWs and expatriates suddenly had a chance to fight for India's freedom. Ask: who built the INA, and why does 1943 mislead?

2.1 How did the INA come into existence?



Japan's three conquests: Malaya, Singapore, Burma, 1942 Lecture 42 slide 59

- The INA's birth is tied to the collapse of British power in South-East Asia: Japan took Malaya (January 1942), Singapore (February) and Burma (March) from the British. These were stunning defeats of territories held for decades, lost in a matter of weeks.
- After the fall of Singapore (February 1942), Captain Mohan Singh conceived the INA by organising Indian PoWs; its First Division was formally set up in September 1942.
- He approached the Japanese army and convinced them to hand over Indian PoWs: 40,000 PoWs in Singapore joined.
- In December 1942 the Japanese arrested Mohan Singh: he had demanded a primary role and genuine autonomy for the INA in any attack on British India, which created friction.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims trap: 1942, not 1943. Mohan Singh conceived and first organised the INA in 1942; it existed from September 1942. In 1943 only the leadership changed, first to Rash Behari Bose and then to Netaji. Saying the INA 'came into existence' in 1943 is wrong, though the PYQ 2000 stem words it that way; the answer is Singapore.

MNEMONIC · INA LEADERSHIP IN ORDER

Many Rise Nobly

- M Mohan Singh (1942)
- R Rash Behari Bose (early 1943)
- N Netaji (July 1943)

Order kept: Mohan Singh, then R.B. Bose, then Netaji.

- In June 1942, motivated by Japanese victories, independence-minded NRIs, mainly Pritam Singh, Swami Satyananda Puri and others, set up the Indian Independence League (IIL) at Bangkok, Thailand.
- IIL = political organisation; INA = its military arm: two wings, one purpose.
- Meanwhile, in August 1942 the Quit India Movement began in India.
- In early 1943 an aged Rash Behari Bose, who had escaped to Japan after the Ghadar Movement (1913-15), took over the INA and reorganised it.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the board stresses the NRI founders (Pritam Singh, Swami Satyananda Puri), the IIL at Bangkok, and the split IIL = political, INA = military.
- Reasoning: IIL versus INA and Bangkok versus Singapore are the easy ways to build a wrong option.

2.2 Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose and the INA

- Bose's story is one of the most remarkable individual journeys in the entire Indian National Movement.
- He had already broken with the Gandhian leadership before the Tripuri session.
- In May 1939 he founded the Forward Bloc within Congress, to consolidate left and radical elements opposed to the Gandhian old guard's dominance. It advocated a more militant approach and sought to rally socialists, communists and other anti-imperialist groups into a unified front.
- The Forward Bloc was founded while Bose was still technically in the Congress, so it preceded his formal resignation; after his departure from India its organisational strength declined significantly.
- At the Tripuri session (1939) he was elected President for a consecutive second term, after Haripura (1938). His differences with the Gandhian leadership were irreconcilable and he had to leave the INC.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (Tripuri date): the handout writes 'December 1939', while the board gives only '1939'. Use 1939 and check your notebook for the month. Do not place Tripuri after May 1939 in a timeline question without checking.

The odyssey, 1940 to 1943

Bose's escape route: arrest to Germany, 1940-41 Lecture 42 slide 68

- July 1940: the British arrested him as a political threat; he favoured a movement to overthrow British rule directly.
- January 1941: failing health from a hunger strike forced his release into house arrest in Calcutta.
- He escaped disguised as an Afghan to Afghanistan, crossed into the USSR, then travelled as 'Orlando Mazzotta' to Italy, and reached Germany in March 1941.
- 1942, Germany: he set up Azad Hind Radio, broadcasting to India to lift the morale of those in the Quit India Movement (1942-45).

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Bose also raised an army in Germany called the 'Free Indian Legion', and the board adds that it was raised from Indian PoWs.
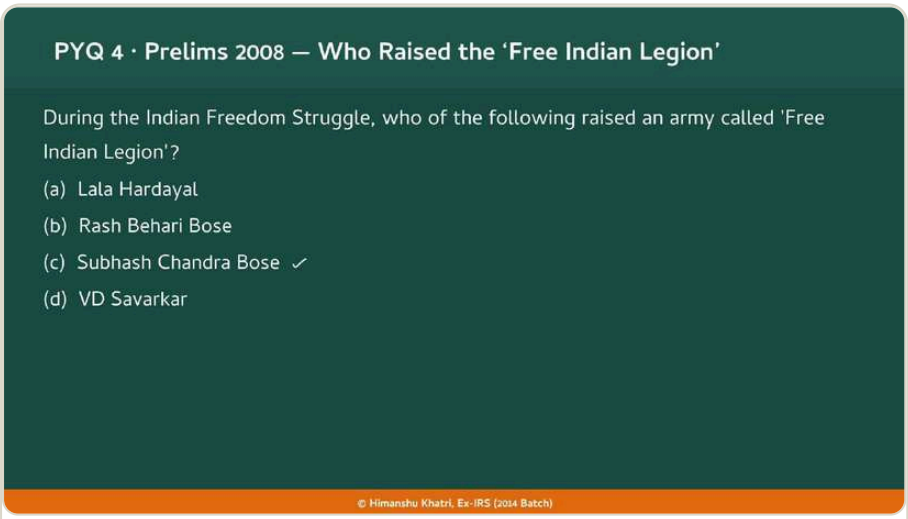
- Reasoning: PYQ 2008 asks who raised the Free Indian Legion; Germany plus Indian PoWs plus Netaji, not R.B. Bose and not the Ghadar leaders.



PYQ 2008: who raised the Free Indian Legion Lecture 42 slide 104

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout body mentions Azad Hind Radio but not the Free Indian Legion; the class slides add it. Follow the slides (and the PYQ 2008 key): Free Indian Legion = Germany = Subhas Chandra Bose.

- February 1943: he left Germany, having found Hitler a racist who regarded the British as a ruling race and Indians as not. Bose needed allies, not patrons who looked down on India.

- In the Indian Ocean he transferred from a German submarine to a Japanese one and reached Singapore in July 1943, where, in a ceremony, he took over the IIL and the INA from the aged R.B. Bose.

Germany to Singapore: submarine transfer and takeover, July 1943 Lecture 42 slide 71

- Netaji began a rapid expansion of the INA. He raised huge funds from NRIs, deliberately wanting the INA funded by Indian money, not dependent on Japan.
- He raised the Rani Jhansi Regiment, an all-women NRI regiment. The symbolism: revolutionaries always held the 1857 revolt as a reference point and the Rani of Jhansi was its most iconic symbol.
- The INA also had a Gandhi Regiment and a Nehru Regiment.
- He extracted from General Tojo the assurance: 'Japan does not want to annex India post victory.' This ensured the INA's fight was for Indian independence, not a Japanese empire.
- 21 October 1943: Netaji established the Provisional Government of Free India, with INA headquarters in Rangoon (Burma) and Singapore. He called it 'provisional' deliberately: he believed a permanent government could only be a democratically elected one.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the board stresses Singapore, July 1943, the IIL and R.B. Bose in the takeover; huge funds from NRIs; the Rani Jhansi (women NRI) Regiment; the Gandhi and Nehru Regiments; and 21 October 1943 with Rangoon and Singapore.
- Reasoning: Netaji's takeover (Singapore, July 1943) and the Provisional Government (21 October 1943) are the two 1943 dates that answer the 'when did the INA start' trap.

2.3 The Andaman and Nicobar Islands

- April 1942: an IIL branch was set up in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands by Rama Krishna.
- 1943: the INA liberated the islands.
- 29-31 December 1943: Netaji visited, hoisted the Indian flag at Gymkhana Ground (now Netaji Stadium) and renamed the islands: Andamans = 'Shaheed Dweep', Nicobars = 'Swaraj Dweep'.
- 1945: the British recaptured the islands.

2.4 The Kohima and Imphal campaign (1944), and the end

- In 1944 the INA and Japan attacked the India-Burma border, targeting Kohima and Imphal. It failed.
- During the Imphal campaign, INA soldiers were discriminated against by the Japanese in the allocation of weapons and supplies: being Japan's ally did not mean being treated as an equal.
- INA marching song: Qadam Qadam Badhaye Ja. Netaji gave India the slogans Jai Hind and Delhi Chalo.
- 15 August 1945: Japan surrendered. 18 August 1945: an alleged plane crash at Taihoku Airport, Taipei (Taiwan) reportedly killed Netaji; the death remains controversial.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the board stresses Kohima and Imphal as the target, the song Qadam Qadam Badhaye Ja, the slogans Jai Hind and Delhi Chalo, and 'alleged' plane crash at Taipei, 'reportedly' killed.
- Reasoning: song and slogans are favourite one-line matches; the crash wording is deliberately uncertain.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (PYQs): the handout lists Prelims 2000 as 'INA founder' and Prelims 2017 as INA First Division / Rani of Jhansi Regiment, but the Companion's actual stems are: 2000 = place where the INA came into existence; 2017 = chronological sequence (Navy mutiny, Quit India, 2nd RTC). Use the Companion stems and the PYQ table.

3 · INA Trials and INA Agitations (November 1945 - 1946)

STORY LINK

Because the INA men had fought the British, the British put them on trial, and the trial turned soldiers into national heroes. Ask: why did the trials backfire so badly?

3.1 Why did the trials backfire so badly on the British?

- In November 1945 the British put INA men, now PoWs, on trial. The most famous trial was held at the Red Fort.
- The accused: Shah Nawaz Khan (a close aide of Netaji), Prem Sehgal and Gurbaksh Singh Dhillon: a Muslim, a Hindu and a Sikh.
- Defence panel: Bhulabhai Desai, Tej Bahadur Sapru, Jawaharlal Nehru and Asaf Ali.
- The three were sentenced but released after public agitation.
- The British had miscalculated completely: the trials produced a mass upsurge across India, cutting across all sections of society and supported by every political party.
- The British themselves admitted that no issue in the entire history of the Indian National Movement had generated so much sympathy among Indians.
- The INA agitations showed the maximum unity seen throughout the INM, and they were started by the people themselves: no political party gave the call, and they arose spontaneously.

MNEMONIC · RED FORT DEFENCE PANEL

- S Sapru (Tej Bahadur)
- A Asaf Ali
- N Nehru (Jawaharlal)
- D Desai (Bhulabhai)

The four defence lawyers have no fixed order, so surnames are rearranged into SAND.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the board stresses the three accused by name, the defence panel of four, and that the accused were Muslim, Hindu and Sikh.
- Reasoning: PYQ 2021 asks who Khan, Sehgal and Dhillon were; the answer is INA officers, and the three faiths are the memory hook.

Class link: Red Fort trial and INA agitations of 1945-46 Lecture 42 slide 136

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board (Cabinet Mission background): the Red Fort trial of Prem Sehgal, Shah Nawaz Khan and Gurbaksh Singh Dhillon drew massive public attention and generated remarkable communal unity during the INA agitations of 1945-46. By then Japan had surrendered (15 August 1945) and Clement Atlee was Prime Minister (July 1945).
- Reasoning: the INA agitations belong with Quit India and the Naval Mutiny as the sequence that shook Britain (see Section 4.2).

What the INC then did

- The INC made the INA agitations part of its election campaign, demanding release of the INA men.
- It fought the cases for the accused under Bhulabhai Desai, lawyer and INC leader in the Central Legislative Assembly.
- It set up an INA Relief Committee that raised funds, gave money to INA men on release and worked for their rehabilitation.
- For the first time in Indian history, government officials openly supported a movement, contributing money for INA men.
- Common people, Gurudwaras and even Bollywood contributed funds.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the board stresses the INA Relief Committee and its funds, that government officials openly supported the cause, and Bollywood's contribution.
- Reasoning: officials funding a movement is the 'first in Indian history' fact; the relief committee is the Congress's organised response.

4 · The Naval Ratings Mutiny (February 1946)

STORY LINK

Because the INA trials had stirred sympathy even among the forces, the Royal Indian Navy's ratings rose in February 1946. Ask: what made the sailors' revolt more dangerous to Britain than a street protest?

4.0 How it began and why

- The mutiny began in February 1946, during the INA agitations, when naval ratings on His Majesty's Indian Ship (HMIS) Talwar went on strike.
- Three grievances:
    - Fear of unemployment: losing their jobs once the war ended.
    - Poor service conditions and racial discrimination in salaries (relate to 1857: racial differences in pay and treatment had been a constant grievance in the Indian armed forces since the sepoy era).
    - Inspiration from the INA: they had supported the INA agitations, contributed money for INA men and identified directly with the cause.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the board stresses February 1946, 'during INA agitations', and HMIS Talwar as the start.
- Reasoning: the mutiny is a child of the INA agitations, and Talwar is the ship to name.

4.1 What the ratings did

- The ratings revolted and raised tricolour flags on their ships alongside the flags of the INA, INC and Muslim League.
- They wrote 'Quit India' on ships, including HMIS Talwar.
- They drove through Bombay in trucks carrying pictures of Netaji Bose.
- The CPI (1925) gave them support and workers across Bombay went on a massive strike, bringing the city to a standstill.
- Aruna Asaf Ali advised the ratings and provided leadership despite opposition from Gandhi and the INC, who felt it was a truce period and time for negotiations.
- Airforce men in Karachi began sympathy strikes.
- It spread to 78 ships, 20 shore establishments and about 20,000 sailors; at Karachi, HMIS Hindustan rose alongside Talwar at Bombay.

78 · 20 · 20,000

Ships, shore establishments, sailors.

78 ships

20 shore establishments (the teacher glosses these as factories)

20,000 sailors

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the board stresses the tricolour with INA, INC and League flags together, pictures of Netaji, Aruna Asaf Ali and the Gandhi-INC opposition, the Karachi sympathy strikes, and glosses the 20 shore establishments as factories.
- Reasoning: the flags together show cross-party unity; the Gandhi-INC reluctance versus Aruna Asaf Ali is the 'who supported, who opposed' pair.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (flags): the handout body lists flags of the INA, INC and Muslim League; its alert box lists the tricolour, Crescent and Hammer-Sickle side by side (INC, League and CPI symbols), and 'suppressed by 23 February'. The slides have the INA/INC/League list. Know both lists: tricolour, INA, INC, Muslim League (body) and Crescent, Hammer-Sickle (alert). Check your notebook for any extra mark.

How it ended, and the aftermath

- The mutiny ended: British repression played a role, but so did the withdrawal of support by the INC and Muslim League. Sardar Patel and Jinnah personally held meetings to calm the ratings.
- After independence, most INA men and naval ratings were not recruited into the armed forces, on grounds of breach of discipline.

PYQ 2005: Shimla Conference viceroy and the navy revolt Lecture 42 slide 98

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: statement 1 is False (Shimla Conference 1945, Wavell 43-47, not Mountbatten); statement 2 is True (RIN sailors at Bombay and Karachi, 1946). Answer (b).
- Reasoning: HMIS Talwar at Bombay, HMIS Hindustan at Karachi, both February 1946; Mountbatten became Viceroy only in 1947.

4.2 Why the Naval and RIAF mutinies mattered beyond the event

- The Naval Ratings Mutiny plus Royal Indian Air Force (RIAF) strikes at several stations shattered the 'martial races' myth the British had cultivated since 1857: the notion that certain Indian communities were inherently loyal to the Crown and could always be used to enforce imperial authority against other Indians.

- When sailors and airmen turned against British command, not as isolated incidents but as coordinated, politicised acts of defiance, it proved the British had irrevocably lost control of the Indian armed forces.
- The entire edifice of British India rested on using Indian soldiers against Indians. Once that instrument cracked, visibly, publicly and with political consciousness, the game was over.
- The signal: the mutiny matters not just as an event but as a signal. The armed forces, the last reliable instrument of British control, were showing cracks. It is widely seen as one of the key factors that convinced the British that transfer of power could not be postponed.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The Raj survived by using Indian soldiers against Indians; the Naval Mutiny and RIAF strikes showed that this ability was now in doubt.

Class link: the Cabinet Mission and trust in the army (not in handout)

Cabinet Mission arrives as the Naval Mutiny breaks out Lecture 42 slide 140

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the Cabinet Mission arrived in India (1946) on the same day the Naval Mutiny broke out in Bombay: the timing was a signal. The board's own note: trust in the army (lost).
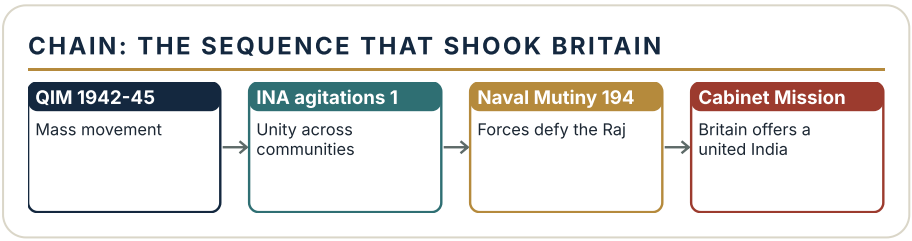
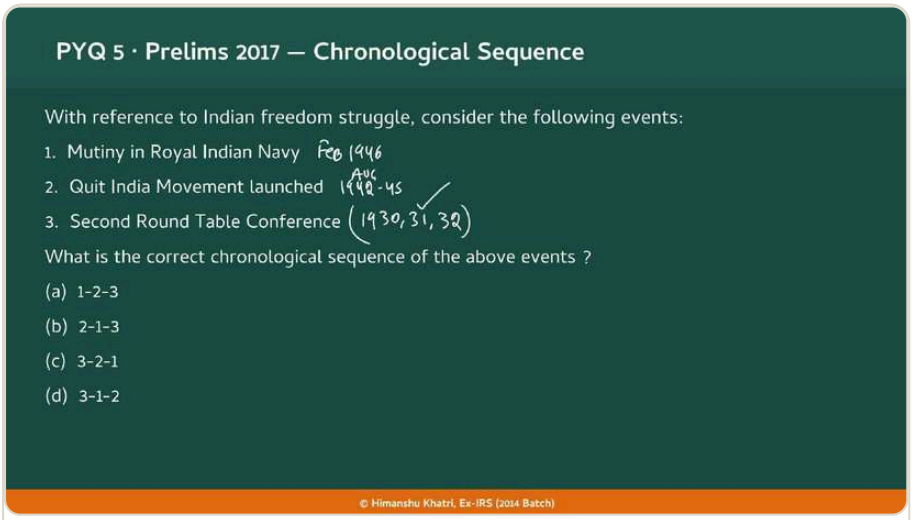
- Reasoning: members were Pethick-Lawrence (Secretary of State for India), Stafford Cripps (President of Board of Trade) and A.V. Alexander (First Lord of Admiralty).
- The sequence that shook Britain: Quit India Movement (1942-45), then INA agitations (1945-46), then Naval Mutiny (1946). The British realised that if the Cabinet Mission failed, the next movement would overthrow them violently, because they no longer had confidence in the loyalty of the Indian military.

Sequence that shook Britain: QIM, INA agitations, Naval Mutiny Lecture 42 slide 141

- Britain was also exhausted: three events in three decades (World War I 1914-19, the Great Depression 1929, World War II 1939-45) had wrecked its economy.



PYQ boards in the class slides



PYQ 2017: Naval Mutiny, Quit India, Second Round Table Conference Lecture 42 slide 107

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board (Prelims 2017): Mutiny in Royal Indian Navy = Feb 1946; Quit India Movement = Aug 1942-45; Second Round Table Conference falls in the 1930, 31, 32 series (the sitting is 1931). Order 3-2-1, answer (c).
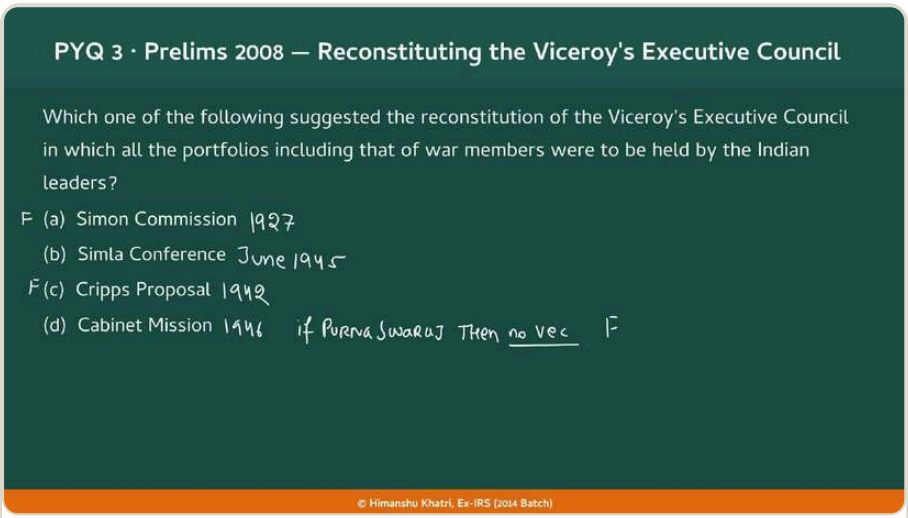
- Reasoning: 1931 comes first, 1942 second, 1946 last; any option putting the mutiny before Quit India fails.



PYQ 2008: Viceroy's Executive Council reconstitution options Lecture 42 slide 101

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board (Prelims 2008, Simla/VEC): Simon Commission 1927 is False; Simla Conference, June 1945 is correct; Cripps Proposal 1942 is False; Cabinet Mission 1946 is False because 'if Purna Swaraj then no VEC'. Answer (b).
- Reasoning: only the Simla Conference proposed Indian hands on every portfolio including the war member; the Cabinet Mission dealt with constitution-making, not the wartime Executive Council. This belongs more to Chapter 46.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Cabinet Mission 1946 is the anchor: members, three sections A/B/C, three union subjects, 10-year lock, Constituent Assembly elected by PLAs, Direct Action Day 16 Aug 1946. Over 10 PYQs.
- Wavell Plan 1945: Shimla Conference, 50:50 Hindus and Muslims in the VEC, all Indians except Governor General and C-in-C, collapse over ML1906's monopoly on Muslim seats.
- Rajaji Formula 1944: plebiscite, confederation, Gandhi-Jinnah talks, pamphlet 'The Way Out' (Prelims 2010).
- Interim Government 1946: Nehru head, Liaqat Ali Khan got Finance, Patel Home, Baldev Singh Defence.
- Plan Balkan (Mountbatten, April 1947), 3rd June Plan, Radcliffe Line (17 Aug 1947), Indian Independence Act provisions.
- Princely States: 565 = 552 to India + 13 to Pakistan; 549 by accession + J&K, Junagadh, Hyderabad.
- People facts: Kripalani INC President 1947, Gandhi not a Congress member at independence, Ambedkar elected from West Bengal, Sachchidananda Sinha provisional President of CA.

MAINS HOOKS

- Role of British imperial power in complicating the transfer of power in the 1940s (teacher's board PYQ): veto to ML1906, balkanisation moves, passive mediator, late Radcliffe Line.
- Why partition: British divide and rule, WEMC Muslims, Hindu revivalism, INC's own concessions (Bipin Chandra's two failures).
- Cabinet Mission as a Two-Nation, One-State plan: grouping compulsory or voluntary.
- Compare Rajaji Formula, Desai-Liaqat, Wavell, CMP, 3rd June plan: what each offered ML1906 and how each raised Jinnah's floor.
- Geopolitics: Cold War, Pakistan's value to the West, post-WWII partitions.

From 1944 every failed settlement raised ML1906's floor, until the 3rd June Plan made partition the only exit.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: In 1944 Rajaji offered Jinnah a plebiscite and a weak common centre, and Jinnah took the measure of how far INC would bend. Each later try, the Desai-Liaqat Pact and the Wavell Plan, failed on ML1906's claim to speak for all Muslims, and that claim got stronger after the December 1945 elections. Britain, shaken by QIM, INA agitations and the Naval Mutiny, offered a united India through the Cabinet Mission, but the grouping dispute produced Direct Action Day and a broken Interim Government. By 1947 Atlee fixed a deadline, Mountbatten dropped the idea of unity, INC accepted the 3rd June Plan, and the Indian Independence Act turned partition into law.

1. Rajaji meets Jinnah halfway. Rajagopalachari proposed that ML1906 back Purna Swaraj and join a coalition at the Centre. After the war a plebiscite in Muslim-majority regions would decide on partition, and a yes meant a confederation with a weak centre. INC wanted a Lucknow-Pact-like deal because the British had said no progress without ML1906's consent.

   → But Jinnah wanted far more than a confederation.

2. Jinnah says no and learns the floor. Jinnah wanted only Muslims to vote, a fully separate Pakistan (Two Nations, Two States) and all of it before the British left. The talks failed, but Jinnah now knew INC was ready for a Two-Nation, One-State solution. Readiness was INC's compulsion, not its wish.

   → So INC tried again, this time in the Central Assembly.

3. Desai-Liaqat Pact: parity on paper. Bhulabhai Desai and Liaqat Ali Khan agreed on a VEC of Indians with 50% INC and 50% ML1906, and 20% of legislature seats for minorities. Gandhi knew of it. Jinnah refused to acknowledge any knowledge of it, testing how far INC could bend.

   → Now the British borrowed this very formula.

4. Wavell Plan at Shimla. After the QIM leaders were released, Wavell4347 held the Shimla Conference in June 1945 and proposed a VEC of Indians with 50% Hindus and 50% Muslims. Churchill wanted visible progress before British elections. ML1906 insisted all Muslim ministers be its own; INC said it was not a Hindu party.

   → But the failure itself handed ML1906 a veto and a prize.

5. December 1945 elections. Wavell4347 declared failure because ML1906 could not be convinced, an implicit veto at the top. ML1906's prestige soared and it swept the seats reserved for Muslims, winning Bengal and Sindh. INC won elsewhere, including NWFP and Assam, and led a coalition in Punjab.

   → Meanwhile Britain itself was cracking.

6. Britain exhausted: Cabinet Mission arrives. Atlee became PM in July 1945, Japan surrendered, the INA trials united Indians, and the Naval Mutiny broke out on the day the Cabinet Mission arrived. Britain no longer trusted the army and was drained by two world wars and the Depression. In March 1946 Atlee said a minority would not be allowed a veto over the majority.

   → So the Mission offered a united India, but with a catch.

7 Cabinet Mission Plan and the grouping fight. A weak centre for Defence, Communications and Foreign Affairs, three sections A, B and C, and a Constituent Assembly of PLA members plus princely nominees. INC said grouping was voluntary; ML1906 said it was compulsory, and the British agreed. That made the plan a Pakistan within India.

→ Then INC's July 1946 stand handed Jinnah his trigger.

8 Direct Action and a broken government. INC declared NWFP and Assam would not join Groups B and C, and Nehru said only the Constituent Assembly was binding. ML1906 rejected the plan and called Direct Action Day for 16 August 1946; 5,000 died in Calcutta in a week. ML1906 later joined the Interim Government out of fear, took Finance and made it unworkable. The Constituent Assembly met on 9 December 1946 without ML1906.

→ So by early 1947 the British changed course.

9 Atlee's deadline and Plan Balkan. In February 1947 Atlee fixed 30 June 1948 for the British exit, with or without a constitution, and Paramountcy was not to pass to any successor. Mountbatten replaced Wavell4347 and came up with Plan Balkan in April 1947, which Nehru killed. Mountbatten concluded that CMP1946 and unity were dead horses, entirely due to Jinnah.

→ So only partition was left on the table.

10 3rd June Plan and the Radcliffe Line. INC accepted partition and dominion status in return for a small Pakistan, a strong centre and exit by 15 August 1947. Punjab and Bengal PLAs decided on partition; NWFP, Sylhet, Sindh and Baluchistan voted to join Pakistan. Radcliffe drew the line alone and announced it on 17 August, two days after independence.

→ Then the law and the princes had to be settled.

11 Independence Act and 565 princes. The Indian Independence Act of July 1947 gave legal form to the plan and ended Paramountcy over all 565 states. Patel and V.P. Menon brought 552 into India: 549 by accession and J&K, Junagadh and Hyderabad later. The other 13 went to Pakistan.

In simple words

- 1944 to 1947 is one story: every attempt at a joint INC-ML1906 settlement failed, and every failure made ML1906 stronger.
- The Rajaji Formula offered a plebiscite and a confederation; Jinnah wanted Two Nations, Two States and learned how far INC would bend.
- Desai-Liaqat and the Wavell Plan both used 50:50 parity; Jinnah denied the first and the second collapsed over ML1906's claim to be the only Muslim voice.
- The Cabinet Mission was the only plan offering a united India and Purna Swaraj; it broke on whether grouping was compulsory.
- Direct Action Day (16 Aug 1946) and ML1906's use of Finance in the Interim Government showed unity was gone.
- Atlee's deadline and Plan Balkan pushed toward fragments; the 3rd June Plan gave INC a small Pakistan, a strong centre and a quick exit.
- 565 princely states: 552 to India, 13 to Pakistan. The Act ended Paramountcy but handed it to nobody.
- Partition was a long process, not one failure: British divide and rule, elite Muslims, Hindu revivalism, and INC's own concessions.

Because the war years left INC leaders jailed and ML1906 courted by the British, every settlement after 1944 was a bargain over ML1906's share. Ask: what did each failed bargain add to Jinnah's position?

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board, 1944-45: Rajaji Formula 1944 (MG-Jinnah talks, plebiscite, confederation); Desai-Liaqat Pact 1945 (INC-ML1906 parity in VEC, Jinnah denied all knowledge); Wavell Plan June 1945 (Shimla Conference, collapsed on ML1906's monopoly demand); December 1945 PLA elections (INC majority everywhere except Bengal, Punjab, Sindh).
- Teacher's board, 1946: Cabinet Mission (only proposal offering united India and Purna Swaraj); Direct Action 16 Aug 1946 (5,000 dead in Calcutta in a week); Interim Government September 1946 (Nehru PM, ML1906 joined later and took Finance); Constituent Assembly 9 Dec 1946 (Sinha provisional President). Grouping, compulsory or voluntary, was the fault-line that broke CMP1946.
- Teacher's board, 1947: Atlee Statement February 1947 (exit by 30 June 1948 with or without a constitution); Plan Balkan April 1947 (power to 11 provinces separately, Nehru killed it); 3rd June Plan (dominion status for both, exit in 72 days); Independence Act July 1947; Radcliffe Line announced 17 Aug 1947, two days after independence.
- Atlee's own words on the board: 'Britain wanted a united India, tried but failed.'

1 · Proposals

STORY LINK

Because Britain had said that no constitutional progress would come without ML1906's consent, INC tried to buy that consent. Ask: what did Rajaji offer, and what did INC give up?

1.1 The three planks

- The formula had three main planks.
- 1.1 (Swaraj): ML1906 should support the goal of Purna Swaraj.
- 1.2 (Transfer of Power): INC and ML1906 should be ready to form a coalition government at the Centre.
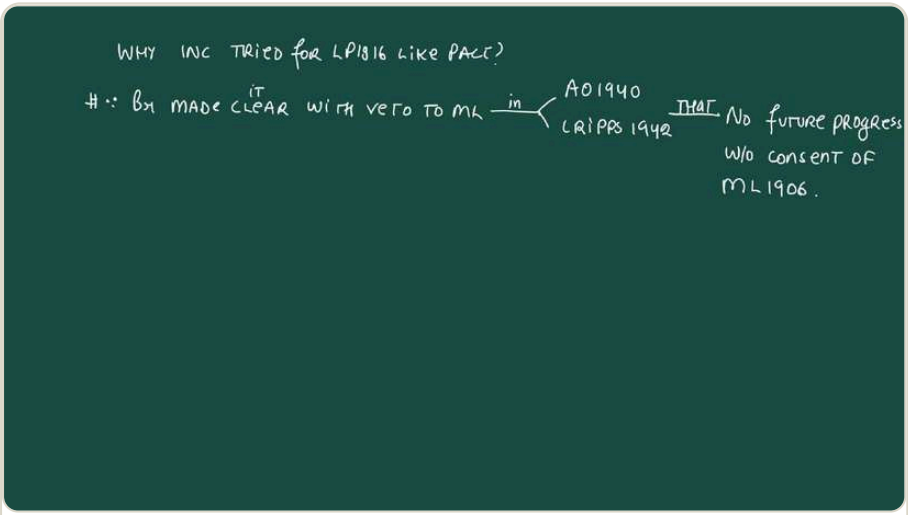
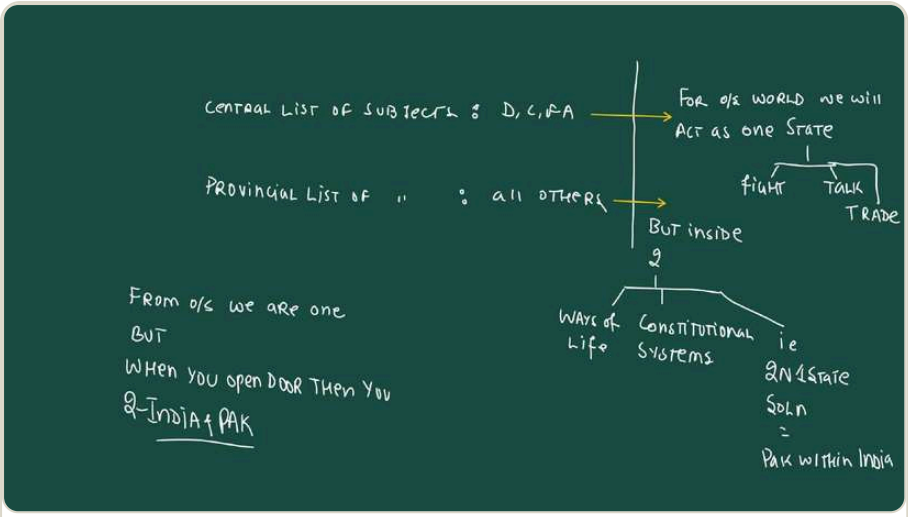
- 1.3 (Unity): after the war a plebiscite would be held in Muslim-majority regions on the question of partition. If the vote favoured it, the result would be a confederation: a weak common centre with strong provinces.
- Link forward to the Cabinet Mission Plan of 1946 and Syed Ahmed Khan's Two-Nation, One-State theory. The idea of confederation versus a strong unitary centre is the core fault-line in every negotiation from here to 1947.



Why INC tried for a Lucknow-Pact-like pact: British veto to ML1906 Lecture 42 slide 118

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: INC aimed for a pact like the Lucknow Pact 1916 (LP1916) because the British had made it clear, in the August Offer 1940 and the Cripps Mission 1942, that there would be no future progress without the consent of ML1906. That gave ML1906 a veto.
- Teacher flags the plebiscite, the Muslim-majority regions, the question of partition, and Two-Nation One-State as the lines to hold.



Confederation board: central list D, C, FA; all else with provinces Lecture 42 slide 120

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board on the confederation: the Central list is Defence, Communications and Foreign Affairs. For the outside world we act as one state: fight, talk, trade. All other subjects sit on the Provincial list, and inside there are two ways of life and two constitutional systems, i.e. the 2N1S solution, a Pakistan within India.
- The board's one-liner: 'From outside we are one, but when you open the door, you find two: India and Pakistan.'

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout's PYQ cluster for Sec. 1-3 names Prelims 1998, 2003, 2010 and 2015. The stems actually on the slides and in the companion differ: the 2010 question is Rajaji's pamphlet 'The Way Out' (answer (d), a solution for the constitutional deadlock), not Desai-Liaqat. Use the PYQ table above.
- Slide PYQ note (not in handout text): Rajaji evolved the formula in March 1944 with the full approval of Gandhiji; point (i) was that the League would endorse the demand for independence.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Rajaji Formula = Purna Swaraj + coalition at Centre + post-war plebiscite in Muslim-majority regions leading to a confederation (weak centre, strong provinces).

2 · Result: Talks Collapse

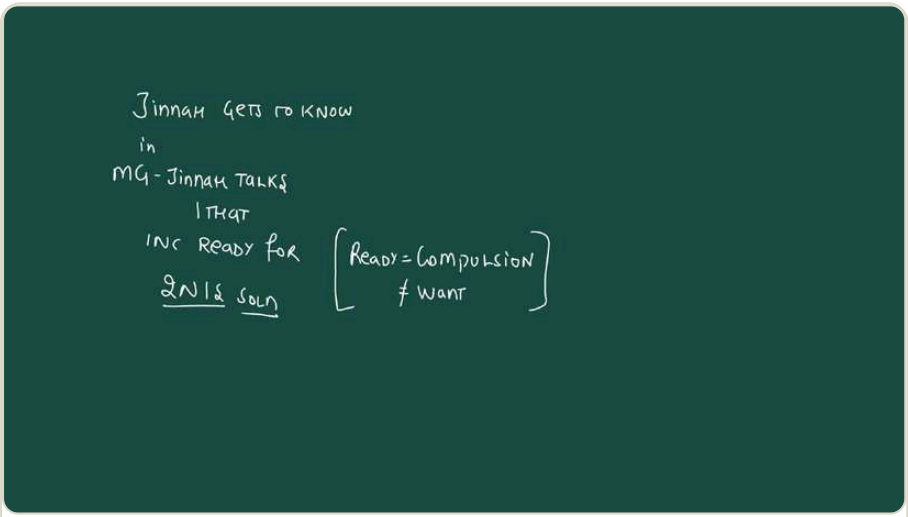
STORY LINK

Because Rajaji had offered something short of Pakistan, Jinnah's reply measured the gap. Ask: how many of Jinnah's three conditions broke the formula?

- Gandhi and Jinnah met to discuss the formula, but the talks failed. Jinnah's demands were very different from what Rajagopalachari proposed.

Jinnah's demand	Meaning
2.1 Separate electorates	Voting on partition should be by separate electorates: only Muslims would vote.
2.2 Two Nations, Two States	The outcome should not be a weak common centre but a fully separate, independent Pakistan: not Two Nations, One State.
2.3 Before the British left	All of it implemented before the British left, since Jinnah did not trust INC to honour any agreement once in power.

- The formula failed completely, but it showed Jinnah exactly how far INC was willing to bend, and he found the answer useful.



Jinnah learns in the MG-Jinnah talks that INC was ready for 2N1S Lecture 42 slide 123

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Jinnah gets to know in the MG-Jinnah talks that INC is ready for the 2N1S (Two Nations, One State) solution. 'Ready' means compulsion, not want.
- Reasoning: INC's readiness came from the British veto to ML1906, so Jinnah could treat it as a floor and ask for more.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Rajaji Formula failed, but Jinnah left knowing INC would accept 2N1S. Readiness was INC's compulsion, not its wish.

3 · Desai-Liaqat Pact, 1945

STORY LINK

Because the Rajaji route had failed, the leaders of INC and ML1906 in the Central Assembly tried their own pact. Ask: what split did they agree, and why did Jinnah deny it?

- The pact was negotiated and finalised by Bhulabhai Desai and Liaqat Ali Khan, leaders of INC and ML1906 respectively in the Central Legislative Assembly (CLA).
- The goal was the same as the Rajaji Formula: build INC-ML unity and present joint demands to the British (like LP1916) for a smoother transfer of power.
- Proposal 1, VEC: all ministers Indians except the Governor General and the Commander-in-Chief; of these Indian ministers 50% from INC and 50% from ML1906.
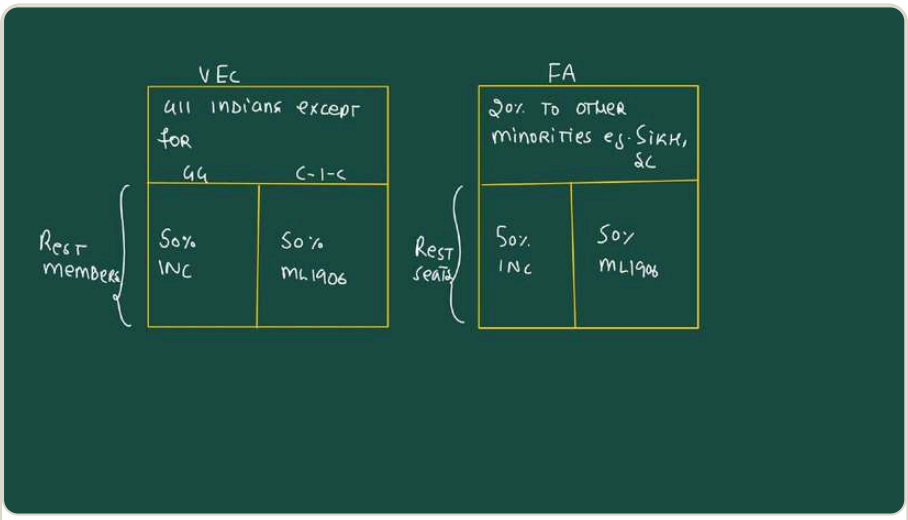
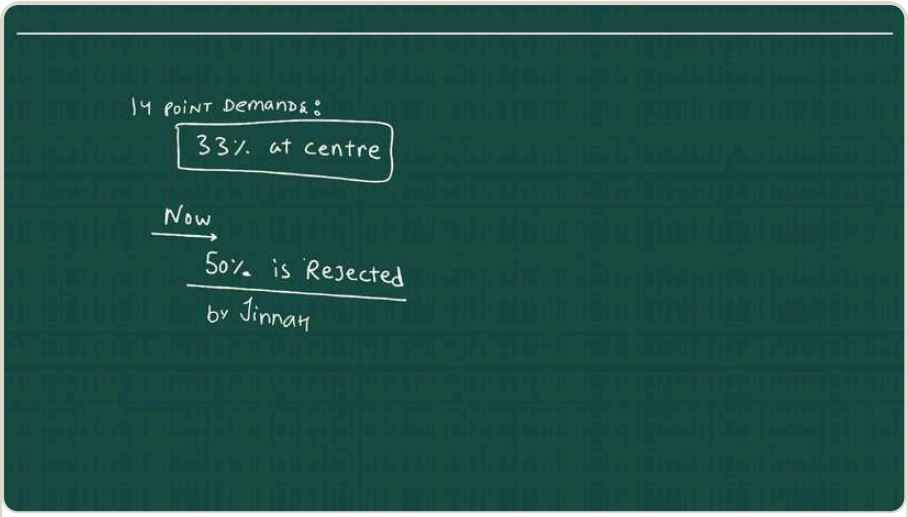
- Proposal 2, Legislature: 20% of Central Legislature seats reserved for minorities, especially Dalits and Sikhs; the remaining seats split equally between INC and ML1906. Seats filled first by nomination, with direct or indirect elections to follow later.



Board: VEC and legislature split under Desai-Liaqat Lecture 42 slide 125

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: VEC is all Indians except the GG and C-in-C; the rest of the members are 50% INC and 50% ML1906. In the legislature, 20% goes to other minorities such as Sikhs and SCs, and the rest seats are 50% INC and 50% ML1906.



Board: 14 Points asked 33% at the Centre; 50% rejected Lecture 42 slide 127

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the 14 Points demanded 33% at the Centre; now 50% is rejected by Jinnah. Reasoning: even parity, far beyond one-third, did not satisfy him because the aim had moved on.

- Why it failed: Gandhi was aware of the pact. It failed because Jinnah refused to acknowledge any knowledge of it. He was testing how far INC could bend. Now he had a minimum base, and any future negotiation would need to offer ML1906 something even more.
- Notice: each concession was not building goodwill, it was raising Jinnah's floor.

NUMBER CARD · DESAI-LIAQAT SPLIT

50 · 50 · 20

Half and half, with a fifth for the rest.

50% of Indian ministers from INC in the VEC
50% of Indian ministers from ML1906 in the VEC
20% of legislature seats for minorities (Dalits, Sikhs)

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout says each concession raised Jinnah's floor; the teacher's board words the same point as raising Jinnah's prestige among Muslims. Both are the same lesson: use either.
- Handout PYQ alert names Prelims 2010 for Desai-Liaqat; no such stem is on the slides. The 2010 stem is Rajaji's 'The Way Out'.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Desai-Liaqat = VEC 50% INC + 50% ML1906 (all Indians except GG and C-in-C), 20% minority seats in the Central Legislature, Jinnah denied it.

4 · Wavell Plan, 1945

STORY LINK

Because INC and ML1906 had already agreed on parity in principle, the British borrowed it before their own elections. Ask: where exactly did a nearly agreed plan snap?

Why it was tabled

- The Wavell Plan was discussed at the Shimla Conference in June 1945, held after the release of the INC leaders imprisoned during the Quit India Movement (1942-45). The release also formally ended the QIM.
- Timing came from British domestic politics: Winston Churchill wanted visible progress on the India problem before elections in Britain.
- The plan was based closely on the Desai-Liaqat Pact, because INC and ML1906 had already agreed on it in principle, making rapid acceptance more likely. Also any change to the VEC could be made swiftly at the behest of the Governor General.

4.1 Proposals of Wavell4347

- i) In the VEC all ministers Indians except the Governor General and the C-in-C; 50% Hindus and 50% Muslims among Indian ministers.
- ii) The Governor General/Viceroy rules on the aid and advice of ministers but retains veto power.
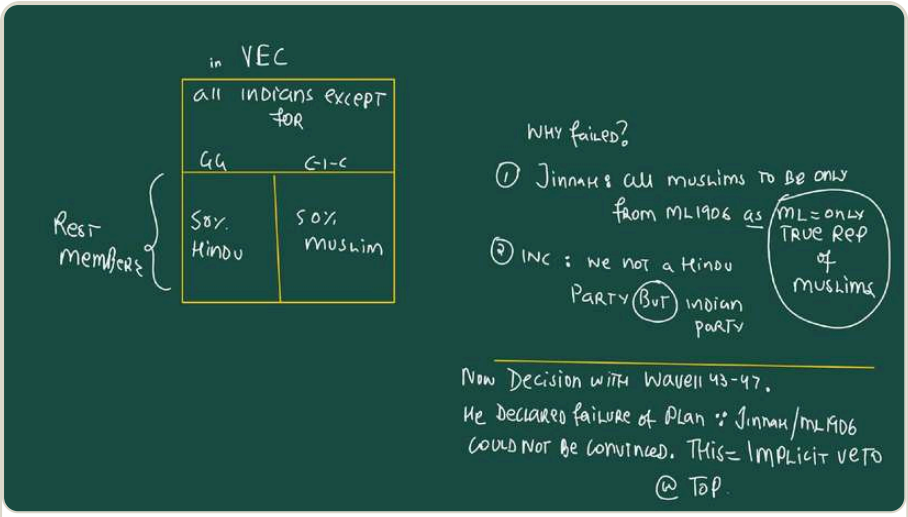
- iii) The portfolio of Foreign Affairs to be offered to Indians (recall: in the Cripps Mission 1942 foreign policy was already offered).
- iv) Wavell4347 wanted a joint list of names for ministership from the parties; if impossible, each party would send a separate list.



Board: Wavell VEC composition and why the plan failed Lecture 42 slide 130

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: in the VEC all are Indians except GG and C-in-C, and the rest members are 50% Hindu and 50% Muslim.
- Why failed? (1) Jinnah: all Muslims to be only from ML1906, because ML is the only true representative of Muslims. (2) INC: we are not a Hindu party, but an Indian party.
- The decision rested with Wavell4347. He declared the plan failed because Jinnah/ML1906 could not be convinced. This equals an implicit veto at the top.

4.2 Why it failed

- The plan collapsed on a single point: ML1906 insisted that Muslim ministers in the VEC should come only from ML1906, not from INC, which had its own Muslim leaders. ML1906 rejected the plan when Wavell4347 refused to guarantee this.
- INC refused the demand, arguing it was not a Hindu organisation and that INC's Muslim leaders also had the right to be ministers.
- Wavell4347 announced failure, saying ML1906 could not be convinced. In effect that gave ML1906 an implicit veto on the transfer of power.
- The announcement boosted ML1906's prestige enormously, and it did very well in the December 1945 elections in seats reserved for Muslims.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Slide vs handout: the handout says 50% Hindus and 50% Muslims for Wavell4347, and 50% INC and 50% ML1906 for Desai-Liaqat. Keep the wording separate: Hindu/Muslim for the Wavell Plan, INC/ML1906 for the pact.
- Handout PYQ alert lists Prelims 1996x2, 1998x2, 2000 and 2007 for the Wavell Plan. The stem on the slides is Prelims 2007: A true (equal Hindu and Muslim members), R false (Churchill's election timing, not a partition-avoiding design).
- Slide PYQ note: Wavell Plan was proposed at the Simla conference 1945; Indians would draft the Constitution.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Wavell Plan: Shimla June 1945, VEC with 50% Hindus and 50% Muslims, GG retains veto, Foreign Affairs to Indians. It broke on ML1906's monopoly demand, which gave ML1906 an implicit veto.

5 · Cabinet Mission Plan (CMP1946)

STORY LINK

Because the QIM, the INA agitations and the Naval Mutiny shook British confidence, Britain finally offered a united India. Ask: what in the plan allowed Jinnah to read a Pakistan into it?

5.1 Background

- July 1945: Clement Atlee became British PM after Churchill lost the elections. 15 August 1945: Japan surrendered.
- INA trials: the Red Fort trial of Prem Sehgal, Shah Nawaz Khan and Gurbaksh Singh Dhillon drew massive attention and produced remarkable communal unity in the INA agitations of 1945-46.
- December 1945 elections to PLAs: (i) INC won a majority everywhere except Bengal, Punjab and Sindh. (ii) In Punjab INC formed a coalition with the Akalis and the Unionist Party. (iii) ML1906 did very well in Muslim-reserved seats and got a majority in Bengal and Sindh.
- INC also got a majority in NWFP and Assam. In NWFP the poor Muslim masses supported Khan Abdul Gaffar Khan, the Frontier Gandhi, and his Khudai Khidmatgars (Red Shirts), as INC had their support since the Khilafat Movement 1920-24; the elite Khans were pro-ML1906.
- In Assam only 31% of the population was Muslim, concentrated mainly in Sylhet, where Muslims were a majority.

Board: 1945-46 election results, province by province Lecture 42 slide 138

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: NWFP (MMP) INC govt; Punjab (MMP) INC coalition govt; Sindh (MMP) ML govt; Bengal (MMP) ML govt; Assam (31% Muslim) INC govt, with a significant Muslim minority. UP, Bihar, CP, Orissa, Bombay and Madras are the plain Hindu-majority provinces.

- February 1946: the Cabinet Mission arrived. Three members: Lord Pethick-Lawrence (Secretary of State for India), Sir Stafford Cripps (President of the Board of Trade) and A.V. Alexander (First Lord of the Admiralty).
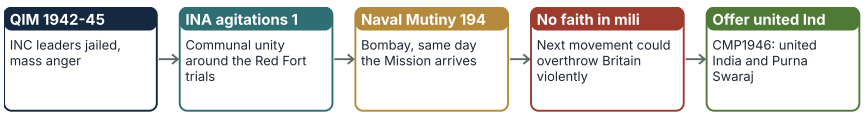
- On the same day the Naval Mutiny broke out in Bombay. The timing was not a coincidence, it was a signal.

Cabinet Mission arrives: members and the Naval Mutiny signal Lecture 42 slide 140

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the Naval Mutiny on the day of arrival meant the British had lost trust in the army.

CHAIN: WHY BRITAIN OFFERED A UNITED INDIA



- The British realised that if the Mission failed, the next movement would overthrow them violently, because they no longer trusted the Indian military.
- Economy wrecked: in three decades three events broke the British economy: WWI (1914-19), the Great Depression (1929), WWII (1939-45). Britain was exhausted.
- CMP1946 was the only proposal where the British offered a united India and Purna Swaraj.
- Cold War: it began in 1945 and Britain wanted a strong, friendly India for influence in South Asia after decolonisation. A partition would be a diplomatic failure.

Cold War logic: why CMP1946 offered Purna Swaraj to a united India
Lecture 42 slide 142

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: this is why CMP1946 offered Purna Swaraj to a united India: the Cold War and the wish to keep a friendly India that Britain could not keep united.

- March 1946, Atlee's anti-partition statement: 'a minority won't be allowed veto over majority.' A direct reversal of the August Offer (1940), Cripps Mission (1942) and Wavell Plan (1945), all three of which had in effect given ML1906 that veto.

5.2 Proposals

- Goal: a peaceful transfer of executive power at the Centre and a Constituent Assembly (CA) to frame the constitution of an independent India. CMP1946 gave a 'One State, Two Nation' solution, which Syed Ahmed Khan had hinted at and the Rajaji Formula had gestured toward.
- i) Weak common centre: only three union subjects, Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs. All other subjects and residual powers with the provinces, effectively a confederation (link: Rajaji Formula 1944).
- ii) No two CAs, no veto to ML1906. But the British would not accept a constitution without INC-ML consensus: decisions in framing go by majority vote, but ML1906's overall agreement on the final constitution is needed.
- iii) Three sections: A = Hindu-majority provinces; B = Muslim-majority provinces of the west (NWFP, Punjab, Sindh); C = Muslim-majority provinces of the east, i.e. Bengal. Assam was only 31% Muslim, but Sylhet had a Muslim majority, so Assam went to Section C.
- iv) Group constitutions: each section frames its own group constitution for all subjects except Defence, Communications, Foreign Affairs. This is effectively Art. 370 for all 11 provinces in three sections, meeting Jinnah's 14-Point demands of March 1929 in spirit.
- v) Union constitution: covers only the three union subjects, framed by a CA of nominees of the Princely States and elected members from the PLAs (the December 1945 direct elections had already happened, the same approach as Cripps 1942).

- The CA = Group A + Group B + Group C + nominees of Princely States. Maximum constitutions = one for each Princely State + 3 group + 1 union; minimum = 3 group + 1 union = 4.
- vi) CA to be populated by August 1946. vii) Changes to constitutions only after 10 years (a united India for at least a decade). viii) After general elections a province could come out of its group. ix) Full independence once the constitution is drafted.
- x) Transfer of Power: immediate transfer of executive power to an interim government at the Centre (done in September 1946, J.L. Nehru as Prime Minister).
- xi) An advisory committee on the rights of citizens, Tribals and minorities.
- xii) A decision on a major communal question in the Central Legislature needs a majority of both Hindu and Muslim members plus an overall majority.

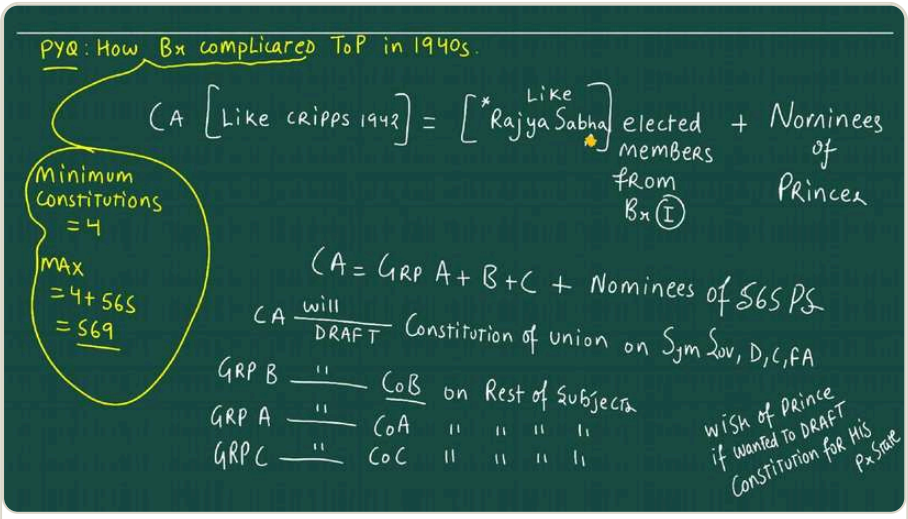
Board: Union, Groups A, B, C and 565 princely states Lecture 42 slide 145

TEACHER'S BOARD

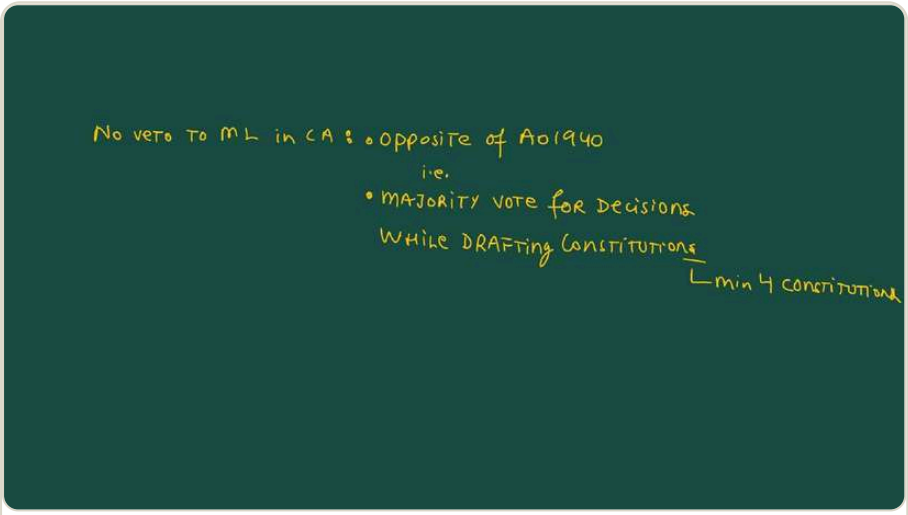
- Teacher's board: Union GoI handles Symbolic Sovereignty, D, C, FA and has a COI. Group B (CoB): MMPs of the west, NWFP (INC), Punjab, Sindh. Group A (CoA): six HMPs, UP, Bihar, Orissa, Madras, Bombay, Central Provinces. Group C (CoC): MMPs of the east, Bengal and Assam (INC, 31% Muslim). The 565 princely states have a choice to sign the IOA or not sign. Pak within India = CMP 1946.



Board: CA composition and minimum 4, maximum 569 constitutions
Lecture 42 slide 146

TEACHER'S BOARD

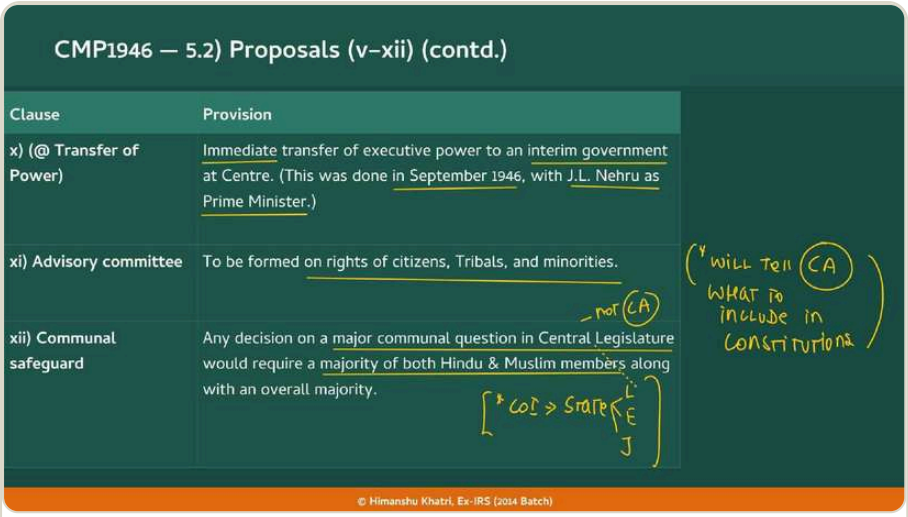
- Teacher's board, a PYQ: 'How Bx complicated ToP in 1940s.' Under it: CA (like Cripps 1942) = elected members from British India (like the Rajya Sabha) plus nominees of princes. CA = Groups A + B + C + nominees of 565 PS. The CA drafts the Union constitution on Symbolic Sovereignty, D, C, FA; each group drafts its CoB, CoA, CoC on the rest of the subjects. Minimum constitutions = 4; maximum = 4 + 565 = 569. A prince may draft a constitution for his state if he wishes.



Board: no veto to ML in the CA, majority vote while drafting Lecture 42 slide 149

TEACHER'S BOARD

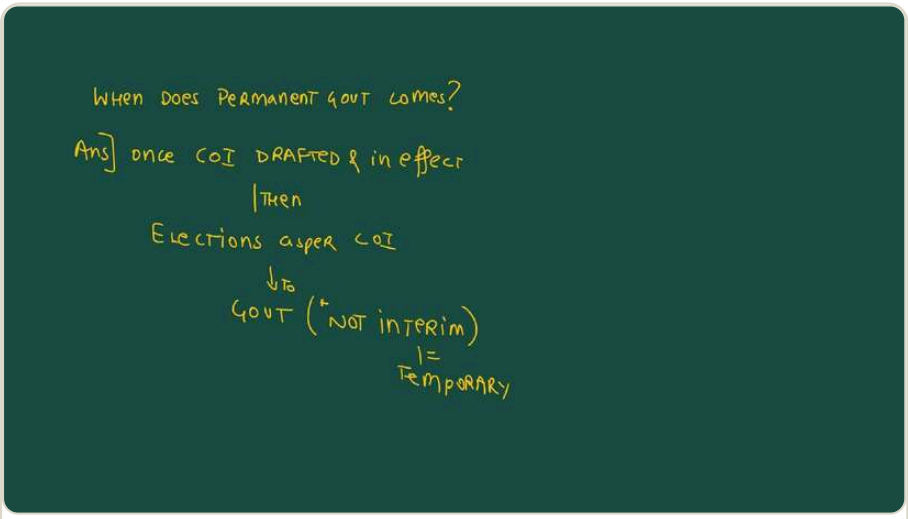
- Teacher's board: no veto to ML in the CA, the opposite of the August Offer 1940, i.e. decisions while drafting constitutions go by majority vote, hence the minimum 4 constitutions.
- Beside the weak-centre clause the teacher writes '14 pt Demands': the weak centre and group constitutions meet Jinnah's 14 Points of March 1929 in spirit.



Board: advisory committee, interim govt, communal safeguard Lecture 42 slide 154

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the advisory committee will tell the CA what to include in the constitutions; the committee is not the CA. The Constitution of India stands above the State, which consists of Legislature, Executive and Judiciary.
- Teacher stresses: immediate transfer to an interim government, September 1946, J.L. Nehru as PM; and the majority of both Hindu and Muslim members on a major communal question.



Board: when does the permanent government come? Lecture 42 slide 155

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the permanent government comes once the Constitution of India is drafted and in effect; then elections as per the Constitution form the government, not interim. Interim means temporary.

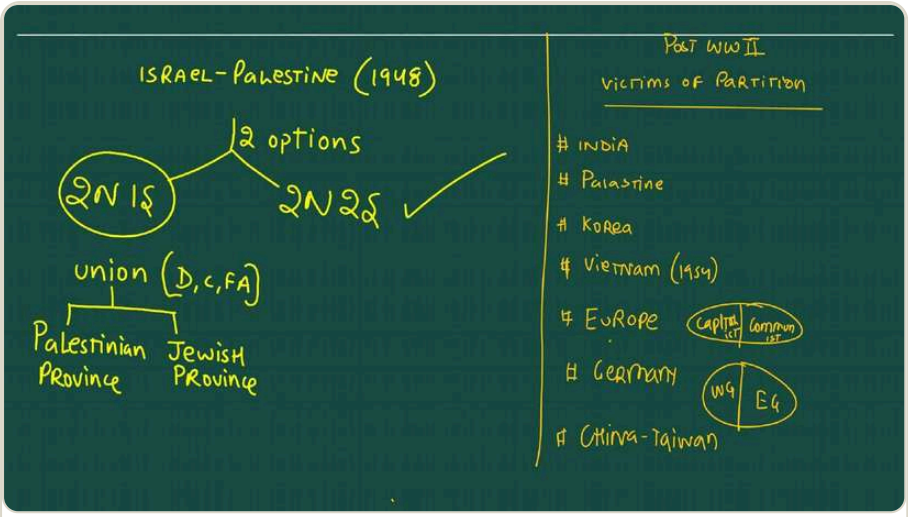
Board: CMP as 'like today's EU' with religion-based groups Lecture 42 slide 164

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: CMP1946 was like today's EU: a Union over groups, with each member keeping its own head of government. The difference: EU groupings are on language and ethnicity; groups A, B, C were on religion, therefore a 2 Nation 1 State solution.



Board: Israel-Palestine 1948 and post-WWII partitions Lecture 42 slide 165

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: Israel-Palestine 1948 had two options, 2N1S (a union for D, C, FA with a Palestinian province and a Jewish province) or 2N2S, and the board marks 2N2S as the one taken.
- Post-WWII victims of partition: India, Palestine, Korea, Vietnam (1954), Europe (capitalist and communist), Germany (West and East), China-Taiwan.

5.3 Debates on CMP1946

- i) ML1906 wanted to question the Union constitution immediately, not after 10 years, since the Union constitution would establish a united India.
- ii) Grouping: INC argued it was not compulsory; groups may be created but a province should not be compelled to join a prescribed group (INC ruled NWFP and Assam and did not want them in Group B and C). ML1906 argued, and the British agreed, that grouping was compulsory.
- ML1906's logic: if grouping is compulsory, partition is implicit; CMP1946 is a One-State, Two-Nation solution. If the British agreed, ML1906 would accept; if not, reject. Explicit partition = two states; implicit partition = one state, two nations, a Pakistan within India as Group B and Group C.
- This was the central fault-line: INC thought grouping voluntary, ML1906 compulsory. The British clarification that it was compulsory gave Jinnah the trigger, and he called Direct Action Day.
- iii) INC wanted elected representatives from Princely States in the CA, as it had demanded in the Cripps Mission 1942.
- iv) July 1946: INC decided NWFP and Assam would not join Groups B and C. Nehru said the only binding decision was the formation of a CA. ML1906 therefore rejected CMP1946, refused to join the Interim Government and the CA, and called for Direct Action on 16 August 1946 for Pakistan.
- Direct Action Day led to communal riots in Calcutta in which 5,000 died in a single week.
- v) Later ML1906 did join the Interim Government, out of fear: it did not want INC to hold executive power without it. ML1906 got the Finance Ministry and used it to make the government unable to function.

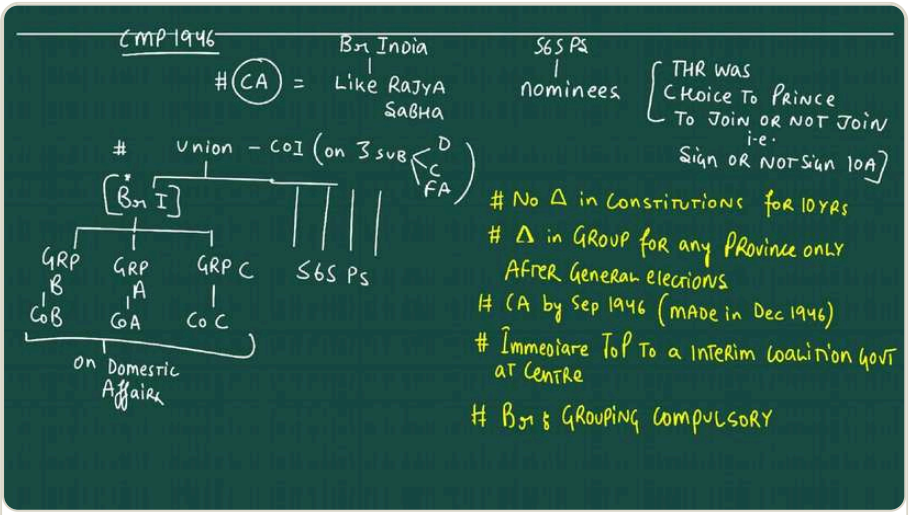
Board: INC's NWFP and Assam stand, Jinnah's call for Direct Action
Lecture 42 slide 158

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: INC declared NWFP won't join Group B and Assam won't join Group C; therefore Jinnah gave the call for Direct Action Day. Margin note: Bengal had a government of ML1906.
- Teacher's margin on the 10-year row: but initially grouping was compulsory, as per the British (clarified later).

5.4 Constituent Assembly

- 6 December 1946: the British took a stand for two CAs: if ML1906-ruled provinces did not join the CA, the constitution it framed would not apply to them.
- 9 December 1946: the CA convened with Dr Sachchidananda Sinha as Provisional President. 11 December 1946: Dr Rajendra Prasad elected permanent President (Prelims 2024).
- February 1947: ML1906 demanded dissolution of the CA as not truly representative.



Board: CMP1946 in one picture with the right-side checklist Lecture 42 slide 163

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: CA = British India (like the Rajya Sabha) plus nominees of 565 PS who had a choice to join or not (sign or not sign the IOA). Union COI on D, C, FA; group constitutions for domestic affairs. Checklist: no change in constitutions for 10 years; change of group for any province only after general elections; CA in 1946; immediate transfer to an interim coalition government at the Centre; British and grouping compulsory.
- Teacher's reasoning at the CA slide: the CA was 'not truly representative' because ML had not joined it. Sinha is the temporary (provisional) President; the permanent President is Rajendra Prasad.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout vs board: the handout and the typed slide say the CA was to be populated by August 1946; the board summary writes September 1946 with 'made in December 1946'. Use August 1946 and remember the CA actually met on 9 December 1946.
- Handout vs slide PYQ note: the handout says the Mission arrived in February 1946; a PYQ note on the slides says 24 March 1946. Use '1946' for MCQs; the handout date for notes.
- Handout alert: 11 PYQs on CMP (1996x2, 1999, 2000, 2002x3, 2003, 2004, 2013, 2024). Anchors: members, three-tier structure, Groups A, B, C, CA elected by PLAs, rejection of full Pakistan, Direct Action Day.
- From slide PYQ answers, not in the handout text: Ambedkar was elected to the CA from West Bengal; the CA was elected by the PLAs with proportional representation; Jinnah never sat in it; the Constitution was adopted on 26 November 1949 and came into effect on 26 January 1950; Kripalani was INC President from December 1946 to December 1947.
- From slide PYQ answers: the Interim Cabinet formed on 2 September 1946 under Nehru with 12 ministers; portfolios: Foreign Affairs Nehru, Home Patel, Finance Liaqat Ali Khan, Defence Baldev Singh. A slide note says ML1906 won 73 of 78 seats in the elections held under the Cabinet Plan.
- Teacher vs bank key (Prelims 1999): which Congress leader was totally in favour of CMP? The teacher's tick is (d) Azad, with Patel 'accepted but not crazy about it'. The bank key says (c) Patel. Use the teacher's board.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- CMP1946: weak centre (D, C, FA), sections A, B, C, CA of PLA members plus princely nominees, 10-year lock, interim government. It broke on compulsory grouping; ML1906 rejected it and called Direct Action on 16 Aug 1946.

6 · Atlee Statement (February 1947)

STORY LINK

Because Direct Action and the stalled Interim Government showed no agreement was near, Atlee set a clock. Ask: what did the clock and the small print do to the princes and the provinces?

- The Atlee Statement was in effect a pro-balkanisation statement, very like the Cripps Mission 1942 before it (Cripps 1942 had given provinces the option not to join the Union).
- Atlee stated that by 30 June 1948 the British would leave India, with or without a constitution. This was a deliberate threat of anarchy to force INC and ML1906 into a compromise. The details were far more damaging.
- 6.1 Princely States: all 565 were not to be under any future Government of India, effectively 565 independent countries, since Paramountcy would lapse and not be transferred to a successor government. Power would go to the Interim Government under Nehru and to the provincial governments of provinces that had not joined the CA, which could in effect become independent.
- 6.2 New Viceroy: Mountbatten (MTB) would replace Wavell4347.
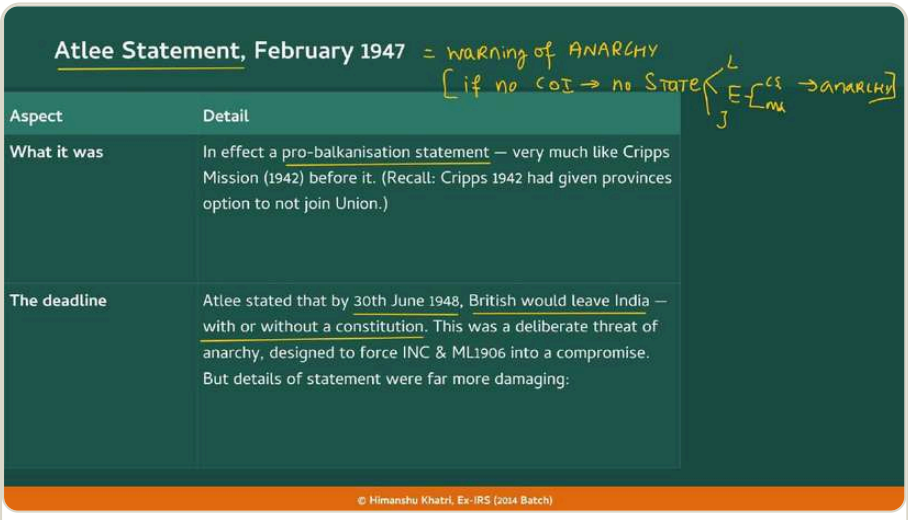
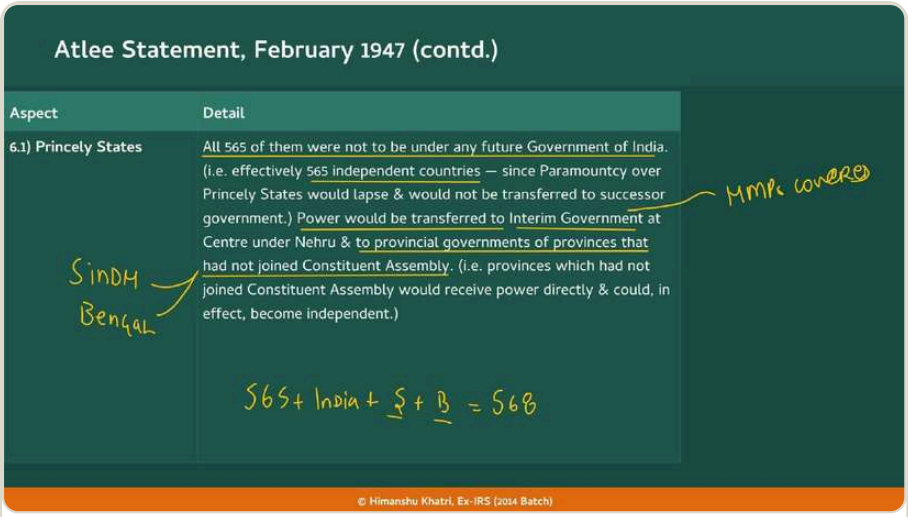
- Result: a victory for ML1906. Widespread communal violence followed, and the INC-Akali-Unionist coalition government in Punjab was overthrown by direct action led by Muslims under ML1906.



Board: Atlee Statement as a warning of anarchy Lecture 42 slide 166

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the Atlee Statement is a warning of anarchy. If there is no Constitution of India, there is no State (Legislature, Executive, Judiciary), and without the Executive's civil services and ministers there is anarchy.
- Teacher stresses 'pro-balkanisation', the date 30 June 1948, 'British would leave India' and 'with or without a constitution'.



Board: provinces outside the CA and the count 565 + India + Sindh + Bengal = 568 Lecture 42 slide 167

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the provinces which had not joined the CA are Sindh and Bengal; the Muslim-majority provinces are covered. The count on the board: 565 states + India + Sindh + Bengal = 568 possible successor states.
- Teacher's margin on the Punjab result links the street-force overthrow to Nepal and Bangladesh (check your notebook for the point).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Numbers: the board's 568 counts possible successor countries after the Atlee Statement; the CMP board's 569 counts maximum constitutions. They measure different things.
- Handout alert: Prelims 1998 is quoted for the June 1948 deadline; no such stem is on the slides. Slide PYQ 1999 explanation says Cripps's secession clause threatened fragmentation into as many as 576 entities.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Atlee Feb 1947: British out by 30 June 1948, with or without a constitution; Paramountcy lapses; power to Interim Government and non-CA provinces; Mountbatten replaces Wavell4347; ML1906's victory.

7 · Plan Balkan / Ismay Plan / Dickie Bird Plan (April 1947)

STORY LINK

Because the Atlee Statement already pointed at fragments, the new Viceroy tried the logical end of that road. Ask: who killed it, and why so fast?

- By Mountbatten: 'Dickie' was his nickname and Ismay a member of his committee.
- It proposed a voluntary union on the model of the United States: independence to each province and each Princely State, Punjab and Bengal the option of partition, and every province and state the choice of joining or not joining the CA for a united India.
- In effect power would be transferred to 11 individual provinces separately, which Nehru violently opposed as 'balkanization' of India.
- Result: Nehru opposed it immediately; it was not discussed further.

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board (title slide): the names Balkan, Ismay Plan and Dickie Bird Plan, the voluntary union, the Punjab and Bengal partition option, and the choice to join the CA for a united India are the lines to hold. The plan was not discussed further.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: Prelims 1999 is cited for Plan Balkan; the actual stem is Prelims 2000 ('The Balkan Plan was the brainchild of'), answer (c) Lord Mountbatten.
- Slide PYQ note: Mountbatten was authorised to resolve the situation and soon concluded that transfer to one central authority was not feasible.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Plan Balkan = Mountbatten, April 1947, voluntary union, power to 11 provinces separately, killed by Nehru.

8 · 3rd June Plan / Mountbatten Plan (1947)

STORY LINK

Because Plan Balkan was dead and Jinnah had killed unity, Mountbatten shifted to a partition INC could live with. Ask: what did INC get for accepting partition?

8.1 Context

- MTB's brief: a deadline of October 1947 to explore options for unity and partition. Within two months he concluded that CMP1946 and the idea of a united India were dead horses, entirely due to Jinnah.

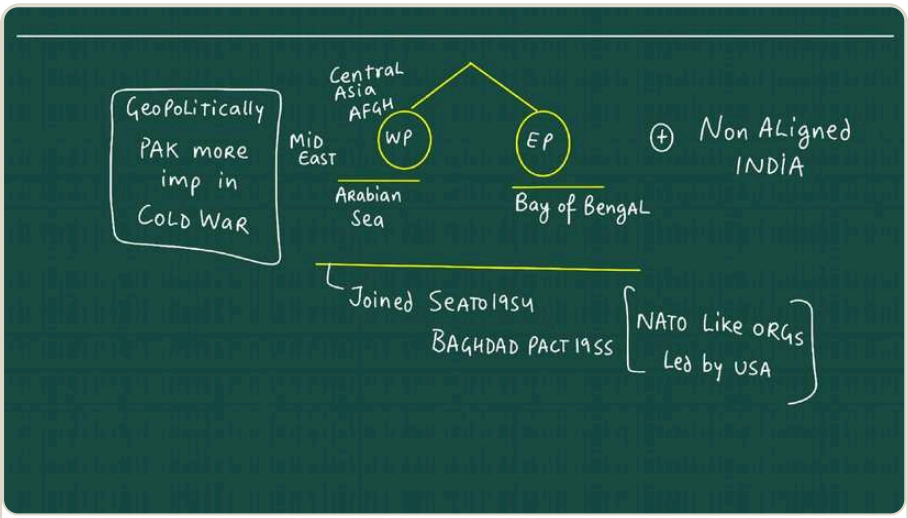
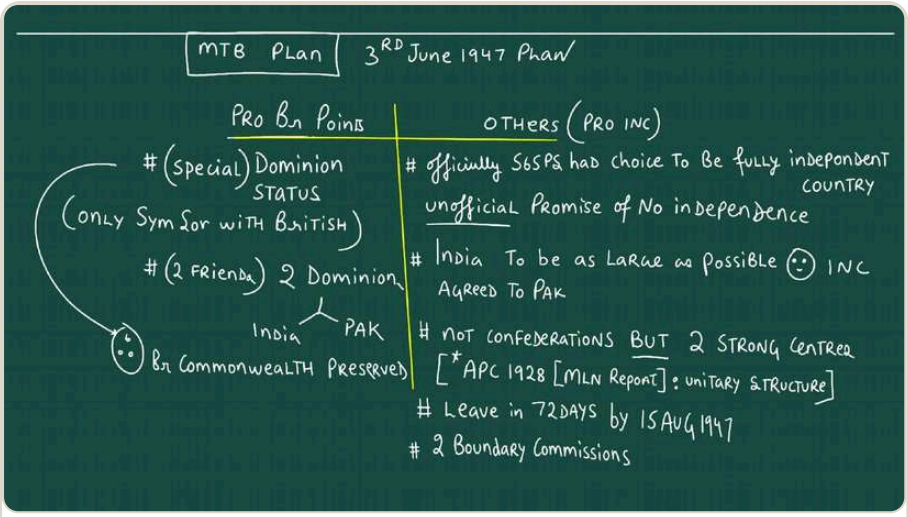
- British national interest: better two countries friendly to Britain than risk an unfriendly Pakistan from direct action or civil war. Atlee later said: 'Britain wanted a united India, tried but failed.'
- Three choices: 1st, India as a colony; 2nd, a friendly united India; 3rd, now the only realistic one, a friendly India and a friendly Pakistan.
- The harder point: partition was avoidable if the British had acted against communal violence rather than playing the passive mediator between INC and ML1906. They chose passivity because it served British national interest.
- Dominion status to both India and Pakistan kept both in the British Commonwealth, even temporarily, a network of colonies with a special economic relationship, giving trade and business benefits to British firms. It was a political victory for the British government among its own people.



Board: Pakistan geopolitically more important in the Cold War Lecture 42 slide 173

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: geopolitically Pakistan was more important in the Cold War. West Pakistan faces Central Asia, Afghanistan, the Middle East and the Arabian Sea; East Pakistan faces the Bay of Bengal. Non-aligned India is the plus. Pakistan joined SEATO 1954 and the Baghdad Pact 1955, NATO-like organisations led by the USA.



Board: 3rd June Plan, pro-British points against INC's gains Lecture 42 slide 175

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board, pro-British points: special dominion status (only symbolic sovereignty with the British); two friends, two dominions, India and Pakistan; British Commonwealth preserved.
- Others (pro-INC): officially the 565 princely states had the choice to be fully independent, but there was an unofficial promise of no independence; India as large as possible, INC agreed to Pakistan; not confederations but two strong centres (APC 1928, the Motilal Nehru Report, had a unitary structure); leave in 72 days by 15 August 1947; two boundary commissions.

8.2 INC's demands accepted

- Since INC agreed to partition and dominion status, its other demands were accepted:
    - i) Pakistan as small as possible, with an informal promise that the 565 princely states would not be given independence.
    - ii) A strong, unitary centre for India, like the Nehru Report 1928 and unlike the Rajaji Formula 1944.
    - iii) British exit in 72 days from 3rd June, i.e. 15 August 1947, a year ahead of the Atlee deadline.

8.3 The mechanics of partition

- In Punjab and Bengal a simple majority of either the Hindu or the Muslim members of the PLAs in favour would lead to partition. So the decision rested with the two big Muslim-majority provinces.
- Which areas join Pakistan: i) plebiscite in Sindh; ii) referendum in NWFP and the Sylhet district of Assam; iii) voting by political leaders in Baluchistan.
- INC had won the December 1945 elections in NWFP and Assam, so a referendum was chosen there for a clear, direct answer. A plebiscite seeks only a non-binding opinion; a referendum is binding.
- If the vote favoured partition, the CA set up by the Cabinet Mission would split into two CAs for two dominions, and power would pass to two centres by 15 August 1947, the appointed day. This is why India became an 'indestructible union of destructible states': power passed only to the Union at the Centre, and provinces did not separately decide to form a union as in the USA.

- INC and ML1906 both accepted the Mountbatten Plan. Votes favoured partition in Punjab and Bengal; NWFP, Sindh, Baluchistan and Sylhet voted to join Pakistan.
- Frontier Gandhi, Khan Abdul Gaffar Khan, boycotted the referendum and passed the Bannu Resolution (June 1947) demanding an independent Pakhtonistan for Pashtuns. NWFP's vote therefore went to Pakistan as his followers did not vote.
- Pakistan banned the Khudai Khidmatgars in 1948. 'Pakhto' means the Pakhtun code of life. Some Pashtuns wanted to join Afghanistan. NWFP is today Khyber Pakhtunwa.

8.4 Boundary Commission

- Two boundary commissions were set up for the west (Punjab) and the east (Bengal), both headed by Sir Cyril Radcliffe, a British jurist who had never been to India.
- Each had four judges, two nominated by INC and two by ML1906, who were deadlocked on partisan lines. The lines were therefore Radcliffe's unilateral decision.
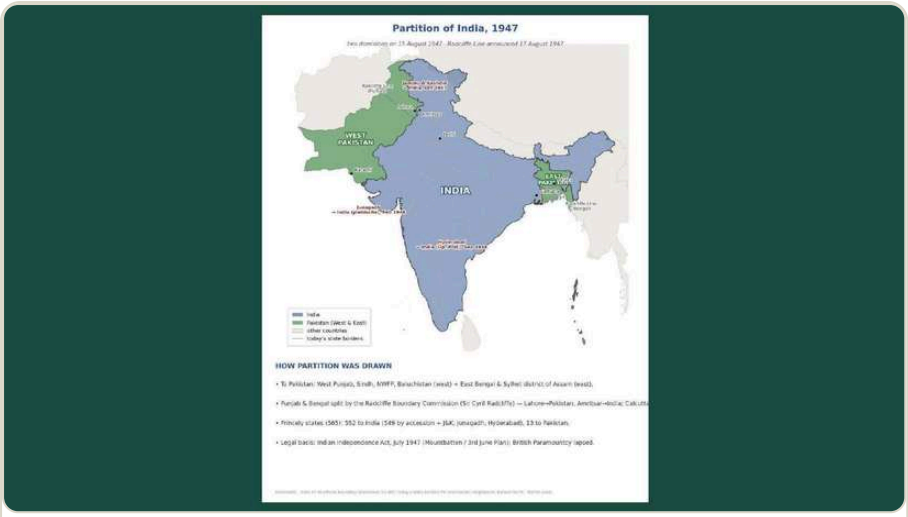
- The Radcliffe Line was announced on 17 August 1947, two days after independence, ensuring maximum chaos in the transfer of power.

Board: why the Radcliffe Line was announced after 15 August Lecture 42 slide 184

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board: the British did not want any blame for violence and migration, therefore the line was announced after 15 August.



Map: Partition of India 1947 and the three late accessions Lecture 42 slide 185

HANDOUT ALERT

- Slide PYQ answers beyond the handout: the United Bengal Plan (April 1947) by H.S. Suhrawardy, Bengal's ML Chief Minister, and Sarat Bose proposed a sovereign united Bengal; it failed against opposition from both INC and ML1906 (Prelims 2000, answer Bengal).
- Slide PYQ answer, Prelims 1998: Mountbatten's instruction was to keep India united if possible. The handout's October 1947 deadline is for exploring options; the Atlee deadline is 30 June 1948 for transfer. Both stand.
- Slide PYQ answer, Prelims 2013: the Radcliffe Committee was to delimit the India-Pakistan boundary.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Mains skeleton (from the board's PYQ): role of British imperial power in complicating the transfer of power in the 1940s. Intro: Britain's interest drove the process. Body: (1) veto to ML1906 in AO1940, Cripps 1942 and the Wavell Plan 1945 (implicit veto); (2) Atlee Feb 1947: 565 states, non-CA provinces, balkanisation tilt; (3) Plan Balkan; (4) passive mediator instead of acting on communal violence; (5) dominion status and Commonwealth benefit; (6) Cold War value of Pakistan; (7) Radcliffe Line announced after 15 Aug to avoid blame. Close: British national interest, 'tried but failed'.

9 · Integration of Princely States

STORY LINK

Because Paramountcy lapsed without a successor, 565 states were legally free. Ask: who closed that gap, and how do the numbers add up?

- Before August 1947 there were 565 officially recognised Princely States, covering about 40% of the landmass and about 23% of the population.
- The Indian Independence Act (July 1947) ended Paramountcy over all 565 states, legally freeing each to choose independence. Their future was one of the gravest challenges of the new state.
- Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, head of the States Department, with V.P. Menon as Secretary, did the integration. Of the 565, 552 were geographically contiguous to the Dominion of India. By persuasion, pressure and appeals to patriotism, 549 signed the Instrument of Accession by or shortly after 15 August 1947.
- Three held out: i) Jammu & Kashmir, acceded in October 1947 after an invasion by Pakistani-backed tribal militias; ii) Junagadh, integrated February 1948 after a public plebiscite with an overwhelming majority for India, after its Nawab first tried to accede to Pakistan; iii) Hyderabad, integrated September 1948 by the military operation Operation Polo.
- So all 552 contiguous states joined India.
- The remaining 13 were contiguous to Pakistan and acceded to it: Bahawalpur (Punjab region), Khairpur (Sindh region), the Khanate of Kalat, Makran, Las Bela, Kharan (Balochistan region), and Swat, Chitral, Hunza, Nagar, Amb, Phulra, Dir (North-West Frontier/Gilgit region). 552 + 13 = 565.

HANDOUT ALERT

- A note on numbers (handout): the claim that Patel integrated 562 states is a widely repeated error. Some earlier British records, such as the Butler Committee Report (1927), cited 562, but 565 is the final accepted count at British withdrawal. The authority is the White Paper on Indian States (1950), issued by the Ministry of States under Patel and V.P. Menon, read with the Indian Independence Act: 565 total, 552 to India (549 by accession + 3 later), 13 to Pakistan.
- The teacher marks the title of the princely-states slides with 'P11' (check your notebook for what it refers to).

KEY TAKEAWAY

- 565 = 552 (India) + 13 (Pakistan); 552 = 549 accessions + J&K, Junagadh, Hyderabad. Patel and V.P. Menon. Source: White Paper 1950.

10 · Indian Independence Act (July 1947)

STORY LINK

Because INC and ML1906 had accepted the Mountbatten Plan, Parliament gave it legal form. Ask: what exactly ended on the appointed day, and what carried on?

- The Act gave legal status to the Mountbatten Plan. Its key provisions:
    - 10.1 Partition of British India into two independent dominions, independent of each other, on the appointed day, 15 August 1947.
    - 10.2 Governor General: each dominion headed by a GG appointed by the King. The same GG served both until their CAs passed a law for a separate GG. Pakistan decided Jinnah would be its GG.
    - 10.3 End of dominion status: the CAs of the two dominions could pass constitutions ending dominion status (India's CA did so on 26 January 1950).
    - 10.4 Jurisdiction and Paramountcy: British Parliament's jurisdiction over British India ended on the appointed day, and Paramountcy over the 565 states ended, not transferred to any government in the two dominions. Legally each princely state had a right to independence.
    - 10.5 Abolition of the title 'Emperor of India' and of the office of Secretary of State for India (created in 1858).
    - 10.6 Until a new constitution, the Government of India Act 1935 would apply.
    - 10.7 Territories of India and Pakistan to be decided 'before or after' the appointed day by a boundary commission appointed by the GG.
- India was a dominion of Britain from 15 August 1947 until 26 January 1950, when the Constitution came into effect.

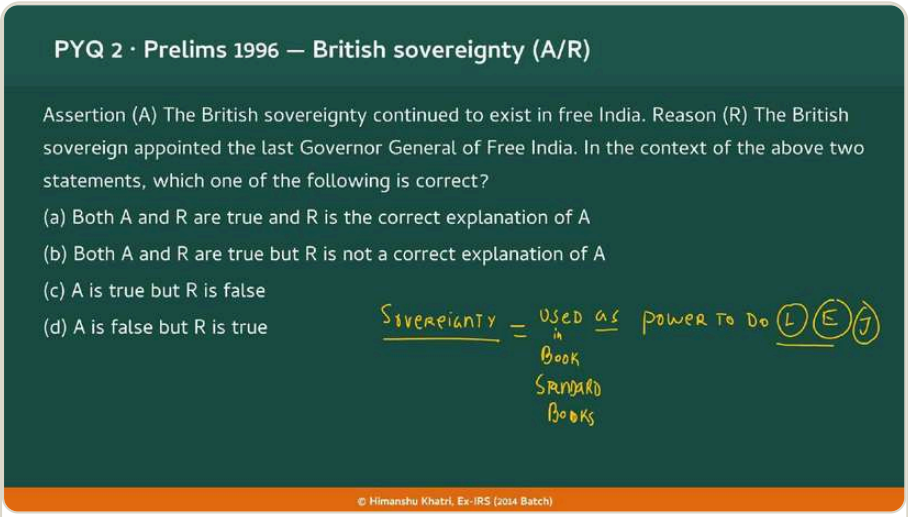
MNEMONIC · INDEPENDENCE ACT CLAUSES 10.3 TO 10.7

T A B L E

Lay it on the TABLE: what the Act cleared away.

- T Titles abolished: Emperor of India, SoS for India
- A Act of 1935 applies until a new constitution
- B Boundary commission appointed by the GG
- L Lapse of Paramountcy and Parliament's jurisdiction
- E End of dominion status by the CAs (26 Jan 1950)

The first two clauses, partition into two dominions and the shared Governor General, are the headline items 10.1 and 10.2.



Board on PYQ 1996: sovereignty as power to do L-E-J Lecture 42 slide 213

TEACHER'S BOARD

- Teacher's board (PYQ 1996 A/R): sovereignty, as used in standard books, is the power to do L, E, J, the three organs. Reasoning: the Act ended Parliament's jurisdiction on the appointed day, so British sovereignty did not continue, but the King still appointed the last Governor General, Mountbatten. So A is false and R is true, answer (d).

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Independence Act: two dominions on 15 Aug 1947, GG by the King, Paramountcy lapses to nobody, Emperor title and SoS office abolished, GoI Act 1935 interim, boundary commission, dominion until 26 Jan 1950.

11 · Why Partition?

> STORY LINK
> Because the 3rd June Plan looked sudden but was not, we must trace the long process. Ask: which of the four causes belongs to the British, and which to Indians?

- The acceptance of partition in the 3rd June Plan was not sudden; it was the culmination of a long process.
- Historian Bipin Chandra: INC failed on two counts: it failed to bring Muslims into the INM as a mass constituency, and it failed to curb Muslim communal forces, especially from 1937.
- The proof: ML1906 won 90% of Muslim seats in the 1945 PLA elections.
- By June 1947 INC had given up on a united India, defeated by communal violence, the failure of the Interim Government and ML1906's refusal to join the CA (August 1946). Even the Bengal government of ML1906 promoted communal riots. The 3rd June Plan was a compulsion, not a choice.

> TEACHER'S BOARD
> - Teacher's board: the title of this section carries the label 'mmp'; the board does not give its expansion (check your notebook).

11.1 British Divide and Rule (DnR)

- A sustained structural effort across decades:
  - i) Hunter's Indian Musalmans (1871) argued that British neglect of Muslims had contributed to the Faraisi movement (1830-70s), planting the idea that Muslims were a separate, neglected political category.
  - ii) Census 1881 gave a sense of homogeneous religious identity to internally heterogeneous communities; religion-based statistics brought religious identity into public policy.
  - iii) 1897 reservation in government jobs for Muslims.
  - iv) Bengal Partition (1905) created a Muslim-majority province and rewarded elite Muslims.
  - v) Positive response of Minto05-10 to the Simla Deputation (1906).
  - vi) Formation of ML1906.
  - vii) Separate electorates for Muslims under ICA 1909.
  - viii) In the August Offer (1940) and the Wavell Plan (1945), ML1906 was given a veto on constitutional progress.

11.2 Role of Western-Educated Middle-Class Muslims (WEMC Muslims)

- Muslim organisations led by Syed Ahmed Khan gave the Two-Nation Theory, labelled INC a Hindu organisation, demanded reservation and special status for the Muslim Quam, and supported the British in return.

- The four Delhi Proposals (December 1927) and three Calcutta Amendments (December 1928) failed. Jinnah then issued the 14 Points (March 1929), the blueprint for all future ML1906 politics.
- ML1906 also opposed the CDM (1930-34) and QIM (1942-45), reducing Muslim participation in the INM.

11.3 Hindu Revivalism (1880s-1900s)

- i) The Shuddhi and cow protection movements of the Arya Samaj turned aggressive after Swami Dayanand Saraswati died in 1883.
- ii) Cow-killing riots (1893).
- iii) The Hindi-Urdu controversy (1880s-1900) in the North-West Provinces and Awadh (set up in 1877): Hindi identified with Hindus, Urdu with Muslims, a cultural fault-line.
- INC did not condemn the 1893 riots, because of its 1886 rule not to take up social issues. Muslim participation in INC declined and INC did little to reclaim Muslim leadership.
- The Swadeshi Movement (1905-11) also hurt Muslim participation: heavy Hindu religious symbolism, Muslims and the British shown as partners in Jatras, and a social boycott that hurt poorer communities. ML1906 and the Ulamas discouraged participation.

11.4 Role of INC

- INC's own actions compounded the problem:
    - i) Cripps Mission (1942): INC accepted provincial autonomy for Muslim-majority provinces (like Art. 370).
    - ii) Rajaji Formula (1944): in the MG-Jinnah talks INC agreed to a plebiscite for 'partition without independence' (like Art. 370 for MMPs), partly conceding self-determination.
    - iii) CMP1946: INC opposed only compulsory grouping, not grouping itself (CMP was in essence Two-Nation, One-State).
    - iv) March 1947: INC first explicitly mentioned partition, saying Punjab and Bengal would have to be partitioned if the country was divided, months before the 3rd June Plan.
- Two false beliefs proved costly:
    - v) That partition would be temporary. Gandhi told INC 'don't accept partition in your hearts', but hearts do not make borders.
    - vi) That appeasement would reduce the fear-of-majority complex. Instead each concession raised ML1906's prestige: Lucknow Pact (1916), Rajaji Formula (1944), Desai-Liaqat Pact (1945) each raised its floor.

Gandhi, alone

- Gandhi could not start a movement against partition because communalism had spread too far. He said Hindus and Sikhs also desired partition, which made Muslims hate him, and it made Hindus and Sikhs abandon him. By mid-1947 he was alone.
- Mountbatten called him a 'one-man boundary force' against communal violence.

- Verdict: acceptance of partition was the culmination of a long process, not a single act of failure.

MNEMONIC · FOUR CAUSES OF PARTITION

R I D E

Four forces took India for a RIDE to 3rd June.

- R Hindu Revivalism 1880s-1900s
- I INC's own concessions and false beliefs
- D British Divide and Rule
- E Elite WEMC Muslims and the Two-Nation Theory

No fixed order in the handout, so the initials were rearranged into RIDE.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Slide PYQ answers tied to this section: winding up of INC was suggested by Gandhi (teacher's board: INC was a platform of multiple ideologies); at independence Gandhi was not a member of the Congress and Kripalani was President; INC accepted partition mainly to avoid large-scale communal riots (answer (c)); Gandhi's alternative to partition was to invite Jinnah to form the government, bitterly criticised by Congress.
- Handout alert: Prelims 2000 (Independence Act and princely integration, Patel, V.P. Menon). Stem on the slides for the integration theme: none; the 2000 stems are United Bengal, Balkan and Gandhi's alternative.
- A slide on Marxists calling Gandhi an anarchist belongs to the chapter on Gandhi's ideology and is not used here.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Partition = the end of a long process: British DnR, elite Muslims, Hindu revivalism, INC's concessions; ML1906 won 90% of Muslim seats in 1945; 3rd June Plan was a compulsion, not a choice.

PRELIMS HOOKS

- Labour: Madras Labour Union 1918 (B.P. Wadia), AITUC 1920 (Lajpat Rai first president), Trade Union Act 1926, Whitley Commission 1929 (report 1931), Trade Disputes Bill 1929, HMS 1948 (Ashok Mehta, T.S. Ramanujam, G.G. Mehta), Lokhande as labour pioneer.
- Left: CPI Tashkent 1920 (M.N. Roy, Vanguard) and Kanpur 1925; Dange, Muzaffar Ahmad, P.C. Joshi; CSP 1934 (JP, Masani, Narendra Dev); Comintern 1928 and 1935; People's War 1941.
- Capitalists: FICCI 1927, Bombay Plan 1944 (eight drafters), Bombay Manifesto 1936, Currency League 1926, Birla, Bajaj.
- Dalits: Vital-Vidhvansak 1888, Vaikom, Self-Respect 1925, Mahad 1927, Communal Award and Poona Pact 1932, ILP 1936, AISCF 1942.
- Peasants: AIKS 1936 (Sahajanand, N.G. Ranga), Kisan Manifesto, Tebhaga one-half to one-third, Worli, Punnapra-Vayalar, Telangana, Bakasht.

MAINS HOOKS

- Many voices enriching the nationalist movement in the Gandhian phase: workers, capitalists, Dalits, women, peasants.
- Role of women in the freedom struggle, especially the Gandhian phase; age, gender and religion barriers.
- Gandhi and Ambedkar: divergent methods, common goal of amelioration of the downtrodden.
- Examine how the INM marginalised workers, capitalists, Dalits and women in different ways (FYQ).

Seventeen labour-and-capital PYQs from 1995-2019 plus Dalit, peasant and women clusters make this a high-yield chapter: know the person-organisation-year triplets cold.

The story in one go

Read it like a film first. Then go to the notes: every fact below is expanded there.

Story spine: The national movement was a coalition, and each constituency joined on its own terms. Workers entered late, were pulled in at Gaya 1922, and were split by CPI's Comintern-driven swings. Capitalists funded the INM but stopped where capitalism itself was threatened. Dalits and women found the INC useful but built their own platforms (Ambedkar, Periyar, AIWC), while peasants moved from Gandhian protest to AIKS to armed 1946 revolts. Everywhere the INC absorbed rather than represented, and the unfinished business passed to the Republic.

1. Workers appear but wait. Modern industry created workers in the second half of the 19th century. Early unions were welfare bodies (Lokhande 1890) and then the Madras Labour Union (1918). Their strikes had no wider politics.

   → But the INC Moderates saw no reason to take up their cause.

2. Moderates look away. Naoroji's 1886 rule kept class issues out of Congress to protect unity with zamindars and Indian industry. Moderates opposed the Factory Acts yet backed workers against British employers (Assam tea 1881-82, GIP Signallers 1899).

   → So Swadeshi, the Extremists and the Russian Revolution had to push labour in.

3. Labour enters the mainstream. Swadeshi strikes, the Tilak trial protest and the war-time price rise drew workers in. AITUC (1920) gave an all-India body; C.R. Das at Gaya (1922) argued Congress must absorb class demands or lose them.

   → Now a Left grew inside and outside the INC.

4. The Left grows and splits. CPI arrived via Tashkent 1920 and Kanpur 1925 (Dange, Muzaffar Ahmad, Joshi). The Trade Union Act 1926 recognised unions while Meerut and the 1929 bills coerced them. The 1928 Comintern line made CPI call Congress bourgeois.

   → But 1935 and 1941 turned the line around again.

5. Capital backs the INM, conditionally. Colonial tariffs and credit starved Indian business, so FICCI (1927) tied itself to the INC. Business loved Swadeshi, funded Gandhi, cut British cloth imports by half in the CDM and drafted the Bombay Plan, but feared strikes and class war.

   → Meanwhile the INC's silence on caste left Dalits to speak for themselves.

6. Dalits build their own road. Walangkar, Vaikom, Periyar's Self-Respect Movement and Guruvayur attacked untouchability. Ambedkar moved to water (Mahad 1927), burnt the Manusmriti and demanded separate electorates.

   → So the 1932 Communal Award forced Gandhi and Ambedkar into direct conflict.

7. Poona Pact and after. Gandhi's fast unto death ended with joint electorates and more reserved seats. INC won only half of reserved seats in 1937; Ambedkar's ILP and AISCF were squeezed. After 1946 he drafted the Constitution, quit over the Hindu Code Bill and converted in 1956.

   → Women's story ran in parallel, also without power.

8. Women: participation without power. Reformers spoke about women, not with them. Gandhi's frame of sisterhood, charkha and picketing brought millions out, yet INC never made women decision-makers; AIWC (1927) was nationalist first, feminist second.

   → And in the countryside, a Depression turned peasants radical.

9 Peasants radicalise. Prices halved 1929-33 but rent and debt did not; CDM politicised the peasantry and the left organised it. AIKS (1936) with Sahajanand and Ranga issued the Kisan Manifesto; Karachi 1931 and Faizpur 1936 tied INC to them.

→ But governing in 1937-39 split INC from the Kisan Sabha.

10 Ministries, Haripura and war. INC ministries struck middle-path agrarian deals and used police on Bakasht (about 600 arrests). Haripura 1938 drew a line, AIKS passed to the CPI, and war, famine and Quit India made peasants the backbone of 1942.

→ After 1945 the anger became open revolt.

11 The 1946 revolts and two readings. Worli, Bakasht, Punnapra-Vayalar, Tebhaga and Telangana fought feudal extraction, some serving national integration and some outside the Gandhian frame. Chandra reads them as anti-imperial; Bandyopadhyay as autonomous class war.

In simple words

- Moderates kept class issues out of Congress (Naoroji 1886) except where the employer was British.
- C.R. Das at Gaya 1922: absorb workers and peasants or they will form their own class movements.
- CPI's 1928 Comintern line (INC is bourgeois) isolated it; 1935 and 1941 flipped it again.
- Capitalists backed the INM as long as it fought the British, not when it threatened property; the Bombay Plan 1944 asked the future state to plan.
- Gandhi: change the heart; Ambedkar: change the law. Poona Pact traded separate electorates for more reserved seats.
- Women were called on as lawbreakers, not lawmakers; the AIWC put nation before feminism.
- Peasants moved Gandhian protest (1930) to AIKS (1936) to armed revolt (1946); historians split on whether this was anti-colonial or a class war.

1 · The Working Class Movement: origins and the Moderates (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because modern industry (railways, telegraphs, mills) came late and under colonial rule, the Indian worker became a social fact long before a political force. Ask: why did the early INC look away from workers?

1.1 Who was the modern Indian worker?

- No meaningful number of modern workers before the second half of the 19th century; railways, telegraphs, textile mills created the class.
- Contrast: Europe had a large organised working class by the early 19th century; India's industrial capitalism came later and under colonial conditions.
- Early action = immediate economic grievances only: scattered, short-lived strikes with no wider politics. A social fact long before a political force.
- 1870: Sasipada Bannerjee (Brahmo Samajist) set up a Working Men's Club and monthly journal Bharat Shramjeevi.
- 1880: Narayan Lokhande started the Anglo-Marathi weekly Deen Bandhu; by 1890 he set up the Bombay Mills & Mill Hands Association, a philanthropic welfare body, not a modern trade union.
- First modern organised trade union: Madras Labour Union (1918), founded by B.P. Wadia.
- The all-India force emerged only through its growing link with the Indian National Movement (INM).

Four dates of the worker's early organisation.

1870 Sasipada Bannerjee: Working Men's Club, Bharat Shramjeevi

1880 Lokhande: Deen Bandhu weekly

1890 Lokhande: Bombay Mills & Mill Hands Association

1918 B.P. Wadia: Madras Labour Union, first modern union

1.2 Why did the Moderates pay so little attention to workers?

- INC (1885) Moderates: Congress should take up only political questions common to all Indians, not social divisions or class grievances.
- Dadabhai Naoroji formalised this at the 1886 INC session: Congress would not take up issues that could set Indians against one another.
- Practical logic: a strong pro-peasant stand would antagonise zamindars who were part of the nationalist coalition. Premature class conflict was a strategic liability, not a moral failing.
- Economic view: Indian industry was nascent, faced British imports and British-owned firms, with no government support. Moderates saw industrial capitalism as the path to modernise India.
- So they opposed the Factory Acts of 1881 and 1891 (reduced working hours raised costs for Indian mill owners).
- The one consistent exception: workers in foreign-owned (British) enterprises
    - 1881-82: strongly backed workers in the Assam tea gardens (British-owned)
    - 1899: Signallers' Strike on the Great Indian Peninsular (GIP) Railways, the first organised industrial strike in India, backed by INC
- Pattern: Indian employer, INC stood aside; British employer, INC engaged.

1.3 How did workers first enter the INM?

- By the late 19th century, growth in industrial workers made the Moderate position hard to hold. Extremists (Lal, Bal, Pal, Aurobindo Ghosh) argued INC must take up all workers' issues for a real mass movement.
- Swadeshi Movement (1905-11) was the turning point: important strikes in foreign enterprises led by C.R. Das, B.C. Pal, Liaquat Hussain.
- First attempt at an all-India union of workers came in the Swadeshi years; it failed, but showed new awareness. Workers were drawn into the INM beyond their workplace concerns.
- Tilak trial (1908): Tilak tried for sedition for writing in Kesari supporting Prafulla Chaki and Khudiram Bose (Muzaffarpur Conspiracy Case, 1908); one of the largest working-class demonstrations till then took place in his support.
- Russian Revolution of 1905 and workers' role in it impressed the Extremists: organised labour as a source of strength; cautious start of socialist thinking in INC circles.
- When the INM receded after Swadeshi, the working class movement receded with it: the two were clearly linked.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert (Sec. 1-2 PYQ cluster): anchors are Bombay textile workers' strike 1908 (Tilak's sedition trial), Lokhande as pioneer of the labour movement (Prelims 2017 statement 2 is correct; statement 1 on the Factories Act 1881 fixing wages and allowing unions is wrong, as the Moderates opposed those Acts).

2 · Workers in and after World War I: AITUC and Gaya (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because the Swadeshi surge faded, labour waited for the next national wave. The war and the Russian Revolution lit it again. Ask: what finally pulled the INC towards workers?

1.4 The revival during and after World War I (1914-18)

- Revival driven by economic hardship (wartime inflation eroded real wages) and political awakening.
- Russian Revolution of 1917 showed organised workers could be a decisive political force: some read it as a model of revolution, others as a model of mass organisation; both readings coexisted in India.
- Developments of the period
    - Home Rule League Movement (HRL, 1916-18): workers participated actively
    - Ahmedabad mill strike (1918) led by Gandhi, produced the Textile Labour Association (TLA, 1920), an early working model of Gandhian arbitration between labour and capital
    - Rowlatt Satyagraha (1919): workers among main participants
    - Non-Cooperation Movement (NCM, 1920-22): strikes in many sectors; J.M. Sen Gupta led strikes in railways, steamer services and Assam tea plantations; workers struck during the Prince of Wales visit (November 1921)
- Workers moved from the margins of the INM into its mainstream.

1.5 AITUC (1920): the first all-India organisation of workers

- All India Trade Union Congress (AITUC), 1920, under Lala Lajpat Rai: the first all-India organisation of workers; it represented India at the International Labour Organisation (ILO) of the League of Nations from the start.
- Lajpat Rai was the first Indian leader to explicitly connect imperialism with capitalism: colonial rule and capitalist exploitation are parts of one structure (a colonial power wants cheap raw materials and a captive market, so its economic interests and its business class align).

- This gave labour a role in the anti-colonial movement itself. The 1920s saw stronger, longer strikes, and an organisation to coordinate them.
- After independence, rival federations emerged: Hind Mazdoor Sabha (HMS) founded at Howrah, 29 December 1948 by socialists and Forward Bloc unionists Ashok Mehta, T.S. Ramanujam, G.G. Mehta (Prelims 2018, answer (d)).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: Sec. 1.5 says AITUC was formed under Lajpat Rai; the PYQ alert line says founder = N.M. Joshi, first president = Lala Lajpat Rai. Use: Lajpat Rai = first president, N.M. Joshi = founder-figure of the early union movement.

1.6 INC Gaya Session (1922): a change of position

- C.R. Das argued: if Congress keeps ignoring workers' and peasants' grievances, they will launch independent class movements (workers against capitalists, peasants against landlords) and fragment the national coalition. Only fix: bring their demands into the nationalist programme.
- INC accepted: formally welcomed AITUC (1920) and, after 1922, began supporting workers' and peasants' issues.
- Gandhi's middle path: trusteeship and arbitration. Those with capital hold it in trust for society; labour-capital disputes are settled by negotiation, not confrontation. Not anti-capitalist; an attempt to make capitalism compatible with an equitable social order.

3 · The Communist Party of India and the Left within the INC (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because 1917 inspired workers everywhere, communist parties sprang up worldwide. Ask: who built the Indian party, and what did each leader own?

1.7 CPI and the growth of the Left

- CPI first established at Tashkent (Uzbekistan, USSR), 1920, by M.N. Roy, Abani Mukherji and others (Prelims 2005: Roy headed the group). Set up inside India at the Kanpur Conference, December 1925, to unite scattered communist groups into a single legal party.
- Key leaders: S.V. Ghate; M. Singaravelu Chettiar (Madras; presided over Kanpur; first to celebrate May Day in India, 1923).
- Satyabhakta convened Kanpur but wanted a purely nationalist party independent of the Comintern; outvoted by Ghate and Singaravelu, he resigned.
- S.A. Dange, Muzaffar Ahmad, P.C. Joshi = three tallest leaders of CPI (1925-1947). Dange, Muzaffar Ahmad and Shaukat Usmani were imprisoned in the 1924 Kanpur Bolshevik Conspiracy Case.

- M.N. Roy's emigre communist journal = Vanguard (Prelims 1995).

Leader	Domain	Defining deeds
S.A. Dange (Shripad Amrit Dange)	West: Bombay, face of CPI 1925 and communist trade unions	Led the six-month Bombay Textile Strikes (1928); built the Girni Kamgar Union (GKU); wrote Gandhi vs. Lenin (1921); founded The Socialist, India's first communist journal
Muzaffar Ahmad	East: Bengal	Built the peasants-workers alliance as the Workers & Peasants Party (WPP), a legal front when CPI was banned; prime accused in the Meerut Conspiracy Case (1929-33), used the court as a propaganda platform and demanded complete independence
P.C. Joshi (Puran Chand Joshi)	Organisation	General Secretary of CPI 1925 from 1935 to 1947; infiltrated the Congress Socialist Party (CSP, 1934) for mass cadres; built IPTA (Indian People's Theatre Association) and PWA (Progressive Writers' Association), recruiting Kaifi Azmi, Mulk Raj Anand, Balraj Sahni

- Left wing inside the INC through the 1920s: Jawaharlal Nehru, Subhas Chandra Bose.
- WPPs set up within the INC structure from early 1927 under S.A. Dange; All-India WPP by 1928; communist influence in Congress visibly growing.
- Substantial working-class participation in the anti-Simon Commission agitations (October 1928).

4 · Trade Union Act 1926, the British response and the Whitley Commission (no class notes)

> Because the Left and labour kept growing, the British answered with law (recognise), rules (restrict) and force (arrest). Ask: which tool was which?

1.8 The Trade Union Act, 1926

- Landmark: gave legal recognition to trade unions for the first time; protected union funds from arbitrary seizure; gave immunity to members and office-bearers for legitimate strike action.
- Turned unionism from an informal, legally vulnerable activity into a recognised institution with enforceable rights.
- Irony: the same government that tried to suppress labour (Meerut Case 1929, Trade Disputes Bill 1929) gave it legal standing, partly under ILO pressure, partly to channel agitation into regulated forms.

1.9 British approach to the rise of the Left

- Measures were reformative, regulatory (Trade Union Act 1926) and coercive.
- Public Safety Bill (1929): powers of deportation. Trade Disputes Bill (1929): significant restrictions on labour action (Prelims 2017: the Trade Disputes measure banned strikes and set up tribunals).
- Context for the bomb in the Central Legislative Assembly (CLA) on 8 April 1929 by Bhagat Singh and B.K. Dutt: the Assembly was discussing these very bills. It was designed to be heard, not to kill, to force attention on laws passed over the people's heads.
- Meerut Conspiracy Case (1929): many communists, including foreign nationals, arrested under Section 121A IPC (1860) for conspiracy to deprive the King of sovereignty over British India. Triggers: ongoing railway strikes and attempts to set up a branch of the Comintern. The trial dragged on for years and organisationally weakened the movement.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: handout calls the 1929 measure a Bill; Prelims 2017 calls it the Trade Disputes Act 1929. The key answer is (d) a system of tribunals and a ban on strikes.

The Whitley Commission (Royal Commission on Labour, 1929)

- Chaired by J.H. Whitley; appointed 1929; six Indian members including G.D. Birla and N.M. Joshi; report in 1931.
- Found poverty the root cause of India's industrial problems; critical of British employers' role.
- Recommendations
    - Legal recognition of trade unions and collective bargaining
    - Standardised wages in cotton and jute industries
    - Works committees at factory level
    - Conciliation officers for disputes
    - Systematic labour statistics
    - Tripartite consultative bodies (government, employers, workers): foundation of the post-independence Indian Labour Conference
- Limited implementation under colonial rule, but the blueprint for Factories Act (1948) and Minimum Wages Act (1948).

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: the handout dates the Commission 1929; a Prelims 2003 key note says 1928. Use the handout: appointed 1929, report 1931. Prelims 2003 answer: (b) report on conditions of labour.

5 · CPI's break with the INC, Comintern reversals and the final phase (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because a Comintern order in 1928 turned the CPI against Congress, labour lost the biggest mass platform; a second order in 1935 and a third event in 1941 swung it back and forth. Ask: what did each swing cost?

1.10 The CPI's break with the INC

- 6th World Congress of the Comintern (1928): oppose all non-communist political forces. CPI 1925 called INC a bourgeois party and Nehru and Bose representatives of propertied interests; cut itself off from India's largest mass movement.
- CPI 1925 opposed the Civil Disobedience Movement (CDM, 1930-34), called Swaraj illusory, and called the Gandhi-Irwin Pact (1931) proof of compromise. By 1934 the communists themselves wound up the WPPs inside INC.
- INC called workers the "hands & feet" of the CDM. Participation fell short, but: after Gandhi's arrest in May 1930, Sholapur textile workers struck so seriously that the British imposed martial law; GIP railway workers lay on the tracks to stop trains.
- Congress Socialist Party (CSP, 1934) formed inside INC by Jayaprakash Narayan, Minoo Masani, Acharya Narendra Dev (Prelims 1996: Narendra Dev, answer (d)). Critical of Gandhi over CDM withdrawal, but rejected CPI's anti-Congress line: stayed inside to shift INC from within.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2002 Assertion-Reason (labour participation in early-1930s upsurge was weak; labour leaders thought INC bourgeois and reactionary) = (a), both true and R explains A.

1.11 The Comintern reverses course: 1935 onwards

- 7th World Congress (1935): with Hitler's rise, unite with all anti-fascist forces. Under P.C. Joshi, CPI 1925 realigned with INC.
- 1936-42: communists built big peasant movements in Kerala, Andhra, Bengal, Punjab, recovering credibility.
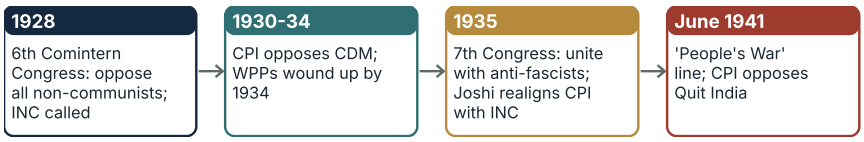
- All India Kisan Sabha (AIKS, 1936) under Swami Sahajanand Saraswati; Kisan Manifesto demanded land to the actual cultivator.
- INC provincial ministries 1937-39 boosted labour; AITUC actively backed INC in elections.
- June 1941: Germany attacked the USSR; CPI 1925 called WWII a "People's War" and backed the British effort, formally opposing the Quit India Movement (QIM, 1942); this badly hurt its standing, though many communists and workers joined the INM on their own.

CHAIN: CPI'S FOUR SWINGS



1.12 Workers in the final phase of the INM

- December 1945 provincial elections: INC and Muslim League (ML, 1906) dominated; the left fared poorly, confirming CPI 1925's irrelevance.
- Inconsistency: CPI 1925 had denounced Subhas Bose and the INA harshly in the war, even as "Tojo's dog" (Tojo: Japanese PM under whose military umbrella the INA operated); once the INA trials (1945-46) became a flashpoint, it joined the agitations for the same soldiers, partly to recover lost standing.
- Royal Indian Navy Mutiny (Bombay, February 1946): CPI 1925 called on Bombay's workers to strike in solidarity.
- When Travancore, Junagarh, Hyderabad refused the Instrument of Accession, communists and workers led popular agitations in those states for democratic rights and integration, adding pressure for accession.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: Sec. 1 PYQ anchors are AITUC 1920, Bombay textile workers' strike 1908, Trade Union Act 1926, Royal Commission on Labour 1929, Industrial Disputes Act 1947, FICCI 1927 (Purshotamdas Thakurdas + G.D. Birla), Bombay Plan 1944 (the alert names Tata, Birla, Dalmia; the eight drafters in Sec. 2.4 do not include Dalmia, so use the Sec. 2.4 list). Capitalist support to the INM was largely indirect funding; capitalists like Walchand Hirachand opposed Gandhi's anti-modernist Khadi line.

6 · Indian Capitalists: who they were and what they resented (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because the colonial economy was built for British commerce, Indian business grew under deliberate disadvantage. Ask: which grievances were economic and which political?

2.1 Who were Indian capitalists and what were their grievances?

- Industrialists, traders, mill owners, merchants: grew in the second half of the 19th century with modern industry, under unfavourable conditions.
- British imports entered at low tariffs, Indian goods faced high duties in Britain (the classic colonial trade trap). No government support, no protection, no representation in economic policy bodies.
- Five core economic complaints
  - Trade and tariff policy favoured British manufacturers
  - Heavy taxation, including income tax introduced in 1868 despite famines
  - Restrictions on production of some goods, e.g. low-grade steel
  - Government preference to British firms in contracts and procurement
  - No developmental support or institutional credit infrastructure

MNEMONIC · FIVE CAPITALIST GRIEVANCES

T R A I L

Indian business was left to TRAIL: Tariffs, Restrictions, Absent credit, Income-tax drain, procurement Loyalty to British firms.

- T Tariff and trade policy favoured British makers
- R Restrictions on production (low-grade steel)
- A Absent credit and developmental support
- I Income tax from 1868 despite famines
- L Loyalty of government contracts to British firms

Unordered list rearranged into a topic word.

The tariff story and the Factory Acts

- 19th-century British textiles entered India virtually duty-free. A modest import duty on cotton in 1894 was cancelled out by a matching countervailing excise duty on Indian mill cloth, forced by the Lancashire lobby.

- The Fiscal Autonomy Convention after WWI gave India some tariff-setting power; the post-CDM period brought meaningful protective tariffs, a concrete gain through nationalist pressure.
- Factory Acts of 1881 and 1891 were pushed by the Lancashire lobby: stricter regulation raised Indian costs and cut competitiveness. Indian capitalists and Moderates opposed them. The British regulated out of fear of Indian competition, not sympathy for workers.
- FICCI (Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce & Industry), 1927: organised voice of Indian business. It refused to negotiate with the British government on constitutional or economic issues without INC approval or participation: big business made the INC its political representative.

7 · Capitalists: ambivalence and phase-by-phase positions (no class notes)

> STORY LINK
> Because mass movements disrupt trade and awaken one's own workers, capitalists backed the INM only so far. Ask: in which phase did business and nationalism point the same way?

2.2 Why were capitalists ambivalent?

- Hartals, strikes, boycotts, processions disrupted industry and trade; capitalists wanted protection, not revolution.
- As workers and peasants entered the INM, capitalists faced their own workers: rise of AITUC (1920), Trade Unions Act (1926), growing communist influence made them anxious. Too much support risked strengthening forces that challenged their authority.

2.3 Varying positions through the INM

Phase	Capitalist position
Swadeshi (1905-11)	Most enthusiastic: buy Indian, boycott British. P.C. Ray's Bengal Chemical Industries thrived; Chidambaram Pillai's Swadeshi Steam Navigation Company challenged British coastal shipping; TISCO set up by Jamsetji Tata; Tilak: Bombay Swadeshi Stores; Lajpat Rai: Indian National Bank, later Punjab National Bank (PNB). The INM's most capitalist-friendly phase.
Against worker demands	Ahmedabad mill strike (1918): mill owners incl. Ambalal Sarabhai resisted. Gandhi mediated, sided with a living wage, but arbitration prevented class conflict. TLA (1920) non-confrontational; trusteeship acceptable, nationalisation or workers' control not.
Funding the movement	Jamnalal Bajaj (land for Sabarmati Ashram) and G.D. Birla (funded and hosted Gandhi) were close to Gandhi; Vaidilal Mehta and others gave to INC funds. A free India under INC was likely better for industry.

Phase	Capitalist position
CDM (1930-34)	Currency: the high 1s 6d rupee fixed in 1926 (Hilton-Young Commission) hurt Indian producers; businessmen wanted 1s 4d, formed a Currency League in Bombay (1926) blessed by Gandhi and Patel. Gandhi put 1s 4d among his Eleven Demands (1930, see Ch 41). For the first time traders stopped importing British cloth; British cloth imports fell about 50%. Funds given, but they opposed escalation of mass civil disobedience beyond a point.
Round Table Conferences	1st RTC (1930): FICCI boycotted in solidarity with INC. 2nd RTC (1931), Gandhi attending: FICCI supported Congress.
QIM (1942)	Individual acts: businessmen donated generously in the underground phase; Sumati Morarjee, a businesswoman, gave Achyut Patwardhan a different car each day to evade detection. Personal courage, not institutional policy.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- FICCI's line: support the INC politically, but do not let the movement threaten capitalism itself.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: Prelims 2010 (Bombay Manifesto 1936) is not in the handout text; the key says (a) only 1: the Bombay Manifesto was signed by 21 Bombay businessmen and indicted Nehru's preaching of socialism; support was one Bombay group, not all-India business.

8 · The Bombay Plan, INA support and the capitalist triangle (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because Indian capital was too weak to build heavy industry alone, its leaders asked the future state to plan. Ask: how did the same men fund Gandhi, the INA and a planned economy?

2.4 The Bombay Plan (1944)

- Formal title: A Plan of Economic Development for India. Drafted by eight industrialists and technocrats: J.R.D. Tata, G.D. Birla, Purushottamdas Thakurdas, Ardeshir Dalal, Kasturbhai Lalbhai, A.D. Shroff, Lala Shri Ram, John Mathai.
- Published January 1944, at the height of the Bengal Famine (1943) and QIM repression: the first ever national economic plan for India.
- Proposed a mixed economy: heavy state investment in basic industries, infrastructure, transport, power, and social welfare (education, housing, healthcare). Aim: double per capita income in 15 years via three five-year plans.

- Widely read, translated, reprinted, endorsed by FICCI at its 1944 meeting; direct and acknowledged influence on the First Five Year Plan.
- Criticised from all sides: left said it protected private property; right said it was socialist; the British (Viceroy's office) reportedly considered a rival pamphlet. Upsetting everyone roughly equally marks it as centrist.

2.5 INA trials and the final phase (1945-46)

- Capitalists funded and backed the INA men's defence. The INA Defence Committee raised funds, G.D. Birla among major contributors; Bhulabhai Desai led the defence at the Red Fort.
- Even earlier, Indian businessmen in Malaya, Singapore and Burma funded the INA and the Indian Independence League (IIL): among the first open business support of a political movement against the colonial government.

2.6 The relationship triangle (and peasants)

With	Relationship
Moderates / INC	Comfortable: capitalism would modernise India; opposed Factory Acts; kept INC away from class conflict.
Extremists / Gandhian phase	Complex but workable: Swadeshi, trusteeship, arbitration.
Workers and the left	Consistently tense: supported the INM while it fought the British, uneasy when it began fighting them; why FICCI opposed mass civil disobedience yet backed INC.
Peasants	Distant: capitalists were urban and industrial; zamindari abolition, debt relief, land redistribution were not their cause; they watched the 1930s peasant movements anxiously.

2.7 Assessment

- Capitalists remained ambivalent but not absent: they contributed funds, boycotted British goods at critical moments, stood with INC at constitutional conferences, produced the Bombay Plan (1944), and individuals took risks in QIM. Support was real but conditional.
- They backed the movement against British imperialism and resisted it when it targeted Indian property and capital.
- After 1947 the ambivalence was partly resolved in the mixed economy the Bombay Plan proposed: state took heavy industry, private capital took consumer industry; freedom from British competition, protection from socialist expropriation, a state big enough to build infrastructure.

9 · The Voice of Dalits: methods, Vaikom, Self-Respect and Guruvayur (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because the INC kept social questions off its agenda, Dalits built their own struggles. Ask: what did symbolic and direct action each win?

3.1 How did Dalit movements operate?

- Not one force: local struggles, regional assertions, gradually a national political voice, all driven by the caste system's denial of basic dignity.
- Methods: symbolic (wearing the sacred thread, community pujas, rituals upper castes claimed) and direct action (forcing entry into temples).
- Early pioneer Gopal Baba Walangkar, a Mahar ex-soldier: 1888 started Vital-Vidhvansak ('Destroyer of Ceremonial Pollution'), the first monthly journal aimed at the untouchable community (Prelims 2020, answer (a)).

3.2 Vaikom Satyagraha (1924-25)

- In Travancore, the first major organised temple-entry movement of the modern period; led by the Ezhava community, with Narayan Guru and K. Kesava Menon at the forefront.
- Demand: the right to use public roads near the Vaikom temple barred to lower castes.
- Became all-India; Periyar (E.V. Ramaswamy Naicker) joined. INC formally supported; Savarnas boycotted Avarnas and pro-Satyagraha Congressmen.
- Gandhi visited in 1925, met the Queen of Travancore; compromise: some roads opened to Avarnas, others reserved for Savarnas, some temple gates stayed closed. Principle acknowledged, not fully enforced.

3.3 The Self-Respect Movement (1925)

- Periyar founded it in 1925 in the Madras Presidency: assault on Brahminical dominance; rejected caste hierarchy and Brahminical rituals; promoted self-respect marriages (no Brahmin priest, no Sanskrit mantras).
- Asserted that lower castes could define their own dignity, ceremonies and rules. Link: Periyar joined Vaikom and founded this movement the same year.
- PYQs: Prelims 2019 (pairs: Anti-Untouchability League-Gandhi, AIKS-Sahajanand, Self-Respect-E.V. Ramaswami Naicker: all correct, (d)), Prelims 2021, Prelims 2025 (founder = E.V. Ramaswamy Naicker, (a)).

3.4 Guruvayur Satyagraha (1931-33)

- Guruvayur is in Malabar (today Thrissur district, Kerala), a major Krishna temple.
- K. Kelappan led a march for temple entry and a fast unto death, broken only on Gandhi's personal appeal. A.K. Gopalan (later a major communist leader) walked across Malabar.
- Pressure lasted till 1936: the King of Travancore issued a royal proclamation opening all temples in Travancore to all Hindus regardless of caste. (1936 also saw INC Faizpur and AIKS.)

10 · Dr B.R. Ambedkar: a different path, and the Gandhi-Ambedkar divide (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because temple entry sought entry into the system that caused the injustice, Ambedkar moved to water, education and power. Ask: what did Gandhi and Ambedkar share, and where did they split?

3.5 Dr B.R. Ambedkar: a different path

- 1927: Mahad Satyagraha, 15,000 Dalits in Mahad, Maharashtra, asserting the right to draw water from a public tank (Chavdar Tank, Prelims 2013). The colonial administration had granted it; upper castes refused. Ambedkar led Dalits to the tank to drink.

- December 1927, same Mahad conference: Ambedkar publicly burnt the Manusmriti, the legal text that codified caste hierarchy and the subjugation of Dalits and women.
- 1934: when temple-entry Satyagrahis agitated at the Kalaram Temple, Nasik, he asked them to stop and boycott temples: no solution within Hinduism. Answer: education and political power, with reservation in education, jobs and representation as non-negotiable compensation.

3.6 Why were Dalits alienated from the INC?

- The Bengal Renaissance was dominated by upper castes and their concerns; Hindu revivalism of the 1870s-80s hardened caste lines; INC's 1886 policy of avoiding social questions kept Dalit grievances off the agenda.
- Gandhi upheld the varnashrama system till the 1940s; his approach was moral and religious (penance, glorifying sweepers' work, making untouchability socially unacceptable). It dignified but did not empower. Ambedkar's critique: Dalits treated as objects of upper-caste compassion, not agents.
- Nehru refused to see caste as a political problem: a social question to dissolve with modernisation. Gandhi offered religion, Nehru economics, neither offered power.

3.7 Gandhi vs Ambedkar on varna (PYQ Mains 2015)

	Gandhi: reform from within	Ambedkar: annihilation
View of varna	Fundamentally sound division of labour; ideal form gave dignity to all occupations	Caste is varna's logical consequence; hierarchy, bans on inter-dining and inter-marriage, untouchability built into the Shastras; no 'pure varna'
What went wrong	Corruption of varna into caste (untouchability, pollution, hereditary exclusion)	The system is oppressive by design
Remedy	Moral persuasion; upper-caste penance; open temples and wells; Hinduism can reform itself	Destroy Shastric authority; reservation, legal ban on untouchability, constitutional rights; exit Hinduism if it cannot accommodate equality
Trust placed in	Religion and the heart	The state and the law

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Gandhi: change the heart. Ambedkar: change the law, because the heart will not change on its own. Independent India adopted Ambedkar's institutional route (Article 17, reservation, Scheduled Castes order) while invoking Gandhi's moral language.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Mains theme (guiding PYQs): Gandhi and Ambedkar, despite divergent approaches, shared the common goal of amelioration of the downtrodden. Skeleton: common goal of dignity; Gandhi (varna ideal, penance, Harijan campaign); Ambedkar (annihilation, separate electorates, reservation, Article 17); synthesis in the Constitution.

11 · Dalit politics: organisations, Poona Pact and the final chapter (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because moral appeals could not give Dalits power, Ambedkar demanded separate electorates; Gandhi's fast forced a compromise. Ask: what was gained and what was lost at Poona?

3.8 The organisations and the political battle

- 1926: All India Depressed Classes Association (AIDCA) under M.C. Rajah of Madras. 1930: Ambedkar's All India Depressed Classes Congress (AIDCC), anti-INC, to negotiate with the British directly.
- 1928: before the Simon Commission (1927-29), Ambedkar demanded separate electorates for Dalits: the mechanism given to Muslims in the Indian Councils Act (1909) and accepted by INC in the Lucknow Pact (1916).
- 1st RTC (1930), boycotted by INC: Ambedkar attended and repeated the demand. 2nd RTC (1931): the decisive Gandhi vs Ambedkar confrontation. Gandhi: Dalits are Hindus; separation would permanently divide Hindu society. Ambedkar: without separate electorates Dalits stay dependent on upper-caste voters and never elect genuine representatives.
- Communal Award (August 1932), by PM Ramsay MacDonald, sided with Ambedkar: reserved seats via separate electorates. Gandhi began a fast unto death from jail. He backed reservation but opposed separate electorates.
- Poona Pact (September 1932): reserved seats kept (number increased over the Communal Award) but with joint electorates; the instrument of electoral independence was lost. Ambedkar called signing it one of the worst days of his life. Formalised in the Government of India Act (1935).
- Harijan Campaign after Poona: Gandhi toured, opened wells and temples, raised funds. Other INC leaders were indifferent; Nehru did not see caste as a political problem. 1937 provincial elections: INC won only half of the reserved Dalit seats; INC ministries (1937-39) did little for Dalits.

3.9 Ambedkar's political organisations

- 1936: Independent Labour Party (ILP) to unite poor workers and untouchables (merging class and caste, since the poorest workers and most oppressed castes were often the same people); won most reserved seats in Bombay (1937).

- 1942: Labour Member in the Viceroy's Executive Council; a few days before QIM he formed the All India Scheduled Castes Federation (AISCF, 1942), motto: Dalits are distinct from Hindus.
- After QIM the AISCF struggled: many Dalits followed Gandhi; late formation and weak structure; communists eroded its poorer-Dalit base; in the 1946 elections it was marginalised by the INC-ML contest.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Prelims 2013: parties established by Ambedkar = ILP (1936) and AISCF (1942), answer (b); the Peasants and Workers Party of India was not his. Also note the 1946 Prelims 1996 point (Ambedkar's CA seat) is not in this handout.

3.10 The final chapter: co-option, the Constitution and the break

- After 1946 INC co-opted Ambedkar: member of the Constituent Assembly, then Chairman of the Drafting Committee. Untouchability made illegal under Article 17. Law Minister in Nehru's cabinet.
- He introduced the Hindu Code Bill (reform of Hindu personal law: inheritance, marriage, divorce, women's property); INC refused support. He resigned in 1951.
- October 1956: converted to Buddhism with 3.8 lakh followers, one and a half months before his death: no solution within Hinduism, no political home within INC.
- Alert PYQs: Prelims 2013 (Mahad 1927, Chavdar Tank), Prelims 2021 (Periyar, Self-Respect, Tamil Nadu), Prelims 2025 (Ambedkar's constitutional role, Round Table Conference representation).

12 · The Voice of Women: reform, education and economics (no class notes)

> Because 19th-century reformers spoke about women but not with them, women were subjects of reform, not participants. Ask: whose agenda was women's education?

4.1 Why did 19th-century reform not produce women leaders?

- Reformers passed laws on sati, widow remarriage, women's education, but treated women as the subject of reform, not its participants.
- By late 19th century Hindu revivalism pushed back; conservatism returned. Purdah spread among upper-caste Hindus as a marker of respectability.
- Sanskritisation hurt lower-caste women: purity of women became a symbol of caste honour; widow remarriage, practised by lower castes, was given up. Freedom shrank as caste aspiration rose.

4.2 Women's education: who wanted it and why

- British: wanted English-educated women to raise pro-Western children and, by keeping women domestic, to stop them joining the INM. Bhadralok: wanted an educated companion. Reformers: to counter the British critique that Indian society was backward, as women's status was a barometer of civilisation. All male agendas.
- Bethune School (1849): Drinkwater Bethune, Law Member of the Governor-General's Council, with special interest from Dalhousie. Hunter Commission (1882): liberal grants and scholarships for women's education. Social stereotyping remained a barrier.
- Tarabai Shinde: Comparison Between Women & Men (1882), a fierce argument that men enjoyed all rights while women were reduced to the pativrata stereotype.
- Pandita Ramabai: Brahmin woman who refused the educated-but-obedient-wife model; stayed unmarried for years, married a Sudra man, widowed, studied medicine in England, converted to Christianity, went to the US and raised funds for a widow's home in Bombay. Criticised even by reformers who claimed to support women.

4.3 The economic dimension

- Men migrated to city factories; women stayed in villages in agricultural labour with no formal recognition.
- In factories women got lower wages (domestic-skill stereotype). Mechanisation displaced women's craft and cottage industries more than men's.
- Prosperity in peasant families often meant withdrawal of women from labour, since confinement was a status sign: development reduced women's public participation.

13 · Women and the INM: participation without power, and Gandhi (no class notes)

> STORY LINK
> Because the INC ignored social questions until 1917, women entered nationalism in symbolic roles. Ask: what did Gandhi change, and what stayed the same?

4.4 Women and the INM: participation without power

- INC until 1917 took up no social questions. Early roles: keepers of the household, guardians of Swadeshi, boycotters. In Swadeshi (1905-11) the 'Mother India' focus kept participation domestic.
- Exception: Sarala Debi Chaudhrani, involved in the physical culture movement for Bengal's youth (martial exercises).
- In revolutionary activity women gave shelter, acted as couriers, passed messages: dangerous but invisible.
- Post-WWI: Annie Besant (central to HRL, 1916-18) and Sarojini Naidu. 1917: Naidu led a delegation to the Secretary of State demanding votes for women. GOI Act (1919) gave women the vote, with property qualifications. 1918: she demanded equal eligibility criteria within INC. 1925: Naidu elected INC President, the first woman in that post.

4.5 Gandhi and women: a transformation

- Non-violence and moral authority removed the need for physical strength: courage, discipline, willingness to suffer could not be denied to women.
- Frame shifted from 'motherhood' (passive, domestic) to 'sisterhood' (active equal participants), negating the centrality of women's sexuality to their public role.
- Used religion: Sita, Draupadi as models of courage. Women's duty: look after the home, but also spin the charkha and picket liquor shops. Men and women equal but with different roles; women physically weaker but greater in strength of soul. By not challenging gender roles directly he disarmed male opposition: strategically brilliant, philosophically limited.

Movement	Women's role
Rowlatt Satyagraha (1919)	Gandhi's first specific call to women.
NCM (1920-22)	Boycotts and Swadeshi; agitated against Prince of Wales (November 1921); Basanti Devi, wife of C.R. Das, courted arrest in December 1921; Muslim women in Khilafat: Bi Amman, mother of the Ali Brothers (Shaukat Ali, Mohammad Ali), addressed crowds for the first time, lifting purdah.
CDM (1930-34)	Thousands joined; the scale shocked everyone; the Chittagong group under Surya Sen included women.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- The contradiction: INC never involved women in decision-making nor took up women's issues as political demands. Sarala Debi Chaudhrani: "The INC wants women only to be lawbreakers, not lawmakers."

HANDOUT ALERT

- Mains skeleton (guiding PYQs on women in the Gandhian phase): symbolic roles pre-Gandhi; Gandhi's moral frame (sisterhood, charkha, picketing); milestones (Rowlatt call, Khilafat, Basanti Devi, CDM); limits (no decision-making, 'lawbreakers not lawmakers'); organisations (AIWC); legislative gains; honest assessment: nationalism before women's rights.

14 · Women: organisations, legislation, the 1940s and the verdict (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because the INC would not take up women's issues, women built their own organisations, but put the nation first. Ask: what did legislation give and what remained unfinished?

4.6 Women's organisations

- Began in the 1900s, independent of INC. Sarala Debi Chaudhrani founded the Bharat Stree Mandal (1910) with branches across India for women's education.
- All India Women's Conference (AIWC, 1927), founded under Margaret Cousins, an Irish feminist. Took up women's issues directly: education, political rights, marriage reform, women workers' rights. Methods moderate (lobbying, petitions). It placed the INM before women's issues: nationalist first, feminist second.

4.7 Legislative progress

- 1921-30: several provincial legislatures used powers under the GOI Act (1919) to grant women the vote, subject to property qualifications. GOI Act (1935) extended the vote and gave reserved seats.
- Women leaders wanted Universal Adult Franchise (making reservation unnecessary): it came only with the Constitution of 1950.
- Sarda Act (1929), formally the Child Marriage Restraint Act: minimum marriage age 14 for girls, 18 for males. 1930s: bills on property rights, inheritance, divorce, dowry, prostitution passed in central and provincial legislatures.

4.8 The 1940s: the final phase

- QIM (1942): great participation, especially in rural areas. Lifting of the ban on CPI 1925 in 1942 aided women's participation, many being CPI members since the 1920s-30s.

- Bengal 1942: leftist women organised the Mahila Atmaraksha Samiti (1942) and did famine relief in the Bengal Famine (1943).
- Tebhaga Movement (1946), Bengal: sharecroppers demanding two-thirds of produce; high participation by Dalit and tribal women, who fought the British and gave lives.
- INA: 1,500 women joined the Rani Jhansi Regiment, fought in the Imphal Campaign (1944). Women also took part in the Muslim League's Pakistan campaign.

4.9 The honest assessment

- Women fought more for nationalism than for their own rights: movements asked them to serve a national cause without addressing their specific conditions. INC accepted participation gratefully and gave women's issues low priority.
- The Constitution of 1950 gave full political equality; the social and economic transformation demanded by Tarabai Shinde and Pandita Ramabai in the 1880s is still unfinished.
- Thread: every crisis called on women to sacrifice (Rani Jhansi Regiment in Burma, Tebhaga women who died, picketers jailed), and every time their own demands were deferred.

15 · Peasants in the 1930s: Depression, AIKS and the INC alliance (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because prices halved but rent, revenue and debt did not, peasants turned radical in the 1930s. Ask: who gave that anger an organisation?

5.1 Why did peasants become more radical in the 1930s?

- 1920s movements were local (one district, one landlord, one grievance); even Bardoli (1928) stayed within the Gandhian framework.
- First: the Great Depression; between 1929 and 1933 agricultural prices fell by roughly half (Rs 10 became Rs 5) while rent, land revenue and debt did not: mass debt and land loss.

- Second: CDM (1930-34) drew peasants into politics through no-tax and no-rent campaigns; its 1934 withdrawal left them politically conscious but organisationally homeless.
- Third: the left moved in. CSP (1934) and CPI invested in rural organisation and gave an ideology: 'the zamindari system itself must go'.

5.2 The All India Kisan Sabha (AIKS), 1936

- Founded at Lucknow on 11 April 1936, timed with the INC session. Swami Sahajanand Saraswati (Bihar) first President; N.G. Ranga first General Secretary.
- Kisan Manifesto, August 1936: abolish zamindari; tax agricultural wealth on a graduated scale; cancel hereditary debts; grant occupancy rights to tenants (the legal right to stay on and till land; without it a tenant could be evicted at will). Beyond what INC would adopt.
- Bihar: most militant; central fight over Bakasht lands (tenant plots seized by zamindars during Depression years when tenants could not pay rent). Sahajanand led the Bihar Provincial Kisan Sabha (BPKS), founded by him in 1929. Andhra: N.G. Ranga against zamindari and revenue hikes.
- Bengal: separate vehicle, the Krishak Praja Party (KPP), founded by A.K. Fazlul Huq in 1936, an independent party (not part of AIKS) of Muslim peasants, mainly East Bengal, against largely Hindu zamindars and moneylenders. Demands: abolish zamindari, debt relief, end the Permanent Settlement. Won 36 seats in the 1937 Bengal assembly, then allied with the Muslim League, not INC.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Handout alert: Sec. 1.11 says AIKS was established in Bihar; Sec. 5.2 gives Lucknow, 11 April 1936. Use Lucknow; Bihar was Sahajanand's base. Prelims 2019 match: AIKS-Swami Sahajanand Saraswati is correct.

5.3 The INC and the peasant movement

- Karachi Session, March 1931: president Sardar Patel, resolution drafted by Nehru. Defined Swaraj for the masses: political freedom must include economic freedom. Demands: substantial cut in land revenue and rent, relief for uneconomic holdings, cancellation of agricultural debt, a living wage for workers, state ownership of key industries. The colonial government spread rumours of communist money reaching Karachi.
- Faizpur Session, 1936: the first INC session held in a village; AIKS and INC held a joint meeting; Kisan demands shaped the INC's 1937 manifesto. Strong INC result: clear majorities in most provinces (not in Bengal, Punjab, Assam, Sindh, NWFP).

16 · Congress ministries, the split and the 1940s peasant upsurge (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because governing is not protesting, the INC ministries balanced zamindars and tenants and the Kisan Sabha moved to the CPI. Ask: how did war turn that drift into an upsurge?

5.4 Congress ministries (1937-39): from agitation to administration

- 28 months of INC rule: the first real governing, for a coalition of peasants, workers, professionals, merchants, industrialists and zamindars.
- In Bihar and UP the ministries passed incremental agrarian laws (relief for tenants in arrears, protection against eviction, rent cuts) and did not abolish zamindari overnight (risk of agrarian chaos).
- Bakasht agitation, Bihar: under the BPKS peasants launched Satyagrahas to reclaim seized lands (entering fields, harvesting). The ministry under Sri Krishna Sinha negotiated a settlement: part of the land returned to tenants, zamindars got legal stability on the rest. When the agitation turned volatile, police were used. By August 1939, concessions, legislation and about 600 arrests ended it.
- Rahul Sankrityayan, scholar-communist and prominent Bihar peasant leader, was arrested in this period for a Satyagraha. His more famous two-year Hazaribagh jail term (1940) came after the ministries resigned (October 1939), under British authority.
- The left called it betrayal; the balanced reading: an elected government of conflicting interests cannot fully satisfy one group without shortchanging another.

5.5 The split: INC steps back, CPI steps in

- Haripura Session, 1938, president Subhas Chandra Bose: formal resolution on Kisan Sabhas reaffirmed peasants' right to organise but said Congress could not associate with activities incompatible with its principles and would not allow Congressmen who were Kisan Sabha members to create a hostile atmosphere; Provincial Congress Committees to act. Passed with little discussion.
- Many activists chose AIKS; the CPI, working inside both CSP and AIKS, filled the space. AIKS kept growing: over 800,000 members by 1939.

5.6 The 1940s: war, Quit India and the peasant upsurge

- CPI took organisational control of AIKS: by the early 1940s in practice a mass organisation of the Communist Party. Sahajanand Saraswati and N.G. Ranga left AIKS, unable to follow the CPI's pro-British People's War line after 1941.
- War worsened rural distress: grain requisitioning, forced procurement at below-market prices, inflation, shortages; the Bengal Famine (1943) (link Ch 45) was the worst expression.
- QIM (1942) (link Ch 44): entire INC leadership arrested within hours of the 8 August resolution; peasants were the backbone, the 'soul' of QIM: cut telegraph lines, disrupted rail, attacked police stations, set up parallel governments (Satara pratisarkar, Ballia, Midnapore uprisings). Nationalist outburst and class struggle fused, since the revenue machinery, zamindar's rent collector and moneylender's ledger were one system.
- War-end 1945: a radicalised, desperate, experienced peasantry exploded into post-war uprisings.

17 · Post-war peasant movements (1945-1951) (no class notes)

> Because the war left peasants radical and desperate, 1945 onwards brought five distinct revolts. Ask: which served national integration, and which went outside the Gandhian framework?

5.7 Post-war peasant movements

Movement	Where / when	Core facts
Worli Uprising	Thane district, Bombay Presidency, 1945-47	Worlis: impoverished tribal community treated as bonded labour by landlords, moneylenders, forest contractors. Grievance: Veth Begar (forced unpaid labour). Led by organisers like Godavari Parulekar; a unified strike, refusal to perform forced labour; landlords yielded by 1947.
Bakasht re-occupations	Bihar, 1946-47	Second, intense phase of the 1930s struggle; evicted peasants demanded restoration of hereditary tenancy; led again by Swami Sahajanand Saraswati; marched on Bakasht lands and planted crops against zamindars' private armies and police. Forced the Bihar Bakasht Disputes Settlement Act (1947).
Punnapra-Vayalar	Travancore (Kerala), October 1946	Dewan Sir C.P. Ramaswami Iyer planned an independent Travancore allied to the British Crown. Coir-factory workers, fishermen, agricultural labourers led by local CPI and CSP cadres, armed with sharpened bamboo sticks, set up self-rule camps at Punnapra and Vayalar. State military with British machine guns crushed it: about 1,000 killed. The Dewan's authority shattered; he fled, ensuring Travancore's integration into India.
Tebhaga	Bengal, 1946-	'Three parts': landlord's share cut from 1/2 to 1/3, tenant keeps 2/3 (Prelims 2013, (a)). Basis: Floud Commission

Movement	Where / when	Core facts
	47	(1940), formally the Bengal Land Revenue Commission, which recommended abolition of the Permanent Settlement; the Bengal government never implemented it.
Telangana Armed Struggle	Hyderabad, 1946-51	Exploitation by the Nizam's feudal landlords (Deshmukhs) via forced labour (Vetti) and evictions; early resistance against the Razakar militia aided national integration. After Operation Polo (1948) the CPI told peasants to refuse disarmament and fight the new Republic; the Indian state suppressed it by 1951.

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Tebhaga and Telangana operated entirely outside the Gandhian framework.

18 · Historiography of the peasant upsurge (no class notes)

STORY LINK

Because the same two decades can be read two ways, Mains asks you to hold both. Ask: was the peasant upsurge part of the anti-colonial struggle or a parallel class war?

5.8 Two ways of looking at the peasant upsurge

	Bipan Chandra (Nationalist)	Sekhar Bandyopadhyay (Subaltern / Critical)
Core view	Peasant movement is an integral part of the anti-colonial struggle	Focus on class conflict and the peasantry's autonomous consciousness
Role of INC	Gave the initial political awakening; its left wing pushed it towards agrarian reform	'Freedom' meant different things to different groups; 1937-39 ministries accommodating zamindars exposed the class limits of INC's bourgeois leadership
1940s upsurges	Even Left-led post-war movements (Tebhaga, Punnapra-Vayalar) hit the feudal pillars of the Empire, aiding national liberation; 1930s tensions and CPI's Telangana deviation are secondary	Worli, Tebhaga, Telangana show rural masses breaking out of the Congress umbrella into an independent radical path, a parallel class war outside the Gandhian framework

KEY TAKEAWAY

- Synthesis: INC was genuinely anti-colonial and brought peasants into national politics, but it was a multi-class coalition that could not govern without managing propertied interests. The journey from Gandhian CDM (1930) to AIKS (1936) to armed communist rebellion (1946) shows the unresolved tension; the class struggle in the countryside was left to the early years of the Republic.

HANDOUT ALERT

- Mains skeleton from the FYQ: 'The INM, while presenting itself as national, marginalised the voices of workers, capitalists, Dalits and women in different ways. Examine.' Four themes: workers (AITUC tolerated, trusteeship vs class struggle), capitalists (funded, but muted publicly), Dalits (Mahad, RTC, Communal Award, Poona, 1956 conversion), women (AIWC, 'lawbreakers not lawmakers'). Verdict: strategic absorption, not genuine representation.
